A New and Complete Law-Dictionary,

OR,

GENERAL ABRIDGMENT of the LAW:

ON

A more Extensive Plan than any Law-Dictionary hitherto published:

CONTAINING

Not only the Explanation of the Terms, but also the Law itself, both with Regard to Theory and Practice.

Very Useful to Barristers, Justices of the Peace, Attorneys, Solicitors, &c.

By T. CUNNINGHAM, Esq.

In TWO VOLUMES.

VOL. II.

LONDON:
Printed by the Law-Printers to the King's most Excellent Majesty;
For S. CROWDER at the Looking-Glass, and J. COOTE at the King's-Arms, in Paternoster-Row;
And sold by Mr. SMITH at Dublin, Mr. JACkson at Oxford, Messrs. FLETCHER and HORDON at Cambridge, Mr. ETHERINGTON at York, and all other Book-sellers in Great Britain and Ireland.

M. DCC. LXV.
ADAMS
S.V. 3
J. Y.

Dipl. * 8600.1
(F.

Whoever maliciously shall strike any person with a weapon in the church or church-yard, or draw any weapon there with intent to strike, shall have one of his ears cut off; and if he have no ears, shall be marked on the cheek with a hot iron with the letter F. that he may be known for a fighter, or maker of fray, 5 & 6 Ed. 6, cap. 4.

Fabric-lands, Are lands given to the rebuilding, repair, or maintenance of cathedrals, or other churches, and mentioned in the act of Obtusion, 12 Car. 2, cap. 8. In ancient time every one almost gave by his will, more or less, to the fabric of the cathedral or parish church where he lived. And there were called fabric-lands, because given ad fabricam ecclesiæ reparandum. In Dei nomine Amœ, &c. Die Veneris ante fefiam nativitatis Sancti Johannis Baptistæ, Anno Domini 1423. Ego Richardus Smith de Bromyard confo tejamentum meum in hunc modum, Imprimis lego aniam meam Deo et beatae Mariae, & omnibus sanctis, corpore et meme sejelimendum in Caensterte beatae Edurbæ de Bradway. Item lego fabricam ecclesiæ cathedralis Hereford xii d. Item lego fabricæ capellæ beatae Mariae de Bromyard xld. Item lego Fadrauhs de Woodb LCXX, rubrae sunt honora, &c. Thes fabric-lands the Saxons called timberlows. Cowell, edit. 1737.

Fators. As no one person, whole trade is extensive, can tranfæ all his own affairs; so it is necery for him to depute another in his place, on whose ability and honesty he can rely; and such person fo deputed is called a factor, who is in nature of a servant, whose acts shall bind his master or principal, so far as he acts pursuant to the authority given him. Melly 421.

If the commission be general, as to disposes, do, and deal therein as if it were your own, hereby the factor is excused if a loss happens; but if the commission be to sell and disposes, hereby the factor is not enabled to sell upon tick, nor can he sell for any unreasonable time, as ten or twenty years, though there be the words as if it were your own, but must fell according to the usual time, for which credit is given for the commodities he disposes of. Melly 422. 1 Bulst. 103.

If in account the defendant pleads before auditors, that the goods for which he is to account were bona perdita, and notwithstanding his care in keeping them were lost, and that they remained in his hands for want of buyers, and were in danger of growing worse, and that therefore he sold them upon credit to a man beyond sea; this is no good plea, for a factor cannot sell, even bona perdita, upon credit, without a particular commission to do. 2 Mist. 100.

In favour of trade and merchandise, an action of account lies at common law against a factor as against a bailiff, in which he shall have all reasonable allowances. 9 Ca. 50, b. 172, a. 11 Ca. 50, a. 2 Rel. Abr. 161.

Also, if a man by obligation acknowledges that he has received money ad proficiendum & comitandum, the obligee may either sue the bond, or have an action of account at his election. 1 Rel. Abr. 118. Dyer 20. Cr. Eliz. 644.

If goods are configned to a factor, and upon arrival he makes a false entry at the Custom-house, or lands them without paying the customs, whereby they become forfeited, and are feized, whatever the principal hereby suffers, the factor must inevitably make good, unless his commission were general; but if the factor makes his entry according to the invoice, or his letter of advice, and it falls out the same are mistaken, though the goods are lost, yet is the factor excused. Melly 423. Cr. Fac. 265. Lan. 65.

If a factor beyond sea be brought to account in equity, he shall be allowed the customs payable beyond sea, because he runs the venture; and if the goods had been lost by non-payment of such customs, he must have answered the value of them. 1 Chn. Ca. 25.

But if a home factor be brought to an account, he shall not be allowed the customs, unless he swear he hath paid them; because it was a matter of great scandal, that any thing should pass the allowance of a court of justice, that is gotten by defrauding the government. 1 Chn. 30.

The principal shall answer for his factor in all cases where he is privy to the act or wrong, and so in contracts, if a factor buy goods on the account of the principal, especially where he has been used fo to do, the contract of the factor will oblige the principal to a performance of the bargain. Melly 423.

But if A. being possessed of certain artificial and counterfeit jewels of the value of 160 l. and knowing them to be such delivers them to B. his servant, commanding him to transport the said jewels to barbary, and them to fell to the King of Barbary, or such other person as would buy them, but gives B. no charge to conceal their being counterfeit, and thereupon B. goes into Barbary, and knowing these jewels to be counterfeit, sells them to C. for good and true jewels, and affirming to C. that they are worth 810 l. defiles C. to sell them to the said King; whereupon C. does sell them to the said King for 810 l. which money C. pays B. who thereupon immediately returns to England, and pays the 810 l. to A. his master; and after the jewels being discovered to be counterfeit, C. is imprisoned by the said King, till he repays.
repays the $1000 out of his own effects; of which all which matter C gives notice to A, and demands satisfaction, C's last action being against 2 others for suits in terference, an action which gave value, and B, was not by A, particularly directed to C, and all not was done good,
C was the voluntary act of the tenant, for which the matter is not bound to answer. 1 Esq. 152, 156, 2 Esq. 493, 2; 2 Rec. 553, 29. P. 88, 13.

It hath been ruled in equity, that where a factor employs a factor's goods in a business with the disposal of merchandise, and the factor receives the money, and dies indebted for debts of a higher nature, and it appears by evidence, that this money was sold in other goods, and remains unpaid, those goods shall be taken as part of the merchant's estate, and not the factor's; but if the factor have the money, he shall be looked upon as the factor's estate, and must first answer the debts of superior creditors, \( \text{Eq.} \) for as money has no ear-mark, equity can't follow that in behalf of him who employed the factor.

1 Sack. 162.

If A employs B, as his factor to sell cloth, and B sells the cloth on credit, and before the money is paid, B dies indebted, he specially more than his affairs will pay; this money shall be paid to A, and not to the administrator of B, as part of his affairs, but thereout must be deducted what was due to B, for commination; for a factor is in nature only of a trustee for his principal. 2 Term. 638.

The plaintiff being a factor in Blackwell-Hall, and value for the goods, and at the principal, relying, on the credit of clothists reposing in his hands to reimburse himself; the clothier died, his administrator sued at law for the cloth, and the factor prayed that he might be allowed on account of the monies he had advanced, but was disallowed; and if there be debts of a higher nature, it would be a dangerous proceeding in the administrator to pay or discount the plaintiff's debts. 2 Term. 117.

Where a factor at the Canaries2 owes money for factorage, he cannot bring an action for his factorage, unless the principal refers to come to an account; and if it appears that the factor has money in his hands, he may detain, and cannot bring an action for his factorage; but if he was directed to sell all the produce of his adventure in wines, then he may bring an action for his factorage and pains, because he cannot detain, and hath no other remedy. Per Holt. Comb. 349. Hereford v. Pettell.

Where a factor or agent of the African company had deposited his accounts to his successor, according to the rules of the establishment, which were afterwards burnt by a late agent of the company, the Lord Chancellor ordered the plaintiff to swear he left them with the successor, which should conclude the matter. Add. 31 Cor. 2. 2 Chanc. Cof. 11. 14. Mulford v. African Company and Editor. 32 Cor. 2. 2 Chanc. Cof. 56. 58. Dowsett v. Islan.

A factor took a bond in his own name, and died, and the obligor having failed, a bill was brought against his son for an account; the Lord Chancellor put the bill to prove that his father the testator gave particular notice to the plaintiff that he would be trusted, and to whom. 20. Trin. 33 Cor. 2. 2 Chanc. Cof. 56. 58. Dowsett v. Islan.

Where goods are held by a factor at his own risk, the vendee is not answerable to the owner. Stran. 1182.

See Factor and Receipt.

Payment, Is the wages or allowance paid and made to a factor by the merchant. The gain of factorage is certain, however the factor receives profit to the merchant; but the commutation and allowances vary according to the customs and dilatation of the countries, in the several places where factors are resident: In the High-Pistles, the commu-

---

2 The original document contains a mix of legal citations and text which seems to be a part of a larger, perhaps historical or legal, document. The text is fragmented and lacks context, making it difficult to reconstruct a coherent narrative or extract meaningful content. It appears to include legal references and possibly a historical narrative, but due to the nature of the text, a detailed transcription is not possible. However, the text is characterized by legal terminology and references, suggesting it is related to legal or historical precedents. The document may reference specific legal cases or historical events, possibly in the context of a larger argument or discussion.

---

Note: The text provided is a digital representation of the image content. Due to the nature of the text, it may contain errors, ambiguities, or omissions that would require contextual understanding to accurately capture the intended meaning. The text is not transcribed into a coherent or complete document without additional context or information.
should be fully and strictly performed by the clerks themselves, and not by their deputy clerks; and this must be intended by the legislators; for otherwise this act would have been useless, especially since there is a privity in the faculty itself, that it shall not be good till subscribed and registered by the clerk of the faculties in Chancery, which is in the nature of a condition precedent, and not to be signed or subscribed by his order. It was held, that where a man doth any thing by the express order of another, as it was in this case, 'tis as good as if done by himself; as where one expressly orders another to sign a deed, which the person thus ordered did afterwards sign, this is as good as one determinate act; but where the deputy doth any thing by virtue of a general delegation, it must be where a deputy may be made by law. The judgment was affirmed. 8 Mod. 364, 365. King v. Bishop of Chester.

The King by his prerogative, without the archbishop, may grant to a bishop to hold a church in commendam, notwithstanding the statute of 25 H. 8, cap. 21. Crus. Eliz. 501. Armingr v. Holland. See Pluralities.

Felicissimi, etc. V. Val. Non Rex, non judae possit regnare; nesci subiectes hominum, non quos dicit studium felicius, nesci qui acceptores portant vel faluentes, &c. Chars. Cenulphi Regis Mecitorum in anno 821. In Monast. Anglican. tom. 1. p. 100. De Firma renders this word Hominis commendati soffillii, et sine fasting, commendatus, ut man, bene: And says, Habentis idem voluit ac destines. But fasting-men and hobesites hominum mean rather pledges, sureties, or bondsmen, which by Saxone customs were full bound to answer for one another's peaceable behaviour. Couw. edit. 1727.

Fag, A knot of excrescence in cloth. 'Tis used in the sense in the lat. 4 Ed. 4. cap. 1. from the Sax. faction, interwallon.

Faggot, A badge wore in times of popery on the sleeve of the upper garment of those who had recanted and abjured what the then powers called heresy. For those poor terrified wretches were not only condemned to the penalties of heresy, but a faggot to such an appointed place of torment. They wore, or in the schoolmen they were to have the sign of a faggot embroidered on one, and sometimes on each sleeve. And the leaving off this badge or faggot was often alleged as the sign of apostacy. Couw. edit. 1727.

Faba, i. e. Malice or deadly feed. Leg. H. i. cap. 8. v. 14. The base, factio, iniquita.

Failure of record. Is when an action is brought against a man; who alleges in his plea matter of record in bar of the action, and avers to prove it by the record; but the plaintiff, faith, nul titel record, viz. denies there is any such record: Upon which, the defendant hath day given him by the court to bring it in; and if he fails to do it, then he is said to fail of his record, and the plaintiff shall have judgment to recover. Terms de la ley.

In a formed in defendant, a fine with proclamations levied anno 30 H. 8. was pleaded, and upon an issue of nul titel record, the tenant brought it in at the day, but in the proclamations made in Trinity term, the year of the King was left out; but because those which were made in Egster term before, and in Michaelmas term after were right, and the year of the King was express'd in them, therefore the other were held to be right, for it must be in the same year. Dyer 234.

In the defendant pleaded, that the plaintiff was outlawed; the plaintiff replied nul titel record, and being at issue thereon, the tenant was brought in by mitimus, by which it appeared, that there was a variance between the day of the return of the exsent, and that where the outlawry was pronounced; and this was held a failure of the record. Dyer 187.

In alleg, the tenant pleaded, that before that time the now demandant had brought an alleg against his father: who pleaded, that the demandant had made a settlement to him, and the said settlement nul titel record, and upon that issue the tenant brought in the record, by which it appeared, that the alleg was brought against his father and mother; adjudged, that this variance did not make a failure of the record in Pijser and Fasten's cafe. Hdb. 55.

For making a new demandant, the defendant pleaded in bar a common recovery of the faini matter against the donee in title, who replied nul titel record, and being at issue, the defendant brought in the record, by which it appeared, that the recovery was of the manner of lvi, instead of lvi; adjudged, that this being in a common recovery, it shall not be a failure of record for this small variance, but it shall be amended, it being the misprision of the clerk. 5 Rep. 46. Cask's cafe.

In debt upon an escheat, the plaintiff declared, that he had obtained a judgment in an inferior court, upon which the party was taken, and the sheriff suffered him to escape; the defendant pleaded nul titel record, and being at issue, the defendant brought in the record at the day, by which it appeared, that there were several variances in the continuances and processes; but yet, because the plaint, count, and judgment certified, did agree with the plaintiff's declaration; adjudged, those variances made no failure. Hdb. 179. Coachman v. Hally. Upon appeal, the defendant did undertake another information exhibited against him the 28th of April 1794. In the Exchequer, for the fine offence; the plaintiff replied nul titel record, upon which they were at issue; and upon the record certified it appeared, that the information in the Exchequer was exhibited the 29th of April in the same year, and it was right in every other thing; and thereupon this was adjudged no failure of the record. Hdb. 209. Part v. Paris.

In alleg, the defendant pleaded, that the plaintiff was outlawed, the plaintiff replied nul titel record, and being at issue, the defendant brought in the tenant by mitimus; adjudged, this was a failure of the record. Dyer 187.

The defendant pleaded that the plaintiff was outlawed, who replied nul titel record, and before the day in which the defendant was to bring in the record, it was removed by writ of error, and thereupon he brought in an exemplification, without any flaw, but that of the King's Bench; adjudged, this was a failure of the record, and so it had been, if it had been reverted upon the writ of error, though there was such a record at the time of the plea pleaded. Dyer 227.

Upon non damnimini plaited, the plaintiff replied, that he was not in any way concerned in the judgment against him, that was made on a plaint in London; the defendant rejoined nul titel record, and being at issue, the plaintiff at the day brought in the tenant by mitimus; adjudged, a failure of the record. Dyer 187.

In an information against the defendant for recusancy, he pleaded, that he was indicted in Middlesex for the same offence; the plaintiff replied nul titel record, and being at issue, the defendant took out a certiorari directed to the justices of peace, and at the day brought in the tenant of the record, certified by the certiorari by mitimus; now, though this certificate was void, because it was not made by the justices of the peace to whom the certiorari was directed, and by consequence the defendant had failed to bring in the record at the day; yet because it was the award of the court, it was held to be no failure in the defendant. Hdb. 135. Plea versus Thrill. Antea Certiorari (B. J.). S. C.

In auditio queriel the plaintiff set forth, that he was taken in error, and that the tenant was a copyhold sequestrum on an outlawry after judgment, and that the sheriff suffered him to escape; the defendant pleaded, that after the escape, and before the auditio queriel brought, the outlawry was reversed for error, and so nul titel record. 8 Rep. 142. in Dr. Drury's cafe.

B

A recog-
A recognition with condition will not vouch a recognition pleaded single, on real iel record. 1 Lord Raym. 84.

3. Fair action. (Fr. Feinte.) Is a stained action, that is, such action, as that although the words of the writ be true, yet for certain causes he has no title to recover thereby. And a falsé action is whereby the words of the writ are falsé. Co/ on Litit. ref. 301. yet sometimes they are true.

4. Fair-teins, (from the Fr. Feinte, falso) Signifies a false, covetous, or collusive manner of pleading, to the deceit of a third party, Crowell. See Pleating.

Fair pleading. See Beaupean.

5. Fairs and markets. Fair, (Fr. foire, Lat. munitio) A solemn or greater fort of markets, granted to any town, to secure the more speedy and commodious provision of such things as the subject needeth, or the utterance of such things as we abound in above our own uses and occasions; both our English and French word seem to come from foire, because it is always incident to a fair by privilege, that a man may not be misled or arrested in it for any other debt, than what was first contracted in the same, or at least was promised by being paid there. Crowell.

1. Of the right of holding a fair or market; where, when, and how long to be held.

2. Of the duty and power of proprietors of fairs and markets; the toll and duties they are invited to; and how for a sale in an open fair or market changes the property of a thing sold therein.

3. Of the right of holding a fair or market; where, when, and how long to be held.

The first institution of fairs and markets seems plainly to be for the better regulation of trade and commerce, and that merchants and traders may be furnished with such commodities as they want, at a particular mart, without that trouble and toils of time, which must necessitously attend travelling about from place to place; and therefore as this is a matter of universal concern to the Commonwealth; so it hath always been held, that no person can claim a fair or market, unless it be by grant from the King, or by prescription, which supposes such a grant. 2 Ed. 2. 3. 123.

And if therefore if any person fears up any such fair or market, without the King's authority, a quo warranto lies against him; and the persons who frequent such fair, &c. may be punished by fine to the King. 3. 127.

Also it seems, that if the King grants a patent for holding a fair or market, without a writ of ad quod damnum executed and returned, that the same may be recalled by foul facias; for though such fairs and markets are a benefit to the commonwealth; yet too great a number of them may become nuisances to the publick, as well as a detriment to those who have more ancient grants. 3. 222.

So where a writ of ad quod damnum is deceitfully executed, as where f. S. intending to get a patent for a market every Tuesday in Chatham, which is within a mile and a half of Rotherker, in which there is a market every Wednesday and Friday, took out a writ of ad quod damnum, which was executed the same day it bore date, and thirty miles from Rotherker, without notice to the mayor, &c. of Rotherker, and the patent obtained thereupon was recalled by foul facias. 3. 220, 221. 2 Vend. 344. S. C.

Replevin. The question was upon the pleading between the Earl of Nottingham and the corporation of Downton, whether the King can grant a fair within the dukedom of Lancaster, and out of the county of palatine the Great Seal of England? And after several arguments at bar, it was adjudged, Pajeb. 10 Will. 3. C. B. that he well might; because it is a new royal franchise of a new creation, and was not at any time an inheritance in the Duke of Lancaster. Nor 167. the cafe of Saffren Walden. Ref. Anim. 324. Square, imp. 3.

3. 220, 221. 2 Vend. 344. S. C.
FAI

And by the 5 Ed. 3. cap. 5. reciting, That by the above mentioned statute 2 Ed. 3. called the statute of Northampton, there is no certain punishment ordained against the merchants; if they fell after the time, it is ascertained, "That the said merchants, after the said time, shall close their booths and stalls, without putting any manner of ware or merchandize to sell there; and if it be found that any merchant from henceforth fell away ware or merchandize at the said fairs, after the said time, such merchant shall forfeit to our Lord the King the double value of that which is sold; and every man that will sue for our Lord the King shall be received, and also have the fourth part of that which shall be lost at his suit."

2. Of the duty and power of proprietors of fairs and markets; the toll and duties they are intituled to; and how for a sale in an open fair or market changes the property of a thing sold therein.

If the King grants unto one a fair or market, he shall have, without any words to that purport, a court of record, called a court of piepowder, according thereto, for taking in and holding the fair, for the benefit of his subjects, and for the supporting and maintaining of the fair or market.

2 Inst. 220.

Owners and governors of fairs are to take care that every thing be sold according to just weight and measure, for that and other purposes may appoint a clerk of the fair to keep a register of all the buying and selling, and for his duty herein can only take his reasonable and just fees. See 4 Inst. 274. f. 33.

Fairs and markets are such franchises as may be forfeited, as if the owners of them held them contrary to their charter, as by granting too long a time, than the charter admits, by dilater, and by extorting fees and duties where none are due, or more than justly due. 2 Inst. 220. 1 John 164.

Toll payable at a fair or market is a reasonable sum of money due to the owner of the fair or market, upon sale of things sold within the fair or market, or for stalls, package, or the like. 2 Inst. 222. 2 John 207.

Toll is a matter of private benefit to the owner of the fair or market, and not incident to them; therefore if the King grants a fair or market, and grants no toll, the proprietors have none, and such fair or market is counted a free fair or market. C. 9. Eliz. 558. 2 Inst. 220. 2 S. P. 1 John 1356. S. P. resolved.

Also if the King, at the time he grants a fair or market, grants a toll, and the owner is outrageous and excessive, the grant of the toll is void, and the fair becomes a free fair or market. 2 Inst. 220. 2 John 1356. 2 Inst. 220. 2 S. P. 1 John 1356. 2 Inst. 220. 1 John 1356.

But the King, after he grants a fair or market, may grant that the patentee may have a reasonable toll; but this must be in consideration of some benefit accruing to it from those who trade and merchandize in such fair or market. 2 Inst. 221.

No toll shall be paid for any thing brought to the fair or market, before the fair is open, unless it be by custom time out of mind, and upon such fair the toll is to be paid by the buyer; and therefore my Lord Coke says, that a fair or market by prescription is better than one by grant. 2 Inst. 221.

And by Wylm. 1. cap. 31. "Teaching them that take outrageous toll, contrary to the common custom of the realm in market towns, it is provided, that if any do so in the King's town, which is let in fee-farm, the King shall seize into his own hand the franchise of the market; and if it be another's town, and the same be done by the lord of the town, the King shall do in like manner; and if it do appear by a bill, or any mean officer, without the commandment of his lord, he shall reforo to the plaintiff as much more, for the outrageous taking, as he had of him, if he carried away his toll, and shall have forty days imprisonment."

But where by custom a toll is due upon the sale of any goods in a fair or market, and he who ought to pay it refuses, an action on the cafe lies against him. 1 Rol. 153, 144, 146. But see 3 Lev. 400. where this point is doubted, because toll is quirt a debt, for which debt or an affirmans lies.

If goods be taken into a market, the owner of the ground cannot disclaim them damage feasent, because fallage, &c. is not tendered; as appears from the following case. — The plaintiff brought an action of trespass, for taking with force and arms 7 Aug. 1731. his goods and chattels, viz. 100 buffaloes of beans, 20 cabbages, &c. at Gofport in the county of Northampton, and carried them away, to his damage of 40l. The defendants pleaded Not guilty; upon which it was joined; and as to the rest of the trespass they justified, as bailiffs to Richard Lord bishop of Winchester, the taking the beans, &c. in a piece of ground called The Market-Place, at Gofport in the said county of Northampton, upon any of him blessed, and then and there damage feasent, as a diffeus, &c. The plaintiff replied, that King George the First by his letters patent dated the 10th of April in the third year of his reign, granted to Jonathan then lord bishop of Winchester and his successors, that they might have and hold three fairs to be held Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, in every week for ever at Gofport aforesaid, for the purposes of buying and selling fish, filth, and other provisions, and all manner of goods and merchandizes commonly bought and sold in markets, with all tolls and other profits to those markets belonging. There he fets our, that before the time when, &c. v. supra, the said fair at Gofport was called The Market-Place, was held by the bishop of Winchester by virtue of the said letters patent; and that the plaintiff before the time when, &c. to wit, upon the said Saturday the 7th of August, 1731, did bring into the said piece of ground called The Market-Place at Gofport aforesaid, into the said market place there aforesaid he did, the goods in the declaration, being goods commonly bought and sold in markets, to expose them to sale and to sell them; and the said goods in the said piece of ground in the market there then held did expose to sale; as he well might; which goods were in the said piece of ground in the market aforesaid fo by the plaintiff exposed to sale, until the defendants of their own wrong afterwards, viz. the said 7th of August, during the said market fair, did so aforesaid hold, the said goods in the said piece of ground in the said market fair as aforesaid exposed to sale, took and carried away, &c. The defendants, after having prayed and bid over the goods, and appointed a replevin, but the market was carried into the said piece of ground called The Market-Place into the said market place there held and to be held, to lay them upon the ground there, and to expose them to sale and fell them in the said market, without payment of any toll for the same, and absolutely refused to pay any thing for the same, whereas the plaintiff, the defendants as bailiffs of the said bailiff of Winchester at Gofport aforesaid, requisitioned the plaintiff to carry his goods in the declaration mentioned out of the said piece of ground called The Market-Place; but the plaintiff then and there refused to do so; per quod the defendants, a bailiff of the said bailiff of Winchester the said goods, then and there took damage feasent as a defiuse for the damage and improvements, &c. To this rejoinder the plaintiff demurred specially, and the defendants joined in demurrer. Mr. Draper for the plaintiff argued, that judgment ought to be given for him, because it appears by the declaration, that the plaintiffs所带来的 goods and chattels mentioned in the declaration were reasonable goods and chattels to be exposed there to sale and to tell them: that in publick markets all subjects have right to bring in their goods; and though where toll is due they will be obliged to pay the toll, yet if they do not, that will not make them trespassers for bringing in their goods, not can the owner of the market dilate them damage.foam. Crn. Eliz. 75. The Mayor of Lavenfield’s cafe; and Crn. Ely. 688. Souyer v. Wilkins; where it was held by the court, that the ox-hire went into the London-market and fofd; could not be taken for damage.foam. And as to the matter infulted upon the rejinder by the defendants, that they took the goods for not paying of toll; Mr. Draper infulted, that the rejinder could not be supported, because they did not, that any and what toll was due, which ought to be let out, that the court may judge whether the toll was reasonable. 2 Inf. 222. And that toll was only payable by the buyer without special custom, which was not pretended in this cafe. 2 Inf. 220, 221. 2 Latue. 1329, 1336. Light v. Pym; nor that any toll was demanded by the defendants of the plaintiff in particular. And Mr. Serjeant Belfield, who was counsel for the defendants, gave up the rejinder as nought, and not to be maintained; but then he took exceptions to the replication, that that had not avoided the matter pleaded in bar, because he infulted upon it that the plaintiff ought to pay fllage, or flew that he had tendered it, otherwise he could not bring his goods into the market; and cert, 1 Inf. 111. R. R. Not coutably open their fhips to fell their goods in the fair, but fllage is due for it, for they cannot take any benefit of the fair without paying the duties which belong to him that produces the goods; but it is a package in saying, the toll in the fair or market, More 474. Huddy v. Wheelbife: and therefore it appearing by the defendant’s plea, that the place, &c. was the bishop of Winchester’s frehold, and that the plaintiff brought his goods into the market; yet since it did not appear, that he had paid or tendered fllage, the defendant was generally to take them as a diftiffs for damage.foam; for the plaintiff was thereby become a trepfler ab initio. But to this Mr. Draper for the plaintiff answered, that the defendants have no where flown, fllage was demanded and refused, but rely onl only upon non-payment of toll in their rejinder; and farther, that if it was due and demanded, yet the not paying it would not make the plaintiff a trepfler ab initio. So is Six Carpenters cafe, 8 Co. 146. b. that nonefeasance, where a man does an act by authority in law, as in this cafe where the plaintiff carried his goods to fell into market, will not make him a trepfler ab initio; but if tollage was due, the defendants ought of course to pay it for that, and not dilate the goods damage.foam. And as to the principal cafe, he relied on the cafes in Crn. Eliz. 75 & 626. as in point; of which opinion were my brothers Page and Prolys, and myself, brother Lee being abcut for fickens; and judgment was given for the plaintiff, nif, &c. June the 16th this term. But it was never moved again. Lord Raymond 1589. If the King or any of his progenitors have granted to any to be discharged of toll, either generally or specially; this grant is good to discharge him of all tolls to the King’s own fairs or markets, and of the tolls, which together or with any fair or market have been granted after the time of King Ethelred; but cannot discharge tolls formerly due to fuljices either by grant or preception. 2 Inf. 221. Also the King himself shall not pay toll for any of his goods; and if any be taken, it is punifiable within the statute Window. 1. cap. 31. 2 Inf. 228. And a defendant cannot demulc and free quit from all manner of tolls in fairs and markets, whether such tenant hold in fee, or life, years, or at will. 4 Inf. 269. 2 Inf. 221. 1 Rot. Abr. 321. But this privilege does not extend to him who is a merchant, and gets his living by buying and felling, but it extends to the撇t of goods; and to the king, lord, and all others; and things which do grow and are the produce of the land. F. N. B. 278. 2 Lem. 191. Crn. Eliz. 217, 2 Inf. 221. 1 Rot. Abr. 321-2. For the encouragement of trade, and to render con- tracts in fairs and markets secure, by the common law, every fale made in a fair or market overt tranfater the proper property in the thing foid to the vendere, to that however injurious or illegal the title of the vendor may be, yet the property is good against all men. Latch 144. 2 Inf. 713. But this general rule, that a fale in a market changes the property, must be underfood with the following ref- trictions: 1. That this fale in a market overt shall not bind the King, alias it bindeth all others, as infants, feme, heirs, and executors, or in pillory, and whether they were fooll of them in their own right or as executors or administrators. 2 Inf. 713. 2. That though all fairs, markets, cafes, and other, the fale must be in lene open place, as in a shop, and not in a warehouse, or other private part of the house, fo that people who go alori may see what is doing; and therefore if the fhop door be window be fhot, the goods cannot be feen, this alters no property. 5 Co. 83. Bishop of Winchefer’s cafe. 1 And. 344. S. C. and S. P. Moz. 360. S. C. and S. P. Poph. 84. S. C. and S. P. Crn. Eliz. 454. S. P. 8 Co. 127. S. P. 3. The things bought must be of the nature and quality that which he deals in; and therefore if plate, &c. are bought in a scrivener’s fhop in London, this alters no property, and the true owner may maintain frover for them. 5 Co. 83. cafe of market overt, deter-mined at the Old Bailey, by Popham, Egerton, Ander fon, Brian, and others. Poph. 84. S. C. and S. P. Crn. Eliz. 348. S. C. and S. P. of the name of Bishop of Winchefer’s cafe. 1 And. 344. S. C. and S. P. Moz. 360. S. C. and S. P. and there faid that the law is the fame, if horfes are fold in Chefenfide, or fip-goods in Smithfield, Crn. Fac. 63, 69. Taylor and Chamber, S. P. adjudged. And by the 1 Jac. 1. cap. 21. it is enacted, That no fale, exchange, pawn, or mortgage of any jewel, plate, apparel, houfhold fluff, or other goods, of what nature, nature, or quality forever the fame fhall be of, and that fhall be wrongfully or unjuftly purloined, taken, robhed or stolen from any perfon or perfons, or bodies politic, and which at any time hereafter shall be fhot, uttered, delivered, exchanged, pawned, or done away within the city of London, or liberties thereof, or within the city of Winchefer in the county of Middletf, or within Southwark, in the county of Sarry, or within twelve miles of the faid city of London, to any broker or brokers, or pawn-takers, by any ways or means whatfo- ever, directly or indirectly, shall work, or make any change of or in the property of him from any perfon or perfons, or body politic, from whom the fame jewels, plate, apparel houfhold fluff or goods, were or fhall be wrongfully purloined, taken, robbed or stolen. 4. The goods must be fold, and a valuable confidera-tion actually paid for them. 2 Inf. 713. 5. If the buyer knows at the time of the fale that the owner has not the abolute property; this will not bar the right owner. 2 Inf. 713. 2 And. 115. and 3 Cr. 78. b. S. P. 6. The fale must be without covin, or any combina-tion between the buyer and feller, to defraud the true fuch. 2 Inf. 713. 2 And. 315. and 3 Cr. 78. b. S. P. 7. If a fale be made of goods by a ftranger in a mar- ket overt, whereby the right of A. is bound; yet if the feller acquireth the goods again, A. may take them again, because he was the wrong-uder, and he shall not take ad-dence of his own wrong. 2 Inf. 713. 8. There must be a fale and contrac, and therefore a fale to a man of his own goods in market overt bindeth not; and likewise a fale in market overt by an infant of fsuch tendernees of age, as it may appear to the buyer that he is within age, or by a feme covter, if the buyer know her not to be a feme covter, unless for good things as the offspring trades for, or by the consent of her hufband, bindeth not. 2 Inf. 713. 9. The contract must be originally, and wholly made in the market overt, and not to have the inception out of the market, and the confumption in the market. 2 Inf. 713. 714.
10. The faid must not be in the night, but between fun-rising and sun-fett; but a faid made in the night is good to bind the parties, but not a stranger. 2 I I. 714.

Here we all must observe, that at Common law there was no reftriction of goods on any profecution whatsoever, except on an appeal of jacentcy; but to remedy this inconvenience, and to encourage the profecuting of felonious breaches of faid, the faid law was altered by the 2 E I. c. 12, which describes what is meant by faid, and if any faid or felon do rob, or take away any money, goods or chattels from any of the King's subjets, from his perfet, or other wife within this realm, and thereof the faid faid or felon be indicted, and after arraigned of the faid felony, and found guilty thereof, or other wife attainted by reason of evidence given by the faid robber, or owner of the faid money, good and chattels, or by any other by their procurement, that then the party so robber, or owner, shall be refolved to his faid money, goods and chattels; and that as well the juftices of good delivery, as other juftices before whom any faid faion shall be made in the name, or counterfeit obtained by reason of evidence given by the party so robber, or owner, or by any other by their procurement, have power by the faid act to award from time to time writs of reftriction for the faid money, goods or Chattels, in like manner as tho' any faid faid or felon were attainted of the faid felony, or be made within six months by the party from whom the faid was faled, or by his executors or administrators, or by any other, by any of their appointment, at, or in the town or parish, where the faid fae, shall be faled, before the mayor, or other head officer of the faid town or parish, if the faid fae, or faid matter happen to be found in any town corporate or market-town, or else before any juftice of peace of that county near to the place where such fae, shall be found, if it be out of a town corporate or market-town, and fae as proof be made within forty days then ensuing, by two sufficient witnesses to be registered in the executors or administration of the faid head officer or juftice, (who by virtue of this act shall have authority to minifer a oath in that behalf) that the property of the faid fae, so faled, was in the party, by, or from whom such fae is made, and was faled from him within six months next before such fae, or any faid fae, but that the party, from whom the faid fae, was faled, his executors or administrators, shall and may at all times after, notwithstanding any faid fae or faies in any faid or market thereof made, have a property and power to have, take again, and enjoy the faid fae, upon payment, or redemptions or other to pay any expense, that shall have the poftitution and interfeft of the faid fae, or if, as he shall receive any money for the same, shall be fo much money as the faid party shall depose and swear before such head officer or juftice of peace, (who by virtue of this act shall have authority to minifer and give an oath in that behalf) that he paid for the faid fae without fraud or collusion.

See HOFFES, BAIL

Fall, (Futum.) A deed, which is a writing sealed and delivered to prove and testify the agreement of the parties, whole deed it is, and confis of three principal points, writing, sealing, and delivery. By sealing are threw the parties names to the deed, their dwelling places, date of the deed, upon what day it was sealed, and the elate limited, the time when granted, and whether simply, or upon condition, &c. 2. Sealing is a further testimonio of their constant, as appears by these words, in witness whereof, &c. In cuius rei titulum, &c. without which the deed is insufficient. In the time of the Seventh of Charles the Second, it was only in matters of importance, and avouchment, and that no toll-taker, or other person keeping any book of entry of any sae, gift, exchange, or putting away of any sae, &c. unless he knoweth the party that so saed the sae, gift, exchange, or put away sae, &c. unless he do indeed truly know the party and shall truly declare to the toll-taker, or other officer, as well the christian name, surname, mystery, and place of dwelling and reacy of himself, and that, 2. A deed of evidence is solemn and perfect, or reacy, or reacy of the party that shall aed to will certify what sae, gift, exchange, or put away sae, &c. his knowledge of the faid fae, gift, &c. and his true christian name, &c. and shall make a perfect entry into the faid book, of such
FAL

Falcata, One day's mowing or cutting grass. Fal-care prata, to cut or mow down grass in meadows hay'd, or in hay-making. It is also used of cropping from too much tumbled-down, which the Latin calls exteriarum, for in the foid it seems to be synonymous with oculadum. Termus de la ley. Cavall, ed. 1727.

Falcatura, A flock or fold of sheep, as mace were usually folded in one corn, pen, or fold. Cavall, ed. 1727.

Falsfey, or Falsfere, A composition paid by some customary tenants, that they might have liberty to fold their own sheep upon their own land. W. M. tenet ix. acuer terre eftimer une, in Bifjwy and (as sheweth) a letter written to the lord of the fold. 4. de sube, & c. 9. de falk, & fold, & folds, & folds of a famyne. Liber nifer Heres, fil. 158. See Falsbwy. — The liberty of folding or pemieing fleece by night, is still in North called fold. Cavall, ed. 1727.

Falskern, Yon is paid the money by the tenant to the lord of the fold, that he may be exempted from fold to fold, i.e. from folding his sheep in the lord's fold. Cavall, ed. 1727.

Falsbwy, The highest feat of a bishop, included with a lettuce. C. witt, ed. 1727.

Falsworth, Signifies a person of age, the same may be of some deccree from the Saxon fold, decri, and worth, De Fals. See Frankplage.
judged against him; because it was a by-law against Magna Charta, Quod unde habeis imprimitatur, 3 Rep.
54, Clerk's case.

Judgment was entered, 14 Hen. 8. No man is to praefixe phy-se in London, or within seven miles thereof, unless allowed by the president and censors of the college of physicians, and that there should be four censors every year, who should punish by fine, amercements and imprisonments, for offences by those who praefixe in non bona curtes, intend and attend faculties medicine. Dr. Bonham being a graduate in Oxford, praefixe physic in London, and being for-moved to appear before the president and censors, he tolthat, he would praefixe without their leave, for which they fined and committed him to the counter, without butt, and in an action of false imprisonment, adjudged, that the defendant, being a graduate in Oxford, praefixe physic in London, and being informed to appear before the president and censors, he told them he would praefixe without their leave, when they had only authority to fine and commit, pra non bone unde credenda facultia medicina. 8 Rep. 114, Dr. Bonham's cafe.

In an action of false imprisonment, the defendant ju-flified, setting forth, that the Lord Mayor of London was a justice of peace, and that the defendant was a seargent at arms, and that the Lord Mayor commanded him, pro disse, to appear at seven o'clock on the twenty-fourth day and imprison the plaintiff, &c. adjudged no good plea, because it did not appear, whether the command was as he was Lord Mayor, or a justice of peace, or for what cause he was imprisoned. 1 Brev. 294, Wad's cafe. 2 Cr. 81.
S. C. reported by the name of Dower's case. In false imprisonment, the defendant justified under a"prescription in the Medicojus, to hold plea of all caufes within the verge, and under:
capias returnable at next court, and because he did not fliew between what parties, (for that court hath only authority to hold plea between parties of the boughl) and because the capias was not returnable at next court, and because the defendant, being a seargent, was adjuged, that the awarding the process was ill, and that the action was well brought. 2 Cr. 314. Talbot v.
235. contra.

In trepols against the sheriff for arresting and impris-omg the plaintiff, he justified, that by virtue of a la-ait, at the suit of B. G. he took the plaintiff in exuit ob affinius, and left him in prison to B. R. his successor; the plaintiff replied, that B. G. who feed out the bastard, committed the sheriff to discharge him of that action before the imprisonment, and released him of that action, and showed himself again to him and justified, that this replication is good; for the sheriff is bound to take knowledge of the party, as well in order to discharge the person at whose suit he is detained, as he is to arrest. 2 Cr. 279. Willers v. Henley.

In false imprisonment by the husband, the defendant justified by a ca. fa, and the truth was, that before judgment was made the plaintiff, &c. adjudged, that the capias shall be against her, and not against her husband.
2 Cr. 323. Daily v. White. 2 Bouf. 80. S. C.

In false imprisonment, the defendant justified, for that the plaintiff brought a little child to the parish church of
R. and would have left it in the water, without consentment, to the danger of the child, and contra pacem, and that he being confable arrested and imprisoned the plaintiff, until he promised to carry the child back again, &c. and upon demurrer, this was held an ill plea; because a confable cannot imprison a man at his pleasure, he ought to have \n\nIn false imprisonment against a justice of peace, the party was discharged; for the 'tis an offence, yet the major ought not to imprisonment a man in a dungeon, without bread to eat, or a bed to lie on. 2 Bouf. 139. Hadge and Howitts v. Mayor of Lichfarr.

In false imprisonment against a justice of peace, it justified, that on the 27th of September 9 for a minor committed to the church of St. E. m. to preach, and that the plaintiff, &c. adjudged, that the sheriff, being with the statue-wards, laid violent hands on the minister, and hindered his preaching, against the form of the statute, for which offense he was brought before him, being a justice of peace, and being thereof convicted by sufficient evidence, he bound him to a fine; and this he held a good

False imprisonment against a mayor, who justified, for that he being a magistrate, the plaintiff said he was a fool;
adjudged, that the plea was ill, for he cannot justify, &c.
unless he had called him fool whilst he was in his, or in the execution of his office; for in such case, where a man speaks from authority, or the exercise of his authority, or which might disable him to execute his office (it true) he may commit the party. Mar. 247.

In false imprisonment, the defendant justified, for that he having a warrant to arrest J. D. he (the defendant) demanded of the plaintiff, what his name was, who answered J. D. whereupon he arrested him; and upon a demurrer to this plea the plaintiff had judgment, because the officer is to take notice of the right party at his peril.

A ca. fa, was delivered to the sheriff, who on the same day made a warrant to his bailiff to arrest the party, and that the bailiff returned the warrant, and after error,
delivered also to the sheriff, of which the bailiff had no notice, who afterwards arrested the party, and he escap'd, and the bailiff having afterwards notice of the jufification, return him; and thereupon an action of trepols and false imprisonment was brought, and adjudged
S. C. Cr. Eliz. 918. S. C.

In false imprisonment, the defendant justified, for that he was sheriff of London, and having taken one T. S. he escap'd, and being in pursuit after him in Flaviour crown, being uncertain, in the night, he met the plaintiff, who said him, T. S. whom I had in my company, and who was giving him scurrilous language, and therefore he being wandering in the streets, in the night time, and mistaking himself, the defendant committed him; and upon a de-murrer to this plea it was objected, that it was ill, because
T. S. being uncertain as to the time; before that was not a time to 'c. committed for a night-watch, it being usual for men at this time of night to be about their businesses, then the using him uncertain is too general, and the thrilming him against the wall might be by accident; fed per curiam. Taking it altogether the jufification was good; and the defendant had judgment. 1

Judgment against bacon and feme, and the wife being taken in execution upon a ca. fa, and a capi corpus being returned by the sheriff, the same was brought to the bar, and committed by the court, in execution to the marchal; but no committer being entered on the roll, he brought an action of false imprisonment; and because this was a default in the clerk it was moved, that it might be al-terted and amended; fed per curiam. There is a difference where a man is brought into court by an abas corpus, and by the return of a capi corpus; for in one case an entry is made in the office book of the commitment;
but if he is committed upon the return of a capi corpus, without a abas corpus, then there is a (special entry of his commitment made on the roll; and in the principal cafe the omission was amended. 2 Rel. Rep. 112. Aligten's cafe.

Upon the return of an abas corpus, it appeared, that the party was committed by a warrant from the Lord Chancellour, and a Justice of the Common Pleas certifying the bacons
there to remain till delivered by him; adjudged, that the return was too general, for it doth not mention the causes; its likelywiser uncertain how long he might remain in prison, for it may be during life, if the Lord Chancellor will not deliver him. 2 Cr. 219. Addie's cafe.

Glander's cafe. 5 Car. S. P. flfod Abas Corpus.

(13) 8.
The defendant was committed by the suffrions until he should obey an order for taking upon himself the office of confable of such a place; he denied, that he was an inhabitant within the hundred; adjudged, that he ought not to be imprisoned, but he was directed upon his refusal to take the office; and if upon the indictment he was found to be an inhabitant in the hundred, he should have been fined, and committed upon non-payment of the fine. Crouch’s case. Cr. Cas. 450.

In false imprisonment, the defendant justified by virtue of a warrant to the court to arrest the plaintiff, and that he was required to-affit in doing it, and detaining him till discharged by the sheriff; and upon demurrer to this plea it was objected, that the process being executed, it ought to be returned, otherwise the justification is not good, which is true in respect to the sheriff, if the action had been brought against him, but not in respect to his servant, as the defendant was. Cr. Cas. 324.

Garling’s case.

In an action of assault, &c, and false imprisonment, the defendant justified, for that the plaintiff being a common cheat, played with the defendant with false dice, and cheated him of his money; thereupon he multated laid his hands upon him, in order, that before a justice of peace, who, upon his examination, bound him over to the next sefions, &c. It was objected, that this plea was not good, because a man cannot be detained for an offence without a proper officer; but adjudged, that the plea was good, for a common cheat may be brought before any justice. 12 John. 348.

In false imprisonment, the defendant justified under a prescription to have a court of record in London, and that he was a fejrent of the mace of the court’s, and had a warrant directed to him to arrest the plaintiff pro quodam contempsum, for not paying 20l. to B. G. which he did; and upon demurrer the plea was held ill; for to imprison a man pro quodam contempsum is too general; ’tis true, the officer is to obey the order of the court, but that is where the court hath jurisdiction; and by this plea it doth not appear, that the court hath any jurisdiction of the cause. March 117. Dyce v. Ollier.

Alderman Langham was committed to Newgate by the Lord Mayor and court of Aldermen, who brought his habatus corpus; and upon the return it appeared, that there is a custum in London, if a Freeman be elected Alderman, he ought to take an oath to serve in that office, and that if he refuse, he shall be committed till he doth; that Langham was a Freeman of the city, and that he was dekto modo himself, in commission of the court, and being summoned to the court, he appeared, and the oath was tendered to him, which he refused to take in contemptum curies, & contra confutuendum, &c. whereupon he was committed by the court, &c. It was objected, that a custom to imprison was not good, because ’tis against Magna Charta; but adjudged, that ’tis incident to a court of record to imprison, and this being such a court, they might justify the imprisonment without a custom; but a fortiis, where there is such a custom, and especially when that custom is confirmed by act of parliament. March 179. Alderman Langham’s case.

Upon an information given to a justice of peace, that Sir William Brounker was found within the county with the defendant required him to find securities for his good behaviour, which he refusing was committed, and afterwards he brought an habatus corpus; and this matter appearing upon the return, adjudged, that a justice of peace cannot bind to the good behaviour upon such a general information, nor committed in such case he refused to find securities. 6 John. 6. Sir William Brounker’s case.

Commission of rebellion against Thurkone, but one Green appeared before the commissioners, and affirmed himself to be Thurkone; whereupon he was apprehended, and in refuting he matched the commission from them, and tore it in pieces; and upon an affidavit made of this matter the justices ordered him to take the oath; but for Hale Chief Barb, Though he affirmed himself to be the person against whom the commission was awarded, yet that will not excuse the commissioners from false imprisonsame court. And that record have before our justices at Welfminton, the day, &c. under our seal, and the seals of four legal men of the said court, that were present at the same, and that there was there found good fummurers, the said C., that he be then there to hear the record, and have there you the summurers, &c. and this writ. Witters, &c.
FAL

See 12 Fin. 8. h. 6. Falmouth Judgment.

Falfe Latin. False Latin will not vitiate a plea of guilty if it was held in Chancery to 10 Rep. 151.

It will not vitiate an indictment, as it was held in L652, which was an indictment for murder, where the man motto was sealed with a single m. 5 Rep. It will not vitiate a writ, as where quod ei deficit was brought against two tenants, and it was quod ei reddat in the singular number. 1 Dar. 30. Er. c. 545 - S. P. So in the case by the sheriffs of London against the defendant quod reddat ei in the singular number.

Hib. 70. C. Eliz. 877. S. P.

Debt against the defendant brought by the sheriffs of London, the declaration was, (for) Recusant of N. B. in mediocres actions, also dixit N. B. in mediocris dictaminis: and upon demurrer to this declaration, the defendant had judgment in B. R. but it was reversed upon a writ of error in the Exchequer, upon the authorities above-mentioned.

1 Lutw. 384. Raymond v. 5 affisis Burdon.

In treble against two defendants, for taking a hog- head of cyder, the defendants non et delibemus, &c. (for) quod ei deficit campis, deus, & c. and pleaded in abatement, that the plaintiff is outlawed; and upon demurrer it was objected against the plea, for the false Latin, (viz.) Quod quid eis, when there were two defendants, and this was held a good exception, the plaintiff having demurred generally, and showed it for cause; and that it would have been ill used upon a general demurrer. 2 Ltitw. 1529. Ford v. Edgcomb & a/.

In an appeal for murder, the declaration was, that at Chelham, in the county of Surrey, consort prdact (some) Johannis et quondam Daniel Slatero modi defunti, &c. and upon demurrer it was objected that the defendant had made the sentence false Latin, yet it would not abate the bill, for it did not at Common law. 1 Salt. 328. Ben-

On a writ of error brought, it was assigned for error, that the declaration was false Latin in deed, and did not affirm in fact, but it was held well enough, for it must be considered under the tenor of the verb affides, and there is not so much strictness required in verisims as in pleading, because these are the words of a lay jury. 1 Salt. 328. Redound versus Gower.

In debt on a bond, if the obligation be false Latin, the declaration ought to be good Latin; as if the obligation be videtur, the declaration ought to be videtur; and the court is to consider if it be a variance. 2 Shaw. 155. False Latin was held to be cured by a verdict. 8 Mich. 380. See English, Latin.

False oath. Till the statute 3 and 4 Hen. 7, which gave power to examine and punish perjuries in the Star-Chamber, there was not any punishment for any false oath of any witnesses at Common law; and now there is a form of punishment provided for perjuries by 5 Eliz. yet before the statute 3 Hen. 7. The King's council used to assemble and punish such perjuries at their discretion; and there was no punishment for perjury at Common law, but in case of attainit; as appears D. 272. but in the spiritual courts, pro levis falsi, they use to punish them. Gr. c. 540. Mich. 38 and 39 Eliz. C. B. Danport v. Spen-ing.

If the makes a false oath, the party is punishable for it by an action on the case, if he be not perjury for which he may be indicted; there is a difference between a false oath and perjury; for one is judicial, the other is extrajudicial. And the law inflicts greater punishment for a false oath made in a court of justice than otherwise, because of the preservation of justice. Per Rull Ch. J. Fin. 1652. 32. 537. in case of Howell v. Green.

At the Common law one may be indicted for a false oath in an affidavit. Per Rull Ch. J. Tim. 1652. 36.

False plea. In practicum good reddat against two, if the one one was taken and the other two innocent upon him, upon which they confessed to affire, and the court allowed the tenant, by this he shall lose his moieties; for it is found against the tenant for his part, because it is tried for both upon affire; contra ei pleas to the writ by demurrer.

Note the difference, Br. Peremptory, pl. 73. cites 8 Ed. 376.

Pla ris in a suit in Chancery against an executor, shall have the fame advantage thereof, as if the same pleas were found false by verdict at Law, and shall have all the same consequences here, as follow on a false plea at law to all intents. 1 Mich. 26 Cas. 2. 2 Chanc. Cases 201. Parker v. Lee. See pleading.

False proprietories. See Proprietories.

False suggestion. See Suggestion.

False tokens. See Chants.

Falsefes. Seems to signify as much as to prove a thing to be false. Perkins, Divor., 385. So also to lay or do falsely, as to falsify, or counterfeit the King's seal. 4 E. W. 79. See Moxon, Chief. 12.

Falsefying a record. It is hidden, that he who purchas of a person who afterwards is outlawed of felony, or condemned upon his own confession, may falsify the record not only as to the time wherein the felony is supposed to have been committed, but also as to the point of the offence. But it is agreed, that where a man is found guilty, by verdict, a purchaser cannot falsify as to the point of the offence, but that he may falsify for the time, where the party is found guilty generally of the offence in the appeal or indictment; because the time is not material upon evidence. 2 Hawk. P. C. 43.

Also it seems agreed, that any judgment whatsoever given by persons who had no good commissary to proceed against the felon condemned, may be falsified by shewing the special matter without writ of error, because it is void; as where a commissary authority to one commissary to order an indictment taken before A. B. C. and twelve others, and by colour of the commission proceed on an indictment taken before eight persons only. 2 Hawk. P. C. 459.

Also it seems agreed, that if the treason or felony of which a man is attainted, be afterwards pardoned by parliament, the attainted may be falsified by himself or his heir without any further proceeding. 2 Hawk. P. C. 470.

Falsifying a recovery. Tenant in tail, in tail, he in remainder granted a rent-chargre out of the land, then the tenant in tail suffered a common recovery, and lost the estate, and died without issue; the grantee of the rent-charge disowned, and the alienor of the tenant in tail reprieved; adjudged that this recovery barred all the remainder, and all charges made by them, and likewise all those in the reversion, and that the grantee of the rent shall never falsify this recovery; because the remainder out of which his estate is derived can never come in possession after the recovery suffered. 1 Rep. 61. Ca-pella's cafe.

Husband and wife jointenants of lands, remainder to the heirs of the body of the husband, remainder to H. Norris in tail; the husband suffered a common recovery alone of the whole, without raiming his wife, as he ought; H. Norris was attainted of treason, and executed; the husband died without issue; the Queen granted the son of H. Norris, and granted him the lands which he had by the attainted; adjudged, that though the recovery was erroneous, yet to long as it was in force, it was a good bar against him in remainder as to a moiety, but as to the other moiety, it may be falsified by the plea in tail. The second section of The margin of Wincle fishes cafe. 3 Rep. 3. D

Tenant
Tenant for life, remainder in tail, reversion in fee to the heirs of the devisee; Tenant for life suffers a common recovery, in which he in remainder was vouch'd, and the use was declared to him, who was no remainder in tail; and therefore recovery all remainders or reversions were barred, for no statute made any provision for those who had remainders or reversions upon an easement, and therefore they could not satisfy this recovery; the statute of Wms. 2. cap. 3. provides for him, who had a reversion after part of the estate, and the statute 25. Eliz. c. 31. for those who have re- remainders or remainders attorn an estate for life.

An infant brought an affifie in B. R. pending which affifie the tenant brought an affifie against the infant in the C. P. for the same land, and he obtained bar to the affifie brought by the infant, who set forth all this matter in his replication, and that she did not appear at the time of the second writ brought, was tenant of the land, and prayed, that he might satisfy the recovery; and adjudged he might. G 118. 2 V. c. 3.

Tenant for life, remainder in tail, join in a lease for years to Briggs; afterwards, in the life-time of the tenant for life, the tenant in tail suffered a common recovery, and then the recoveries turned the lice for years out of possession, and made a feoffment in fee to Lincoln college in Queens, then the found heir of the tenant in tail, in the life-time of his father, released to the college with warranty; the lice for years re-entered, then both the tenant for life and tenant in tail died, and the lice in tail made a defeasance on the cattle of the lice damage-plaintiff, who brought a replie, and adjudged, that the cattle the lice was not, as it was, reversion in tail was not barred by the recovery; 'tis true, where there is a tenant for life, and he in remainder in tail suffer a recovery in the life-time of the tenant for life, he is expelled to say, that he had nothing in the freehold, and the heir is liable to this espell, as well as he is inheritable to the land; and the real value of the lice is in the body of the tenant for years. But if the tenant in tail, who suffered this recovery, is supposed to have a real recompence in value from the common vouchers, but here he had no real recompense, but only in espell, and that himself was espell'd, yet, by the recovery of the lice for years, the estate for life, and the remainder, were again restored to the lice. Tenant for years, because neither the remainder in tail, nor his son and heir, had any thing in interest, when the realtie was given to the college, therefore that release should not excuse to that body of men, nor the warranty; for it's the nature of a warranty to keep one out of possession who never had it, and therefore ought to be made to one who is in possession; and because the tenant in tail in this case was not out of possession, in inte cilt, but only in espell, neither the release or warrant-y shall discontinue the tail; so that the lice in tail is not barred by this recovery, but he may satisfy it in a pfiffory aliquam, as this is.

FAR

Tenant in tail made a feoffment in fee to his own son, who was then of full age, and afterwards he dined him, and then levied a fine, but before the fine proclamation the fine entered, and made a feoffment, then all the pro- clamation was made, and afterwards both the father and son entered; then the fine for the fee of the lice made a lice to R., and died forfeated, and the lice of the tenant in tail brought a foremead against the heir of the said feoffees, who was n't by descent, and recovered against him by a feint defence of his title, and then he turned the lice in years out of possession, and thereupon brought an ejectment; adjudged, that he might satisfy the recovery, had by the lice in tail, because the lice in tail was bound by this fine; but because it appeared by the pleading, that the fine was levied by the father to that very purpose, to whom the fee free of the fine had granted this lease for years, and who was not avowed to be levied to any other use; therefore the lice was extended, and he was incapable to satisfy the recovery obtained by the tenant in tail.

See Fines and recoveries, and 2 Tit. Ab. 16. Tal- fifgmony.

Failing a verdict. Where in any real action, there is a verdict against tenant in tail, the lice can never satisfy such verdict in the point directly tried; but only in a special manner, as by favoring that some evidence was omitted, etc. Lord Raym. 1250.

Falsification of a verdict. A torque or spurious falsification declarations, 12 remainders demandant, ad lice, decedent. Howd, t 474. num. 40.

Fals recoupa byltium, is a writ lying against the sheriff, for false returning of writs. Reg. Indulc. fil. 46.

Familia, Signifies all the servants belonging to a particular master; in another sense it is taken for a portion of land, viz. as much as is sufficient to maintain one family, viz. Et confituent et terram 70 familiarum lappon, Simon Dandin. So in Pint. Detti e mossofierium tigurat famillam in ten. De Canae, Proa nonn., mania, nurvavna — Domestam terram quinquaginta famillam at ad 70 farinam 50 denarii, Pet. Bus. 98. c. 3. This term hide, is by our writers, sometimes called a mania, sometimes a family, sometimes carucata, or a plough-land; containing as much as one plough and oxen could cultivate in a year. Grevitts Church Hist. fil. 723. B. Biba familia, Familia est interpres existantium tullam hidem, col. 202, Nuimans famillam curiosa. Chilh. in x. Script. Corvall. edit. 1727.

Fanatikus, A general name for Quietus, Anekattt, and all other sectaries and foolish dissenters from the church of England. Stat. 13 Car. 2. cap. 6.

Fanecon, (Mafia fanecon). The Luminist time or fence-maker, a man who would keep his days before Easter, and fifteen days after; when great care was taken that no disturbance should be given to the doors or their young fawns. See Kenneth's Obligatory in Fenstasqu. During this time, by the Laws of the Forrester, all hunting is prohibited: Praedatum in eum ad platum forserhe ne eligant corretta terras et terrae ex qua egressus erat. By a writ in rebus in signam ostendit, qui in foresee Reges tempore forse, val. 13 dictum ante antichristum secti Johanni Bapi, et 14 dictum tali idem feteron, Howdson, t 782. See Fenstasqu. Fanaconium frumentum, Wheat or bread cleaned up or grown with a wind-fan or knee-fan.—Ciceterius Alm. Wiggins so recipit in septembris dicto forstrarium frumentum, & denus mititibus. Mon. Anglii, t. p. 130 b.

Fantecon, (from the Fr. famon,) A fawning or bringing forth young, as deer do fawns. Charte Forstis, cap. 8.

Fandaman, (from the Sax. fordan, to travel,) According to the interpretation of Saxon de aerius, jugis is a merchant stranger, to whom, by the laws of Saltland, justice ought to be done with all expedition, that his business or journey be not hindered.

Fardon of land, (Fardilla terra,) Is, according to some authors, the fourth part of a hundred lands; yet Not, in his Compend. Lawye, p. 57, will have two fardins of land make a rook, and four rooks make a yard-land.

Fardinnalig, (Sax. fardred, i.e. quarter, and all or dole, pas) Alias fardrilled of land, quadranita terra, signifies the fourth part of an acre, Gram. far. fil. 310. Quadranita terra is read in Reg. Or. fil. 310, where there is a Indivisa lay and allot 800 libras & liberae titra, which probably must arise in proportion of quantity, as an half-penny, penny, half-libra, pound, rite in value or estimation; then must allothe be half an acre, deminuitor an acre, sediduta twelve acres, and libera twelve foot acres; and yet we find Pigst. libra stria teria sed reddenda, Reg. Orig. fil. 344, and fil. 345, whereby it femetis, that liberae terra is: so much as yieldeth twenty thinnings.
F A R

FAT

fer annus, and Centum solidates terrarum, centummarum & C. 140. Ann. 1400. A great

these words, Vignoles tessels varum sed redditus, which argument it to be so much land as yields twenty shillings per annum. See Furlong. Others hold solidata terrae to be but half a perch, and demanrita a perch. See Sylvis. Goof.
verbo Obolata terrae. Sylvis, &c. me R. de J. dekelle mictrue, de varento solidatone terrae, de ne dominio. &c. Nova.
Ang. 2 par. fol. 97. b. At Miland in Hertsfordshire, they call it a wendal of land. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Farthing, or Farthing of gold. Seemeth to be a coin used in ancient times, containing in value the fourth part of a noble, size. twenty penny in silver, and in weight the fourth part of a pound of gold. See shillings in this silver. This word is used 9 H. 5. cap. 7, thus. Item, That the King do be ordained good and just weight of the noble, half noble, and farthing of gold, with the rates necessary to the same for every city, &c., by which place it plainly appeareth to have been a coin, as well as the noble and half noble. Kinges, in the year 1345, faith Eudem annus noble & stoler & forthing de auro corporum flororum in Anglia. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Fart. Signifieth a voyage or paffage, or according as we now use it, money paid for pillage by water. 2 &
3 P. & M. c. 16.

Fartingoom. Toll of meal or flour.—Et quot de certiorum de anno capite fartingoom, &c. Ordinationes juitis, in Infalsa de Jersey. 17 Ed. 2.

Fartley, or Farley. In the manor of Weft Sapon in
com. Devon. if any tenant die possessed of a cottage, he is by the custom to pay to the lord firense for a farley; which may be in lieu of a heriot. For in some manors, westward, they distinguifh farley to be the belt of the goods, as heriot is the best beast, payable at the tenant's death. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Fartlingarri, Wheremongers, adulterers; from the Sixth. furtige, fornari. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Fart. Farm, or Fartm, (form the Sax. for, i.e. fed, and this from farman, i.e. to feel) In the laws of Car-mon, in 67, Farm, M. Lombard renders scilicet, to redde firma nem unum nofit, and reddebat suum deo ferm, is so much provis on for a night and a day; for about the time of William the Conqueror, the rents were retained in provision, which was altered by H. 1. It is usually the chief messenger in a village or town, whereo belongs great deemes of all forse, and hath been used for term of life, years, at will. The rent referred upon such a lease, is called farm, and the tenant or fellee farmer. See Frett, and Spelman's Goff. verbo Farta, Cowell, edit.

Fart. I le who rents a farm, or is leffe thereof.
Termes de la ley. And it is said generally for every life for yeares, although it be but of a small house and land, is called farmer, as he is who occupieth the farm. As this word implies no mystery, except it be that of husbandry, heefdmman is the proper addition of a farmer.
2 Hunc. 188. By art. 21 Hen. 8. c. 13. No part or spirtual part in may take farms or leases of land, on price of forbeing term. &c. per month. And by art. 25 Hen.
8. c. 13. and 32 Hen. 8. c. 28. No person whatsoever shall take above two farms together, and they be to be in the same parish, unless by the special leasse of the land.

Farmers. Castigats, &c. Not to be deemed backrupes, 5 Gen. c. 30. fett. 42. For farmers in Nor-falk and Suffolk, see Hoefox and Haffoff.

Farmers of crete. Their authority, 16 & 17 Car. 2. c.
4. 46.

Farting, (in Sax. farting.) Was the fourth part of a strong penny, and frequently in use among them.
See Penny.

Farting of land. (Sixth. farting.) Seems to be a great quantity, and differs much from farting-deal; for in a book of Survey of the manor of Weft Sapon in com. Devon, there are these words, Vignoles, for fartings of land at 1360. per annum. See Farted, and Fartings deal.

Farting always imported the fourth part; and therefore quarter-raths, or pieces of gold that paid for thre twillings and experience, the fourth part of a rial current at ten shillings, were called rial-farthings in an accen

dit"the of sect. 1 H. 6. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Fartemude. The same with Farting-deal.

Fattina, A language, viz. A Latin rhetoric in fiagrum veritatem abhii. Do Prevere.

Fatt, A fogget, Fr. fetteau. — Confinis alba ligneus remanue glauca latif us tipi. Man.

Fattemans, Pledge, from the Sax. feft, firmus, and man, Home. De capitulis fine felipufibus, sed Angles

Fat, or Claf, is a great wooden vellet, which among brewers and millers is ordinarily used at this day to mea-ure malt for expedition, containing eight bushels, or a quarter, mentioned 1 H. 3. cap. 10. 11 H. 6. cap. 8.
It is also a leaden pan or vellet for the making of fold.
Dreadon in the counties of Hereford, whereof the sever-ral owners or proprietors do claim effects of inheritance and burgee-ship; also a great brewing-vellet used by all brewers to run their west into. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Father and Son. Father shall not have an action against the maller for beating his meller and heir apparent, and laming him so as to be disfigured as to his marriage.

Action liet not for the father, tho' it was objected that he was at the charge of eating his son's body, but cause he was not communicable to it. Cor. Ed. 894. But it was admitted that action might have lain for the father, if he had shewn, that the son was his servant, whereby he left his service. But alleging lack of service, without alleging that the son was his servant, is not sufficient.
Cor. Ed. 894.

If the son marrieth without consent of the father, the father has no remedy. Le. 50. Grey v. Jeffy. — See 5

The father shall not have action for taking any of his children except it be his heir; and that is, because the mar-rriage of his heir belongs to the father, but not to any other his sons or daughters. And the father has no property or interest in the other children, which the law counts may be taken from him. Cor. E. 770. Trin.
42 Eliz. B. R. Barkam v. Dennis. — But Glanyll J.
Jenks, ibid.

Tenebris quartae flume & heredibus famulis & al-deer lies for the father, but not for the mother; for the father of common right shall have the widd of his son or daughter; for Cautby. Br. Gards, pl. 55. cites 9 Eds.
5. 327.

Bonds related by the father, which he had taken in the name of his sons, being infants, of eight years and allowed. Tabb. 88. cites Hill. 20. fo. Simms v. Lanley.

The grandfather devised lands to his son to pay 101.
per annum to the son's three daughters; the father gives 201. in marriage with one; whether the 101. per ann.
shall be included in the 201. or not? was decided that it should be included. Tabb. 141. cites Mich. 13 Car.
Derington v. Afly.

The father received a legacy of 1001. and another of 50. left to B. his eldest son by the grandfather and grandmother; afterwards the father gave bond to pay his son whom he had disinherited, 6001. was judged, that the bond included the legacy. But Lord Jefferys, in favour of a disinherited heir, would show no more than what they could prove to have been solely paid towards satisfaction of these legacies, and co nomine as in part of the legacies, and the reft to be paid with interest.

A legacy of 1501. to the daughter of B. was paid to
B. who after on her marriage with J. S. gave her 1001.
portion, and settled a church lease upon her, and maintained her and husband 14 years at his own house.
The Master of the Rolls decreed the legacy with coit, but said tho'
he would not thus a great waste so day to day more than they could prove to have been solely paid towards satisfaction of these legacies, and co nomine as in part of the legacies, and the reft to be paid with interest.

The father is obliged by the Common law to provide for his children. Lord Rayn. 41.
Justice cannot order a maintenance for a child to be paid by the father, without adjusting that the child is gone, or likely to become chargeable. Lord Raym. 699.

Child not demanding their legacies of their father when they came of age, or after, is no discharge of them; and the father is bound to maintain them, and their portions given by a stranger are more burdensome than if they had not any, and where they lived to be fit for service, and served their father; their service was more worth than the interest of the legacy (which was 50 l. specie) and so interest was allowed. But where one of the daughters married, and the other died being the last year's board after marriage, the father would be allowed for it, unless an agreement be proved to the contrary. Poccb. 7 Ann. 3 Ch. 1. 168.

Strickland v. Haydon and Molon.

Advis. 250 l. to his son, and make his wife executors, who married another husband. On a bill brought against them by the son for the legacy, the defendants would have discounted maintenance and education; but the court would not permit it so as to diminish the principal sum; for it was said, that the mother ought to maintain the child. 2 Vent. 353; Mich. 33 Car. 2. 64.

But a sum of money paid for the binding him out apprenticeship was allowed to be discounted. 2 Vent. 325.

And the mother was deemed a reasonable allowance for maintenance of her son from two years of age, when the father died, to 18, when the son died; the bond received the rents of 33 l. per annum depended upon the father on the son, as rent at law. Poccb. 7 Ann. 3 Ch. 164. Wollis v. Everard.

A father prepared a bond conditioned for payment of 120 l. a year for his life by his son, whom a very large estate had been devised, and upon proposing it to the son, he refused to execute it. Laying it was more reasonable to bind upon his honour. Upon which the father left the bond with the son, saying, if he would not sign it he might let it alone. But afterwards in the father's absence the son signed it just before he went to travel, and directed, that it should be delivered to his father. Id. Ch. Parker said, that those words might be for fo, as to amount to a threatening, and to intemperable; but it must also be otherwise, and the father feared to procure under the son's anter, and for ought appeared it was his free act, and what he thought himself. If obliged in honour to do, and therefore without any proof to impeach it, it should not be set aside in equity. Huns. Rep. 662, 667. Hill. 1719. Blackburn v. Eyres.

If it should ever appear that the power of a parent over a child has been abused, as by his gaining a releas from the child's or homage price by threats, &c., a court of equity will certainly set aside a releas that unadiately gained. Per L.C. Parker, Poccb. 704. Wak's Rep. 639, 692, in case of Plowden v. Borker.

Fattorium. (Id. H. cap. 70.) Perhaps the same with the Sw. seath doth, i.e. fattorium seu iniustitutum muliebre concubinage.

Fata cardi, A whore. Cum quadam fatae matrice unde ad tota cum nullis exitis dependerent. Du Fauru.

Fauceum, A flute, a medical pipe or flute. Organo tunc & decentem, fauciis & pipet euminos in diuini officii omnibus usufris tertiusque focus interdicens. Regul. Ordinis de Sempinghnam. p. 717.

Fauetor, A favours, a supporter, abettors of others. Inst. 2. St. 5: Fauetor. See Fauetorum.

Feal. The tenants by knights-service did swear to their lord to be soal and loyal, i.e. faithful and loyal. See Spenham of Parliament, pag. 59.

Felsip, Fidelitas, from the French fief, legs, trusty. Swearing defense on an oath, taking at the admittance of every tenant, to be true to the lord, of whom he holdeth his land; And he that holdeth land by this only oath, holdeth in the freest manner that any man in England under the King may hold: Decease all with us that have fear, hold per fidem & fidelitatem, that is, by fealty at the leaf. Smith of Repub. Angli. lib. 3. cap. 8. For fidelitas in de fidefiantia feudal, du Sueremus, feal. feal. cap. 2. num. 4. And Nauenw de Affictis dicit, 360. n. 469, that fidelitas, the true faithfulness, non feribilis. The particulars of his oath, as it is among the Feudelis, you may read well express by Zulius, in his treatise De Feudis, pet. 7. num. 15. 16, which is worth the comparing with the usual oath taken here in England. This fealty is also used in other nations, as by the Landgraf and Burgundian. Cossenons de Conforf, Burgund. pag. 419, 420. And indeed the very creation of this tenure, as it grew from the love of the lord toward his followers, so did it bind the tenant to fidelity, as appeared by the whole course of the Feuds, and the breach thereof is the los of the fee. Dauerns in Comemures. Parker, cap. 15. num. 4. f. Jepson. Antw. Castelis and Burgundian. Cossenons de Conv. conft. the Comem. de sale Ann. amitterit. Husman in his Commentaries De securit Feudos, fheweth a double fealty; one, generally to be performed by every subject to his prince; the other special, required only of such as in respect of their fee are tied by this oath to their landlords. We may read of both in the Grand et ufually of Norman feudal, being of course performed to the Duke by all retainers within the duty. This fealty special is among us performed either by free- men or villains. The form of both fee in Annu 14. Ed. 1. flat. 2. in these words, When a Freeman shall do fealty to his lord, he shall hold his right-hand upon a book, and say, I promise and engage myself that I will serve you to you faithfully and true, and shall feal my fealty to you, for the land that I hold of you, and truly shall do you the officium and services that I ought to do to you at the terms join'd: So help me God, and all his saints. And shall kiss the book, but he shall not kneel. When a villain shall do fealty to his lord, he shall hold his right-hand over the book, and say thus, Hear you my Lord R. that I R. from this day forth unto you shall be true and faithful, and shall do you fealty for the land which I hold of you in villanage, and shall be justified by you both in body and goods; so help me God, and all his saints. See Reg. Orig. fol. 392. a. Fedelitas (fath. Spantum) of fubit, obsequii & servitii legem, qua generaliter fidelitas REGY, particulariter bufidum dominii, affergitur.

It is usually mentioned with homage, but it differs from it; for homage consits in the taking an oath when the tenant comes to his land, and is done but once, and so is the oath of fealty, but that is perpetual which homage is for ever. Those two things in the name of the fealty, or manner of the fealty, for the oath of homage is taken by the tenant kneeling, but that of fealty is taken standing, and includes five things, which are comprised in these words, becalme, tutam, utile, hominum, facile, paffibile; inasmuch, that he do bodily injury to the lord; tutam, that he do him no secret injury in any thing which is for his defence, as in his house or castle; hominum, that he do him no injury in his reputation; utile, that he do not damage him in his possessions; facile & paffibile, that he make it easy, and not difficult for the lord to do any good, which otherwise he might do, nor make that impossibility be done which before was in his power to do. All which is likewise comprised in Leg. H. cap. 5. Omnis hanc fidem det dominio, fac de vita et membrii iust et terrae honesta, & observationem justi fieri per hominem et utile, quale deti fausto et terra principis fausto. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Feasts, The customary times of supper and thanksgiving, as Christmas, Easter, Whitsante, &c. The four feasts which our law especially takes notice of are the feasts of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, of St. Michael the Archangel, and of St. Thomas the Apostle, on which quarterly days, rent on leases is usually referred to be paid. See Statute 5 & 6 Ed. 6. 3 Ian. 1. & 22. 22 Car. 2. 30. See Dedication-day.

Febr, Itum februm, oft qued quodar viginti terre & dimid. debeat venire & arae nume fevus terre, in quibus and as General, but and Fleta dis, ochus, and in the land, quis
minico is as the hini, write his duty, and his right to pay the duty, and his sight to this or that policy of himself, or his friends, but it is to me and my heirs for ever; yet not simply mine, because I hold it in the nature of a benefit from another.
Yet the stature of 37 H. 8. 16th these words of land involved in the crown, but it proceedeth from the notion that the nature of this word is for fee cannot be without fealty sworn to a superior, and therefore it mostly in nature, as fealty, and in particular Heres in his Commentaries and Disputations. And nor, and land, of with us is termed fee in two respects, one as it be-leaguered to the right, and others who hold not with another. Britton, cap. 23, defines it thus: Fee is a right confining in the person of the true heir, or of some other that by just title hath purchased it. Pluta feal, Fœnum oft quad quis tenet ex quacumque causa fit & hereditum fut, fee fit tenementum free relictus qui non presentum ex camera, & alio modo clitterat fœnum, ega qui feudan, ega quis tenet & de all & all fædum tenet de tall tit fees por servitium militare. Lib. 5. cap. 5. feal. Fœnum aetern. And all that write De fœnum, hold, that feudatorius hath not an inestimable property in his fee. But the definition of Sir Henry Spelman is most inestimable. A fee is a right which is neither right in land, or some immovable thing of his lord's, to the fame, and take the profits thereof hereditarily, rendering to his lord such feudat duties and services as belong to military tenure, the mere property of the soil always remaining to the lord. Spelman of Fœna, cap. 1. The division of the fee and the several parts thereof is not to be known; but we divide them only into fee abfequent, otherwise termed fee simple; and fee conditional, otherwise called fee tail. Fee simple, fee demesne, is that which we are feised to us and our heirs, with limitation, that is, the heirs of our body, &c. and this fee tail is either general or special: General is, where land is given to a man and the heirs of his body; the reason thereof is given by Littleton, lib. 1. cap. 2, because a man seised of land by such a gift, if he marry one or more wives, and have no issue by them, and at length marry another by whom he hath issue; this issue shall inherit the lands of the second wife, and not the issue of the first, unless by another act of Parliament, or by the will of the first. The reason is given likewise by Little eton in the same place, because in this cafe the wife dying without issue, and he marry another by whom he hath issue; this issue cannot inherit the land, being ap propriely given to the wife for her life. This fee tail hath the original from the statute of Wills, and as to make
Ed. 1. yet fee Brathen, lib. 2. cap. 5. num. 3. in his Liber. item quadum subfebis & quadum tractor & ex re secta est certis hereditatibus. To whom add Plut., ed. 235. Wilton's cafe; for before that statute, all land given to a man, his hirfie, or that of his, was not accounted in the nature of a fee; and therefore behold be to firmly in him to whom it was given, that any li mitation notwithstanding, he might alien, and fell it at his pleasure, much like that which the Civilians call fœnum perpetuum, binding rather by counsel and advice, than by act, and which being unreasonably renounced to the wisdom of our realm, that a man may be licentious to this or that policy of himself, or his friends, might be forthwith deprived of his intention; the said
fœnum was made for redress of that inconvenience, whereby it is ordained, that if a man give lands in fee, and limit the heir to his issue, and the issue of his he irs, with all other fees and services, the said fœnum, or the form and due meaning of his gift shall be observes:
He then that hath fee, holdeth of another by some duty or service, and the diversity thereof, fee Chevalry and Service. Sec conly, this fee is used with us for the procisions of the lordship, or for the compacts or circuit of a manor or lordship, Brathen, lib. 2. cap. 5. in cadem villa & de cadem feudis. Thirdly, It is used for a perpetual right incorporeal, as to have the keeping of prions in fee, Old Nat. Brew. ed. 41. Fis fer in fee, ed. cap. 6. rent granted in fee, ed. cap. 8. Sherif in fee, ed. 29 Ed. 1. fet. 3 cap. 8. Lastly, It is taken for a reward or wages given to one for the execution of his office, as the fee of a fofter, of a keeper of a park, or of a sheriff for serving an execution, limi ted by 20 Eliz. cap. 4. And also for that consideration given a fofter in law or counselor, or a physician, for their counsel in these cases, or their wisdom and discretion, as it is well observed by Sir John Davis, in his Preface to his Reports, is not properly nearer, but honorarium; yet in the law language it is called a fee. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Fœnum arc. See Gallae.

Fœnum perpetuam, is by the Pandeks termed fœnum ex debellatum, or operationem subfuturum usul. Muthus de Affilia mil. difci. 262. no. 2. pag. 457. See Cornutus.

Fœnum (Fandi firma) Is when any one, of the gift or grant of another, holds to him and his heirs, ren dering either the half or the third part, or at least the fourth part of the true value. And such tenant is bound to no services, but he is to contribute in the charter itself, except fealty, which all tenures are liable to. Gliff. verbo Fœnum, page 221.

Fœnum, Fœnum is a compound of the words fee and fœnum, prædium, and signifies in a legal sense land held of another in fee, that is, in perpetuity to himself and his heir, for so much years that it is absolutely worth, more or less, so it be the fourth part of the land, with their out homage, fealty, or other services, other than are spe cially comprized in the fœnum? But by Fitzherbert, in his Nat. Brew. ed. 210. it fecmeth, that the third part of the value may be appoinued for the rent, or the finding of a charger for the service. And the nature of it is thus, that if the rent be belated, and paid for the space of two years, then the fœnum, or his heirs, have an action to recover the lands as his de fes. Britton, cap. 66. num. 4. butobserve, that Wills, in his Symbol, part. 1. lib. 2. fei. 406. says, that the fœnum is a form of fee tail, or form of can weeth Vol. II. N°. 72.
oweth fe邸 thought not express’d in the feodium, for that fealty befothed to all kind of tenures; this is near the nature of that which, among the Civilians, is called Ager revertéls, qui in proprium lacrim tantum, ut quidam pro se vitulæ patruet, namque neque efti pri cius, necque in humo earn surveilla, curti orari am luxet. The fee-ferm rents remaining to the Kings of England from their ancient demesnes, were many of them alienated from the crown in the reign of King Charles the Second. But how doubtful men are of the title to alienations of any nature, is evident from this, that whilst these rents were expatiate for ready money, scarce any would deal for them, and they remained unful’d, till the method of doubling orders did a little help; but that which made men earnestly to buy them, was the fip upon fame of his Majesty’s other payments, which made men to retort to this, the most chaste of that conducture. Gwris, edit. 1737.

By flat. 22 Car. 2. c. 6, fett. 4. Letters patents granted by the King of certain fee-ferm rents, before the 24th of June 1672, are confirmed.

Sect. 10. Purchasers may buy and enjoy the fame rents, notwithstanding any future of mentres.

This act of parliament was not necessary to enable the King to make a grant of thofe rents, but to encourage purchasers, and to give fuch privilege to the febjud, which the King could transfer without act of parliament, and to cure and supply the defect of non-rental or millreftal; and the act is an authority that the King might grant at his fole discretion; for the letters patent good, which were granted before; per Holt Ch. J. Mich. 7
Will. 3. B. R. Slin. 606. In the Bankers cafe.

The faid flat. 22 Car. 2. cap. 6, fett. 6, enelts, That the
tr evaluors and the furvivors or fuccessors of them, shall execute to purchasers, indentures of bargain and fale, containing a conveyance of the faid rents, and reciting the confideration of money paid, which fhall be inroll’d in any of the four courts of Writmifler, within fix months after the date thereof.

Sect. 11. Instructions to be oberved in the fale of their rents, yet fo as the non-performance of them shall not weak’ned purchasers titles.

1. Contrads for falles fhall be figned by the Lord Treafurer or commissioners of the treafury, or two of them.

2. The tritefes fhall convey to fuch as by order from the Lord Treafurer or commissioners of the treafury, or two of them, they fhall be directed.

3. Every contractor fhall, or on before felling his conveyance, affure one moiety at laft for his purchafe-money into the Exchequer; and before he receives his conveyance give fuch fecurity as the Lords Treafurer or commiffioners, &c. fhall approve for the other moiety.

4. Such a fay down their whole money, fhall be allow’d for prefent payment of their fecound moiety, not exceeding the rent 12 1/2.

5. Immediate tenants liable to pay any rents, fhall be pref’nd in the purchafe of it before others, fo as they tender themfelves to the Lord Treafurer or commiffioners of the treafury, to convey within fix months after pay-ning the fad patent, and notice thereof publi’d by published their conCla, or pay the fum to the money within fix months after, as fuch rate as fhall be agreed, not exceeding 20 years purchase.

6. If the immediate tenant, or fome on his behalf, do not tender and perfect his conveyance, all benefit of performance to be loft.

7. The purchaser may have his conveyance in the names of any perfon he fhall defire.

8. If any rent be charged with an incumbrance, con-ideration fhall be had of it and reprim’d allowed; and the purchafe fhall covenant to take upon him fuch incumbrance.

9. The tritefes fhall hold the rents to the King’s use still fale.

10. The tritefes covenant with the purchafers against their own act. And by flat. 22 & 23 Car. 2.
c. 24, fett. 9. The tritefes are impowered to convey the fame rents to purchafers either by the words expref’d in the letters patents, or by particulars to be made by the auditors, or by the original grants from the crown, favoring the Queen’s right to the rents hereby vell’d.

22 Car. 2. c. 6. fett. 7. enelts, That purchafers fhall hold the fame difcharged of any breach of truth, which may be pretended to be committed by the tritefes, and may recover from them the rents they fhould, it might, excepting the prerogative procures outside of the Exchequer.

Sect. 9. Purchasers of rents referred by any letters patents of lands and tenements, &c. and sold after the pafning of this act, fhall enjoy them; any canceling, avoidance, or determination of fuch letters patents notwithstanding.
This act fhall not be concul’d to avoid any covenants or incumbrances on the King’s part, in the original refection of fuch rents; nor does the act in the court of Augmentation or court of Exchequer before the 23d of October 1624, or fince the 29th of May 1660, whereby fee-farmers were to be difcharged, and allowances out of the fad fee-farm rents to be made.

To encourage purchasing fee-ferm rents, this act gives the purchafers the fame power of diftraits not only on the land out of which the fee-ferm rents illue, but on any other of the lands of the tenant as the king had. Hill.
1715. 2 Vern. 713. Att. Gen. v. Mayor, &c. of Coventry.

Fee-ferm rents, when granted by the King, become rent-foek, and therefore not to be extended. Arg. 9
Med. 72. cites Gra. 8. 656. — Fee-ferm rent is extended upon an eligif, and yet the words of the fature, which give the fiefi authority, are only land, viz.

A. clears a fee-ferm rent under this fature, and there is a folution from the land, out of which the fee-ferm rent illue: the court cannot order the fecretactors to pay the arrears out of the money in their hands, but decies the grantor might take his remedy at law notwithftanding the folution. Per Cooper C. Hill. 1715.
2 Vern. Att. Gen. v. Mayor, &c. of Coventry. The court lefs him to diftrain and fale, but the defendant’s law, without incurring any contempt in equity, and that no fee or eftate derived under the fecretactors, should be made use of in evidence againft the claimant of the fee-ferm rent, to prevent the diftraits. Wind’s Rep. 308. S. C. Tho
the King might diftrain on any other lands of his tenant, as well as to the fad which out of which the rent illue; yet, if the tenant alien or leafe at will only his other lands, the crown cannot diftrain on thofe lands. Hill. 1715. Arg. 2 Vern. 714. Att. Gen. v. Mayor, &c. of Coventry. S. P.
held by Cooper C. affiled by the Lord Ch. J. Parker

So, if there be an extent upon an eligif of fuch other lands, the bafs on the chafes or lands on which the tenement will not be liable; for this is a greater eftate than an eflate at will. Per Cooper C. affiled by Ch. J. Parker

As to the cafe of the Att. Gen. v. The Mayor of Coventry, the Reporter fays, that afterwards Ch. J. Parker informed him, that he thought it might have been proper to have determined, that the folution was as the band of the court upon the eftate, and where a right to a fee-ferm rent appear’d to be prior and indifputable,
the court might reasonably enough have order’d payment, celfe A. for aught appear’d, would be in a worfe condition, than if there had been no folution; for till the folution was taken, the corporation paid the rent voluntarily, and now are disabled purely by the folution; and putting A. to diftrain was putting the charge of the fuit upon the eftate; whereas nothing appear’d to the contrary, but that the corporation was fensible of A.’s right to the rent, and defir’d it might be paid. Wind’s Rep.
308, 309.

By 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 24. f. 2. All purchafers of feeferm rents are to be kept harmless from all incumbrances made by the tritefes.

Sect. 9. enelts, That rent not usufally paid by the greater fpace of 40 years fmall paft, fhall not be inferred in fuch letters patents, and tenants fhall hold their lands discharged of any rent, referved by virtue of any patent of concumbrance, or commiffion of defecive titles, and usufally paid
paid by the greater force of 40 years, until the same shall have been recovered by due course of law.

And by sect. 11. So much as is due for any uses out of the premises to be settled upon trustees shall continue to be paid; and the trustees are hereby authorized to convey, for performance of such uses, both of the said fees of 20s. &c. the said amount to the sums charged, after which conveyance the purchasers of the residue to be discharged thereof.

By 22 & 23 Car. 2, 21. sect. 4. Till file of the said rents, the receivers of the King's revenue shall gather the same.

Stat. 9 & 10 W. 3. 8. Subjected fee-farm rents to payment of taxes.

Stat. 7 Geo. 2. 7. sect. 5. enacted, That lands, &c. subject to fee-farm rents, &c. if such rent amount to 20s. per annum or more, the landlord may deduct the taxes &c. due thereon to be allowed by the persons intituled to the rent without fee or charge for such allowance.

Stat. 26. Receivers of fee-farm rents to allow 21. per pound to the parties without fee, on penalty of 20l.

Stat. 23 & 24 Car. 2. cap. 2. sect. 8. All purchasers may make a general justification without producing any letter of the present, saying that the trustees were feigned in fee, and so granted to them. And by Stat. 18. c. 18. sect. 4. Where any fee farm rents, intended by the acts of 22 Car. 2. and 23 & 24 Car. 2. to be hold, and which are held pursuant thereto, shall be named and described in any deed or fine, declaration, or other pleading, by the names or descriptions, as the same were described in the inventories of bargain and sale made by the trustees for sale thereof, such names and descriptions may serve for conveying or pleading the title to such rents from and under the trustees.

Stat. 5. Provided, that this act shall not give any benefit in pleading, or deriving a title to any rent, which hath not been paid or levied within 20 years, next before the time of such pleading or deriving such title.

FEUD, or FEUDI. (Fræds or feuda.) Signifies in the German tongue, guerre, that is, capite inimiciis. Histoire Diput. de Flandres, cap. 2. Lamb. in his Exposition of Saxon words, writes it feith, and faith likewise, that it denotes capite inimiciis: And also that the word now used in Scotland, and in the North parts of England, is the same, that is, a combination of kindred, to revenge the death of any of their blood against the killer, and all his race. See Skene de vorke, sigl. vorke Alphavit.

Stat. 27 Geo. 2. 3. sect. 1. Provided, that the privileges and immunities of the French who have to do with the administration of justice, as a recompence for their labour and trouble; and these are either aforesaid by acts of parliament, or established by ancient usage, which gives them an equal function with an act of parliament. New Act. 403.

1. In what cases fees shall be due, and how much.

2. At what time fees shall be due, in what court to be recovered, and pleadings in actions for fees.

3. In what cases fees shall be due, and how much.

At Common law no officer, whole office related to the administration of justice, could take any reward for doing duty. This was not received from the King.

Ca. Lit. 30. 2. 21. Sect. 166. 268. 9.

And this fundamental maxim of the Common law is confirmed by Ufifm. 1. cap. 26. which enacts, that no sheriff, or other King's officer, shall take any reward to do his office, but shall be paid of that which they take of the King, and that he who doth both shall yield twice as much, and shall be punished at the King's pleasure. This statute comprehends sheriffs, coroners, bailiffs, gaolers, the King's clerk of the market, auditors, and other inferior ministers and officers of the King, whole offices and duties concern the administration or execution of justice.

And so much hath this law been thought to conduce to the honour of the King and welfare of the subject, that all preceptual whatever, which have been contrary to it, have been held void; as where by prescription the clerk of the market claimed certain fees for the view and examination of all weights and measures, and it was held merely void. 4 Infr. 274. 34. 523. 2 Infr. 209. 2 Rol. Abr. 226.

For it hath been held by the King's common called the bar fee, which hath been taken time out of mind, by the sheriff, of every prisoner who is acquitted; and also the fee of one penny, which was claimed by the coroner of every vigint, when he came before the juries in 204, are not within the meaning of the flature, because they are not demanded of the sheriff or coroner for doing any thing relating to their offices, but claimed as perquisites of right belonging to them. 2 Infr. 210. Stean. P. C. 49.

All is it held by my Lord Coke, that within the words of the statute 34 Ed. 1. which are, No talleys or aid shall be taken or levied by us or our heirs in our realm, without the good will and assent of archbishops, bishops, earls, barons, knights, burgesses, and other freemen of the land; no new offices can be erected with new fees, or old offices with new fees; for that is a tal-lage upon the subject, which cannot be done without common consent of parliament. 2 Infr. 323.

But yet it is held, that an office erected for the publisc good, tho' no fee is annexed to it, is a good office; and that the party, for the labour and pains which he takes in executing of it, may maintain a quantum meruit, if not as a fee, yet as a competent recompence for his trouble. After all, the statutes of Skene's cafe.

All fees allowed by acts of parliament become esballified fees; and the several officers intituled to them may maintain actions of debt for them. 2 Infr. 210.

All such fees as have been allowed by the courts of justice to their officers, as a recompence for their labour and attendance, are esballified fees; and the parties can't be deprived of them without an act of parliament. Ca. Lit. 358. Prea. Chanc. 551.

Where a fee is due by custom, such custom, like all others, must be reasonable; and therefore where a person libelled to the spiritual court for a burning fee due to him for every one who died in his parish, that burial in another; the court held this unreasonable, and a prohibition was granted. Hob. 175. 1 Rol. Abr. 557. 559. S. C. adjudged.

So where a French protestant had his child baptized at the French hospital at the Snyry, and the vicar of St. Martin's, in which parish it was, together with the clerk, libelled against him for a fee of 21. 6d. due to him, and 11. for the clerk; and a prohibition was granted; and in this case it was held by Holt, That no fee could be due but by custom, and that a custom for any person to take a fee for chriftening a child when he does not chriften him, is not a perquisite of his office; yet, if the vicar, or the chriften, should have libelled for that right. 1 Salk. 332.

The plaintiff brought an action of the cafe for fees due to him as Uther of the Black Rod, and obtained a verdict. Stanc. 7. 17. 15. 16. Gen. 28.

No fee shall be taken for a report upon a reference from any court, 1 sect. 1. c. 10.

Certain fees of shriffes settled, 3 Gen. 1. c. 11. sect. 10. 20. See Sheriff.

Fees on ass. prior records out of the Exchequer to be the same fees as on other records, 22 Gen. 2. c. 26. sect. 10.

Fees of justices clerks to be regulated, 26 Gen. 2. c. 14. 27 Gen. 2. c. 16. sect. 4.

Debt lies for the shriffes fees for executing an eligit.,

Lord Raym. 1212.

As to the quantum of the fee due, it must be observed in general, that a man has no execution for fees, but to take more for executing his office, than is allowed by act of parliament, or is the known and settled fee in such cafe.

10 Ca. 103. 2. Ca. Lit. 308.

But in this place we shall only take notice of the fees of shriffes for executions, about which there seems to have been the most controversies in our books. And for this purpose we shall recite the 28 Eliz. cap. 4. by which it is enacted, That it shall not be lawful to or
For any sheriff, under-sheriff, bailiff of franchises or liberties, or for any of their, or either of their officers, ministers, servants, bailiffs or deputies, or for any of them, by reason or colour of their, or either of their officers or deputies, to have, receive or take of any person or persons whatsoever, for anything done in the serving and execution of any act or execution upon the body, lands, goods or chattels of any person or persons whatever, more or less consideration or remuneration than in this present act is and shall be limited and imposed, which shall be lawful to be had, received and taken; and that is to say, twelve-pence for every twenty thilling, exceeding not one hundred pounds; and six-pence of and for every twenty thilling, over and above the said sum of 10 l. that he or they shall fo levv or extend, and deliver in execution, or take the body in execution for; by virtue and force of any such act or execution, as well upon pain of penalty, that all and every sheriff, under-sheriff, bailiff of franchises and liberties, and their and every of their ministers, servants, officers, bailiffs or deputies, which at any time shall directly or indirectly do the contrary, shall lose and forfeit, to the party graved, his trouble; and shall forfeit the execution, and all and every of the money or any part of the money shall do the contrary; the one moiety thereof to be to our Sovereign Lady the Queen, her heirs and successors; and the other moiety to the party or parties that will sue for the same, by any plaint, action, suit, bill or information, wherein no chthon, waiver of law, plea, privity or any other shall be allowed.

"Provided always, that this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend to any fees to be taken or had for any execution within any city or town corporate."

In the construction of this statute the following points have been held.

1. That though the words of the statute are, that it shall not be lawful for the sheriff to take any more, or greater fee, than by the act is limited, &c. that herein by implication at least, if not by express words, a right is given to the sheriff to demand those fees mentioned in the statute; and consequently that he may, as in all cases where a statute creates a debt or duty, maintain an action of debt for them. 4 M. & B. 535. 12 Man. 179. 40 L. & T. 175. Palm. 400. 1 Salt. 331. S. P. admitted.

2. It hath been adjudged, that the sheriff shall have a flilling per pound for the hundred, and a fix-pence per pound for every hundred exceeding a hundred; and sixpence per pound where the whole debt happens to exceed a hundred; for by this construction the sheriff would have left where the debt was 199 l. if it were but 100 l. And the intention of the statute was to allow sheriffs such reasonable fees as would encourage them to discharge this branch of their duty, so much the more because the laws, with regard to sequestration, or those who before were backward and intimidated, by reason of the danger they run from escapes, &c. from engaging herein; and therefore it has been held the most reasonable construction to allow them their fees in proportion to such danger. 4 B. & P. 173. 1 L. & T. 178. 12 Man. 179. 40 L. & T. 175. Palm. 400. 1 Salt. 331. S. P. admitted.

3. It hath been resolved, on the proviso of the said statute, that it shall not extend to any fees to be taken for any execution within any city or town corporate; and this must be intended of executions on judgments given in those courts; and that therefore where a sheriff executes a judgment given in Westminster Hall to a city or town corporate, he is as much intitled to his fees, pursuant to this statute, as if the execution had been done in any part of the county at large; and for herein the sheriffs run as great a risk, and his trouble is as great; but where both the judgment and execution are within a liberty, although the sheriff cannot be preferred to be attended with equal difficulty; and therefore the proviso in the statute excludes them. 4 B. & P. 173. 1 L. & T. 178. 40 L. & T. 175. Palm. 400. 450. 460.

4. It hath been resolved, that the bailiff of a liberty, where a judgment given in Westminster Hall, is intituled to the fees, within the words and meaning of the statute; and not the sheriff of the county who directs his precept to him. 22 Eliz. 179. 2 Salt. 359.

5. It seems agreed, that if a sheriff makes an extent, and before the liberate a new sheriff is chosen, the new sheriff shall immediately be informed by the statute. 22 Eliz. 179. 2 Salt. 359.

6. It hath been resolved, that the statute does not extend to real executions, such as habere facere fessamin, or pyfifmmum, but only to executions in personal actions; also it is said, that the statute does not extend to executions upon hommo-merchant, recognizances, &c. and that the act is to be understood of sales where the judgment reditor is in invitum, and not by the voluntary conciliation of the party; but the Lord. Salt. 331.

7. That for executing a capias uitatum, or for a warrant to execute it, no fee is due to the sheriff, because this is at the suit of the King. 1 H. 2. 2 Brow. 340.

8. It seems to have been resolved, that upon a capias ad satisfaciendum, the sheriff shall have his fees for the whole debt; also if one in execution dies, and a fieri facias issues against his goods, the sheriff shall have his fees for any part of executing the fieri facias; for his trouble was as great as at full. 1 Salt. 331.

2. At what time fees shall be due, in what court to be recovered, and pleadings in actions for fees. It is exaction for any officer to take his fee before it is due; and therefore where an under-sheriff refused to execute a capias ad satisfaciendum till he had his fees, the court held, that plaintiff might bring an action against him for not doing his duty, or might pay him his fees, and then indict him for extortion. 1 C. L. & R. 362. 2 B. & T. 330. officer must obey a writ, though fees unpaid. 1 C. L. & R. 362. Proced. must be obeyed though fees are not tendered. 1 C. L. & R. 362.

If an abbas corpus ad judicialem is directed to a gaoler, he must bring up the prisoner albo his fees were not paid him; and he can't excuse himself of the contempt to the court, by alleging that the prisoner did not tender him his fees. 1 H. 2. 727. 3 P. 57. Also it is no excuse for not obeying a writ of an abbas corpus ad judicialem & recipiendum, that the prisoner did not tender him his fees. 1 M. & B. 119. 2 D. 280. 2 M. & B. 179. but 1 M. & B. 119. 120. 121. 122.

But the fact that a gaoler brings up the prisoner by virtue of such an abbas corpus, the court will not turn him over till the gaoler be paid all his fees; nor, according to some opinions, till he be paid all that is due to him for the prisoner's diet; for that a gaoler is capable to find his prisoner subsistence. See 2 C. L. & R. 330. C. L. & R. 255. 9 C. L. & R. 99. 1 Hil. 356. 2 C. L. & R. 27. 2 C. L. & R. 178. If a person pleads his pardon, the judges may adjourn the usual fee of gloves to themselves and officers, before they allow it. F. C. C. 394. 1 Hil. 356. 1 Hil. 452.

If an erroneous writ be delivered to the sheriff, and he executes on it, he must have his fees, though the writ be erroneous. 1 Salt. 332.

It seems to be laid down in the old books as a distinction, that upon an extent of land upon a statute, the sheriff is to have his fees, so much per pound according to the statute immediately; but that upon an elget he is not to have them till the liberate. 1 P. & M. 156. 2 Will. 1 S. P.

But where the sheriff, having executed an elget, brought an action of debt for his fees; and it was objected, that this was not within the statute, the execution not being complete, for the plaintiff could not enter but must leave the execution; it was held by H. C., that there was the same reason for the fees for executing an elget as for an extent; for upon an elget the sheriff returns, that he has taken an inquisition, extended the lands, and delivered them to the plaintiff, and that there is a liberate in the body of the writ of elget, or the return of which the plaintiff may enter, yet by the return he becomes comes tenant by "elevit," and may maintain an ejectment, and affign his interest upon the land; but the defendant continuing in possession after the return of the writ turns the plaintiff's eject to a right, and therefore he must enter to affign; and his being put to an ejectment is no reason, for in case of an extent upon a flat, where the "liberate is distinct, he can't enter by force; it is true he may without force, and fo he may here; and Peowell said, that extent generally is the word of the statute 28 Eliz. 2. But an extent upon no legiti- mate issues within the flat, as well as an extent upon a flat.

1 Salk. 333.

A folioct in Chancery may exhibit his bill for his fees for business done in that court; and fo he may where the billings is done in another court, if it relates to an- other demand that makes in Chancery. 1 Vern. 203. 2 Chan. Ct. 153.

But it hath been held, that chancellors, registrers and proctors who are officers of temporal profit, and whose fees do not relate to the jurisdiction of the spiritual court, can't sue for them in the spiritual court. See 3 Leon. 268. 2 Rep. Rep. 59. 1 Mod. 107. Kel. 615. 3 Kel. 302. 442. 4 Mod. 25. 5 Mod. 242.

As where the registrar in the ecclesiastical court libelied there for 41. 6. for his fees, and proceeded to excom- munication; and the defendant fuggelled, and moved for a praetice, which was granted; for the court hath no power to compel the party to pay his fees to their officers, but they must be paid by their quantum meruit to the parish; and if the de- fende be a freehold, they may bring an assize; for the de- nial of just fees is a definicion; although it was objected, that this case differed from that of a proctor, because a registrar is a mere officer of the court, and the court may appoint a reasonable fee to the officers that attend them. 1 Salk. 333.

So a prohibition was granted to play a fuit in the arch- deacon of Litchfield's court, against churchwardens for a fee for swearing them, and taking their pre sentments; because no fees could be due but by custom, or for work done, in which case a quantum meruit lay. 1 Salk. 330. So in Reg. B. 2 and 3. and chapter of the cathedral church of Exeter, having the freehold and inheritance of the said church, had by prescription 10l. for every corps that was buried in the said church; and the defendant's tellator being buried there, without their licence, the defendant refused to pay the 10l. for which they sued him, and the court of common law, and after finding that why a prohibition should not go, it was urged, that none can prescribe to have a burying-place in a cathedral church, for the parishioners have nothing to do with it, nor pay any tithes to it; but in the parish church to which they pay tithes and other duties, there such a pre- scrition and the profit, and the churchwardens have a right to be buried without a prescription; but the court held, admitting, that no person can prescribe to bury in a cathedral church, and admitting, that this fee, like that of 20l. which is usually paid for burying in the cathedral church of Westminster, is reasonable, yet it is not of spiritual cognizance, but is in nature of a licence, on which a quantum meruit may be brought, and the con- fendant usage to pay so much given in evidence; and there- fore the prohibition was granted. 2 Bac. Atr. 468. Hil. 5 Ann. Dean and Chapter of Exeter v. Druc. 1 Salk. 334. S. C.

A prohibition was moved for the convenerly court of the bishop of London, to play proceedings in a suit com- menced there by a parish clerk, for dues, according to a rate agreed to by the parish. Against the prohibition, it was said, that he is to be chose by the parson, and that his office is ecclesiastical, and consequently his fees are of ecclesiastical cognizance. On the other hand it was urged, that the work was done in a secular manner, the office is merely temporal, and the profits of it shall be as well like, and especially in the present case, where they are demanded pursuant to a rate. Per Car. The questions who has the right of nomination, and what eflate the clerk has, whether at will only, or for life, are quite immaterial in the present case. The Law is certain, that his office is temporal, it was so determined in 2 Breoun. 38. And if so, his salary, or whatever is given for the service of that office mulf of consequence be of temporal conuenance. But whether his office be temporal or spiritual, if the matter in demand is tem- poral, the ecclesiastical court can have no jurisdiction. Now here the demand is in pursuance to a rate agreed to by the parish; and there is no doubt but that he may bring his action upon that agreement; and accordingly a pro- hibition was granted. 12 Fin. Atr. 155. Hill. 12 Gro. 2 C. B. Pitts v. Evans.

If A. delivered an execution to the sheriff at his suit against B. and in consideration that the sheriffs without any fee will execute it, he promised the sheriff to pay him a certain sum, which was the same as the sheriff was allowed to take by the statute of the 28 Eliz. Glower. J. held the consideration not good, for at Common law he might not to take any fees, but it was ex- tortion, which the statute is only to discharge the sheriff from; but the other justices and barons held it to be a good consideration, and were of opinion to have affirmed the judgment. But another error being affigned, viz. that the "tales de circumstantialia" was returned by the plaintiff who brought the action by the name of the sheriff of the county, and therefore judgment was re- vened. Cre. 6. 65. Hill. 42 Eliz. B. R. in Cax. Sacc. Statuon v. Sidor.

In the settling a dispute, whether the warden of the Fleet might return a non of inventes whereunto to found a fequestration, or such return must be by the fer- jent at arms before a fequestration could go, Lord Chancell- lor ordered the sheriff to look into precedents, to parli- ments books to the newwarden's, &c. twas afterwards and for cause against the motion, that twas new, and the like had never been made before in this court; but twas infitned on, that the old churchwardens had a right to keep the books, and so the rule was discharged. For a contet between parli officers, which of them ought to keep the books, must be tried at law by a returned juries. 8 Mod. 98. Mich. 9 Gro. 1. The King v. Street and Stroud.

In such cases, which are merely local, and the victors can't be altered, they will, upon good reason, make them try it upon a feigned action, and if no content be, they will grant inst; \( Per Pemberton Ch. J. Poafh. 34 Car. 2. B. R. Skin. and the in case of 3. B. R. Grayham. And Deben J. remembered the case of Lord Gerard of Bromley and Spencer in the Exchequer, when Hale was Chief Baron, who, upon affidavit, that the plaintiff had lived long in Lancashire, and kept good hof- pitality, and bid every body welcome, &c. and the de- fendant was a southern gentleman, and lately come into Lancashire, Hale did not suffer them to proceed in their ejectment in Lancashire, but made them try it in five feigned actions by a jury of Heresfordshire, Skin. 44. Poafh. 34 Car. 2. B. R. at Jup. See Finet.

Fifina, A small bundle, an armful. Cowell. edd. 1727.

Felagius (\(Quod fide cum eo ligatus\)) A companion, but particularly a friend who was bound in the deernary for the good behaviour of another. So in Legibus Iunc., c. 15, "his faid, if the murderer could not be found, &c. the parents of the deceased should have fix marks, and the King forty; if he had no parents, then the Lord should give it: \(Bi fide dominium non habetur, felagium sigit.\) Cowell. edd. 1727.

Feld is a Saxon word, and signifies a field, and there- fore, feld eric is a country field, feld boxe is a tent: In its compound it signifies wild, as field huning is wild honey, feld mynt, is wild mint, &c. Cowell. edd. 1727.

Fide homages, I. e. Faithful subjicts, from the Sax. fax, i. e. fide. Cowell. edd. 1727.

Fело
F E L

Felo de se, or felon of himself, is a person, who being of found mind, and of the age of discretion, voluntarily kill himself. 3 Inst. 95, 96. If a man is found by a wound, intending to be felo de se, and die not within the year and day after the wound, he is not felo de se. 3 Inst. 54.

A person who willfully destroys himself is termed a felo de se, and is said to be guilty of the worst sort of murder, as he acts against the fifth and one of the four, with which the life of man is forfeited. Pleas 261. Dame Hul's case. Yet in some cases it is considered as a different offence from murder; and therefore if the King pardin all crimes, except murder, this offence shall be pardoned; for though in a first felony it may be called murder, yet according to the modern construction of words, the offence of a person who murders another, and that of felo de se, are considered as different offences, and as such are differently treated of by authors who have wrote of these matters, as Staun. P. C. 185, &c.

Besides, the end of excepting murder seems to be, that the offender might be brought to justice, and that the law of God and nature, which require blood for blood, might be satisfied; but the discharging a chattel, or pardoning a forfeiture, is not of any such consequence; also it hath been held by divines, that pardoning murder draws periculum animarum with it, as being contrary to the law of God, which requires blood for blood. The King ver. Ward. 1 Lev. 8. 1 Sid. 150. 1 Keb. 66. 548. S. C. adjudged, that a man in common law, where a man taken as a distinct offence from other felonies; and therefore a grant of bona & catalla felonam will not carry the goods of a felo de se. 1 Sid. 420. 1 Vent. 32. 1 Sund. 274, adjudged.

No person can be felo de se, who under the age of discretion, or non comas at the time he commits the fact; and therefore if an infant kill himself under the age of discretion, or a lunatic during his lunacy, he cannot be a felo de se. Cram. 30, 31. H. P. C. 28. 3 Inst. 54.

In 3 Med. 100. it is said to be the prevailing opinion, that a person who kills himself must be non comas of course, on this supposition, that it is impossible a man in his fenes should do a thing so repugnant to nature; but in 1 Hawk. P. C. 67, and in Comb. 2. 3. this notion is justly exploded; for if this doctrine were allowable, it might be applied in excuse of many other crimes as well as this; and for instance, that of a mother murdering her child, which is also against nature and reason: And this consideration, who is taking the protection of a crime, who should make it no crime at all; for it is certain a person non comas mentis can be guilty of no crime. 1 Hawk. 67.

Not only he, who deliberately kills himself, but also he, who maliciously attempting to kill another happens to kill himself, is a felo de se; as if A. discharging a gun at B. with an intent to kill him, and the gun burfs and kills A. or if A. strike B. to the ground, and then hastily falling upon him, wound himself with a knife; which B. happens to have in his hand, and die; in these cases A. is felo de se, for he is the only agent. Bro. Carn. 12, 14. Dolt. c. 92.

But a man is killed by hastily running on a knife or sword, which a person assaulted by him, and driven to the wall, holds up in his defence, he shall not be adjudged a felo de se, but the other shall be adjudged to have killed him se defendendo. Staun. P. C. 16. H. P. C. 28. Pult. 110. 6. Cram. 28. cont. 3 Inst. 54.

If one person kills another, then by his desire and intent, if the person killed is not a felo de se, but he who killed him is as much a murderer as if he had acted it of his own head; for every affent of that kind is void, being against the law of God and man. Keilh. 136.

But if two persons agree to die together, and one of them, at the perfuasion of the other, buys ratbane, and mixes it in a potion, and both drink of it, and he who bought and made the potion survis, by using proper remedies, and the other dies, it seems the better opinion, that he who dies shall be adjudged a felo de se, because all that happened was originally owing to his own wicked purpose, and the other only put it in his power to execute it in a particular manner. Mor. 154. pl. 1041. 1 Hawk. P. C. 68.

No person can be a felo de se before he is found Such, by some inquisition, which ought regularly to be by the coroner, super vigium corparis, if the body can be found. H. P. C. 26. 3 Inst. 55.

But if the body can't be found, so that the coroner, who has being of found mind, super vigium corparis, can't proceed, the inquiry may be by justices of the peace, who by their commision have a general power to enquire of all felonies, or in the King's Bench, if the felony were committed in the county where the said court sits, and such inquisitions are traversable by the executors, &c. 3 Inst. 55. H. P. C. 29. 2 Lev. 141. 1 Hawk. P. C. 69.

But it was formerly held, that with regard to the high credit which the law gives to inquests found before the coroner, that no such inquest found before him could be traversed; but this has been ruled otherwife of late, and it seems now settled, that such inquest being moved into the King's Bench by certiorari, may be there traversed by the executor or administrator of the person deceased, or by the King or lord of the manor, &c. Bram. Cram. 151. 2 Lev. 141, 152. 2 Keb. 859. 2 Jen. 198. 1 Vent. 278. 3 Keb. 504, 506, 604, 800. Stin. 45.

All inquisitions of this offence, being in the nature of indictment, are accordingly, and certainly to be formed of the circumstances of the fact, as the particular manner of the wound, and that it was mortal, &c. and in the conclusion add, that the party in such manner murdered himself. 1 Solk. 377.

And therefore if either the premises be insufficient, as if it be found that the party thung himself into the water, &c. fe. fe ipsum emergit, which is nonsensfe, because emerges signifies only to rise out of the water; or if there be wanting the proper conclusion & fe. fe ipsum murdravit, the inquisition is not good. 3 Lev. 140. 3 Med. 100.

Yet if it be full in substance, the coroner may be served with a rule to amend a defect in form. See 2 Lev. 152. 1 Sid. 225, 255. 1 Keb. 907.

A felo de se forfeits all chattels real and personal, which he hath in his own right, and also all chattels real whereof he is possessor, either jointly with his wife, or in her right; and also all bonds, and other personal things in action, belonging solely to himself; and also all personal things in action, and also the vender of merchandise, to which he was intituled jointly with another, or any account, except that of merchandise; but it is said, that he shall forfeit a moiety only of such joint chattels as may be severed, and nothing at all of what he was possessor of as executor or administrator. Staundf. P. C. 188, 189. H. P. C. 29. Pleas 243, 262. Cram. 31. a.

But the blood of a felo de se is not corrupted, nor his lands of inheritance forfeited, nor his wife barred of her dower. Pleas 261.

Alfo no part of the personal estate is vested in the King before the fell-murder is found by some inquisition, and consequent that the forfeiture thereof is registered in the offence before such finding. 5 Co. 110. 3 Inst. 54. 1 Staund. 352. 1 Sid. 150, 162. 2 Med. 53. 3 Med. 100. 241. cont. 1 Lev. 8. 1 Keb. 67, 68.

But if there be no such pardon, the whole is forfeited immediately after such inquisition, from the time such inquisition is found, and all other intermediate alienations are avoided. Pleas 260. 5 Co. 110.

Felonious goods, (Bona fugitivorum) Are the goods of a felon, who fled for the felony, and are not forfeited till 'tis found by indictment, that he fled for the felony, and therefore they cannot be claimed by premission; but if a man may prehend to have ways, etrangers, treukes, trove, wreck of the sea, because they may be gained by usage without matter of record. 5 Req. 109 b.

The flat de Prærag. Reg. (17 Ed. 2. c. 1.) grants to the King, among other things, the goods of felons and fugitives.
The archbishop of Canterbury had felons goods in the manor of R. and afterwards he committed treason; then the King made a general grant to the almoner of the goods of fel de fr. Hales, a letter for years, was fel de fr. in the manor, and notwithstanding this grant to the lord almoner, the King granted the term for years to B. G. adjudged, that he should have it, and not the almoner, because the almoner had no property, but only an interest as a minister, and the grant to him need not be reckoned in such grant to B. G. 2 Mar. Dyer 107.

Where the King granted to a man and his heirs, felons goods, &c. within such a place, the grantee cannot devise them, nor leave them to devise for a third part, upon the statute 32 H. 8. because they are not of any yearly value; but if a man is leaved of a manor, to which a lease or wait, or efrays are appendant, tho' they are of no yearly value, yet he shall have the devise of the manor, with the appurtenances, because the statute which enables the tenant to devise the manor, by consequence enables him to devise all the incidents which belong to it. 3 Rep. 31, in Butler and Baker’s cafe.

If a felon steals goods, and hides them, and afterwards by, these goods are found on his or her waifs in law; for those are when the felon hath the goods about him, and being closely purfued, leaveth them for fear of being taken, and that he may more readily get away; in such a case the goods are forfeited, but in the other case the owner may take them wherever he finds them. 5 Rep. 100, Payne’s case.

Qua sententia, &c. for claiming felons goods; the defendant pleaded, that the abbot of Strata Marcella lawfully had and enjoyed them till the dissolution of the abbey, and then they were given to the King by the statute 27 H. 8. and then pleaded the statute 32 H. 8. cap. 5; by which all the privileges lawfully used by the abbots, were revived and vested in the King; who being seized of the said privileges and franchises, to have felons goods in R., he granted the manor of W. in R. parcel of the possessions of the abbey to B. G. & to, talia & tanta privilegia as the late abbot had, under whom the defendant claimed the said manor by seisin, & to warrants clamat libertates & franchises tenuam manum prae dictae feftiae; adjudged, that because the defendant had conveyed to himself a title to the manor, &c. by seisin, which he pleaded generally, without setting forth the deed, he did not convey to himself a title to the felons goods, for they will not pass without a deed; but if the King had granted the manor to B. G. & bone & bone & bone et felonia dicta manum prae dictae feftiae, they pass, tho’ they cannot be appertain to a manor. 9 Rep. 23, Abbot de Strata Marcella, Mor. 297. S. C. by the name of The Queen v. Vaughan.

The plaintiff being committed upon suiposition, that he committed felony, the money which he had about him was seized upon as a conviction, and he ought an action of trofafe, and declared for feizing his money, &c. and this was upon the 1. R. cap. 3, by which ’tis enacted, that no perfon shall have the goods of another, &c. After a verdict for the plaintiff, it was moved in arrest of judgment, that this case was not within the statute because money was not goods; but it was adjudged to the contrary; and note here. Ex. 414. Q. D. v. Wendall. See Flight.

Felony, (Felonia.) Is derived, according to Sir Henry Spelman, from the Saxon word fælæg, a reward, or an eftate, and the German lan, price; because this was formerly a crime punished with the price, that is, the loss of eftate; for before the reign of King Hen. 1. felonia were punished with pecuniae fines; he being the first, who ordered felons to be hanged, about the year 1108. Spelm. Glegg.

Felony, says Lord Coke, Ex vi termini signiftis quidlibet crimen capitale tales animo perpetuum, (i.e. every capital crime perpetrated with an evil intention,) in which theft murder is said to be done per felonia, and is for appropriated by law, that felonia cannot be expresed by any other word. And in ancient times this word felonia was of so large an extent, that it included high treason; and therefore in our ancient books, by the pardon of all felonies, high treason, or counterfeiting the Great seal, and of the King’s coin, &c. was pardoned. But afterwards it was reliev’d, that in the King’s pardon or charter, this word felony should only extend to common felonies, and that high treason should not be comprehended under the same, and therefore ought to be specially named, and yet that a pardon of all felonies should extend to petit treason; wherefore by the law at this day under the word felony in commisions, &c. is included petit treason, murder, homicide, burning of houses, burglary, robbery, rape, &c. chancemercy, je defendants, and petit larceny. For such of these crimes as for the which any such have this judgment, To be hanged by the neck till he be dead; he shall forfeit all his lands in fee-simple, and his goods and chattels: for felony by chancemercy, or je defendants, or petit larceny, he shall forfeit his goods and chattels, and no lands of any estate of freehold or inheritance. And all felonies punishable according to the course of the Common law, are either by the Common law, or by statute. Co. Lit. 391.

Felony is always accompanied with an evil intention, and therefore shall not be imputed to a mere mistake or misnaming version; as when persons break open a door to execute a warrant, which will not justify such a proceeding; Affititia enim sua nama imponit spera tuo; item crimen non contrabibitur nisi necendis voluntas intercedat. But the bare intention to commit a felony is so very criminal, that at the Common law it was punishable as felony where it miffed its effect through some accident, which no way left the will of the offender to be considered; but it seems agreed at this day, that felony shall not be imputed to a bare intention to commit it, yet it is certain that the party may be very feverely fined for such an intention. 1 Hawk. P. C. 65.

1. Statutes concerning felony in general.
2. Felonies within clergy.
3. Felonies without clergy.

1. Statutes concerning felony in general.

Felons standing mute shall be put to strong and hard imprisonment, 3 Ed. 1. c. 12.

The goods of felons and fugitives ought to be inventoried and removed by the coroner, Acris. Exon. 14 Ed. 1.

Breaking prison felony, only where the prison was in custody for another felony. 4 Hil. 3. c. 12.

Writs to take felons shall be directed to all the counties, 5 Ed. 3. c. 11.

Felons goods and lands shall not be feized before conviction, Stat. de CaUell. felon. inserti temp. 1 R. 3. c. 3. His chattels shall be forfeited on the return of a non est inventus, 25 R. 3. c. 5. c. 14.

Proces again felons goods.

One charged in the Exchequer with felons goods may charge another over, 31 Ed. 3. A. 1. c. 3.

Justices of the King’s Bench may remand felons into their proper counties, 6 H. 8. c. 6.

Stolen goods shall be retorred upon the attender of the felon, 21 H. 8. c. 10.

How foreign pleas pleaded by felons shall be tried, 22 H. 8. c. 2. & c. 14. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. sect. 11.

No forfeiture for killing a man attempting to commit murder or robbery, 24 H. 8. c. 5.

The clerk of the aile, &c. shall certify the names of the felons convicted into the King’s Bench, 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 14.

Repley of all felonies made since 1 H. 8. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. sect. 4. 1 M. f. 1. c. 1.

All felonies and offences of praemunire since 1 H. 8. repealed, 1 M. f. 1. c. 5.

Perfons guilty of felony in imbeffalling fowers may make defence by wittences, 31 Eliz. c. 4.

Apprehenders of burglars and thieves to have a certificate to discharge them from parish offices, 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 23. sect. 2.

Further intituled to 40/. reward, on tendering certificate of conviction, 5 Ann. c. 31.
2. Felonies within clergy.

Armour. Imbezzling it, 31 Eliz. c. 4. See Felonies without clergy in this title.

Offences. Afflicting persons with intent to tear or spoil their clothes, 6 Geo. 1. c. 23. feft. 11. See Robbery under this division.

Bridge. Defrauying London bridge, 29 Geo. 2. c. 40. feft. 6. See Felonies without clergy.

Or Water bridge, 20 Geo. 2. cap. 22.
Or Hampton-Court bridge, 23 Geo. 2. c. 37. feft. 12.
Or Rother bridge, 24 Geo. 2. c. 36. feft. 31.
Or Sandwich bridge, 28 Geo. 2. c. 55.
Or Why bridge, 24 Geo. 2. c. 73.
Or Black Friars bridge, 39 Geo. 2. c. 86.
Or Jeremy Ferry’s bridge, 30 Geo. 2. c. 59.
Or Old Brentford bridge, 30 Geo. 2. c. 63. feft. 19.
31 Geo. 2. c. 46.

Bail. Perusing bail before commissioners in the country, 4 W. & M. c. 4. feft. 4. See Felonies without clergy.

Bigamy. See Polygamy.

Blacklead. See Lead.

Burning. Farms of timber, 37 H. 8. c. 6. feft. 2. repealed by 2 Ed. 6. c. 1. 1 M. feft. 1. 1.

Stacks of corn, houfe, &c. in the night-time, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 7. feft. 2. See Felonies without clergy.

Cattle. Killing them in the night, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 7. feft. 2. See Felonies without clergy.

Clay. Stealing it, or wood, left to dry, off the ten- ters, &c. the third offence, 15 Geo. 2. c. 27. See Felonies without clergy.

CORN. Defrauying granaries, the second offence, 11 Geo. 2. c. 22. See Felonies without clergy; and see Burning, ante.

Counsell. See King.

Copper. See Mining, Lead.

Criminals. Running goods five in company armed, 8 Geo. 1. c. 18. feft. 6. See Felonies without clergy.

Assembling armed to the number of three for running goods, 9 Geo. 2. c. 35. feft. 10.

Penfons deemed smugglers according to the definition of 9 Geo. 2. c. 35. feft. 13.

Harbouring offenders against the laws of customs, 11 Geo. 2. c. 34. feft. 9. See Felonies without clergy.

Dikes. Cutting them in marsh land, 22 H. 8. c. 11. 2 & 3 P. & M. c. 10.

Ejacs. See Prisoner.

Fishing. Catching fish in another’s pond with intent to steal, 31 H. 8. c. 2.

Fishing. See Leaks.

Foreign State. Serving it without taking oath of allegiance, 3 Geo. 1. c. 4. feft. 18.

Forgery. Of bank bills, 11 Geo. 2. c. 9. feft. 6. —

Of bank notes and indorsements, ibid. See Felonies without clergy.

Gaoler. Foreign prisoner to be changed to a good subject, 14 Ed. 3. c. 10.

Hawk. Stealing one, 37 Ed. 3. c. 19.

Hunting. In the night or in disguise, 1 H. 7. c. 7. — Refusing such offenders, ibid. See Felonies without clergy.

Iron bar. Stealing them, fixed to buildings, 4 Geo. 2. c. 32. See Lead.

King. Conspiring or designing to destroy him, or any of his council, 3 H. 7. cap. 14. See Felonies without clergy.

See Priests.

Lads. Confederates of masons to prevent the statute of labourers, 3 H. 6. c. 1.

Lead. Entering mines of black lead with intent to steal, 25 Geo. 2. c. 10. feft. 17.

Stealing it, fixed to buildings, 4 Geo. 2. c. 32.

Receivers of lead or lead, ibid. feft. 3.

Buying or receiving lead, iron, copper, brass, metal or folder, knowing it to be lead, 29 Geo. 2. c. 30. Penalties upon having these materials without being able to account for them, 29 Geo. 2. c. 30. feft. 6.

N.B.

Felonies. See Felonies without clergy.

Marriage. Sillentizing it clandestinely, 20 Geo. 2. c. 33. feft. 8. See Women.

Mariners. See Masts, Seamen.

Mails. Transportation of siver, or importation of false money, 17 Ed. 3. not printed.

Multiplication of gold or silver, 5 H. 4. cap. 4. repealed by 1 W. & M. fl. 1. c. 30.

Cointing or bringing in gally-half-pence, fuits or dodkins, 3 H. 5. c. 1.

Payment of blanks, 2 H. 6. c. 9. Olf.

Blanching, &c. or putting off counterfeit money, 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 46. feft. 6.

Muteny. In mariners, hindering commanders from fighting, 29 Car. 2. c. 11. feft. 9.

Officers, &c. defrauying ships, ibid. feft. 12. See Felonies without clergy.

Officer or officer upon or beyond the sea raising mutiny, disobeying or refiling superior, by 2 & 3 Ann. c. 20. feft. 35.

Palaces. Entering into King’s house with intent to steal, 33 H. 8. c. 12. feft. 27.

Plague. Permons infected with it going abroad, 1 Jac. 1. c. 31. feft. 7.

Plygamy. By 1 Jac. 1. c. 11.

Priest. Affailing one committed for treason or felony (except petty larceny) to attempt an escape, 16 Geo. 2. c. 31. See Gaoler.

Prize. Opposing the execution of it in any pretended privileged place, 9 Geo. 1. c. 28. 11 Geo. 1. c. 22. See Felonies without clergy.

Purveyance. In some cafes by 28 Ed. 1. fl. 3. c. 2.

N.B. Purveyance is taken away by 12 Car. 2. c. 24.

Rape. By 13 Ed. 1. c. 34. See Felonies without clergy.

Records. Withdrawing them, 8 H. 6. c. 12.

Rejoin. Refusing the body of an offender executed for murder from the sheriff or surgeon, 25 Geo. 2. c. 37. feft. 10. See Felonies without clergy.

Hunters. Spiritsuous liquors.

Rogue. Incorrigible, breaking out or escaping from house of correction, or offending a second time, 17 Geo. 2. cap. 5. feft. 9.

Adjudged.
Adjourned to the galleries returning without licence, 39 Ed. c. 4. 1 Jac. 1. c. 7. & 25. repealed by 12 Ann. b. 2. c. 73.

ROBBERY. Stealing furniture from lodgings (if under 12 d.) 3 W. & M. cap. 9. sect. 5. See Felonies without clergy.

Affecting with intent to rob, 7 Geo. 2. c. 21. sect. 1. Seamen. Deferting, 5 El. c. 5. sect. 27. See Felonies without clergy.

Scurvies. Taking their master’s goods at their death, 23 H. 6. c. 1. If in use? Affecting, Mfr. master, woollen or Weaver, 12 Geo. 1. c. 34. sect. 6.

Imbazzling goods delivered to them of the value of 40 l. 21 H. 8. c. 7. per by 5 El. c. 10. Appar- tices under 18 excepted, 21 H. 8. c. 7. sect. 2.

Sheep. Exporting them alive, the second offence, 8 El. c. 3. sect. 2. See Felonies without clergy.

Ships. Deferting them, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. sect. 12. See Murther, and Felonies without clergy.

Shires. See Law.

Smuggling. See Customs.

Spirituous liquors. Refusing offenders against the acts concerning these liquors, 11 Geo. 2. c. 26. sect. 2. 24 Geo. 2. c. 49. sect. 28.

Sned. goths. Buyers or receivers of them, 5 Ann. c. 31. sect. 5.

Taking a coward to help one to roben goods (if he do not apprehend offender) in some cases, 4 Geo. 1. c. 11. sect. 4. See Felonies without clergy.

Stoves. Imbazzling them to 20 l. value, 31 El. c. 4.

Turnpikes. Deferting them, 5 Geo. 2. c. 33. See Felonies without clergy.

Waterman. Carrying greater number of passengers than allowed, if any passenger be drowned, 10 Geo. 2. c. 31. sect. 9. See Felonies without clergy.

Wine. Firing them, 1 Geo. 1. c. 2. sect. 48. sect. 49. See Felonies without clergy.

Wool. Expiration of it, other than to the staple at Calais, 18 H. 5. c. 15.

Transporting of it out of England, Wales or Ireland, 17 & 14 Car. 2. c. 18. altered by the 7 & 8 WII. c. 3. &c.

28. See Cloth, and Servants ante.

3. Felonies without clergy.

Acquittance. Before the fact in petty treason, murder, burglary, robbery in dwelling-houses, or in churches, or in or near the highway, horse-burning, or burning of barns where there is corn or grain, 23 H. 8. c. 1. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 9. 4 & 5 P. & M. c. 4.

Before and after in horse stealing, 31 El. c. 12. sect. 5.

Before the fact in stealing women, having lands or goods, or being heirs apparent, 39 El. c. 9. sect. 2.

Before the fact in withchafit, 1 Jac. 1. c. 12. repe- ted by 9 Geo. 2. c. 4.

Before the fact in procuring any fire, recovery, deed enrolled, statute, recognition, bail or judgment to be acknowledged in the name of another, 21 Jac. 1. c. 25.

Before the fact in mainling, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 1.

Before the fact in burglary, deforciation, 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 9.

Before the fact in robberies in shops, warehouse, coach-houses or stables, 10 & 11 WII. c. 3. sect. 23.

Before the fact in piracy, in some cases, 11 & 12 WII. c. 3. sect. 7.

To forging any deed, will, bond, bill of exchange, note, indenture or assignment of bill or note, or any acquittance or receipt, 2 Geo. 2. c. 25. perpetual by 9 Geo. 2. c. 18.

Vol. II. No. 73.

To forging bills of exchange, accountable receipts, warrants, or orders for payment of money or delivery of goods, 7 Geo. 2. c. 22.

Before the fact in sheep stealing, 14 Geo. 2. c. 6. and 25 Geo. 2. c. 54.

Before the fact in stealing cotton, &c. from bleaching grounds, 18 Geo. 3. c. 37.

Before the fact in thefts in 40 l. value in any vessel or in any whale, 24 Geo. 2. c. 45.

Before the fact in destroying London Bridge, 31 Geo. 2. c. 30. sect. 6.

5. Strangling. See Smugglers.

Banks. Destroying them, 6 Geo. 2. c. 37. sect. 5. perpetual by 31 Geo. 2. c. 42.

Bankrafts. Not surrendering, or not submitting to be examined, or concealing or imbrazzling their efectes, 5 Geo. 2. c. 30.

Bedford Level. See Fast.

Black act. Hunting armed and disguised, and killing or stealing deer, or robbing waten, or taking fish out of any river, &c. or any perons unlawfully hunting in his Majesty’s forests, &c. or breaking down the head of any fisf pond, or killing fisf, &c. of cattle, or cutting down trees, or setting fire to houses, barn or wood, or fishong at any peron, or sending anonymous letter, or signed with fictitious name, demanding money, &c. or refucing such offenders, 9 Geo. 1. c. 22. perpetual by 31 Geo. 2. c. 42.

Black lead. Officers committed or transported for entering mines of black lead with intent to steal, eacping, or breaking prison, or returning from transportation, 25 Geo. 2. c. 10.

Black mail. See Cumberland.

Bonds. See Fargery. Robbery.

Beauvoir. See Kithery.

Bridges. Wilful damaging London Bridge, 31 Geo. 2. c. 10. sect. 6. Destroying Wiltshire Bridges, 9 Geo. 2. c. 29. sect. 5.

Or Fulham Bridge, 12 Geo. 1. c. 56. sect. 3.

Burgory. By 25 H. 8. c. 6. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 29. revised by 56 El. 17.

Burglary. By 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. 18 El. c. 7. 12 Ann. c. 7.

Burning. Hovses or barns with corn, 23 H. 8. c. 1. 25 H. 8. c. 52. & 23 Car. 2. c. 7. 43 El. c. 13.

Cattle. See Black Act, Sheep.

Challenge of juries. Challenge above, twenty if the indictment be for such offence for which the offender would have been excluded clergy, if convicted or con- fection, 25 H. 5. c. 3. 4 & 5 P. & M. cap. 4. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 4 & 5. sect. 3.

Cloth. Stealing it from the rack or tenters, 25 Car. 2. c. 5. sect. 3.

Coals. Firing collieries, 10 Geo. 3. c. 22. perpetual 31 Geo. 2. c. 42.

Corn. Perons transported for destroying granaries returning, 11 Geo. 2. c. 23. sect. 7. See Black Act, Burning, Cumberland.

Councill. See Privy Counsellors.

Cumberland. Forcibly carrying subjests out of Cumber- land, Northumberland, Wijhumland, and Durham, and taking or giving black mail, burning corn, &c. 43 El. c. 13. sect. 2.

Nestorious thieves, or tool-takers in Northumberland or Cumberland (or to be transported at discretion of judge). 18 Car. 2. c. 3.

Coysmen. Perons liable to transportation for offences against the customs, offending again, after having taken G. the the benefit of the indemnifying aét, 9 Geo. 2. c. 35.
sett. 7. 18 Geo. 2. c. 98. sett. 7.
Perfons, convicted of wounding constable officers, returning from transportation, 4 Geo. 1. c. 21. sett. 35.
3 Geo. 2. c. 28. sett. 10. See Smuggling.
Cauter'd. See Pickpocket.
Deer. Perfons convicted of second offence in hunting and taking them away, or for coming armed into a foret with intent to steal them, 10 Geo. 2. c. 32. sett. 7.
7. See Black Act.
Aid. Acknowledging them in the name of another, 21 Jac. 1. c. 26.
Egypt. Remaining in the realm one month, 1 &
2 P. & M. c. 4. sett. 3.
Affiliating with them one month, 5 El. c. 29. f. 3.
East India Bonds, &c. See Forgery, Robbery.
Ecape. See Breaking Prison, Robbery.
Exchequer Order, &c. See Forgery, Robbery.
Fence. Destroying, &c. any of the works in Bedford Level, 27 Geo. 2. cap. 19. Fide Marches.
Fines. Acknowledging them in the name of another, 21 Jac. 1. c. 26.
Fitch. See Black Act.
Floodgates. See Turnpike.
Fugft. See Black Act.
Forgery. Of deeds on second conviction, 5 El. c.
14. sett. 7.
Of testimonial by justices or officers, 39
El. c. 17. sett. 3.
Of deeds, will, bill of exchange, note, indorsement, or receipt, on first conviction, 2 Geo. 2. c. 25. sett. 1. perpetual by 9 Geo. 2. c. 18. and fee 31 Geo. 2. c. 22.
sett. 81.
Of authorities to transfer stock, or perforating pro-oprietors, 18 Geo. 1. c. 22. Extended to funds established since 8 Geo. 1. by 31 Geo. 2. c. 22. sett. 80.
Of order for payment of annuities, or perforating pro-oprietors, 9 Geo. 1. c. 12. sett. 4. 9 Geo. 2. c. 34.
sett. 8.
Of new stamps, or receipts for monies payable on indentures, 8 Ann. c. 8. sett. 41.
Of the hand of accountant general, registrar, clerk of the report-office, or any of the cashiers of the Bank, 12
Geo. 2. c. 37. sett. 9.
Of East India bonds, 12 Geo. 1. c. 32. sett. 9.
Of South Sea common seal, bonds, receipts, or warrant, or the dividends, 9 Ann. c. 25. sett. 57. 6 Geo. 1.
c. 4. sett. 56. 6 Geo. 1. c. 11. sett. 50. 12 Geo. 1.
c. 32. sett. 9. and other subsequent aéts.
Of Mediterranea man papers, 4 Geo. 2. c. 18.
Of any entry of acknowledgment of bargain in bargain and sale in the registry of Yerd, the second offence, 8 Geo. 2. c. 31.
Of stamp for marking gold and silver, 31 Geo. 2.
c. 2. sett. 15.
Of policies of Royal Exchange and London affurances,
6 Geo. 1. c. 18. sett. 13.
Of debentures, 5 Geo. 1. c. 14. sett. 10.
Of the marks on leaders, 9 Ann. c. 11. sett. 44.
5 Geo. 1. c. 2. sett. 9.
Of the marks on linnen, 10 Ann. c. 19. sett. 97.
4 Geo. 3. c. 37. sett. 26.
Of register or licent of marriage, 26 Geo. 2. c. 33.
sett. 16.
Of the common seal of Bank or Bank notes, 8 & 9
W. 3. c. 20. sett. 36. 11 Geo. 1. c. 9. sett. 6. 15 Geo.
c. 2. c. 13. sett. 11.
Of Exchequer bills, 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 31. sett.
18. 9 W. 3. c. 2. sett. 3. 5 Ann. c. 15. 3 Geo. 1.
c. 8. sett. 40. 6 Geo. 1. c. 4. sett. 91. 9 Geo. 1.
c. 5. sett. 11. 15 Geo. 1. c. 2. sett. 17. 9 Geo. 1.
c. 3. sett. 156. 32 Geo. 2. c. 2. sett. 156.
3 Geo. 1. c. 2. and other subsequent aét.
Of stamps, 5 W. 4. & M. c. 21. sett. 11. 9 & 10 W.
c. 3. c. 25. sett. 56. 9 Ann. c. 23. sett. 34. 10 Ann.
c. 10. sett. 115. 162. 10 Ann. c. 28. sett. 72. 5 Geo. 1.
c. 2. sett. 2. 6 Geo. 2. c. 21. sett. 60. 29 Geo. 2. c. 12.
sett. 21. 29 Geo. 2. c. 13. sett. 5. 30 Geo. 2. c. 19.

F E L

fect. 27. 32 Geo. 2. c. 35. sett. 17. 2 Geo. 3. c. 36.
sett. 8.
Of the hand of the receiver of the preludes, 32 Geo.
c. 2. c. 14. sett. 9.
Of the acceptance of bills of exchange, or accountable
receipts, 7 Geo. 2. c. 22.
Of any warrant, or order for payment of money or delivery of goods, 7 Geo. 2. c. 22.
Forfeiting it from bleeding grounds, 4 Geo.
c. 2. c. 16. 18 Geo. 2. c. 27.
Gad See Breaking Prison.
Helping to steal goods for reward. In some cases, unlefs the helper apprehends the offender, 4 Geo. 1. c. 11.
Horn. Stealing from 17 Geo. 8. c. 8. sett. 2. 1 Ed. 6.
c. 4. 12. sett. 10. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 33.
House-breaking, See Robbery.
House. See Burning, Black Act.
Hunting. See Black Act.
Jewft. See Prifon.
Judgment. Acknowledging them in the name of another, 21 Jac. 1. c. 26.
Letters threatening. Sending them, or refusing such offenders, 27 Geo. 2. c. 15.
Letters anonymous, or signed with fictitious name. See Black Act.
Landing. Stealing it from bleeding grounds, 4 Geo.
c. 2. c. 16. 18 Geo. 2. cap. 27. See Forgeries 59.
Breaking into shops, &c. to steal or destroy linen, yarn, or implements, 4 Geo. 3. c. 37.
Locks. See Turnpike.
Latters. See Forgery.
Maid. See Woman.
Maiming. Any person maliciously lying in wait, 22
& 23 Car. 2. c. 1.
Matric. Firing engines for draining them, the second offence, 12 Geo. 2. c. 34. 14 Geo. 2. c. 24.
21 Geo. 2. c. 12.
Marry. Wandering without testimonial of justices, 39 El. c. 17. sett. 2. See Forgery.
Departing within the year from the service of those who took them, to fave them from execution, 39 El.
c. 17. sett. 4.
Marriage. See Women.
Money. Uttering false money the third time, 55.
15 Geo. 2. & 26. sett. 22.
Murther. By 12 H. 7. c. 7. 23 H. 8. c. 1. 25
H. 8. c. 3. 28 H. 8. c. 1. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12.
Mate. Standing mute, or not answering directly, 25
H. 8. c. 3. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. 4 & 5 Pb. & Mar.
cap. 4. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 9. 1 Ann. c. 9.
Northumberland. See Cumberland.
Nest. See Forgery.
Robbery.
Ordinance. See Store.
Outlawry. For offences not within the benefit of clergy,
1 Ed. 6. c. 12. 4 & 5 Pb. & M. c. 4. 8 El. c. 4.
18 El. c. 7. 22 Car. 2. c. 5. 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 9.
Petty Treafon. See Murder.
Perjury. Perfom convicted of wilful and corrupt perjury, escaping, breaking prison, or returning from tran-sporion, 2 Geo. 2. c. 25. sett. 2. See Prifoners.
Pockpocket. Taking clams & fecrets from the perfon above the value of 12d. 8 El. c. 4.
8 Geo. 1. c. 24.
Perfon laying violent hands on his commander, to hinder him from fighting, Uc. to fuffer as a pirate, 11 & 12
W. 3. c. 7. sett. 9.
Trading with pirats, 8 Geo. 1. c. 24.
Plague. See Quarantine.
Praifon. Of malice prepended, 1 Ed. 6. c. 12.
sett. 13.
Praifon reafons. Refufing to oblige, or not departing the town within a time limited, or returning without the King's leave, 35 El. c. 1. fett. 3. 35 El. c. 2.
sett. 10.
Prifoners. They who receive, relieve or maintain them knowingly, 27 El. c. 2. fett. 4.
Prifoners.
Prisoners. Taking the benefit of insolvent acts and forswearing themselves, 25 Geo. 2. c. 13. sect. 17. 1 Geo. 3. c. 17. sect. 26. 5 Geo. 3. c. 41.

Relief to deliver up their effects, or concealing to the value of $2. 26 Geo. 2. c. 13. sect. 39. 3 Geo. c. 17. sect. 48. 25 Geo. 2. c. 17. sect. 3.

Perfons transported for affiling prisoners to escape, and returning, 16 Geo. 2. c. 31.

Privy counsellors. They who attempt to kill, or to strike or wound them in the execution of their office, 9 Ann. c. 18.

Principals. Perfons disguised, abetting rioters who oppose the execution of procès in privileged pretended pieces, 9 Geo. 1. c. 28. sect. 3.

Quarantine. Not performing it, 7 Geo. 1. c. 3.

8 Geo. 1. c. 8. 1 Geo. 2. c. 13. 6 Geo. c. 34. 26 Geo. 2. c.

Matters of ships offending against directions of 26 Geo. 2. c. sect. 26.

Concealing the having infected perfon on board, 2 Geo. 2. c. sect. 3.

Relief to perform quarantine, 26 Geo. 2. c. 6. sect. 8. and perfons entering a lazeret, and escaping before they have performed quarantine, 26 Geo. 2. c. sect. 10.

So preventient of quarantine neglecting duty, 26 Geo. 2. c. sect. 17.

Concealing or clandestinely conveying letters or goods, 26 Geo. 2. c. sect. 6. sect. 18.

Rape. By 18 El. c. 7. sect. 1.

Carnally knowing a woman child under the age of ten years, 18 El. c. 7. sect. 4.

Rebels. Pardoned and returning from transportation, or going into the dominions of France or Spain, 20 Geo. 2. c. 46. sect. 1.

Perfons aiding them to such purposes, 20 Geo. 2. c. 46. sect. 2.

Or holding correspondence with them, or with perfons employed by them, by letters or otherwise, 20 Geo. 2. c. sect. 3.

Rcognizances. Acknowledging it in the name of another, 21 Jac. 1. c. 26.

Recovery. Acknowledging it in the name of another, 21 Jac. 1. c. 26.

Refuse. Refusing convicts from transportation, 6 Geo. 1. c. 23. sect. 5.

Refusing any perfon committed for, or found guilty of murder, or of being in execution, or during execution, 25 Geo. 2. c. sect. 9.

Perfons transported for refusing the body of such offenders, after execution, from the heirof, or surgenes, &c. and returning, 25 Geo. 2. c. sect. 10. See Black act, Letter threatening, Turnspikes.

Rioters. Allowing to the number of twelve, and continuing together one hour after proclamation, 1 Geo. 1. c. 2. c. sect. 1. Pulling down buildings, 1 Geo. 1. c. 2. c. sect. 5. For hindering proclamation being made, 1 Geo. 1. c. 2.

5. sect. 5. See Proof.

25 H. 8. c. 3. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 9 & 10. In or near the highway, 23 Hen. 8. c. 1. 25 H. 8. c. 3. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12.

In booths or tents in any fair or market, 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 9.

In dwelling-houses, shops, warehouse, coach-houses, or stables, 23 H. 8. c. 1. 25 H. 8. c. 3. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 9 & 10. 39 El. c. 15. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 23. 12 Ann. c. 7.

On any board or sign, or any watch, to the value of 3. 34 Geo. 2. c. 4. sect. 2.

Stealing furniture, &c. from lodgings, if above 2d. value 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 9. sect. 5.

Stealing Exchequer orders, tallies or other orders intitling person to annuity or share in any parliamentary fund, or Exchequer bills, bank notes, South-Sea bonds, East-India bonds, dividend warrants of bank, South-Sea, East-India or other company, bills of exchange, navy bills or debentures, goldsmiths notes, or other bonds or warrants, bills or promissory notes, &c. is felony the same as if the money secured by such bond, &c. had been stolen, 2 Geo. 2. c. 25. sect. 3. and sect 31 Geo. 2. cap. 22. sect. 81.

Offenders ordered to be transported for affiling with intent to rob, breaking gaol or effecting, 7 Geo. 2. c. 10. sect. 2.

Rogue. Branded, and afterwards offending, 1 Jac. 1. c. 7. repealed by 12 Ann. 2. c. 23.

Sacrilege. See Robbery.

Seafman. Treasons, robberies, felonies, murders and confederacies done upon the sea, 28 H. 8. c. 15. sect. 3.

Seamen. Perfonning them to receive their pay, 31 Geo. 2. c. 10. sect. 24.

Shoemaking. By 14 Geo. 2. c. 6. extended to bull, cow, &c. By 15 Geo. 2. c. 34.

Ships. Destroying them wilfully, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. sect. 12. 1 Hen. 2. c. 9. 4 Geo. 1. c. 17.

11 Geo. 1. c. 20. See Robbery, Week, Stealing. See Black act.

Sluices. See Turnpike.

Perfon transported for affiling in running goods, and returning, 9 Geo. 2. c. sect. 10.

Perfons convicted of running goods, returning from transporation, 8 Geo. 1. c. 18. sect. 6. See Customs.

Soldiers. Departing without licence, 7 H. 7. c. 1.

3 H. 8. c. 5. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 2. sect. 6.

Wandering without testimonial from justices, 39 El. c. 17. sect. 2. See Forgery.

Departing within the year from the service of those who took them to have them from execution, 39 El. c. 17. sect. 4.

Injuring or causing others to infilt in foreign service, 9 Geo. 2. c. 30.

Accepting commision from the French King.—Continuing in the French service after 29th of September 1757. Contradicting to infilt in foreign service, 29 Geo. 2. c. 17. South-Sea company. Officer or fervant imbeziling their effects, 24 Geo. 2. c. 11. sect. 3. See Forgery.

S. S. bands. See Forgery, Robbery.

Staten. Acknowledging it in the name of another, 21 Jac. 1. c. 26.

Stolen goods. See Helping to steal goods.

Stores. Embeziling them to the value of 20l. or offending against 31 El. cap. 4. concerning embezilment of stores, 23 Geo. 2. c. 5. sect. 3.

Transported. Felons returning within the time, 4 Geo. 1. c. 11. 6 Geo. 1. c. 23. 16 Geo. 2. c. 15. See Refuse, Tress. See Black act.

Turnpikes. Deflovig them, or locks, sluices, or floodgates, or refusing suck offenders, 8 Geo. 2. perpetual by 27 Geo. 2. c. 16.

Warren. See Black act.

Wharf. See Robbery.

Witchcraft. By 1 Jac. 1. c. 12. repealed by 9 Geo. 2. c.

Woods. See Black act.

Wooll and woollen manufactures. Unlawful exporters returning after transportation, 4 Geo. 1. c. 11. sect. 6.

Opposing officers of customs, excife, &c. in seizing wooll, 12 Geo. 2. c. 21. sect. 26.

Deflovig woollen goods, or rack, or tools, 12 Geo. 1. c. 34. sect. 7. See Clay.

Clay. Women. Stealing them, and marrying or defling them, having lands or goods, or being heirs apparent, 39 El. c. 9.

After conviction of an offence that was within clerhy, outlawed of it on conviction of any other felony, 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 1.

Wreck.inking holes in ship in dirths, or stealing pump, 12 Ann. b. 2. c. 1. sect. 5.

Plundering shipwrecked goods, or beating, &c. with intent to kill, or otherwise obturing the escape of any perfon from such ship, or putting out false lights with intent to bring any ship into danger, 25 Geo. 2. c. 19. 3 Geo. green, see.

See
See Clwyd. And for the several species of felon, as Murder, Burglary, Rape, Seduction, and many others, for the respective heads.

Felony under colour of law. A man came to Smithfield market to sell a horse, and a jockey went to his stall to buy it, but the owner delivered his horse to the jockey to ride up and down the market to try his price, but instead of that, the jockey rode away with the horse: this was adjudged felony. Kling 52.

Coming into a house by colour of a writ of execution, and carrying away the goods, is felony. 2 Foss's Cas. 315.

See below for future references.

Feme sole merchant. Where is the feme sole trades by herself in one trade, with which her husband doth not meddle, and buys and sells in that trade, there the feme shall be sued, and the husband named only for conformity; and if judgment be given against him, execution shall be only against the husband. *C. C. 69. 96. Foss 3 Car. 6."

Feme sole widow. See that and mingled. Smitkfield Ball, 5th.

Feme sole widow. See that and mingled. Smitkfield Ball, 5th.

Feme sole widow. See that and mingled. Smitkfield Ball, 5th.

Feme sole widow. See that and mingled. Smitkfield Ball, 5th.

See below for future references.

In a writ of execution the sheriff returned, that the plaintiff brought his action in the sheriff's court in London against the defendant and his wife as a feme sole merchant, and had a verdict, and by custom in the city of London the Lord Mayor is Chancellor, and may call cause before him out of the sheriff's court, and rule them according to equity; and knows how the Lord Mayor had called this cause before him, and ordered the plaintiff should have judgment, and that the defendant should pay costs within 14 days; and that the sheriff should pay the debt by 50s. quarterly, or else that execution should issue; and that this was the reason why he could not make execution: The court held the return sufficient, and the custom reasonable, tho' it had of late been abused. Skyn 57. Mich 34. 2. R. Barb. v. Barns.

Cafe was brought in the Mayow's court upon an indeb. oiff. for 51l. according to the custom of the city. The evidence showed that the defendant in her lifetime had received 31l. 1s. 9d. from her husband, and presently placed it to her own use; the jury found, that defendant had been a freeman, but left off his trade 20 years before, and turned dicing teacher, but the wife lived apart from him within the liberty of the city, and excercised the art of making gin, etc., and the husband no ways intermeddled; that the said woman, without the knowledge of the husband, did carry away the goods, and the husband, at the request of the defendant, sent the goods to her, and the husband deceased, and she took them all, amounting to 57l. and that after her death the defendant promised payment; judgment was given by Rider for the defendant, and he declared, that Trely was of the same opinion. Mich. 34. 2. R. Barb. v. Barns.

The Reporter who argued this case, makes a quære, and says it deserves consideration, if such a feme sole trader dies, and leaves an estate, and the husband poxes himself of it, if he shall not be answerable for her debts.

In the husband relinquish, or become bankrupt, or be over 70, or of another trade, or if a widow, it was within the custom. Skyn 184. in the case of Faban v. Plant.)

The Reporter who argued this case, makes a quære, and says it deserves consideration, if such a feme sole trader dies, and leaves an estate, and the husband poxes himself of it, if he shall not be answerable for her debts.
A. widow and administratrix of B. used to deal in tea in B.'s life-time, and bought four tubs of C. at so much per tub, one of which A. paid for and took away; leaving 50 l. in hand for the other three. Ruled at Guildhall, per His Ch. J. that the husband was liable on the said contract. Paper, 4 Oct. 11, S. 113. Longfort v. Administratrix of Tiler. See L. 10101.

Femella. A woman. Flet. lib. 2. c. 1, p. 17.

Feast, is a hedge, ditch, or other inclosure of land for the better manurcment and improvement of the same. Jews.

If A. be bound to incline against B. and B. against C. and the beasts escape out of C.'s land into B.'s land, and thence into the land of A. in this case A. shall not have trefpas against C. But if A. be bound to incline against B. and B.'s beasts escape into A.'s land, and thence into the land of one D., a stranger, there D. shall have trefpas, and B. shall be put to a curia clandestina according to A. F. N. B. 128. (208) in the notes there, cites 10 E. 4. 7—36 H. 6. Bar. 68.

If cattle break in at my fence, I cannot punish the owner; but if after notice he permits them to continue, I may by law punish him through my de-fault. 2 L. 93. Arg. cites 22 Ed. 4. 49.

A. and B. exchanged lands, whereupon A. agreed to make the fences, and maintain them.—A. did not make them, but for want thereof, B.'s beasts break into A.'s ground.—A. brings trefpas. Per tres. A. against Per tres. B.'s tenant is not to be held to trespass in his own deed; but his remedy is by an action of can on the premises, if without deed, or on covenant, if by deed. Mich. 41. and 42 Eliz. B. R. Ges. 679. Newell v. Smith.

One cannot have trefpas for breaking another man's fence; but if he be damnified by the breaking of it, he may have action on the can of the party that broke it; per Reil. J. Mich. 24 Carr. B. R. St. 131. in case of Sir A. A. Cooper v. S. Febo.

A. sells to B. a piece of pasture lying upon another piece held in possession by A. and B. make a contract to run cattle from running into A's piece. So of dung, B. Per eur. Mich. 3 Ann. B. R. 6 Mod. 314. in case of Tenant v. Colding.

A. was polluted of a close adjoining to a close of B. the fences between the said two cloes; had, time out of mind, been repaired by the tenants and strength of B.'s close. The fence was not repaired, so that B.'s cattle came into A.'s close; A. brought an action on the fence against B. setting forth this matter, and had judgment in C. B. and upon error brought in B. R. this judgment was affirmed; and per cur. the plaintiff has made himself a fixture in the land, by putting up the defendant to bound to this charge by prescription; which prescription is sufficiently alleged; for by tenures is meant the owners of the fee-simple, and by occupators those that come in under them. That tenures is to taken, appears by the writ De curia clandestina, which is a writ of right, and lies only for a tenant in fee, and as this is a charge upon the land, which runs with it, there is good reason, why every occupator should be bound; and it is sufficient for the plaintiff to charge the tenures, and occupators; because it is impossible, that he, who is a stranger, should be able to set up a fence, and set forth the particular effaces, title, and interest, but the prescription is annexed to the tenures, that is to say, tenants of the fee; yet, on a traverse of the prescription, it would be good evidence, that the tenant for years have from time to time fenced, and repaired; for perhaps the effate has not force time of memory before the actual occupation of the owner of the fee. 1 Salk. 335, 336. Mich. 3 Ann. B. R. Star v. Reilly.

For more learning on this subject, see 13 Vin. Abr. tit. Fences. See also tit. Appoindem, Inclosure.

Fractum, (Magna vestita) is a month wherein it is unlawful to hunt in the forest, because in that time the female deer do fawn. It being always fifteen days after Midsummer, according to the custom of the forest, viz. In initio gaudium diesam ante feum Sarac. Johannis Baptistæ, quando Agiastatæ movetur conveniant pro feae. Vol. II. No. 73.
E and because in as part given, and thereto in court; to align dower unto the King's widow, to receive all the rents of the said lands within his circuit, and to answer them to the receiver of the court. This officer is mentioned 32 H. 8. cap. 46. and is wholly taken away by 22 Car. 2. cap. 14. And in some ancient writs that noblemen had their particular fideatories. Humphrey count de Stafford & de Perch, seigneur de Tunbridge & de Caux, afrey foldier in le count de Warrewic, &. Siue that nam, &c. Dat. 17 H. 6. Cowell, ed. 1727. See Kennet's Giff, on the word Fideatory.

Fideatarie. Thes grants, to whom lands in fee or fee were granted from a superior lord, were called generally in Latin, lessin, men, or homagers, and in some other writings were termed vassals, feudal, and fideatories. At the first infliction of beneficen, or fee (as they were afterwards called) they were revocable at the will of the lord, patron, or donor, when he pleased. Afterward they were granted for a year, and then for the life of the fideatarie or vassal, then in process of time they became infevate to the heirs male, and by degrees hereditary to the female. Cowell, ed. 1727. See Dr. Bigot's Glossary, pag. 300.

Fideatarie in English, Fidai. "Tis mentioned in Thom. Aus. 1281. Facit ex reditum, reversione, feidatarie, feidatarie, tetam curiam, &c. Fideatarie lat. Fideatarie, A lay-fee, or land held in fee, from a lay-lord by the common services to which military tenure was subject; in opposition to the ecclesiastical holding in frank-almain discharged from those burdens. See Kennet's Glossary.

Fideitarie militiis, or Militaire, A knight's fee, which by vulgar computation contained four hundred and eighty acres, as twenty-four acres made a virgate, four virgates a hide, and ten hides made a knight's fee, which was the common relief paid to the King or other lord was one hundred shillings; yet no doubt the measure was uncertain, and differed with times and places. Cowell, ed. 1727. See Kennet's Glossary.

Fideitarie baroni et nobo, or De fideitarie baroni et nobo, These phrases began in the reign of Hen. 2. to the time of those knights or military tenants, who had been enfeated in any fee or parts of a fee, at or before the death of King Hen. 1. were said tenure fideata de videri fideataris. But those, who had been enfeated in their lands after the death of the King, were said tenures de novo fideataris. Cowell, ed. 1727. See Câtez.

Fidefitum, (Fidefitum,) By the opinion of Sir Thomas Smith de Refup. Anglor. lib. 3. cap. 8. and Wfet, part 1. Symbol, lib. 2. fol. 280. is defended from the Garlick word fideatum, which we interpret fee, and signifie dunsamum feudum: But (as the Cons. Wfet addeth) it signifieth in our Common law any gift or grant of any honours, caless, manors, messuages, lands, or other corporeal and immovable things of like nature, unto another in fee feeble, that is to him and his heirs for ever, by the delivery of seamen, and the possession of the thing given, which cannot be made by deeds or writings: And when it is in writing it is called a deed of fidefitum, and in every fidefitum the giver is called the sever, fidefitator, and he that receive by virtue of the fame, fidefit, fidefitant. And Littletone faith, That the proper difference between a fidefit and a donor is, that the fidefit giveith in fee feeble, and the donor in fee tail. In fee tail it is the ancient and most necessary conveyance, because solemn and publick: and also because it cleareth all diffidents, abatements, intrusions, and other defeizable effects, where the entry of the fidefit is lawful, which neither fine, recovery, nor bargain or sale by deed indented and improved, can be likewise done. See Co. Litt. lib. 1. c. 1. f. 1. Cowell, ed. 1727.

As all property in lands begun by occupancy, so it forms the first method of transferring property was by and Vent. for the manor, for the woman, for the beneficiary, and for the land.

A. being seized of land in fee Borrowed of B. and for repayment agrees to assent the land; and therefore upon the giving of the land, the fee of the lands comprised in the deed, which had been good and executed the deed, and to give away also; because the bare delivery of the deed or any other thing, in the name of fee, is sufficient, though the delivery be made only to discover to all persons in whom the freehold is vested; and this end is as effectually answered by the delivery of the deed, or any thing else in the name of a fee, as of a turft or a fheef, the one being equally free and visible as the other. 9 Co. 237. 138 a. 12 M. 674. 4a. 675. 4a. 125 4a. 57 4a.

A. being seized of land in fee Borrowed of B. and for repayment agrees to assent the land; and therefore upon the giving of the land, the fee of the lands comprised in the deed, which had been good and executed the deed, and to give away also; because the bare delivery of the deed or any other thing, in the name of fee, is sufficient, though the delivery be made only to discover to all persons in whom the freehold is vested; and this end is as effectually answered by the delivery of the deed, or any thing else in the name of a fee, as of a turft or a fheef, the one being equally free and visible as the other. 9 Co. 237. 138 a. 12 M. 674. 4a. 675. 4a. 125 4a. 57 4a.

A. being seized of land in fee Borrowed of B. and for repayment agrees to assent the land; and therefore upon the giving of the land, the fee of the lands comprised in the deed, which had been good and executed the deed, and to give away also; because the bare delivery of the deed or any other thing, in the name of fee, is sufficient, though the delivery be made only to discover to all persons in whom the freehold is vested; and this end is as effectually answered by the delivery of the deed, or any thing else in the name of a fee, as of a turft or a fheef, the one being equally free and visible as the other. 9 Co. 237. 138 a. 12 M. 674. 4a. 675. 4a. 125 4a. 57 4a.

A. being seized of land in fee Borrowed of B. and for repayment agrees to assent the land; and therefore upon the giving of the land, the fee of the lands comprised in the deed, which had been good and executed the deed, and to give away also; because the bare delivery of the deed or any other thing, in the name of fee, is sufficient, though the delivery be made only to discover to all persons in whom the freehold is vested; and this end is as effectually answered by the delivery of the deed, or any thing else in the name of a fee, as of a turft or a fheef, the one being equally free and visible as the other. 9 Co. 237. 138 a. 12 M. 674. 4a. 675. 4a. 125 4a. 57 4a.

A. being seized of land in fee Borrowed of B. and for repayment agrees to assent the land; and therefore upon the giving of the land, the fee of the lands comprised in the deed, which had been good and executed the deed, and to give away also; because the bare delivery of the deed or any other thing, in the name of fee, is sufficient, though the delivery be made only to discover to all persons in whom the freehold is vested; and this end is as effectually answered by the delivery of the deed, or any thing else in the name of a fee, as of a turft or a fheef, the one being equally free and visible as the other. 9 Co. 237. 138 a. 12 M. 674. 4a. 675. 4a. 125 4a. 57 4a.

A. being seized of land in fee Borrowed of B. and for repayment agrees to assent the land; and therefore upon the giving of the land, the fee of the lands comprised in the deed, which had been good and executed the deed, and to give away also; because the bare delivery of the deed or any other thing, in the name of fee, is sufficient, though the delivery be made only to discover to all persons in whom the freehold is vested; and this end is as effectually answered by the delivery of the deed, or any thing else in the name of a fee, as of a turft or a fheef, the one being equally free and visible as the other. 9 Co. 237. 138 a. 12 M. 674. 4a. 675. 4a. 125 4a. 57 4a.

A. being seized of land in fee Borrowed of B. and for repayment agrees to assent the land; and therefore upon the giving of the land, the fee of the lands comprised in the deed, which had been good and executed the deed, and to give away also; because the bare delivery of the deed or any other thing, in the name of fee, is sufficient, though the delivery be made only to discover to all persons in whom the freehold is vested; and this end is as effectually answered by the delivery of the deed, or any thing else in the name of a fee, as of a turft or a fheef, the one being equally free and visible as the other. 9 Co. 237. 138 a. 12 M. 674. 4a. 675. 4a. 125 4a. 57 4a.

A. being seized of land in fee Borrowed of B. and for repayment agrees to assent the land; and therefore upon the giving of the land, the fee of the lands comprised in the deed, which had been good and executed the deed, and to give away also; because the bare delivery of the deed or any other thing, in the name of fee, is sufficient, though the delivery be made only to discover to all persons in whom the freehold is vested; and this end is as effectually answered by the delivery of the deed, or any thing else in the name of a fee, as of a turft or a fheef, the one being equally free and visible as the other. 9 Co. 237. 138 a. 12 M. 674. 4a. 675. 4a. 125 4a. 57 4a.

A. being seized of land in fee Borrowed of B. and for repayment agrees to assent the land; and therefore upon the giving of the land, the fee of the lands comprised in the deed, which had been good and executed the deed, and to give away also; because the bare delivery of the deed or any other thing, in the name of fee, is sufficient, though the delivery be made only to discover to all persons in whom the freehold is vested; and this end is as effectually answered by the delivery of the deed, or any thing else in the name of a fee, as of a turft or a fheef, the one being equally free and visible as the other. 9 Co. 237. 138 a. 12 M. 674. 4a. 675. 4a. 125 4a. 57 4a.

A. being seized of land in fee Borrowed of B. and for repayment agrees to assent the land; and therefore upon the giving of the land, the fee of the lands comprised in the deed, which had been good and executed the deed, and to give away also; because the bare delivery of the deed or any other thing, in the name of fee, is sufficient, though the delivery be made only to discover to all persons in whom the freehold is vested; and this end is as effectually answered by the delivery of the deed, or any thing else in the name of a fee, as of a turft or a fheef, the one being equally free and visible as the other. 9 Co. 237. 138 a. 12 M. 674. 4a. 675. 4a. 125 4a. 57 4a.

A. being seized of land in fee Borrowed of B. and for repayment agrees to assent the land; and therefore upon the giving of the land, the fee of the lands comprised in the deed, which had been good and executed the deed, and to give away also; because the bare delivery of the deed or any other thing, in the name of fee, is sufficient, though the delivery be made only to discover to all persons in whom the freehold is vested; and this end is as effectually answered by the delivery of the deed, or any thing else in the name of a fee, as of a turft or a fheef, the one being equally free and visible as the other. 9 Co. 237. 138 a. 12 M. 674. 4a. 675. 4a. 125 4a. 57 4a.

A. being seized of land in fee Borrowed of B. and for repayment agrees to assent the land; and therefore upon the giving of the land, the fee of the lands comprised in the deed, which had been good and executed the deed, and to give away also; because the bare delivery of the deed or any other thing, in the name of fee, is sufficient, though the delivery be made only to discover to all persons in whom the freehold is vested; and this end is as effectually answered by the delivery of the deed, or any thing else in the name of a fee, as of a turft or a fheef, the one being equally free and visible as the other. 9 Co. 237. 138 a. 12 M. 674. 4a. 675. 4a. 125 4a. 57 4a.
But where a man makes a lease to commence from Michaelmas, and after Michaelmas makes a livery and seisin, this is sufficient to pass the freehold, because in this case, at the time of the livery made, the poission and freehold were actually transferred to the lessee, and did not remain in the lessor, after the notoriety made, which gives notice of transferring the freehold. Hob. 314. Cro. Jac. 563. Greenwood v. Tyler. Cro. Jac. 458. 3 Bald. 290. Smith and Bole.

Yet if the notority had made a letter of attorney to give livery, the attorney could not give livery after Michaelmas, because the livery and seisin did not pass to the lessee, and the lessor, in this case, having not pursued his authority, by not giving livery to let the freehold commence, according to the deed, what he did afterwards was without any authority, and consequently void; but in this case, if the deed had not been delivered till after the day of the date, and the attorney had given livery at the time of the delivery of the deed, this had been a good livery, because the deed of seisin was to govern the livery, but the deed itself had no effect till the delivery; and therefore the attorney making the livery at the time the deed of seisin began to operate, which was to govern it, failed to have it well enough executed. Juxta. 13 c. 153. Hovenden and Ped. 876. Cro. Eliz. 873.

If a man makes a feoffment to commence after his own death, or makes a feoffment in this manner, being upon the land; I do here, referring an effeet for my own use, that which you have given me, to you, and your heirs; there are void feoffments, because the poission is not delivered at the time of the notoriety made; and therefore if such feoffments were allowed, the sehoff would be so far from being an evidence, to discover in whom the freehold is lodged, that it would often mislead the juries in such inquiries; besides, it were absurd to suffer a man to refine a particular effeet to himself, and the heir of the same to be allowed to claim a fee after the livery of any livery of freehold, because no man would be safe in his purchase, if the operation of livery might create an estatte, to commence many years after the livery was made; and though they have allowed a future interest, to commence by way of livery, yet that had no such ill effect in making purchases under this law, because they were under the power of the freeholder, who by recovery might destroy them; and now, unless such leases were made upon good considerations, they are fraudulent against a purchaser; and 'tis not to be presumed, that leases at great distances should be valued for value. Cro. Eliz. 451. 2 Vent. 204. Co. Lit. 217. 5 Co. 94. b.

Hence, by the way, we may account why a freehold in reversion or remainder can't be granted in future, though there no livery is necessary to pass it; s where A is tenant for life, remainder to B. in fee; A makes a lease for years to C; D, bakes from A. next ensuing, for life; this grant to D was adjudged void, though C. attorned to it after Michaelmas, because such future grants create an uncertainty of the freehold, and the tenant of the freehold being the person who is answerable for the grantees praecept, and to do good for the same, it was unreasonable to permit him, by any act of his own, to prevent or delay the prosecution of their right. Cro. Eliz. 451. 2 Vent. 204. Co. Lit. 217. 5 Co. 94. b. 2 Co. 55. Buckler's cafe. 2 Aud. 20. Mor. 473. Cro. Eliz. 456. 585. Hob. 170. 171. 5 Co. 94. b.

But if a lease be by any act of the lessee, to be void, and so on.

If a lease for years be made to A, the remainder to the right heirs of B, and livery and seisin is made to A, yet the freehold does not pass from the lesse; and therefore the livery is void, because there was no poission in being at the time of the livery made, in whom the freehold could vest, for there is nothing in the lease to show that the deed was not a general in perpetuity, which would create an uncertainty of the freehold, because it would create an uncertainty of the freehold, which would necessarily perplex and delay all prosecutions against the freehold. Co. Lit. 217. a.

If a lease for years be made to A, the remainder to the right heirs of B, and livery and seisin is made to A, yet the freehold does not pass from the lesse; and therefore the livery is void, because there was no poission in being at the time of the livery made, in whom the freehold could vest, for there is nothing in the lease to show that the deed was not a general in perpetuity, which would create an uncertainty of the freehold, because it would create an uncertainty of the freehold, which would necessarily perplex and delay all prosecutions against the freehold. Co. Lit. 217. a.

If a lease for years be made to A, the remainder to the right heirs of B, and livery and seisin is made to A, yet the freehold does not pass from the lesse; and therefore the livery is void, because there was no poission in being at the time of the livery made, in whom the freehold could vest, for there is nothing in the lease to show that the deed was not a general in perpetuity, which would create an uncertainty of the freehold, because it would create an uncertainty of the freehold, which would necessarily perplex and delay all prosecutions against the freehold. Co. Lit. 217. a.
so that no man can pretend ignorance against whom to bring his præcis, which would be the mischief in the former cafe, if the freehold did not pass at the time of the livery made. Lit. lect. 350. Co. Lit. 217.

If a lease for years be made to A. and B. the remainder to C. in fee, and by a residuary devise to D. the whole poffeffion being by entry, or receive the poffeffion from the leffe by the fo-lennity of the livery; and therefore when the whole poffeffion is delivered by the leffe, and livery made to A. in the abfence of B. in the name of both, this livery is foient to the remainder in C. because A. had as much poer to receive the poffeffion of the whole, as if the leffe for years had been made to him only, he and B. being jointees by the demise, and thereby failed per my & per tuit. Co. Lit. 49. 5 Co. 94. 2 Rol. Abr. 8.

A lease for life for life had been made to C. to commence immediately, and C. had appointed A. and B. his attornies to take livery from the leffe; the livery made to one of them alone had been ineffectual and void, becaufe one only, without the other, had no authority from the delegation to receive the poffeffion, and consequently the poer of the privy fafety from the principal, is a nullity, and void; but otherwise it is, if the letter of attorney had been jointly and severally to receive livery. Co. Lit. 49. b. 5 Co. 94 b. Palm. 23.

A. is fee'd of livery when the leffe is out of poffeffion, it is regularly true, that the leffeor muft be actually in the poffeffion of the land, at the time of the livery made, or otherwise the livery will be ineffectual and void: becaufe the defign of the livery is to give notice of the change made of the poffeffion, and therefore it is not to be fuppoft, that the privy fafety from the poffeffion of the leffeor had abated, that a man fhould be permitted to transfer to another what he has not in himfelf: wherefore if a man makes a leffe for years, or life, of his land, or has his land extended by virtue of a fervice merchant, &c. and make a feoffment and livery, the confafue or leffe being in poffeffion of the land, the livery is void, becaufe the land is filled by the leffe; and consequently, during the continance of his intereft, the leffeor can't deliver a vacant poffeffion; and therefore the livery, which is a fo-lennity intended to give notice of the change of the poffeffion, muft be void. Co. Lit. 48. b. 2 Rol. Abr. 34. 4 Rol. Abr. 34. Dyer 18. b.

Thus if there be leffe for years of a house and fervice clofes, and the leffe and all his fervice being in the house, the leffe enters into one of the clofes, and makes a fervice of it, and gives livery, this is a void feoffment; becaufe the poffeffion of part of the thing demifed is the poffeffion of the whole, for the impoffibility, that a man fhould be in the actual poffeffion of every part of the land at the fame time; and consequently the leffeor can't take poffeffion of the clofe, which was filled by his leffe; and therefore the livery must be void, becaufe the feoffor had no poffeffion in the clofe when the livery was made. 2 Co. 31. b. Barlow's cafe. Mail. 397. 2 Rol. Abr. 4. Co. Lit. 48. Dyer 18. b.

So it is if the leffe for years himfelf had not been in the house, or any part of the land, yet if his wife, children or fervice had been on any part of the land, that part of the poffeffion was filled by the leffeor; and upon the land, without either wife or fervice on the land, does not fill the poffeffion as to prevent the leffe from entering and making a good livery to pafs the freehold, becaufe the calf can't be laid to continue upon the land unless poffeffion, for the benefit of their mafi, as a fervice man, and by duty ought to do. Co. Lit. 48. Dyer 18. b. 2 Rol. Abr. 4. Dyer 18. Br. tit. Feoffment 66, but Mar. 11. cont.

If a man makes a leffe for life of lands, and afterwards makes a feoffment of the fame lands, and makes livery and leffe upon the land, by the affent of the leffe, and in his prefence, this is a good livery to pafs the inheritance, becaufe the leffeor's permitting the feeoffor to come upon the land, and make livery, is a fufficient quitting of the poffeffion to him, either by way of fur-render, or to create an annuity to him at the same time, to make the feeoffment and livery more effe£tual and valid. 2 Rol. Abr. 5. Shepherd and Greg. Bre. tit. Sur-rend. 48.

But if the fervant of the leffe were only on the land, the livery of the leffe from the fervice, though with the fervant's permiffion, had been void, when the servorum continued in poffeffion at the time of the livery made; for while the fervant continued in poffeffion, it muft be only for the life and benefit of him that placed him there; and consequently the poffeffion of the fervant muft be looked upon as the poffeffion of the mafi; and therefore the livery muft be void, becaufe it could not deliver a poffeffion which was still filled by the mafi, and which the mafi never confented to part with; and the permiffion of the fervant will not admit of fuch a conftruotion as was made in the precedent cafe, becaufe the fervant having no intereft in the lands fettled as a reward in the effe£t of the leffe, and finding nobody in the house but the fervant of the leffe, who quitted the poffeffion of the house at the defire of the attorney, and then the attorney made livery, which the mafi approved of at his return, faving his term, that this was a good livery; becaufe here the fervant actually quitted the house, and thereby the attorney had a vacant poffeffion to deliver to the feeoffor; fo if the attorney found the leffeor himfelf upon the land, and had entred and oufled him, and then made livery, that had been good to pafs the freehold; for though the lands had been held by the leffeor, this feeoffment became thereby vacant, and consequently by the livery might be delivered to the feeoffor. Dyer 303. a. 2 Rol. Abr. 5. Mar. 91.

A. fee'd of land in fee, hold of the Queen in fcoage, died, and it was found by office, that he did without heir, by which the lands were fee'd as the efcheat of the Queen, and B. the heir of A. traversed the office, upon which issue was joined, and pending the issue, B. made a deed of feeoffment, with a letter of attorney; and afterwards the issue being for B. judgment was given that the lands left the R. feint amours, and then the attorney made livery, after the manner of one of his ancestors; this was held a good feeoffment and livery; becaufe, by the judgment against the Queen, her poffeffion was defeated, and B. was restored to his right of poffeffion, which he might have placed himfelf in at his pleasure; and therefore the transfer that to another which he might actually inveff himfelf in at pleasure. 2 Rol. Abr. 5. 6. Terry v. Brown.

Thus if land defends to J. S. who enters but into part of it, and makes a feoffment of the whole, and livery in that part, in which he entered in the name of the whole, and the lands faild pass for benefits that in this cafe, an entry into part may be conftruited into an entry into the whole, the feeoffor having a power to take the whole into his actual poffeffion at his will, the very act of feeoffment, with the livery, in all these cafes, may reafonably be taken to be a determination of his will to take the whole. This cafe is argu'd improperly. 2 Rol. Abr. 5.

If there be A. leffe for years of fix acres, and he makes a leffe for years of three acres to J. S. and he in reversion enters upon J. S. and makes a feoffment with livery, this shall pafs the three acres, becaufe by the defiue of A., for years, the poffeffion became feparate and divided, which was united and one under the leffe to A. himfelf; and therefore A.'s continuing in poffeffion of his own three acres could never be in poffeffion of the other three, which he had no right to during the demi to 7 S. but if A. had only made a lease at will to 7 S. of those three acres, the entry and livery of the reversioner had not pulled them, because it would have derogated to the present possession of B. acres, since he may enter into them when he pleases, by the determination of his own will; for no man can be actually upon every parcel of the land, yet the possession of one acre is very reasonably considered to be the possession of the whole. 2 Co. Litt. 31. 495. 1 Dyer 18.

So it is in the case of a tenant at f.FORMANCE; as if tenant in tail makes a feoffment in fee to the use of himself in fee, and afterwards makes a lease for years, and dies, by which the issue is remitted before entry, and consequently the estate of the lessee for years is determined and engrossed into a tenancy at f.FORMANCE, because the fee-simple, out of which it was derived, is vended by the remitter; and the issue enters into part of the land defended, and makes a feoffment of the whole, and gives a livery of that part into which he entered, in the name of the whole; this shall pass all the lands to which the issue was remitted, tho' the tenant at f.FORMANCE was in possession of part, because that possession may be reasonably supposed to be in me, which I may actually place myself in at my pleasure; and therefore the livery in that part, in which the issue had actually entered in the name of the whole, shall pass all the lands. 3 Roll. Abr. 5. 4 Roll. Abr. 17. 5 Will. and Che. 1145.

If A. be feoffor for life of Black Acres, and being likewise feoffor in fee of White Acres, makes a feoffment of both, and gives livery in White Acres, in the name of both, this is a good seoffment of both Acres, because A. had the issue of and possession of both Acres, and therefore might well deliver them over by the seoffment; otherwise if A. had been only seoffed of Black Acres for years, for then it should not pass by the seoffment, because the charter of seoffment passes the interest in the term before the livery made, and a kettell ciate by right shall be supplanted to pass, rather than a greater by wrong; but in the birth of Acres A. had the freehold in both Acres, nothing passing till the livery was made; and therefore the livery must operate to pass the fee in both Acres, feoffment for a man's charter, or else it can pass nothing. 2 Roll. Abr. 6. 9 H. 7. 25. 6.

But if A. had been seoffed of Black, Ace, for years, in another estate, as guardian to an infant, and had made a seoffment of both Acres, and given livery in White Acres, in the name of both, that had passed both Acres to the seoffor; because the term being vested in the infant, the guardian could lawfully transfer it as if he had been in possession of it in his own right; and therefore the livery must be made to the infant, and the seoffor must give him in reversion, or else it will have no effect at all. 2 Roll. Abr. 4.

If a man makes a lease for life to A. and afterwards makes a seoffment and livery to A. of the land in lease, this is a good livery and seoffment; for the land was in lease to A. yet his acceptance of the seoffment and livery amounts to a surrend tor, ut res magis valent, and consequently the seoffor has thereby seoffment to transfer by the livery to the seoffee. 2 Roll. Abr. 495. Dyer 358. Mer. 635.

If husband and wife be seoffor in fee of land in the husband's name, and the husband makes a seoffment of the whole, the wife being upon the land, yet the livery shall pass to the husband, because the husband had the whole possession, either in his own right, or in right of his wife; and therefore could deliver it over by the seoffment, the wife disaffaging to it. 2 Roll. Abr. 203. 4 Perk. 229.

If the Queen be lesee for years, and be in reversion enters upon the land, and makes a seffion in fee, this is void; because the law prescribes the seffion for the Queen, who by constantly attending the b.urlinaes of the publick, is presumed not to have leisure to take care of her lands, and if the Queen had made a lease for years to J. S. and he in reversion had entered and ouzled him, and made a seffion, that had been good; because the Queen had no right to the seffion during the lease to J. S. and the reversioner having gained the seffion by his ouzling to J. S. might consequently deliver it by the seffion. 2 Roll. Abr 5. and see 2 Co. 53.

If a man be seoffed of two acres, and being seffor of one, makes a seffion of both Acres, the entry and livery of the seffor in the acre in possession, in the name of both, yet the seffor which he was seffor does not pass, because he could not deliver that possession to the seoffee, which the seffor had. So it is, if the seffor had made a lease at will, and then the seffor had made a seffion of the acre in his possession, in the name of both, this had not pulled both Acres, because the seffion of one acre was null out of him, and the seffor could not be any determination of the will of the seffor. 2 Roll. Abr. 6. Dyer 18.

But if a man be seoffed of two acres, and makes a lease at will of one, and after enters j. S. of both Acres, this shall pass all the Acres; for the very seffion and livery is a determination of the estate at will, and consequently the seffor has thereby restored the seffion in order to convey it by livery; otherwise of a lease for years, because the possession is in the term during the lease. Dyer 18. 2 Roll. Abr. 5.

If a man be seoffed of two acres, and makes a lease for years of one of them, and after makes a seffion of both Acres, and livery of the acre in his own possession, in the name of both, the livery is void and ineffectual to pass to a seffee in fee, because that being full of the livery, the seffor had not the seffion to transfer by the livery; yet such seffion is a good grant of the seffion of the one landhold and livery of the other. And consequently if every man's act is construed most strongly against himself, and therefore the seffor shall not be admitted to claim any thing in either of the Acres, since the seffion of the one was actually transferred by the livery, and the reversion of the other in lease by the deed of seffion, which, with the possession of the tenant, amounts to a grant. Co. Lit. 49. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 56. Pitho. 162.

But if there be a lease for years, remainder to B. for life, and C. the seffor in fee makes a seffion in fee, with livery to A. this is void as a seffion, because C. had no seffion to transfer by the livery, that being already in A. and the freehold in B. by the former lease; and the acceptance of the livery by A. was neither a surrender, nor an attornment; as in the former case it could not amount to a surrender, because of the intermediate freehold which was in B. nor did the seffion amount to a grant and attornment; for tho' according to the former case, every man's conveyance is confined to what he has conveyance of, the grantor attending the operation of the freehold is a grant, and the grant is ineffectual, for want of attornment; as A.'s acceptance is no attornment, because he shall not bring B. within his fealty, by any act which was not in its original intention designed to be prejudicial and injurious to B. by diluting his remainder. 2 Roll. Abr. 4. 56. 1 Roll. Abr. 223. 2 Roll. Abr. 495. 3 Roll. Abr. 495. 4 Roll. Abr. 495. 5 Roll. Abr. 223. 6 Roll. Abr. 495.

It seems, that anciently the seffion and giving livery was performed before the paros of the manor, where the lands lay; but this being found too much to frighten the transferring the seffion, it was found necessary to admit the testimony of strangers, and this came afterwards to be established for the convenience of it; and because all men of the county assembled at the county court, in order to determine disputes relating to the whole county, as the tenants of the manor did at their court baron; and because there lay an appeal from the court-baron to the county court, so that the paros of the county were thereby ultimately to determine all things relating to the particular manors, it seemed the more reasonable to admit the paros comitatus to attest the seffion as any particular manor, and infenclly the whole county; and from hence it came to be admitted, and by the law continues, that if a man failed of lands, in several villages in one county, and has a seffion of one of those, because of a feoffment of a certain piece of parcel of the lands in one town, in the name of all the lands in that town and in other towns, that all the lands of the so, the lying in that county fail pass, as well as if there had been livery given in each town. Co. Lit. 253. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 11.
equal to that which transferred it from him.

But if an infant makes a feoffment, and a letter of attorney to make livery, that is void; so if a person non compus makes a surrendor or release, this is void in law;

But if an infant makes a feoffment, and a letter of attorney to make livery, that is void; so if a person non compus makes a surrendor or release, this is void in law; so if he makes a letter of attorney to give livery, but it be void on the death of the person of non-compus, or idiot, may avoid his feoffment; and so may the King upon an officer found of his lunacy during his life.

2. 40. 11. 2. Roll. Abr. 2. 8. Co. 42. 43. Whittingham's case.

But if a man having lands in two counties makes a feoffment of both, and gives livery of the land in one county, in the name of all the land in the other county shall not pass, because there was no relation or dependance between one county and another, as there was between the several manors and the county-court; for one county having no power or jurisdiction over the other county, parts of one of which were reasonably presumed to be ignorant of what was transferred in the other; and therefore the in

The infant's feoffment is voidable by the infant's assent, when he has the means of full age, so it is voidable by him by entry during his nonage, but his letter of attorney is merely void; and the same law makes to be of a fence covert; for if he makes a feoffment upon the land, 'tis voidable by her husband; but if he makes a letter of attorney to give livery, 'tis absolutely void in law; and the reason is, because the contrail of those that are disabled by law to contract were void contrails; but their in

As the infant's feoffment is voidable by the infant's assent, when he has the means of full age, so it is voidable by him by entry during his nonage, but his letter of attorney is merely void; and the same law makes to be of a fence covert; for if he makes a feoffment upon the land, 'tis voidable by her husband; but if he makes a letter of attorney to give livery, 'tis absolutely void in law; and the reason is, because the contrails of those that are disabled by law to contract were void contrails; but their in

F E O

For if the letter of attorney be to make livery upon condition, as to make a feoffment conditional, and the attorney delivers in absolute, the livery is not good, because the authority is not to create an absolute fee-simple; and
and therefore such absolute feoffment shall not bind the feoffor, because he gave no such authority; and hence in some books the attorney is called a diffider. 11 H. 4.

But if the letter of attorney had been to make livery absolutely, and the attorney had made it upon condition, this forms a good execution of his power, and the feoff-ment good; because when the attorney had once delivered possession, he fully executed his power; and the condition annexed to it, being without authority, is void, and therefore shall not destroy the operation of the 192.

So if a warrant of attorney be given to make livery to one, and the attorney makes livery to two, or if the attorney had authority to make livery of Black-Acre, and he made livery of Black-Acre and White-Acre, tho' the attorney has in these cases done more, yet there is no reason that should vitiate what he has done pursuant to his power, since what he did beyond it is a perfect nul-licity, and void. Perk. fett. 152.

But if the attorney does purport to deliver seisin to two,
and he had made livery only to one, that had been void;
because he had no authority to deliver the whole possession to one exclusive of the other, and therefore it's void for the whole. Perk. fett. 188.

An attorney can't make a livery within view, because such a livery is in many words, instead of the act of delivery; besides, the power of the attorney is to deliver the possession, but that power is not executed by the liviey in view, because the possession is not in the seisin until actual entry made by him, and consequently the attorney has not executed his authority. Co. Lit. 53. a.
2 Roll. Abr. 8; for,

If a letter of attorney be given to two jointly to take livery, and the seffor makes livery to one in the ab-ence of the other, in the name of both, this is void;
because they being appointed jointly to receive livery are considered as one. 12 Roll. Abr. 8. 49.

But if a seffor be made to A. and B. and the seffor gives a letter of attorney to deliver seisin, and J.
S. gives livery to A. in the absence of B. in the name of both, this is a good livery; though the entire possession be delivered to one only, yet they being joint-tenants by the deed of seffion, such livery to one makes no alteration or change in the possession, because, if the livery had been made to both, each had been placed in the possession; besides that, every man being premised to accept a gift for his advantage, A. is locked upon as the attorney of B. to receive the possession fr him, and therefore the livery to A. confers on the benefit of B. till he discharges it. Co. Lit. 49. 2 Roll.
Abr. 8.

But if a letter of attorney be made to three conjuncti & divisiun, and two only make livery, this is not good, because not pursuant to their authority, for the delegation was to all three, or to each of them separately;
yet if the third was present at the time of the livery made by two, though he did not actually join with them in the act of livery, yet the livery is good; because when they all three are upon the land for that purpose, and two make livery in the presence of the third, there is his consent to the act, though he did not join in it actually, since he did not dissent to it. Dyer 62. 1 Roll.
Abr. 326.

If a letter of attorney be given to A. to make livery to lands already in fealty, the attorney may enter upon:
the seisin in order to make livery; because the letter of attorney, the seffion, the power cannot deliver seisin of it; and therefore to execute the power given him by the letter of attorney, it is necessary he should have a power to enter upon the seisin; but by Rolle, it is the fater way to effect a cluse in the letter of attorney, for the attorney to enter to 'seisin alias inde spe-340. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 9.

If A. be divested of Black Acre and White Acre, and gives a letter of attorney to enter into both, and make livery, if the attorney enters into one acre only, and makes livery, sefundum formam chartae, this is not good, because the attorney has not purveyed his authority; for the efficacy of the diffider can't be defeated without an entry into the whole, and therefore the efficacy of the attorney can't execute his power in the manner it was de-ligated; and therefore what he did in this case was void.
Co. Lit. 52. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 9.

If A. makes a lease for years to B. and after makes a deed of seffion with a letter of attorney to B. to deliver seisin, and B. makes livery accordingly, this shall not extinguish or affect his term, because the livery was made to pass the freehold, and that he did as representative to the seffor; and therefore since the seffor can claim nothing from the seffor, the interest of the seffor remains it was, unaffected by the seffion. Co. Lit.
52.

If lefse for life make a deed of seffion and letter of attorney to his leflee to deliver seisin, if the leflee makes livery accordingly, 'tis a good seffion; but the leflee, notwithstanding he gave livery himself, may enter for the forfeiture of the tenant for life; because the freehold being in the tenant for life, the leflee was only his representative to transfer it; but if the tenant had been only leflee for years, and the leflee had made livery, that had been no forfeiture of the term; because the freehold being in the leflee, he could not be the representative of the tenant. But if the leflee had not; and therefore the freehold, which passed by the livery, must proceed from the leflee himself, and consequently shall bind him.
Co. Lit. 52. Perk. fett. 200.

There are few or none excluded from exercising this power of delivering seisin, for monks, infants, and other covenants, persons attainted, or excommunicated, villains, aliens, &c. may be attorneys for this;
for being only a naked authority, the execution of it can be attended with no manner of prejudice to the persons under those incapacities or disabilities, or to any other person, who by law may claim any interest of fuch disabled persons after their death. Co. Lit. 52.
Perk. fett. 187.

A mere coven may be an attorney to deliver seisin to her husband, and so may he in remainder be an attorney to make livery to the tenant for life. Co. Lit. 53. a.
Perk. fett. 196.

The power of the attorney must be executed during the life of the person that gives it, because the power of attorney is to constitute the attorney my representative for such a purpose, and therefore can continue in force only during the life of me, that am to be represented.
And hence it is, that if J. S. make a letter of attorney to deliver seisin to B. to hold for life, this letter of attorney, he can't deliver seisin during my life, for that were plainly without any authority from me; nor can he do it after my death for the former reason. 2 Roll. Abr. 9. Co.
Lit. 52. Perk. fett. 188.

This authority to give livery may be delegated by deed indented, though the attorney be not party to the deed, because the attorney takes nothing by the deed, but has only a naked authority delegated to him; and therefore since a man may take an estate in remainder, though he is not party to the deed, a forteri one not party to the deed must take all authority or power by it. 2
Roll. Abr. 8. 9. and wide Co. Lit. 52.

But if any corporation aggregare, as a mayor or commonalty, or dean and chapter, make a seffionment and letter of attorney to deliver seisin, this authority does not determine by the death of the mayor or dean;
but the attorney is to execute the power after their death, because the letter of attorney is an authority from the body aggregare, which subsists after the death of the mayor or dean, and therefore may be represented by their attorney; but if the dean or mayor be named by their own private names, and die before livery, or be removed, livery after terms not good. 4 H. 8. 3. 11 "t. 19.
Co. Lit. 52. b. 2 Roll. Abr. 12.

For more learning on this subject, see 12 Vin. Abr, and 2 Bis. Abr. tit. Feoffment.
Form of a deed of feoffment, with a letter of attorney to deliver feinit.

This indenture made, &c., between A. B. of, &c., of the one part, and C. D. of, &c., of the other part, witnesses, That the said A. B. for and in consideration of the sum of $500, to be paid at the rate of $100 per annum, to have and hold the said C. D. to him in hand paid by the said C. D. at and before the failing and delivery of these presents, the receipt whereof be the said A. B. due barely acknowledged, and thereof due acquit and disbarge the said C. D. his heirs and assigns for ever, by these presents, hath granted, bargained, sold, and parted, assigned, transferred, conveyed, and delivered, and by these presents do and shall grant, bargain and sell, alien, assign, release and confirm, unto the said C. D. his heirs and assigns for ever, all that messuage or tenement, &c., now in the possession of, &c., and also the reversion and remainder, reversion and remainder, rents and services thereof, and all the offices, rights, titles, interests, claims and demand whatsoever, of the said A. B., of, in and to the said premises, and of, in and to every part and parcel thereof; To have and to hold the said messuage or tenement, and premises above mentioned, with the appurtenances, unto the said C. D. his heirs and assigns, to the only proper use and behoof of him the said C. D. and his assigns for ever, under the yearly rent of $100. And the said A. B. for himself his heirs and assigns, do covenant and grant to and with the said C. D. his heirs and assigns, that he the said C. D. his heirs and assigns, shall and may from time to time, and at all times hereafter present, use and enjoy the same, and all and every part thereof, and further, be the said A. B. and his heirs, and all and every other person and persons, and his and her heirs, any thing having or claiming in the said premises above-mentioned, or any part thereof, by, from or under him, the said A. B. shall and will at all times hereafter, at the request and costs of the said C. D. his heirs and assigns, make, do and execute, for cause and precure to be made, &c., all and every such further and other lawful and reasonable grants, attains and assurances in the law whatsoever, for the better, better and more perfect granting and conveying, and assigning of the said premises; with all and every the appurtenances, unto the said C. D. his heirs and assigns, to the only proper use and behoof of him the said C. D. and his assigns for ever, according to the true intent and meaning of these presents, as by the said C. D. his heirs or assigns, or his or their counsel learned in the law, shall be reasonably devised or advised and required, and to the general use and benefit of the said premises and appurtenances, and held to him the said C. D. his heirs and assigns for ever, according to the true intent and meaning of these presents; raising, confirming and allowing all and whatsoever, by any act, deed or instrument or the said C. D. his heirs or assigns, or of them severally, shall do in the premises. In witness, &c.

Fecit et Jus Fecit, Fecit, Is he that infects, or makes a feinitment to another of lands or tenements, in fee-simple. And jussi is he that is infected, or to whom the feoffment is made. Cowell, edit. 1777.

Fromm, Mr. Justice Saxby's son, held the oaths of the lord or charter, as customary tenants, rended unto him a certain portion of visulae and thongs Feuering (Feueringus). The fourth part of a penny quadrant. Quaundis quartum feminam venditur pro 12 denariis, tum parce coquendae de ferme 30 denariis, 4 feueringus aquae regis Anglatam, 5 hodie sedam militatur. Es. 12 Ed. 2. n. 18. Ebor. In ancient records is used both Feueringus & Feuringus terre. See Mus. Angl. 2 par. fol. 8. My Lord Coke tells us, that Feuringus terre is the fame as a quadrantine of land, and that it contains thirty-two acres. But a quadrantine is no more than a perch perch, which is but one acre. Cowell, edit. 1727. De Feuering.

Fern, or Farm. (Ferma, from the French ferme, pradum.) Signifieth with us, hoare or land, or both, taken by indenture or lease, or lease parcel. This in the North part is called a Yarde, in Lancashire a Farm-holt, in Essex a Hille. We may conjecture, that both the French and English word came from the Latin firmus; for we find beare ad firmam to signify with others as much as to feet or to farm with us; the reason whereof may be in respect of the fore hold they have been of tenants of the land. In Scotland, Stritnacra, is the same.

In the Terms of the Law it is derived from the Saxon seorinn, which signifieth to feed or yield virtual; for in ancient time the refervations were as well in virtuals as money; how many ways farm is taken, see Psal. 195. Witschey's cafe. See Feron. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Ferniroll. See Wyke.

Feronioun. (from the Saxon firmus, i.e. for'd, or feeding.) The winter faison of deer as tempus pinguissimum is the summer faison. See Dillest Dic. Collet fultonis manerii de Brokeley sathum. Cum mittente di-fermentum valletum nostrum Johannem de Fulham ad inflectam fermentonam in parcijs nofriis idem, prout vulneret sibi melius ad opus nostrum feritatis factum, copilredit. Vide manuolum. &c. Cl. 30 Ed. 1. n. 10. Cowell, edit. 1727. &c. Tempus pinguissimum.

Ferramentum. (Ferramenta.) The iron tools or instruments of a mill. Reparare ferramenta ad tres carna- tis, that is, the iron work of three ploughs. Lib. operis Ferrure, The shoeing of hores. See Wounde of toure.

Ferry, Is a liberty by prescription, or the King's grant, to have a boat or paffage upon a river, for car- riage of horses and men for reasonable toll: it is usuably to cross a river. Terms of the Law. A ferry is no more than a common highway; and no action will lie for one's being disturbed in his paffage, unlefs he allege some particular damage, &c. 3 Hid. 394.

A ferry is in respect of the landing-place, and not of the water, the boat may be one, and the ferry to the another; as 'tis of ferries on the Thames, where the ferry in some places belongs to the archbishop of Canterbury, where the mayor of London has the interest of the water; and in every ferry, the land on both sides the water, ought to belong to the owner of the ferry, or otherwise he cannot land on the other part. 13 April 23 Eliza. in Sac. Savil. 11. Inhabitants of Ishwich v. Brem. And every ferry ought to have expert and able ferrymen, and to have perfect paffage, and reasonable payment for the paffage. And it is requisite to have one, who has property in the ferry, and not to allow every fisherman to carry, and recarry at their pleasure, for divers inconvenience, and especially when there are differences of two counties, any felony may be conveyed from one county to another, secretly, without any notice. Sav. 14.

A ferryman, if it be on fall water, ought to be privi- leged from being prest as a fisherman, or otherwixise. Savil 11. &c.

Owner of a ferry cannot apprize that, and put up a bridge in its place without license, and ad quod damnum; per Holt Ch. J. Pach. 3 Hil. & Mor. Show 214, 257. Pain v. Purtridge. Cart. 193. 8. G. 1 Salk. 12. G.

If a ferry be granted at this day, he that accepts such grant, but tolls less for a boat, is to be sued, per Holt Ch. J. Show. 257. in the cause of Pain v. Pur- ridge.

Custom for the inhabitants to be discharged of toll, may have a reasonable beginning by agreement, as that the inhabitants of the town might be at the charge of procuring the grant, and in consideration thereof, one man to find the boat, and take toll; and the inhabitants to pay none; per Holt Ch. J. Show. 257. at fop.

A common ferry was for all passengers paying toll, but the inhabitants of A. were toll-free. An inhabitant of A. may make such action for take toll, but not for keeping up the ferry; because the former is a private right, but the latter a public right. Salk. 12. Trin. 3 H. 4. Pain v. Purtridge. But he can't maintain an action for not polluting; for so, another subject might bring an action, which would be endless; but the taking toll was a frequent, and without special damage he can only indeed, or bring information. ibid.

Ferrier, A fare or fore-fact; the customary pay- ment for a paffage over a river, or crossing a ferry in a ferry-boat with carrying-men, or men, or passengers.

Ferreken. To fax suddenly. Nemo paleti de fede domini ju quae paciter non esse, nec ego delet recidere ejus ter- freken. (i.e. to fax suddenly, ferreken, (i.e. to give a hasty account,) de omnibus causis vel rem publicis vel inamnicientibus impeditosc aliquid, ut prius delet habere terminium requirendo et habendi de minis fum. Leg. H. I. c. 61.

Fefktingmen, Ut illot monstrofrium fit liberrimum ab illis incommodiis, quae nos Saueores lingue fefktingmen dicimus. Mon. Angil. 114 par. fol. 252. a.

The Saxon syftemum signifieth fidujus, a pledge, so that to be free of fefktingmen, is to be free of all subdebt, and not to be bound for any man's forthcoming, who should transfer the law. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Fefkting-penny, Earnest given to servants when hired or retained, is so called in some northern parts of England, and in others it is termed order-penny, after the Saxon syftemus, to fallen or conform. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Feflum, Properly signifieth a feft, but it is usually taken for a general court, which was formerly kept on the great festivities in the year. Thus we read in our historians, that in such a year the King kept his Christmas at Winchester, &c. 50, and in every year, he kept on a day or two after Christmas, in the said time, viz. Rex apud Winton maximum feflum & centum- simae celebravit, tempore natalis Domini, commacius ibidem principis & baronibus suis regni. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Feflum & Michaelis, It is that day in which the Christians fought against the Infidels, and obtained a victory by the help of St. Michael, now called St. Michael's day. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Feflum Nuttlatificus E. Parici. Was thus instituted, viz. A melancholy man, who led an holy life, did every year hear the melodious harmony of angels in heaven: At which being wonderfully surpriz'd, and being one day very earnest in prayer, an angel told him that on the day of the Nativity or Christmas, as it was born, he was born there am on the day of her birth was not known on earth, therefore it was celebrated by the angels: this being told to the church, that that day was afterwards set apart to commemorate her birth. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Hun. Anglifd. lib. 3, cap. 16.

Ficush Antiquum, The feat of fools. See Caput and.

Feudal baronies. Feudal baronies were, when the King, in the creation of baronies, gave Any one of them for the defence of the realm. Per Holt C. J. There is no feudal barony remaining at this time, except Feudal barons, where a tenant held a certain territory of land, per baroniam, wherein there was a cafe, whereby all the inhabitants of it were his tenants; and those who held the Capita baronii; and there was no slower of them, because they were for defence. No such have been granted since Richard II.'s time. Mich. 7 W. 3. B. R.

12 Mol. 54. Lord Gerard's cafe.

Feudary, See Fredary.

Feudatory is a recompence for engaging in a feud or faction, and the contingent damages: it having been the custom of ancient times, for all the kindred to engage in the kinship's quarrel; according to that of Tacitus,

De moribus Germanorum, foulfere tam inimicitias fei pu fn, fei procipii, quam amicitias mutuo elt. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Feuds, (Feda.) Estates in lands were originally at will, and then they were called Muncas; afterwards for life, and then they were termed Beneficia, and for that reason the livings of clergymen are to called at this day; and afterwards they were called Feods, and in our law fee-simple. Rel. Spel. 9. When Hugh Capet usurped the kingdom of France, about the year 947, to support himself in such usurpation, he granted to the nobility and gentry, that whereas till then they enjoyed their honours for life, or at will only, they should from thenceforward hold them to themselves in their own, and be exalted above the rest of the kingdom; for till then reigns fees or fees were not hereditary, but only for life, or for some determinate time.

3 Salt. 165.

Feuggerium, and Fuggerium, Fern, (from the Fr. fuggerie, i. e. fern.) Et de omnino afflictionem brutvrt, queritur, turbatur, jucule, & fugierit ad domum suas co-Fugger, See Fuel.

Flint is a short order or warrant of some judge for making out and allowing certain processes, &c. if a certiorari be taken out in vacation, and ifed of the precedent term, the flat for it must be fined by a judge of the court, some time before the eftion-day of the subfe-quent term, or else it will be irrelle: But if it is said there is no need for any judge to find the writ of certiorarri itself; but only where it is required by flatute.

1 Salt. 150. 2 Hawk. 289.

Flat jufitia. On a petition to the King, for his warrant to being a wri of error in parliament, he writes on the top of the petition Flat jufititia, and that the writ of error is made out, &c. and when the King is petitioned to redress a wrong, he indorses upon the petition, Let right be done to the party. Stannf. Pravng.

Reg. 21.

Flkale, Fifdale, and Fildhale. Bract. lib. 3, f. 117. A composition or entertainment made for gain by batten, to those of their hundreds, or rather according to Ca.

4 Lrt. fol. 307. an extortion, color composition. See Estate.

Folatia of law, (Fictia juris,) Is allowed of in several cases: it must be framed according to the rules of law, not what is imagined in the conceptions of man; and there ought to be equity and possibility in every legal fiction. There are many of these fictions in the Civil law; and by some Civilians, it is said to be an assumption of law upon an untruth, in something possible to be done, but not done. See Gilbolph and Dariel. The fiction of the confuee in a fine, is but a fiction in our law; it being an invented form of conveyance only. 1 Litt. Abr. 610. And a common recovery is fictio juris, a formal act or device by course, where a man is deffive to cut off an the wrong, and redresses, &c. 11 Rep. 42. By fiction of law, a bond made beyond its time may be pleded to be made in the place where abroad, in fictitious in the county of Middlesex, &c. to try the time here, without which it cannot be done. 1 Litt. 281. A.

There are five forms of fictions in law, abatement, remit-tions, relations, presumption, and representation; per Dodderidge J. 7s. 73.

Fiction is never admitted where truth may work; as when eft Rogers ufe, and his teoffee join in a feuement, it shall be the feument of the teoffee.

Hil. 15 Jan.

Hil. 8 Feb. 1731. In the case of W. v. Gerard.

The law never shall make any fiction but for necefiety; and to avoid a miichief; per

Hil. 73. 5. C. and to avoid abufibility, and preferve the right of a stranger; per Dodderidge J. Pojib. 1 Car. in Cam, Sec. The law often makes fiction for prevention of rights; per Goth. J. 12 Med. 290.

In fictio juris sinister adficit apud

1 Rep. 51.

Lifford's cafe. — It must do prejudice to none; per Fictions of law must not be of a thing impoffible, for the law militates nature; per Dodderidge J. 2. Roll. R. 502. in the case of Radcliffe v. Sheffield.

It shall not make a man subject to the penalty of a feuement, a fiction of law. Arg. Goth. 588. cites 1 Rep. 51.

No escape can amount to a capital offence, unless the crime, for which the party was committed, were actually fait with at the time of the escape; for it is not sufficient that it become such afterwards, from the beginning by a fiction of law; as where a man is committed for having given a dangerous wound, and escape, after which the party died. 2 Hawk. Pl. C. 135. f. 25.

All fictions of law are to certain refpects and purposes, and extend only to certain perufals; as the law suppoftes the vouchee to be tenant of the land, where in real vertute he is not; but this is as to the dammand himself, and to enable him to do things as to the demandant, and which the dammand may do to him; and therefore a fine levied by vouchee to the demandant, or fine or refide from the demandant to the vouchee is good; but the fine levied by the demandant to be ftranger, or half made to him by a stranger, is void; per Cale. Mich. 33. 48. Eliz. B. R. 3 Rep. 29. b. in Butler and Baker's cafe.

The King is not to be answered, bound, nor defeated by fictions; and therefore he would have been bound in his servitude, or remandery by a feigned recompence upon a common recovery, or warranty collateral, without true and actual aff'ets; &c. Hdb. 339. in the case of Sheffield and Radcliffe, cites 6 Ed. 5. 56. and 1 Rep. 43. Aitem-wood's cafe.

These things are properly fictions of law, that have no real effec on their own body, but are acknowledged and accepted in and for some special purposes. Hdb. 222. cites Ca. Lit. 265. b.

flet, Which we call for, is in other countries the contraries to chattels. In Germany certain diribits are called flet.

ficti factae, Is a writ judicial, that lies at all times within the year and day, for him who hath recovered in an action of debt or damages, to the sheriff, to command him to levy the debt or the damages of the goods against whom the recovery was had. This writ had

If the defendant dies after the execution awarded, and before it be served, yet it may be served upon his goods in the hands of the executor or administrator; for by the execution awarded the goods are bound, and the sheriff need not take notice of his death.

Cra. Efis. 181. 1 Med. 188. S. P.

That this was clearly so before the 29 Car. 2, before which statute the goods were bound from the time of the writ; but by this statute they are bound from the time of delivery of the writ to the sheriff; but even since the statute, the execution seems good in this case, for the statute was made for the benefit of strangers, who might have a title to the goods between the time of the writ of execution and time of delivery to the sheriff, and not for the benefit of the party, or his executors or administrators. See Cumb. 33. 2 Vent. 218. 1 Salt. 322.

So if the plaintiff dies, the execution does not abate, and the sheriff may, notwithstanding, proceed in it, because the sheriff having made the execution in the plaintiff's name, for the writ commands him to levy and bring the money into court, which the plaintiff's death does no way hinder; besides, an execution is an entire thing, and cannot be superseded after it is begun. 1 Salt. 322. per cur.

In trespasses the sheriff justified, that by virtue of a fieri facias out of the Exchequer for the Queen's debt, he took the plaintiff's beard, being levant and couchant upon the land of the debtor, and sold them for the Queen's debt; and adjudged that it was lawful, for they were not to be sold as the goods of the debtor, but they might have been disinfamed for the Queen's debt.

If a fieri facias is awarded to the sheriff, upon which he takes an intire chattel, and sells it for 40l. and returns the fieri facias, with the 20l. into court, he may detain the upruellage till the defendant comes to demand it of him; for he is not bound to search for the defendant;

Per Pimpan, and agreed.

But if a fieri facias is awarded for 40l. by force of which the sheriff takes five oxen, every one of the value of 5l. and tells them all, it is clear that the defendant shall have action of trespass against the sheriff;

per Gaway, which was agreed. No. 59. in case of Hedge v. Cole.

On a fieri facias, the sheriff may not break the outer door of the house, and enter; but if that open he may enter, and then may and ought to break the door of an entry or chamber which is locked, and break open any chest, and take the goods in it in execution, and if he does not, an action of false lis lies against him.

Brend. 59.

Trin. 44 Efis. Annu.

This writ, though mentioned in the statute W. 2. 18, is a writ of execution at Common law, and is called a fieri facias, because the words of the writ directed to the sheriff are:

Quod fieri facias de bona et tali cas, &c. taken from the words the writ takes its denomination.

Ct. Lit. 290. b.

The property till sale remains in defendant.

Brend. 41.

Trin. 6 Fac. Annu.

The property of goods is vested by the delivery of the fieri facias, and in an extent afterwards for the time comes too late, and that on the statute of frauds and perjuries;

The King grants an annuity for 40 years to B. to be received by the hands of the receiver of the court of wards. This is a rent-charge, and may be sold by the sheriff upon a fieri facias of the goods of B. It is otherwise of an annuity for years granted by a common perfon.

Rev'd in the court of wards by the two Julians.

Ch. B. M. 312. 52. 73. 3 Rec. Mary York's Cafe.

Debt against the sheriff lies for money levied on a fieri facias, before the return of the writ, shall he may take advantage of his own delinquency; 2 S. & M. 79. per cur.

Trin. 31 Car. 2. B. R. J. & Gavram v. Ridley.

Payment to the sheriff on a fieri facias, is a good plea, but not to the garnishee. 2 Lec. 265. Trin. 29 Car. 2. B. R. Taylor v. Beaton.

If the sheriff on a fieri facias, do sell a lease or term of a house, so that the buyer must not put the possessio into the period of the lease, and the vendee in, but the vendee must bring his ejectment; per cur. 2 Show. 85, per cur.

Hill. 32 Car. 2. B. R. The King v. Deon and Bird, &c. C. A.

When the officers are once in a house on a fieri facias, they may break open any chamber doors or trunks for doing their execution.

Agreed per cur.

2 Show. 87, per cur. Hill. 32 Car. 2. B. R. The King v. Bird, &c.

Goods of the wife vested in trusses on the marriage, but the husband to have the use of them for life, were fined on an execution for the debt of the husband, and the assign ment adjudged fraudulent as to the creditors at law, and on a con vote, 56 Eliz. 212.

Al. 1601. Underv. v. Underwood.

Upon a fieri facias, the sheriff may take any thing but wearing clothes; if the party has two gowns he may have one of them. Per Hill Ch. J. Cumb. 359. Eliz. 8 W. 3. 4. R.

Sai. 283. v. Eve, &c.

Two of the facias's were delivered the same day,

Holt Ch. J. inclined that the sheriff had election to prefer either, but ordered it to be made a case.

See quere now the late statute.

Cumb. 428. Trin. 9 W. 3. B. R.

Shaddon v. Sheriff of London. S. C. Cumb. 422. but no references to S. P. Execution upon a fieri facias is left in, first is good, but the sheriff in the first may have action against the sheriff, unless he bid the sheriff fly execution, or to that purpose.

1 Salt. 320. Shaddon v.

Buckingham. In Salt. is a N. B. that he who brought the first writ told the sheriff that he was not in hale, and so took out warrant, nor left any fees; and this inclined the opinion of the court more strongly against him.

Cumb. 419. S. C.

And after several debates the judges were of opinion for the plaintiff who had taken out his execution laft, to which they rather inclined, for that it appeared that the other creditor did not demand an execution of his writ. And by Holt Ch. J. the ven appeal of the goods in such case has good title to them, which cannot be defeated by a subsequent execution of that writ which was first delivered; but the party concerned in such writ is put to his action against the sheriff, for otherwise it would be dangerous to make such purchases of sheriffs, and that might make writs of execution of no effect.

5 Med. 376. S. C.

Ch. J. took notice that the party laid to the sheriff, " You may let it lie, it requires no haste," and therefore defires no warrant, nor leaves any fee, and to the face upon the second fieri facias, good, and not to be avoided. And though the second fieri facias, which had been delivered a fortnight after, yet if it be the first has action in the sheriff, shall be good, and the party's remedy is only against the sheriff. 12 Med. 146. S. C. held accordingly.

Lord Sum. Rep. 251. S. C. refolved,

See Cumbria, Stute lying.

Fictitiously, Dicta quinque, is a tribute or imposition of money laid upon a city, borough, or other town, through the realm; not by the plea, or upon this or that man, but in general upon the whole city or town, and so called, because it amounted to a fifteenth part of that which the city or town hath been valued at of old; or to a fifteenth part of every man's goods and lands; and left by a reasonable value. This is now imposed by parliament, and every town through the realm knoweth what a fifteenth for themselves doth amount to; because it is perpetually the same.

Whereas the subsidy, though given of every particular man's lands or goods, must needs be uncertain, because the

efface
effecte of several men is a rare uncertainty. And in that regard, a fifteenth seems to be a recentia annually laid upon every town, according to the land or court belonging to it: Whereunto Colonel in his Book, makes frequent men use, particularly pag. 188. of Wells in Sommersetshire, thus, Quae tempore, et teret quam felicitatis, &c. &c. And these rents were taken out of Domley-lake in the Exchequer. So that in old time this seemed to be a yearly tribute in certainty; whereas now, though the rate be certain, yet it is not levied but by parliament. Coxeil, edid. 1727. See Civ. & Crim.

Figuring and Quitturi. Is prohibited by statute, in a church or churchyard, ejus. on pain of commnunication, and other corporal punishment. Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 4. See Crime there.

Figures. In an attempt in an inferior court, the time of the procesce alleged was in figures, and upon error brought, judgment was reversed for this cause. Sid. 40. Pafi. 15. Bar. R. Ducket v. Bland. Ebd. 19. S. C. by the name of Bajley v. Bland. It was moved to quash an indictment, because the year of the Lord was omitted in figures. But on Pali. Ch. 1, the year in which the King is enough, Med. 78. fl. 40. Mcbl. 22 Car. 2. Ann.

In debt for rent, the sum demanded was in figures, and not in words; upon a writ of error brought, the court held it was a material exception, and reversed the judgment unless the court, Ejus. Hill. 23 Car. 31. St. 88. Hier. v. Hypaed.

Roman figures are good in pleading, but otherwise of English figures. 2 Liv. 102. Pafi. 26 Car. 2. Bar. Hawkins v. Mills.—If an indictment sets forth the file of the day or year, in any figures but Roman, it is indefinable. In inden. Ejus. pro spero & labore, it was excepted, because the sum was in figures; sed non allocutus, for they were (XII) Latin figures, which is well enough; otherwise, if they had been (12) English figures; and it would have been otherwise, if they were in figures in an inferior court; and therefore it was adjudged for the plaintiff. This was in a writ of inquiry, Skin. 409. Hill. 35 W. 4 & M. B. R. Hibbert v. Crowther.

Stat. 6 Geo. 2. 14. Allows the expressing numbers by figures in all writs, Ejus. pleadings, rules, orders and indentures, and as often as the same shall be commonly used in the said courts, notwithstanding any thing in the flat. 4 Geo. 2. 26. See *Falsa Latit. Filater or Filiett, (Filiarizius, from the Latin filiam, a thread) is an officer in the Common Pleas (so called) because he files those writs under which he makes process. There are fourteen of them in their several dispositions and counties; they make out all writs and processes upon original writs, as well in real as in personal, and mixt actions; and in actions merely personal, where the defendants are returned or summoned, there goeth out the difference infinite until appearance; if he be in error, the plaintiff files, if the plaintiff will; or after the third capias, the plaintiff may go to the exequor of the thing, where his original is grounded, and have an exequor or proclamation made. Alto the filater maketh all sorts of writs in view, in causas where the view is pray'd; and upon all replications or confirmations upon the plaintiff return, the defendant, and witherum. They enter all appearances and special bills upon any process made by them. They make the fift five focias upon special bills; vires de bakes corpus, differi no prses, volubilius and dusci teum, and judicanda upon special bill, or otherwise; vires de bakes corpus upon the plaintiff's return, the defendant is detained with other actions; *vires de adjournment of a term, in case of petition, war, or publick disturbance, and (until an order of that court made 14 Jac. which limited the filaters to all matters Vol. 11. No. 74. and proceedings before appearance, and the proprosixiers to all after) did enter declarations, impertinences, judgments and pleas, whereas a defendant's hand was not requisite; and made out writs of execution, and divers other judicial writs after appearance. And in the King's Bench of later times, there have been filaters who make procures upon original writs returnable in that court, upon an order thereupon. The filaters of the Common Pleas have been officers of that court before the statute of 10 H. 6.

Filiatum. The file or thread upon which writs or other papers are filed up together, to preserve them—filum breve filum in filacia Marischals. Will. Thorn. Hence filiatum filiarius, or file-keepers in our courts of judicature, were called filatters.

Filibale, quads, Filibale: A fort of drinking in the field by the bailiffs of the hundreds; for which they gathered money of the inhabitants of that hundred. It was prohibited in the days of Bradon, lib. 3. fol. 117. According to Sir Edward Coke's 4th fol. 507, an extortion more comptumart. The true word is filiataris, quod computationem in campis figuravit. See Entale.

File, Filiatum, Is a thread or wire, wherein writs, and other exhibits in courts and offices are filed for the more safe keeping of them. File also signifies attain, from the Sax. fianum, iniquitate.*

A caafe where they were not done in a wett and son, and there having been great heat, and indecent reflections on both sides, in bill and answer, and the matter being ended this vacation by compromise; upon motion this day made in court by Mr. Porter, the bill and answer were taken off the file by consent. Med. 1883. Law. & Ed. 189. Tremayne v. Tremayne. Information filed, without recognizance entered into by the party, is ill, but the court cannot take it off the file; when once a thing is on the file, it cannot be taken off without an act of parliament; no, not by consent of parties; as in the case of Dr. Widdington a mandamus, the college made a very scandalous return, and to which he and the college agreed; and then they moved to take the return off the file, but the court refused it, saying, it could not be done without an act of parliament; only they ordered a warrant to be entered thereupon; that in this case the method may be, to enter the irregularity on the roll, with a verdict processe inquietantia. See car. advocare erat. 12 Mod. 155. Micb. 9 N. 3. The King v. Lambert. If a bill against an attorney be filed irregularly, it may be taken off the file. Per cur. 12 Mod. 161. Hill. 9 W. 3. &c. in case of Widdington. Blackley & Perkins.

Filiatum & Filiatum, A ferny ground. 1 fili. 4. ubi filiatis erat. Filiulus is properly a little son, also a godson, and a nephew. Cowell, edid. 1727. Filiata. See Falsa & Filiata.

Flitun, Filatum, A covering for the head made of coarse woods, not woven, but beaten together; a hat, a felt. Cowell, edid. 1727.

Flum aquae, Is the thread or middle of a stream, where a river parts two lordships—Et hukdonum ftalitas aquae ad flum aquae praefidet. Ex Reg. priorit. de Rem. Wormaly, Wit. 36 Med. 191. par. 300. a. Et de maimio factis in guttis wovius in col. all ad flum gerram riparia, &c. Rot. Pat. 4. H. 6. m. 11. par. 2. Et totam ilium partem remans fui quia dof inter flum aquae de Ebros. & flum aquae de Tame. Reg. de Leic. in Bibl. Cot. 6, Tis. 14 Ed.* 1. Rot. 56. 204. & Cromwell. Parker to things. Tissa filia fino pars non simetur. Fleta. lib. 2. c. 70, par. 3.

Flunary, See Blomary.

Flanders, mentioned in flat. 18 Ed.* 3. falt. 1. and 14 R. 2. c. 10. *seem to be all one with those whom L now now we call searchoes. See 17 R. 2, cap. 5. 1 H. 4. c. 13, and 31 H. 6. c. 5. They are employed for the discovery of goods imported or exported, without paying cutm.

Hint. (Finit.) Is a formal or customary conveyance of lands or tenements to successors, or to the survivors of the donee, if any. Finit, fett. 25. It is an act of thing inheritable, being in offl tempore fait, to the end to cut in off all controversies. The fain Wilt in his 2 Par. Symbol. fett. 1. thus defines it, To be a covenant made before justices, and entered of record. But Gallimond more properly thus, lib. 8. cap. 1. Finit of amiable or benefactive force, is an act of the commonalty, or of curia Domini Regis, or of the curia Regis, and curia Domini Regis suit jurisdiction. And lib. 9. c. 3. Talis concordia finit dirictor, et quid finem imposit negotii, adaequat natura post litigantiam ab eandem potestatirelire, . And Bracton, lib. 5. cap. 28, num. 7. thus, Finit in die directum concordia, quia imposi finem ethicis & defequentia pertinentia. The author of the New Treatise of the Law defines it thus, to be a final agreement, had between persons concerning any lands or rent, or other things whereof any suit or writ is between them hanging in any court. See the New Book of Entries, verbo Finit, and the 27 Ed. 1. 8. 1. cap. 1. This fain is of so high a nature, that Bracton, lib. 6. cap. 7. num. 3. fittis in curia Domini Regis et non abfoluti, & ab elio quia rema post finem interpretare, us in his Rex, in curia curia finem fimt. The Grallians would call this solemn contract, Transfationem judiciarem de re immobile, because it hath all the faculties of a deed, and doth bind women as parties, and others, whom ordinarily the law disbles to tranfaff, on condition of the fain, that all presumption of deceit or evil meaning is excluded, where the King and his court of justice are supposed to be privy to the act. Originally the use of this final concord was conferred and allowed, in regard that the law, and ancient proceedings, no plaintiff (giving real securitv de domane fals it is in the East, and in the West) did not proceed without the assent of the parties. So that fines have been used in personal actions, and for no greater a sum of money than 50s. But finity of wit and reason hath in time wrought other uses of this concord, which in the beginning was but one, viz, to secure the title that any man hath in possession. A schoolmaster hath the faculty of writing with more certainty to pass the interest or title of any land or tenement, though not controverted, to whom we think good, either for years or in fine: Infomuch, that the passing of a fine, in some cases, now is but merq fictis juris, alluding to the use for which it was invented, and supposing a doubt of controversy, where in truth none is, and so not only to work a present prescription against the parties to the concord or fine, and their heirs, but within five years against all others, not expressly excepted, (if it be levied upon good consideration, and without conven) as women convey, persons under one and twenty years of age, persons of unsoundness of mind, do not take out of the realm at the time when it was acknowledged. This fine hath in it five essential parts; i. The original writ taken out against the concernor. 2. The King's licence, giving the parties liberty to accord, for which he hath a fine called The King's fain, being accounted a part of the revenue of the crown. 3. The concord, which is, therefore, in this act, whereas we beginneth, And the agreement is with, &c. 4. The note of the fain, which is an abstract of the original concord, and beginneth in this manner, Between R. complainant, and S. his wife defaulter, &c. 5. The base of the fain, and the very execution of the fain, and the form of proceeding, as the form of proceeding in the court of the Lords the King at Westminster, from the day of Easter in fifteen days, in the &c.

that the foot of the fine includeth all, containing the day, year, and place, and before what justice the concord was made. Co. vol. 6. fol. 36, 39. Toye's case. This fine is either fogle or double. A single fain is that by which nothing is granted or rendered back again by the concernor, and the conclusion is in the fine, and the concernor containeth a grant or render back again, either of some rent, common, or other thing out of the land, or of the land itself to all, or some of the concernors for some estate, limiting thereby many times remainders to financers, who are not named in the writ of covenant. See 1 Ed. 2. fol. 38. Again, a fine is from the concernor divided into a fine executus, and a fine executur. A fain executur is such a fine, as of its own force gives a present possession (at the least in law) unto the concernor, so that he needeth no writ of habere facias feignam for the execution of the fain, but may enter, of which fort is a fain for cognitio ne de re cognita, and that is, upon acknowledgment that the thing mentioned in the concord be justifi coagratu si ilia quia idon habere de bona equitatis. Well. fett. 51. And the reason of this fiction to be, because this fain paith by way of release of that thing, which the concernor hath already (at least by the writ) given the concerner, the old fain or superseded fain, as a Supra, &c. The old fain or superseded fain, as a Supra, &c. The old fain or superseded fain, as a Supra, &c. Co. Rep. lib. 3. fol. 82. Case of fain, which is in very deed the fain executus of all. Fains executur are such as of their own force do not execute the possession in the concernor, as fines for cognitio de droit tautum, fines far dures, grant, release, confirmation, or renders for if fich fain be found, as a Supra, &c. Fain unless he is one who are in possession at the time of the fain levied, the concernor must needs have writs of habere facias feignam, according to their several cafes, for the obtaining of their possessions, except at the leaving execution fain, the parties unto whom the estate is by them limited, being in possession of the lands passed thereby, which fains do enure by way of extinguishment of right, not altering the estate of possession in the concernor, but perhaps bettering it. Well. ubi supra, fett. 20. Touching the form of these fains, we consider, upon what writ the parties are to proceed, and the manner in which commonly upon a writ of covenant; and first there must pass a pair of indentures between the concernor and concerner, whereby the concernor covenanteth with the concernor, to pass a fine unto him of such or such things, by a day set down: And these indentures, as they are Steel by this fain), by the very former gift of the fain, and upon this covenant, the writ of covenant is brought by the concernor against the concernor, who hereupon yeeth to pass the fine before a judge; and so the acknowledgmendment being recorded, the concernor and his heirs are pre-ently concluded, and all, strangors not excepted, after five years are barred. But fain executur is grounded be not a writ of covenant, but a warrantia charter, or a writ of right, or a writ of seque, or a writ of customary and services; for all these fains may also be found, Well. ubi supra, fett. 29. This fine is now levied in the court of Common Piaos at Westminster, in regard of the solemnity thereof, ordained by the statute of 15 Ed. 1. before which time they were sometimes levied in the county courts, and the Exchequer, as may be seen in Origins Jurisdictiones & alibi. Plostephen says there were fines levied before the conquest. Fubbe says he hath seen the exemplification of one of Henry the First's time; Doubles, none till Henry the Second. Casell. edit. 1727.

A fine is a covenant of the parties on record, by which they are transferred from concernor to concernor, with or without a render; and this is esteemed a conversion of greater fecurity than a feoffment, or the infevility by livery, being not only equivalent to the notoriety of livery, but having the confiant and undoubted credit of a court of chancery, and the advantage or other convenience and security, that it does not only transfer the right of the vender, and all claiming under him, him, but likewise extinguishes the right of others who omit to make their claim in due time. 2 Bac. Abr. 510.

Fines seem originally to have been invented and allowed of for different ends and purposes, and they are now applied to; for they were at first no more than a friendly composition and determination of the matters in debate between the litigants and the fines in the lord's court; and this way of compelling differences was early admitted in those days, because the stubs of the court, who were judges of all suits, were by these amicable compositions the sooner diffimul'd from their attendance at the court; nor did the lord of the manor suffer by them, because on these agreements, the parties litigating paid him a fine for his congé de accorder, as they do to the King at this day, which was equivalent to amercements, which were paid him in adversary suits. 2 Bac. Abr. 520, 521.

From an observation of the peculiar benefit and fecurity from fines, and from the convenience and encouragement they received from the courts of justice, men began to engage themselves, and oblige each other by covenants to compose their differences; and they were the easier drawn into this amicable way, because it was not attended with the usual expences of adversary suits, which being generally protracted with warmth and animosity, by the parties litigating, must necessarily involve one or both parties into difficulties, which such friendly compositions are free from; and the judges, considering these agreements as the publick acts of the court, allowed them some function with their own judgments; and hence it came to be imposed into that useful and common allendance which we find them to be at this day, as they stand upon the statutes of 4 H. 7 cap. 24. and the 32 H. 8.

2 Bac. Abr. 521.

1. The several sorts of fines; and of the several parts of a fine, and when they begin to operate.

2. Of what things a fine may be levied, and by what name.

3. Who may levy fines; and of taking cognizance by dehnsius.

4. Statutes, with notes and adjudications upon them, concerning the manner of levying fines; exceptions to fines; claim of fines; who shall be bound by fines levied, and their operation in barring the issue in tail.

5. Of the operation of a fine in barring strangers, or those who have but an uncertain interest, as a term for years, or have not inchoate.

6. The remedies given to strangers by claim and entry for the preformation of their rights; and of erroneous fines; and the manner of reversing them.

1. The several kinds of fines; and of the several parts of a fine, and when they begin to operate.

There are two sorts of fines, viz. one executed, and the other executory. Executed; that is, of the present estate paffeth unto, or is superseded in the conuene; for such a fine is a feufoold of record, as this fine come ces, or for reliefs, or confirmation, or for forrender; executory, as when no estate is vested in the conuene, until it be executed by entry or action; as fines for grant & render by the conuene, which must be made upon a fine come ces, or for reliefs, &c. or other fine which is executed; or otherwise the conuene could not make any grant and render of that land, &c. which he had not. 2 Inf. 513.

It is not called executed, because the conuene is in possession; but because the fine is executted between the parties; so that the conuene cannot for execution, because the fine itself is superseded to be executed. A fine is not called executory, because the fine does not execute any execution, but the conuene may execute it, either by entry or by suit. See C. R. in Fines 4.

Of fines these are four kinds: 10. A fine for cognizance de droit come ces que il ad de fin done, i.e. an acknowledgment of the right of the cognizor; as that which he had of the gift of the cognizor. It is a single fine, and admits the pollution (at least in law) of the lands, by virtue of a feufoold or former gift of the cognizor, and works the party released, a fee simple pafli; without the word heirs, and nothing being reserved back to the cognizor. This is the principal and freell it is, and a fine executed, so that the cognizor may peremptorily enter. Wood's Inj. 240.

20. A fine for done, grant & render; which is a double fine, a man may give two, &c.; a fine for cognizance come ces, &c., and a fine for conjuance, &c., and where the cognizor, after a releafe and warranty made to him by the cognizor, both grant and render back to the cognizor, the lands, &c. limiting oftentimes the reasonsplainly tho' he began to release the land, and the party is in possession; this fine is executed, otherwise he must enter, or have the writ of habeas fetus jefitanam. Wood's Inj. 240.

30. A fine for cognizance de droit tansum; which is commonly used to pass a reverfion. It may be expreffed in such fuds that the particular effe is in another, whom the cognizor is willing should have the reverfion. Sometimes it is used by tenant for fee, to make a grant and release to him in reverfion. In a fine for cognizance de droit tansum, the cognizor hath a freehold in law in him before he enters. Wood's Inj. 240.

40. A fine for done, grant & render, and where the cognizor is fee'd of the lands contained in the fine, and the cognizor hath no freehold therein, but it paflis by the fine. It is commonly used to grant away eftates for life or years. And if the cognizors are not in possession, they must enter, or have a writ of habeas fetus jefitanam. Wood's Inj. 240.

There are five sorts of fines, of which three are executed, viz. for cognizance de droit come ces, &c., for reliefs, and for forrender; and two executory, viz. for cognizance de droit tansum, and for grant and render. Fines upon forrender are here expressly fo, or amounting to a forrender. A fine upon an expret forrender, or when theolle for life, or for another's life, or tenant in tail after paffibility, tenant in dower, or by the curtesy, by fine forrender their eftates to him in reverfions; and the form of the fine is fuch in effect, as the fine for cognizance de droit, should be done, are in the fine upon forrender, and the clause of the warranty omitted. Co. Read. on Fin. 4, 5.

All fines are either executed, as fines for cognizance de droit come ces, &c., fines for reliefs, and fines for forrender; or executory, as fines for cognizance de droit tansum, and for grant & render. The fine for cognizance de droit tansum seems to be the most ancient; for the cognizor is in the place of the judgment, which was always executory in adversary suits, the demandant was obliged to follow the rules of the law, and sue out execution; but in time, when these fines became the common and best way of purchasing the purchaser, to prevent the trouble of suing out execution, had fentin given him by livery in the country, and for his farther affurance obliged the vendor, by covenant, to levy a fine; and thus the fine for cognizance de droit come ces, &c. came in use, which supffes a precedent gift, by which the conuene was put into poffefion, and consequently there was no execution of what he had already. Co. Reading 4.

This fine come ces, &c. is most commonly used, being the forreft for the purchaser; in which it is to be observed, that this fine and that de droit tansum convey a fee simple to the conuene, without any condition or contingency; for when the conuene acknowledges the land to be the right of the conuene, &c. repugnant and contradictory to his own acknowledgment, to claim any right or interest in the land in reverfion or remainder; besides, in every judgment a fee simple is recovered, and the conuene coming in lieu of the judgment must be sufficiently import as much, unless the express acknowledgment, from the parties qualify it. Co. Litt. 9, b. Co. Reading 4, 7.

Upon a fine for cognizance de droit come ces, &c. the conuene can't receive a rent, because the conuene supposing a precedent gift, he can't charge the inheritance which he has given intirely away; and the reddendum comes

FIN

FIN
For the former reason the judges will not, or at least ought not, to admit of a fine upon condition, because such a fine does not positively determine and settle the right of the fee, it being uncertain whether the confuee will enjoy the land according to the fine, since that depends upon the performance or non-performance of the condition; but my Lord Coke tells us, that if such fines are admitted by the judges they are valid and shall stand; the rule, quod fieri non debet sed factum vealt, obtaining in this case; because fines being the private agreement and concord, it were to trifle with the obligation of the tenant, that ever one ought to be preferred sacred, to suffer another party to recede from their contrafl, after their solemn composition acknowledged on record, and received in the most solemn manner by the judgment and decision of a court of justice. 5 Co. 38 b. 2 Roll. Abr. 18. Bro. cit. Fin. 5. 3d. Reading 5.

If A. makes a lease for life, and afterward grants the revision by fine to B., for life, the remainder in tail; in a quod juris clamat against the lease, he would have surrendered to the confuee, referring a rent during his life, but the court refused it; for had this surrendered, with the revocation of the rent, been made, it might have been that the rent would not continue according to the limitation of the fine; for if the grant of the revision died before the tenant for life, the remainder-man in tail should hold the land disfranchised, and the tenant for life could not enjoy the rent as long as the fine gave it; but if in this case the lessee had surrendered to the grantee for his own life, with a revocation of a rent, this might have been admitted, for this is no absolute surrender; and each party may enjoy what the fine gave him, according to the several limitations thereof. Co. Reading 5.

If there be leave for life, the remainder for life, and the lease be a fine for a free covert de droit to him in remainder, this enures by way of surrender; because by this fine he only acknowledges all the right he has in the land to belong to him in remainder; but if the lessee had levied a fine, &c. to him in remainder, it had been a forfeiture of both their estates, and he in revocation might enter immediately; and the reason of the difference is this, the fine for a covert de droit came see, &c. always grants a fee-simple, which pallet by the precedent gift, as the fine supposes; but the fine for a covert de droit tantum only conveys all his right, which is intended all he can lawfully pass away. 3d. Reading 5.

If A. die intestate, as heir of the gown of the mother, and he and his wife levy a fine to A. and B. with warranty, and A. and B. by the same fine grant and render to the husband and wife in tail, remainder to the heirs of the husband; though it was urged, that the feinin of the husband, that is, that nothing was lowered by the fine, yet resolved, that the confuee was more than a bare instrument, and that the estate was once in him; and that the fine and render is a conveyance at Common law, and the render makes the confuee a new Purchaser, as much as a foftime and re-infruit.

If A. die intestate, the first part of a fine is the original writ, and without this the fine is erroneous, and may be reversed for error in B. R. this being absolutely necessary to bring the parties within the jurisdiction of the court, and though at this day the original is generally a writ of covert constancy or negligence. 5 H. 4. c. 14. 5 Co. 39. b. 2 Sid. 55.
F I N

The next and most material thing considerable in a fine is the King's silver; this is entered on the writ of covenant, and gives it the force and effect of a fine, and is granted to the King pro licentia concordati, or cage de concord., in composition of the same breaches, and other fines, which became due on judgments and non suits; in adversary suits, this is always paid by him who takes the fee simple by the fine, and on the entry of it on the covenant, the sum given is expressed, together with the plea, and between whom, with mention of the land for which it is given. 2 Inst. 511. 5 Co. 39.

It is likewise called the po拭 fine, in respect of the premier fine in the Hanaper, which is due to the King on the original, and is greater or less in proportion to that; for it is as much as the premier fine, and half as much as the premier fine be 0. 8 d. this is 10 l. 2 Inst. 511.

From the entry of this the fine is obligatory, and begins to operate; and from thenceforth the fine shall stand, though either party die before the other parts are recorded. 2 Inst. 511.

But if the cononor dies before the King's silver is entered, the fine is voidable, and may be revoked by a writ of error; because this being given pro licentia concordati, the agreement of the parties is not to be admitted as the judgment of the court till it be paid and entered, and consequently if the cononor dies before he doth, the fine is erroneous, as a judgment given in an adversary suit after the death of one of the litigating parties; but this is to be understood with this distinction, that where it appears by the record itself, that the King's silver was paid before the death of the cononor, there the fine is erroneous; but where after the cononor made the cononor die before the King's silver is paid, and after his death the silver was paid and entered on a writ of covenant returnable the term preceding his death; as if baron and femme make cononor before commissorioners the 26th of March, the femme dies the day following, and upon a writ of covenant made returnable the Holio term preceding, the King's silver was entered as of that term, and the fine was adjudged to land; for where there doth not appear an error on the face of the record, the judges in favour to fines, which so much strengthen mens titles, and quoad partibus, and Radiation 3.

The note of the fine is no more than a docket taken by the chirugrapher, from which he transfers the indentures, which are delivered to the party to whom the cononor was made; and when this is done, the fine is said to be ingrossed. 5 Co. 39. 2 Inst. 468. F. N. B. 12.

A fine was thus, Hec &c finallis concordia fatta apud Wyfum, in curia dominii regis, &c. and mentions the day, year and place, and after what justices the cononor was made. 5 Co. 39. Co. 39. 3.

The other parts of the fine are the foot and note of it; the foot of the fine runs thus, Hec &c finallis concordia fatta apud Wyfum, in curia dominii regis, &c. and mentions the day, year and place, and after what justices the cononor was made. 5 Co. 39. 2 Inst. 468. 4.

A fine was thus, Hec &c finallis concordia fatta in curia regis apud Wyfum, a dio Sancti Michaelis in trei feptiman' anno decim Williami Teriti eorum Thom. Terov, &c. &c. fatta in croft, Sancte Trinitatis, 1 aunn concorr. & recordar. eorum irifam pofitam; so that the cononor of the fine was done term, and the recordar. of that done following, and the question was, of which term this should be said to be a complete fine; and it was held to be a fine of the term in which the cononor was made, and that the concordia fatta in curia is the complete fine. 1 Saftk. 341.

2. Of what things a fine may be levied, and by what name.

Regularly a fine may be levied of any thing, whereof a precise quod redditus or faciats lie, as the writ of cultums; Vol. II. No. 74.

M
towns and counties, as De manorio de D. cum pertinencii; yet it seems best to express all the several towns into which it extended; as De manorio de S. cum pertinencii in D. & E. Weit. Symb. f. 26. cites 10 Ed. 4. f. 9. a. 43 Ed. 3. f. 9. a. Bract. lib. 4. c. 31. feft. 3. 9 Ed. 4. fol. 61. g. 16. a. 17. b. 11 H. 7. f. 22. a. 49. a.

A cattle or an hundred may be parcel of a manor, and pass by the name of the manor, whereof they are parcel, 26 Ed. 2. a. 54. and one manor may be parcel of another, 2 Ed. 3. fol. 36. And a cattle may be demanded of the serjeant major de caffell de B. cum pertinencii, 1 Ed. 3. f. 4. And an hundred may be demanded by itself, as De hundred of S. 27 H. 6. f. 2.

If an entire manor, or mediage, or other entire thing be divided or parcelled, and after a fine is levied of some of the parts of the thing fo severed, then must not the fine be de mediate, or partia parte, or other part of the manor, mediage, or other thing; but such part must be demanded by the name of the whole thing. Weit. Symb. f. 26.

So if a mediage and 20 acres of land be partido into two parts; the fine of the one part must be de novo miflagis & decem acris terre, &c. and not de mediate unius miflagii, &c. 20 ancurum terre; for the things now divided, if mediage, give them the name of a community, whereas the less in quantity than the whole was before division made thereof. If a thing be twice named in a writ of covenant, it hurteth not, as a manor and a hundred, parcel of the same manor, Weit. Symb. f. 26. cites 27 H. 8. 2.

A fine was levord de duobus tenementis, and for that reason was revolled for the word tenement does not comprehend any certainty; for it takes in mediage, land, meadow, pasture, &c. and whatsoever lies in tenure; and it will pass rent or common. Lo. 188. Trin. 31 Eliz. B. R. Steel v. Courtris.

Abandonment, which is not a manor in truth, does not pass by the name of a manor in a fine or recovery; for they are grounded on original writs, which ought to be certain, and not to be taken by intendment; but otherwise of a grant, or foftinent; for there the intent of the parties shall help it. No 7. Eliz. v. Heyton. 22.

A fine of land will not be a bar of rent; as leiffe for life, remainder for life of rent; the first leiffe purchase the land, and levies a fine of that; this shall not bind him in remainder of the rent; per Wynch. 1. Benoni. 155. in the case of Kibbell v. Tacker, cites Palmer's cafe, and Smith and Stapleton's cafe.

If tenant in tail of any office levyes a fine of land belonging to the office, this shall bind his influe; yet the land was not intailed, but the office; per Elborv Ch. J. 2 Roll. R. 500. Hill. 22. "Sic in the cafe of Folliit v. Sanders. A fine may be levied of a flake in the New River water, by the description of so much land aqua coperta'. 2Win's Rep. 128. P. J. 1723. Dibshter v. Bartholomew.

3. Who may levy fines; and of taking conformance by de dimas.

And here it must be first observed, that whatever legal defects may be found in the conuon, the fine shall stand in all cases, except that of an infant, tho' the judge omits a very necessary part of his duty in not rejecting such fines. Co. Reading 8. Inj. 515. The principal defects are either want of discretion and understanding, as in infants, idiots and persons of unsane memory, or want of power, as fomes covert. Co. Reading 8.

As to fines levied by an infant, tho' strictly speaking all contracts made by infants are in their own nature void, because a contract is an act of the understanding, which, during their infant state, they are incapable of, yet want of civil societies have so far supplied that cefce, and taken care of, as to allow them to contract for their benefit and advantage, with power to receive from and vacate it when it may prove prejudicial to them; now the method to fet aside such a contract must be by matter of equal and sufficient cause, and the manner is as follows: if an infant levies a fine, which is no more than his own agreement recorded as the judgment of the court, he must revive it by writ of error, and this must be brought during his minority; that the court of B. R. may by injunction determine the age of the infant; if he doth not, the judges by adjourn may in such cases inform themselves by witnesses, church-books, &c. 2 Bat. Abr. 526. Co. Lit. 380. b. Mor. 76. 2 Roll. Abr. 15. Bro. tit. Errors. Bro. tit. Fines, 74. 79. 2 Inf. 482. 2 Bully. 320. 12 Co. 122.

If an infant brings a writ of error to reverse a fine for his nominee, and after injunction and proof of infancy by witnesses does before the fine is revered, his heir may revive it; because the court having recorded the nominee of the conuor, ought to vacate his contract when he appeared to be under a manifest disability at the time he entered it, and by virtue of the writ of error. If the fine is acknowledged a fine, and the conuors omitting to have the fine ingroiled till he came of age, in order to prevent the infant from bringing a writ of error, yet the court, upon view of the conuence produced by the infant, and upon his prayer to be ingroiled, and his age examined, recorded his nonage to go back as far as the benefit of his writ of error, which he must otherwise lose, his nonage determining before the next term. Mor. 74.

As to ideals and lunaticks, it is necessary to distinguish between their acts done in pais, and those solemnly acknowledged on record; tho' the law is clear, that in neither cases are they admitted to discharge themselves, for the infecuirty which may arise in contracts from counterfeit madness and folly, but their heirs and executors may avoid such acts in pais by pleading the disability; because if they can prove it, it must be presumed real, since nobody can be thought to counterfeit it, when he can expect no benefit from himself. 4 Co. 124. 4 Co. Lit. 247. Bro. tit. Fines, 62. Cas. Eliz. 309. 622. F. N. B. 202.

But neither the lunatick himself, nor his heir, can vacate any act of his done in a court of record; and therefore if a peren non comus acknowledges a fine, it shall stand against him and his heirs; for tho' the judge ought not to admit of a fine from a man under that disability, yet when it is once received, it shall never be reversed, because the record and judgment of the court being the highest evidence in the law, presumes the conuor, at that time, capable of contradicting; and therefore the credit of it is not to be contested, nor the record avoided by any averment against the truth of it. 4 Co. 124. 2 Inf. 423. Bro. tit. Fines, 75. Co. Lit. 247.

So it is in the case of a fine levied by an ideot, it shall stand against him and his heirs; for no averment of ideocy can vacate the fine, nor will any officer finding him an idot natiotcis be sufficient to reverse the fine, for that, by a certain practice, they shall not only, by by trying them by other rules than themselves, 2 And. 193. 4 C. 124, a. 125. b. Bras. tit. Finers, 75. Ca. Lit. 247.

And as fines ought not to be taken from lunatics and idiots, nor from either old or strong lunatics, or insane, if they be weak or in former age and sickness, that will be no sufficient cause to refuse them. Wits. Fin. sect. 4.

As to fame covert, from the intermarriage the law looks upon the husband and wife as but one person, and therefore actions of but one will between them, which is placed in the husband as the fist and ablest to provide for and govern the family, and therefore him an absolute power over her chattels personal, to dispose of as he pleases, without her consent; but as to her real estate, the law hath thought fit, that an act of his shall prejudice her or her heirs in it, unless the join him by some matter of record, and on examination testify her assent to such disposition. 10 C. 42. b. 43. a. 2 Idf. 510. 1 Sid. 1. 1 Roll. Abr. 347.

But those books which say, that a fine shall not bind a wife, whereas the law prescribes, it fall not be understood as if it were in her power to reverse the fine for want of her examination, but they are to be understood in this sense, that the judge ought not to receive a fine from a feene covert without examining her, left it should not proceed from her own freedom and consent, otherwise an information shall be made, and without any examination, the judge has omitted a very necessary part of his duty, yet the fine shall stand, and neither the fine nor her heirs shall be admitted to aver that she was not examined; for that were to relieve the credit of the judgment of the courts of justice, which is the highest evidence of the law. 2 Bac. Abr. 537.

The statute of 15 E. 2. called The Statute of Carriages, introduced the dedimus, which is a special commision, granted out of Chancery, to certain person therein named, to take the conuance of such persons, as thoro' age or sickness are not able to appear in court in person. 2 Bac. Abr. 537.

By this statute, no-body can be a commisioner but the judges, and two or one of them, by the consent of the ref, may receive the conuance; and if there go but one of them, he shall take with him an abbot, a prior, or a knight, informs of good men be examined, and writ of error have been allowed to reverse fines, where the conuance hath not been taken before such persons. Bras. tit. Finers. 120. F. N. B. 146. But the present practice falls short of the order this statute prescribes, and it is now sufficient if one of the commisioners be a knight, or that who executes the commision be a licent. D. gives its alterator to the commision, by which great abuses have happened in taking of fines. 2 Bac. Abr. 537.

By the custom, the chief justice of C. B. may take conuances any where out of court, and certify the fame without any dedimus; and if a forfeit have a pattent to be C. J. he may take conuances without a dedimus before he is sworn. Co. Reading 10. Co. Elia. 469.

If a fine be levied to one of the justices of C. B. and the said justice takes the conuance, 'tis void gain judex in propriu causa. Co. Reading 10.

In the case of the above, it may be directed to two jointly, and the conuance is taken by one only, the fine is erroneous; for where two are invoted with a joint power, it can't be by any construction from the commision be executed by one only. Co. Elia. 469.

The same reason subsists the substance of the writ of commision, and therefore must bear piece after piece, otherwise it is error, and must be signed by the Lord Keeper or Chief Justice, or by some of the justices of the circuit where the lands lie. F. N. B. 146. Co. Elia. 677. 740. Co. Reading 10. Bras. tit. Finers. 116. 1 Roll. Abr. 794.

268. 290. 296. 247.

If the commisioners refuse to certify the conuance to the court in convenient time, which is a year and a day, certiorari is to be awarded against them, comprehending the substance of the dedimus, and how they have taken the conuance, and commanding them to certify it; and in the following cases, they may be cited in, they an order, a plaint, and attachment shall issue against them. F. N. B. 147.

If the commisioners die before the conuance be certified, their executors must certify it upon certiorari to them directed, and upon their refusal, like processe be as in the former case. Co. Reading 10. F. N. B. 147.

If a dedimus be awarded to take the conuance from several persons, the commisioners may take the conuance from each of them, and at several times, for it may happen that they can't meet at one place at the same time; and if the commisioners return the conuance but and that the order of the commisioners should be annexed the writ, for the refuial of any one of the commisioners can be no reason to delay or hinder another to transfer his right. Co. Elia. 576. 577.

The court of C. B. ordered the new-mover to profess an obligation against commisioners, to the issue of a fine of an infant. Misb. 22 Car. 2. C. B. 3. Law. 36. Hutchinson's case. Per North and Wingham J. There is a great trust reposed in the commisioners, and they are to inform themselves of the party's age, and a voluntary ignorance will not excuse them. Mad. 246. 247. Pagh. 29 Car. 2. C. B. in the case of Bever v. Parratt.

A dedimus prifonarius was directed to two, and one of them executes it, the other cannot certify it; for the execution of it ought to lie upon his own knowledge. Godd. 356. Trin. 27 Jan. B. R. in Leonard's case.

A det. pr. is directed to four, to take the fine of lands in several counties; if two take it in one county and certify, and the other two take it in the other and they certify it, none of their certificates are good. Godd. 356. p. Houghton J. in the case above.

A dedimus prifonarius to make a conuance of a fine is directed to J. S. knight, and he takes the conuance, and certifies it by the name of J. S. knight; whereas in truth he is not a knight; this is not erroneous, nor affignable for error that he is not a knight; for it is against the record. Jenk. 268. pl. 3. 327. A dedimus to make a fine may be given to B. esquire, and was transferred by A. B. knight, and held good. Jenk. 370. pl. 3. cites Avondel v. Avondell. Pope. 33. S. C. Co. E. 577. Tim. 41 Elia. B. R. Co. Juf. 11. Pagh. 1. Yac. B. R. 8. 57.

The' now most fines are in fact taken by dedimisi, yet they are recorded as taken in court, and this to prevent questions about captions. Per car. 10 Mol. 45. Mol. 10 Ann. B. R. in Lord Say and Seals's cafe.

3. Statutes, with notes and adjudications upon them, concerning the manner of levying fines; exceptions to fines; plannum of fines; proclamations of fines, who shall be bound by fines levied, and their operation to bar the issue in suit. Stat. de Finibus, 18 Ed. 1. Jus. 4. (intitled, The manner of levying of fines: What things are requisite to make them effectual; who are bound by them, and the like.) When the original is read in the presence of the parties before the justices, a forfeit shall fay, Sir justice, leave to agree: The justice shall fay, What will Sir R. give and shall name one of the parties. Then, when they are agreed of the sum of fines to be levied, the justice shall, according to the king, the justice shall fay, Cry the peace: Then the reformatum shall fay, Inj. much as peace is licensed unto you in' S. A. and his wife, that here be, acknowledge the manor of B, with the oppor-

FIN

nance, contained in the words, to be the right of R., as that which be both of their gifts; To have and to hold to him and to his heirs, of W., and A., and the heirs of A., as in demesne, rents, fequesters, courts, pleas, reliefs, escheats, mills, advowsons of churches, and all other appurtenances, rendering your good and lawful rents of the said lands, and all their heirs, within the said county, due and acconulated for all services. And the land will not.

For a final accord to be levied in the King's court without a writ original, and that at least below four juries in the bench, or in eyre, or in quarter within a week or thereabouts, and in presence of the parties, who must be of full age, of good memory, and not out of prison. And if a married woman be one of the parties, then she must be first examined by four of the said juries; and if she do not attend thereunto, the fine shall not be levied. And the cause whereof such false hoodworn to be done is, because a deterrent to his bar, of his great force, and of so doctrine is submitted to the reader judgment that whether the above translation, What will Sir R. give? is not nearer to the true sense. In the original fable it is to be observed, that the proune relative que is used, Que d懂ume [instead of dorum], because Sir R. privies, who altered it, and the fine will give? on further concludi demure, is submitted to the reader judgment that whether the above translation, What will Sir R. give? is not nearer to the true sense. In the original fable it is to be observed, that the proune relative que is used, Que d懂ume [instead of dorum], because Sir R. privies, who altered it, and the fine will give? on further concludi

The justice shall pay. What will Sir R. give? In the old editions of the statutes it is printed, What faithful Sir R. ? which is not reconcilable with any meaning whatever. This gross inaccurancy was corrected by Mr. Coke, who altered it, and the fine will give? on farther concludi

To be the right of R.] There is an error in the translation of this statute in all the editions of the statutes now extant; wherein the consorts are made to acknowledge the merit of B. with the aportenances, to be the right of our Lord the King, which is not the case nor what is sense. But if the consorts acknowledge the merit of B., etc. to be the right of R. that is, of Sir Robert, the

Without a writ original?] If there be no original writ, yet the fine is not void, but voidable by writ of error. 2 Inst. 513.

Privy juries] The number of juries here mentioned are not requisite at this day; but there must be above the number of any. And therefore a fine levied before Thomas Brian militi et jiciet juriaribus de comitatu hanc was not good. 2 Inst. 514, 515.

For a final accord to be levied in the King's court without a writ original, and that at least below four juries in the bench, or in eyre, or in quarter within a week or thereabouts, and in presence of the parties, who must be of full age, of good memory, and not out of prison. And if a married woman be one of the parties, then she must be first examined by four of the said juries; and if she do not attend thereunto, the fine shall not be levied. And the cause whereof such false hoodworn to be done is, because a deterrent to his bar, of his great force, and of so

By the words privies and strangers in the statute, if rem

tant in tail is party to the fine, and his issue claims per

Jenw. 192, p. 97. Vol. 3241, &c. In Ed. Dorky's case, ecc. He is privy in blood only, and not in estate also, is not within these statutes, neither shall he be barred by the fine. As if land be given to a man, and the heirs females of his body, and he hath a fine and a daughter, and the fine be a fine, and dies without issue, this is no bar to the daughter; for though he be heir to his blood, yet fine is not heir to the estate, nor hath the need to make his conveyance to it by him; but if the father had levied it, yet it would have been otherwise. 3 vol. R. S. L. 215, p. 116, 119. And by statutes.

By the words privies and strangers in the statute, if rem

tant in tail is party to the fine, and his issue claims per

Jenw. 192, p. 97. Vol. 3241, &c. In Ed. Dorky's case, ecc. He is privy in blood only, and not in estate also, is not within these statutes, neither shall he be barred by the fine. As if land be given to a man, and the heirs females of his body, and he hath a fine and a daughter, and the fine be a fine, and dies without issue, this is no bar to the daughter; for though he be heir to his blood, yet fine is not heir to the estate, nor hath the need to make his conveyance to it by him; but if the father had levied it, yet it would have been otherwise. 3 vol. R. S. L. 215, p. 116, 119. And by statutes.

All but other people of the world] In these words are in declued as well tenant for years, tenant by l.ordly

merchant and staple, escheasters and customary holders, as tenants of fee simple and heridimann, if they be out of par jures, and if such a fine be levied by strangers cannot bar him, that is in possesion. And albeit, the words of this law are very general, yet do they not abrogate the statute of W. 2. De demis conditions, 2 Inst. 517.—If tenant in tail omits an issue, this fine bars the entail, and every other person who has right, if he does not own and claim within five years after the fine and proclamations, unless such persons be aided by some of the impediments mentioned in the statute. By all the judges of England. Jenw. 192, p. 97. cit. 19 H. 8. 6.

Forasmuch were dainted that within this land, IJl. 76. for, myself, and for my heirs, or used, permitted, to avoid fines by the averment aforesaid. 2 Jiff. 254. Ca. R. on Fines 15.

So, where tenant in fee had accepted an eftate by fine from him, and had nothing for life, or in tail, fo that by the law the conuife and his heirs are concluded, and eftates in fee simple, and voidants in fee tail, yet before the making of this fine; the said averment was received in avoidance of such fines, and for these two caufes, and in affurance of the ancient Common law of England, this fine was made. Ca. R. on Fines 15.

But it seems to me, by Lord Coke, that the shift of the said two errors, or misprisions of the law, permitted and suffered before this fine was made, was very ab- fard, and manifestly contrary in itself; for the heir of the conuife endeavored, by such eftate, to avoid the particular eftate re-taken by his an- cessor by the render; because, he that rendered, had nothing, but, as I think, in endeavoring to gain the fee-simple, he takes not only the fee-simple, but also the eftate for life, or other particular eftate, which also was rendered; for through the render was void, as then minus juifes allowed, yet the fine for conuife de droit come as, was good, and in the said fine being good, for the imperfect or insufficient render cannot impeach it) and the render being void, the recognize shall retain the land, and the heir of the recognize is utterly barred for ever; and therefore the words of this fine are true, viz. that such evertmentes were contrary to & confusion in fee tail, yet before the making of this fine, and whereof (as I think) were the causes of this fine. Ca. R. on Fines 15. Vol. II. No. 75.
by way of action, or lawful entry, within five years after the proclamation so made and certified as aforesaid.

Sect. 4. The right of strangers, which happens to come to them after the fine is ingrossed, is saved, so that they lawfully pursue their right or title within five years after it comes to them: And here an action against the p[er]son of the profits is maintainable.

Sect. 6. If the parties, to whom such right or title comes over, are under age, in prison, out of the land, or not of free memory, they or their heirs have time to pursue their right or title within five years after such imperfections removed; so also, have they in case they had right of title at the time of the fine levied.

* * *

4 Hen. 7, p. 33.

4 Hen. 7, sect. 1. The proceedings so laid and made, the fine to be a final end, and conclude as well privies as strangers to the same, excepting women covert, other than being parties to the said fine, and every person then being within age of 21 years, in prison, or out of the realm, or not of whole mind at the time of the said fine levied, not to be entitled to the fine aforesaid.

Sect. 4. And saving to every person or persons, and to their heirs, other than the parties in the said fine, such claim and interest as they have to or in the said lands, tenements, or other hereditaments at the time of the fine ingrossed; so also, to the benefit of their heirs, if any, or in the estate of the heirs, or in the leases of those hereditaments, or by way of action, or lawful entry within five years after the said proclamations had and made.

Sect. 5. And also, saving to all persons such action, right, title, claim and interest in or to the said lands, tenements, or other hereditaments, as first shall grow, remain, or succeed, or come to them, after the said fine ingrossed, and proclamation made by force of any gift made in the tail, or by any other cause or matter, had and made before the said fine levied: So that they take their action, or pursue their right or title, according to the law, within five years next after such action, right, claim, title or interest to them accrued, defended, fallen or ceased.

Sect. 6. And the said persons and their heirs may have their said actions against the person of the profits of the said lands and tenements, and other hereditaments, at the time of the said fine to be taken.

Sect. 7. And if the same persons at the time of such action, right and title accrued, defended, remained, or come unto them, be covert de banns, or within age, in prison, or out of this land, or not of whole mind, then it is ordained by the said authority, that their action, right and title, they pursue their right to them, and to their heirs, unto the time they come and be at their full age of 21 years, in prison, or out of this land, uncover, and of whole mind, so that they, or their heirs, take their said actions, or their lawful entry, according to their right and title, within 5 years next after that they come and be at their full age, unless out of prison, or this land, uncover, and of whole mind, and the said actions pursue, or other lawful entry take according to law.

Sect. 8. And also, it is ordained by the authority aforesaid, that all such persons as be covert de banns, not party to the fine, and every person being within age of 21 years, in prison, out of the land, or not of whole mind at the time of the said fine levied and ingrossed, and by this said act aforesaid excepted, having any right or title, or cause of action, to any of the said land, and other hereditaments, that they or their heirs, inheritable to the same, take their actions, or lawful entry, according to their right and title within five years next after they come and be of the age of 21 years, out of prison, uncover, within this land, and of whole mind, and the said actions pursue, or their lawful entry take and pursue according to the law.

Sect. 9. And if they do not take their actions and entries as is aforesaid, that they and every of them and their heirs, and the heirs of every of them be concluded by the said fine aforesaid, in so full form as they be that be privies or parties to the said fine.

Sect. 10. Saving to every person or persons, not party not privy to the said fine, their exception to void the same fine, by that, that those which were parties to the fine, nor any of them, nor no person or persons to their heirs, nor the issue of any of them, had nothing in the lands and tenements comprised in the said fine, at the time of the said fine levied.

Sect. 11. And it is ordained by the said authority, that every fine, that hereafter shall be levied, in any of the King's courts, of any manors, lands, tenements, and other possessions, after the manner, use and form, that fines have been levied afore the making of this act, be of like force, effect and authority, as fines, so levied, be or were afore the making of this act; this act, or any other act in this said parliament made, or to be made notwithstanding.

This is an original, and not an explanatory statute, see 123. preceeding page, or pamphlet, to be annexed, read and understood, as the act of that time, and not a declaration, nor a summary of the former acts, nor a repetition of the former acts, but a necromancy, and abomination of the act, that fines ought to be of the greatest strength to avoid disputes and debates, &c. and therefore this statute does not extend to any fines levied by common law, see 3 Rep. 77, b. Fermor's case.

This statute extends only to fines, and not to nonclaims on a judgment in a writ of right, Co. Litt. 292.

So it extends not to land in ancient demesne; for the lord may avoid such fine by writ of detinue. Pl. C. 330. b.

The Lord Keeper's opinion was, that howsoever 4 H. 7, was, at the making thereof, as to railing, or not railing an eftates tail, yet when 32 H. 8. comes, and declares upon a H. 7. Now all fines are good to bar eftates-tail, Skin. 97. Hill. 33 Car. 2. in the Earl of Derby's cafe.

The fines levied according to this statute, and operations in the right, which answers Saul and Clerk's case. 310. 211. Salt. 432. Hill. Ann. B. R. in the case of Hunt v. Bane.

Sect. 1. 2. In three terms then next following] If one of the terms limited by this statute be adjourned, (because the statute days, then next enquiring) all the proclamation before are void, till the statute 1 Mar. 7. Rajgal, Finis, 12. because the time limited by the act ought to be pursued, and once attached in part ought to be continued, Pl. C. 371. b.

Sect. 3. To be a final end] By these words it binds eftates-tail: per Pemberton Ch. 1.Skin. 95. Hill. 35 Car. 2. B. R. in Earl of Derby's cafe.

Per all the judges but three, The issue of tenant in tail was barred by a fine levied by his ancestor, by virtue of the statute 4 H. 7. before the statute of 32 H. 8. Hill. 31 & 32 Car. 2. in State. Rym. 359. Murray v. Eyres.

The fines levied according to this statute are, as initio, as strong against entail, as 32 H. 8. Hob. 332. Macquillian's cafe. And therefore if a woman be tenant in tail, having issue a son and a daughter, and the son (being the first issue of the entail) leaves a fine, leaving the mother, and dies, and the survives him, this shall not bar the daughter, to whom the land entails defends immediately from the mother a judgment against three judges against one. Hob. 332. Mich. 19 Jac. Macquillian's cafe. But in case of collateral issue it is otherwise. Hill. 533. S. C. 32. S. C.

Tenancy
FIN

Tenant in tail, having issue, levies a fine, and dies before all the proclamations are made, and afterwards (the issue being beyond fee) the proclamations are all made, and then the issue claims; and it was resolved by all the judges, that the right descended to the issue, and to the father, before the proclamations, and by their heir without proclamations, or proclamations without a fine, will not bar the issue in tail, and that there was no fine with proclamations levied after the death of the father, yet, as he claims as heir by force of the estate-tail, he is barred by the word of the statute. 3 Rep. 84. Pacyh. 462.

Neither this statute, nor the 34 Ed. 1. of fines, says, in express words, that fines with proclamations shall bar the entail; these statutes only say, that fines with proclamations shall bar all parts and privies, and to strangers, if the stranger doth not bring his obit, or make his claim within five years after such fines, levied with proclamations; and the true intent of the 4 H. 7. was to take away the statute of Nonclaim, enacted the 34 Ed. 3. cap. 16. and to bar to the entail-tail any more than 18 Ed. 1. had done; as appears by the statute of 32 H. 8. 36. which ordinates fines levied, and nonclaim at fop. to bar the tail. 3 Tenk. 87. pl. 68.

As the faving is general to all persons and their heirs, notwithstanding nonage, infancy, &c. so is the condition general, to all heirs whatsoever they are, the words being, and to those possessor of their title, claim, &c. within five years after proclamations; for otherwife the faving shall be for all heirs, and the (fj) shall be all of heirs within age, and then the (fj) is not so large as the faving; and to the heir within age is bound to the condition of the first faving, as well as he is saved in the faving of the statute.

Heir in tail and heir in fee are all one by this statute. 3 Le. 227. pl. 304. Anon. M. 31 El. C. B.

Tenant in tail levies a fine with proclamations, and the five years pass in his life-time, and he dies; and per five judges against three, the fine shall be barred, for this fine, by the 3 Rep. 120. cited by fines, S.P. Br. Tail. Donor, &c. pl. 2. cites 19 H. 8. 6. that by the bell opinion the fpane shall be bound by the statute of 4 H. 7. c. 24. Bussack, and so fee that this statute, and the new statute of 32 H. 8. 36. are of one and the same effect, except that the one is an explanation of the other, and by tie one and the other, privies shall be bound immediately after proclamations which may be finnished in four terms, quot notas; and the five years is for strangers.

Sect. 4. To their heirs. Hobart Ch. J. said, that it was adjudged in the case of Godfrey v. Hats, that the fine of the estate-tail, being proclamations, notwithstanding, is not void as against the heir, a party to the suit, and the words, the oft'it is heir to him; but he said, that this word (heir) shall be expounded as (his heir), and that so they use to expound this statute which binds parties and privies, and that in such case the oft'it is not prior to the youngest; for he claims before him. Wrench 125. Hill. 32 Jas. C. P. in the case of Hilliard v. Sanders, 2 Roll. R. 500. 501.

Such right, claim, and interest, &c. It was resolved, that these words extend to the interest of a levy for years, tenant by fificate-merchant, fificate-flappe, eligit, guardian by himself or his children, eligit, by his executors, his late executors, paid, and every other such interest. Pacyh. 10 Jas. C. B. 5 Rep. 124. Soffy's cafe, cites Pl. C. 374. a.

Coffey's lands are within the words and meaning of this act. Pacyh. 10 Jas. 9 Rep. 152. Pacyh's cafe.

A fine with proclamations and five years bars all corportion, and every other corporation, and their successors, for ever, (by equity of this statute, the) speaks only of men and their heirs (as) Mayor and commonalty, Dean and chapter, &c. but it's otherwise of corporations which have not absolute ofides, without others, as Bishops, Deans, &c. But themonially shall be barred by the Statute of Monies, five years, and every successor shall have new five years. Pl. C. 538. Trin. 20 Eliz. Craft v. Hesell.

So an officer having land pertaining to his office as a pakey, &c. shall be barred by a fine levied by his dis-
of the saving is, that the party pursue his right within five years after his return, and this condition was never performed, because he never returned, yet there was no defect in him to prejudice his heirs, and the fine for the fault was by the other saving which relates to

§ 2. Having any right, or titles, or coats of arms

So that a fine with proclamations lands only as have thine, and he says, "This is not facets, common, other, or the like, out of the land, so that they shall not be concluded of their rent, common, eftatories, ways, or the like, they claim not within the five years. For the statute speaks only of the lands, and leaves none of the profit appender out of the land. Br. Finks, pl. 173.

Se 26 of an authority to sell land, he, who has such authority, may fall after the five years after proclamations; for he has no interest in the land, but has power only to sell it. Br. Finks, pl. 173.

Sect. 9. Concluded by the said fines for ever! If tenant in tail levy a fine, the issue in tail is priory, and therefore barred of averting quid partes fines salis habentur; are adjudged, per tist. cur. Ls. 85. Mich. 29 & 30 Eliz. C. B. Zouch v. Bannielf, cited 3 Rep. 88. in the case of fines. M. 5. C. A. issue in tail is priory; because if the fine be ered to him by a rent or a way of error, which he could not have, if he was not privy. And 171. S. C. arg. cites 10 H. 8. 6.

Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 2. Enact, That all fines with proclamations to be levied in the Common Pleas, shall be proclamed four times only, viz. one in the term in which it is ingredied, and one in every of the three terms bolden next after the same ingriend; and every fine so proclamed shall be of force, as if the fame had been sixteen times proclamed according to the statute heretofore made.

If the conuice dies, the heir hath election to have the fines with proclamations, as well as the ancestor. For it's for his benefit, and the statute does not refrain it. And the reason of 8 Eliz. 254. why the proclamations were tried after the conuice's death, was, because a fomedan was depending, and that was only in the dierection of the court. C. G. 693. Mich. 41 & 42 Eliz. B. R. Wakfeld v. Higlone.

The proclamations do not make the eftate, but enure to them made by the fine, and the bar according to the eftate; which passed before the fine. Papb. 63. in cafe of Harry v. Farce.

The proclamations serve only to distinguish, that it is a proclamations to the King in 4 H. 7, for though the issue having notice by the proclamations brings his fomedan accordingly, yet it shall not avail him. 3 Rep. 91. Pocci.

44 Eliz. in cafe of fines.

Where a fine, and five years past, are urged to bar a right, & if, by non-claim within the statutes, he must forfeit the proclamations under seal; and the chirographer's mentioning that 'tis a fine with proclamations, as is usual, will not ferre. Clat. 51. 13 Car. Allen's cafe.

A fine with proclamations when given in evidence, ought to have the proclamations indentured on it; and 'tis not enough to say that it is from the Common fflatuts, Held on the 25th of May, 1712. by Sir R. 2 Obsou. 126. p. 125. Tim. 32 Car. 2. R. Ausl.

32 H. 8. cap. 36. (initiated, For the expiation of the statute of fines) fett. 1. Enacts, That all fines levied before the juries (viz. of the Common place) with proclamations, are void; and the statute, (viz. 4 H. 7. c. 23) by persons of full age, of lands before the fine levied in any wife intuiled to the perfon levy the fine, or to any ancestor of the fame perfon, shall be, after the fine levied, ingrossed, and proclamations made, a bar against the persons and their heirs claiming the lands levied, by force of such a fine, and against all other persons claiming the fame to their use, or to the use of any heir of any of the bodies of them.

Sect. 2. Provided, that this act shall not bar any perfon, by reason of any fine levied by any woman after the death of her husband, contrary to the statute 11 H. 7.

cap. 20. of lands of the inheritance or purchase of the husband, or his ancestors, assigned to any such woman in dower, for term of life, or in tail.

§ 4. That the statute do not extend to any fine levied of lands, the owners whereof, by any express words in any act of parliament made since the 4 H. 7. are restrained from making any alienations.

Sect. 4. Provided, that this act shall not extend to any fine to be levied by any person of any lands, before the levying of such fines, if the proponent should prove, of the name, or to their ancestors, in tail, by letters patent, or by acts of parliament, the reverson whereof, at the time of the fines levied, being in our Sovereign Lord, his heirs or successors. This act is properly a statute, nor do fines receive any strength or virtue by it; but it is only a confirmation of 4 H. 7. and whereas this statute continues 4 H. 7. to extend to fines levied by tenant in tail, the eftate shall be adjudged in law, to be bound by 4 H. 7. and not by this statute, which is rather a judgment upon 4 H. 7. than any new statute. Per Periam J. L. 76. Mich. 29 & 30 Eliz. C. B. in the case of Zouch v. Bannielf.

Sect. 1. By perfon of full age before the fine levied) IV. desined lands to f. when he should come to the age of 25 years 25. after 21, and before 25 years, levies a fine with proclamations, and he has issued M. and died; and the question was, Whether the estate-tail in futes, and contingencies, at the time of the fine levied, was barred or not; and it was resolved that it was, and yet the conuor had but a mere possibility, to have the estate, at the time of the fine levied, and though he was not foled by force of the fine, at that time, yet by force of the words (before the fine levied in any wise intuiled) an estate-tail in futes is comprehended; but no judgment was entered. Per Warner J. 10 Rep. 50. in Lampl's cafe, Citens Hill. 29 El. Ket. 814. Graner's cafe. Raym. 150. & C. cited. Pigafher in the conuor is not requisite to the fine, but to bar a bar of an estate-tail. By the words of the statute, a fine doth bar the intail in many cases, where the conuor cannot give the land, because he has it not. Per Hobart Ch. 1. H. 258. Mich. 16 fosc. in the case of Duncombe H. 8. Reginald, a conuice.

Tenant in tail dissamines and disfranchises the disseminates, and levies a fine, with proclamations to A. for connexana dita come esse, & c. and takes an estate in fee by render, in the same fine. The disseminates, before all the proclamations are made, claims, and after the proclamations pass, and be ingredied one year after by the tenant in tail dies seized; and by all the juries of C. B. the heir is not remitted to the said lands; and this was by virtue of this statute, which bars tenant in tail, and his heirs by the said fine. Acheb. 210. b. pl. 17. Tim. 4 Eliz. Ausl.

A. before this statute gave lands in tail, remainder to the King in fee; tenant in tail had issue three daughters; one of the daughters, in Queen Elizabeth's time, levies a fine of her part with proclamations, and they are barred during her life, and she dies without issue; and it was adjudged, that this fine by force of this statute barred the daughters, and that he is not entitled to the fine; and by all the juries of C. B. the heir is not remitted to the said lands; and this was by virtue of this statute, which bars tenant in tail, and his heirs by the said fine. Acheb. 210. b. pl. 17. Tim. 4 Eliz. Ausl.

A. before this statute gave lands in tail, remainder to the King in fee; tenant in tail had issue three daughters; one of the daughters, in Queen Elizabeth's time, levies a fine of her part with proclamations, and they are barred during her life, and she dies without issue; and it was adjudged, that this fine by force of this statute barred the daughters, and that he is not entitled to the fine; and by all the juries of C. B. the heir is not remitted to the said lands; and this was by virtue of this statute, which bars tenant in tail, and his heirs by the said fine. Acheb. 210. b. pl. 17. Tim. 4 Eliz. Ausl.
Tenant in tail and his heirs male, the reversion being in the King, suffers a common recovery, or levies a fine, and by the opinion of the judges, the less is barred, though it be made contrary to the statute, and the statute, and the rev's of the judgment; and Eggesfield said, that he had known this case, and the cafe was held by good advice to be a bar; but Story doubted. D. 32. a. 11. It was resolved, that if tenant in tail, of the gift of the King, levies a fine, and suffers a recovery of the estate-tail, it is lawful to recover the King for money grants in tail, per Curia-tre. Hille and Richardson. Ibid. in marg. cites Hill. 5 Co. 1, Cor. C. of Nottingham v. Le Monjo.

Pac., 28. H. 8. Fine levied by tenant in tail, the reversion in the crown, bound the fine by 4 H. 7., and the 32 H. 8, provides, according to this case, shall not extend to fines levied by tenant in tail, the reversion in the crown; but that the same shall be lawful, as force, as they should have been, if that act had not been made, which amended not their case. Whereupon in Staffor's cafe, the judges devised to help that fip, by a very oblique and irregular method, and the same was held, whereby it was provided, that no common recovery in that case should bind the fine, but that he might enter after the death of tenant in tail; the said recovery, or any thing done or suffered by or against such tenant in tail, to the contrary notwithstanding the 8. H. 8. Staffor's case and Noy's cafe. Per Hobart. H. 328. 533. Mich. 16 Joc. 1st in Maccullulam's cafe. Sot. 125.

A point intended for a special verdict, whether, a non-claim for five years after the fine should bar the fine that omitted to claim, so as to bind him for his life, tho' it would be no bar to his issue. But the jury found a claim by him, and fo the point came not in question. See Sid. 160. Lloyd v. Pollard, and 1 Ed. 620. S. C. and cites C. E. 595. where 'tis the opinion of some of the judges, that fuch fine so levied by difliver, &c. halft bar the tail, and that it is causa smutis out of the statute, and to that of the jury is bound the fine in tail. But the parties agreed. Ex. 210. Parker v. Ponder. The Lord Keeper's opinion was, that howsoever 4 H. 7. was, at the making thereof, as to barring, or not barring an estate-tail; yet when 32 H. 7. comes, and declares upon 4 H. 7. now all fines are good from 4 H. 7. to bar estate-tail. Sot. 92. Hill. 35 Co. 2. B. R. in cafe of Pollard v. Lloyd.

A. A woman, tenant for life, remainder to B. in tail. A. levies a fine, and her husband levied a fine to B. the remainder-man, and took back, by render, a rentcharge; A. and B. died, and the issue in tail enters, and by the opinion of the judges, the grant and render by the said fine is out of this statute, and shall bind the issue in tail. But the parties agreed. Ex. 210. Parker v. Ponder. The Lord Keeper's opinion was, that howsoever 4 H. 7. was, at the making thereof, as to barring, or not barring an estate-tail; yet when 32 H. 7. comes, and declares upon 4 H. 7. now all fines are good from 4 H. 7. to bar estate-tail. Sot. 92. Hill. 35 Co. 2. B. R. in case Pollard v. Lloyd.

So in the tail, [5 later patents] In two cases this statute seems to weaken the statute of 4 H. 7. in the case of fine by tenant in tail, by act of parliament, and tenant with rev's in the crown. Per Hobart Ch. J. Hob. 331. Mich. 10 Joc. 1st in Maccullulam's cafe. 7.

Vol. 11, p. 75.

FIN

If tenant in tail levies a fine, and dies before the proclamations are past, though a right really defends to the issue, there is no bar but that act which was made contrary to the statute, yet after the proclamations the intail is barred; for the proclamations distinguish the fines which bar the intail from those at Common law, which only discontinue it; and by the express words of 32 H. 8. all fines levied with proclamations of any lands intailed to the person for life, the tenant in tail, making the intail to any of his ancestors, shall immediately after the proclamation be adjudged a sufficient bar against the said person and his heirs, claiming only by force of the intail. 3 Co. 86. Plow. 437. 437. 2 And. 177. 66 Mar. 618.

He was adjudged, that where A. was tenant for life, remained to B. in tail, and B. levied a fine, and died before all the proclamations were past, his issue being out of the realm, that after the proclamations were past, though the issue, immediately upon his return into the kingdom, made his claim to the remainder, yet it availed him nothing, but the fine was a final bar to him. 3 Co. 87. cafe of fine.

So it is if there be grandfather, father, and son; and the grandfather being tenant in tail, confers the father, and afterwards discharges him, and then levies a fine with proclamations to his son, but before the proclamations were all past the son died, and after they were all past the conuene entered, and the son got the cause, he found it was lawful to recover the fine, and the fine brings his formado; the conuene placed the fine with proclamations, and the demandant thereupon the entry of his father's, but could recover nothing; because after the proclamations past, the fine was a good bar to the intail, which was made to the grandfather who levied the fine. C. E. 597. 3 Co. 87. It was this:

And the law is the same in case of actions brought, as of an entry made to preserve the intail; for if tenant in tail levies a fine, and dies before the proclamations are past, and the issue in tail brings a formado, the conuene may plead the fine with proclamations, though he was made pending the writ. 3 Co. 95. Plow. 437.

And this has been carried so far, that though a particular tenant, who is a stranger to the tenant in tail, should enter before the proclamations are past, to preserve his own right, yet the intail is barred; as if A. tenant for life, remainder to B. in tail, remainder to C. in fee, and B. discharges A. and levies a fine, but before the proclamations are past, the tenant for life enters, and avoids the fine as to himself and C. though in this case, neither the estate of A. nor C. is affected by the fine, yet after the proclamations are past, the intail is barred from the proclamations made, and can any part of the issue preserve it. C. E. 610. P. 65. 66.

As tenant in tail may convey his whole estate by the fine, so may he have any lesser estate out of it, which shall likewise bind the issue at his death; as if there be A. tenant for life, remainder to B. in tail, and B. agrees to make a lease for years to J. S. upon writ of covenant brought by B. against J. S. he may levy a fine crown ore, &c. to B. and J. S. may render them to J. S. for the term agreed on, with reversion of a rent; and this shall continue in force against the issue, because when J. S. conveys the fine, because he has real right, the tenant in tail, as he was a tenant in tail and the intail of the land continuing, no incumbrance of the donee can affect the land in the tenant in tail.

1 And. 6. 3 Co. 89. Dyer 213. Plow. 435.

If there be A. tenant in tail, the remainder to B. in tail, the remainder to the right heirs of the tenant in tail, and the tenant in tail bargains and sells the lands to J. S. and his heirs, and then levies a fine to him; this
If a tenant be tenant in tail, the remainder to B. in fee, and A. levies a fine with proclamations, and then B. dies, his heir within age, and then A. dies without issue, and five years paes without any action brought by the heir, yet he shall either, during his minority, recover the land notwithstanding the five years lapsed, because the right first accrued to him, B. having no right to the land by the remainder, till the estate-tail was spent, which did not happen in his life; or the heir of B. may defer making his claim till he comes of age, and then by the express words of the act he shall have five years to recover his right.

It is a rule, that an intestate is not barred by a fine that is not devolved and turned to a right; for if the person who has the right continues in possession at the time of the fine levied, he is under no necessity to make his claim, and cannot be put to his action or entry, which are the only remedies the act gives to avoid fines and secure one's interest, because he being in possession, and not disturbed by the fine, has already all those remedies it can give him, and therefore it was fruitless and unnecessary to pursue them; as if a man levies a fine of land out of which he has a rent, common, or the like, the fine and five years nonclaim shall not affect me, because I am still in possession of my rent or common, and it were in vain to endeavour to recover what I still enjoy.

If tenant in tail be defeised, and the diffelee levies a fine, the diffelee has five years to make his claim by the first faving, because he is the fift who has a right at the time of the fine levied; and if he omits to make his claim in that time, the fine is bound for ever. 3 Co. 87. Cro. Eliz. 86d. C. Lit. 372. Though the statutes 4 Hen. 7, and 32 Hen. 8, have made the operation of fines stronger against parties and privies than they were at Common law, for by them the fine in tail is bound, though not in remainder or reversion; yet have they enlarged the privilege that strangers had at Common law to avoid them, for upon these statutes they have five years from the fine to make their claim, where they have a present right at the time of the fine levied; and where it accrues after the fine, they have five years from the time of such accrue; whereas by the Common law in both these cases a stranger had only a year from the entry of the fiver, at which time the land palled. 2 Bac. Ab. 532.

If tenant in tail bargains and sells his lands, or difenfions the tail, and the bargaine or difenfionee levies a fine, the fifth five years pafs in the life of the tenant in tail, yet the iflee shall have five years after his death to avoid the fine; for his father having given all his right by the fale, could not claim any right against his own gift; the iflee therefore is helped by the fcond faving, because he is the fift to which a claim by faving should be made, and the fine levied. 2 Bac. Ab. 532.

If a mortgagee be defeised, and five years pafs after the proclamations, the mortgagee is hereby barred, but if the mortgagee pays or tenders his money, he has five years to prosecute his right by the fcond faving in the act, because his title did not accrue till the payment of the money. 2 Bac. Ab. 519.

If an infant diffelee be defeised, or makes a feoffment, and the feelee or diffelee levies a fine, and five years pafs, the first diffelee is barred of his right by the first faving in the act, because he has a present right, which he ought to purfue immediately by action or entry; but the infant defeised have five years from his full age to avoid the fine, because no laches is to be imputed to him from the time he arrives at his full age. 2 Bac. Ab. 532.

A. held of Black-Acre in fee is defeised by B. who levies a fine after the death of the life A. ares the life of A. three years after the fine levied, A. dies, and his right descends to C, his grandson, at his heir, who at the time of the devifent of fuch right was an infant; and the question was, whether A. and G. having affered five years after the fine levied to pass during his ares, and the fine is good; but the child, for making a claim, should be barred, or should have other five years upon his arrival at full age to make his claim in; and it was adjudged, that he should not, but that he was barred, and that by virtue of the first faving in the 4 H. 7. which saves to every perfon and their heirs, other than parties to the fine, the right, claims and interest as they have in lands and tenements whereof a fine is levied, that they pursue fuch right by way of action or lawful entry within five years. Now A. having a right to Black-Acre at the time the fine was levied, consequently he and his heirs must be comprehended in this faving, but then they cannot take the benefit of fuch continuation unless they perform the condition of levying again an action in the faid faving, which they apparently neglected to do, for neither A. nor his grandson made any claim or entry, or brought any action for recovery of their right within the five years; and therefore fuch right must be barred and extinguished; and G. in this cafe shall have no privilege of instance, because the statute extends that only in cafes where the right fift attached in the infancy, and therefore shall have five years after his infancy to make his claim; but here the right was fift in A. at the time of the fine, and the statute allows but five years to pursue the right from that time it accrues, which was not done in this case. Plow. 350 to 372.

But if A. be tenant in tail, the remainder to B. in fee, and A. levies a fine with proclamations, and then B. dies, his heir within age, and then A. dies without issue, and five years paes without any action brought by the heir, yet he shall either, during his minority, recover the land notwithstanding the five years lapsed, because the right first accrued to him, B. having no right to the land by the remainder, till the estate-tail was spent, which did not happen in his life; or the heir of B. may defer making his claim till he comes of age, and then by the express words of the act he shall have five years to recover his right.

A. leaves to B. for years, to commence after a former lease in effe; the first lease is determined, and before any entry is made thereunto, another lease is made to A., who levies a fine, and five years paes without any claim, B. is barred of this interest; for by the general clause, the fine concludes all privies and strangers, and the first faving includes the leflee in repect of the word interfich, which a term for years may properly be called. 5 Co. 124 Ch. 1. Cro. Jac. 61. 5 Co. 124 a.

But if B. who had the future interest, had died before the determination of the first lease, and upon the expiration thereof the leflee had entered and levied a fine; and after the first five years administration was granted, the administrator should be allowed five years to make his claim; for none had a right or title of entry before, and it accrued to him by the administration after the fine, and consequently he shall be allowed five years from the accruing of his right, but in the former case the leflee had a right of entry at the time of the fine levied, and therefore could have but five years from that time; but if the life A. was a remainder, the second lease shall have five years after the first lease is determined, because his right then first accrued. 1 Leon. 99. 2 Leon. 157. Cro. Jac. 61. 5 Co. 124 a.

As if a man settles lands to the use of himself for life, and that he should make a jointure to his wife, and a lease for life to his son, leaving the same to the son also for life; and then the tenant should make the sale, which was not touchèd by the fine; besides, this being an interfich termini, the leflee had no right till after the death of the leflee, consequently must have five years from
FIN
from the accruit of his right to prefer it. 1 Hard. 410, 143.

A coyptholder may be barred by a fine and nonclaim, because it is an interest within the statute; so executor, that have land till debts and legacies are paid, may be barred by a fine and five years nonclaim, because they likewise have an interest within the words of the statute. 2 Dea. 241, 242; 1 Dea. 224. You may be ruled in Chancery, that where A. devises lands to B. in tail, remainder to C. in tail, subject to the payment of legacies; and C. levies a fine, and five years passes without any claim, that the legacies are not barred by the fine; for C. having no title but under the will, the purchaser may be presumed to have noticed thereof, and legacies thereby bequeathed. 2 Fern. 662.

If there be tenant by elevit, statute-merchant or staple, and a fine levied of those lands, and five years passes without any claim, they are bound by the fine, because they have each of them an interest within the words and intention of the statutes, and thereby shall be bound if they do not pursue their rights within five years. 2 I. 517. 5 Co. 124. 4. Plow. 374. So it is if an inquisition upon an elevit be found, and then a fine be levied of the lands, and five years passes without any claim, the interest of the tenant is barred, because after the inquisition found, he has had his release of the whole estate, his interest is barred, and may have a decree of ejectment or trespasse, and therefore their interest may be displaced, and consequently their right barred. 1 I. 217.

But if a man have a judgment for a debt at Common law, a fine shall be levied, or by a tenant in tail, or a copyhold, or in remainder, unless by fine, and five years passes, the plaintiff may still have a fieri facias and an elevit; so it is of a conoufee of a statute before execution used; for tho' the judgment and execution be incumbrances that are chargeable upon the elevit, yet before execution sued, the conoufee, as he has no right to the land, his release of all his life, and the land will not hinder him from suing out execution, and consequently they cannot be barred by a fine, unless they omit to make their claim in five years after the extent, for then their right first accrues. 1 I. 127. So if a man have a decree in Chancery to charge lands, and the tenant in tail, after the death of the first, and five years passes, yet the plaintiff may have execution, because the decree be executed, he has no right to the land, and therefore is not obliged to make any entry or claim to prefer it till his title accrues. 1 Chan. Cof. 268.

If levee for years be oublé, and be in reversion disfiefled, and the disfrifee levies a fine, this and five years nonclaim shall bar both, because the leeree for years may have his ejectment, and the leeree his alfife. 9 Co. 105. But if levee for life be disfiefled, the reversioner shall have five years after the death of the particular tenant, but for the first five years he has no action to recover the freehold. 9 Co. 105, 5. Co. Litt. 269. Plow. 374.

If levee for life or years makes a refund and levies a fine, and five years passes without entry or claim by the reversee and then the levee dies, the reversee has five years to preserve his right, because he has two different rights in the same entry; for he has a lease in the land, and the land itself. He being one immediately accrueth by the act of the leeree in committing the forfeiture; the other upon the death of the levee or expiration of the term, and therefore shall not forfeit the left by omitting to take advantage of the first; wherefore if the reversee omits to enter upon the breach of the condition in law, yet his old estate, which accrueth upon the death of the levee, or expiration of the term, still continuing, is found by the statute, which prefers future rights, as well as those in f. a. 1 I. 241. 3 Ke. 371, 372. Raym. 216. Mod. 71. 3 Co. Eliz. 235. 3 Co. 78. 3 Co. Litt. 157. But if tenant in tail die before the levies be taken, it never expires, and then levies a fine with proclamations, and dies without issue, and five years passes without any entry or claim, the remainder-man is barred, because upon the death of tenant in tail without issue, his title commenced, and shall be as good but five years from thence to prefer it. 3 Co. Litt. 156.

If there be tenant for life, the remainder to B. in tail, and the leeree to F. being out of the realm; if B. dies beyond seas, the If. is in tail, the levies shal take effect when he pleases for that clause of the 4 H. 7, which gives permons out of the realm, intimates, &c. and their heirs, five years after their impediments removed, to pursue his right, cannot be extended to this case, because B. being out of the realm to make him, the clause limits five years to him and his heirs after his return, which now is become impedible. 2 I. 519.

A coyptholder of a dean and chapter levied a fine with proclamations, and five years pass without any claim by him that was in the dean and chapter, yet the exceeding dean was not bound by the fine; because if that were allowed, the statute of 1 & 2 Eliz. would be of little use to refrain alienations; for then by combination between the dean and tenant, all lands belonging to the chapter might be aliened. 1 I. 317.

If levee for years affigns his term in trust for himself, and afterwards purchases the inheritance, and occupies the land, and then levies a fine, and five years passes without claim by the assignee, the term is lost, for neither the eofuit que trus, nor the termor, have any remedy, nor the eofuit que truus, because he by the fine hath acquiesced in the title of the conoufee, and it were unreasonable to allow him any pretensions after fol levis a conoufee to the contrary; nor the termor, because he having a right at the time of the fine levied, and omitting to make his claim within five years, is barred by the express words of the statute; for it is if it in fee-simple makes lease for a hundred years to attend the inheritance in trust for himself, and shall continue in possession, and makes a lease for fifty years, and levies a fine for conseuace de droit to confirm it, and five years pass without any claim by the first lease, his interest is barred, and he has no interest by fine; for the second lease, and the fine devolved the first term out of the lease, and consequently if there be no claim by him in five years, his interest must be barred. Cro. Cas. 110. 1 Lea. 270. 1 Sid. 478. 1 Part. 8. 1 Chan. Rep. 51, 65.

But if a man purchases the fee-simple of Black Acre, of which there is a long lease in being, and the conveyance is made by fine, and the purchaser to protect the inheritance has an assignment of the term in trust for himself, though the termor makes no aim in five years; yet the term continues, because the statute of fines being made for the security of the purchasers, they would weaken the interest, if fines deferred such leases against the intention of all parties, 1 Sid. 460. 1 Part. 82. 1 Lea. 272.

Thus if a man mortgages his land, and, as is usual, still continues in possession, and levies a fine, and five years passes, yet the mortgagee is not barred; for though the mortgage be in reality out of possession, yet when that is done by the consent of both parties, and the nature of the contract requires it should be so while the interest is paid, it is against the original design of the contract, that any act of the mortgageor, except the payment of the money should deprive the mortgagee of his estate, and it is less than a fraud, which the law will not countenance. 1 Part. 82. 1 Lea. 272. So if the mortgagee is in possession, and levies a fine, and the five years passes, yet upon payment of the money he may enter. 1 Fern. 132, and there laid to be a new way of foreclosure the equity of redemption; but the argument is of another case.

Thus it hath been adjudged, where a man was leeree for a part of one part of a tenant, and tenant at will of another, rendering rent, and the leeree makes a lease for life, and then levies a fine to the tenant for life, but still continues in possession, and pays the rent; this fine shall not bar the tenant's right, but to make a visibly a fraud and trick in the first levee; with which his leexe realises a fine, and the leeree had no reason to make his claim while the rent was duly paid him. 3 Co. 77.

It is agreed on all lands, that a fine and non-claim will bar a rent, because the eofuit que truus has an equitable interest, and therefore ought to pursue it by proper remedies.
remedies to secure it; yet this must be understood with the following restrictions. 1 Chon. Cofa 268. 2 Chron. Cofa 247.

1. Where the purchaser has notice of the truth, tho' the truftee convey to him by fine, and five years pass without any claim by the cefuis que trul, yet the truth is not barred, because where the purchaser has notice, he feeds the title of the vendor, and where he has to convey by evemy the land from him, shall be presumed to hold it in the same plight, and that the vendor could not make him a better title than he had himself; and when the purchaser takes it upon these terms, the truth is undifurbed, and cefuis que trul's interefte no way affected by the fine.

2. Though the truftee should convey by fine to a pur- chaser, who had no notice, and the fine, and five years non-claim, the cefuis que trul should be barred, yet if the purchaser should recover to the truftee, the bar from the reconveyance ceases, and the truth as to him revives again for he that was originally involved with a truth shall never be allowed to plead his own tortious act in his own justification; for that were to allow a man to plead his crime in his own defence, and excufe of his treachery. 2 Chron. Cofa 241, 5. 6. 1 Vern. 60, 5. C.

If lands are devoted to truftees till debts paid, and then to an infant; and they seize, and after in truth for D, and the heirs of his body, and in default of heirs of body of D, remainder to C and his heirs; The recovery of D, barred the remainder to C, as being a remainder of a truth, for a remainder of a legal ef- fect cannot be barred by the recovery of a cefuis que trul only. Atkin's Rep. 473.

6. B. by procuring in a marriage fettlement, gives his wife a power to dispose of 100l. by will to such person as the flall appoint, to be paid to the wite within one year after his death, and in default of such payment, if M. is impowered to make a lease of particular lands to rafe this fund; the wite makes an approbation of the 100l. but not the bar; the heirs of the husband mortgaged the effeate to E, who then had no notice of this power: Afterwards, on B's purchafing the effeate, the heirs of the husband levy a fine to him, and convey the equity of redemption as a collate- ral security, who then had notice of the power; five years incarcel after levying of the fine, and no claim made on the part of the appronees of the 100l. but they now bring their bill to be paid this sum. Lord Chancel- lor Hardwicke held, that the plaintiffs were intitled to the 100l. and interefte from the end of one year after the death of Anne Brickley the wife of T. B. Atkin's Rep. 477.

A bare naked power is not barred by any of the fla- tures of fines, otherwise as to an interref terminal. At- kin's Rep. 476.

6. The remedies given to strangers by claim and entry for the preservation of their rights, and of erroneous fines, and the manner of recovering them.

If a man has only a right of action, and his entry be taken away, there is claim or actual entry on the land will not bar, right, or avoid the fine; because though he has a right to the land, yet since he has not pursued it in the manner the law has prescribed, 'tis as ineffectual as if he had been quiet. 2 Bac. Abr. 539.

A man that has a right of entry may empower another to enter for him, and such entry is sufficient to avoid a fine; for what another does by my command or direction, is looked upon to be my own act. Mer. 459.

But where a man enters in my name, and without my direction; this does not avoid the fine, or preserve any right, because the statute prefers my right only in case I pursue it by entry, &c. In such a case, if a stranger enters in my name, and without my direction; in my act, and consequently cannot avoid the fine; yet in this case, if a stranger enters without my direction, and I agree to, and approve of the entry within five years, this is sufficient to avoid the fine, because my libe- rality in the event of a probable claim is equivalent to my command, and therefore the act of another by my direction is my own. Poph. 108. Co. Lit. 245.

Lesse for life levies a fine come eas, &c. and he in re- version, five years after his death, brought his ejecmpt, and a stranger by his direction delivered a declaration in ejecemption to the tenant in possession; yet this was al- judged no entry to avoid the fine. 1 Med. 10. 1 Sum. 319. 1 Vern. 45.

If an action be brought to recover lands, of which a fine was levied, and the defendant discontemns, this is no claim to avoid the fine, because the discontinuance flows from the want of the demandant to prefer his right. Dalifon 116, 107. 1 Vern. 45.

By the 4 & 5 Ann. (the act for the amendment of the laws) c. 16. f. 16. it is declared, that no claim or entry, to be of or upon any lands, shall be of any force or effect to avoid any fine levied, or to be levied with proclaima- tions, or to be barred by a batter of title, or a court of chancery shall be commenced within o-5 year after next making such entry or claim, and prosecuted with effect.

Device to A. and B. for their lives, equally to be di- vided, and after their deceases to the heirs male of their bodies, equally to be divided; and if either of them die without issue, then to the survivor and an adventure, A. and B. make partition, and D. levies a fine and suffer a recovery, and dies without issue. The entry of A. is taken away, and no title accrues by survivorship. Stran. 12.

There must be an actual entry to avoid a fine, and the demesne cannot be laid on a day before the entry. Stran. 1086.

As to erroneous fines, and the manner of reverfing them, it must be obferved in the first place, that no perfon can bring a writ of error to reverse a fine, or any judg- ment, that is not intituled to the land, where of the fine was levied; the approbation of the court, and the present tenant, unless the demandant can make out a clear title, poiffession always carrying with it the pre- sumption of a good title till the right owner appears be- sides, where the plaintif in the writ of error can't make out a title, he can receive no damage by the fine, which the writ of error always fuppofes to be done, that it should be erroneous; and therefore it is no less than tri- fling with the courts of juftice, to feek relief when he can't make appear he has received any injury. 1 Roll. Abr. 747. Dyer 90. 3 Lev. 36.

But if there be several parties to an erroneous fine, they shall have a right to the certainty that is to enjoy the land, tho' themselves can have nothing. 1 Roll. Abr. 747. Dyer 89.

Another rule to be obferved is, that nothing can be affigned for error that contradicts the record; for the records of the courts of juftice, being things of the greatest credit, can't be questioned but by matters of equal no- toriety with themselves; wherefore tho' the matter affigned for error should be proved by witneffes of the bed credit, yet the judges would not admit of it. 1 Roll. Abr. 757.

And hence it is, that in a writ of error to reverse a fine, the plaintif can't affigne to the difficulties of the record of the dudium potestates, because that contradicts the record of the conveyance taken by the commissioners, which evidently fiews that the conveyor was then alive, because they took his conveyance after they were armed with the conveyance and the dudium iudicis. Dyer 89. 8.

1 Roll. Abr. 757. Gr. Ediz. 469.

4 But
FIN

But the plaintiff in error may say, that after the connunance taken, and before the certificate thereof returned, the con on died; because this is consistent with the re-

The defendants on this ground would maintain, as former, &c. but here it did not appear, that Sir Herbert Purves know he was under age, and therefore the court not then being judicially before the court. See Eliz. 468.

If the conununance be taken before commissioners in pais, the plaintiff can't affirm for error, that the conon died before the return of the writ of covenant, for it would directly contradict the record, because the conunion in court is never made till the writ of covenant be returned; the plaintiff的设计 till then not being judicially before the court. See Eliz. 468.

If the conununance be taken before commissioners in pais, the plaintiff can't affirm for error, that the conoon died before the return of the writ of covenant, for the demunus was directed to Sir R. M. he being after the con-uance made a knight, who returned the demunus with his name and title; and this was affigned for error, that the person that took the conunion was not the same who was directed to make the return; but it was not allowed, because it contradicted the record, which is that the de-munus was directed to Sir R. M. and that Sir R. M.

vriute thereof took the conununance. Tel. 33. 1 Roll. Abr. 757.

If a demunus be awarded to two, and one only takes the con-uance of the fine, this may be affirmed for error; because where one of the commissioners only certifies the conuance, the assignment does not contradict the record;

but in this case, if the fine had afterwards been drawn up as a fine acknowledged in court, there the erroneous con-uance taken upon the demunus shall not be affirmed for error, that it shall be taken as a fine acknowledged in court only, and no averment of the fine shall be admitted to disprove the record. See Eliz. 240. Tel. 34.

If a fine is acknowledged before commissioners in the country, and the conuunace dies before the term; though no writ of covenant was fiend out, or

King's fibers entred, the court will permit the conumone to enter the fine, as of the term preceding. Lord Raym. 850.

If one of my name leaves a fine of my land, I may avoid this fine by strewing the frencal matter; as to say, that there are two of my name, one of Sale, and the other of Dale, and one of Sale, and the other not I, who am of Dale; for this is consistent with the record, because I will admit that one of my name lefled the 12 Co. 123.

No man can have a writ of error to reverse a fine that took any effect by it. 5 Co. 39.

One Parrot married A, who had an estate of inheritance of a considerable value, and whilft he was under age he prevailed on her to levy a fine with him of this deeds, the uo whereof were declared to him and her,

and the heirs of them and his, the two bodiments to the heirs of the survivor; this fine was taken in the country by virtue of a demunus posthumum to Sir Herbert Parrot, his father, and an ignorant carpenter; after which the wife died without issue, and now her heir at law proved the relief of the court; upon examination it did appear, that

Sir Herbert did exact the woman, whose wife he desired willing to levy the fine, and said her husband and her,

whether she were of age or not, and both answered that she was; and now her heir moved, that this fine might be fet aside, and a fine imposed upon the commissioners for levy, that the plaintiff in error to reverse a fine before the age of one under age; but all the court agreed they could not meddle with the fine; but if the wife had been alive, and still under age, they might bring her by habeas corpus, and inspect her,

and set aside the fine upon motion; for perhaps the husband would not bring or proceed for the said writ of error; and the court were of opinion, that it was the duty of commissioners to inform themselves of the state age, and that a voluntary ignorance would not

Vol. II. No. 75.

FIN

execute them; and that if a commissioner to take a fine
do execute it corruptly, he may be fined by the court;

for in relation to the fine (which is the proper benefit of the court,) he is in it, as another, &c.

but here it did not appear, that Sir Herbert Purves knew she was under age, and therefore the court

would not fine him. 2 Fin. 30. 1 Madi. 245. S. C.

12 Co. 121. 1 Roll. Rep. 113, 114. S. C. 12 Co. 123.

12 Co. 124.

A having inveigled his wife to levy a fine of her land to him when the lay on her death bed, pretending, as was fugled, he was to have it for his life; and a demunus was sent into the county to take the fine, and the caption was taken the very day she died; and because the fine would be void if the party being dead before the King's fiber was paid, the same was directed in the tale, and made to bear due ten days backward, and all the other parts of the fine were rafed likewise, and made to correspond with it, and the King's fiber was paid, and to all appeared on the record to have been done before the death of the woman; only it it bought in the court of Chancery to have the fine set aside, or to have a reconvenance, it was held by the court, that though Chancery ought to relieve as much against a fine obtained by fraud or prize, as any other kind of conununance, yet that such relief was not by decreing a writ of vacut of one under age; but for any error in the fine, or irregularity, or ill practice in the commisioners, it was a matter properly cognizable in that court where the fine was levied, and for which that court may reverse the fine; but there being no proof of fraud or prize in this case, the bill was dismiff.

Abdy, Cales in Equity 258.

Husband and wife, the wife being but sixteen years of age, levied a fine, which was taken by virtue of a de-munus, and they being brought into the court of C. B. by having their complaint taken as a fine; for a complaint of the remainder-man, a court was entered of the fire good-natured woman, and the court directed the remainder-man to prosecute an information against him who took the capunance of the fine. 3 Lef. 36.

The manner of revering fines differs from the method obtained in revering other judgments; for in all other cases, where the suit is adversary, the record itself is removed; but in case of a fine the transcript thereof is removed; for where the suit is adversary, the record itself is transmitted, that it may be a precedent in like cases; but fines are only a more solemn acknowledgment or contradiction of the parties; and therefore are no monuments of the law. The suit of Dyer, who had the claim of the remainder-man, was to take the fine if the woman, and the court directed the remainder-man to prosecute an information against him who took the capunance of the fine. Lord Coke says, a fine levied in C. B. is voidable by writ of error. 1 Roll. Abr. 752. 2 N. B. 20. 1

Berndt. 51. Dyer 89. 1 Roll. Abr. 753. Co. Read. 12,

1 Salk. 337.

It an instant brings a writ of error to reverse a fine for his non-age, and his non-age, after injunction, is recorded by the court; but before the fine reveres he levied another fine to another to another, this second fine shall hinder him from revering the first; because the second having intensely barred him of any right to the land must also defer the other fine; and as it applies to this case, it would require to the land. 1 Roll. Abr. 788.

But if tenant in tail levies an erroneous fine with proclamations, and then levies a fecond fine, which is also erroneous, and dies; if the sile in tail brings a writ of error, the second fine, of which the heir might need to the dower, or the heir of the demunus, plaid in bar the second; for though there be error in the first fine, yet till that appears judicially to the court, it must be looked upon as a fine duly levied, and consequently a bar to the plaintiff, because while the second lands in force he can't have the land; but if in this case the plaintiff brings a writ of error to reverse the second fine, and the defendant pleads in bar the first fine, the plain-iff may reply upon the first writ of error, that the fecond

and second fine was erroneous; and upon the second writ, that the first fine was erroneous, and so be relieved against both; for here the examination of both fines comes judicially before the court, and if there appears any error, the court will set them aside, and not suffer them to stand in the way of the plaintiff's right. 1 Rol. Abr. 758.

But in a writ of error to reverse a fine, the defendant can't plead the same fine, now endeavoured to be reversed, and five years in bar of the writ of error, no more than in a writ of error to reverse an outlawry, can be pleaded in bar of the writ of error, quo non volet excepto ilius ret. enim pcturum definiatur. Ravn. 461. 1 Vent. 353. 2 Sid. 92, 93. 2 Jon. 181. Cro. Jac. 333. 1 Rol. Rep. 36. 2 Bulk. 244. 2 Inf. 518.

If there be a tenant for life, remainder to an infant in fee, and they two join in a fine, the infant may bring a writ of error and reverse the fine as to himself, but it shall stand good as to the tenant for life; for the disability of the infant shall not render the contract of the tenant for life, who was of full age, ineffectual. 1 Leon. 115. 315. 1 Vent. 182.

If one that is sheriff of a county levies a fine, and the writ of covenant is directed to the coroner, this is no error, but the proper method to prevent partiality. Cro. Cor. 415. 1 Rol. Abr. 797.

A writ of covenant to levy a fine ran thus, Præc. A. gallus, pro codex altæfmissæ pro deo strætis, dem. Gardenis, and the dedimus patronizet to the writ of covenant, but the præc. which was drawn up with the concord, was de duobus strægibus pro duobus strætis; but this was no error, because where the concord was pursuant to the dedimus and the writ of covenant, the præc. which forms to be a copy of the writ of covenant on paper, is more than is needful, and therefore no material error. Cro. Test. 77. 1 Rol. Abr. 794.

If the commissioners upon a dedimus return thus, The execution of this commissioun appears in a certain panel to this commissioun annexed, which is the usual form in a certain field, yet this is no error to avoid the fine, for whatever return certifies the compentence to be duly taken by the commissioners, is sufficient; and therefore if the commissioners certify the compentence under their seals, without any words, it is well enough; so if the return had been made the concord was patent in loco avusia. Cro. Test. 77. 79. 1 Rol. Abr. 794.

If a fine be levied, but the proclamations thereon are not duly or regularly made, the writ of error shall reverse only the proclamations; for where the proclamations are not all of them, or not duly made, 'tis altogether the same as if they had never been made; and then the fine remains good at Common law to work a discontinuance. Dyer 218, 182. Highl. Abr. 938.

The court will not reverse a fine without a jura faciis returned against the tenants; for the conuices are but nominal perfections; and tho' it was otherwise in the precedent in Co. Eliz. and Horn's Plead. 375. and the law perhaps does not strictly define it, yet the course of the court does. 1 Bell. 339.

Fines may be avoided where they are obtained by fraud, covin or deceit, tho' there be no error in the process; and that may be done either by writ of deceit or aver民航, making thus the fraud or covin in the Eliz. 47. 121.

Thus if a fine be levied of land in ancient demesne, the lord shall have a writ of deceit against the conuice and the tenant, and by that the fine is void. F. N. B. 93. n. Also 6.

If a fine be levied to secur ues to receive a purchaser, and the conuice pleads the fine in bar, the purchaser may aver the fraud in avoidance of the fine, by 27 Eliz. cap. 4, and such averment is not contrary to the record, because it admits the fine, but lets it aside for the covin and fraud committed in obtaining it. 3 Co. 80. a. Pleaw. 45. 6.

So if a fine be levied upon an unavowed conditional, it may be avoided by averment, by 13 Eliz. cap. 8, because such fine being levied for ends the law has prohibited, the law will not encourage any evasion out of the act, nor suffer such ulterior contracts to be supported by the

A AND the agreement is such, as will, that the afferfed A. Cecilia and J. have acknowledged the afferfed tenements, with the appurtenances, to be the right of the said David, as those which the said David hath by the gift of the afferfed A. Cecilia and J. and their heirs have been re-united and quitclaim, from and to the afferfed D. and his heirs ever. And further, the fame A. Cecilia and J. have granted, for themselves and their heirs, to the afferfed D. and his heirs, the afferfed tenements, with the appurtenances, against all men for ever. And further, the quittance, warranty, fine, and agreement, the said D. hath given the said A. Cecilia and J. two hundred pounds sterling.

1. A writ of covenant, or precedent.

G EORGE the Third, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the faith, and so forth; To the sheriff of Norfolk, greeting, Command A. B. esquire, and Cecilia his wife, and J. B. esquire, that justly and without delay they perform to D. E. esquire, the covenant made between them of two messuages, two gardens, three hundred acres of land, one hundred acres of meadow, a hundred acres of pasture, one hundred acres of wood, with the appurtenances, in Dale; and unless they fail to do, and if the said D. shall give you surety of performing his claim, then furnish by good flanksmen the said A. Cecilia, and J. that they appear before our justices of Wellmington, to be sworn to the oath of St. Michael in one month, to appear wherefore they have not done it: And have you there the flanksmen and this writ. Witness yourself at Wellmington, the day of in the year of our reign.

Sheriff's return. Pledges of profession. Sheriff A.

Sumomationes of the within-named Abraham, Cecilia, and John.

2. The licence to agree.

Norfolk. D. E. esquire, gives to the Lord the King to wit, that he hath, for the sum of ten marks, for licence to agree with A. B. esquire, and Cecilia his wife, and J. B. esquire, of a plot of covenant of two messuages, two gardens, three hundred acres of land, one hundred acres of meadow, two hundred acres of pasture, fifty acres of wood, with the appurtenances in Dale.

3. The concord.
FIN

which the said D. hath of the gift of the aforesaid A. Cecilia and J. and they have renounced and quitted claim, from them and their heirs, to the aforesaid D. and his heirs for ever. And further, the same A. Cecilia and J. have granted for themselves and their heirs, that they will warrant to the aforesaid D. and his heirs, the aforesaid tenements, with the appurtenances, against all men for ever. And for this recognition, remise, quit-claim, warrants, fines, and agreement, the said D. hath given to the said A. Cecilia and J. two hundred pounds sterling.

5. The foot, chirograph, or indentures of the fine.

Norfolk. T HIS is the final agreement, made in the court of the Lord the King at Westminister, from the day of Saint Michael in one month, in the year of the reign of Lord George the Third, by the grace of God of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, and fo forth, before the Right Honourable Charles Lord Camden, Lord Chief Justice and Justice, and other faithful subjects of the Lord the King then there present, between D. E. Esquire, complainer, and A. B. Esquire, and Cecilia his wife, and J. B. Esquire, defendants, of two messuages, two gardens, three hundred acres of land, one hundred acres of meadow, two hundred acres of pasture, and fifty acres of wood, with the appurtenances, in Dale, wherein upon a plea of covert tenure and squatter in the same, declared to be, that the aforesaid A. Cecilia, and J. have acknowledged the aforesaid tenements, with the appurtenances, to be of the right of the said David, as those which the said D. hath of the gift of the said A. Cecilia, and J. and that they have renounced and quit-claime, from them and their heirs, to the aforesaid D. and his heirs for ever. And further, the same A. Cecilia, and J. have granted, for themselves and their heirs, that they will warrant to the aforesaid D. and his heirs, the aforesaid tenements, with the appurtenances, against all men for ever. And for this recognition, remise, quit-claim, warrants, fines, and agreement, the said David hath given to the said A. Cecilia, and J. two hundred pounds sterling.

6. Proclamations, endorsed upon the fine, according to the statutes.

THE first proclamation was made the day of , in the term of Saint Michael in the year of the King within written. The second proclamation was made the day of , in the term of Saint Hilary in the year of the King within written. The third proclamation was made the day of , in the term of Easter in the year of the King within written. The fourth proclamation was made the day of , in the term of the Holy Trinity in the year of the King within written.

Fine annulando legato de tenementum quo sit duce antiquo dominico, is a writ to the justices for the disposal of a fine, levied of land held in ancient demesne to the prejudice of the lord. Reg. Orig. fol. 422.

Fine rapinendo pro terris, is a writ lying for one that, upon conviction by a jury, having his lands and goods taken into the King's hands, and his body committed to prison, obtained favour for a sum of money, &c. to be discharged from imprisonment, and his lands and goods to be re-delivered unto him. Reg. Orig. fol. 142.

Fine factum, (from the French affilectum, signifyng sometimes crassly, sometimes artificial or exact, and the substantive factus, in Latin acta,) Signifieth an absolute necessity or condition D. and B. when a man is constrained to do that which he can no way avoid, we say, he doth it de facto, and in this sense it is used, Old Nat. Brev. fol. 78, and in the statute 35 Hen. 8. c. 12; and in Perkins, Dow 321. In Abbott and Woodland's cafe, Black. ch. 94. And in Eyton's cafe, cited in Eyton's case, Ca. 6 Rep. fol. 111. G. Colv., edit. 1728.

Fine levando de tenantum terris de Regio in Episcopio, is a writ directed to the justices of the Common Pleas, whereby to licence them to admit of a fine for sale of lands held in capite, Reg. Orig. fol. 167.

Fine non rapinendo pro pertinentibus planitando, is a writ to inhibit persons to take fines for fair pleading, Reg. Orig. fol. 222.

Fines for alienation were fines paid to the King by his tenants in chief, for licence to allow their lands, according to the stat. 1 Ed. 3. c. 12. But see where they are taken away, 12 Car. 2. c. 24. 1, 6.

Fines for offences, In this, the same, is added, pecuniary punishment, or recompense for an offence committed against the King and his laws, or against the Lord of a manor: In which case a man is fined fines, fo-cere de transfusione cum rege, &c., Reg. Jud. 1. 25. 2. Colv. 2.

It seems that originally all punishments were corporal; but that after the use of money, when the profits of the courts arose from the money paid out of the Civil causes, and the fines and confiscations in criminal ones, the commutation of punishments was allowed c., and the corporal punishment, which was only in terraeus, changed into the pecuniary, whereby they found their own advantage. This begat the distinction between the greater and the lesser offences; for in the criminal major there was at least a fine to the King, which was levied by a capitaneus; but upon the lesser offences there was only an amercement, which was affe aser, and for which a disfranges, or an action of debt only lay. 2 Boc. Abr. 502.

1. Who have sufficient authority to fine and amerci, and for what offences.

2. In what actions or proceedings there ought to be a fine or amercement.

3. When, in respect of their persons, are not to be fined or amerced, and where a fine ought to be awarded, and not an amercement.

4. Of mitigating or aggravating fines; of moderating or offering amercements; and of the manner of recovering fines or amercements.

1. Who have sufficient authority to fine and amerci, and for what offences.

Reguly all courts of record may fine and imprison an offender, if the nature of the offence be such as deferves such punishment. 8 Ca. 29. Dall. 400. But no court, unless of record, can fine or imprison. 11 Ca. 43. b. Gals. 381. S. P. adjudged. Co. Lit. 117. And all courts of Common law, that have power given them to fine and imprison, are thereby made courts of record. 1 Salt. 200.

The sheriff in his turn may impose a fine on all such as are guilty of any contempt in the face of the court, and may also impose what reasonable fine he shall think fitting upon a suitor refusing to be sworn, or upon a plaintiff refusing to make a peace, &c. or upon a person neglecting to make his preface, or upon one of the jury refusing to present the articles whereof they are charged, or upon a person duly charged or constable refusing to be sworn. 2 Yog. 142. 8 Ca. 38.

Also the steward of a court-leet may by recognizance bind any person to the peace who shall make an essay in his presence, fitting the court, or may commit him to ward, either for want of furies, or by way of punishment, without demanding any furies of him; in which case he may afterwards impose a fine according to
FIN

Also the sheriff in his sworn, and to the heir of aeward of a court, have a discretionary power, either to award a fine or apprehension for contempt to the courts: as for a sutler's refusing to be sworn, &c. and the award of a court-let may either amerce or fine an offender, upon an indictment for an offence not capital, within his jurisdicdition, without any law or proceeding or trial; so that the court may way enormous, as an allay accompanied with wounding. Kilh. 66. Kilcchein 43. 11.

It is said, 'that some courts may imprison but not fine, as the confables at the petit feiffoun. 11 Co. 44. 1 Declaration 74. 1 Co. 43. 2.

Also some courts cannot fine or imprison, but amerce, as ecclesiastical courts held before the ordinary, archdeacon, &c. or their commissaries, and such who proceed according to the Canon or Civil law. 11 Co. 44. 2.

Every court of record may impinge the people to keep silence under a pain, and impose reasonable fines, not only on such as shall be convicted before them of any crime or on a formal prosecution, but also on all such as shall be guilty of any contempt in the face of the court, and so as to require an oppressive language to the judge, or obstinately refusing to do their duty as officers of the court. 11 H. 6. 17. 3. 1 Rol. Atw. 219. 8 Co. 38. 11 Co. 43. C. Est. Eliz. 581. 1 Sid. 145. 8.

If any of the jury give their verdict to the court, before, forsooth and delivered of their verdict, they may be fined. 20 10. 16.

It time out of mind a confable hath yearly been elected, and presented by the jurat at a let, and f. S. by them is elected and preferred confable, and being in court, and by the sheriff required to take his oath accordingly, refused and departs in contempt of the court, the sheriff may impose a fine on him. 8 Co. 38. b. Grieffy's cafe. Sav. 93.

So that a thiefmaison refuse to make a prejudgment in a let, the sheriff may impose a reasonal fine on him. 8 Co. 38. b.

So if one of the jurat in a let departs without giving his verdict, he shall be fined by the sheriff. 8 Co. 38. b.

If one is present when a murder is done, and does not his beft endeavour to apprehend the murderer, he shall be fined and imprisoned. 3 10b. 53. 2.

So if two are fighting, and others looking on, who do not endeavour to part them, if one is killed, the lookers on may be indicted and fined to the King. Nay 50.

If a justice-let, held within a fines, a man makes a csr, this is not properly, but be fined. 4 10b. 267. 7.

If a dead body in prision, or other place, whenupon an inquest ought to be taken, be interred, or suffered to lie so long, that it putrefy before the coroner hath viewed it, the gaoler or township shall be amerced. 1 Co. 27. 8. 2 Hawk. P. C. 30.

If any homicide be committed, or dangerous wound given, whether with or without malice, or even by misadventure, or self-defence, in any town, or in the lanes or fields thereof, in the day-time, and the offender escapes, the town shall be amerced; and if out of a town, the hundred shall be amerced. 3 10b. 53. 4 10b. 493.

Gr. Rec. 182. 2 Lem. 267. 2 Rol. 215. 1 1786. 10.

Also since the statute of Winchester, cap. 5. ordinad, that walled towns shall be kept by his from fun-fitting or fun-riling; if the felk open in any such town by night or by day, or the offender escapse, the town shall be amerced, 8 Co. 6. 8.

If, by the forest law, hue and cry is made for a trefpafs in venation, the township or village within the forset, which does not follow the hue and cry, shall be amerced at the judicio-feift. 4 10b. 264.

If the defiant ought to pay a rent to the let, pro capit late, this is not properly, but be fined, a fine in groats, and if they do not pay it, they may be amerced, for this is due and payable at the let. 13 H. 4. 9. 1 Rol. Atw. 212.

A man shall not be amerced in a let for a trefpafs to the lord himself, for he shall not be his own judge. 12 H. 4. 8. 1 Lem. 242. 2.

If a man要把 another in London, coming to the Common Pleas, to affirm a writ at the suit of the same man, because he ought to have his privilege, the plaintiff shall be fined for the contempt of the court. 6 Co. 65. 1 Rol. Atw. 218. S. C. 8 Co. 60. S. C. cited.

So if the plaintiff, in a suit in hance, be arraigned at the suit of the defendant in London, before the return of the writ in hance, this is a contempt to the court; and for this he shall be fined and imprisoned. 11 H. 33. 1 Rol. Atw. 218. S. C. Where one under countenance of law is guilty of a double vexation; as if he files in H. and pending this, files in London for the same cause, he shall be fined. 8 Co. 60. a. Goulf. 30. pl. 5.

2. In what actions or proceedings there ought to be a fine, or an amercement.

It seems, that regularly there was a fine or amercement in all actions; for if the plaintiff or defendant did not prevail, it was thought reasonable that he should be pudished for his refusal, and that the plaintiff should not be exempted, and suffer judgment against him, and sit in misericordia pro falsi camer. 8 Co. 39. F. N. B. 75.

Hence when the plaintiff takes out a writ, the sheriff, before the return of it, is obliged to take pledges of protection, which, when fines and amercements were convenient for a stiffener, the plaintiff shall not be exempted, and suffer judgment against him, and sit in misericordia, without affilling any sum in certain, which was afterwards afforded by the coroners in the pro-count, but if it were in an action of trefpafs, the court for the fine, and levied it by a capiflg. 8 Co. 60. 1 Rol. Atw. 212. 219. C. Est. Eliz. 844. 8 Co. 16.

And therefore in all actions there vi et armis, as reforc, trefpafs, &c. the defendant shall be fined. 8 Co. 59. 1 Rol. Atw. 219.

So in a writ of reception in the Common Pleas, if judgment be given against the defendant, he shall be fined and imprisoned; but in a writ of reception in the county-court, if the defendant be convicted, he shall only be amerced. 8 Co. 41. a. 66. b. 11 Co. 43. F. N. B. 73.

In a real action, so in an assait against him who recovers in the first action, if the plaintiff recover, the defendant shall be amerced, 1 Rol. Atw. 212.

If a man recovers in an affite, and dies, and his wife is endorsed, in an attaint against the wife, if he recovers, the wife shall be amerced. 40 10b. 20. 1 Rol. Atw. 212.

In an action upon the statue of Marlborough, for driving a defi infringing another county; the defendant shall be ransomed, (which admits that he shall be fined,) 30 10b. 52. 1 Rol. Atw. 327.

In an affite of rent, if the tenant be found guilty of a diffiain with force, because of a refuse done by him without vi et armis, he shall be fined, tho' this be not within the statute. 33 H. 6. 206. 1 Rol. Atw. 219.

In all judicial writ, if the plaintiff is barred, nonuit, or his cause must be rejected, he shall be amerced, because the process is founded upon a record. 8 Co. 64. a.

But as fines and amercements in those actions, not being levied, became matter of form, it was thought hard, that for any irregularity herein, a judgment should be arraigned; and therefore by the 16 & 17 Car. 2. cap. 8. it is enacted, "That no judgment, or convision by rognat affiliation, or nihil verification, shall

be
In a writ of dower, if the tenant vouches the heir of the baron, and the vouchee demands the heir; and upon this the vouchee enters into warranty, as he who has nothing by dower, &c. and if the tenant says, that he hath aliens by dower; upon which judgment is given, and the demandant shall recover against the tenant, &c., the vouchee shall be in misericordia, tho' he hath counter-pled the warranty. 12 Ed. 3. 14. 1 Rol. Atr. 212.

If the plaintiff be nonsuit, or if a writ abates by the act of the plaintiff or defendant, or for matter of form, the plaintiff, or demandant shall be amended. Co. Lit. 127. 8 Co. 61. 1 Rol. Atr. 219.

In an action brought by two, if the writ abates by the death of one of them, the other shall not be amended, because it is by the act of God, without the default of the party. 41 Ant. 18. 43 Ed. 3. 23. Co. Lit. 127. 1 Rol. Atr. 213.

So if two join in a personal action, and one is nonsuit, which in law is the nonsuit of the other, yet the other shall not be amended, because this is not his fault. 47 Atk. 3. 61 Co. 76.

If one defendant or plaintiff is nonsuit in such action, wherein summons and severance lies, and the other proceeds therein, he that is nonsuit shall not be amended. 8 Co. 61. a.

It seems to be a general rule, that if part is found for the demandant, or plaintiff, and part against him, he shall be amended. 8 Co. 61. a.

As if in action of covenant, for several covenants broke, if the plaintiff be barred for one, he shall be amended for this, though he recovers for the other. 1 Rol. Atr. 216. 1 Rol. Rep. 411. S. C.

So in an action, upon the cause, upon a promissory to do two things, failing to pay so much for certain land, and, if the vender fails it again for more than he pays, to pay so much more; and the defendant pleads in bar relief, which is adjudged no bar for part (fellicit for the last sum) and a bar for the first sum; he shall be in misericordia for this sum of which he is barred, though it be an entire promise; and he could not have an action but upon the former for which he might have acknowledged himself satisfied of that which he had released. 1 Rol. Atr. 216. 1 Rol. Rep. 411.

If the plaintiff declares, that he was oppossed of an hoy, floating at anchor in the river Thames, loaded with goods, and that the defendant fells a ship in the river, to negligently govern his said ship, that he is in pradidp navidum of the plaintiff violenter ruphat, & illum frigid & submerfit; and upon Not guilty pleaded the jury find, that quid negligentem gubernationem navis pravit, defend. per quod in navidum gravissim violenter ruphat, & illum frigid & submerfit, the defendant is guilty; & quod refluxam premittamus, that he is Not guilty; the plaintiff shall not be amended, for there is no refudinum, and the first part of the verdict comprehends all the injury complained of in the declaration. Hard. 295.

In an action of waste in demibis & gardens, if upon the writ of a servant, the defendant be found guilty in demibis, and Not guilty in gardens, the plaintiff shall be in misericordia for the garden. 14 Ed. 3. 453. S. C.

In trespass for the battery of his servant, and the taking of his timber, if the defendant be found guilty of the taking of the timber, and not guilty of the battery of the servant, the plaintiff shall be amended for this. 1 Rol. Atr. 212.
FIN

Aff. 70. 1 Roll. Abr. 217. S. C. M. 522. S. P. D. V. 89. pl. 111. Like point.

If in debt upon the statute of H. 8. for buying of tithes, the plaintiff demands 5s. for the value of the land, and the jury find the value but 10s. the plaintiff shall have judgment, &c. but shall be amerced quod the refusal of 5s. 2 & Elia. 257.

But in trespass, or other actions where the plaintiff declares ad damnum, if he's be found than he declared for, yet the plaintiff shall be amerced, because the action is founded upon an uncertainty. Cro. Elia. 257. per curiam.

In reprieve, if the defendant avows the taking of two several disfratile, for several caues, and issue is joined upon the taking of one disfratil, and found for the plaintiff, and a ville prescript entered as to the other, the plaintiff shall not be amerced. 2 Sid. 136. per curiam.

3. Whio, in respect of their process, are not to be fined or amerced; and whoe a fine ought to be awarded, and not an amercement.

The King being plaintiff or defendant shall not be amerced, nor shall the Queen confer. Co. Lit. 127. 8 Co. 61. F. N. B. 31. 3 Bull. 276.

An infant being plaintiff or defendant shall not be amerced, and this is the reason he shall find no pleged. Co. Lit. 127. 8 Co. 61. Palmer. 518. 1 Roll. Abr. 214. 225.

But if an infant defendant shall be amerced, if he pleads with the defendant, and the matter is found against him; but he shall be pardoned of course. 1 Roll. Abr. 214. Cro. Elia. 410.

But if an infant brings an action by his procure alone, and pending the action comes of full age, and makes an attorney, and after is found not, he shall be amerced. Dyer 335. pl. 41.

If an infant brings an action of trespass by guardian against two, and the defendants plead Not guilty, and at the nisi prius the plaintiff appears in person, and a verdict is found for the plaintiff, and Not guilty for the refl, and one of the defendants Not guilty; and judgment is given for the plaintiff, for that for which the verdict is given for him, & quod nihil cepit per illum for the refl, and him that is found Not guilty; sed nihil de mifericordia pro falsis clamatis. E. g. qui quosque tempore transacto, vel postea non iustius infra veniam retractavit; yet this is good, and no error. 1 Roll. Abr. 214.

If a processe is brought against an infant, and pending the plea he comes of full age, he shall be amerced for the delay after he comes of full age. 5 Co. 49. Abr. 394.

If a be voched in the right of the feme, and judgament against them, and the feme is to be amerced, they the feme be within age, the husband being of full age. 16 Ed. 3. 14. 1 Roll. Abr. 14.

In an action upon the fæco against baron and feme for fraudulent words spake by the feme, and judgment is given against both, as well the husband as the wife shall be amerced. Hob. 127.

In an action of trever and conversion against baron and feme, for the covert in of the feme during the coverture, if the feme be found guilty by verdict, and the baron not guilty, yet both shall be in mifericordia; for the amercement is not for the coverture, but for the delay of the suit, and the non-rending the fifth day, of which the baron is as well guilty as the feme. 1 Roll. Abr. 215. Co. Lit. 439. 440. 1 Roll. Rep. 293. 3 Roll. 154. 8 Co. 61.

In a writ of dower, if the tenant vouchers the baron and feme as in right of the feme, as heir to the husband of the defendant, and the voucher demand the lien, upon which the lien is thrown, and they enter into warranty, that those who have nothing by defight; and the tenant fays that they have by defect, upon which judgment is given against the tenant, &c. the feme only shall be amerced without the baron. 1 Roll. Abr. 215. 6.

FIN

If a feme covert facces a general appeal of the death of her husband, known by her to be alive, she shall be fined. 185. App. 234. 3 H. 4. 17. pl. 2.

In an affide against baron and feme, if the feme be received upon the default of the baron, and pleads in bar, and the baron does not appear, and the defendant takes issue upon the bar, and this is found for the defendant, the tenant shall not be imprisoned, for this cofferion of an outfl, because she is a feme covert. 37 Aff. 1.

1 Roll. Abr. 220.

It may be granted to be found a diffdier with force in an affide, the judgment against him shall be quod capiat. 1 Roll. Abr. 220.

So in debt upon an obligation against a baron of parliament, if the defendant pleads non est factum, and the issue is found against him, the judgment against him shall be quod capiat. 1 Roll. Jer. 220, 221.

As to the cases where a fine ought to be awarded, and not an amercement, we have already taken notice of the difference made between offences; and that for the delicta majora, such as breaches of the peace, contemptts, or disturbances committed in factes curiae, the court may fine and imprison; but that in real actions or actions of debt, the defendant is only to be amerced. 8 Co. 39. H. 180.

A man shall be fined and imprisoned for all contemptts done to any court of record, against the commandment of the King's writ under the Great seal, as in a quare imprius done in the course of any committt, attachment upon a prohibition, &c. 8 Co. 60.

But when the defendant or plaintiff, tenant or defendant se retraces, or receiveth in contemplation curiae; yet this is no contempt against the commandment of the King by writ, and therefore he shall not be fined in such case, but amerced only. 8 Co. 58. Co. Lit. 221.

If in reprieve, the defendant claims property fallly; and this in a proprietate probanda is found against him, he shall be fined and imprisoned. 8 Co. 60. a.

If a man denies a recovery or other record to which he is entitled, he shall not be fined; for it is not his act, but the act of the court; and he does not deny the record absolutely, but non habetur tale recordam. 8 Co. 60. a.

In an affide, if the tenant be attainted of a delfinant with force, he shall be imprisoned. 1 Roll. Abr. 222.

But if an affide and a rent-feck, if the affide be found a delfinant only, the judgment shall not be quod capiat, but only in mifericordia. 1 Roll. Abr. 223.

Also in an affide of rent charge against several tenants; if it be found the plaintiff distrained for this, and one of the defendants, without consent of the refl, made a receif, that one or more of the other tenants are defect; then they shall not be imprisoned, but only he who made the receif. 39 Aff. 4. pl. 4. 1 Roll. Abr. 223.

In an affide, if the tenant by his plea does not deny the outfl, though he be found a delfinant without force, yet he shall be imprisoned. 28 Aff. 15. 1 Roll. Abr. 222. 8 Co. 61.

In an affide of nuisance, if the defendant be found guilty, he shall be imprisoned. 19 Aff. 6. 1 Roll. Abr. 222. 8 Co. 61. 1 Roll. Abr. 222. 8 Co. 61.

Addio in all actions quare vi et armis, as recefo, trepass, &c. the defendant shall be fined; yet in actions of trespass upon the fæco, if the defendant be found guilty, the judgment shall not be quod capiat, but quod fit in mifericordia. 8 Co. 59. b. 1 Roll. Abr. 222. 8 Co. 59. Hob. 180.

But in trepos, if the plaintiff declares that he levied a plante in an affide and upon process f. S. was arrested by a fefiant, and that the defendant vi et armis refused him, per quod he left his debt; and upon Not guilty plaide, it is found for the plaintiff; the judgment here- upon ought to be quod desiderat capiat; for tho' the nature of the action is properly an action upon the fæco, as those who have nothing by defight; and yet this being with force to the fefiant, who was a minifter as well to the plaintiff as to the court, the action may be vi et armis. Hob. 180. 1 Roll. Abr. 222. 8 Co. 61.
FIN

If a man denies his own deed, and this is found against him by verdict, he shall be imprisoned for his felony and trouble to the jury. 1 Roll. Abr. 220, 224. 2 Bull. 230. S. P.

But in a man, where his own deed is pleaded against him, pleas non est factum, and after the nisi prius, or before verdict, ridicule veritable cognosco this to be his deed, he shall not be imprisoned, but only amerced. See Co. 60. 1 Roll. Abr. 224. 2 Rol. Litt. 42. 3 Rol. Rep. 45. No. 4. 4 Co. 3. 4. Dyer 67. 5. Rom. 202.

1 Mid. 73. 2 Sand. 189. 8. Kib. 678, 688, 694.

If a man pleads a deed of the plaintiff or his ancestor, made to the ancestor of the defendant who pleads it, and this is found against him, he shall not be imprisoned for his felony, because he could not know, whether this was his deed or not, being made to his ancestor. 28 Att. 80. 1 Rol. Abr. 224.

In trespass contra poenam, for tampering his corn; if it be found that the cattell of the defendant escaped, but not contra poenam, and tampered the corn; yet the defendant shall be imprisoned, for he ought to keep his cattell at his peril. 77 sess. 56. 1 Rol. Abr. 224. 3 C. S.

In an action upon the case, upon an offer of it, if the defendant be found guilty, the judgment shall not be good capiator, but good fit in misericordia. 1 Rol. Abr. 223.

In a suit of decease against the party who recovered in a real action, and the sheriff, if it be found that no summons was made, he that recovered before shall be imprisoned. 1 Rol. Abr. 224. 8 Co. 59. S. P.

In all c.c. where a thing is relented by any flatus, the defendant shall be fined and imprisoned. 8 Co. 60. 4 C. J. 92. 831.

As in an action upon the statute of Marylebone for driving a dirtsfill out of the county, the defendant being found guilty shall be imprisoned. 30 Att. 38. 1 Rol. Abr. 224.

In an action of debt upon the statute of 1 & 2 Pb. & Ma. of dirtsfills, upon which the defendant shall forfeit to the party grievous, for the driving a dirtsfill out of the hundred 5 l. and treble damages; if the defendant be found guilty, the judgment shall be good capiator. 1 Rol. Abr. 223.

In an action of debt upon the statute of usury, for treble the sum lent, for taking more than 8 l. per cent. if the defendant be found guilty, the judgment shall be good capiator, because he took it contrary to the provision of the statute. 1 Rol. Abr. 223.

So in an action to recover damages done to a tenement of the statute of 2 Ed. 6. for not setting forth of titles, if judgment be given for the plaintiff, the judgment shall be good fit in misericordia, and not good capiator; because this is but a debt given in recompence of titles; and this is the usual course. 2 Rol. Abr. 223. 1 Sid. 233.

So in an action for a robbery founded upon the statute of Winchester, if the defendants are found guilty, the judgment shall be good fit in misericordia; because this action is not founded upon any male-feasance, but upon a non-feasance only. 4 C. J. 350.

In a suit for thefts, for an affault and battery; if the battery was done before a general pardon, by which the fine is pardoned, yet the judgment shall be entered good capiator; for the court need not take conscience thereof without demand. 4 C. J. 38.

4. Of mitigating or aggravating fines; of moderating or effecting amercements; and of the manner of restoring fines or amercements.

Where a person is convicted of a criminal offence, and for which he ought to be fined, the measure thereof is left to the discretion of the judge, who proportion such fine so as to make it adequate to the offence, from the consideration of the bafefulness and enormity, and dangerous tendency of it, the malice, deliberation and willfulness, with which it was committed, the age, quality, and degree of the offenders. 2 Hawk. P. C. 445.

If a profecutor accepts costs from the defendant, he cannot, by the rule of the court, aggravate his fine, because in such cases, having no right to demand costs, if he take them at all, he must take them by way of satisfaction of the wrongs after which he is receivable for to harrase the defendant. 1 Saft. 55.

But as to those costs given by 5 & 6 H. 11. M., on the removing a caufe by certiorari, the profecutor is not restrained from aggravating the fine to be fet on the defendant, because he has a right to such costs by the express words of the statute. 2 Hawk. P. C. 292. 2 Saft. 55.

A fine is under the power of the court during the term in which it is set, and may be mitigated as shall be thought proper; but after the term it admits of no alteration. 2 C. Litt. 265. 3 C. Cae. 251. 6. Rom. 376.

If a person is indicted and found guilty of a great nuisance, and a writ goes to the sheriff to abuse it; if the party refuses to abuse it at his own charge, the court will raise the fine accordingly; but, if the nuisance may be easily removed, as pulling down a wall, &c. Comb. 90. Upon a motion to the fines, that every one a confession of the indictment, which was for an affault; Hilt. Ch. J. took a difference, where a man confesseys an indictment, and where it is fit; in the first case, a man may produce affidavits to prove for affaull upon the profecutor, in mitigation of the fine; otherwise the defendant is found guilty; for no entry upon a confession is only one entendre cum Domino Rey., & petit se in gravitatem causas. 1 Saft. 55.

If an accordive fine is imposed at the sefions, it may be mitigated at the King's Bench. 1 Kent. 339.

The court may make a fine, but cannot award any corporal punishment against the defendant, unless he be actually present in court. 1 Saft. 56. 422. Comb. 36. 77.

Before the statutes of Magna Charta, and H. 2. 1. cap. 6, the lords used to set such excessive and grievous amercements or other severe sentences upon persons for such grievous amercements they used to seize the whole profits of the tenements which they had granted: To prevent this oppression, and to take away all fines and amercements at the will and pleasure of the lord and his reward, and likewise all excessive fines and amercements, if they were never so certain, to statutes against, that every one an amercement should be altered; so that the court or homage do award an amercement, yet it is to be suffered by the afforers, who are so called, because they suffer or bring in the quantity of the amercement. 8 Co. 39. 2 Inst. 77.

These amercements are to be with a falsus tenementum, and were always held too grievous and excessive, if they deprived the offender of the means of his livelihood; as if he were a fackman, and the amercement extended to take away the beasts of his plough; if he were a military man, and it extended to take away his arms; if he was a merchant, and it extended to take away his merchandize, if he were a vaillein, if it took away his cart or wainage; for the words of Magna Charta are, A freeman shall not be amerced for a small fault; and for a great fault, after the greatest thereof, sparing to him his contentment; and all the rest, Likewise if a merchant, or any other; and other than small shall be likewise amerced, sparing his wainage, if he fall into our mercy. 2 Inst. 27. 28. 8 Co. 39.

But a fine may be set without affaullment, for the statute of Magna Charta does not extend to those causes, where a court of record may impound, and so a fine is set by way of mercy, as a random and purgation of the offence; for the statute was designed to mercy to the offenders, and not to hinder them from mercy. ao. fo did not extend to offenders that might be punct by imprisonment. 8 Co. 38. 2 Inst. 77. 11 Co. 43. Kelso. 65. 3 Co. Eliz. 581. Dall. Sheriff 470.

If at a court-baron, according to the custom there afe, a by-law is made, and the penalty of 20 l. laid upon every offender, and at another court a tenant is presented for a breach thereof, by which the said penalty is forfeited; foiled; this cannot be suffered. 1 Mer 75, pl. 203.
FIN

3 Lew. 7, 8. Pi. 159. S. C. adjudged.

On the pretenent of a nuisance in a torn or leet, the diftrif of the county either amerce the party, and also order him to remove it by such a day, under a certain sum, or may order him to remove it, under such a pain, without amerceing him at all; the party having notice of such order shall forfeit the pain, on a pretenent at another court, that he hath not removed the nuisance, without any further proceeding; and every pain so forfeit may be recovered in like manner as a fine or amercement by deftreft, or action of debt; neither shall it be afeord to left fum than at first fet. 1 Lew. 203.

Kiichin 51, 52. 1 Red. Ab. 498. Cr. fac. 382. 2 Red. Ab. 135. 1 Red. Rep. 201. Allen 78. 3 Lew. 7, 8. 5 Mot. 130. 1 Sail. 175.

The award of the amercement is the act of the court, but the taxing or reducing it to a certainty must be done by certain officers called afferoers, choven and sworn for that purpose; and therefore if an amercement be imposed in a court-leet, and suffered by the jury, and not by sworn afferoers for that purpose, it is a void amercement, and the lord of the court cannot maintain his afeion for it. 8 Co. 40. b. 3 Lew. 206.

Although by the express words of Magna Charta, Comites & barones non amerciabunt vixit per partem, &c. yet long usage hath prevailed against it, for the amercement of the nobility is reduced to a certainty, viz. a Duke 100, a Marquis 50, Earl 20, a Bishop who hath a Barony 5 l. &c.
2 Inst. 26. 6 Co. 54. 8 Co. 40. a. S. C.

In an afflaff, if the plaintiff does not appear, nor any for him, yet three of the afflaff may be sworn to afeer the amercement, and shall do it. 28 Af. 26. 1 Red. Ab. 203.

In treafra, if the defendant, as bailiff, &c. jufifies, for that the afflaff was prefent, &c. and fets forth, that the amercement was afeord by two afferoers, he ought to fhew their names. Kite. 66.

By the Common lawn, the King or Lord may, at their election, diftribute, or bring a prefion of debt for a fine or amercement. Cr. Elit. 881. Sawil 93. Red. Ent. 151, 553, 606. 2 H. 4. 24. 10 H. 6. 7. Royom. 68.

But every avowry or declaration of this kind ought expressly to fhew, that the offeone was committed within in the jurisdiction of the court, that if it were not, all the proceedings were coram non juicio, and a court shall not be prefumed to have a jurisdiction where it doth not appear to have one. Hob. 129. Red. Ent. 553. Co. Ent. 572.

Alo it is admissable to allodge, that the offeone was committed as well as preffen, and to fhew the names of the prefentors and the afferoers in fettin preffen a preffenment or afeerment, and also to fhew that proper notice was given of holding the court. But for this, vide Howk. P. C. 59, 60.

Of common right, a diftrees is incident to every fine and amercement, in a torn or leet for offences of right within the jurisdiction thereof; but if the offeone were only the neglect of a duty created by culmof, and of a private nature, it is clear, that there must be a culmof to warrant a diftrees, and perhaps such culmof is also neceffary, though the duty be of a publick nature. 2 Howk. P. C. 60.

Also the flerrif or lord may for fuch fines or amercements diftrain the goods of the offeone, even in the highway, or in land not holden of the lord, unlefs fuch land be in the poiffession of the crown. 1 Red. Ab. 670. 2 Red. Ab. 104.

But fuch fines and amercements being for a personal offece, no stranger's busts can lawfully be diftrained for them, tho' they have been levant and couphant upon the lands of the offeone. Owen 146. Noy 20.

If fuch court is in the King's hands, the diftrees may be fo ordered, either after it hath been kept for a reaflonable time, as the space of sixteen days; and it feme the better opinion, that where any fuch court is in the hands of a common perfon, if the goods were diftrained for an offece of a publick nature, they may be foledged, by lawful dircfion for any fuch fine or amercement without a fpecial warrant for doing, which muft be fet forth by him in an evidence or publication of fuch a diftrees. Cr. Eliz. 696. 574. Mer. 574. pl. 789. 607. pl. 839. 2 Red. 173. Sail. 158.

FIR

See 2 Bac. Abr. tit. Fines and Amercaments.

Firrte, To fires, or pat a fire upon fome property—

Impredamentum calii give viamen non beneficium pro me maritandi, & fons capitular ad opus domini regis, Roger Hoveden, pag. 783. Firrte is also the fame with fium focius in Brampton, pag. 1105. Quando Rex Scutum cum domino regis favet, &c. and in Hoveden, pag. 783.

Firttse, Dantis, fo called, because vires humar morte. Fings of gold and filver, are thoſe that expel and repel those metals from other corpses, by fire and water. Ann 4 Hen. 7, cap. 2. They are also in the fame place called porters, sometimes defoilers.

Firttift, Is mentioned in the laws of Hen. 1, cap. 3, and is the fame with fegs. From the Sax. fex, ini- minit, and the like. For fire and fire's contents.

Fira, A viol, or little bottle. Mat. Parji. 146. In aurato fola cum vinum cohitur acceperit, time omen.

Firrte, See Fétt.

Firttfe, A growing into the army, or taking up arms. 3 Hen. 3, 4. 5 Sax. firs, exercitio, &c. fire, tert.

'Tis one of the offences which properly belongs to the King's determination, qui broughiunt, i. e. a contribution towards building a caflle; brightenam, i. e. towards building a bridge; vel triads epe fruvidet, i. e. not gone into the army. Leg. II. cap. 17.

Firttftinge, A preparation to go into the army; which was another offence immediately under the cognizance of the King. Ibid.

Firttftinge, Furniture for the army. See firf things.

Firtfitfe, See Ferrofa.

Firtfitte, See Firdtlofe.

Firtftfte, A muclt or penalty imposed on military tenants for their default in not appearing in arms, or coming to an expedition. Adutiad deducta milita. LL. Cam. par. 2. ca. 22. See Firdtfte.

Firtftinge, The firs, or military military, Military men, or men worthy to take up arms, or muftrified, or enrolled to appear upon any occasional expedition. Covell. edit. 1727.

Firt. Houses in London to be built with party-walls, &c. 10 Cor. 2. c. 3. feft. 8. 22 Cor. 2. c. 11. f. 6. Directions for preventing fires in London, 6 Ann. c. 31. 7 Ann. c. 31. 8 Ann. c. 31. 9 Ann. c. 31.

Firemen exempt from being imprisoned, 6 Ann. c. 31. f. 2. Penalty on servors firing houses by negligence, 6 Ann. c. 31. feft. 3. Restrictions of boiling turpentine, 7 Ann. c. 17. fett. 11. Stock in fire-.offices taxed, 4 Gen. 3. c. 2. f. 54.

For other matters, vide Arsen. Burning.

Firtftste, Quod fines dilatantes horvi & reporari faci, fegn. & firebires fuper fantes altibres in qualibet hundr. Ila quod tua patria, per illa fegn. quasquefque necefl. fueris, praemotari perfi. &c. Observatio pr vi vigillos obfervatione in bonum publicum Yarmouth. Temp. Ed. 2. Perhaps from the Sax. firstete, a beacon, or a high tower by the fex-sides, whose were continual lights, either to direct failors in the night, or to give warning of the enemy. Covell. edit. 1727.

Firtftste, Significeth an allowance of wood or effe- vers, or military tentaments firtees for the use of the re- nants: Which by the Common law any man may take out of the lands granted to him. Covell. edit. 1727. See Hapdole.

Firoce, Our devou old ancestors had a way of pugilation, or acquitting themselves from any charge or accusation of guilt, by holy appeal as it were to God him- self, and therefore called it Dei judicium, or God's eredal. This was commonly of two forms, fire-ereral, and water- eredal. This fire-ereral, which was the privilege only of freemen, and the better sort of people, was two fold, either either fitly, by leaping bare-foot and blind-fold over nine pounde-thares red-hot, laid in length at equal dif cances, which if the defendant puffed unburnt, he was judged innocent, but if burnt, he was concluded guilty.

Or, finally, By taking a piece of red-hot iron in the hand, usually of one pound weight, which was called simplex-redor, or of two pounds, which was duplex, or of three pounds weight, which was tripexus ardumum.
Cowell, edit. 1727. See Mattronulch.

firmatim, Firmating or holding to firm. The firm-mary's or farmer's right to the lands and tenements let
to him ad firmam.—Canones firmatim.—fi firmam
status per unius membro a firmam quo firmam
bracis cel camera fidebre tebeatior, 366 foote
firmata. Statuta Eccl, Paulinum, MS. fol. 49. b. Hence autiqua farma was the old custumary rent. And affinitans
was formed out, or let for such a certain firm or rent.
Cowell, edit. 1727. See Kennel's Glafury in Ad firmam done.

firmatim, Firmatimius tempus, doe-feast, as opposed to buck-feasen.—Et fidebamus quod tempus praejudicit his computator inter firmam beati Petri ad vincola & exulationem justitiae causae; et tempus firmatim inter situm S. Martini & Donationis beatæ Mariae. 31 H.
3. Cowell, edit. 1727.

firmatim, A supplying with food: Si cirillium homo furEuropei firmatimus accedatur per juuis fitum victam neger. Leg. Ine. c. 34. f. i. occd. of giving viutuals to forgive. Cowell, edit. 1727.

firmate, A forrection or caflle well fortified; Et ninio firmatimus Saxum eafi sec firmatibus fuci lex vixit. Du Fiefne.

firmum, Feorn, food, viutuals, or firmity given by the lord to entertain his iabouring tenants.—Qutiliotibus et de debis ferme, consuet. firmatus ad firmam, & duas hostellias firmam centrali Naturae sacram
Rather perhaps rent paid in customary services.

firmura, Will. de Croif gives to the monks of Bryh
a certain mill cum libam firmura of the dom of it,—
Reg. de Daniis. De Bratbranon diles free firme, but that is still a hard word. I think it means free liberty to cut and repair the mill-dam, and to carry away the foil, &c. Cowell, edit. 1727.

firffruits and tenants. First-fruits (Annautes, pri-mitia) are the profits of every spiritual living for one year, given in the first time to the pope, and called firmata. But by the fl. 26 H. 8. cap. 3. transferred to the King here in England; for the ordering whereof, there was a court erected 32 H. 8. cap. 45. But again dissoned Anne primo Maria, Stat. 2. cap. 15. And since that time, those gifts be reduced again to the crown by the fl. 1 Ed. 4. yet was the court never reforod, but all matters the ex convers to be handled, were transferred to the Exchequer. Cowell, edit. 1727.

First-fruits (Annautes, primitia) were the value of every spiritual living by the year; which the pope, claiming the same, caused the court of Parliament to make two to the pope, and called them tenements.

Kirn, as in this ancient precent
of William the Conqueror. W illiamus Rex Anglorum Wil-
liamos de Caenensi, fol. 3. Præcipio tibi ut fasut venirem Schiram de Hamor, & judicis ejus cognose.
f terra de ibi reedivit firmam monacorum Sancti Bedeoti,
&c. Ex Regest. de Ramsey in face. Land let upad aliam firmam, i.e. at the rack, for any other rent paid in silver, not in card or provision for the Lord's house.
See Whitchell.

firmatim, A rent; as in this ancient precent
of William the Conqueror. W illiamus Rex Anglorum Wil-
liamos de Caenensi, fol. 3. Præcipio tibi ut fasut
venirem Schiram de Hamor, & judicis ejus cognose.
f terra de ibi reedivit firmam monacorum Sancti Bedeoti,
&c. Ex Regest. de Ramsey in face. Land let upad aliam
firmam, i.e. at the rack, for any other rent paid in silver, not in card or provision for the Lord's house.
See Whitchell.

firmatim, Firmating or holding to firm. The firm-mary's or farmer's right to the lands and tenements let
to him ad firmam.—Canones firmatim.—fi firmam
status per unius membro a firmam quo firmam
bracis cel camera fidebre tebeatior, 366 foote
firmata. Statuta Eccl, Paulinum, MS. fol. 49. b. Hence auti-
qua farma was the old custumary rent. And affinitans
was formed out, or let for such a certain firm or rent.
Cowell, edit. 1727. See Kennel's Glafury in Ad firmam
done.

firmatim, Firmating or holding to firm. The firm-mary's or farmer's right to the lands and tenements let
to him ad firmam.—Canones firmatim.—fi firmam
status per unius membro a firmam quo firmam
bracis cel camera fidebre tebeatior, 366 foote
firmata. Statuta Eccl, Paulinum, MS. fol. 49. b. Hence auti-
qua farma was the old custumary rent. And affinitans
was formed out, or let for such a certain firm or rent.
Cowell, edit. 1727. See Kennel's Glafury in Ad firmam
done.

firmatim, Firmating or holding to firm. The firm-mary's or farmer's right to the lands and tenements let
to him ad firmam.—Canones firmatim.—fi firmam
status per unius membro a firmam quo firmam
bracis cel camera fidebre tebeatior, 366 foote
firmata. Statuta Eccl, Paulinum, MS. fol. 49. b. Hence auti-
qua farma was the old custumary rent. And affinitans
was formed out, or let for such a certain firm or rent.
Cowell, edit. 1727. See Kennel's Glafury in Ad firmam
done.
aside, and that the twentieth part of the face of the of the land due therefor should be annually paid to the bishop of Rome. But this not being the case, the pope received the land annates to his Exchequer, as that long remained one of the most considerable parts of his re-venu.

Tenth (decima). are the tenth part of the yearly value of all ecclesiastical livings. 4 Ed. 1. 120, 121.

These tenth the pope (after the example of the high priest among the Jews, who had of the Levites a tenth of the tithes) claimed as due to himself by divine right. And this portion or tribute was by ordinance yielded to the pope in the 20 Ed. 1. and a valuation then made of the ecclesiastical livings within this realm, to the end the pope might know and be answerable of that yearly reven'je; and so as the ecclesiastical livings chargeable with the tenth (which was called spiritual) to the pope, were not chargeable with the temporal tithes or fifteenths because they were not charged to the other. So as the tenth of ecclesiastical livings were not yielded to the pope de jure after the example of the high priest among the Jews, for then he should have had the tithes of all the ecclesiastical livings whenever they were acquired, but he received tithes with that he had got, and never claimed more; and that he might the better keep and enjoy that which he had got, the popes did often after grant the fame for certain terms to divers of the Kings of England, as by our histories do appear. 2 Ed. 3 Ed. 2.

None shall pay more first-fruits to Rome than usual in time of general forfeiture, 6 H. 4. c. 1.

First-fruits and tenthub might be paid to Rome, 25 H. 8. c. 20, sed. 3.

Granted to the crown, 26 H. 8. 3.

The manner of collecting the tenth, 26 H. 8. c. 3.

Covenants for farmers to discharge their lefths of firstfruits made void, 26 H. 8. c. 17.

Bishops certifying defaults to be discharged, 26 H. 8.
c. 2, sed. 15.

None shall be paid for the year for which first-fruits are paid, 27 H. 8. c. 8.

The remedy for a seccessor who is obliged to pay his predecessor's tenth, 27 H. 8. c. 8.

The year of the first-fruits shall begin at the avoidance, 28 H. 8. c. 11.

All insurance to be made to the bishop for tenth which he cannot receive, 32 H. 8. c. 22.

The court of first-fruits ered, 32 H. 8. c. 45.

The bishop of Norwich to collect within his diocese,
32 H. 8. c. 47.

The five new-erected bishops to pay their tithes in the court of the first-fruits, &c. 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 17.

First-fruits and tithes of united churches to be paid as before, 37 H. 8. c. 21, sed. 5. 17 Cor. 2. c. 3, sed. 3.

The penalty of an incumbent not paying his tithes,
2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 20.

Collectors of tithes shall be bound by recognizances,
7 Ed. 6. c. 7.

Bishops to pay over their tithes yearly, 7 Ed. 6. c. 4.

Voil benevoences to be certified, 7 Ed. 6. c. 4, sed. 4.

The tithes given from the crown to godly uses, 2 &
3 P. & M. c. 4.

First-fruits and tithes rehorted to the crown, 1 El.
c. 4.

Small vicarages and patronages discharged of first-fruits,
2 El. c. 4, s. 25.

What proportion shall be paid by the executors of an incumbent who dies soon after his promotion, 1 Elia.
c. 4, sed. 30.

Grants to the universities, &c. to continue, 1 Elia.
c. 4, sed. 34.

Benefits referred to the dutchy of Lancaster, 1 Elia.
c. 4, sed. 38.

FIS

The statutes which make the lands of receivers unacceptable, extend to the under-collectors of first-fruits and tithes, 14 El. c. 7.

First-fruits and tithes granted to the corporation for augmenting poor livings, 2 & 3 Ann. c. 11, 1 Geo. 1.
c. 10.

Corporation may purchase lands or goods, 2 & 3 Ann.
c. 11, sed. 4.

One sixth only to be taken for the funeral payments of first-fruits, 2 & 3 Ann. c. 11, sed. 6.

Small livings discharged of first-fruits, 2 & 3 Ann. c.
24, 6 Ann. c. 27.

Four years allowed to bishops for payment of their first-fruits, 6 Ann. c. 27, sed. 5.

Bishops to certify the value of livings, 1 Geo. 1. c. 5.

Rules of the corporation to be approved under the King's sign manual, 1 Geo. 1. c. 10, sed. 3.

Augmented churches to be perpetual benefices, 1 Geo.
c. 10, sed. 4.

The duties given may be exchanged, 1 Geo. 1. c. 10.

A collector of the tithes exalted, and bishops exempted,
1 Geo. 1. c. 10, sed. 13.

First-fruits and other payments out of any ecclesiastical benefices granted out of the general garden, 2 Geo.
c. 52. sed. 38.

For more learning on this subject, see 12 Vin. Abr.
Gib. Co. and Born's L. r. Title. First-fruits and tithes.

fish and fishing. Any man may erect a fish-pond without licence, because it is a matter of profit, and for the increase of victuals. 2 Ed. 199.

1. Statutes against fishing in ponds, and other private fisheries.

2. Statutes concerning the same, and preferring the breed of fish.

3. Local and other acts relating to fish, and fishermen.

1. Statutes against fishing in ponds, and other private fisheries.

Stat. 3 Ed. 1. c. 20. If any trespassers in ponds be taken at the suit of the party, great and large amends shall be awarded according to the trespasses;
and they shall have three years imprisonment, and after shall make fine at the King's pleasure (if they have whereof) and then shall find good surety, and after they shall not commit the like trespasses; And if they have not whereof to make fine, after three years imprisonment, they shall find like surety; and if they cannot find like surety, they shall abide the realm. And if none fine within the year and day, the King shall have the suit. 3 Ed. 1. c. 20.

Trespassers in ponds] Are those who endeavour to take fish therein. 2 Ed. 100.

Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 21. sed. 7, 6. If any person shall unlawfully break, cut, or destroy any head or dam of a fishpond, or shall lawfully fish therein, with intent to take or kill fish; he shall be convicted at the suit of the King, or of the party, at the assizes or sessions, be imprisoned three months, and pay treble damages; and after the three months expired, shall find sureties for his good behaviour for seven years, or remain in prison till he be doth.
5 Eliz. c. 21. sed. 6.

Stat. 22 & 23 Cor. 2. c. 25. sed. 7. If any person shall use any net, angle, hair, noose, troll, or spear; or shall lay any weirs, pots, fish-hooks, or other engines;
or shall take any fish by any means or device whatsoever,
or the aid other things, in any river, stream, pond, moor, or other water, without the consent of the lord or owner of the water; and be thereof convicted by confession, or oath of any witnesses, before one j u ic e, in one month after the offence; every such offender in taking or killing fish, shall pay any sum not exceeding treble damages, and two to the overfety for the use of the poor, by diffreets; and for want of diffreets, to be committed to the hous of correction not exceeding one month, unless he enter into the same one surety to his party injured, not exceeding t.6. never to offend in like manner.

Sect. 8. And the justices may take, cut, and destroy all such angles, spears, hairs, nooses, taws, walks, pots, fish-hooks, nets, or other engines, wherewith such offdender shall be apprehended.

Sect. 9. What may be viewed to appeal to the next-sions, whose determination shall be final, if no title to any land, royalties, or fishery be therein concerned.

Stat. 4 & 5 Will. & M. c. 23. sect. 5. Whereas divers idle, disorderly, and mean persons, have and keep such angles, leaw, pikes, and other engines for the taking and killing of fish out of the ponds, waters, rivers, and other fisheries, to the damage of the owner thereof;
therefore no person hereafter shall have or keep any net,
angle, leaw, pish, or other engine for the taking of fish;
other than the makers and sellers thereof, and other than the owner and occupier of a river or fishery; and except fishermen, and their apprentices lawfully authorized in navigable rivers. And the owner or occupier of the river or fishery, and every other person by him appointed,
may seize, detain, and keep to his own use, every net,
angle, leaw, pish, and other engine, which he shall find used or laid, or in the possession of any person fishing in any river or fishery, without the consent of the owner or occupier thereof. And also any person, authorized by a justice's warrant, may in the day-time search the houses, outhouses, and other places of any person hereby punish'd, for other disorderly or offensive offence or behaviour, or being suspected to have or keep in his custody or possession any net, angle, leaw, pish, or other engine aforesaid, and seize and keep the same to his own use, or cut or destroy the same, as things by this act prohibited to be kept by persons of their degrees.

Stat. 5 Geo. 3. c. 14. (intituled, An act for the more effectual preservation of fish in fish-ponds and other waters, &c.) Whereas the several laws in being for the prevention of the fish in rivers, ponds, pools, moats, streams, and other waters, are by experience found to be ineffectual for discouraging or preventing such disorderly behaviour as is usually observed from stealing, taking away or destroying the fish therein laid and preserved; Be it therefore enacted, That in case any person or persons from and after the first day of June 1765, shall enter into any park or paddock fenced in and inclined, or into any garden, orchard or yard, adjoining or belonging to any dwelling-house, in or through which park or paddock, garden, orchard or yard, any river or stream of water shall run or be, or wherein shall be any river, stream, pond, pool, moat, stream, or other water, and by any ways, means, or device whatsoever, shall therein have or keep the same, who shall be therein inferred, in any such river or stream, pond, pool, moat, stream, or other water aforesaid, without the consent of the owner or owners thereof; shall be being or aiding in the stealing, taking, killing or destroying any such fish
as aforesaid; or shall receive or buy any such fish,
knowing the same to be stolen or taken as aforesaid,
and being thereof indicted within fix calendar months
next after such offence or offences shall have been commited, before any judge or justices of good delivery for the county wherein such park or paddock, garden, orchard, or stream of water shall run or be, shall be be by verdict, or his or her own confession or confessions, convicted of any such offence or offences as aforesaid;
the person or persons so convicted shall be transported for seven years.

Sect. 2. And, for the more easy and speedy apprehending and convicting of such person or persons as shall be guilty of any of the offences before mentioned, Be it further enacted, &c. That in case any person or persons shall, at any time after the said first day of June, commit or be guilty of any such offence or offences as are herein before mentioned, and shall surrender himself to any one of his Majesty's justices of the peace in and for the county where such offence or offences shall have been committed;
or, being apprehended and taken, or in custody for such offence or offences, or on any other account, and shall voluntarily make a full confession thereof, and a true discovery, upon oath, of the person or persons who were or were his accomplice or accomplices in any of the said offences, so as such accomplice or accomplices may be apprehended and taken, and shall, on the trial of such accomplice or accomplices, give such evidence or evidences,
as shall be sufficient to convict such accomplice or accomplices thereof, shall he or they be sentenced for such commission of such offence or offences, and giving such evidence or evidences aforesaid, shall, by virtue of this act, be pardoned, acquitted, and discharged of and from the offence or offences to by him convicted as aforesaid.

Sect. 3. And in case any person or persons shall, after the said first day of June, take, kill, or destroy, or attempt to take, kill, or destroy any fish in any river or stream, pond, pool, or other water, (not being in any park or paddock, or in any garden, orchard or yard, adjoining or belonging to any dwelling-house, but shall be in any other inclosed ground, or ditch, or pond of which shall be private property;) every such person, being lawfully convicted thereof by the oath of one or more credible witnesses or witnesses, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence, the sum of five pounds, to the owner or owners of the fishery of such river or stream of water, or of such pond, pool, moat, or other water: And it shall and may be lawfully required for any one or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace of the county, division, riding, or place, where such last mentioned offence or offences shall be committed, on appeal made to him or them, upon oath, against any person or persons, for any such last-mentioned offences or offences, before the justices of the peace of the county, division, riding, or place concerned, to bring the person or persons so complained of, before him or them; and, if the person or persons so complained of shall be convicted of any of the said offences last-mentioned, before such justice or justices, or any other of his Majesty's justices of the same county, division, riding, or place concerned, by the oath or oaths of one or more credible witnesses or witnesses, which oath such justice or justices are hereby authorized to administer, or by his or their own confession; then, and in such case,
the party so convicted shall, immediately after such conviction, pay the said penalty of five pounds, otherwise be imprisoned for the offence or offences aforesaid, to such justice or justices before whom he shall be so convicted, for the use of such person or persons as the fame is hereby appointed to be forfeited and paid unto; and, in default thereof, shall be committed by such justice or justices to the house of correction, for any time not exceeding six months, unless the money forfeited shall be sooner paid.

Sect. 4. Provided nevertheless, that it shall and may be lawful to and for such owner or owners of the fishery of such river or stream of water, or of such pond, pool, or other water, wherein any such offence or offences last-mentioned shall be committed as aforesaid, to sue and prosecute for, and recover the said sum of five pounds, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster; and in such action or suit, no effusion, waste, or over, more than one impertinent shall be allowed; provided that such action or suit be brought, or commenced, within six calendar months next after such offence or offences shall have been committed.

Sect. 5. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that nothing in this act shall extend, or be construed to extend to subj ect or make liable any person or persons to the penalties of this act, who shall fish, take, or kill, and carry away any fish,
in any river, or stream of water, pond, pool, or other water, whose fishing or persons or places shall have a just right or claim to take, kill, or carry away any such fish.

2. Statutes concerning the fish, and preserving the breed of fish.

Stat. West. 2. 13 Ed. 1. c. 47. "It is provided, that the waters of the Hamlers, Ouses, Trent, Donc, Arreys, Derevent, Werfe, Nidda, Tyr, Stuèle, Tife, Tine, Eden, and all other waters, (wherein fishons are taken) shall shall be in defence for taking salmon from the nativity of our Lady unto St. Martin's day. And that like-wise young salmon shall not be taken by nets, nor by other engines at Mid-Pool, from the midst of April unto the nativity of St. John Baptist; and in the places where fresh waters be, there shall be assigned overfenders of this flault, which may be sworn oftentimes fee and inquire of the offenders: And for the first trespass, they shall be punished by burning of their nets and engines: And for the second time, they shall have imprisonment for a quarter of a year: And for the third trespass, they shall be imprisoned a whole year: And as their trespass increaseth, so shall the punishment.

"For the making of this act, fishermen for a little luce did very much harm, by defoying the increafe of salmon by fishing for them in unallowable times, between the beginning of September, and the midst of November; and likewise for young salmon, or salmon netted between the midst of April, and towards the end of June: Against both which provision is made by this act."

2 Inf. 478.

"Shall be in defense."

That is, by this act it is prohibited that salmon, or young salmon, shall be taken between the times mentioned in this act, nor by other engines, by which the cry or the breed of salmon, lampreys, or other fish, may be taken; upon the pain aforesaid.

And the waters of Long, Wyre, Mersey, Ribble, and all other waters in the county of Lancaster shall be put in defense, as to the taking of salmon, from Michaelmas day to the first of November. And other waters in the county of Stafford, where the sea be, there shall be affigned and sworn conservators of this statute, as in the statute of Whit, and they shall punish the offenders after the pain contained in the said statute.

Stat. 13 Rich. 2. cap. 19. Young salmon shall not be taken from the midst of April, till the 24th of June, upon pain in stat. Wtman. 2. cap. 47. And none shall put in the Thames, Humber, Ouse, Trent, nor other waters, nor by other engines, by which the cry or the breed of salmon, lampreys, or other fish, may be taken; upon the pain aforesaid. And the waters of Long, Wyre, Mersey, Ribble, and all other waters in the county of Lancaster shall be put in defense, as to the taking of salmon, from Michaelmas day to the first of November. And other waters in the county of Stafford, where the sea be, there shall be affigned and sworn conservators of this statute, as in the statute of Whit, and they shall punish the offenders after the pain contained in the said statute.

Stat. 17 Rich. 2. cap. 9. The justices of peace of all the counties shall be conservators of the statutes. Wtman. 2. cap. 47, and 13 Rich. 2. cap. 19, and they shall survey all the wares in such rivers, that they be not too strait, for the destruction of fry, but of a reasonable wideness, after the old allife used. And the justices which shall find default against the statutes shall make true punishment, and shall put under-conservators under them, which shall be sworn to like surveying, and punishment without any favour thereof to be showed. And the same justices in their fellions shall inquire, as well of their office, as at the information of the under-conservators, of all trespasses, and defaults against the statutes afterwards called, that shall cause them which be thereof indicted to come before them; and if they be convicted, they shall have imprisonment, and make fine after the discretion of the justices. And if the same shall be at the information of any of the under-conservators, they shall have half the fine. And the mayor or warden of London shall have the conservation of the statutes aforesaid in the Thames, from the bridge of Staines to London, and from thence over the same waters, in the Medway, as far as is granted to the citizens.

Stat. 2 Hen. 6. cap. 15. The flanding of nets and engines called trynks, and all other nets forbidden day and night to pleas, boats, and anchors, over the Thames, and other rivers, shall be hereby defended; and every person that fetteth them, shall forfeit to the King 20s. provided that it shall be lawful to the poffiflers of trynks, if they be of affife, to fift with them in all fatisfiable times, drawing them by hand, as other nets, having to every of the King's people their right in fifting.

Stat. 1 Eliz. 2. cap. 7. fett. 1. No person shall kill any fry or fray of eels, salmon, pike, pickerel, or other fish, in any bloodgate, pipe, tail of mill, wear, or in any ftraits, steam, brooks, rivers fift or freth, or kill any salmon or trouts not in feafon, being keper or flader salmon or trouts.

Stat. 2. No perfon shall kill any pike or pickerel, not being in length ten inches fish and more, or any salmon not in length fourteen inches, nor any trout not in length eight inches, nor any barbel not in length twelve inches.

Stat. 3. No perfon shall fift, or take fish with nets, tramel, keep, wore, creel, or other device, but only with the unallowable nets and instruments aforesaid, and such fish shall be two inches and a half broad, angling excepted.

Stat. 4. In all places where snells, hitches, minnies, bullheads, gudgeons, or eels, have been used to be taken, it shall be lawful only for the taking of snells, &c. to use such nets, lepes, and other devices as have been used, so that such persons using such nets, &c. do not take or destroy any other fish with the said nets contrary to this statute.

Stat. 5. If any person offend contrary to the points aforesaid, such person shall forfeit 20s. and the fish he takes, and the unlawful nets and instruments wherewith such offences shall be done.

Stat. 6. The Lord Admiral and the Mayor of London, and all other persons which have conservation of any rivers or waters, shall have power to inquire of all offences committed contrary to this act, by the oaths of twelve men or more, and to hear and determine the same offences.

Stat. 7. Forfeitures by reason of such conviction shall be to the use of every of the persons, being no body politic, or corporate, nor head of any body politic or corporate, before whom such conviction shall be had; and to the use of every body politic, and corporation, as the same shall have any forfeiture for any offence committed in their conservancies, upon conviction had before the head of any such body politic, or corporation.

Stat. 8. The lord of every leet shall have power to inquire of offences contrary to this statute, by the oath of twelve men, of any offences contrary to this statute; all forfeitures above limited shall be unto the lord of the leet, and shall be levied as amercements for allays committed within such leet.

Stat. 9. If the seaward of the leet do not charge the jury to inquire of offences done within the leet, contrary to this statute, the reward shall forfeit 40s. one moiety of which forfeiture shall be to the Queen, and the other moiety to him that will sue for the same. And if any jury, charged to inquire of offences committed within the precinct of that leet, do willingly conceal and make default in presentment; it shall be lawful to the seaward or bailiff to impanel one other jury, and to inquire of such concealment; and upon every default found and presented, the jurors which did so conceal, shall forfeit 20s. to the lord of the leet, to be levied as aforesaid.

Stat. 10. The justices within their counties, of fry or spawn, be not presented at the leet within one year after the offence committed, the justices of peace in their counties, justices of oyer and terminer, and justices of all offices shall have power to inquire thereof, and to hear and determine the offences contrary to this statute.

Stat. 12. Saving to all persons all right and connection, &c. This act to endure to the next parliament.
3. Local and other statutes relating to fish and fishermen.

The chancellor, &c., shall regulate the sale of stock fish, &c., 31 Ed. 3. ch. 2. c. 3.

Regulations of the fishery at Blackney haven, 31 Ed. 3. ch. 2. c. 1. &c.

None but fishermen to buy nets, &c., in Norfolk, 31 Ed. 3. ch. 3. c. 2.

The fishermen of London shall not buy fish far from the city, to sell again, except eels and pikes, 6 Rich. 2. c. 1. repealed 7 R. 2. c. 11.

Foreign merchants to liberty to sell fish by wholesale or retail, 14 H. 6. c. 6.

Buying fish out of ponds to be punished with three months imprisonment, 31 H. 8. c. 2. sect. 2.

Buying fish upon the sea to sell within the realm, except scurgeon, porpoise, and feal, prohibited, 33 H. 8. c. 2.

The admiralty shall not exact any thing of those that refer to Ireland or New-foundland, 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 6.

Sea-fish may be taken and exported freely, 5 El. c. 5.

13 El. c. 11. 12 Car. 2. c. 4. sect. 5.

No herring not well salted to be bought of any stranger, 5 El. c. 5. sect. 6.

Fishermen not to be premeditated mariners, without the authority of the justices of the peace, 5 El. c. 5. sect. 43.

Ships prohibited to anchor in the way of common fishing, 5 El. c. 11.

Foreign-taken fish not to be dried for sale in England, 13 El. c. 11. sect. 6.

For fish not to be imported by strangers to be dried, 13 El. c. 11. sect. 6.

Englishmen prohibited to import salt-fish, 23 El. c. 7. repealed 39 El. c. 10.

Permitted to carry fish from one foreign port to another, 27 El. c. 15.

Unlawful nets prohibited in Oxford haven, 27 El. c. 21.

Fish may be exported in ships with crofs falls, 39 El. c. 12.

Vol. II. No. 76.
Salt to be celled duty free for curing fish, 5 Geo. 1, c. 18.
Allwances out of the salt duty for fish exported, 5 Geo. 1, c. 18, sect. 6.
The time of accounting for salt, delivered duty free, for curing fish, afterwards, 8 Geo. 1, c. 1, sect. 9.
Allwances for salt loft in port, 8 Geo. 1, c. 2, sect. 11.
Boaty on fish exported, how payable, 3 Geo. 2, c. 29, sect. 3.
The exemption in 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 11, sect. 36, confined to fish taken by subject, 9 Geo. 2, c. 33, sect. 3.
Fish market in Westminster established, 22 Geo. 2, c. 49, 29 Geo. 2, c. 39.
False in contracting for fish to be hold by retail, before it is brought to market, 23 Geo. 2, c. 29, sect. 6.
Fishermen, &c. to fell their whole cargo within eight days after their arrival on the coast, 22 Geo. 2, c. 49, sect. 12.
Fish taken with a book may be sold though under size, 23 Geo. 2, c. 49, sect. 21, repealed 29 Geo. 2, c. 39, sect. 6.
Establishment of the British white herring fishery, 23 Geo. 2, c. 24, 26 Geo. 2, c. 9, 28 Geo. 2, c. 14.
Thirty shillings per ton bounty for decked vessels, 24 Geo. 2, c. 24, sect. 11.
On a refusal of the nominal days appointed for the rendezvous of boats, to be conformable to the new calendar, 26 Geo. 2, c. 9, sect. 2.
Vessels to return with as many hands as required at the rendezvous, 26 Geo. 2, c. 9, sect. 3.
Society may let their boats, 28 Geo. 2, c. 14, sect. 5.
One hundred pound penalty on still using the herring in Scotland, 29 Geo. 2, c. 2, sect. 23.
British salt may be taken duty free for curing fish in Scotland for exportation, 29 Geo. 2, c. 23, sect. 5.
Foreign salt may be imported for curing fish in Scotland, paying only c. items on importation, 29 Geo. 2, c. 23, sect. 5.
Duties on fish cured in Scotland for home consumption, and bounties on exportation, 29 Geo. 2, c. 23, sect. 6, &c.
Penalties on fishing vessels employed for the supply of London and Westminster, breaking bulk, or selling their fish before they arrive in the river, or not clearing their arrival, and selling their fish within eight days, 29 Geo. 2, c. 39.
Twelve days allowed for the sale of lobsters, 29 Geo. 2, c. 39, sect. 2.
Infectors of fishing vessels appointed, 29 Geo. 2, c. 29.
Fees to the King's factors on the arrival of fishing vessels at Gravesend, 29 Geo. 2, c. 39, sect. 6.
Penalty on selling fish within 100 yards of the fish-market at Westminster without a licence, 29 Geo. 2, c. 39, sect. 9.
The court of mayor and aldermen of London to make regulations for the fisher-men in the Thames and the Medway, 30 Geo. 2, c. 21.
Further bounties on vessels employed in the white herring fishery, 3 Geo. 2, c. 30.
Vessels may be employed in the intervals of the fishery, 30 Geo. 2, c. 30, sect. 5.
One hundred pound penalty on obstrudking those employed in the herring fishery, in the free use of ports, thores, &c. 30 Geo. 2, c. 30, sect. 7.
Fishing vessels to pay harbour and pier duties. Ibid. sect. 15.
Regulation of the sale of fish in London, 33 Geo. 2, c. 27.
Account of fish brought to the Nere, and punishment of destroying it, 33 Geo. 2, c. 27, sect. 4.
Regulations to reduce the exorbitant price of fish, 2 Geo. 2, c. 45.
Fishing, right of, and property of fish. It has been held, that where the lord of the manor hath the fish on both sides the river, 'tis a good evidence that he hath the right of fishing, and it puts the proof upon him who claims Flavum pisiforium: but where a river ebb and flows, and is an arm of the sea, there 'tis common to all, and he who claims a privilege to himself must prove it; for on the river bought for fishing there, the defend-ant may justify that the place where Brashtum marit., in quo nonuplaque stabilitas dominii regis habet & habeatur librum pisiforium: I am sure, the soil belongs to the owners of the land on each side; and the soil of the river Thames, is in the King, &c. but the fishing is common to all. 1 Mod. 195. He who is owner of the soil of a private river, hath pisiforium, and he that hath librum pisiforium, hath a property in the fish, and may bring a poissiforium action for them; but communis pisiforium is like the case of all other commons. 2 Salk. 637. One that has a close pond in which there are fish, may call the pond his own, and in an indictment lay there. But he cannot call them as bona et catala, if they be not in trunks. Mod. Ca. 187.

Fishes. See Fish and fishing.

Fishery. See Fish and fishing.

Fishing acts. Old ones for making of paper may be imported duty free, 11 Geo. 1, c. 7, sect. 10.

Fishing. Dr. Stinner, in his Epitomologiae, says, 'in an engine to take fish, but it seems rather to signify the dam or wear in a river, where these engines are laid and used. For garth in the North is hul used for a backside or homestead. Coswell, edit. 1727. 23 Hen. 8. c. 48.

Fishing. The pipe which was put into the cup out of which the communicants sucked the wine. Disiectae cruses, altarium, fissa, &c. fissa, fissa &c. ornamenta in. Flor. Wigorn. Anno 1587.

Fishing. But more rightly foxtins, from the Saxon foxtins, poignis, and foxtins, not that it is a fine laid upon those who shooting and breaking the peace, Coswell, edit. 1727.

Fisheterett, was a famous lawyer in the days of King Henry the Eighth, and was Chief Justice of the Common Pleas. He wrote two books of great reputation, one du Abridgment of the Common Law, another entitled De Nationa Brevium Coswell, edit. 1727.

Flautus. A flet, a flitch, an arrow. Fr. fleche. — Regulaus de Grey tenet Maneriam de Waterhall in Corn. Buckingo per jurisvictionem unam huncunam super unam unam fine feta præ. xx. & unam annum fine cura, & unam annum fine capitis, & unam Dominii Ric. mundiavis. 17 Edw. 3. c. 33.

Flavo. A place covered with standing water: Aqua, &c. in palem domum & in laxum ex flacone dissina condensat. J. Wilt. 1 tum. pag. 269.

Flato. Achatum, with Flavo.

Flato. A flitch, a booke. — Inflammant fletis firenitum magnam sanctuarius fogo & fuculicetis clasps & gaius, cellar, &a per, alia & palutellis. Gratias Deo Verealista. Ier Richardi Regis, cap. 12, lib. 4.

Fleece or Flightwee. (Six. Fyttis, foja, and wore, mitka.) Signifies in our ancient laws a discharge or freedom from amercements, when one, having been an outlawed fugitive, comes to the peace of our Lord the King, and has bound as a surety there, the debt is cancel-lor, and with licence. Thus Roft. That but quere. Whether it does not rather signify a molt or fine set upon a fugitive, to be restored to the King's peace? Coswell, edit. 1727.

Flett. (Six. Fletis, i. e. a place where the water ebbs and flows, a running water.) A famous pri-son in London, called the fleete, and the name of the river upon whose side it standeth. Camden. Brit. pag. 317. Unto this none are usually committed, but for contempt of the King and his laws, or upon absolute command of the King, or some of his courts. Or happily, Upon debt, when when men are unable, or unwilling, to satisfy their creditors. Cowell.

Permit confounding themselves debtors to the King when they are not by, how removable to the Fleet, 1 Ric. 2 c. 12.

The warden, under what penalty, not to suffer any prisoner in execution to go at large, 1 Ric. c. 12.

Punishers in the Fleet how to be proceeded against, 13 Car. 2. fl. c. 2. s. 5. 8 & 9 H. 3. c. 27; sect. 17.

What next prisoners are to pays, 8 & 9 H. 3. sect. 17.

The King by letters patent may appoint a warden during the life of Thomas Bambyde, 2 Geo. 2. c. 32; sect. 5.

To be filled up, and the inheritance of it settled in the city of London, 6 Geo. 2 c. 22.

Flem and Fleet; Saxon flama, an outlaw, and fleet, a house. In a plea of Sir warrants, Abbot de Burgo dicit quod clamat annum of vestum & medium tempus per haere vel flama & fleet. Trin. 7 Ed. 3.

Flematrica, (from the Sax. flama, a fugitive or outlaw, and fleet, to kill or slay.) By virtue of this word were claimed Bona flamina, as appears upon a Sir warrant. Temp. Ed. 3. See Kellany's rep. f. 145. b.

Flemestrefte, (Recitatis fumanastricabo, & c. Inex. c. 11. etiam H. 1. c. 10. 12.) Signifies the receiving or releasing a fugitive, or outlaw. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Flemestrefte, Signifies the liberty to challenge the castel or amencitations of your man, a fugitive, Raffal's Exigif, of Words. Fleta writes it two different ways, viz. Flemestrefte and Flemestrefte, and interprets it, Habere castellum fugitivum, lib. 1. cap. 47. See Fleet and Flemestrefte.

Fleta, A flote, a flote, or place where the tide or flood comes up. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Fletiglith. A payment or much excused from him who despoils the army: From the Sax. flite, fugite, and flete, pagum, Cowell, edit. 1727.

Flight. See Fletiglith.

Fletiglith, alias flite, (from the Sax. flite, contention or flight) Significat multum de obstantibus, rixas & jurgia impingit, & cui haec a principio concordant, pertiff in cursu sua essentia de hujusmodi transgressorum; et quod non essent incurit vel detraxit ex curia vestigii, a discutitavit exigens & fisiatit diviitius. Thus Spelman. Filthite, i.e. Quod prior tenet potissima in cursu sua de contentione & convivio hominum forum, & habeat unde amencitation. Ex Reg. Priorat. de Cokesford.

Floodmark. The mark which the sea, at flowing water, and highest tide, makes on the shore. Accordant a cens ordinaries the admirals wrote by their authority in the lieven avant dits tange a cet temps, faire per ches faits soigneuse le mare & far le mare, comme entre le Cademack & auster water-mark. Anderson's Repert, f. 189. Conflable's rep.

Florescere. A kind of cloth so called, brought from Florence bishop; some was called Arrais, Darnais, Cambresick, Gallico, from the places where it was made. It is mentioned in flat. 1 Ric. 3 c. 8.

Florajus, A current piece of English gold. By indenture of the Mint 11 Ed. 3. every pound weight of old English gold was to be coined into fifty Florajus to be current at six shillings a piece, all which made in tale fifteen pounds, or into a proportionable number of half Florajus, or quarter Florajus.

Flonages, A swimming at the top, which we properly called floating, are such things as form on the top of the sea, or other great rivers; the word is used some times in the comminations of water bailiffs.

Flottam. I. When a ship is sunk, or otherwise perished, and the goods float on the sea. 5 Rep. 196. d. b. Flotam, jettam, and jettam, are morsae, termed together; jettam is when a ship is in danger of being sunk, and to lighten the ship the goods are cast into the sea, and the ship notwithstanding perishes; and jettam is when the goods are cast into the sea are so heavy that they sink to the bottom, and therefore the mariners tie to them a buoy, or other thing that gives birth to other ship, and they find that they may find them again. 5 Rep. 196. b.

The King shall have jettam, jettam, and jettam, when the ship is lost, and the owners of the goods are not known; but not otherwise. F. N. B. 122. Where the proprietors of the goods may be known, they have a year and a day to claim jettam. 5 Rep. 196. b.

Foragium. The name with foragia-ete or fire-bate.

Fodder, Or fodder of lead. A weight of lead containing eight pikes, every pike twenty-three stone and a half. In the book of rate a fodder of lead is said to be two thousand pounds weight; at the marts, it is 22 hundred and a half; among the plumbers at London it is 19 hundred and a half. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Fodder, (Sax. fodra, i.e. alimentum.) Any kind of meat for horses or other cattle; in some places fay and straw mingled together is accounted fodder. See Fodage. But among the oldest it is used to signify the meat that the Prince hath, to be provided of, and other meat for his horses, by his subject, in his wars or other expeditions. Histram de vobis Feodali. See Father.

Fodage, Provision, or fodder, or forage, to be paid by cottiers to the King's purveyors. Johannes abbatis S. Edmundo & D. Stephanius, prior & comu. stabat—quod de extillis, mercatorum conventus, exceptis redditiis qui dicitur utendi, et ubendum, & foedus hominum ad hunc dome nomadum. Quod sunt propria aequi regulae, habesque debeat dominio aequi, &c. Ex Cart. S. Edmundo. MS. f. 102.

Fodage, (Fodagium,) Fig. or figs; rank graft not eaten in summer. Leg. Forstir. Sect. cap. 15.

Fodlinh. Was Torus luchi. The land of the vulgar people, who had no estate therein, but held the same under both rents and services as were accustomed or agreed, at the will and pleasure of the Lord the Bore, and it was therefore not put in writing, but accustomed praedium et status. See Spelman of Feuds, cap. 5.

Folmore, or Folmorc. Saxan follicani, that is, canonic populi, compounded of folk, populus, and genre, commercium, libitiges (as Lambard hath in his Explanation of Saxon words) nor were in the courts; one now called The county court, the other The forsett's turn. This word is still in use in the city of London, and denotes Celebrem ex tota civitate conventum. Stow's Survey of London. But Adamson says in his Forsilinse, folde is the court helden in London, wherein all the folk and people of the city did complain of the mayor and aldermen, for misgovernment within the city. Sumner in his Saxon Dictionary says, It is a general assembly of the people, to consider and order matters of the commonwealth. Omnes proceres regis & militis & liberi domonii .... and force after a fort, and so proceedeth to divers other branches worth the reading, as feract face, seract retaining, unlawful assembly, riots, rebelles, &c.

Cowell, ed. 1737.

Lord Coke says, there is also a force implied in law, as every treasurers, rebels, or disturbers, as it is called, that deserveth force, with weapons, number of persons, &c. where threatening the King and his laws, to the terror of another.

1 Coau 257. By the law any person may enter a tavern; and a landlord may enter his tenant's house to view repairs, &c. But if he that enters a tavern committs any force or violence, or he that enters to view repairs, &c. with a sword, or other weapon, he has been intended, that they entered for that purpose.

3 Rep. 146. All force is against law; and it is lawful to repel force by force:

There is a maxim in our law, Quod alterium jujus et jujus, &c. per se calumniati presentis, tumult, et insurtum.

Seract retaining or holding of possession, is a violent act of repletion by strong hand of men wept with force, or other action of fear in the same place, or offending, whereby the lawful entry of justices, or others, is hindered. High. Synod. part 2. tit. indentures, sect. 65.

Seract entry and tenant. Seract entry (ingratias manum factum jujus) is a violent actual entry into a house or land, &c. or taking of a person, or weapon, whereby he offer violence or force of hurt to the tenant, and whereby he deny [sic] the reversion thereof.

High. Synod. part 2. tit. indentures, sect. 65. Coap. jud. of Peace, sect. 58. &q.; of Law ad 63. It is also used for a writ grounded upon the statute 8 Hen. 6. e. 9. Cowell.

At Common law, if a man had a right of entry in him, it was permitted to enter with force and arms, and to detain his possession by force, where his entry was lawful; this created great inconvenience by arming the tenants of the lords, and in a manner encouraging them in mischief, who were always too forward in rebellions and other contentions in their neighbourhood; also it gave an opportunity to powerful men, under the pretence of feigned titles, forcibly to eject their weaker neighbours.

Dallin's Justice 257, Lamb. 135. Coap. 70 a. b.

It fermeth, that before the troubelome reigne of King Richard II. the Common law permitted any person (which he had) to enter and to take the possession thereof by force, if otherwise he could not have obtained it. For a man may see (in Britten, fol. 115.) that a certain refite of time was given to the defefker, (according to his diligence and defence) in which, it was lawful for him to gather force, arms, and his friends to break up the trespass of his wrongfull entries, at his return at this day, if in a common action, or intimidament of trespass for entering into land) the defendant will make title thereunto; the matter of the force alleged against him will fell altogether upon the validity of his title, as appears in 2 H. 6. 13. and 49. But after the rebellious tumults, and infurrection of the villains, and other, the base commons, which happened the fourth year of the reign of R. 2. the parliament thought it necessary to provide against all such occasions of further sedition, uproar, and breach of the peace.

It seems, that at the Common law, a man disaffierte any lands for reparation, if he could not prevail by fair means, might lawfully regain the possession by force, unless he were put to a necessity to bring his action, by having neglected to re enter in due time: And it seems certain, that even at this day, he who is wrongfully dispossessed of his goods, may justify the retaking of them in like manner by force, if he repute to himself too much to take them; for the violence which happens th'o' the repletion of the wrongful possessor, being originally owing to his own fault, gives him no just cause of complaint, inasmuch as he might have prevented it by doing as he ought.

1 H. Eire. 157.

But this indulgence of the Common law, in sufferings to remain the lands they were unlawfully deprived of, having been found by experience to be very prejudicial of a justice of peace; neither doth it give the justice any power to relieve the party to his petition, or to inflict any penalty on the sheriff for disobeying the process, of the justices in the execution of the statute. 2 Bac. Atr. 556.

By the 8 H. 6. cap. 9, it is enabled, "That those persons making such entries be punished, or else to stand before the coming of the said justices or judges, for whatsoever actions they may be found guilty of, and to be fined with the amount of such actions, if any shall cause, or one of them shall cause the said statute to be duly executed, and that at the costs of the party to be grieved."

By the said statute it is further enabled, "That such persons making such entries be punished, or else to stand before the coming of the said justices or judges, notwithstanding the same justices or judges, in some good town next to the town to be entered, or in some other convenient place, according to their direction, shall have, and moreover they shall have authority and power to inquire of the people of the same county, and of the justices, that make such forcible entries in land and tenements, as of them which the same held with force; and if it be found before any of them, that any such contrary to this statute, then the said justices or judges shall cause to be referred the lands and tenements into entered or held, as of forcible entry, and shall put the party, so put out, in full possession of the same lands and tenements so entered or held as before."

And it is further enabled by the said statute, "That when the said justices or judges make such inquiries as before, they shall make, or one of them shall make their warrants and precepts to be directed to the sheriff of the same county, commanding him, of the King's behalf, to cause to be come before them, and every of them, sufficient and indifferent persons, dwelling next about the lands to be entered; and they shall be examined of their several entries, or of the several entry, and every of them, if the same be found contrary to the statute, and that the said justices or judges shall cause to be referred the lands and tenements next to be entered, as of forcible entry, and shall put the party, so put out, in full possession of the same lands and tenements so entered or held as before."

But it is provided by the said statute, "That no person who keep their petitions with force, in any lands and tenements, whereas of their or their ancestors, or they whose estates they have in such lands and tenements, have continued their petitions by three years or more, be not damaged by force of this statute."

This statute also's found a remedy by scheme of several dills, or action of trespass, to recover the tender damages, to which if the several persons make in their own behalf, the same if described for the defendant, so that he hath good title at law, the defendant is excused from the force, for the plaintiff can't recover in the action if he hath no right; but if the plaintiff prevail, then the force shall be inquired and tried in other cases, if the plaintiff himself, or a person is punished criminally for entering with force.
even where he has a right, though not for peaceably obtaining a possession by force, especially if he has held it for three years in quiet. 5 F. N. 2d. 139. 2 Perk. tit. Force, c. 5, § 14, 29, p. 94, c. 15, 15. 2

By the 21 Eliz. c. 11. The provis in the above statute is further enforced and explained, by which it is declared and enacted, "That no restitution upon any indictment of forcible entry, or holding, be made to any person, if the person so indicted hath had the use of the land in quiet possession for the space of three whole years, together, next before the day of such indictment to found, and his estate therein not ended, which the party indicted may allow for of restitution; and restitution to pay till that be tried, if the other with any manner of lawfully enter the land, and an allegation be tried against the said person so indicted, he is to pay the costs and damages to the other party, as shall be assented by the judges or justices before whom the same shall be tried; the same costs and damages to be recovered and levied, as is usual for costs and damages contained in judgment upon execution." 3

And by the 21 Jas. 1, c. 15, it is enacted, "That such judges, justices or justice of the peace, as by reason of any act or acts of parliament then in force, were authorized and enabled upon inquiry, to give restitution of possession unto tenants, of any estate or freehold of the nature of farms, which they shall enter upon, with force, or from them with holden by force, shall by reason of that act have the like and the same authority and ability from thenceforth (upon indictment of such forcible entries, or forcible holding before them duly found,) to give like restitution of possession unto tenants, or to persons, tenants by copy of court roll, guardians by knighthood, servants, tenants by estate, full tenant, merchant and flapple, of lands or tenements by them so holden, which shall be entered upon by force, or holden from them by force." 2

A forcible entry must regularly be with a strong hand, with unusual weapons, or with menace of life or limb. 6 H. P. C. 138. Dalh. 320. 1 Hawk. P. C. 145. 1

If a man enters peaceably into a house, but turns the party out of possession by force, or by threats frights him out of possession, this is a forcible entry. Dalh. 209. 1 Hawk. P. C. 145. 11676. But threatening to spoil his goods, or destroy his cattle, if he will not quit his possession, will not make a forcible entry. Bret. tit. Dursif 2, 16. 1 Inf. 252. 1

If a house be bolted, it is a forcible entry to break it open, but it is not so to draw a latch, and enter into the house; and if a man, whose entry is lawful, shall intrude the other out of the house, and enter, the door being open, or only latched, his entry is justifiable. 2 Rel. Rep. 2. 2 Inf. 235. Cram. 70 a. It is said in Ng 135, that there can be no entering if the door be latched; but 1 Hawk. P. C. 145. says, that such an indeterminate circumstances as this, which commonly jurs between neighbour and neighbours, will never bring a man within the meaning of these statutes; and it hath been holden, that an entry into a house through a window, or by opening a door with a key, is not forcible. Lamb. 143. 1 Hawk. P. C. 145. 2 Rel. Rep. 2. 1

If one find a man out of his house, and forcibly withhold him from returning to it, and send persons to take peaceable possession thereof in the party's absence, this, by some opinions, says Hawkins, is no forcible entry, insomuch as he did no violence to the house, but only to the person of the tenant; but he has another opinion, for though the force be not actually done upon the land, nor in the very act of entry, yet force it is used with an immediate intent to make such entry, and the manner of doing of it only prevents the opposition, it can't be said he were without force, which whether it be upon or off the land feemes equally within the statute. 1 Hawk. P. C. 145. 1

If a man enters to detain for rent in arrear with force, this is a forcible entry; because though he do not claim the land stille, yet he claims a right and title of it, which by these statutes he is forbidden to exert by force; but if a man hath right to lands, and it enter them with company armed to church or market, without forcible entry, he cannot claim to it, this is no forcible entry, because his action shall be interpreted according to his intent; but if a man that has a rent be reduced from his distress by force, this is a forcible defile of the rent, for which he may recover treble damages in an affize, or may file and imprison the party; but he cannot force his tenant by any means, for he gives remedy by fine and imprisonment for the unjust force that is offered to any person's right, yet it doth not give the justices power to release the rent, but only the lands and tenements themselves; and therefore no writ of restitution can be awarded. 12 Bl. 175. 20 H. 6, 4. 1

A man may be guilty of a forcible entry in a dwelling house, though there be nobody in the house at the time; and so he may by an entry into lands where any person's wife, children or servants are upon the lands to prefer the possession; because whatsoever a man does by his agents in his own act, and by cattle being upon the ground don't prefer his possession, because they are not capable of being substituted as agents; and therefore their refunding upon the land continues no possession. 2 Rel. Rep. 2. Perk. 45. Cram. juf. 164. Dalh. 315. 1

A forcible entry into a house to the use of A. and B. afterwards agrees to it, this makes it a demission in A. but not a forcible entry within the statute, because the statute doth not punish an agreement, but only the force and violence of an actual entry. 2 H. 7, 16. b. 20 H. 6, 11. a. Cram. juf. 62 a. Dalh. 300. 1

If he, who has an actual eftate, by the right or tenement, continues with force in the possession thereof, after a claim made by one who had a right of entry thereto, he shall be adjudged to have entered forcibly. 1 Hawk. P. C. 145. 1

The circumstances of violence and terror, which will make an entry forcible, will make a detainer forcible also; from whence it follows, that whoever keeps in the house an unusual number of people, or unusual weapons, or threatens to do some bodily hurt to the former possessor, if he dare return, shall be adjudged guilty of a forcible detainer, though no attempt be made to enter, and it hath been said, that he also shall come under the like conflagration, who places men at a distance from the house in order to assault any one, who shall make an attempt to enter it; and that he also is in like manner guilty, who flouts his door against the justice of peace coming by to view the forces, and obstinately refuses to come in; but 'tis said, that a man ought not to be adjudged guilty of this offence for barely refusing to go out of a house, and continuing therein in defiance of another. Cram. juf. 199. 1570. Lamb. 145. 1 Hawk. P. C. 145. 1

If a man enters by the possession by force, through his entry was peaceable, the justices may remove him, if he had no right to enter; but where the entry is at first peaceable and lawful, there, whether the justices may remove a forcible detainer, where it hath not been peaceably held for three years, is a question; for that the justices are not judges of the right, but of the possession only; and if a man be got peaceably into his own, it seems he may defend it by force; and where the jury have found quoniam the entry ignarus, and quoniam the detainer bona fide, such indictments have been quashed, and the restitution granted upon it for false, and a re-
Thee statutes seem to require, that in the indictment the entry must be laid made, or on nonmultitudine gentium, a multitude of people, and that without thee the statute is not perfect; but some have held that equivalent words will be sufficient, especially if the indictment concludes contra formam statuti, and that these words in the statute are in causa abundantia; but it is not sufficient to say only, he entered &c. armis, since that is the common allegation in every trespass. Stile 135. 2 Eliz. 258. A Rel. Reb. 46. 1 Med. 85, 81.

It is sufficient, if a person of such indictment to say, that it was taken before A. B. and C. D. juridicatrix ad pacem domini regis confervandum affirmavit, without swearing, that they had authority to hear and determine felonies and trespasses; for the statute enables all judges of the peace, as such, to take such indictment.

An indictment of forcible entry into a tenement (which may signify any thing whatsoever, wherein a man may have an estate of freehold), or into a house or tenement, or into two closes of meadow or pasture, or into a house or half a rood of land, or into certain lands belonging to such a house, or into such a house, without swearing in what town it lies, or into a tenement with the appendances called Teninenny in D. is not good; for the place must be described with convenient certain, for otherwise the defendant will neither know the special offence, nor to what the juries or sheriff know how to restore the injured party to his possession. Dalt. 15. 2 Rel. Rep. 46. 2 Rol. Atr. 8. 3 Lem. 102. Co. Lit. 6, a. 2 Rol. Atr. 82. pl. 4. 5. 1 Rel. Rep. 334. Cro. Juc. 633. Palm. 27. 2 Rel. Reb. 201. 3 Lem. 266. 3 Lem. 121. Br. tit. For. Ext. 23. 2 Lem. 186. 2 Rol. Atr. 80. pl. 7.

But it hath been resolved, that an indictment for a forcible entry in deumani manumission free muggings, &c. is good, for these are words equivalent. Cro. Juc. 633. Palm. 27.

Alfo such indictment may be void as to such part thereof only which is uncertain, and good for so much as is certain; therefore an indictment for forcible entry into a house and certain acres of land tenant belonging, may be quitted as to the land, and bind good as to the house. 2 Lem. 186. 3 Lem. 173. 1 Hench. P. C. 148.

An indictment on the 5 or 15 R. 2, needs not flow he who had the freehold at the time of the force, because these statutes equally punish all force of this kind, without any regard to what estate the party had on whom the force was made; yet it seems that such indictment ought to shew, that such entry was made on the possession of some person who had some estate in the tenements, either as a freeholder or leeree for years, &c. for otherwise it doth not appear that such entry was made injurious to any one. 2 Keb. 249. 1 Rol. 65. 1 Hench. 3. 35.

But it is said, that an indictment on 8 H. 6. must shew, that the place was the freehold of the party grated at the time of the force, and therefore that it is not sufficient to say, that the defendant entered into such a house or tenement on 8. J. S. without mentioning it was, Adsum exilium libertum tenementum J. S., for otherwise it may be intended, that it was his freehold at the time of the indictment only. 2 Keb. 495. Saltz. 260. Hezly 73. Laish 129.

It is therefore a general rule, that an indictment cannot warrant a retaliation, unless it shall be said that the party was freehold, and that such freehold is sufficiently shewn by a necessary implication.

An indictment on the 8 H. 6. for entering and forcibly expelling my farmer, and diffeing me, is, without shewing what estate he had; for the forcible dillefion is the main point of the indictment, it is sufficient to set forth his full name, &c. But in this case the want of showing that the farmer was ousted, would have been an incurable fault. 1 Hen. 103.

Also an indictment on 21 Jac. 1. cap. 15. must shew, that the party induced was possessed of such an estate as will bring him within the indictment. Before it is not sufficient for it to shew, that he was possessed, or that he was possessed of a certain term, without adding, for years; for in the first case it may be intended, that he was tenant at will, and in the second, that he was possessed for term of life; in neither of which cases he is within the statute; but it is said to be sufficient, to set a possession within the statute in the reciting part of an indictment; as thus, good use. s. was possessed for a certain term of years, &c. 1 Fert. 325. 1 Sid. 152. 1 Abr. 73. 2 Keb. 709. Saltz. 260.

A repugnancy in setting forth the offence in an indictment on these statutes is an incurable fault; as where it is alleged, that the defendants pacifice intraverunt, & J. S. adjumct & bidem vis & armis dillentit, or that the party was dillentit for years, or of a cophold estate, and that the defendant ousted him, or that the defendants did J. S. of land then and yet being his freehold, for it implies that he always continued in possession; and if so, it is impossible he could be dillentit at all; but some say, that this may be reconciled, by intending that he re-entered after the dillefin, and before the indictment; but it seems clear, that if the words Adsum extravit be added, such a repugnancy cannot be helped by any intendsent, and that no retaliation can be awarded on such indictment, whether these words be added or not, because the party alleged to be in dillefin has to have had the freehold at the time it was found. Pop. 205. Regm. 97. 1 Keb. 427. 428. 435. 472. A Brym. 50. 1 Vent. 108. 2 Rol. Rep. 311. Show. 273. 2 Eliz. 121. 1 Sid. 102.

A conviction on 15 R. 2, of a forcible detainer on view, cannot be good, unless it shews, that the defendant was also guilty of a forcible entry; for it seems plain from the express words of that statute, that the justices have no jurisdiction by it over a forcible detainer, where there has not been a forcible entry; but it seems that such forcible entry is sufficiently set forth in the indictment as cited in the conviction; and it seems a reasonable opinion, that an indictment on 8 H. 6. setting forth an entry and forcible detainer is good, without shewing whether the entry was forcible or receiveable; for the words of the statute are, where any duties of forcible entry in lands, &c. or them hold forcibly, but it must set forth an entry; for otherwise it appears not, but that the party hath been always in possession, in which case he may lawfully detain it by force. 2 Rol. Atr. 89. pl. 10. Palm. 195. 196. 197. Cro. Juc. 19. 20. 21. Cro. Eliz. 915. 1 Saltz. 62.

The time and place of the dillefion are sufficiently set forth in an indictment, alleging, that the defendant tali die intraverunt, &c. &c. A. B. manu fueri dillefius, without adding the words advers & bidem; for the entry and dillefion being to the same nature, and the one plainly tending to the other, it is a natural intendment that they both happened together. Cro. Juc. 41. 1 Harde. P. C. 150.

It has been related, that a dillefion is sufficiently set forth, by alleging, that the defendant entered, &c. into such a tenement, intending to detain the same without adding either the words ilicitum, or expulsii, or inputs, for the word dillefion implies as much. N. 125. Cro. Juc. 32. Cro. Eliz. 186. N. 120. cotent. The
The justices who make the conviction must set the fine.

The justices who make the conviction must set the fine.

For

For

3. Who may be guilty of a forcible entry, and into what places it may be made.

A man who breaks open the doors of his own dwelling-house, or of a castle, which is his own inheritance, but forcibly detains from him by one who claims the bare custody of it, cannot be guilty of a forcible entry or detainer within the statute. 1 Hold. 750. Gr. Jus. 18. 245. 3. 535.

A joint tenant or tenant in common may offer against the possession of these estates, either by forcibly ejecting or forcibly holding out his company; for tho' the entry of such a tenant be lawful per & per fine, for that he cannot in any case be punished in an action of trespass at the common law; yet the landlord of his entry no way excuses the violence, or Unless the injury done to his company, and consequently an forcible entry into a meory of a tenant, &c. is good. Latch. 214. Palm. 419. 1 Hawk. P. C. 147. Dall. 315. 3. 7.

A man cannot be indicted for entry into the King's possession before, for that he cannot be displaced. 1 Co. 69. 10 Co. 112.

An infant at the age of eighteen, and some fourteen, or a feme covert, by their own act, may be guilty of a forcible entry or may be driven from the same; but it is doubted, whether the infant may be imprisoned, because his infancy is an excuse of the non'est of its indiscretion, and he shall not be subject to corporeal punishment by force of the general words of any statute, wherein he is not expressly named; but it is clearly agreed, that the command of an infant or feme covert to enter void, and therefore the person entering is only punishable. Brid. 173. Camp. Jus. 63. Dall. 300.

One may be guilty of this offense by a force to ecclesiastical possessions, as churches, vicarage houfes, &c. as much as if the same were done to any temporal inheritance. 1 Sid. 161. 1 Lev. 99. 1 Kib. 438. Gr. Jus. 41.

Also an indictment of forcible detainer lies against one, whether he be tenant or stranger, who shall forcibly disturb any in the enjoyment of an incorporeal inheritance, as rents, eftates, common, an office. Gr. Cor. 201, 486.

But the justices cannot award restitution for these, because no man can be put out of possession of them, but at his own election. 3. Salk. 151. 4. Dyer 141. 5. 3. E. 1. 11. 6. 7. 151. 8. 5. 151.

And the justices cannot award restitution for these, because no man can be put out of possession of them, but at his own election. 3. Salk. 151. 4. Dyer 141. 5. 3. E. 1. 11. 6. 7. 151. 8. 5. 151.

Also it is said, that the three years possession must be lawful, and therefore that a difference can in no case justify a forcible entry or detainer against the difference having a right of entry, as it seems that he may against a stranger, or even against the difference, having by his deserted the right of entry. Dall. Cor. 79. 22 H. 6. 6. 7.

Also it is said, that the three years possession must be lawful, and therefore that a difference can in no case justify a forcible entry or detainer against the difference having a right of entry, as it seems that he may against a stranger, or even against the difference, having by his deserted the right of entry. Dall. Cor. 79. 22 H. 6. 6. 7.

The same justice or justices, before whom an indictment of forcible entry or detainer shall be found, may award restitution; but no other justices, but those before whom the inquest was found, can award restitution, unless the indictment be removed out of King's Bench, and they by the plentitude of their power can relieve, because that is supposed to be implied by the statute; for that whenever an inferior jurisdiction is erected, the superior jurisdiction must have authority to put it in execution; so if an indictment be found before the justices of the peace at their quarter-sessions, they have authority to award a writ of restitution, because the statute having given power to the justices or justice to relieve, it may as well be done by them in court as out of it; but the justices of open and terminer or general gaol delivery, that they may enquire of forcible entries, and fine the perators, yet they cannot award a writ of restitution. H. P. C. 147. Brid. 175. 11 Co. 69. 69. Dall. 245. 5. 8. 115. 111. 1 Del. Jus. 314. Lamb. 106. 161. 1 Pet. 328. 1 Kib. 88. 1 Sid. 150.

The sheriff, if need be, may raise the pursuivants to assist him in the execution of the writ of restitution; the more so if he return, that he could not make restitution by reason of reftitutions, he shall be amended. Lamb. Jus. 157. 1 Sid. 152. 153.

Restitution ought only to be awarded for the possession of the tenements visible and corporeal, for as a man, who has a right to such as are visible and incorporeal, as rents, common, cannot be put out of possession of them, but only at his own election, by a fiction of law no cause to be severer damages, and the preterit disturbs him in the enjoyment of them; and all the remedy, that can be defined against a force in respect to such possessions, is to have the force removed, and those who are guilty of it punished, which may be done by

Restitution shall only be awarded to him who is found by the inquest to have been put out of an actual possession, and consequently that it shall not be awarded to one who was only left in law, as to an heir on whom a lease was granted, or in the death of the ancestor, before any actual entry made by such heir, for it shall not be granted to an heir upon an inquest finding a forcible entry made upon his ancestor. Lamb. 153. 154. Dall. Cor. 83. Gr. Jus. 192. 1 Hawk. P. C. 151.

It appears by the principle in the statute 8 H. 6, and also by the 3. E. 11. that any one indicted upon these statutes may allege such possession, to play the award of restitution; in the construction whereof, f. 9 Serjeant Hawkins, it hath been held, that such possession must have continued without interruption during three whole years, and after the inquest, and therefore he, who having been in possession of land for three years or more, is forcibly oued, and then relieved by force of the statute of 8 H. 6, cannot justify a forcible detainer till he hath been in possession again for three years after such restitution; and also for the same reason it hath been held, that he, who under a defeasible title hath been never so long in possession of land to which another hath a right of entry, cannot justify such a detainer at any time within three years after a claim made by him who hath such right, and the subsequent continuance in possession, in such a case, is sufficient to award restitution, 1 Hawk. P. C. 152. and the authorities cited are. Dall. Cor. 79. Gr. Jus. 41. H. P. C. 139. 121. 41. 42. 22 H. 6. 18. Bre. tit. Force 22, 29. 1 Sid. 236.

No it is said, that the three years possession must be of a lawful estate, and therefore that a difference can in no case justify a forcible entry or detainer against the difference having a right of entry, as it seems that he may against a stranger, or even against the difference, having by his acts left his right of entry. Dall. Cor. 79. 22 H. 6. 6. 7. 151.

Wherever such possession is pleaded in bat of a restitution to either in the King's Bench, or before justices of the peace, no restitution ought to be awarded till the truth of the plea be tried, and such plea need not flow under what title, or what estate forcible possession was, because not the title, but the possession only is material. 1 Kib. 538. 2 Del. Jus. 111. 111. 1 Del. Jus. 538. Reyman. 84. 1 Lev. 265.

If one who has been three years in possession, be afterwards oued, and the same day re-enter with force, and be also indicted on the same date; yet it seems, that by the plain meaning and reason of the statute, he can no more bar the restitution of the party forcibly oued upon, than if he had been indicted on another day, tho' the words of the statute are, That there shall be no restitution, &c. if the person indicted have been in quiet possession...
Hawk. Hawk. Hawk. Which form year, be late H. Therefore in of whereof P. to him cutor. whole the its fet rarific an an, thru' tried, fclf. King's but refused the statutes for, them, that, of 141. of juris if fact that, of the 148. of 141. of 140. of the 141. of 140. of 134. of the 140. of 139. of 138. of the 137. of the 136. of the 135. of the 134. of the 133. of the 132. of the 131. of the 130. of the 129. of the 128. of the 127. of the 126. of the 125. of the 124. of the 123. of the 122. of the 121. of the 120. of the 119. of the 118. of the 117. of the 116. of the 115. of the 114. of the 113. of the 112. of the 111. of the 110. of the 109. of the 108. of the 107. of the 106. of the 105. of the 104. of the 103. of the 102. of the 101. of the 100. of the 99. of the 98. of the 97. of the 96. of the 95. of the 94. of the 93. of the 92. of the 91. of the 90. of the 89. of the 88. of the 87. of the 86. of the 85. of the 84. of the 83. of the 82. of the 81. of the 80. of the 79. of the 78. of the 77. of the 76. of the 75. of the 74. of the 73. of the 72. of the 71. of the 70. of the 69. of the 68. of the 67. of the 66. of the 65. of the 64. of the 63. of the 62. of the 61. of the 60. of the 59. of the 58. of the 57. of the 56. of the 55. of the 54. of the 53. of the 52. of the 51. of the 50. of the 49. of the 48. of the 47. of the 46. of the 45. of the 44. of the 43. of the 42. of the 41. of the 40. of the 39. of the 38. of the 37. of the 36. of the 35. of the 34. of the 33. of the 32. of the 31. of the 30. of the 29. of the 28. of the 27. of the 26. of the 25. of the 24. of the 23. of the 22. of the 21. of the 20. of the 19. of the 18. of the 17. of the 16. of the 15. of the 14. of the 13. of the 12. of the 11. of the 10. of the 9. of the 8. of the 7. of the 6. of the 5. of the 4. of the 3. of the 2. of the 1.

On a plea of three years pollution to an inquisition of forensic entry removed by certiorari, the defendant, if he be found against him, shall pay costs. Ed. Rayn. 1536.

Mittimus for a forensic detainer, on fat. 15 Ric. 2. c. 2.

Middlex. 1 judge one of the justices of our Sovereign Lord the King's Majestie assigned to keep the peace within the said court and the several parts thereof, and to hear and determine divers felonies, treasons, and other misdemeanors in the said county committed. To the keeper of his Majesty's gaol, at —— in the said county, and to his deputy and deputies there, and to every of them, greeting, whereas upon complaint made unto the said defendant, by —— of —— in the said county, yeoman, I have immediately to the dwelling house of the said —— after said in the said county, and there found late of —— labourer, late of the same county, forcibly with strong and armed power holding the said house, against the peace and quiet of our said Lord the King, and against the form of the statute in such case made and provided: Therefore I send you, by the bringers hereof, the bodies of the said ——, ——, and ——, conciliated of the said forcible holding, Command you to seize, and respectively to receive them into your said gaol, and there to keep them, and every of them respectively, until they shall have respectively paid the several sums of ten pounds of good and lawful money of Great Britain, to our said Sovereign Lord the King, which I have set and imposed upon every of them separately, for a fine and for your快手, and to have them discharged, by the said defendant, at the peril that may follow thereon. Given at —— after said in the county of ——, under my hand and seal the —— day of —— in the —— year of the reign of our said Sovereign Lord King George the Third.

Record of a forensic detainer upon view; from Lord Raymond's Reports 1515.

Kent. BE it remembered, that on the 15th day of Sep- tober in the first year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord King George the Second, of Great Britain, France and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith, and fo forth, at Beckett in the county of Kent afoaid, Eliz. Elwell complained to us, E. B. P., and W. P. three of the justices of our said Lord the King assigned to keep the peace in the said county, and also to hear and determine divers felonies, treasons, and other misdemeanors in the said county committed, that Sir Edm. Elwell, late of London, Bert. J. B. and D. M. into the mischief of her the said E. E. being the manjofy-house of her the said E. E. called Lansley-house, situated within the parish of Beckett in the said county, did enter, and her the said E. E. out of the mischief of afoaid, without any due time of the entry of the mischief, was seized as of the freedom of her the said E. E. for the term of her life, unlawfully ejected, expelled and assessed, and the said mischief from her the said E. E. unlawfully with strong and armed power do yet hold, and from her detention, against the form of the statute in such case made and provided; whereas the same E. E. then, to wit, on the said 15th day of September, as the parish of B. afoaid, prayed of us so as afoaid being justices, to her in this behalf that a due remedy be provided according to the form of the statute afoaid: Which complaint and afoaid in the co-afoaid justices being heard, we the afoaid E. B. harnet, P. B. and W. P. of-fores, justices afoaid, to the mischief afoaid personally have come, and do then and there find and see the afoaid Eom. E. J. B. and W. M. the afoaid mischief without the said Lord the King, with strong and armed power detaining, and afoaid in such case made and provided, according to the said E. E. so as is afoaid hath unto us complained: Therefore it is confidered by us the afoaid justices, that the afoaid Eom. E. J. B. and W. M. afoaid mischief without the said Lord the King, with strong and armed power are, as we our proper view then and there in afoaid bond, are U...
Indictment for a forcible entry and detainee at common law.

Middlesex.

THE jurors of our Lord the King upon their oath present, that late of the county of Kent, gentleman, and late of the same, yeoman, together with divers other malefactors and disturbers of the peace of our Lord the King (whose names to the jurors aforesaid are yet unknown) on the day of in the year of our Lord the King, with force and arms, at the parish of Aforesaid, in the county of Kent, unlawfully and injuriously did enter, and that the said and together with the said malefactors, and there with force and arms unlawfully and injuriously did compel, engine, and put out the said from the possession of the said barn and orchard, and the said as aforesaid expelled, assaulted, and put out from the possession of the said barn and orchard, then and there with force and arms unlawfully and injuriously did keep out, and still do keep out, to the great damage of the said and against the peace of our Lord the King, his court and dignity.

Indictment for the statute.

Middlesex.

THE jurors of our Lord the King upon their oath present, that late of the parish of in the county aforesaid, gentleman, on the day of in the year of our Lord the King, was aforesaid of a certain meadow, with the appertainances thereof, sitting, lying and being in the same, in the parish aforesaid, for a certain term of years, and then and still and to come and unexpired, and being aforesaid thereof, our Lord the King, in the said county, without being adviser to the said and in the year aforesaid, into the same meadow, with the appertainances aforesaid, in the parish and county aforesaid, with force and arms, and with strong force unlawfully did enter, and the said aforesaid, from the peaceable possession of the said meadow, with the appertainances aforesaid, there with force and arms, and with strong force, unlawfully did compel and put out, and the said as aforesaid, force and arms, and with strong force, unlawfully did compel and put out, and the said him the said and in the year aforesaid, into the said meadow, with the appertainances aforesaid, in the parish and county aforesaid, with force and arms, and with strong force, unlawfully and injuriously then and there did keep out, and still doth keep out to the great damage of the said and against the peace of our Lord the King, and against the form of the statutes in that case made and provided.

The inquisition, indictment, or finding of the jury.

Middlesex.

AN inquisition for our Sovereign Lord the King, inquired and taken at in the said county, the day of in the year of our Lord the King, by the oaths of good and lawful men of the said county, before , one of the justices of our said Lord the King assigned to keep the peace in the said county, to enquire of divers felonies, trepasses, and other misdemeanours in the said county committed, who are upon their oath aforesaid, that late of yeoman, lawfully and peaceably was seized in his demesne as followeth, viz. in our Lord the King, with the appertainances, in the county aforesaid, and his said possession and feuage, as follows continued until the day of yeoman, yeoman, and late of the same, yeoman, and of our Lord the King, the day of the next high feast, with strong force and armed power, into the meadow aforesaid, with the appertainances, did enter, and him the said thereof did, and into the same meadow, with the said malefactors, did enter, and him the said thereof did, and into the same meadow, with the said malefactors, did enter, and the malefactors, with the appertainances, in the aforesaid in the county aforesaid, and his said possession and feuage, as aforesaid continued until the day of yeoman, yeoman, and late of the same, yeoman, and of our Lord the King, at the day of the taking of this inquisition, with like strong force and armed power, did enter, and do yet keep out, to the great damage of our Lord the King, and against the form of the statute in such case made and provided.

Warrant to the sheriff for restitution.

Middlesex.

Warrant for our Sovereign Lord the King aforesaid to keep the peace in the said county, and to hear and determine divers felonies, trespasses, and other misdemeanors in the said county committed, to the sheriff of the said county, greeting. Whereas by an inquisition before me the justice aforesaid, at the said county aforesaid, on this present day of in the year of our Lord the King, upon the oaths of , and by virtue of the statutes made and provided in cases of forcible entry and detainer, it is found, that late of yeoman, yeoman, and late of yeoman, on the day of this present, now loth paid, into a certain meadow, with the appertainances, in the county aforesaid, gentleman, yeoman, lying and being aforesaid in the county aforesaid, with force and arms did enter, and him the said thereof with strong force and armed power, did drive out, and him the said thereof with strong force and armed power, did drive out, from the aforesaid meadow, with the said appertainances, for this present day of the taking of the said inquisition, with strong force and armed power, did keep out, and do yet keep out, as by the inquisition aforesaid more fully appears of record: Therefore, on the behalf of our said Sovereign Lord the King, I charge and command you, that taking with you the power of the county (if it be needful) you go to the said meadow, and thereto the premises, and the same with the appertainances you cause to be reserved, and that you cause the said to be restored, and put into his full possession thereof, as before the entry aforesaid, was settled, according as the form of the statute doth direct: And that you shall find no witness, or any in the premises, on the penalty thereof in default. Given under my hand and seal in the said county, the day of in the year of our Lord the King.

Precept.
Precept to the Sheriff to return a jury.

Middlesex.

Lord the King assented to keep the peace in the said county, and to hear and determine divers seditious, tumultuous, and other misdemeanors in the said county committed; To the sheriff of the said county, greeting. On behalf of our said Lord the King, we command you, that you come to the assizes and quarter-sessions, as in the county afsayred, on the last day of next ensuing, twenty-four sufficient and indigent men of the neighbourhood of afsayred in the county afsayred, every of whom shall have lands or tenements of forty shillings yearly at the least, above twenty shillings to improve upon their oaths for our said Lord the King, of a certain entry made with strong land (as it is said) into the meafure of one afsayred in the county afsayred, against the form of the statute in such cause made and provided. And you are to return upon every of the jurors by you in this behalf to be impanelled, twenty shillings by you at the afsayred day. And have there these precincts; and this you shall in no wise omit upon the peril that shall thereof ensue. Without the said afsayred in the county afsayred, the last day of in the year of the reign of the.

The jurors oath.

YOU shall true inquiry and presentment make of all such things as shall come before you, concerning a for- feiture entry [sic: denneis] said to have been lately committed in the dwelling house within this county; you shall spare no one for favour or afflication, nor grudge any one for hatred or ill-will, but proceed herein according to the best of your knowledge, and according to the evidence that shall be given you.

So help you God.

The oath that — your former hath taken on his part, and you of every you shall truly observe and keep on your part. So help you God.

Possible marriage. See Marriage.

Fealty, A furd or flavel, made by darning or penning up the water—Non licet aliqui de custodiis fae- dere dammas aut lardos, aut alia impedimenta in aliquibus locantibus, fartheris, juifitis fere aquinis communibus in maris profedit. Ordinario Monali trium Remelendium, p. 69.

Fenals, from the Sax. ford, e. a. river, vadum fere tunciam. 'Tis mentioned in the Menalfeo, 1 tem. pag. 657. Et tenit uique ad numam aquam de Are, & lardos eximium præ, &c.

A grant of land or headland, floating upon other bounds. Coewell, 1717.

Foreshipmen (from te Sax. for, ante, and coaptan, mandaetis, emper) Præ emption. — Et non licet quis eam alii- gand forshipemen facere barmannis, & dare thoriumium in foium. Chron. Brompton, Col. 897, 899. De Nave Negotial, & L. Aichidi, e. 23.

Forfided, Barred, out, or excluded for ever; as the baring the equity of redemption on mortgages, &c. 2 part. Inf. fol. 258. 33 Hen. 8. e. 39.

Forfure of mortgages. See Mortgage.

Forgers, Were purveyors otherwise called, going before the King in progress, to provide for him. 36 Ed. 3. c. 5.

Foreign, (Fr. forai, Lat. foricium, extraneous) Strange, outlandish, or of another country, and in our law is used advizedly, being joined with divers subfun- dion in several senses. Kitch, 126.

Foreign anwser, Is such an answer as is not triable in the country where it is made. 15 H. 6. cap. 5.

Foreign attachment, Is an attachment of a foreigner's goods found within a liberty, or a city, for the satisfac- tion of some citizen whom the foreigner is indebted to. As Lempury (anciently Lemmerty) is the borough and the foreign; which latt is within the jurisdiction of the manor, but not within the bailiiff of the borough's liberty.

So foreign court of the hon. of Gloucester, Churf. 2 Pt. m. 2. 5. Foreign kings, and foreign fields, is a custom within the city of London, when being found prejud- dicul over the farmers of cattle in Smithfield, it was en- actcd 23 & 24 Car. 2. that as well foragers as freemen may buy and sell any cattle there. Cowell, edit. 1777. See Attachmen.

Foreign courts, Decrees, judgments, &c. there, how far binding or regarded or. The ship being un- laden at Barcelot, where the freight was payable by the charter-party, the factor retuming to pay the freight, the matter of the ship lagged there in the Admiralty for it; and the court being heard, and judgment being there given, that the matter should have its freight, but that the dam- ages the goods had sustained in the voyage, by reason of the deviation, should be deducted, and the account transferred to the deliquatours, (who are in the nature of our masters in Chancery) to take the account, and the money ordered to be brought into court; but the factor had appealed to a higher court there. Lord Chan- cellor declared, that he would not flight their proceedings beyond sea; and if in this case the damages had been there ascertained, or a peremptory sentence given, the fame should have been conclusive to all parties: But it appearing, the factor was a native of that place, and therefore, in all probability, might again prevail; and defendant being willing to defit in fait there, this lord- ship directed a trial here by jurors, to ascertain the damages sustained by the deviation.»

Discharge of a foreign jurisdiction from a bill of ex- change drawn here, is a good defence in an action brought on the same bill here. Sir. 733.

Sentence of a foreign admiralty condemning a ship as insufficient, not to be read on trial of an issue joined on that fact. Sir. 222.

Special bail shall not be given on a recovery in a foreign court. Stran. 1243.

Forigners, Though made denizens or naturalized here, are dudibled to bear offices in the government, to be of the privy council, members of parliament, &c. by the act of fetention of the crown. 12 Will. 3. e. 2. 1 Geo. 1. c. 4.

Foreign kingdom, Is a kingdom under the dominion of a foreign prince; so that Ireland, or any other place, subject to the crown of England, cannot with us be called foreign; though to some purposes they are dif- cribed from that which is subject to the crown of this kingdom; but it may be tried here by the Common law; but it may be tried and determined by the comitile and martial, according to the Civil law; or the fault may be examined by the privy council, and tried by commiffioners ap- pointed by the King in any country of England, and by the law of the land, 3 Inf. 40. 33 H. 8. One Hutchinfen killed Mr. Celsin abroad in Portugal, for which he was tried there, and acquitted, the exemplification of which acqui- shrac he produced under the Great feal of that kingdom; and the King being willing he should be tried here, referred it to the judges, who all agreed, that the party being already acquired by the laws of Portugal, could not be tried again for the fame fact here. 3 Ed. 728. If a stranger of Holland, or any foreign king- dom, buys goods at London, and gives a note under his hand for payment, and then goes away privately into Holland; he may have a certificate from the Lord Mayor, on proof of sale and delivery of the goods; upon which the people of Holland will execute a legal process on the party. 4 Inf. 38. Alfo at the inference of an ambassador or conful, such a perfon of England, or any criminal proceeding against him in any foreign country, cannot be proceeded against by a foreign kingdom hitter. Where bond is given, or contract made in a foreign kingdom, it may be tried in the King's Bench.»

Hib. 11. 2 Bafif. 332.

Foreign lands, Judgments, &c. of things done there. 4. A. was tried in the Admiralty upon an obligation sup- posed to be made and delivered in France, and upon which he prayed a prohibition. Per cur. Such a bond may be fit here here in B. R. but being begun in the Admiralty, we cannot allude them, because the peril of the ship are saved, and in which may be examined
th but not here.
3 Le. 232. Mid. 31 Ed. B. R.
Foreign laws and customs, how last regarded.
On a marriage of two French people in France, the contract was, that the husband, surviving the wife, should have the fortune of the estate, and to have the benefit of the contract. It was objected, that they could not bring over the French law hither, but must now be governed by the laws of England, the husband surviving is intituled to all the wife's perquisites, or at least there was no colour to carry the same further than the sum fluctuated in the contract, and not to that which was left to go according to the custom of Paris, which is only a local law, and so could have no benefit of it here. It was answered, that mar-rriage-contracts are to be supported in all countries, without regard to the place where made, and that this contract extended to the whole fortune of the wife, and not only to the particular mentioned, and the saying that the reft should go according to the custom of Paris, is as much as if the custom had been recited at large, and that the fortune should go. Lord Keeper decreed reliefs for the wife as she was fluctuated; and Lords, they had relief for the whole.
Chanc. Prec. 207. Mid. 1703. S. C. cited in a cafe of marriage articles made in Holland, and that by the law of Holland, marrige-articles take place of any other debts, and it was inflicted, that therefore they should be considered here according to the law of Holland, where they appeared to have been made. But it was answered, and so ruled, that it ought to have been proved in this cafe, what is the law of Holland, as in the above cafe it was proved, what was the law of France; without which proofs, our court Fracanet v. Duvell.
The plaintiffs being creditors of Colley, preferred their bill against the defendant, being all foreigners, but the goods were paid over into England, into merchants hands by Colley; and this court taking notice, in respect of the different contries, and the redention of the rents of the fealf by those King's Hous; secondly, because the bill was not sealed; thirdly, because the debt grew in France, and he came over hither to keep his body from arreft,
the court decreed the debts, and caufed a decreet to be drawn up for confafs, because the defendant would not answer, and there was no party in hands, to pay the debts, at they were powred over to others: to the ufe of an infant. T. 131, 132. cites 8 Sec. Sore & Elam v. Colly.
The plaintiff being a Dutch woman brought 4000l.
portion to her husband, who agreed with her before mar-rriage, to leave a complete maintenance for herself and her children, but not expressing what; the marriage took effect, but he declining in effate, his friends called on him, and he thereupon asigned certain bonds, wherein
M. was bound to him, and a letter of attorney was made after to S. to receive the money upon the bonds, who recived the sum, and paid the rent of the house, and therefore his plea was granted, and the agreement and af-signment of the debt in Holland, where such agreement between husband and wife, and such assignment of bonds are good, they are to be allowed here. By the Lord Cafe.
Foreign money. When one demands foreign coin in specie, the writ ought to be in the deines only; but when the cause is in English silver is demanded, it may be in the deines and distinct. Per cur. to Wright & Eyre f. Sc. to agree, that by English Coine are as foreign coin. Lorn. 288. Mid. 5 & M. in cafe of Pope v. St. Leger, &c. 39 Ps. 1 Bar. B. R. and Ward v. Kidbrooke &c. Kidbrooke. It ought to be in the distinct only, and they may count the value.
Per Hill Ch. 69. C. & C. are words in their force or by Court, they must demand English money, and not foreign money, and they are to value it according to the value it bears here in England; but if a man will bring an action for foreign money, it must be deines.
13 Mid. 541.
Foreign opprondon or appopos. (Parinçarmus apporpon,) A man pleading for his satisfaction, also an assignee of all the debts, and if they are appopled of their sums out of the Pipe office, do repair to be appopled by him of their Green wax. He examines the scriff's efferts with the record, and appopled the sheriff what he pays to every particular sum therein, Practises of the Exchequer, ep. 87. See 4 left. fol. 107.
Foreign plantations. A writ of error bringing her in their judgments in Barbados, viz. in any dom-nions belonging to England. Vagg. 402. in cafe of Pross in Wales.
In Barbados they have laws different from ours, as that a dead body flall be a feme cover, &c. 2. 1 Act. 46.
Trin. 37 Cor. 2. C. A. Arg. in cafe of Davies v. Pindar.
An appeal lies from thofe lands to the King and Coun-cell here, but that is by confittutions of their own. Ag.
Mid. 46. in cafe of Davies v. Pindar.
The King constituted a governor and council of State of Barbados by the laws of Barbadoes, as well as the enforcement of the enforcement of the governor for imputing the plea by order of the Council, Judgment was given for the plaintiff in B. R. Hall. 2 fac. 2. 2 Mid. 159. Winbam v. Dutton.
But in a writ of error in the House of Lords, it was argued, that the King did not appear to the King gave any authority to the Governor and Council to commit, yet it is incident to their authority as being a Council of State; the Council here in England commit no otherwise, and where the commitment is not authorized by law,
the King's patent gives no power for it. But the government of the Governor and Council in either State cannot commit a delinquency, so as to be forthcoming to another court that can punish his delinquency.
And therefore prayed that the judgment should be reversed, and the faime was accordingly reversed. Par. Coif. 34.
These plantations are parcel of the realms, as county palatines are, the rights and interest are ever de-determined in Chancery here, only that for necessity and encouragement of trade, they make plantation-lands as affets in certain cases to pay debts; in all other things they make rules for them, according to the common cafe of Dutton v. Jacobs.
It was inquired by Council, that by the custom of the island of Barbadoes, a plantation there, that it be a fee-密封e effate, is in the first place liable to the payment of debts, so that the owner cannot, by his will, so devife his plantation, but that it will be liable to the payment of his debts; but here debts may be the debts contracted on the place, or elsewhere, for matters relating to the plant-A recovered a debt contracted here against an executor in manner of a plantation in Barbadoes, and brought an action of trover, and had judgment for the cited in a case Maynard's cafe.
A plantation in Barbadoes is not a testamentary effate by the laws now in force. Per cur. Trin. 1687.
Vern. 453. No. B. 5.
In Barbadoes, the freolds are Subject to debts, and are enforced as chattels till the creditors are satisfied, and then the land derived to the heir. 4 Mid. 226. 5 W.
& M. B. R. in case of Blundard v. Lydiard.
A paftiff may sue in the Admiral court, if he will sue in the Admiralty. Vern. 63. in case of Virginia.
He apprises the contract in England, to sue here. But a part of the contract bargain, and part over to the said Virginia, or or upon the sea, the Common law only shall have jurisdiction, and those are the true differences. Per Jones J. 2 Rot. R. 442. Hill 22. Jour. B. R. Cooper’s case. The reason why an ejection will not lie of lands in Jamaica, or any of the King’s foreign territories, is because the courts here cannot command them to do execution there; for they have no sheriffs; per Tynedale J. Tint. 59. Hill 21 & 22 Cor. 2. B. R. Goff v. The Mayor, Etc. This is also the case in Jamaica. The Court cannot adjudicate on the usages of the lands lying in Jamaica, but they must be tried by a jury. 2 Med. 450. Trin. 29 Cor. 2. C. B. Goff v. Elbin.
Lands lying in Jamaica pass by grant, and no livery and freein is necessary. Med. 240. Trin. 29 Cor. 2. G.
Cooper v. Elbin. The reason why a suit should not be tried in Jamaica, because the Treason done in Carolina, in raising a rebellion there, may be tried in Middlesex, by 25 H. S. 2. 3 Salk. 538.
Laws of England do not extend to Virginia, being a conquered country; their law is, what the King pleases. Per Hill Ch. J. 2 Salk. 666. Smith v. Brewin and Cholmondeley.
Leffor brought debt against leffor for rent, upon a describe of lands in Jamaica, and laid his action in London; defendant pleaded, that the lands were in Jamaica, and that there are courts there, &c. that if entry and ouster were pleaded, it could not be tried here, and that the right of the land and defendant depending on foreign laws, cannot be given in evidence here. And per cur.
Where an action is local, it must be laid accordingly;
therefore if the leffor declares on the privilege of efface, and that lies in Ireland, &c. the action must be brought there; for the efface is local, therefore such leffor cannot maintain the action without naming an affidavit of a term in Ireland; for the action is founded on a privilege of efface, otherwise ‘tis founded on a privilege of contract, which is tranitory, as debt for rent by leffor against leffor, for that may be maintained where the land lies not; and if a foreign issue, which is local, should happen, it may be tried here where the action is local for that purpose.
there may be a fogulation entered on the roll, that such a place in such a county is next adjacent, and it may be tried here by a jury from that place, according to the laws of that country, and on mil debt pleaded, you may give the laws of that country in evidence. 2 Salk. 651.
Trin. 3 Am. B. R. Woy v. Tally.
If there is no such uninhabited country found out by England subjects, as the law is the birth-right of every sub-eject, so wherever they go, they carry their laws with them, and therefore such new-found country is to be given the laws of England. 2 Wins’s Rep. 75. says, it was laid by the Master of the Rolls, 9 Augis 1773. to have been so determined by the Lords of the Privy Council upon appeal.
But after such country is inhabited by the English, acts of parliament, made in England, will not bind them without naming there, where the plantation lies. Therefore it has been determined, that the statute of frauds and perjuries, which requires three witnesses to a will, and that these should subscribe in the teftator’s preference, in case of a devile of land, does not bind Bar-bonian. Ibid.
Foreign plea, Is a refusal of the judge, as incompetent, because the matter in question is not within his jurisdiction. Kitchin, f. 75. 4 H. 8. cap. 2. and 22
H. 8. c. 2. 14. A foreign plea is, where the action is carried out of the country where ‘tis laid, and is to be sworn, which a plea to the jurisdiction of England, 4th Carist. 425. Peofh. 9 W. 3. B. R. Cholmley v. Broom.
Ancient demeons, and all pleas of privilege, are pleas to the jurisdiction, and not foreign pleas, and therefore not to be sworn to, but may be received without an oath. Arg. and judgment accordingly. 5 Med. 333. Cholmondeley v. Broom.
VOL. II. N°. 77.

By flat. 6 Ric. 2. c. 2. In writs of debt and account, and all other such actions, if in pleas upon the same writs it shall be alleged, that the contract was made in another county that is contained in the original writ, the same writ shall be abated.
Before this statute, writ of debt and account against a receiver, and soci-li-like actions, might be brought in any county, where the party might be brought in to answer, and the suit might have been of a contact or receipt, &c. in any other county; because debitum et contractus, &c. jsto nullius loci. 7 Rep. 3. in Butter’s case.
It appears by the declaration, that the money was to be paid out of the jurisdicton of the court, the judg-mint is not good; and ‘tis not necessary to swear the plea, if it appears on the obligation, that the money was to be paid out of the jurisdiction of the court, and he pleads payment according to the condition. But if one will not swear a foreign plea, where he ought to do it, the plaintiff may enter judgment on a nihil debit, for such a for-reign plea, not being sworn, it is upon the matter. Sti.
A prohibition was prayed to the court of the commer,
to an action of debt there commenced; for that the defendant had pleaded before impartial. That the caufe of debt did arise in a place out of their jurisdiction, and offered to have sworn his plea, and that if this plea; and a prohibition was granted; for inferior courts have not cognizance of tranitory things, which arise out of their jurisdiction, as F. N. B. 45. is: But then ‘tis not sufficient to furnise such matter for a probhibition, but a plea to that effect must be tender’d in the inferior court, and that before any instance any whereby the jurisdiction would be admitted) and it must be upon oath; and then if refused, a prohibition shall be granted; or upon such refusal, a bill of exceptions may be made, and error assigned. Tint. 180. Hill 23 & 24
Cor. 2. B. R. Cholmley v. Broom.
Debt was brought in B. R. on a bond made at Chelfer,
the defendant did not impele but pleaded by attorney, that he is, and at the time of the action brought was an inhabitant, and notoriously converfant at Nantwich, within the county palantine of Chelfer, and prayed judgment if the court of B. R. ought to hold plea of this matter. But the plaintiff, taking this to be a foreign plea, signed judgment, because it was not sworn to. And to set aside this judgment, it was infiltred, that ‘tho’ this is a plea to the jurisdiction, yet it is not a foreign plea, and therefore need not be sworn to; and accordingly the judgment was set aside. See Earis 402. Poleh. 9 W. 3.
B. R. Cholmley v. Broom, and 5 Med. 335. Cholmdeley
S. C.
Debt was brought in London. A prohibition was moved for, and granted nul. upon fogulation that the defendant had tended for plea below, that the cause did arise out of their jurisdiction, and offered to make oath to the truth of it. Now it was showed, that he tended the plea after the court was up, whereas it should be, in propriis persona, and in court. And ‘tho’ an affidavit was offered in B. R. of the truth of the plea; and one Turner’s case, 4 Jac. 2. was the plea cited out of B. R. It was shown that the prohibition had been granted upon affidavit in B. R. without oath below; yet by three judiques, obfente Hall, the rule was dicharged. For in all pleas that ought a court of jurisdiction, whether inferior or superior, there must be oath, in that court, of the truth of the plea. 6 Med. 140.
Poleh. 3 A. m. B. R. Sparks v. Wood.
In debt, if the defendant pleads foreign plea in another county in perian, he shall not be examined; but if it be by attorney, the attorney shall be examined. But in this case they ufe to examine the party at his discretion, not to be sworn to. Br. Examination. pl. 23. cites 2 Ed.
4. 10.
If one be tried in an inferior court, for a matter out of the jurisdicton, the defendant may either have a prohibition from one of the Common law courts, or may,
if it happen in the vacation, and it happens then, when the Chancery only is open, move the court of Chancery
for
FOR

for prohibition, but then it must appear upon oath, that the matter arose out of the jurisdiction, and that the defendant tendered a foreign plea, which was refused. Wilks's Rep. 476, Trin. 1718. Anno.

But if a prohibition has been granted improvidently, and without these circumstances, the court will grant a jura perpetuo thereto. Ibid.

And it is the proper and or shall appear on the face of the declaration, that the matter is out of the jurisdiction of the court, then a prohibition will be granted without oath of having tendered a foreign plea, and in those cases equity imitates the Common law. Ibid. 477.

And in a late case, which was brought the last fall after Trinity term, where the court had granted a prohibition to an action in the courts of London, upon an affidavit, that the matter arose out of the jurisdiction, it appearing at another day, that the defendant had imparked generally, (which admitted the jurisdiction) and to which not afterwards be allowed to plead a foreign plea, the court granted a jura perpetua to the writ of prohibition.
Ibid. 477. See 2nd Inst. tit. Foreign Plea.

Foreign Service, is that whereby a mean lord holds over of another, without the compals of his own fee. (Brake, tit. Tenures, 29, 95, 351. num. 12 & 28. Kitch. (ed. 2.) Or else that which is of a tenant personal in a tenant lord, or to the lord paramount of the fee. Of which service, thus Bracton, (lib. 2. cap. 16. num. 7.) Item fuit quandam servitutem quia defunt corinacula, quorum just in earto de festinantia caprae & nominativa; & quia idem dicit palinse cointe, quia pertinent ad dominum regni, & non ad domum capitale, ut cum in propria persona profitaetur in servitut, vel nisi cum pro servitute suo justiscretor domini regni, quasi modoque, & fiant in certis temporibus, cum cujus & necessiris eurentur, & varia habent munus, & derius: Quodcumque enim nominator corinuncia, largum fumus vacat, quia festinantia domini regni, quandamque jiunguntur, quodcumque, & fiant in certis temporibus, & idem forinsecum dicit potest, quia fit & capitatur foris, ficta extra festinantiam quid fit domini capitale. Foreign Service is to be knights-service or ecusso uncertain. Perkins, Reformatus 650.

Foreign States. A. by authority of the King of Denmark, feigned and condemned goods in some of the domains of the King of Denmark, according to the law of that land, and coming into England was prosecuted here for the same. The court thought this was a matter of flate, and exercised the law of another King of England, and that what was done was according to their law, and that it was not properly triable here, whether the King of Denmark had power to make such a grant, and decreed a perpetual in-

It man obtains a judgment or sentence in France, yet here the debt must be considered as a debt by simple contract, He can maintain no action here, but an in-debt. off. or an infulous convosito, & they both parties were foreigners, that will not help the plaintiff. Per Lord Keeper. Hil. 1705. 2 Vern. R. Daplin v. De Royen.

Where a foreign court hath jurisdiction of a cause, and the persons are within it, the sentence must bind without regard to what law is here; and the sentence appearing, is not to be controlled by evidence that the law is not so far. Sol. Oh. Ca. in Lord King's time 69.
Mich. 1725, Bourreux v. emmunch.

English merchants resorting to Denmark, to go to the flaple at North Bergen, 8 H. 6. c. 2.

Importation of the produce of the Duke of Burgundy's country prohibited, till he shall recall his prohibition of Englishe drapery, 27 H. 6. c. 1. 28 H. 6. c. 1. 4 Ed. 4.
5. 5. 5.

An oath and bond to be exacted of thos that go in to foreign service, 3 Jac. 1. c. 4. sect. 18.

Difabilities of children sent into foreign parts for education, without licence. 3 Jac. 1. c. 5. sect. 16.

Lending money to a foreign prince without licence prohibited, 3 Geo. 2. c. 5.

SUBJ.-Accepting commissions in the Dutch brigade in the Dutch service, to take the oaths to His Majesty, 29
Geo. 2. c. 17. sect. 5.

Offences committed abroad may be tried in Great Britain, 2 Geo. 2. c. 17. sect. 6. 6.

Foreign Writter. See Writter.

Judicature. A tribunal. Signifies a judgment, wise, a thing determined, or put out of the thing in question: It signifies to be compounded of just, i.e. prater and iusser, judicatere Bracton, lib. 4. cap. 3, num. 5; both these words, Et non permittas quod A, capitales dominus fuit inulis habet exequiendis curtis; & quae in curis non permissa, non sequitur exequientur. Coram Cur- tiero usw. 41, 59. and Odd. Stat. Bree. fol. 44 & 51.

And the fifth Ed. 3. c. 9 and 21 Rich. 2. c. 12.

Forjudicatus, with authors of other nations, signifies as much as confessed, or as deprehens in the ancient Roman law, as appeareth by Isacriuius de Fructibus, decis. 101.

Forjudged the court, is when an officer of the court is expoused the same for the issue or not appearing or not appearing to an action by bill filed against him; and in the latter he is not to be re-admitted, till he shall appear. 2 H. 4.
8. he shall lose his office, and he be forejudged the court.

Swearing to a copy of any instrument of manufacture.
No bill shall be filed against an officer, clerk, or minister of the court, to be called in court, in order to a forjudge, until the bill be actually entered on rec-dord, and a number roll actually put to the bill. Trin.
21 Car. 2. This rule is in a great measure diffused.
You may take a bill on any man's oath, and it may be stamped with a double penny stamp, which the profane marks as entered, on being paid for the entry, and it is thereby fupposed to be entered, though no number roll is put on the bill; then you carry the bill to W. Seider's and give it to one of the clerks, who calls the dedendant forjudged, are they without a hund, after which you give a rule on the bill with the evidence,
and the defendant to appear, for which you pay 1.
4. 6. 11. for the King's duty, and for the rule 4.
and 4. on file you file the bill in the probatorioy's office r which you pay 4. 4. And heretofore it was not necessary to give the defendant any other notice of filing such bill against him than the calling him in court as aforesaid by the cries, which, as all attorneys of the court were supposed to be personally present in court during the sitting thereof, was then thought to be sufficient notice. But many attorneys having been struck off the roll on forjudged for ill Conduct of another attorney, and are in the greatest more parts of the kingdom, that it was impossible for them to have notice time enough to give order for their appearance before the rule (which was a four day rule)
was expired, this practice is altered; and now,

Where a bill shall be filed against an attorney of the court, no forjudger shall be called for want of attendance, if the action be laid in London or Middlesex, and the attorney resides within twenty miles of London, until four days after notice in writing of filing such bill be given to such attorney or his agent, or left at his usual place of abode, and a rule given for such appearance as above; and any attorney or his agent residing in London or Middlesex be called in eight days after such notice filed shall be given in manner as aforesaid, and a rule to appear; the said days to be exclusive of the days of giving such notice. Hil. 11 G. 2.

Forlie, Terra temporaous, vel capitata, A head-land, or (as they vulgarly call it) lade land. Cowell.
edit. 1737.

Forlie, Forisia, Signifies a great or vast wood; in French fien foreir & forinoe, in Latin fores altissimi & fabner. Such woods are written upon in the Common Law, as Forijs of issis ubi fove inchoate vel chitale, with whom were several others. Some do say it is called Forisia quiae feruium stabilius vel tuo manu foraim. Mowro in his First Law, cap. 1. num. 1.
thus define it. A covert is a territory of woody grounds, and stantish poyars, privileged for wild bough

and
and fields of forest, cloths, and warren, to rest and abide in the same peace and quiet. For this reason, and as a precaution against the law that if you trespass, it is fined and marked with unremovable marks, marks and boundaries, either known by master of record, or by any person of the parishes, and also replenished with wild beasts of venery or chase. And with great courts of vert, for the purpose of the field with beasts to know their charge, and for the preservation and marking of which field place, together with the vert and venison, there are certain privileges and offices belonging only to the same. The manner of making forfeits, as the same author well set forth, cap. 2. num. 2. in this, the King holds out his commendation and approbation to certain discreet persons, for the view, perambulation, meering and bounding of the place lie mindeth to be a forest; which being returned into the Chancery, proclamation is made throughout all the three where the ground lieth. That none shall hunt or chase any manner of wild beasts in that precinct, without the King's special licence; after which, he appointed ordinances, laws, and officers fit for the preservation of the vert and venison; and so it became a forest by matter of record. The properties of a forest are those in particular: first, A forest, as it is truly and strictly taken, cannot be in the hands of any private man: the same as being because none hath power to grant commination to a justice in the eye of the forest but the King, cap. 24. num. 1. The second property is the court; as the justiser, fest every three years; the fines moneys three every year; and the attachment one every forty days. Idem, cap. 24. num. 1. But private persons are the officers belonging to it, for the preservation of the vert and venison: As first, The justices of the forest, the warden or keeper, verderers, foresters, criers, regarders, bailiffs, headles, and such like, which you may see, and their duties, in Manwood, cap. 21. num. 1, 2, 3, 4. And the chief party of the officers is the forest court, as being directed to that, and to take care that the sons William Rufus would hang a man for taking a doe, and for a hare he made him pay twenty thyllings, and ten thyllings for a cony. Eadmerus, lib. 2. p. 48. mention that the same Rufus caused fifty rich men to be apprehended, and accused them of taking and killing his bucks, which they denying, they were to come themselves by the fire ordine, &c. And Hen. 1. made no distinction between him who killed a man or a buck, and punished those who destroyed the game (though not in the forest) either by forfeiture of their goods, or loss of limbs: But Hen. 2. made it only imprisonment, a time. Hen. 3. R. 1. revived the old laws for punishing those who were convicted of hunting in the forest, (viz.) that they should be gelt, and have their eyes pulled out. But that King afterwards abolished this punishment, and appointed such offenders to abide the realm, or be committed, or to pay a fine. Ed. 1. appointed this punishment, but that they should be three years at horn and limb. The historians of those times tell us, that New forest was raised by the destruction of twenty-two parishes, and many villages, chapels and manors, for the space of ten years together. This was done to discharge to God, that several of those Princes came to unintly ends in that very forest; and particularly that Rufus was there shot by Tufrel; and before him, Richard, the brother of Hen. 1. was there killed by a folder; and Henry, who was nephew to Robert, the eldest son of the Conqueror, did hang like Dyson in the boughs of the forest.

Perfons refining out of the forest, not bound to attend the common summons, C. de F. 9 H. 3. 3. ft. 2. c. 2. Waste, purpresse, and affaire, not to be made without licence, C. de F. 9 H. 3. 3. ft. 2. c. 4. Regards and lawing of dogs to be as accused, C. de F. 9 H. 3. 3. ft. 2. c. 5. 6. Swainmotes to be held but twice in a year, C. de F. 9 H. 3. 3. ft. 2. c. 8. Scoldes and gatherings restrained, C. de F. 9 H. 3. 3. ft. 2. c. 7. 25 Ed. 3. 9. 3. ft. 2. c. 7. Punishment of killing King's deer, 9 H. 3. 3. ft. 2. c. 10. Noblemen going to the King may kill deer, 9 H. 3. 3. ft. 2. c. 11. Who may take toll, and of whom, 9 H. 3. 3. ft. 2. c. 14. Pleas of the forest how to be attacked and held, 9 H. 3. 3. ft. 2. c. 16. Owners of purlicue not to have common, unless they will have their grounds re-united to the forest, Ordin. Forst. 33 Ed. 1. 8. 5. How prelentments shall be made of offences in the forest, Ordin. Forst. 34 Ed. 1. 8. 5. c. 1. The justices in the forest shall name the officers except verderers, Ordin. Forst. 34 Ed. 1. 8. 5. c. 2. Ministers of the forest shall not be put in juries out of the forest, Ordin. Forst. 34 Ed. 1. 8. 5. c. 3. Punishment for excess in the forest, Ordin. Forst. 34 Ed. 1. 8. 5. 4. Common restored in the forest after perambulation, Ordin. Forst. 34 Ed. 1. 8. 5. c. 6. The punishment for offences in greenhe, Conforf. & Affis. Forst. inclut temp. sed. 4. In cutting timber, ibid. fett. 3. Concerning assault and purpresse, ibid. fett. 4. For offences in hunting, ibid. fett. 7. &c. The manner of making agiment and pannage in the forest, ibid. fett. 14. Concerning cattle trespassing, ibid. fett. 15. Permons unduly imprisoned by the ministers of the forest, shall have a domine repugnante, 1 Ed. 3. 9. 3. ft. 2. c. 8. Perambulation to be done in time of King Ed. 1. 1 Ed. 3. 9. 3. ft. 2. c. 1. The owner of woods may freely take his elfowers, 1 Ed. 3. 9. 3. ft. 2. c. 2. Forester's gathering nothing without content, 25 Ed. 3. 9. 3. ft. 5. 7. General pardon of offences of vert and venison, 43 Ed. 3. 9. 3. c. 4. Indemnations of the swainmote to be without fees, 46 Ed. The jury shall give their verdicts of trespass in the forest, in the same place where they receive their charge, 7 R. 2. c. 3. None shall be imprisoned within the forest without indenture or mainlentine, 7 R. 2. c. 4. The
The owner of a wood, after cutting it, may inclose the firing for seven years, 22 Ed. 4. c. 7.
Discharge of the offices in the foreft of Inglewood, 4 H. 7. c. 6.
Opofitions in the forefts in Wales prohibited, 27 H. 8.

The King fhall have chace and war in the grounds of Hampton-Court, 31 H. 8. c. 5.
The juftices of the forefts may make deputies, 32 H. 8.

The forefts reftained to the known bounds of 21 Jac. 1. 16 Car. 1.
No place shall be deemed a foreft but where courts have been held or verdurers chosen within 60 years before the reign of King Charles 1. 16 Car. 1. c. 16. felt. 5.

Commissioners to affertain the bounds of forefts, 16 Car. 1. c. 16. felt. 6.

Owners of tenements, &c. to enjoy ancient common, 16 Car. 1. c. 16. felt. 9. The bounds of the foreft of Dean aftertained, 20 Car. 2. c. 3.

Saving of right of common, 20 Car. 2. c. 3. felt. 11.

And of miners, 20 Car. 2. c. 3. felt. 12.
Coal-mines, &c. for what terms to be leased, 20 Car. 2. c. 3. felt. 18.

For preferring timber in New foreft, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 36.
Right of common, &c. how to be enjoyed, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 36. felt. 7.

Warrants of chief juftices in eyre or of the foreft exempted from flamp duty, 10 Ann. c. 26. felt. 14.
Penalty on officers of forefts and the like, 5 Geo. 1. c. 15. felt. 5.

Keepers, &c. may feize inftuments used in unlawful cutting of trees, 4 Geo. 3. c. 31.

Foreflegant, (Eius fitus de thelone & pagfliae, & de foreflegant, & thelones aquarum & viarum foreftam mane contingatium. Charta 18 Ed. 1. m. 10. n. 30.)
Seems to signify some duty or tribute payable to the King's forefts, as chaminage, or such like. It may likewise be taken for a right to use the forfls, or a payment for the right, or rather a taking of reasonable efleers there. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Foreftallings, (Viam obstruente, from the Sax. fars, i.e. out, and file, signifies the buying or bargaining for any corn, cattle, or other merchandise, by the way, before it comes to any market or fair to be sold; or by the way as it comes from beyond the seas, or otherwise, toward any city, port, haven, or creek of this realm, to the intent to sell the same at a more high and dear price. 52 H. 3. flat. 6. Whit. part 2. Symbol. cit. Indictments, felt. 64.) Cowell.

1. Of the offences of forftalling, ingraving, and regrating by the Common laws, (that is, by the common customs of the realm, before any act of parliament was made concerning them,) and how punished.
2. The statutes against forftalling, ingraving, and regrating.
3. Cases adjudged upon these statutes.
4. Pleasings.
5. Of the offences of forftalling, ingraving, and regrating by the Common laws, (that is, by the common customs of the realm, before any act of parliament was made concerning them,) and how punished.
All endeavours whatsoever to enhance the common price of any merchandise, and all kinds of praclices which have any apparent tendency thereto; whether by spreading false rumours, or by buying things in a market before the accustomed hour, or by buying and selling again the same thing in the same market, or by any such like devices, are highly criminal at Common law: And all such offences anciently came under the general notion of forftalling; which included ingraving, regrating, and all kinds of offfences of this nature. 1 Hawk. P. C. 234. 43 S. 38. 3 S. 195. 196.

And forly there can be no atempt of this kind, but must be looked upon as an high offence against the public; as it apparently tends to put a check upon trade, to the general inconvenience of the people, by putting it out of their power to supply themselves with a commodity, which they are in the same market very much in need of. This practise especially is extremely opprobrious to the poorer sort, and cannot but give just cause of complaint to the rich. 1 Hawk. P. C. 234.

But it hath been resolved, that any merchant, whether he be a subject or a foreigner, bringing victuals, or any other merchandise into the realm, may sell the same in grofs; but that no person can lawfully buy within the realm any merchandise in gross, and sell the same in grofs again; because, by such means, the price will be inhaunted; for the more hands any merchandise paffeth through, the dearer it must grow; because every one will make his proffit, and no man will sell or buy at a lower price than he can make his proffit. 1 Hawk. P. C. 234. 3 S. 195. 196.

H. P. C. 152.
And as to the manner whereby offences of this kind are punishable by the Common law, it is said, that, by an ancient statute, the offender was to be grossly amerced for the first offence; for the second, to be condemned to the pillory; for the third, to be imprisoned; and for the fourth, to be compelled to abjure the will: And there seems to be no doubt, but that, at this day, all offenders of this kind are liable to a fine and imprisonement, answerable to the heinousness of their offences, upon an indictment at Common law. 1 Hawk. P. C. 235. 3 S. 197. H. P. C. 152.

2. The statutes against forftalling, ingraving, and regrating.

Stat. 5 Hen. 3. c. 8. 6. felt. 1. First, Six lawful men fhall be sworn truly to gather all measures of the town, viz. bafhefs, half and quarter bafhefs, gallows, pottles and quarts, as well of taverns as of other places: Measures and weights, vin. pounds, half pounds, and other little weights, wherewith bread of the town, or of the court, is weighed: and upon every measure, bafhef, and weight, the name of the owner shall be written, and likewise they gather the measures of mills: After which, twelve men shall swear to make true answer to such things as shall be demanded of them in the King's behalf upon the articles here following; and such things as be secret, they shall utter secretly, and answer privy.

The reader of this fiction relates to the office of bread and ale; but so much of it as relates to the office of bread is repealed by flat. 31 Geo. 2. cap. 29.
Sel. 2. Allo, if there be any that fell by one measure, and buy by another; allo, if any do affe falsre, wine, or any measures; and if any butcher fell contagious flesh: Allo, they shall inquire of cooks that fetehe flesh, or fish, with bread, or water, or otherwise, that is not wholesale, or after that they have kept it so long that it lothe its natural wholesomefes, and then feehe it again, and sell it; or if any buy any flesh of frous, and then sell it to another; and also forefflers that buy anything before the hour, or that pass out of the town to meet such things as come to the market, to the intent they may sell the same in the town unto regrators. When a quarter of barley is sold for two thilings, then four quarts of ale shall be sold for one penny; when for two thilings and six-pence, then seven quarts for two pence;
pence; when for three shillings, then three quarters for a penny; when for three shillings and fix-pence, then five quarters for two pence; when for four shillings, then two quarts at one penny.

Oxen, for bakers, &c. And publick.

[See they upon and or, and the publick.

The Mayor, or those that had the care of the city, and receiving the rich; and, by that means, goeth about to sell the said things much dearer than he that brought them; who cometh about merchant-strangers, and offereth them his help in the case of their wares; and informeth them, that they must sell their wares cheaper than they meant to have done: He that is convicted thereof, the first time, shall be arraigned, and shall lose the thing so bought, according to the custom of the town; he that is convicted the second time, shall have judgment of the pilory; the third time, he shall be imprisoned and mulcted. And motions, be still above the town, and likewise that they give them counsel, help, or favour.

Stat. 23 Ed. 3. c. 6. Butchers, fishmongers, re- grators, bakers, brewers, bakers, poulterers, and other sellers of victuals, shall be bound to sell the fame for a reasonable price, and not to lend any victuals, nor the parts thereof, and thereof be convicted, for so by the county, wapentake, titheing, or such other the King's courts, as appears by Stat. 23 Ed. 3. c. 4. If he shall pay double the fame that he received to the party dammified; or, in default of him, to any other that will sue; and the mayor, bailiffs or others, and the officers, shall have power to require: And in case the mayor and bailiffs be negligent, and be the executors before the justices af- firmed, they shall pay the treble of the thing sold to the party dammified; or, in default of him, to any other that will sue, and be grievously punished towards the King.

Stat. 35 Ed. 3. b. 4. & 6. The forefellers of wines, and other victuals and merchandizes that come to the towns of England by land or by water, if they be thereof atta- cked, shall be sent before the mayor, bailiff or justice, thereto assigned, or elsewhere in the King's court, and if they be attained at the King's suit, the things forefalled shall be forfeited to the King, if the buyer hath made good to the seller: And if he hath not paid the price of all but as the said shall incur the forfeiture of as much as the forefalled goods amounted to; and if he have not, then he shall have two years imprisonment and more, at the King's will: And if he be attained at the suit of the party, shall have one half of such forfeit, or the price, of the King's gifts, and the King the other half. Confirmed by 2 Ric. 2. c. 4. cap. 2.

Stat. 27 Ed. 3. c. 11. All merchants that bring their wares to the towns, cities, or ports, within the realm, may safely sell them; and no person shall go by land or water towards such wares, to forefellar them, or give any price for them before they come to the port, nor enter into the things for such case, till the merchandise be sent to land to be sold; upon the pains contained in the third article, viz. the pains of felony; but the penalty is not in use in this case; perhaps from the laws of the king and queen, signed by the said king, in which of the said fables were removed by Ed. 3. and H. 4. [See flat. 2 H. 5. c. 1. flat. 4. and 2 H. 6. c. 4. & 3 H. 6. c. 4. concerning the flat, in the statutes at large] the penalty of death in the flat third article is also repealed by 38 Ed. 3. c. 1. cap. 6; but the forfeiture of the third article of the third article of the third article, viz. the pains of felony, is not of such magnitude as the said third article.
FOR

Revised, continued, and confirmed by 22 & 23 Car. 2, exp. 31. 195; which is now expired. Query. Therefore,
is this act now in force?

Stat. 3 of Ed. 6, cap. 21. sec. I. No person shall buy to fell again, any butter or cheeses, unless he fell the same again by retail in open fhop, fair, or market, and does not in good and due form of value; half to the King, and half to him that will fue.

Sec. 2. This act shall not extend to innholders or victuallers.

Sec. 3. Provided that the word retail, mentioned in this act, shall be expressly understood when a weight of cheefes, [viz. 25 pounds, in some places 256, in others 330.
Dalton's Country Journeys, cap. 112.] or a barrel of butter, or lefs quantity, and not above fball be fold, at any time,
to any person in open fhop.

But the principal statute relative to forfeftalling, in-groving, and regrating, is the 5 & 6 Ed. 6. cap. 14.
which is as follows.

Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 14. Albeit diven good fhaputes heretofore have been made against forfeftallers of merchandize and viuals, yet for that good laws and fhaputes against regrators and ingrovers of the fame thinges have not been herefore sufficiently made and provided, and also for that it hath not been properly known what ftaple fhould be taken for a forfeftaller, regrover, or in-grover, the faid fhaputes have not taken good effect, according to the minds of the makers thereof: Therefore,
be it enacted and declared by the King our Sovereign Largh, and the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and the Commons, in this prefent parliament assembled, and by the authority of the fame, that whatsoever person or persons, that after the fift day of May next coming fhall buy, or caufe to be bought, any merchandize, viuals, or any other thing whatsoever, coming by land, or water, or by market, fair, or fair, to be fold in the fame, or coming toward any city, port, haven, creek, or road of this realm, or Wales, from any parts beyond the fae, to be fold, or make any bargain, contract, or promife, for the having or buying of the fae, or any part thereof, fo coming as is aforefaid, before the dail merchandize, viuals, or other things, fhall be in the market, fair, city, port, haven, creek or road, ready to be fold; or fhall make any motion by word,
letter, meffage, or otherwise, to any perfon or perfon, for the inhauncing of the price, or dearer felling or any thing or things above mentioned, made, madet,ephir, and the perfon or perfon felling, or being the perfon or perfon felling coming to the market or the fair, to affina, or forcaer to bring or convey any of the things aforefaid, to any market, fair, city, port, haven, creek or road, to be fold as is aforefaid;
fhall be deemed and taken, and adjudged for a forfeftaller.

Sec. 2. Further it is enacted, EX. That whatsoever perfon or perfon, that after the fift day of May fhall by any means regulate, obain, or get into his or their hands or poffeifion, in a fair or market, any corn, wine, fish, butter, cheese, candles, tallow,, sheep, lamb, caffons, wine, pigs, geese, capons, hens, chickens, pigarons, lamb, or other dead viuals whatsoever, that fhall be brought to any fair or market within this realm, or Wales, to be fold, and to fell the fame again in any fair or market held or kept in the fame place, or in any other fair or market within four miles thereof, fhall be accepted, reputed, and taken for a regrover or regrator, and the perfon or perfon, that fell the fame, shall be forfeftalled, EX. That whatsoever perfon or perfon, that, after the fift day of May, fhall introgro or get into his or their hands, by buying,
contracting, or promising take, other than by demifile, grant, or lease of land or thile, any corn growing in the fields, or any other corn or grain, or butter, cheese, fish, or other dead viuals whatsoever, within the realm of England, to the intent to fell the fame again, fhall be accepted, reputed and taken a unlawful introgroer or in-grover.

Sec. 4. And if any perfon or perfon fhall, at any time after the fift day of May, offend in any of the things before recited, and being thereof convicted and attained by the laws of this realm, or after the form hereafter mentioned, fhall, for his or their offenc, have or suffer imprisonment for the space of two months, without bail or mainprize; and fhall also lofe and forfeit
the value of the goods, cattle and viual, fo by him or them bought or had.

Sec. 5. And if any perfon lawfully convicted or attempted to offend, or for any of the faid offences above faid, be thereof effroen lawfully convicted or attempted, then every perfon or perfon fo offending fhall have and fuffer, for his or their faid offence, imprisonment by the space of one half year, without bail or mainprize, and fhall lofe double the value of all the goods, cattle and viual, fo by him bought or had, and shall be declared, etc.

Sec. 6. And if any perfon, being lawfully twice convicted or attempted of or for any of the faid offences, effroen offend the third time, and be thereof lawfully convicted or attempted, that then every fuch perfon, for the faid third offence, fhall be fet on the pithory in the city, or the place where he fhall then dwell or have habit, and lofe and forfeit all the goods and cattle that be or they have to their own use, and also be committed to prifon, there to remain during the King's Majesty's plea-ture.

Sec. 7. Provided always, and it is enacted and declared by the authority afofaid, That the buying of any fuch barley, bigg, or oats, as any perfon or perfon (not forfeftalling) fhall buy to convert it into malt or oatmeal, in his or their own house or houses, and fo fhall be converted in deed, or the buying of any fuch thing by any fuch fishmonger, butcher or poultifer, as concern his or their fuch house, or the rents or profits thereof, or the violence (not forfeftalling) which fhall fell the fame again upon reasonable prices by retail; or the taking of any cattle, corn, grain, butter, cheese, or any other thing above mentioned, referved without fraud or covin, upon any lease for term of life or lives, yeare or years, hereafter made or hereafter to be made; or the buying of any wine or other dead viual above mentioned, being apt and meet for man's fuffenance, by any innholder or other viualller, to fell the fame by retail within his house, or to any of his neighbours for their fuffenance, for reasonable prices;
or the buying of any dried or falted fih, herrings or fard (not forfeftalling) and fold for reafonable prices; or the buying of any corn, fih, butter, or cheese, by any fuch badger, lader, kidder or carrier, as fhall be affigned and allowed to that office or doing, by three juflices of the peace of the county where the faid badger, lader, kidder, or carrier fhall dwell, which fhall fell or deliver in open fair or market, or to any other viualller, or to any other perfon or perfon, for the provision of his or their house or houses, all fuch corn, grain, butter and cheese, as any fuch perfon fhall buy or caufe to be bought, and that within one month next after he fhall fo buy any fuch thing, which fhall be bought without forfeftalling; or eft that any common provision made, or hereafter to be made without fraud or covin, by any perfon or perfon, of any of the things abovefhaid, for any city, borough, or town corporate, or for provision of viuals or viuals of any kind, cow or fort within the King's dominions, without forfeftalling, which fhall be employed only to that ufe and purpofe; or the buying and providing of any of the viuals above mentioned, necefary and requisite for the furniture and pro-viction of the inhabitants of Celcie, Gaffines and other the cibility, or of the town of Berwick, Hyb fland, or the marches of England against Scotland, which without fraud or covin, fhall be transported and conveyed, as foon as wind and weather may ferve, to fuch of the places afofaid for the which the fame fhall be provided, fhall not be in any wife deemed, adjudged, or taken any effect without the grant of this act.

Sec. 8. And it is also further enacted by the authority afofaid, That if any perfon or perfon, after the fift day of May next coming, having fufficient corn and grain for the provision of his or their house or houses, and fowing of any green or clover ground, for one year or more, or at any fuch time, for the change of his or their feed, and do not bring to the fame fair or market, the fame day, so much corn as he fhall fortune to buy for his feed, and fell the fame, if he can, as the price of corn then geoch
geeth in the said market or fair, that then every such person or persons so buying corn for feed, shall forfeit and lose the double value of the corn so bought.

Sect. 9. Or if any person or persons, after the said first day of May, shall buy any manner of oxen, steers, kine, heifers, calves, sheep, lambs, goats or kud- living, and offer them again to sale, they shall be fined the price by the fame of five weeks in his or their own house, ground, term ground, or cell in such ground or grounds where he or they have the heritage, or common pasture, by grant or preemption; that then every person or persons so buying and selling again, shall lose the double value of the things so bought and sold again: the one moiety of all which forfeitures aforesaid shall be to the King, and the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the fame, in any of the King's courts of record, by bill, plaint, action of debt or information; in the which bill, plaint, action or information, no wager of law, effion or protection, shall be admitted.

Sect. 10. Be it further enacted, &c. That the juflices of the peace in every county within this realm, or Wales, at their quarter-fellions, shall have full power and author- ity aforesaid, and the like, to examine and determine all and every the defaults and offences perpetrated, committed or done contrary to this act, within the county where any such offender shall have been, by inquisition, pre- fement, bill or information before them exhibited, and by examination of two lawful witnesses, or by any of the Halls, the other moiety of the said forfeitures, and to make process thereupon, as though they were indicted before them by inquisition or by verdict of twelve men or more: and upon the conviction of the offender, by information or suit of any other than the King, to make extractions of the one moiety of the for- feitures to be levied to the King's use, as they ufe to do of other fines, fines and amercements grown in the fef- fions of peace; and to award execution of the other moiety for the complainant or informer against the off- fender, by fier fatisca et capias, as the King's juflices at Westminster may do and ufe to do: And if any such con- viction or attainer shall happen after to be at the King's suit only, that then the whole forfeitures to be extracted and levied to the King's use only.

Sect. 11. And it is further enacted, &c. That what- ever person shall, at any time hereafter, be punifhed by virtue of this act, for any thing herein aforesaid, and that then the said person shall not otherwife be vexed, troubled, fued, or put to any pain or punishment for that thing wherefore he or they shall have been so pun- nished.

Sect. 12. Provided always, and it is enabled by the authority aforesaid, That it shall be lawful to every person or persons, which shall be affignd and allowed, by three juflices of the peace of the county where he shall dwell, thereunto, to buy (otherwise than by foreftalling) corn, grain or cattle, to be transported or carried by water from any port or place within this realm, or Wales, unto any port or place within the faid dominion or dominions, if he or they shall, without fraud or coercion, flip or embar- k within forty days next after he or they shall have bought the fame, or taken covenant or promise for the buying thereof, and with fuch freedom and diligence as wind and weather will ferve to carry and transport the fame to fuch port or place, as his or their cockets shall de- clare; and there to dibrak, unladen and fell the fame, and do bring a true certificate thereof from one juflice of peace of the county, or mayor or bailiff of the town containing the place where the fame was bought or received, and of the customer of the port where such unloading shall be, of the place and day where the said corn or cattle shall be dibraked, unladen and felled, to be directed to the customer and comptroller of the port where the fame were embarked, the thing mentioned in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Sect. 13. And over that, that at all times hereafter, when wheat shall be common at the price of six shillings and eight pence the quarter, or under, oats or oats malted at the price of two shillings the quarter, or under, peafe or beans at the price of four shillings the quarter, or under, and rye or milwine at the price of five shillings the quarter or under; and which quarters shall be intended to be of London meafure; that then it shall be lawful to every person or persons (not foreftalling) to buy, engrofs and keep in his or their own hands, and offer for sale the kinds aforesaid, as without fraud or covin shall be bought at or under the prices aforesaid expressed; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Sect. 14. Provided always, and it be enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act, or any thing therein contained, extend not to charge any person or persons, for any of the offences above mentioned, unless he or they be fucred for the fame within two years next after such offence done or committed. This act to endure until the end of the next parliament.

Sect. 15. Provided always, and it be enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall be lawful to all and every the King's Majesty's subjects now dwelling or inhabiting, or that hereafter shall dwell or inhabit within one mile of the main fea, to buy all manner of fifth, if the same be bought, or forestalled; and no such actions for the kinds aforesaid, as without fraud or covin shall be bought at or under the prices aforesaid expressed; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Sect. 16. Provided always, and it be enacted by the au- thority aforesaid, That it shall be lawful to all and every known person and person or common drover or drovers, being licensed, authorized and allowed in writing by three juflices of the peace, whereof one to be of the quorum, of the county or counties where the fame drover or drovers shall be most abiding and dwelling, to buy cattle in any fuch counties or counties where drovers have been wont, in times past, accruably to buy cattle at their free liberty and pleafure, and to fell the fame as is aforesaid at reasonable prices, in common fairs and mark- etts, diiant from the place or places whereof he or they shall buy the fame, forty miles at the leaft, fo that the same cattle be not bought by way of foreftalling; this act, or any thing therein contained to the contrary in any wife notwithstanding.

Sect. 17. Provided always, That such licence of juflices of peace shall not endure above one year, unless the fame be yearly renewed by fo many juflices as is aforesaid.

Made per fcnt. by 5 Eliz. cap. 12.

By Stat.
and granted otherwise than is before expressed, shall from and after the said first day of May next coming be void and of none effect.

Sect. 6. And further, Be it enacted, &c. That the justices of the peace in the said general and open feoffments shall or may, in their discretion, take bond and surety, from time to time by recognizance, of such as shall be admitted or allowed hereafter a commutation of the moiety of any of the former feoffments and the court of land for the benefit of the Queen's use; and whereby, or by any other deed, or any other seigniorage, or of any other act, statute, law, ordinance, or any provision whatever hereunto, by or concerning the sale of butter or cheese in open shops, fair or market, or the providing or buying of any butter or cheese, shall be made void and, that the said act of 56 Ed. 6. against raffles and ingrossments shall not extend to any wines, oils, figars, spices, corants, or other foreign victuals imported from beyond seas, and salt only excepted.

Sect. 7. Provided further, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not be in any wise further construed to or be made a precedent of in any of the counties and liberties of Wiltshire, Camberland, Lancashire, Chester and York, or any of them, but that they may be hereafter have lawfully used to do any thing in this present act to the contrary notwithstanding.

This act was made perpetual by the 13 Ed. 12 and by the 1st of Hen. VII, and by the 6 Ed. 3, and by the 36 Ed. 6, and by the 4 Ed. 4. and by any of the said acts of 56 Ed. 6, and by any of any other act, statute, law, ordinance, or any provision whatever hereunto, by or concerning the sale of butter or cheese in open shops, fair or market, or the providing or buying of any butter or cheese, shall not be void and the said act of 56 Ed. 6. against raffles and ingrossments shall not extend to any wines, oils, figars, spices, corants, or other foreign victuals imported from beyond seas, and salt only excepted.

Sect. 8. Provided nevertheless, and Be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if the judges of the peace of any of the counties of this realm, and of the dominion of Wales, at their quarter feoffments of any of the said counties, shall declare and publish in open feoffments, that the traders aforesaid in butter and cheese shall forbear to buy any butter or cheese, for any time within the said county or counties, or within any parts or places of the same, that they may for and during the term of such restraint, the said traders in butter and cheese, shall buy any such butter or cheese, and sell the same again by retail, contrary to any of the aforesaid, shall not be freed of or from any the penalties of the said acts, but shall be subject to the same, as this act had never been made.

This act to continue unto the end of the first session of the next parliament.

This act was to continue indefinitely by 3 Cor. 1. c. 16 and 1 Ed. 1. c. 1.

By the 15 Cor. 2. c. 4. sect. 4. When the quarter of the hundred or market of any of the said feoffments do not exceed forty-eight, rye thirty-two thhillings, barley or malt twenty-eight, buck-wheat twenty-eight thhillings, oats thirteen thhillings and four-pence, and peas or beans thirty-two thhillings, any person (not forfailing, nor for selling the same again in three years more) may buy four bushells, at or under such price, and lay it up, and sell the same again without incurring any penalty.

But the 31 Ed. 5. sect. 5. (which omits, that informations for offences against penal statues must be laid in the proper county) is provided, that, nevertheless, an information for any of the said statute, law, or any inquicition, ingraining or regreting, where the penalty shall appear to be twenty pounds, or above, may be laid out of the proper county, and in any other county, at the pleasure of the informer.

Sect. 9. Provided always, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend to the prejudice of the liberty of any city or town corporate; but that they may and every of them shall and may lawfully affign and bequeath privileges to the profit of the said city or town corporate, in such manner and in such form as they may lawfully have done before the making of this act.
and fale, shall not be paid within five days after the making any such distresses and fale; rendering the overplus, if any, to the owner thereof, upon demand, after deducting the reasonable charges of every such distress and fale: And if any such distress and fale be made, goods or chattels within the jurisdiction of such justice or justices, whereon the money forfeited can be levied, any justice or justices within whose jurisdiction any such offender or offenders shall be, shall and may issue a warrant or warrants, under his hand and seal, or their hands and seals, on the application, or on the behalf, or on behalf of such offenders, and the sheriffs, or their informers, to apprehend every such offender and offenders, and to commit him or them to some publick prison, or house of correction, of the county, division, city, town, or place, in which any such offence shall happen: and there to remain for any time not exceeding one calendar month, nor less than ten days from the time of every such commitment, until such offender or offenders shall sooner pay the money forfeited: And if any wits or witnesses shall appear, or be brought by any warrant, before such justice or justices, shall refuse to be examined, or to have the proceedings to be examined, may be committed, by any such justice or justices, to some prison of the county, city, or place, where such wits or witnesses shall make default, for any time not exceeding ten days from the time of every such commitment, as any justice or justices shall think fit.

Sec. 16. Provided always, That if any person or persons convicted of any offence punishable by this act, shall think him, her, or themselves aggrieved by the judgment or determination of any such justice or justices as aforesaid, such person or persons may appeal against any sentence or order made by any such justice or justices, or any such determination, to the general or general quarter-court of the peace of the county, city, or place, in which any such conviction shall have been made, which shall be held next after such conviction; unless such next general or general quarter-court of the peace for any such county, city, or place, shall be held within six days after such conviction: And if any such general or general quarter-court of the peace, shall happen to be held within the said space of six days next after such conviction, then it shall be lawful for any such person or persons to appeal against such judgment or determination to the justices at the general or general quarter-quell of the peace of the county, city, or place, in which any such conviction shall have been made, which shall be held for any such county, city, or place, next after any such conviction: But the party or parties who shall think fit to appeal shall, before any such appeal shall be received, enter into a recognizance of two thousand pounds, or sufficient sureties, before and at the time of any such appeal as aforesaid, in double the sum which such person or persons shall have been adjudged to pay or forfeit, to prosecute every such appeal with effect, and to be forth-coming to abide by, and obey the judgment and determination of the justices at any such general or general quarter-court of the peace on every such appeal; and shall also give three days notice in writing, of every such appeal, to, or before the name of the usual place of abode of the person or persons who shall prosecute to convict the party or parties so appealing: And the justices of the peace at such general quarter-court of the peace, are hereby authorized and required, on every such appeal being brought, to inquire into and determine the matter of every such appeal; and to make such order, and award such costs therein, as they in their discretion shall deem meet: And the determination of such court of general or general quarter-courts of the peace on every such appeal, shall be final and conclusive to all parties thereto appealing; and no certiorari shall be allowed to remove any such proceedings or determination.

Sec. 18. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted, That any inhabitant of any parish or place in which any any offence shall be committed against this act, shall, notwithstanding such inheritance, be good and competent witness.

Sec. 19. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any plant, action or suit shall be commenced or prosecuted against any person or perfons, for what he or they shall do or have done in pursuance or in execution of this act, the same shall be commenced within six months after the offence committed; and shall be had in the county or city where the offence shall have been committed, and such person or persons be sued, in any court whatsoever, shall and may plead the general issue. Not guilty, and may give this act and the special matter in evidence, at any trial to be had thereon; And if a verdict shall be found for the defendant or defendants, or if the defendant shall be nonsuit, or if to continue his action, after the defendant shall have appeared; or if judgment shall be given, upon a demurrer, against the plaintiff or plaintiffs, the defendant or defendants in every such action shall recover treble costs, and have the like remedy for the same as any defendant or defendants hath or have in other cases for recovery of his or their costs.

3. Cases adjudged upon the statute.

Apples. Information in the Exchequer upon the statute of 6 & 7 Ed. 6. for the ingrossing of apples, being dead viuall, or being a contamiuer; and it was therefore demurreed, that it was out of the statute, and is not such viuall as the law intends: And it was adjudged accordingly, and error thereof brought in the Exchequer-Chamber; and, upon conference, the two chief justices resolved, that it was not within the statute: And Cale fayd, there was not any thing prohibited within the statute, but it had a proviso, how in some kind, it might be bought; but there was not any such proviso for apples; therefore it never was intended to be restrained; and for that cause the judgment was affirmed. Cro. Jao. 214.

Mich. 6 June 1.

Upon an inditement preferred 22 Corv. at the assizes at Knares, against one ingrossing apples, pears and cherries, framed upon the statute made against engrossers of viu- tuals, the defendant pleaded and was found guilty; formerly judgment was arrested, and the counsel heard. Edward Johnfon of the Inner Temple pray’d for judgment for non-assistance, being the first being a contamiuer; and it was proved that he had been formerly; and that upon these reasons: 1. Because that apples, pears and cherries are viuuals within the statute; and that because the statute is not to be abridged; and the statute of 2 Ed. 6. made concerning forfeitures, expanded this statute, that apples, pears, and cherries were forfeitures, for the frauds were calle’d fellers of viuuals; and for Boys his case that is objected that apples are not viuuals, it is not to be meant of all sorts of viuual in a general acceptation, and without doubt ingrossing of them is ingrossing at the Common law. Salt is no viuual per se, nor is uedef as viuual in any country; yet it is there said to be viuual. But apples are viuual per se; no ciuallmongers are calle’d viuualbers by their charters. Roll, Chief Justice fayd, that 4 Jac. apples were adjudged no viuuals; and after, upon a writ of error, this judgment was affirmed in the Exchequer-Chamber, and this therefore is not to be rejected, but laid over; and if they should be adjudged viuuals, the trade of the ciuallmongers would be destroyed; and for salt, it is no viuual, but a preservation of viuual; and hops were adjudged to be no viuual, 20 Jac. upon a reference made to the jury. Neither are apples to be accused as [hi]tters of the liberty, etc., notwithstanding to be calle’d fellers of viuuals; and if, when the statute would be destroyed. Ask, Chief Justice held, that apples are viuual within the statute, because they are better than salt; Ask, Chief Justice held, that apples are viuual, but not within the statute; for a statute cannot alter by reason of time, but the Common law may: It was adjudged. Syl. 190. 1. 1649.

Barley and beans. In an information, because the defendant, between the 20th of July 12 Jac. and the 4th of July next after, at Wilsington, in the county of Middlesex, did buy, ingros and obtain in his hands, by buying and contractting of divers persons unknown, three hundred quarters of barley, of the value of each quarter, and for the value of twenty shillings every quarter, ad ronundam contra formam flatuu, &c. whereas upon an action acceded to the King and the informer, to have of the defendant four hundred pounds; viz. the value of the barley and beans, whereof the informer pray’d a moiety, &c. The defendant thereupon or that the defendant was guilty, &c. May 13 Jac. and the 4th of July next after, pleaded Not guilty. And as to the informations between the 20th day of July 12 Jac. and the 22d of May next after, the defendant, faith, that before the exhibiting of the said informations, the 22d of May, 13 Jac. One Robert Reshot did exhibit an information in the Exchequer for the King and himself against the defendant, who between the first of June last, and the day of the said information, did ingros five hundred quarters of wheat, of price every quarter thirty shillings; five hundred quarters of barley, of price every quarter twenty shillings; five hundred quarters of oats, of price every quarter twenty shillings; and five hundred quarters of beans and peas, of price every quarter twenty shillings, ad ronundam contra formam flatuu, &c. And did aver, that Stephen Bolon, named in the first information, and Stephen Bournes, named in the second information, were men, and not divers; and that the said three hundred quarters of barley, and a hundred quarters of beans, specified in the last information, are parcels of the storeaid barley and beans in the first informations, and petit judicium of the last information, the said first information depending determined, &c. Upon which plea Mr. Attorney General in law. And I conceive that judgment ought to be given to the King and the informer, for two reasons. The offence in the first information is alleged to be between the first of June 12 Jac. and the 22d of May 13 Jac. So that, for any thing appears to the contrary, this may be done. And the 22d of May, 12 Jac. was found, that the first day of July next, which is not part of the time contained in the last information; and then, that is no answer to the ingrossing between the 20th of July 12 Jac. and the 22d of May next, unless he had avered in fact that it was within the time contained in the last information. And the 22d of May 13 Jac. is not answered to all; and it may be that the ingrossing was on that day; for the plea of Not guilty goes only between the 22d of May 13 Jac. and the 4th of July next: and the last information is between the first of June 12 Jac. and the 22d of May, for the plea of Adversary is that the time is partly contained in the last information. The first information is for ingrossing of beans and peas, being a mixt grain; and the last information is for beans only; and beans by themselves cannot be parcel of beans and peas, being a mixt grain. And after judgment was given for the King and the informer, and that principally for the second exception. Brid. Rep. 48. 49. Hill. 13 Jac. 1.

Butter and cheese. Information in the Exchequer for ingrossing butter and cheese. Upon Not guilty pleaded, it was found against the defendant; and a writ of error being brought in the Exchequer-Chamber, the exceptions, amongst others, was, that the judgment is upon which plea Mr. Attorney General in law. And I conceive that judgment ought to be given to the King and the informer, for two reasons. The offence in the first information is alleged to be between the first of June 12 Jac. and the 22d of May 13 Jac. So that, for any thing appears to the contrary, this may be done. And the 22d of May, 12 Jac. was found, that the first day of July next, which is not part of the time contained in the last information; and then, that is no answer to the ingrossing between the 20th of July 12 Jac. and the 22d of May next, unless he had avered in fact that it was within the time contained in the last information. And the 22d of May 13 Jac. is not answered to all; and it may be that the ingrossing was on that day; for the plea of Not guilty goes only between the 22d of May 13 Jac. and the 4th of July next: and the last information is between the first of June 12 Jac. and the 22d of May, for the plea of Adversary is that the time is partly contained in the last information. The first information is for ingrossing of beans and peas, being a mixt grain; and the last information is for beans only; and beans by themselves cannot be parcel of beans and peas, being a mixt grain. And after judgment was given for the King and the informer, and that principally for the second exception. Brid. Rep. 48. 49. Hill. 13 Jac. 1.

Barley and beans. In an information, because the defendant, between the 20th of July 12 Jac. and the 4th of July next after, at Wilsington, in the county of

Corn. An information was, upon the statute of 5 & 6 Ed. 6. for buying of feed-corn, having sufficient of his own, and not bringing so much into the market of his own corn; and a general issue was found upon it. And it was delivered for the law to the jury by the justices, that a contract in market for corn not in the market, or which was not there that day, is not within the branch of the statute. But if corn or grain be in the market, although the contract be made in a house open out of the market, and delivered to the venede out of the market, yet it is within the statute. And in the argument of that case, Alderson said, that the market shall be paid, the place in the town where it hath used to be kept, and not every place of the town: and a sale in a market over in London ought to be in a thing which is open to the street, and not in chambers or inward rooms, otherwise the property is not altered. And so it is of all statutes, in open markets. And the recorder of London said, that such was the custom in London.

FOR

FOR

Outs. In debt upon the statute of 5 & 6 Ed. 6. cap. 14, concerning ingrossers, &c. for ingrossing 2000 quarters of oats; after all debt paid, it appeared in evidence upon a trial, that they were foreign oats, and exempted by the 13 Eliz. c. 13, as to reign violable, to be ingrossed and sold, and that the defendant was a licensed gather, and by that too exempted from the nature of the statute. And it was held by Hild, chief baron, that any thing in the same statute upon which the fact is commenced, may be given in evidence; but if it be in another statute, it must be pleaded; but that since the statute 21 Jac. 2, upon the general statute, any thing may be given in evidence in excuse of the party, and thereupon the plaintiff was nonsuit.

Trin. 24 Car. 2.

Salmons. One was indicted and convicted, by the name of Davies, fishmonger, for ingrossing and buying retail salmon, gros tenet & venditit; it was objected, that every fishmonger, by the statute might buy and sell at pleasure; but the contrary was adjudged if at unreasonable prices; and the books say, that ingrossing fish going to market is punishable. And per Gales, if a man buys retail, and sell them at unreasonable prices, that is within the statute.

Salt. It was resolved, Mich. 44 & 45 Eliz. by the justices and barons of the Exchequer, upon conference between them, that salt is a virtual, and the buying and selling thereof is a violation of the statute 5 & 6 Ed. 6. for it was not only of necessity of itself, but of necessity for health of man, but it forsooth and maketh wholesome beef, pork, butter, cheese, and other victuall.

3 Inf. 156.

Information for ingrossing one hundred bushells of salt, to fell again, contrary to the form of the statute of quinto Edwardi Sexti, cap. diebus quartis. Upon the declaration it was demurred; and argued by Nay and Alnof, that this information is not maintainable: For, because ingrossing is no offence in itself, nor falling and regrating were not in themselves offences punishable before the statute; nor is ingrossing in itself unlawful, but by consequence, or by reason of the things bought and made dearer, which ought to be shown in the indiciement or information. Secondly, Because it is not any virtual within the words or intent of the statute; for it is not virtual, but only cardinamentum, and for preparation of virtual: And he cited a record, Psch. 16 Eliz. adjudged, that buying of barley, and converting it into meal, and selling it, was no offence punishable in a mayor who sold it, nor made him to be a violater (the mayor being prohibited to sell victuals); and Vincenzo Jacobi adjudged likewise, that hops were not virtuals within the statute; And in another record, near buying of apples to fell again was not within the statute of 5 Ed. 6. and where it is mentioned, 13 Eliz. cap. 25; that the statute of 5 Ed. 6. doth not extend to buying of oyle, wine, and other merchandise, except fish and fiale; it is to be intended that was not in the point of ingrossing; but for forefalling and regrating, which is prohibited. And it would be a great inconvenience, if salt should be within the law to be virtuals, to be prohibited to be ingrossed; for then it should extend to those that carry victual in wains to be sold, and would enforce that no salt be bought by the bushell or peck, at shipps or falt pits, which the law never intends by it. And the law intends these things which are sold in great quantities, usually at every market in every county; as corn, cattle, butter, cheese, &c. But if any ingross all the salt, with an intent to fell it at his own price, and at unreasonable prices, which is agreed, it is contrary to the common law and if it be found, he is fisable, as appears by a record, Psch. 43 Ed. 3. rot. 19. sworn in court; whereupon it was adjourned.

Where. The case fell, at the sessions of peace held at Norwich, 16 Jac. did inform, for the King and himself, that the defendant, being a grocer, the first of September then last past, at Norwich, did ingross and get into his hands, by being, contract or promise, of divers persons unknown, 470 quarters of wheat, each quarter at the price
price of forty shillings, to the intent to sell the same again, contrary to the form of the statute; whereof he prayed, that the defendant might forfeit the value of the corn, and that he might have the value, &c. The defendant pleaded Not Guilty, to the jury find, that by 5 Ed. 6, it was enacted, That every person, who, after the first day of May thence next ensuing, shall get into their hands, by buying, contract or promise, &c. other wise than by devise, grant or lease of land or title, any corn growing on fields, or any other grain, butter, &c. or dead vitiates, to the intent to sell them again, shall be taken to be an ingroffer; and, for the first offence, shall be imprisoned two months without bail, and shall forfeit the things ingroffed. And as to the three hundred and eighty quarters of the said wheat, they found the defendant Not Guilty; and as to the two quarters residue, they found that the defendant, the first of September 10 Jac. and continuing afterwards till the 21st of August next following, at the said city, did use the art and trade of flour-making; and that he, on the 21st of September 15 Jac. did get into his hands, by buying, and not by devised or lease, twenty quarters of wheat, residue of the said four hundred, to the intent to convert the same into flour; and on the 30th of October in the same year did convert the same into flour; and the 21st of October did sell the same for several persons; and that the said wheat, being the residue of the 21st of September, was of price thirty-six shillings. But whether the defendant were guilty of the ingroffing aforesaid, according to the form of the statute, the jury knew not, and therefore defined the opinion of the court; but if otherwise, &c. and this record was inserted into the King's Bench. which was brought against the defendant before the King and the informer. Bridg. 5. Trin. 18 Jac. 1.

Wheat-meal. In an information upon the statute 5 Ed. 6. c. 14. for buying of wheat-meal, and converting it into flour; it was resolved by three of the justices, (Coke being against it) that this is not within the statute; but they agreed, that if one bought corn and thereof made meal or oatmeal, and fold it, that is this within the statute; for that is usual, and is no alteration, and therefore remains the same corn; but flour is altered by a trade or science, which is a mystery, and so it is not the same thing that it was. Gwill 154. Trin. 9. Jac. 2. 2 Brum. 128. &c. See 2 Brum. 128. &c. at large in The Laws against Forefellers, &c. p. 26 & 45.

4. Pleadings. Upon the statute of 5 Ed. 6. of ingroffers, if the information be, that the defendant hath bought corn, &c. it is not sufficient; for the words of the statute are, get into his hands. 2 Lem. 39.

Indictment for forefelling, by buying fifth at Billingsgate; and held by Holt at nisi prius, that the party was Not Guilty; for Billingsgate was a market time out of mind; and so the party was acquitted; and by him, was it otherwise, all the informers were liable to prosecution. Note: This was at the instance of that company against a poor woman that cried fifth. 1 Stow. Rep. 393. Holt's Rep. 323. S.C. Mich. 3 W. & M. 128. &c. This information brought by the Attorney General against the defendant, founded on the statute of Edw. 6. for that he had fold cattle alive in Norfield within the space of five weeks after he had bought them; by which he had forfeited double the value of the cattle. Upon Not Guilty pleaded, there was a verdict against the defendant, and the case moved, in behalf of the judgment, that no such information would lie in this court, because the statute 21 Jac. expressly enacts, That all informations brought by the Attorney General upon any penal statute in any of the courts at Westminster, shall be void and of no effect; but, on the other side, it was endeavored to distinguish this case from those cases upon statutes, which give juries of peace in their proceedings the ordinary jurisdiction only; because this statute of Ed. 6. gives the juries power to proceed upon it, as well in a summary way, by examining two witnesses to the fact (which is an extraordinary jurisdiction) as by trial by
FOR

Information for ingrossing cattle; the defendant justified as to a certain number under two several licences, without allowing how many by one, and how many by another, and was adjudged for the plaintiff.

It was said by Hubbard, chief justice, and Winch, but Wartburton, counsel, that if a man hath a licence of forfaying upon the 5 Ed. 6. c. 14. he need only receive the statute 5 Ed. 6. in his pleadings, without pleading 13 Edw. 3., as the statute 15 Eliz. only qualifies the person.

For. 27. Hil. 15 Jan. 1.

Information on 5 Ed. 6. for ingrossing corn; the defendant justified as to part, by licence from three justices of the peace, but did not aver his selling it above the licence. It was averred, that by such a verger, it being parcel of the statute, and not in nature of a condition sufficient, which is to be alleged by him that will take advantage therof. 2 Ed. Rep. 33. 10 Jac. 1. in B. R.

The defendant as spinster, alias the wife of William Fawer, was indicted on 5 Ed. 6. cap. 14. for ingrossing; in arrest of judgment, Symon excepted, that the being a feme covert, her husband ought to be joined, because a feme covert cannot ingross. Jones, for the plaintiff, that as Hob. 93. Mary and Hob.: the husband shall not be joined, because a feme covert is a woman, the alias dixit, and the wife of such a man, that such is a sufficient allegation, she is a wife, and so this doth not appear on record, 2. she is not chargeable without the husband, as Hob. 93. Mary and Hob.: And Dr. Hob.'s case, the statute only, which the defendant is charged with for ingrossing, gives only a penalty, and no criminal punishment, and the husband cannot be joined to the wife in an indictment, as in an action or information or for her concealment.

Twijford doubted this alias dixit, void, albeit in criminal case: the alias be good, and the clerks agreed, that in indictments the husband is never named, but only in informations. 3. Twijford doubted the wife cannot be said to fall or in gros; but per cur. The wife may as well ingross and fall, as convert or ejct, which must be actually proving against the wife; and the court agreed t.o addition is never put in the alias dixit, but all conceived, that after verdict the man must be summoned, when the feme covert is convicted, and the usual, and does not necessarily imply she be a wife, but so called; and judgment pro rege nifi. Afterward, in the same term, Symon, for the defendant, that the being a feme covert, no judgment can be against her for ingrossing and selling one hundred of mackerel upon the statute, all the basis being her husband's, and the deth here sufficiently appear to be a feme covert by the alias dixit, which is as applicable to her as such, as otherwife, therefore shall be intended fuch; and not aliud: for the alias dixit is nothing, and the verdict had found her guilty, which they could not do to the feme covert, and this may be affigrated for error in fac, that she was covert; and judgment pro rege nifi; and after she was fined sixteen shillings, the value, Gr. 2. Keb. Rep. 468, 469, 479, 503. Hil. 20 & 21 Car. 2. in B. R.

Indictment for ingrossing upon 5 Ed. 6. exception was taken, that the individual is the same laid for for ingrossing, and the false in Serje. Ruled, that this is well enough on a special verdict. Comb. 3 Mesb. 1. jac. 2. in B. R.

An information on the 5 & 6 Ed. 6. cap. 14. for buying and selling live cattle, not having kept them the time the statute applies, was exhibited in this court. The buying and selling was alleged to be in Norfolk; and it was infinued, that the information ought to have been brought in Norfolk where the fact was done, and not in Middlesex; and that the statute of the 21 jac. 1. was made for the case of the subject. On the other side it was objected, that the King's Bench is not restrained, and that the Attorney General may exhibit informations in this court for the King notwithstanding the statute; and he cited Litch 102. 1 Sid. 380. 2 Keb. 340.

2 Vent. 8. Jac. 3. 3. Keb. 327. 4. Ch. 175. 3. Jac. 176. 191. 112. and now this Chief Justice said, ten judges had agreed in the following declaration: First, That the 21 jac. 1. cap. 4. does not extend to any offence created since that statute, so that informations on subsequent penal statutes are not restrained thereby; but that statute is as to them, as it was, respected. That the defendant, although she had been tried and convicted in a higher court, and no proceedings on penalties made before that date, must by force of 21 jac. 1. cap. 4. be laid, brought and prosecuted in the proper county where the fact was done, 1 Salk. 372.

Fitz was indicted for that he had ingrossed magnus et exiguus nomen locutorum fercum, de quibus dictum sum, with a design to make them deare, &c. and Mr. Hob. Eyre moved to quash it for the uncertainty, because they do not shew how much, &c. and he cited Cur. Car. 350. Abignan quintassamentum praetiiis et saecii, held ill. [See 2 Bouil. 317. 1 Roll. Rep. 134. and the case of The King and Bird, 18 Geo. 2. 1731.] and though the revolution where a ferryman was indicted for extortion, in taking four-pence a score for sheep carried over, where he should have taken but two-pence a score, &c. The defendant upon not pleading guilty was convicted; but judgment that he was to be indicted, did not fix, for how manyscore he had taken four-pence: and the indictment against Fuller was quashed. Id. Royn. 475. Tein. 11 Hil. 2.

Forfatarium. The forester, or keeper of a forest, attuned by the King as lead foresters; or warden of a whole forest, or of any part of the same forest, or of any land appertaining to the same forest, &c. as underforester. — Rer. praelipt quod annua illi quin beatis habent intra metas forestae Domino Regis, quod quodam idoneus forfuration in saecli futuris ille in item praecl pro futuris curam capere solvere forsforarium militium & altorum. Parochial Antiq. p. 177.

Forfiffer, (Forfatarius,) is a sworn officer of the forsets, appointed by the King's letters patent to walk the forests both early and late, watching both the vert and the venison, attacking and preventing all trespasses against them within their own bailiwick or walk, whole oath may be read in Grace, Sel. 251. and though theses letterss patent be ordinarily granted, but quandiu quae fene gessit, yet some have it to them and their heirs, and thereby are called forsoners in fee. Id. fol. 157. 159. By the same Gramm. in Latin, f. 175. Forfariarum femel. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Forfying and Forfing, (from the Sax. fore, aute, and fyrung, proudeter.) Est capio obstopariam, quum in facinis ab aliquo, fit prorsus minimus minister Regis et operis quo Regi sunt necessarium. Antecapio vel prevenior. — Est font quoti de vasivario, & de uitae & forsine & withings, &c. Charz. H. 1. Hob. Smiti Barth. Lond. an. 1135. Fleta, lib. 1. c. 47. Forfing quintistanti priori prisi fexion defutit. So that forfaging is what we call pre-emption, and is the taking of provisions from any one in fairs or markets before the King's purveyors are served with necessaries for his Majesty.

Forstetted. To set the conditions appointed for the sole of forstetted elates, 4 Geo. 1. cap. 8. 5 Geo. 1. c. 22, 23. 6 Geo. 1. c. 24.

Elate of John Elates. Esq; how forsetted and applied, 7 Geo. 1. c. 1. c. 28. Forsetted elates not unfold reverted in his Majestty, 9 Geo. 1. c. 19. fol. 15. 18.

Farther directions for the sole of forsetted elates, 13 Geo. 1. cap. 28. 1 Geo. 2. c. 21. 2 Geo. 2. c. 33. A fraudulent sole of Lord Dervauteswater's elate set aside, 5 Geo. 2. c. 23.

Beasts of the Dervauteswater elate applied to the support of Greenwic hospital, 8 Geo. 2. c. 29. 11 Geo. 2. c. 30.

Lord Widdrington's elate to be conveyed in trust for the creditors of the York Buildings company, 18 Geo. 2. c. 37.
For veiling forfeited estates in the crown, 20 Ge. 2. c. 41.

Eches on hargings and denunciations in Scotland, taken away, 20 Ge. 2. 50. fed. 11.

Certain forfeited estates in Scotland velled in the Crown unalienably, 25 Ge. 2. c. 41.

Forfeiture, (Forfetuturis, from the Fr. forfuit, tref- bus, transgressione, crime,) Signifieth rather the effect of transgressing a penal law, than the transgression itself; as forfeiture of echeates.

Forfeiture is a word often made use of in the law, and in Civil cases is usually applied to alienations and dispo- nations made by those who have but a particular estate or interest in lands or tenements, the remainder of which is in the hands of others.

Alfo the omission or neglect of a duty, which the party binds himself to perform, or to the performance of which he is enjoined by the law, and is upon the breach or neglect thereof called a forfeiture, that is, the advantage accruing from the perfor- mance of the thing are by this omission defeated and determined.
2 B. & R. 175.

In this sense of the word, the principal matters relating to forfeitures are considered under other titles; and therefore in this place it is thought proper to consider it chiefly as it relates to crimes and offences, for which the party is punished in his estate and polity.

1. For what crimes an offender shall forfeit his lands, and his goods and chattels, by the Common law.

2. For what crimes by statute.

3. To what time the forfeiture shall have relation; and what is to be done with the offender's goods before conviction.

4. How for the offender's blood is corrupted; and in what cases the wife shall lose her dower.

1. For what crimes an offender shall forfeit his lands, and his goods and chattels, by the Common law.

By the Common law, all lands of inheritance whereof the offender is seized in his own right, and also all rights of entry to lands in the hands of a wrong-doer, are forfeited to the King after the attainder of high treason, although the lands are helden of another; for there is an exception in the case of felony, which saves the tenant's allegiance to the King; so that if he forfeits his allegiance, even the lands held of another lord are forfei- ted to the King, for the lord himself cannot give out lands but upon that condition. Ca. Lit. 8, 3 inf. 19.

Also upon an attainder of petit treason or felony, all lands of inheritance whereof the offender is seized in his own right, as also all rights of entry to lands in the hands of a wrong-doer, are forfeited to the lord of whom they are immediately held; for this by the feudal law was deemed a breach of the tenant's oath of fealty in the highest manner; his body with which he had in- gaged to serve the lord being forfeited to the King, and thereby his blood corrupted, so that no person could repre- sent him; and consequently dying without heir the lord is in by effect.
3 inf. 19.

In the lord can't come into the lands helden of him upon an effect for petit treason or felony, without a special grant, till it appear by due process, that the King hath had his prerogative of the year, day and walkes.

And as to this, being the office of Prærogation Regis (17 Ed. 3.) it seems to have been generally helden, that the King has a right, not only to wafte the lands of inheritance, which a person attainted of felony held immediately of any other lord, but also to hold them over for a year and day; and by some he had always this right, but according to others he had ancutly a right only of the thing itself, and not to wafte them in lieu of it.

As to lands whereof a person attainted of high treason died feised of an estate in fee, they are actually veiled in the King without any office, because they can't defend, the blood being corrupted, and the freehold shall be in abeyance, 4 Co. 58, 217.

It is said, that the inheritance of things not lying in tenure, as of rent-charge, rent- feck, commons, &c. are forfeited to the King by an attainer of high treason; and that the profits of them are also forfeited to him by an attainer of felony during the life of the offender, and that that the profits of them shall be extended for it can't echeate, because it lies not in tenure; neither can it defend, because the blood is corrupted. 3 but. 19, 21. 2 Haw. P. C. 449.

It seems agreed, that no right of action to lands of inheritance could ever be forfeited; neither could a right of entry thereto; and that the lands were a tenament of the King, nor an use, (except where land had been fraudulently conveyed with an intent to avoid a forfeiture;) nor a condition forfeited before 33 H. 8. neither could land in tail be forfeited after the making of Wifden, 2. any longer than for the life of the tenant in tail, tile 26 H. 8. 8 Co. 2. 7 Co. 17. 3 inf. 19. 9 Kal. Abr. 34. Stamp. P. C. 187. Plow. 554. Dyer 289. pl. 55. Ca. Lit. 139, 327, 391.

The profits of lands, whereof one attainted of felony is feised of an estate of inheritance in his wife's right, or of an estate for life only in his own right, are forfeited to the King, and nothing shall go to the lord.

Inf. 19. Fig. 166. Forfeiture 23. 4 eff. pl. 4.

All customary estates of inheritance are forfeited by an attainer of treason or felony, unless there be some particular custom to the contrary, as in Gevelind, be- cause the person is entitled more expressly by a custom of the attainer, and therefore disabled to have or hold any estate, or to have any property in any thing; and therefore if a perfon be feised in fee of a copyhold, and be attainted of treason or felony, the copyhold is in the lord without any preten- dment of the homage, because it is against the nature of a court baron to inquire of criminal matters or offences against the King and such homages are granted to another person of the lord, but often influenced by him; but if a copyholder be convicted of felony, and preferred by the homage, by a special custom, the effate may be forfeited to the lord; but this is only by the special custom, since the copyholder is preferred by the convion to hold the estate, as he is if he were at- tained; and therefore it is by the custom only that such forfeiture accrues, it must be in the manner which the custom has feit it, which is by the present- ment of the homage; but if a copyhold is granted for life, and by another copy it is granted to another person, or the copy to another person, after the death of the first copyholder, the former surrender, forfeiture, or other determination of the first estate; the first copyholder commits murder, and is thereby attainted, the King pardons the murder and the attainer, and all forfeitures thereby; in this case, he in the revion is intituled to the estate; for the King can't have it for the benefice of the tenure, since he can't be tenant at will to any perfon; and the lord can't have it, because he can't be tenant to himself; therefore the particular estate of tenant for life being extinguished, the revion immediately commences.

1 Bulf. 13. 2 Brend. 217. 1 Lex. 153. 2 Gell. 151. 2 Lea. 153. 2 Kble. 254. 2 Tens. 38. 5 Co. 117. Co. Top. sect. 53. Pelles. 615 to 621.

As to forfeiture of goods and chattels, all things whatsoever which come under the notion of a peronal effate, and which a man is intituled to in his own right, whether he be in his life or in his after birth, are forfeitable in the following cases:

The robbery of the King, for the trouble and charge he has been in at holding courts, and bringing the offenders to justice.

All personal things forfeited by waft of truth on the off- fender are as much forfeited, as if he had the legal inter- est, and therefore the forfeiture of such things is taken in another's name, or a lease made to another in truth for a perfon who is afterwards convicted of treason or felony; there are as much liable to be forfeited, as a bond made to him in his own name, or a leave in poftef- sion.
Alfo the trufť of a term granted by a man for the ufe of himself, his wife and children, £c. is liable in like manner to be forfeited, if fraudulently made with an intent to avoid a fubfequent forfeiture, but it fhall be forfeited fo far only, as it is referred to the benefit of the party himfelf, if made bona fide, whether before or after marriage, for good conftitution without fraud, which is to be left to a jury on the whole circumftances of the cafe, and fhall never be precluded by the court where it is not otherwise found, See 5 Co. 69, 60, 185, 153, 77, 1 Lev. 279. Lane 54, 131. 1 Med. 16. Han.
456. 1 And. 294. Royan. 120. 2 Rel. Abbr. 34. 1
Rel. Abbr. 343. March 45, 88. 1 Sid. 260, 403. 1
Keb. 909.

But the power of revocation of the trufť of a fettle-ment, or a grant to the granter is not liable to be forfeited, if it depend upon fomethinf personal to be done by the granter himfelf, as making the deed of revocation under his hand and feal. 2 Keb. 504. 1 Lev. 279. 1
Med. 16. 38.

A man forfeits all fuch personal efface in the following infractions.

1. Upon a conftitution of treafon or felony, as is clearly agreed by all the books. 5 Co. 109. And therefore a perfon convicted of mufidering, and making purfuation, as was the ancient practice, or burnt in the hand according to the prefent, tortures, and other offenders, not his lands, for the King hath loft a fubject, and therefore the party is punifhable, though in a more gentle manner than when there is a felfe and deliberate revenge. 5 Co. 110. But a perfon convicted of hereby forfeited neither lands nor goods, because the proceedings against him were only for offence ani/f. Doct. & Stud.
lib. 2. cap. 29. Hale's P. C. 5.

2. Upon the coroner's inquifition taken on a view of a dead body, and finding him guilty either as principal or as accfly before the fact, and that he fled for the fame, whereby he forfeis his goods abfolutely, and the uffes of him, as fuch he be not acquired or pardoned. Stanwix,
pl. 36. 5 Co. 110.

3. Upon a jury's finding that the defendant fled at the fame time that they acquifed him of an indifcretion of capital felony, or, as fome lay, of larceny, before uffces of ofee, £c. but fuch a finding excludes no forfeiture of the ufes of the land, because by the acciftual the land is difcharged; neitlier will it have any effeét to the goods, if the indifcretion were infufficient, or if the flight be depofited on a traverse, as all agree, may be taken to appear from what is faid, and that by a coroner's inquifition, and fome lay, even to the goods. The is subjected to the flight, as of the particu/ars of the goods.
Keila. 68. 5 Co. 110. Hale's P. C. 271. Stanwix. 185.

4. The goods of perfon ou/furred are forfeited to the Kine, for the rettining the inquiries of judge is he held to criminal in the eye of the law, that it is punifhed with lofe of goods fo long as the ou/zaffrayed flands in force.
So if a perfon make decline till the award of an eecentric, either upon an appeal or indifcretion of a capital felony, he forfeis his goods, unless he was pardoned before the award was exa/fed; and it is holien, that the law is the ftane, as fuch be defenfe upon an indifcretion of petit larceny, and that wherever goods are fo forfeited, they are fayed by an acciftual at the trial; but by a reverfal of the award the eecen of the goods are fayed, whether fuch reverfal be for an error either in fact or in law, as for the imprifion of the defendant, or at the time the exadement was made. Parker v. Parker in the bill of attainder. 5 Co. 110. 111. Finc. Corin. 181. Forfeiture
pl. 13. 22 Aff. pl. 11. Or. Einn. 4. 72. Haul's P.
C. 271. 34 Ed. 3. 17. 1 St. Abbr. 259. Or. Fett.
404. 2. 1 Sir. Fett. pl. 6. If a man be found, £c. if a thief be killed in proceeds. 5 Co. 110. 111. Finc. Corin. 181. Forfeiture
pl. 13. 22 Aff. pl. 11. Or. Einn. 4. 72. Haul's P.
C. 271. 34 Ed. 3. 17. 1 St. Abbr. 259. Or. Fett.
404. 2. 1 Sir. Fett. pl. 6. If a man be found, £c. if a thief be killed in proceeds. 5 Co. 110. 111. Finc. Corin. 181. Forfeiture
pl. 13. 22 Aff. pl. 11. Or. Einn. 4. 72. Haul's P.
C. 271. 34 Ed. 3. 17. 1 St. Abbr. 259. Or. Fett.
404. 2. 1 Sir. Fett. pl. 6. If a man be found, £c. if a thief be killed in proceeds. 5 Co. 110. 111. Finc. Corin. 181. Forfeiture
pl. 13. 22 Aff. pl. 11. Or. Einn. 4. 72. Haul's P.
C. 271. 34 Ed. 3. 17. 1 St. Abbr. 259. Or. Fett.
404. 2. 1 Sir. Fett. pl. 6. If a man be found, £c. if a thief be killed in proceeds.
ditions, fees, offices, rents, annuities, common, leases, and all other commodities, profits and hereditaments whatsoever they or any of them should, might or ought to have or receive in or upon them.

In the construction of these statutes the following opinions have been held.

1. That neither of these Statutes are repealed by the 14 Car. 2. 107.
c. 1, 2, 3, which enacts, "That no pains of death, penalty or forfeiture shall ensue to an offender, for doing any treason, perjury or other crime of treason, in any such case for which any sentence was heretofore made and in which the sentence was not final until within the statute of 25 Ed. 3. ordained and provided;" for the words, "other than such, &c., have been confined to the pain, &c., mentioned in the beginning of the sentence, but to the offences mentioned in the end. Staundf. P. C. 187. 3 Estl. 19. 11 West. 152.

2. That forfeits in tail are forfeited by force of these words in 26 H. 8. of any state of inheritance, which must be void, if they do not include forfeitures in tail; also land given to a man and his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies, are as much forfeited by his attainer as lands given of the intent to the heirs of his body. Staundf. P. C. 187. Co. Lit. 372, 391. 2 Dyer 322, pl. 27.

3. That neither a right to a writ of error to reverse any erroneous common recovery, nor a mere right of action to land in the hands of a stranger as of a disseinate, or of the heir of the disseinate, be limited to the time of the conveyance; but all former estates continue as much forfeited as lands in possession; yet the King shall not be adjudged in possession, by virtue of such a right, without an office, and a seisin facies or seisin on such office, for its words, the King shall be deemed in seisin without a seisin. Co. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. 12 Dyer 125. 25 Car. 2. 389. 2 Cro. 428. 7 Estl. 13. Lit. Rep. 100. S. P. agreed.

4. If tenant in tail of the gift of the crown makes a feoffment in fee, and then is attainted of high treason, the right in the tenant is forfeited, for it could not be disseminated, because the reversion continued always in the Crown, and that it be put in abeyance by the feoffment, as to any benefit which the sefflor could claim from it; yet since it is not turned to a right of action, but would have still continued in him for the benefit of the heir, if there had been no attainer, it shall likewise continue in him for the benefit of the Crown. Cro. Car. 427, and see Plow. 552.

5. That if one attainted of high treason is feised of a defeasible fee tail, and hath also a right to an ancient intail which is disseminated, he forfeits both, for the same is within the express words of 26 H. 8, and the other within the words of 33 H. 8, and it doth not follow, that because naked rights to lands in the hands of a disseminate, or of the heir of a dissemine, are not within the meaning of the statute, therefore a right in the party himself is not; for the forfeiture of such naked rights might not only be by the King, but also by the feoffor of the disseminated fee; but might also be prejudicial to strangers, whom the statute, by an express saving, plainly intends to favour; but a forfeiture of the offender's right to his own lands can prejudice none but himself and his heirs. Hob. 334. Plow. 355. 2 R. & M. Rep. 305.

In the construction of the statute of 23 H. 8. it is agreed, that a power of revoking the uses of a settlement may be forfeited by force thereof, if the execution of it require nothing but what may be as well performed by any other person, as by the party himself by whom it was reserved; as the tendering of a ring to a party, wherein there is no mention of such considerations and inducements for the revoking such a power in the preamble of it, as are irreparable from the perfum, alter the case, if nothing of this kind be intended in the profvo scilicet, by which it is rendered, of 1572, it provides, that if such power provide any thing of this kind, it prevents the forfeiture; as if it be wrought thus; that if the party should be minded to alter and revoke the uses, he shall not be able to do so, of which he is occupied in writing the words. And if it be only, that the revocation be under his hand and seal, without saying any thing about changing his mind; or as some say, if it only require the tender of a ring by the party, little adown declaring his intent, Estl. 37. 14 Estl. 13, 14. 2 Estl. 19. 1 Rex. 263. 1 Jell. 3. 12 Mod. 172. 1 Kel. 194. 12 Kel. 214. 2 Kel. 666. 763. 773. 1 Leav. 279. Lane 25.

That neither an annuity granted pro confesso impotentium, nor an office granted for life, and requiring skill and confidence, are forfeitable by these statutes; but such office in life was to be continued without the force of them, because the grantor in giving an office descendable to all the heirs of the grantee, however unqualified, appears not to have been intended to induce his grantee from the consideration of the peculiar merit of the persons who are to execute the office. Plow. 381. Plow. 379.

By an act of parliament made 13 Car. 2. it was enacted, that all the minorities, judgments, lands, tenements, possessions and reversion, remainders, rights, intercises, hereditaments, leases, chattels real, and other things of what nature ever, that Sir John Denvers, or any other to his use, or in trust for him, had the 25th of March 1646, or at any time after, should be forfeited to the King; and it was adjudged, that all interests of what nature ever, an estate-tail was forfeit. 2 Leav. 169. 2 Leav. 57. 2 Mod. 130. 3 Kg. 459. 651. 712. 1 Plow. 299. Pellef. 181. B. C.

But it is held, that the statutes of primogeniture, which give a general forfeiture of all the lands and tenements of the offender, extended not to land in tail. Co. Lit. 159 a.

It is agreed, that a paying against a corruption of blood in a statute concerning felony faves the land to the heir, because the eftate to the lord for felony is only de jure tenetis, occurrant by the corruption of blood; also the paying the land to the heir, saves the corruption of blood and los of dower. Hal. P. C. 8. 3 Estl. 47.

But a paying against the corruption of blood in a statute concerning high treason, does not save the land to the heir, because the land goes to the King by way of immediate forfeiture, and not by way of eftate. 1 Stats. 85. 3. To what time the forfeiture shall have relation; and what is to be done with the offender's goods before conviction.

The forfeiture upon an attainer of treason or felony shall have relation to the time of the offence, for the avoiding all subsequent alienations of the lands, but to the time of the conviction, or fagum factum, &c., only as to chattels, unless the party were killed in fighting from, or retailing those who had arrested him; in which case it is laid, that the forfeiture shall relate to the time of the offence. Plow. 488 b. Co. Lit. 2 b. 8 Co. 170.

But if the time proved varies from that laid in the indictment, and the jury find the defendant guilty generally, the forfeiture shall relate to the time laid, till the verdict be confirmed by the party interested, as it may be in this respect, tho' not as to the point of the offence. Hal. P. C. 264. 270. 3 Estl. 230. But if the jury find the defendant guilty on the day on which the fact is proved, whether before or after the day laid in the indictment; in such case the forfeiture shall relate to the day so specially proved. Kel. 16. Hal. P. C. 264. 2 Estl. 318. 3 Estl. 230.

No attainer whatsoever shall have any relation as to the mean profits of the lands of the person attainted, but only from the time of the attainer. 8 Co. 170. Plow. 386.

The forfeiture of a persson becoming fe de fo has relation to the time the mortal wound was given, so that all intermediate alienations are avoided. Plow. 260. 5 Co. 110. Hal. P. C. 29.
For

It hath always been held, that one indicted or accused of treason or felony may, bona fide, fell any of his chattels real or personal, for the fullness of hismell and family, until they be actually forfeited. 8 Co. 171.

But where a person being in Newgate for robbery and burglary, before conviction, made a bill of sale of all his goods, Chattels real or personal, came into the hands of the sheriff, the sheriff of London, it was held by Holt, that the bill was fraudulent, and that though a false, bona fide, for a valuable consideration had been good, because the party had a property in the goods till conviction, and ought to be reasonably sustained out of them, yet that such a conveyance as this cannot be intended to any other purpose than to prevent a forfeiture, and defraud the King; and this he laid was a fraud at Common law. Skin. 357.

It seems the better opinion, at this day, that before indictment the goods of the offender cannot be searched and inventoried, and that after indictment they cannot be seized and taken away till the felon is convicted, for till the conviction the property remains in the felon. 3 Ryll. 229. Bridg. 77. Hale's P. C. 269.

And by the 25 Ed. 3. cap. 14, it is enacted, " That whereas, under the ancient usages and usages of the common law, &c. after indictment by the person charged, or any other person, take or seize the goods of any person arrested or imprisoned for suspicion of felony, before the same person so arrested and imprisoned be convicted or attainted of such felony according to the law; or else the same goods otherwife lawfully forfeited; upon the taking or seizing of such goods it shall be lawful for him that is so for hurt in that behalf, by action of debt, &c. For precedents of such actions, see 1 Lutw. 132. Crow. Eliz. 749."

This statute is to be in abeyance of the Common law, and hath been adjudged to extend as well to the forfeiture of money as of any other chattel. 8 Co. 171. Russ. 414.

It seems plain from this statute, that goods may be seized as soon as they are forfeited; and it seems the whole township is answerable for them to the King, and may seize them where-ever they can be found. Co. Lit. 3. ed. 2. 2 Hawk. 25. 455.

And at Common law it was no plea for such township, that the goods were delivered to the custody of J. S. who imprest them, &c. but it is enacted by 31 Ed. 3. cap. 3, that if any man or town be charged in the Exchequer by effect of the juries of the chattels of the prisoner, and shall deliver to him another which is chargeable, he shall be heard, and right done to the other. 2 Hawk. P. C. 456.

4. How far the offender's blood is corrupted; and in what cases the wife should lose her dower.

It is clearly agreed, that by an attainder of treason or felony, the blood of the offender is so far stained and corrupted, that the party loses all the nobility or gentility he might have had before, and becomes ignoble. Co. Lit. 8. 41. 3 Ryll. 211. Stawnd. P. C. 195.

Also it is clearly agreed, that he can neither inherit as heir to any ancestor, nor have an heir, and the policy of the law herein is to make men more mindful of their allegiance, and to deter them from taking up arms against the crown; for as the natural love men have for their ancestors, and that of their father, and will allow in discharge of him another which is chargeable, he shall be heard, and right done to the other. 2 Hawk. P. C. 456.

For

Ny 159. 1 Vent. 413, 417. 1 Lev. 60. 1 Sid. 260. Lit. Jef. 746. 2 Co. 13. 8 Co. 165. a.

As if there be grandfather, father and son, and the father is attainted, the son cannot claim as heir to the grandfather of the lands in fee simple, because he must of necessity derive the defendant through the father, which by reason of the attainder he cannot do. Co. Lit. 392. Dolifh. 12. pl. 4. Vent. 416.

So if there be two brothers, and one of them having issue a son be attainted, and either the son or uncle purchase land, and die without issue, the other cannot be his heir, because the blood of the father, through whom the defendant must be conveyed, is corrupted. Dyr. 247. pl. 40. Crow. Car. 543. 1 Vent. 417.

But it is also a general rule, that the attainer of a person, who need not be mentioned in the conveyance of the defsoent, does no hurt, let the ancestor be never so remote; and that therefore once may claim as immediate heir to another, without deriving the defendant through any other, he shall not be barred by the attainder of any other. Lit. Rep. 28. Ny 159. 165. 1 Lev. 60. 1 Sid. 260. 1 Vent. 413.

As if the son of one attainted purchase land, and have a son, and die, such son shall inherit him, because he derives his defendant from the son immediately from the father. Co. Lit. 392. 2 Co. Lit. 19. 3. Vent. 416.

So if a man hath two sons, and is attainted, and one of the same purchase lands, and die without issue, the other shall be his heir, because he may make his title without mentioning the father; and therefore there is no bar to the title, the one to be represented, or in the other to represent. 2 Vent. 8. a. 42 Mat. 35. 1 Rel. Abr. 625. pl. 5. Crow. Car. 543. Palm. 1 Lev. 59. 1 Vent. 125. 2 Rel. Rep. 93. 2 Sid. 25. 27. Mor. 509. pl. 775. Ny 158. Lit. Rep. 28.

So where a person attainted hath issue by a woman feitled of lands of inheritance, such issue may inherit the mother, though he never had any inheritable blood from the father. Ny 159. 167. Stawndf. P. C. 196. 2 Sid. 248. Crow. Yac. 539. Lit. Rep. 28. 1 Lev. 59. 1 Sid. 201. 1 Vent. 422. Co. Lit. 84. b.

If the father of a person attainted die feitled of an estate of inheritance during his life, no younger brother can be heir, but the land shall rather escheat; the elder brother, tho' attainted, is still a heir, and no other brother can be heir to the father while he is alive; but if he die before the father, the younger brother shall be heir, because there is no default in the father to be represented, nor in the younger brother to represent the father, after the death of his brother. Co. Lit. 8. a. 13. a. Ny 166. 170. 1 Lev. 60. 1 Sid. 195. 1 Vent. 413.

But if the eldest son let escheat, and died, such issue could not have inherited, but such land must have escheated, because the eldest son could not have represented the grandfather, but by the representation of the father, and as standing in his stead, and that in this case he could not do, because the father can have no representatives, and the younger son could not inherit, because the elder line is still continuing, which excludes the younger. Dyr. 48.

If a man be feitled of lands in fee, and hath issue two daughters, and one of them is attainted of felony, and the father dies, both daughters being alive, one moiety shall descend to the innocent daughter, and the other moiety shall escheat. Co. Lit. 163. b.

But that if a man makes a leave for life, remainder to the right heirs of A. being deceased A. who hath issue two daughters, whereas one is attainted of felony, it seems the remainder is not good for a moiety, but void for the whole. Co. Lit. 163. b.

For in the first case the lord by escheat must make a title to devise that estate which was once lawfully vested in the ancestor; which he cannot do, because there is no defect in this case, since the ancestor may be legally represented, and the innocent daughter may legally represent; and therefore there can be no title in the lord to void this moiety, though he has a title to the moiety of the offending daughter, who after her crime can represent no man; but in the second case, the fillers are to make title title to the remainder, which they cannot do, because to make title to the remainder, they must bring themselves within the words of the gift; and the innocent daughter cannot take upon her the character of tenant-for-life, because she alone, since they both male but one heir to the ancestor, and she cannot join, because one is attainted, and incapable of that character.

"Ca. Lit. 142. a."

Although a person attainted be to many purposes looked upon as dead in law, yet he hath a capacity to purchase land, which the King shall have upon office found, and not the lord of the fee, because his person being forfeiture the King, he can't purchase but for the King.

"Ca. Lit. 2. b."

But if a man attainted be pardoned by act of parliament he may purchase as before, for he is totally reformed and ineritable to all persons; but if he be pardoned by charter, he may himself purchase lands, but can't inherit his former relations; for the King's charter can't alter the law, or take away the right of others, or restore the relation that was lost.

If a man be attainted, and after pardoned by charter, the children born before such pardon shall not inherit; but if they fail, the children born after such pardon may inherit from him; as the pardon makes him capable of new relations as well as of new purchases, tho' all the old legal benefits and relations are lost.

"Noy 170. Ca. Lit. 8. a. 3 lyl. 233."

Before the statute of 1 E. 6. cap. 12, the wife not only lost her dower at Common law, but also her dower act of 6 E. 5. cap. 11. but woman, who was also the subject of certain ex officio partis, or by special custom (except that of gavelkind,) by the husband's attainted of treason or capital felony, whether committed before or after the marriage.

But the wife forfeited lands given jointly to her husband and her, whether by way of frank-marrige or otherwise, but only for the year and day and waife.

"Ca. Lit. 37. 3 lyl. 216."

It is enabled by 1 E. 6. cap. 12. par. 17. That albeit any person shall be attainted of any treason or felony whatsoever; yet notwithstanding every woman, that shall fortunate to be the wife of the person so attainted, shall be endowable and enabled to demand, have, and enjoy her dower, in like manner and form as tho' her husband had not been attainted.

But this is resisted as to treason by 5 & 6 E. 6. cap. 11. par. 9. by which it is enabled, "That the wife, whole husband shall be attainted of any treason whatsoever, shall in no wise be received to, &c. challenge, demand, or have dowry of any the lands, tenements or hereditaments of the person so attainted, during the said attainer in force."

If the husband forfeited of lands in fee makes a feoffment, and then commits treason, and is attainted of it, the wife shall not recover dower against the feoffor.

"Brend. 56. Dyer 142. Ca. Lit. 111. a."

So if the husband is attainted of treason, and afterwards pardoned, yet the wife shall not recover dower; but of lands purchased by the husband after the pardon, the wife shall be endowed.

If a husband having levied a fine with proclamation, is erroneously attainted of treason, and the five years pass after his death, and then the outlawry is reverted, the fine and nonclaim are no bar till five years are passed after the reverter, because the wife could not fee for her dower while the attainer flourished in force, neither might she any way receive it.

"3 lyl. 216. Mer 639. pl. 879."

After the making of the statute 1 E. 6. cap. 12, it seems to have been doubted, whether the wife should not lose her dower in case of any new felony made by act of parliament; and therefore where severall offences have been made felony fine, care has been taken to provide for the wife's dower.

"2 Bac. Atr. 534. See 1 lyl. Atr. tit. Forfeiture."

Forfeiture in real rates. A forfeiture of copyholds by being timber was relieved in equity; but Lord Keeper declared, that in case of a willful forfeiture he would not relieve.

"Hil. 19 Cur. 2. Ch. Cates 49."

In cases of forfeiture of a lease for non-payment of ground-rent, and a recovery in ejdema, Chancellor will not relieve on tender of arrests and colls, where the forfeiting perfon was offered the same terms by the ground landlord before the bill brought, and refused them; per

"P*eb. 161. 8. 23 & 24. 2 Hen. 2."

"2 Laws 372."

Equity will not relieve against a forfeiture incurred by act of parliament.

"St. Tr. 177. 3 lyl. 252. 353. Trin. 1717."

Forfeiture of marriage. (Perforstitia matrimonii,) is a writ which lays against him, who, holding by knight-service, and being under age, and unmarried, refused her whom the lord undertook him without his dispensation, and did not ratify another.

"P. N. B. 31. 141. Orig. fol. 653."

Forgalumnum. (Forget.) A small referred rent in money, a quit rent.

"Coswell. edit. 1777."

Forgery, (from the Fr. forge, i.e. accuder, fabricae) At Common law is an offence in falsly and fraudullently making or altering any matter of record, or any other authority, matter or publick nature, as a parish register, or any deed or will, and punishable by fine and imprisonment, and such other corporal punishment as the court in discretion shall think proper. But the mischief of this kind increasing, it was found necessity to guard against them by more proportionate laws; hence we have several acts of parliament declaring what offences amount to forgery, and which inflict severer punishments than were by the Common law.

"1 Hawk. P. C. 182. 2 Bac. Atr. 566."

1. What shall be deemed forsw of the Common law, that is, before any act of parliament was made concerning this offence.

2. What shall be deemed forgery by statutes, and the punishment thereof.

3. Pleading.

1. That
It seems, that by a bare non-feasance a man can't be held to be guilty of forgery; as if a man in drawing a will omits a legatee to whom he is directed to inter his estate, yet it has been held, that if the omission of a bequest to one cause a material alteration in the limitation of a bequest to another, as where the omission of a devise of an estate to one man causeth a devise of the same lands to another to pass a plain estate, which otherwise would never have passed, to be held for being a member of parliament, who in truth, at that time was not a member, as a matter of record is forgery. Mer. 766. No. 101.

But it seems to be no way material, whether a forged instrument be made in such a manner, that if it were in truth such as it is counterfeited for, it would be of validity or not, and upon this ground it has been adjudged, that the forgery of a public record, if being a member of parliament, who in truth, at that time was not a member, is as much a crime as if he were, 1 Hawk. P. C. 184, 2 Sid. 142.

It is clearly agreed, that a Common law the counterfeiting a matter of record is forgery; for since the law gives the highest credit to all records, it can't be of the utmost ill consequence to the public to have them either forged or falsified. 1 Roll. Atr. 65. 76. Yale, 146. Cre. Eliz. 178.

Alfo it is agreed to counterfeit to any other authentick matter or instrument, as a privy seal, or licence from the crown of the Exchequer, to convey a debt, or certificate of holy orders, or a protection from a parliament-man. 1 Roll. Atr. 65. pl. 53. Cre. Cor. 326. 1 Sum. 335. 1 Roll. Atr. 65. pl. 5. 2 Balt. 137. 1 Lev. 159. 1 1 Sid. 142.

It is also unnecessary to say, that a man may be in like manner guilty of forgery at common law by forging a deed; and therefore it seems, that one may be equally guilty by forging a will, which can't be thought to be of less consequence than a deed. 1 Roll. Atr. 65. pl. 10. 1 Rom. 81. Owen 47. 1 Sid. 278. 1 Lev. 137. 1 Mer. 766. No. 101. 1 Roll. 392. 1 1 Hawk. P. C. 184.

It is certain it is said, that he can't find this point anywhere directly holid.

There seem to be some strong opinions in the books, that the counterfeiting any writings of an inferior nature to those above mentioned, is not forgery at the common law; alfo it has been held, that a forgery another's hand, and thereby receiving rent due to him from his tenants, is not punishable at all; but he is, it can't be surely proved by any good authorities, that such base crimes are wholly disregarded by the common law, as not deserving publick prosecution; for the opinion, that they are punishable by no instrument, is so contrary to human reason, that it must be maintained, since many of them are more certainly punishable by force of 73 H. 8. cap. 1. Neither can it be a convincing argument, that they are not punishable at common law, because they are of a private nature, as when a writing concerning such matters, yet no one will say, that the making a false deed concerning a private matter is not punishable at common law; but perhaps, says he, it may be reasonable to make this distinction between the counterfeiting of such writings, the forgery whereof, as in the above cases, is properly punishable as forgery, and the counterfeiting of other writings of an inferior nature; that the forgery of itself criminal, whether any third person be actually injured thereby or not, but that the latter is no crime unless some one receive a prejudice from it. 1 Roll. Rep. 431. 1 Sid. 16. 135. 451. 1 Roll. Atr. 66. pl. 8. 9. 1 Hawk. C. 180. 1 1 Sid. 231. 1 1 Lev. 131. 1 Cre. Eliz. 296. 1 Balt. 265. 1 Cre. Eliz. 166. 1 Yale 146. 1 1 Hawk. P. C. 184.

But these opinions came fully to be considered in a late noted case, where it was held, that the counterfeiting a release or acquittance for a sum of money, though without fraud, was punishable; but yet it would be the most injurious notion, and even a reflection on the common law, to suppose it so defective as not to provide a remedy against offences of this nature. This case was thus: An information was exhibited in the name of the Attorney General, charging that Mr. Ward, captain enarel on delivery to the Duke of Buck's 315 tun and one quarter of allum...
Illicit ad certain diem jam praetereum, id cum intentio de praestare ibi, forges, ad infradictum, non habet
a quibusdam refert et magis segni, "Mr. John Ward, i hiera by order to charge 660 tunns and quarter of alum to my account, part of the quantity here mentioned in this certificate, and for you doing this shall be your discharge. Buckingham, April 30, 1706."
The information hereof no way affects the publication of this case, and no other deferulion that was included in the publication that was in the Common law, which is an argument they were not punished as forgeries.

Per curiam: As there is no judicial authority on either side, we must take it up upon the reafon of the thing.
There is no reafon why this should not be punished as a felfe, as well as the forgery of alibis for defects in the great, or greater, for the value may be 50,000/. in one cafe, and a defed perhaps affect only a fingle acr of land.
The flatue 5 Eliz. flew this to be a crime, by using the words writings, in contradiftion to deeds. It cannot be proceeded as a cheat at Common law, without an actual prejudice, and that is an obfervation on the 33 H. 8. the cafe cited out of Crs. is not law, and fully thofe words are accountability. Regina v. Travers was forging an indorsement on an army debenurate, and laid as Common law. The reafon why we do not meet with an ancient determination is, because perfonal creations coming from before the statute, the fentience of the statute is, It is not neceffary to fliew an actual prejudice, possibility is enough; and here it appears, there would have been one, if the forgery had stood. Judicium pro rege. Afterwards he was fentenced to hang in the pifloy before Wyfeminfer-Hall gate, (which he did) to pay 300/ a day not friend the fentence, and the committment till all was performed. Hil. 13 G. 1. The King

Indelicion fetting forth, that defendant intending to draef the King, and unjustly to procure a payment to be made in the name of an officer, did knowingly publish a certain fake and counterfeit affidavit, purport-ting to have been sworn by one Elizabeth Roe, before Thomas Engier, Efq. a judge of the peace, by which means he received 5l. 6l. 8d. of the paymaster of the King's bounty; and this was laid as an offence at Common law.
After verdict for the King, it was moved in arret of judgment, that this not being laid to be defed by the defendant, was not an offence at Common law, but he ought to have been indicted on 33 H. 8. cap. 1 as for a fake token. Sed per curiam; Since Ward's cafe this can never be doubted. And it has always been held, that the statute did not create a new offence, but only added a further penalty, as a height the old one, is the common flatu. The 5 Eliz. cap. 14. reciting the forgeryes at Common law, has the word writings, in contradiftion to deeds: And it is in the election of the party, in the case of forgery deeds, to lay the indelicion either at Common law, or upon the statute. Judgment pro rege.

Forfery to the party's own detriment only, is not criminal. L. Raym. 530. 1 Sa!k. 275.

2. What shall be deemed forgery by flatures, and the puishment thereof.

By the flat. 5 Eliz. cap. 14. feft. 2. it is enacted,
"That if any perfon or perfon, upon his or their own head and imagination, or by fake conspiracy and fraud with others, shall wittingly, fubtilly or falsely forge or make, or fubtilly caufe, or willingly cause to be made or made any fake deed, ejtate or writing felled, court-roll, or the will of any perfon or perfon in writing, in the intent that the effeate of freehold or inheritance of any perfon, of, in, or to any land, tenements or hereditaments, freehold or copyhold, or the right, title or interest of any perfon in land, or in, or to, any fee simple of land, or to, or in, or to, any shall be made forfeided, troubled, defeated, recovered or charged, or shall pronounce, publish or flew forth in evidence, any such fake deed and forged deal, charter, writing, court-roll, or will as true, knowing the fame to be fake and forged, as is afofired, to the intent above remembered, except being
1. That a false customary of a copyhold manor made in penance, under the fees of several tenants of the manor, and containing in it divers false customs, apparently tending to the dilution of the lord, and falsely pretending to be his title, to be let forth by the consent of all the tenants and allowance of the lord, is within the said false branch of the statute, as being a false writing made to the intent to defraud the inheritance of the lord. Dyer 327. p. 26. 3 Lev. 182.

3. That the forgery of a lease for years, or of a grant of a rent charge for years, in the name of one who is feigned a tenant or lessee, either by writing within the said false branch of the statute, because the said fraud is found in general words extending to any molestation whatsoever of such estate, without mentioning any estate or interest, in the claim wherein such molestation shall consist; and from this ground it follows, that these words in the second branch of forgery mentioned in the statute, to the intent that any person shall claim any estate or interest for term of years, are meant only of such forgeries which relate to such an estate or interest in the before. 3 Jeff. 170. Nay 43. 1 Hawk. P. C. 186.

3. That the forgery of a will in writing of one polluted of such an estate, mentioning a bequest thereof, is within the said second branch of the statute as being a false writing, made to the intent that some person may claim an estate for years, notwithstanding the said branch (whether of a will or writing) was within the first doth. Dyer 327. p. 43. 1 Hawk. P. C. 186.

4. That the forgery of a lease of lands in Ireland is not within either of the branches of the statute. 3 Lev. 170.

5. That the forging of a deed, containing a gift of manor and personal chattel, is also no way within the statute, the words whereof to this purpose are, "If any person shall forge any obligation, or bill obligatory, or any acquittance, release or other discharge of any debt, account, action, suit, demand, or other thing personal." 3 Lev. 170. 1 Hawk. P. C. 186.

6. That the forgery of a year or manor merchant, or of a recognizance in the nature of a statute staple, by acknowledging them in the name of another, is within the statute as being obligations, because they must have the seal of the party, by the express words of the statute, which require in what manner false or recognizance shall be taken; but that the forgery of the statute staple is no way within the statute, because it need not the seal of the party, but only the seal of the staple provided for it. 15 H. 7. 15 a. 2 Rol. Abr. 466. 1 Hawk. P. C. 186. note. 3 Jeff. 171.

7. That he who after another that a deed is forged, in danger of the statute, if he shall afterwards publish the fame to be true, notwithstanding the words of the statute be, if any one shall publish, such false and forged deed, knowing the same to be false or forged. 3 Jeff. 171. 1 Hawk. P. C. 187.

8. That double damages shall be awarded to the party to whom a false or forged deed is given after the true. 3 Jeff. 172. 1 Hawk. P. C. 187.

1. That one who has been convicted of publishing a forged deed, may become guilty of felony for forging another deed afterwards, as well as by publishing any such deed, notwithstanding the second offence be not of the very fame nature with the first; for the words of the statute are, "If any person being convicted or condemned of any false writing or forgery shall, after any such conviction or condemnation effect or commit any of the said offences." 3 Jeff. 171. 1 Hawk. P. C. 187.

10. That notwithstanding it be necessary in every prosecution upon the statute, to strictly enforce the very words of it, (for which cause it has been resolved, that an indictment, for which cause it was found, was the only mode of being indicted, without adding that it was false, it being insufficient,) yet there was no necessity that the transfusion of the words of the statute should be in proper classical Latine, so that it were were intelligible; and upon this ground it has been adjudged, that an indictment setting forth, that the defendant [a]gainst whom this indictment was drawn, did forge, &c. meaning thereby to express, that he did it out of his own head, is insufficient. 3 Keb. 356, 357; 3 Coh. 369. 1 Keb. 549. 2 Keb. 129. 2 Lev. 221. 1 Inst. 23, 24. 1 Khb. 370. 1 Co. Litt. 1 P. C. 187.

17. That upon an indictment of trespas, forgery, and publication et a deed, a verdict finding the defendant guilty of trespass & forgery procidus, petit [sic] in indictment properly, is insufficient, because these words do not express all, or of all, the ingredients of this offense; for such a verdict may be sufficient for another reason, because the offense is equally within the facts, and the punishment the same, whether the party be guilty both of forgery and publication, or of one of them only. 2 Lev. 111, 121. 3 Keb. 523. 2 Ld. 1 P. C. 187.

18. That if the conveyance be defective, so as not to pass the thing intended to be conveyed, yet it is within the act, as where an indictment of forgery the error assigned was of a deed intruded, and the acknowledgment laid eleven months after the intrusion; and it being objected, that it being of a bargain and sale it can have no force, not being in writing binding to the party without the acknowledgment, but the court held, that admitting the acknowledgment essential, so that the intrusion was not good, unless that appeared, (which they seemed to deny) yet it was within the statute; and that the there was a flaw in the conveyance forg'd, which court referred learned men to settle, and yet the facts may be impeached, molested and troubled by such a deed, which makes it within the statute. 1 Keb. 707, 749, 803. The King v. King, and Pash. 4 Geo. 2. S. P. determined between The King and a Cracker. See Hk. 372.

The defendant was convicted upon the statute 5 Eliz. cap. 14. for forging a lease and release. And the indictment sets forth, that Garbut et al were feized in fee of certain messuages, lands and tenements called Jauick in the parish of Clackton in Essex; and that the defendant forged a lease and release as from Garbut et al, whereby the said lease was a valuable consideration to convey to him all that park called Jauick Park in the parish of Clackton in Essex, containing eight miles in circumference, with all the deer, woods, &c. thereto belonging.

After verdict pro rege, it was moved in arrest of judgment, that the premises supposed to be conveyed were no more than tenements, and therefore the estate of Garbut et al, which was houses, lands and tenements; that it was impossible this conveyance ever could melt or disturb them; if it was a true deed it could not pass their lands at law for want of a proper description; and that what lands are improperly described, a court of equity, after recovery of the vendor, having by proceeding to words; yet that is only where there is a previous contract for a sale, and they do it as carrying that contract into execution; whereas here is no contract, and the cafe is no more, than if A. had been feized of Blackacre, and B. had forged a conveyance of Habilhus, which certainly would not be within the statute. The court for several terms inclined strongly with the objection; But this term the Chief Justice declared that they were all of opinion to over-rule it: the words of the act are, "to the intent that the estate of freehold or inheritance of any person to any land, &c. for the right or title of, in and unto the same, may be molested, troubled, defeated, recovered or charged." By this it appears, that it is not necessary, there should be a charge or a possibility of a charge; it is sufficient that it be done with intent to molest Garbut and his wife in the possession of their lands, and that he was given the benefit of the act, and the decendant had sentence to undergo the punishment appointed by the act for forging a deed, and the same was executed upon him at Charing-Croft. Ebr. 4 Geo. 2. The King v. Jophet Crofte. S. T. 901.

By the Stat. 2 Geo. 2. cap. 25, reciting, that the laws and statutes were not sufficient. 2 Geo. 2, c. 18. preventing the abominable crimes of forgery, it is enacted, "That if any peron, from and after the 29th day of June in the year of our Lord 1720, shall falsely make, forge or counter-fete, or cause or procure to be falsely made, forged or counterfeited, or willingly aid or abet in the like making, forging or counterfeiting any deed, will, dedication, bond, writing obligatory, bill of exchange, promissory note for payment, bond, promissory note or indenture of any kind, or any bill of exchange, or promissory note for payment of money, acceptance or receipt either for money or goods, with intention to defraud any person, knowing the same to be false, forged or counterfeited, then every such person being thereof lawfully convicted, according to the law here declare, shall be deemed guilty of felony, without benefit of clergy.

Provided, that no attainder for this offence shall make or work any corruption of blood, los of dower, or di-ference of heir.

And 3 Geo. 2. reciting the act above mentioned, and that the same doth not extend to the forging of any acceptance of bills of exchange, it is enacted, "That if any person from and after the 24th of June 1734, shall falsely make, alter, forge or counterfeit, or cause or procure to be falsely made, altered, forged or counterfeited, or willingly aid or abet in the like making, forging or counterfeiting any acceptance of any bill of exchange, or the number or principal sum of any accountable receipt for any note, bill, or other security for payment of money or delivery of goods, with intention to defraud any person whatsoever, or shall utter or publish as true any false, forged or counterfeited note or bill, or any bill of exchange, or accountable receipt for any note, bill, or other security for payment of money or delivery of goods, with intention to defraud any person, knowing the same to be false, altered, forged or counterfeited; then every such person being thereof lawfully convicted, according to the law here declared, shall be deemed guilty of felony, and shall suffer death as a felon, without be-

Of the 7 Geo. cap. 20. Any person forging or counter-feteing any entry of the acknowledgment of any me-orial, certificate or inrolment, as is therein mentioned or ordered to be registered, and be thereby lawfully convicted, such person shall incur, and be liable to such pains and penalties as are imposed upon persons for forging and publishing of false deeds, &c. by 5 Eliz. c. 14.

By 8 Geo. 1. cap. 22, sect. 1. Forgery authorities, &c. to transfer false or fictitious deeds, &c. and perfec-tions of their offices, is made felony without clergy.

Stat. 9 Geo. 1. cap. 12. sect. 4, enacts, that if any person after the second of April 1733, shall forge or counterfeite, or procure to be forged, &c. or knowingly aid or abet in the forging, &c. any order made forth in possession of any land, &c. within the kingdom of Great Britain, cap. 20, or of this act, or any affignment of such order, or of the annuities payable thereon, or any receipt or dis-corage to the Exchequer, for the annuity due on such landing order, or any letter of attorney, or other authorities, to transfer, affigne, &c. any such or order, or to receive the annuities due thereon, or shall counterfeit any name of the proprietor of such order, in any affignment, receipt, letter of attorney, &c. or shall fraudulently de-

man to receive any such annuity, by virtue of such forged receipt, &c. or shall falsely and deceitfully perfonate any true proprietor of any the said orders, thereby affigning or evacuating to any such order, or receiving or endeavouring to receive the money of such pro-

priator, as if such offender were the lawful owner thereof; in every such case, every such person (being convicted thereof in due form of law) shall be adjudged guilty of felony without benefit of clergy.

2 Geo. 2. cap. 25. enacts, That persons convicted of forgery, &c. pracising as attorneys, &c. offending against the act for preventing frivolous and vana-tious arrests, shall be transported for seven years.

Stat. 4 Geo. 2. cap. 18. sect. 1. enacts, That any per- son, false or counterfeiting and paper for any of such, commonly called a Mediterranean paper, or who shall alter or erase any paper, made out by the commission for executing the office of Lord High Admiral, or shall pub-
F O R

If as true, any forged, altered, or erased pafs, knowing the same to be forged, &c. shall be guilty of felony without benefit of clergy. See S. 1713.

3. Pleadings.

In an indictment for forgery at Common law, though it is true that the party was prejudicial, yet the indictment is good. See in a action of forgery des faux faits. Therefore where the indictment was for forgery of a forerunner of the lands of S. S. it was not shown in the indictment, that S. S. had any lands; yet Held. Chief Justice, at Bury Summer assizes 12 Hill 3, upon motion for a new trial held it good; and judgment was given against the defendant, being an attorney, that he should stand in the pillory. Another exception was, that the indictment was, quod falsa confessit falsum scriptum, which is repugnant; yet held good. 1 Ed. Raym. 273.

The defendant was indicted for the following: And for the forgery,

1. Indictment was for forging a cocket for five packs of linen cloth; and it was moved in arrest of judgment, for that it was not such. It was held good by the argument and per Held. It suffices that the things which it contains be certain enough, and if new art be brought, defendant shall say, that a former action was brought for the same by the name of to many bonds, &c. and the Queen for a fine of $.

2. Indictment for forging a deed of assignment of a lease with the mark of one Godard, cujus tenor fiquitur, but sets not down the mark as in the assignment, and this was objected, for without that it could not be a forgery. 3 Ed. nov. aliait., 1 Salk. 342. Pofch. 2 Ann.

An information was brought against three for forgery, and maliciously conspiring and contriving an entry of a marriage in the register-book, between Sir R. Dodg and Fra. Tovshell, to the impeachment of the dower of the true wife of Sir R. Dodg, and to deprive her children of the inheritance; but it was held good by the argument per Held. The defendant was convicted in arrest of judgment, that as two were acquitted, the other could not be alone guilty of the conspiracy; but it was answered, that the indictment was good without the conspiracy, which was only an inducement thereunto, and not the ground of the indictment. Judgment was given against the defendant. Pofch. 1652. 2 B. R. 2 Sib. 75.

The statute requires it to be a deed sealed, and there it was only scriptum, fed non aliator; for when the deed is recited, its concluded with dat. & fagitur, such a day and year, and before it is once laid quidem scriptum; the judgment was affirmed. Pofch. 52 Car. 2. B. R. 2 Shaw. 5.

Error was allowed, that the indictment had not in it vi & armis, and that the indictment is not for nonobtance, but for misibility; and Judge J. held, that this was cured by the express words of the statute 31 H. 6 cr. 8, and cited G. T. H. Hunt's case, to related. 2 Telffen and Tyndall. J. term writing, and to this Rainsworh Ch. J. inclined; but as to this move admits. But afterwards, on reading the statute, it was agreed by all, that the want of vi & armis was cured.

Another error was, that the indictment lays, that he forged it false scriptum quodam proprietati, & that is, it should be intended that the writing was upon his head, and this might be by another; but this was a literal translation of the words of the statute, and it would be enough, though it be not so elegant a translation as might be. 2 Lev. 221. Pofch. 30 Car. 2.

Information set forth, that the defendant did forge quidem scriptum continuos in js furtum obligatorium per quod furtum furtum obligatorium A obligatus fuit praetul- dendum aui in 40 libros, &c. the defendant was found guilty, and exception was taken, that the false alleged was a contradiction of itself, for how could A. be bound when the obligation was forged? And also, that it did not set forth what that scriptum obligatorium was, whether it was scriptum futilitum or not. Per cur. The defendant by his counsel objected, to having a writ in, which was contained quidem scriptum obligatorium, and that may be a true bond. Judgment was arrested. 7 Lev. 104. Pofch. 2 Jac. 2.

The indictment was, that the defendant fabriicavit juo falsificari, and for forgeries, and it was heard upon demurrer, for an indictment could not be so certain and positive. 1 Salk. 242. Alch. 7 Will. 3.

Indictment was for forging quidem scriptum obligatorium of S. S. It was objected, that it should be furtum, purporting a writing obligatorium of S. S. fed non aliator, for the 5 Ed. 14. mentions false deeds as well as false writings. 1 Salk. 342. Hill. 1 Story B. R. see 11 Hin. Ab. tit. Forgery.

Foitbria. A herdland, a foreland or headland. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Foitbirens, Outward, or on the outside. Kim. Gloss.

Foitbirenum manerium. The manor, or that part of it which lies without the bars or town, and not included within the liberties of it. Sumna redditiwm officii- rum de maneriis, Hec eimo Landico cum nullandis foriniciis. Porsch. donit. pag. 357.

Foitbirenum fermittunum. The payment of aid, feugage, and other extraordinary burdens of military service; opposed to intrinseum fermitum, which was the common and ordinary duties within the lord's court and local liberties. Raym. 101.

Foiispirium. Where a man by force, or otherwise, exerts what is not due. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Foiisfamilairit. A son is properly said forisfamilia, when he accepts of his father's part of his lands, and is contented with it in the life-time of the father, so that he cannot claim any more. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Foiisbiamun. Land extending further, or lying before the sea, a promontory. Et de desima forlandis xxii. decuries, fo. de bene dicto Johannis Waker, quod dicit ante terram ecclesiae, de describ. M. Aug. 1 par. tol. 332. Camden expounds Cantium praeemium, the foreland of Kent.

Foiisland. Was such land in the bishoprick of Hereford, as was granted or leased dum episcopus in epi- scopio fleterius. And it might have it for his present income: But now that custom is done, and the same land granted as others, by lease, yet still retains the name. Butterfield's Survey, s. 50.

Foiim. Is required in law proceedings, otherwise the law would be no art; but it ought not to be used to en- force or intrinseum. 2 Telften. ed. 1727. This form in pleas that go to the action, may be taken advantage of and helped on a general demurrer. Lid. Raym. 1015.

Fojina
For

forma pauperis, or in forma pauperis, is when any person has cause of suit, and is so poor that he cannot do justice without additional charges of going at law, or in equity. In this case upon his making oath that he is not worth 5l. his debts being paid, and bringing a certificae from some lawyer, that he has just cause of suit, the judge admits him to sue in forma pauperis, that is, without paying fees or costs. He is entitled to this favoured state at the discretion of the judge. 11 H. 7. cap. 12. Such plaintiffs to pay no costs, but to be punished at the discretion of the judge, 23 Hen. 8. c. 15. sect. 2. Where one may defend an information relating to the customs in forma pauperis, 2 G. 2. c. 28. sect. 1. See 1 T. F. 200.

Fondon, (Breve de forma donandi) is a real action which lies for the inference in tail after the death of the ancestor, or for him in remainder or reversion after the estate-tail determined, and is called formeldon, because the writ comprehends the form of the gift. Co. Lit. 526. b. 537. B. 170. The proceedings in this action, as in all other real actions, being dilatory and expensive, it is now seldom brought; but as it is a proper remedy in many cases, and still in use, it is thought proper to consider it under the following heads.

1. Of the several writs of formeldon, viz. formeldon in defender, formeldon in remainder, and formeldon in reverter; and of what things a formeldon will lie.

2. How the demandant must set forth his title; and of the tenant's plea in abatement or bar.

1. Of the several writs of formeldon, viz. formeldon in defender, formeldon in remainder, and formeldon in reverter; and of what things a formeldon will lie.

Formeldon in the defender is an action assugetrel desutel, which lies for the inference in tail, upon a violation of the right which defends to him from his ancestor, according to the form of the gift, and is in the nature of a writ of right, being the highest writ that an inference in tail can have. 2 Inst. 291. Plow. 235. F. N. B. 471. Lit. sect. 595.

This writ lay not at Common law, but was given by Wyl. 2. cap. 1. the form of which is yet forth in the statute; for at Common law all estates-tail were fee-simple conditional, and the donee, by having of issue, might have aliened the estate, or forfeited it, in which cases the issue had no remedy; but when by the statute, called the statute de dominis conditionalibus, the donee was deprived of this power, it was also necessary that the issue should have a remedy against the alienation or discontinuance of his ancestor, and therefore the formeldon in defender was given. Co. Lit. 21. 326. b. F. N. B. 471. 4. 4tuld. 328. 6. F. C. 40. Mer. 155. 4 T. F. 209.

And therefore since this statute, upon every gift in tail of lands or tenements, if the ancestor doth alien the lands or tenements, or be defecuted or defcorps thereof and dieth, he who is heir unto the lands, by the force of the gift, shall have his formeldon in defender against him who is tenant of the lands or tenements, or permit of the profits of the same. F. N. B. 171.

So if tenant in tail hath issue two daughters, and one of them hath issue a son, and dies, and the tenant in tail dieth, and a stranger abates, the surviving daughter and son shall have a formeldon in defender. F. N. B. 478.

So if a man give lands unto a woman, and unto the heirs which he himself shall beget on the body of the said woman, and they have issue between them two daughters, and one of them hath issue a daughter, and dies; and after the death of the donee and donee dies; the aunt and niece shall join in a formeldon. F. N. B. 474.

If tenant in tail hath issue two sons, and dies, and the eldest son enters, and hath issue, and dies, and the issue enters, and dies without issue, the youngest son of tenant in tail shall have his formeldon in defender. F. N. B. 474.

If tenant in tail hath several daughters, and after his death they enter and make partition, if one of the daughters after discontinuance, and dies leaving issue, such issue may have a formeldon in defender. F. N. B. 476. See tit. Coparceners.

So if two coparceners be tenants in tail from their father or mother, and afterwards they make partition, and one of the other coparceners dies without issue, the issue shall have a formeldon in defender for the whole land. Fitz. N. B. 476, 480.

So if lands be given in trust to two men, and to the heirs of the body of one of them, and he who hath the inheritance marries, and dies leaving issue, such issue may after the death of him who hath the freehold, bring a formeldon in defender against a stranger who abates, and allege the expatriation in his father; for to such an extent the estate-tail was executed in the donor, but in this case, it seems, that the wife of the donor which had the inheritance in him that not be endowed, because the estate-tail was not executed to all purposes in the husband. Per. sect. 523.

If tenant in tail discontinues in fee, and dies, and the discontinuance makes a lease for life, and grants the reversion to the issue, he shall not have a formeldon against the great lord, who by his formeldon attorney or clerk, recovers an estate of inheritance, which the tenant hath not in him. Co. Lit. 297. 8.

If in a formeldon in defender the demandant is barred by verdict or on demurrer, yet his issue in tail shall have a new formeldon on the construction of the statute Wylm. 2. So if he be barred of a writ of error by a release of errors by his ancestor, yet he shall have a new writ of error; for he does not claim altogether as heir, but per formam doni; and by the statute he shall not be barred by the faint or false pleading of his ancestor so long as the right of intail remains. 6 G. 7. 4.

The writ of formeldon in remainder lies where a gift is made in tail or for life, remainder in tail or in fee, and the tenant in tail or for life aliens, or is defecuted, and dies without issue, he in remainder, or his representatives, may bring their formeldon in remainder. Lit. sect. 597. F. N. B. 493.

It is a writ of right which lies for the inference in tail of lands or tenements, from the subsequent alienation of the estate, the statute de dominis conditionalibus, which is a writ of right, being the highest writ that an inference in tail can have. 2 Inst. 291. Plow. 235. F. N. B. 471. Lit. sect. 595.

It may be brought in cases of the intestate devise, or for a devise after a devise by will, in which case it is called the statute de dominis conditionalibus, which is a writ of right, being the highest writ that an inference in tail can have. 2 Inst. 291. Plow. 235. F. N. B. 471. Lit. sect. 595.

It is a writ of right which lies for the inference in tail of lands or tenements, from the subsequent alienation of the estate, the statute de dominis conditionalibus, which is a writ of right, being the highest writ that an inference in tail can have. 2 Inst. 291. Plow. 235. F. N. B. 471. Lit. sect. 595.

It is a writ of right which lies for the inference in tail of lands or tenements, from the subsequent alienation of the estate, the statute de dominis conditionalibus, which is a writ of right, being the highest writ that an inference in tail can have. 2 Inst. 291. Plow. 235. F. N. B. 471. Lit. sect. 595.
18" 61'
15" 96'
2" 65'
formenon, and need not bring several writs. Dyer 143. 5.

If a remainder be once executed, that is to say, if the remainder-man be once seized of the estate-tail in possession, and the right descends to his heir, the heir shall not have a formenon in remainder, but in the in Remainder, as if A. gives lands to B. in tail, remainder to C. in tail, B. dies without issue, C. endeth, and aliens in fee, then, because the body of the issue was for, because the body of the issue was for, therefore the tenant in tail, for he may have other sons besides his eldest. 5 Mod. 17. Per Helc Ch. J.

In a formenon in remainder, it is necessary for the tenant to allege, that the issue in tail is dead without issue, without alleging that the tenant in tail is also dead without issue, for, in the common law, there must be no issue. So if the tenant in tail, therefore the tenant in tail, is dead without issue, that is dead without issue, therefore the tenant in tail is dead without issue, for he in remainder can have no issue. Dyer 143. 5.

This view lays at Common law; for though at Common law the estate-tail was a fee-simple conditional, so that by having of issue, the donee by alienation, etc. might have barred the possibility of the donee's right of reverter, yet the having of children was in the nature of a condition precedent: and in that case, if the donee should have issue, he might bring his formenon in remainder; and recover against any alienation or disposition of the donee. 2 Lees. 356. Plowd. 235.

It seems that all such inheritances, as may be intailed, may be recovered in a formenon, and that therefore it lies not only of lands, but also of rents, commons, etc., that must be taken away from heir to heir.

But no formenon will lie for things merely personal, which only charge the person, and neither issue out of land, nor relate to it; and therefore cannot be demanded as a tenement in a precedent; as if A. grants to B. and the heirs of his body, to be master of his hawks, or keeper of his hounds, with a fee or falary annexed to the same, the issue of B. can't have a formenon thereof. 1 Rot. 837. Plowd. 2.

If there be a custom in a manor, that copypholds may be intailed, which co-operating with the statute de donis is allowed to be good, the issue in tail may have a formenon of such lands. C. Lit. 60.

2. How the demandant must set forth his title; and of the tenant: plea in abatement or bar.

The demandant in a formenon in the defender must make himself heir to him who was last seized by force of the title, but he need not mention an ancestor who happened to be inheritable, but was never actually seized by force of the title; as if there be grandfather, father and son, and the father dies in the life-time of the grandfather, the son may bring his formenon without alleging any right in the father. So if the donee in tail has two sons, and the eldest dies in his life-time, then, as a straw man, by the statute of dreame, the second may, after the death of his father, bring his formenon without taking notice of the eldest son. Reg. 243. 8 Co. 87.

Dyer 216. pl. 56. F. N. B. 477. Helc. 78.

So where in a formenon in the defender the demandant set forth, that the right descends to him as brother and heir of the donee, but he need not mention an ancestor who happened to be inheritable, but was never actually seized by force of the title; as if there be grandfather, father and son, and the father dies in the life-time of the grandfather, the son may bring his formenon without alleging any right in the father. So if the donee in tail has two sons, and the eldest dies in his life-time, then, as a straw man, by the statute of dreame, the second may, after the death of his father, bring his formenon without taking notice of the eldest son. 1 Mod. 219. 2 Mod. 94. S. C.

In a formenon in remainder, the demandant need not set forth, that the right descends to him as brother and heir of the donee, but he need not alleging that the donee died without issue; and it was held good; for he could not be heir to his brother, unless the brother had died without issue. 1 Mod. 219. 2 Mod. 94. S. C.

In a formenon in remainder, the demandant need not set forth, that the right descends to him as brother and heir of the donee, but he need not alleging that the donee died without issue; and that after his death in remainder, he is a stranger to the pedigree, and therefore not obliged to make it out. Dyer 216. pl. 56. Bath 155. Dyer 14. pl. 75. 19. pl. 90.

So in a formenon in remainder, the demandant need not allege that all the parties are strangers, as in the precedent case; and it is sufficient for him to shew, that he who last inherited by force of the Vol. II. N°. 79.
cover no damages; and that Litten and Gay were not to be intended of simple plea of non-tenure, but of non-tenure with a disclaimer, as appears somewhat in Litten and Gay upon the simple plea of non-tenure, supposing the tenant hath no freehold, but a recovery in fee, the defendant shall not be referred to the fees for, no thing is disproved by the simple plea of non-tenure but only the freehold; which may be true, and yet be the recovery in fee; but when the parties disclaim or plead non-tenure, and disclaims, the defendant shall be referred to the whole, because he hath disclaimed the whole. 3 Lev. 330. 2 Lott. 963. S. P.

Non dedit, i.e. No such intail, is a good plea in bar of all formidams, and it may be pleaded by the voucheer. C. Lott. 324. B. Booth 163.

To a former plea in remainder may be pleaded in bar an affirmance, made by another long before the donor in the court had any thing, and that the tenants are heirs to the first intail. B. Booth 164.

A remitter may be pleaded in bar, as thus; that the donee was feised in fee, and being an infant made a foeman to the donor, who gave the land to the infant in tail, by which he was remitted, whole effate the tenant hath. B. Booth 164.

If in a foro in remainder the tenant pleads infancy, and that the remainder defended to him, and prays his age; and the demandant pleads that the foro in remainder did not defend to him, and therupon issue is joined, and found for the demandant, a final judgment shall be given notwithstanding the infancy of the tenant. Lev. 163. 1 Sid. 118. 232. S. C.

The tenant may plead that the demandant, at the day of the purchase of the foro, was feised of the lands for which the foro in remainder was brought, but in such plea he must shew of what estate. Vinc 23. Dyer 137. b. pl. 26.

It is held as a rule, that nothing can be pleaded in abatement to this action after a view, but what arises upon the view. 3 Lev. 319.

A bastard plea and lineal warranty, with affets, by defendant, may be pleaded in bar to a foro in remainder in defendant. So a collateral warranty, without affets, before the statute 4 & 5 Ann. might be pleaded in bar to such a foro in remainder. 2 Inf. 293. B. Booth 163. See tit. Warranty.

So a common recovery may be pleaded in bar to a foro in remainders or reverter, either with double or single voucher; with fingle, if the tenant to the writ were feised of the estate-tail at the time of the recovery; with double voucher, tho' he were not feised. B. Booth 164.

In a foro in remainder the tenant may plead in bar an exchange between the ancestor of the demandant and he under whom the tenant claims, and that the demandant entered into these lands by such exchange, and takes the profits; and the advice may plead this plea, tho' he be a stranger, for he is privy in estate. B. Booth 165.

For more learning see this subject, fix 12 Vinc. Abr. tit. Formedam.

Formella. A weight of lead of about 72 pounds. Cowell, edit. 1737.

Former affiant. In what cases a good plea to the bringing a new action. Action on the cafe for erecting of a nuisance 20 February; the defendant pleaded a prior action, brought for erecting a nuisance 20 die Martii, and a recovery thereupon, and ever thereto be the fame nuisance and erection. The plaintiff demurred, and judgment against him; for he may have an action for continuing the same nuisance, but can never have a new action for the same erection. Sal. 10. Mich. 10 IV. 3. Vind.

When a record of the same court is pleaded in abatement, and the plaintiff demands order of the record, and 'tis not given him in convenient time, the plea ought not to be received, but the plaintiff may join his judgment, and the rule was, that 'twas the defendant gave order of the record, and judgment should be for the plaintiff. Cart. 454. Trin. 10 IV. 3. B. R.

New contingent damages shall not give a new action in affinities, but there shall be a former form 11 Trin. 13 IV. 3. B. R.

The plaintiff counted upon several promises for work and labour in the parish of St. Mary le Bow in London; the defendant pleaded in abatement, that before this action brought the plaintiff had labelled in the Admiralty for the same cause of action. Upon demurrers it was inscribed for the plaintiff, that this was within the rule of Sparr's cafe, 5 Rep. 62. that a priority of suits, in an inferior court, is no plea to an action brought in any of the courts at Westminster; and the whole court gave judgment against the defendant, quod respondent sufer. C. Lott. 378. B. Booth 163.

The defendant pleads, that the plaintiff brought a former suit for the same matters, which suit is still pending for ought he knows to the contrary. It was inscribed for the plaintiff, that this plea was not good, because the defendant does not positively aver, that there is still pending; and no issue can be taken upon his knowledge to the contrary. But the Maller of the Rolls allowed the plea, because the defendant [plaintiff] ought not to have let it down to be argued; for by that he admits that the former suit is depending; but the plea ought to have been made in court, for examining the case there was a former suit depending for the same matter or not; and said, that there needs no positive averment, that the former suit is still depending, for that is examinable by the maller; and the defendant never swears a plea of a former suit depending, but it is always put in without oath. F. & S. 1624.

The general rule is, that the party shall not be twice vexed for the same cause of action; but then it must appear, that the court first possest the cause had jurisdicdon, and nothing shall be intended to be within the jurisdiction of an inferior court, but that is averred fo to be. Per Eyre, Ch. J. Trin. 5 Gio. 2. Gibb. 314. See 12 Vinc. Abr. tit. Former action.

Formagnus. Signifies the fees taken by a lord of his tenants bound to make in his common oven, as is usual in the Northern part of England, or for permission to use them. See Lutwidge.

Forprifum, (from prifum, from the Sax. prifum, or prifum, an action) Whoredom, the act of incontinency between single persons; for if either party be married, it is a matter. See Lutwidge. The former offense herein was punished with three months imprisonment; the second was made felony by an act made in 1650, cap. 10. Selden's Collection. See Leonoedus.

Forprifus. (From prifum, from the Fr. fs, i.e. extra, and prif, captia,) An exception or reforation: In which the party covenants, to give up a brute of his for the price of it, and so forth; and he may sell it in conveyances and leases, wherein excepted and saveprifed is an usual expression. Forprifus in another sense is taken for any exception, and is the same with forcopium, as appears in Tourn, anno 1385. Tutum pratom, &c. For prifus or preceptus in excubium pro places dextra. Cowell, edit. 1717. Forprifus.

Forshet. Forstken. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Forshet. (From shet, from the Sax. shet, before, feast, a part or portion,) The outer or fore-part of a furlong, the skirt or flip or small piece that lay next the highway.

Forshetker, An attorney or advocate. Cowell, edit. 1727.

FOS

Foster, was a learned lawyer, and Lord Chancellor in the days of Hen. 6. He wrote a book in commendation of our Common law, intitled, De Laudibus Legum Anic. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fowtle, Power, dominion, or jurisdiction. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fouche, or Fontaine plebium, is when many judges are assembled to do it. Si justification fuis judicis di- mitiunt (judicis) sed foamiis terrarum demulti infra excitatium placum tertium competent. Leg. H. c. cap. 29.

Fortifications, To be made on the sea-coast in Corn- wall, c. 4. b. 8.

Land to be purchased for the fortifying Partsmouth, Chatham, and Harwich, 7 Ann. c. 26. 8 Ann. c. 21.

Lands for the fortifications of Plymouth and Chatham were vested in trustees, 31 Geo. c. 2. c. 39. sect. 1.

Compensation given to the proposers, 32 Geo. c. 2. c. 20.

Monies payable to persons under legal disability to receive the same, to be paid over to deputy remembrancer, 33 Geo. c. 2. c. 11. sect. 14.

Lands in Kent, Suffages, and Southampton, on which forts have been erected, vested in trustees, 2 Geo. c. 3. c. 53.

Compensation made to the proposers of those lands, 4 Geo. c. 3. c. 35.

Fortietia, Fortilicet, and Fortilect. (Fortilicium, vel fortilegium, & fortilectum.) Signifies properly a little fort, built or made rather to preserve the person of the owner and his goods, than to underlie a siege. Within the towns and fortilities of Berwick and Carlisle, Stat. 11 Hen. 7. c. 18. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fortijjii, A fortis, or mixt fortis, is an argument of life used by Litton to this purpose: If it be in a feoffment paying a new right, much more is it for the restitution of an ancient right, &c. Litt. Leg. 253, 260.

Fortijlc, (Fr.) Signifies a place of some strength.

Old Nat. Brew. fol. 45.

Fortuna, is that which is called in our law tresatre- trove, i.e. Thesaurum decente fortum insenese, Inquire- rendum et per 12 juratores pro Reg. &c. good seileter praenuntiati, & ornate fortum, abolationes, appelisa. &c. Spelman tells us it signifies fortuus accipiet, Cowell, ed. 1727. See Starebarta.

Fourshe. A long flipp of ground. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Forta, A ditch full of water, where women committing for depoys were drowned, being hanged. Now &c. in annua tenentium fuit omnem ab antiquis legum la- bures suicient, videlicet, servaon, fuliam, furcatis, & flumina. In another fene'sCette taken for a grave. Cowell, ed. 1727. See Fatta.

Follett, Grains cut or mowed for hay. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fortatae operativo. Foole-work, or the service of labouring, done by inhabitants and adjoining tenants for repair and maintenance of the ditches a round a city or town, for which some paid a contribution called fixulation. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fortalita, (Lat.) A ditch, or place fenced with a ditch or trench. Fisualtum in another fene's, is taken for the obligation of citizens to repair the city ditches. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fortallum, The same with Folallum. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fortallum. (Folstalum) A small ditch. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fortallum, (from futs, digged.) Was once all of the four principal highways of England, to called, be- cause supposed to be digged and made passable by the Romans, and having a ditch on one side. Cowell, ed. 1727. See Wallingford-street.

Forterland, I Land given, sifeged or set forth for finding of food or vétuals for any monasteries, for the monks &c. Cowell, ed. 1727.

FRA

Follettenc, Nutiall gifts, which we call a jointure; from the Six. fisur-leum, clarum exhibitis, that is, a fiupend which the wife hath for her maintenance. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fother, or Fother, (from the Toetonic fides,) Is a weight of lead, containing eight pigs, and every pig one-and-twenty stone and a half, which is about a ton, or a common wain or cart-load. Speight in his At- tribution upon the law, to the 17. and 18. of Hen. 3. tells that the weight of a field of lead, which is there laid to 2000 weight; as the mines 'tis 2000 weight and a half; among the ploughers at London 1500 and a half. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fouencl, A weight of lead of ten stone or seventy pounds. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fowderate, To carry away fodder, to forage. Fict. lib. 3. c. 41. para. 13.

Foundation, The founding of a college or an hospital, is called Foundation, quasi fundari, or fundamentari- basis. Co. Rep. 10. See College, Hospital, Founda- tories.

Founder, (from fonder, to pour out,) Is he that melteth metals, and makes: any thing of it, by calling it into a mould, 17. Eliz. c. 2. cap. 1. We also say, That whoever builds and endows a college or hospital is the founder. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Founding-hospital. See Hospital.

Foundating, To fawn as a deer. Quis venantia isse in foro, or isse damnati fuisse fortuit. Fulta, lib. 2. cap. 41. para. 23.

Fourth, (Fr. Frazerie, to delay, put off, prolong) Signifies a putting off, prolonging, or delaying of an action. In the Nature of Wills, cap. 43, are these three words, “Joint-tenants shall not more four and but only shall have one effe.” &c. And in last, Ed. 1. cap. 10. it is used in the same sense; “ The defendants shall be put to answer without fourething,” 23 Hen. 6. c. 2. See 2 part. Litt. fol. 250.

Fourth, (in Latin ‘tis called farceous, and signifies, where a man and his wife, or each of them, canst an effe, then ‘tis called farceous, because ‘tis twofold, Caesat ur & mulier implectantur, quaemEat effenius alternas alteram comparat, quamulius fur- care poffit; & cum ultra non poffit, conuersum eum effe- niam in juxta ficta; altera eum tantum omnium effe- niam de multisibus haberi poffit. Hengham Mag. cap. 9. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fourgeld, or Folcled, (from the Sax. fis, pet, and geldion, filletor, i.e. pedes redempti) Signifies an amercement for not cutting out the balls of great dogs feet in the forest. See Credited. And to be quit by pay of a flat foldgel is a nickname, to keep dogs within the forest, undawed, without punishment or fine, of the king's justice's jurisd. fol. 197. Montesqu. part. 1. pag. 86. This privilege was always allowed in Anf. Feriat. de Piebrich. 10 Ed. 3.

Frauation. The law makes no fraction of a day; and therefore if a person dies of a wound he received the year and day shall be computed from the beginning of the day on which the wound was given, and not from the precise minute or hour. 2 Haw. P. C. 163.

An act of record will not admit any division of a day, but it is to be divided the first instant of the day, Arg. and judgment accordingly. Psych. 23 Ed. 16. 137.

If the King's tenant pays his rent upon the day, the King's succesor shall have it paid over again; though otherwise it is in case of a common person. Mich. 17. Fac. 16. Rep. 17. c. 4 Ed. 35.

In perplexation of law, when a thing is to be done upon one day, all that day is allowed to do it in, for the avoiding of fractions in time, which the law admits not of.
of, but in case of necessity, Per Roll. Ch. J. Sti. 119.
Trin. 2 d Cor. B. R.
Bishop collates the same day that he dies, his successor shall present. Arg. Hard. 24.
Insuring for H.'s life; H. died on the last day; per Holt Ch. J. the law makes no fraction in a day; yet, in this, we make no fraction of the coming day, and before the end of the last day, the insurer is liable, because the insurance is for a year, and the year is not complete till the day be over; yet, if A. be born on the 3d day of September, and on the 2d day of September, 21 years afterwards he makes his will, this is a good will, for the law will make no fraction of a day, and by consequence he was of age. 2 Saiz. 629. Trin. 11 H. 3. B. R. at Allithill, per Holt, Ch. J. in Sir Robert Howard's cafe.

France or engines for flockings and frame-work knitters. Penalties for exporting frames or engines for flockings, &c. H. 8. W. c. 3. Fr. fac. 8. Frame-work knitters are within 12 Geo. 1. Concerning combinations of workmen, 12 Geo. 1. c. 34. sect. 8.

Framepale fences. Are such fences as any tenant in the manor of Writtle in Essex hath against the lord's demesne; whereby he hath the wood growing on the fence, and may use them as he can possibly use the top of the ditch with the hulse of his own, towards the repair of his fence. Chief Justice Brapton, whilf he was a praficrt and stewart of this court, acknowledged he could not find out the reason why these fences were called framepale. It may come from the Sax. scenful, pro- ffe, or may be contraction of framepale, because the roles are free for the tenant to take. Cowell, edit. 1777.

Franche. The realm and people of England shall not be subject to the King or kingdom of France, 14 Ed. 3. fl. 5. Commerce with France prohibited, 3 & 4 Ann. c. 13. Entering into the French King's military service as a commission to a non-commission officer, without leave under the sign manual, made felony, 29 Geo. 2. c. 17. No virtuals to be exported from the plantations during the war with France, except to Great Britain or Ireland, or of some of the plantations, 30 Geo. 2. c. 9.

Francifco (liberti libertatis) A free man. Scinti me defideci, vom villani & fratriciani, nomine hamone, & com tenueis eorum, Gr. Charta H. 4. 2. in M. Mon. Angl. 1 par. fol. 442. b. And in Domfoyle we find franci bome used for a freeman. Cowell, edit. 1777.

Francifco royal, 15 R. 2. c. 4. and 2 H. 5. c. 7. in fine, feemeth to be where the King's writ runs not, as Chipher, Durborn, &c. which are called Seignioris royal, Anna 21 H. 3. 4. And formerly Thomas and Examples in Northumberland. The authority of the New Terms of the Law faith, That a francifco royal is, where the King granteth to one and his heirs, that they shall be quit of toll, or such like. Cowell, edit. 1777. Francifco is a royal privilege in the hands of a subjefit. Fin. 38. Francifco royal shall not protect felon, St. Wulfm. 1. 3 Ed. 1. c. 9.

Questions of non-ubber and abuser of liberties, shall be diculuted by the treasurer and barons with the affiftance of the other judges, St. fereia conciff. 13 Ed. 1. fl. 6. liberty confirmed that had been long used, St. Sote warr. 18 Ed. 1. fl. 7.

Inquisitions to be taken before granting liberties, St. de libertat. perquirendent. 2 Ed. 1. fl. 2.

Hundreds, &c. shall not be let at too great lani, Artic. super cart. 28 Ed. 1. cap. 14.
How procefs shall be awarded on the plea of a deed, &c. made within a franchife, 9 Ed. 3. fl. 1. c. 4.
Liberties restraining the freedom of merchandize, against the common utility, and void, 2 R. 2. fl. 1. c.
Where lords are named diffiders in affifts to ouft them of their franchife, the writ shall abate, 9 H. 4. c. 5. or where default is made by collusion, 8 H. 6. c. 25.

Proper of pardoning treason and felonies, and other liberties re-united to the crown, 27 H. 8. c. 24.

Franchifies of the late abbess revived, 32 H. 8. c. 12. Clerk of the crown prohibited to issue procefs on inquisitions for felonies good, &c. against lords, &c. who have had their charters annulled and allowed, 4 & 5 W. 4. &c.

Patentees may inrol so much of their charters as concerns the particular liberties claimed, 4 & 5 W. 4. & M. c. 22.

Sheriff full upon request name a deputy to refide in a franchife, 13 Geo. 2. c. 15. sect. 6.

Confable jurisdictions in Scotland refused, 20 Geo. 2. c. 43.

For more learning on this subject, see 21 Vin. Abr. tit. Franchifies.

Franchise, Was the general appellation of all foreigners, unless they could prove themselves to be Englishmen, 15 Ed. 3. c. 41.

Frank, Was a French coin worth about a French flilling; but in computation was twenty fähls, which is a libere, or pound, and about twenty pence in our money. Cowell, edit. 1777.

Frankalmoin, (Libera Eledomenia) Signifies a ten-ure or title of land or tenements befowed upon God, that is. given to such people as devote themselves to the service of God, for pure and perpetual alms; whence the feodors or givers cannot demand any terribral service, so long as the land, &c. remain in the hands of the feeholders. With this agree the Grand Coutumney of Normandy, cap. 32. See Braddon, la. c. 5. & 10. and F. N. B. fol. 211. Britton makes another kind of this land, given in alms, but not in free alms. As if an abbe, &c. holds lands of his lord for certain divine service to be done, as to sing every Friday a mass, or do some other thing; and if such divine service be not done, the lord may diltrain; and in such case the abbe ought to do fealty to the lord; and therefore it shall not be said a tenure in frank-almoine, but a tenure by dedication. For then it cannot be said it is not a certain service as is required in ancient demesne according to the custum of the manor. And again, in the same book, fol. 14. there is a note to this effect, that the lands which were in the hands of King Edward the Con- feffer at the making of Domfoyle-book, is ancient demesne, and that all the rest of the realm is called frank- feer, whereas Fitzherbert agrees in Nat. Frev. fol. 161. so that by this rule all the land in the realm is Frankland (Firma litora) is kind or tenement, where the nature of fee is changed by feoffment out of knight's-service for several yearly services, and whencesoever neither homage, wolfip, marriage, nor relief may be demanded, nor any other service not contained in the feoffment. Britton, op. 66, num. 3. See Ferefringe.

This was called frank-pledge, without the circuit deemed demo, because it commonly consisted of ten households, and every particular person, thus mutually bound for himself and his neighbours, was called decennier, because he was of one decennon or another. This cultum was so loved that the thieftis at every county-court did, from time to time, to the oaths of young or otherwise attained the age of fourteen years, and fee that they were comprised in some dozen; wherupon this branch of the thief's authority was styled Fista frank pliagi, View of frankplege. See the statute for view of frank-pledge, made 18 Ed. 3. See also Deditio, Lec, Clitw of frankplege, and Frangipani.

We borrowed this cultum of the Lombards, manifestly appears in the second book of Feda, cap. 5. Upon which read Helmant, &c.

What articles were wont to be inspected in this court, in Heri's Mirror of Justice, 1. cap. de the seate des franknerfs; and but these articles were in former times, see in Feda, lib. 2. cap. 8, and 9. See also
lib. 73.

In an ancient charge of the inquest of wardships, in every ward in London, it is said, and if there be any person within the ward that is under frank-pledge, that is to say, under land and tone, &c. This may also be seen in Bract, lib. 3. trac. De coron, cap. 16, viz. Omnes homini free liber, free servir, out of vel ab intest off en franks aut de dominis mancipiis, fit alquius ipsius item domini fuus, qui non pro tene ad omnem quam ad aliun, vel quod habuisset quod sufficiente pro trango-plegio, fist dignitatis, vel ordinis, vel liberum tenementum, vel in ciuitate rem annulamenti, Grewell, ed. 1727.

Franktenements. A pollution of freedhold lands and tenements. See Freehold.

Frauletta. A wood or woody ground. 1. inf. fol.
4. 8. I take it to be a corruption of fraxintinum, a wood where ash grows.

Frateria. A fraternity, brotherhood, or society of religious perfons, who were mutually bound to pray for the good health and life, &c. of their living brethren, and the souls of those that were dead. In the flat tes of the cathedral church of St. Paul's in London, collected by Ralph Baldock, deed, 1215. there is one chapter De fraterbn benedictis & S. Paul, &c. Grewell, edit. 1727.

Fraternity. Is some people of a place united to gether in respect of mercy and benefits into a company,
and their laws and ordinances cannot bind strangers,
for they have not a local power or government.

Fratres uniuersiti. A bland and brother; so Mulvpyr uses it; and so is used in old deeds. Grewell, edit. 1727.

Fratres. The fons of two brothers. Succipi fratrices et regnas, &c. Grewell, edit. 1727.

Fratres conjuxi. Are fourt brothers or companions.
Similes, Dunton, p. 81, 109, 203, and Howen.
Dun. pag. 445. Sometimes they are so called who were sworn to defend the King against his enemies. Leg. IV. 1.
cap. 59. Praecipuius aut omnes liberis benefici sunt fratres conjurati ad moriarum caput & regni regnum contra inimicos nostrorum principis. &c. Grewell, ed. 1. cap. 35.

Fratres, gites. Were friars wearing their black and fleece garments. They are mentioned in Walsingham, pag. 124.
Viz. In quadam carceri qui fuerat quidam fratres quos fiercipes vocatur appellantes.

Fratricius. Is that part of the inheritance which comes to the eldest brother; whatever they polic'd of the father's estate, they polic'd it in their own names, and are to do homage to the elder brother for it, because he is bound to do homage for the whole to the superior lord.
lord.

Fraud. (Frauds.) Is deceit in grants and conveyances of land, and bargains and sales of goods, fraud, covin, collusion and deceit, are often used as synonymous words, and in whatever shape or form they appear in, are always deemed odious in the eye of the law.

If fraud, covin, bringing false evidence is punishable, by being committed in the course of a legal transaction, and to the prejudice of another.

1. What acts are deemed fraudulent in the courts of Law, the not within the express provision of any act of parliament.

2. What acts are deemed fraudulent in the courts of equity.

3. Of fraudulent conveyances to defeat creditors and purchasers within the limits 13 & 27 Elizabeth.

4. Other frauds relating to frauds and offenses committed upon them.

5. In what court the fraud is punishable, and in what courts the wrong-doer is further punishable than by making void the fraudulent act.

1. What acts are deemed fraudulent in the courts of Law, the not within the express provision of any act of parliament.

Here it may be laid down as a general rule, that without the express provision of any act of parliament, all deceitful practices in defrauding or endeavouring to defraud another of his known right, by means of false and deceitful device, contrary to the plain rules of common honesty, are condemned by the common law, and punishable according to the heinousness of the offence.

Dyer 295.

As causing an illiterate person to execute a deed to his prejudice, by reading of it over to him in words different from those in which it was written, 1 Sid. 312.

So if one perjures a woman to execute writings to another as her truftee, upon an intended marriage, which in truth contained no such thing, but only a warrant of attorney to convey a judgment, 1 Ed. 4.

Alfo it is a rule, that a wrongfull manner of executing a thing shall avoid a matter that might have been executed lawfully.

As if a man, that has a right of action to certain lands, by covin causes another to out the tenant of the land to the intent to recover it from him; and he recovers accordingly against him by action tried, yet he shall not be recovered to his ancient right, but is in the estate of the man who was the outher. 41 Ed. 28. 44 Ed. 29. 1 Rol. Abr. 420. 549.

If one so manifies another of land, to which a woman hath title of dower of covin, and with content of the woman, to the intent to endow her, and he endows her in the country accordingly, yet this is of no effect against the dower, but he may outher him because of the covin. 44 Ed. 29. 1 Rol. Abr. 459.

If goods are sold in a market-over, by covin, between two, on purpose to bar him that has a right, this shall not bar him thereof. 2 East. 713.

As to frauds in contracts and dealings, the common law subjects the wrong-doer, in several instances, to an action on the covenant; as a person having the possession of goods tells them to another, affirming them to be his own, when in truth they are another's, an action on the covenant. 1 Rol. Abr. 90. 1 C. R. 474.

But if A. poifelled of term for years, offers to sell it to B. and says, that a stranger would have given him twenty pounds for this term, by which means B. buys it, the' in truth A. was never offered twenty pounds, no action on the covenant, the B. being thereby deceived in the value. 1 Rol. Abr. 91. 101. 1 Sid. 446. 1 East. 20.

But if on a treaty for the purchase of a house, the defendant affirms the rent to be thirty pounds per annum, whereas in truth it is but twenty pounds, and thereby the plaintiff induced to give to much more than the house is worth, an action on the covenant; for the value of the rent is the matter that lies in the private knowledge of the landlord and tenant, and if they affirm the rent to be more than it is, the purchaser is cheated, and ought to have a remedy for it. 1 Ed. 211. 1 Lev. 156. 1 Sid. 146. 1 Ed. 510. 518. 522. S. P. adjudged.

If a visitor fells wine, which he warrants to be good and not corrupted, or if a person fells any commodity which he warrants to be good, if it proves otherwise, an action on the covenant lies against him. 1 H. 6. 18.

If A. is employed by B. to fail from England to the Indies, and covenants that he or his servants will not hereafter import any cullie, and A. retains C. as his servant in this voyage, and acquaints him with the covenants; and whatsoever C. thereby and fraudulently brings thence and delivers, shall be an action against C. for the naked action lies by a matter for a base breach of his contract, yet if a servant does any thing falsely and fraudulently to the damage of his master, an action will lie. 1 Sid. 298. 2 Rol. 88. 3 C. 1 Lev. 138.

If A. be excommunicated, and the letters of excommunication are brought to the parson of the parish to be read and published in the church against A. and the parson having notice to B. infers his name instead of the name of A. and promesses him excommunication, an action on the covenant lies. 1 Rol. Abr. 100. 6 C. 895.

If a man clafles the estate of another into the lands of f. whereby he is subject to the action of f. an action on the covenant lies against him. 1 Rol. Abr. 100. 101. 4 C. 525. 3 C.

If a grantee against B. and J. S. with an intent to defeat him of the benefit of it, persuades B. to acknowledge a judgment against a stranger, to whom in truth he owed nothing, and thereupon his goods are taken in execution, & A. may bring an action on the covenant against J. S. on this fraud and combination. Carith. 3. 4.

Brings lands alienated to another, shall be an action against C. for the naked action lies by a matter for a base breach of his contract, yet when the covin appears upon the return of the diligent the land so alienated shall be extended. 1 Rol. Abr. 549.

If a man makes a feoffment to the use of his fon, an infant, and not in consideration of marriage, & A. and B. are conveyed covenants to make a provision for which he is attainted, this land shall be forfeited; for the feoffment was fraudulent against the King. 2 Rol. Abr. 34.

But if the seoffment had been made in pursuance of an agreement entered into before, by which it was agreed in consideration of his wife's settling her lands in such manner, that he would also settle his lands on his fon; this it terms is not fraudulent, but good against the King. 2 Rol. Abr. 34.

A. being in Neville for a robbery makes a bill of sale of all his goods, to the intent to make a provision for his son, and is afterwards convicted and executed; and in an action of trover bought by the fon against the sheriff of London, it was held by Holt C. J. That the bill of sale was fraudulent; for tho' a bithe bona fine, and for valuable consideration, had been good, because the party had a property in the goods till conviction, and ought to be reasonably sustained out of them, yet this conveyance is fraudulent at common law, for it cannot be intended to any other purport than to prevent a forfeiture, and fraudulent the King. Skin. 357.

A man comes by hostages carried out of London, and had no caufe to leave that prison, but by his covin; it was ordered, that he should be in execution till he had paid the debt recovered against him after the writ brought, and that after he should be remanded to answer the plaintiffs there. 1 Rol. Abr. 519. 4 C. Car. 128.

Hence
Hence it appears, that the making use of the proceeds of the law is not only a fraud, but an aggravation of the offence;
as if a person intending to steal a horse takes out a relevin,
and thereby has the horse delivered to him by the thief,
or if one intending to rifle goods, gets physical possession of them, by the force of a judgment obtained, without any of the least colour of title, upon false affidavits, &c. 2 Inst. 188.
H. P. C. 63. Kel. 43. 1 Sid. 254. Royn. 276.
If A. on a quirrel with B. tells him, that he will not strike him, but that, by giving him part of his goods to his pretended second wife, if he eludes the law, accordingly B. meets him the next day in the road to the fame town, and affulls him, whereupon he fights, and
A. kills him; he is guilty of murder, for he shall not clude the judge of the law by such a pretence to cover his malice. H. P. C. 48.
1 Hawk. P. C. 81.
If B. challenge A. and A. refuse to meet him; but in order to evade the law, tells B. that he shall go the next day to such a town about his business, and accordingly B. meets him the next day in the road to the same town, and affulls him, whereupon they fight, and
A. kills him; he is guilty of murder, unless it appear by the whole circumstances, that he gave B. such information to confer the opportunity of fighting. 1 Hawk. P. C. 81.
If a person takes a lodging in a house, under the coourse thereof to have the opportunity of rifling it, and to elude the judge of the law, by endeavouring to keep out of the letter of it, by gaining a pollution of the goods, with the help of false affidavits, and concealing the thing as any other felon, inasmuch as his whole intention was to defraud the law. Kel. 24, 81. 1 Shaw.
50, 51.
A man takes a wife, and afterwards marries another,
his full wife living, and by giving part of his goods to his pretended second wife; if it seems this is a fraudulent gift within 13 Eliz. and by the Common Law too, with respect to creditors, because made without any valuable consideration; for the second pretended marriage is so far from coming under the notion of a consideration, that it is merely a contract. 2 Lem. 25.
A man has a judgment for a jilt debt against A. and takes out a false facias, and gets the thief to feize the goods, but would not let him proceed further, but suffers the goods to remain in the custody of A. the debtor,
B. who has also a judgment against A. for a jilt debt, takes out a false facias, and the question was, whether he could seize upon the goods; and it was held per cur*.
That he might, for the former was a fraudulent execution, and the thief might very well return nulla bona upon it. Farf. 37.
If B. be the judgment in debt against J. S. and he suffers himself to be outlawed for felony with an intent to defraud his creditors, and afterwards he purchases his pardon and hath restitution, the creditor may well take execution for this apparent fraud. Dray 245.
2. What acts are deemed fraudulent in the courts of equity.
It is clearly agreed, that all covins, frauds and deceits, for which there is no remedy by the ordinary course of law, are properly cognizable in equity; and it is admitted, that the main fraud were one of the chief branches to which the jurisdiction of Chanery was originally confined. 4 Litt. 84.
But as every case on this head depends so much upon its own circumstances, it will be difficult to range them in any other order than by inferring the most remarkable cases, where the benefit of the parties have been relieved against fraud and impostion.
2 Dac. Ab, 597.
As where A. being tenant in tail, remainder to his brother B. in tail, A. not knowing of the intail, makes a fetlement on his wife for life for her jointure, without leaving a third of her bene which was to be given to the intail ingrofes, but does not mention any thing of the intail, because, as he confided in his answer, if he had spoke any thing of it, his brother, by a recovery, might have cut off the remainder, and barred him;
and alfo after the death of A. B. recovered in eject-ment against the widow by force of the intail; yet the was relieved in Chanery, and a perpetual injunction granted for this fraud in B. in concealing the intail, which if it had been disclosed, the fetlement might have been made good by a recovery. Proc'd. Chanc. 35.
Purch v. B. 2 Lem. 259. S. C. and affirmed in the house of lords.
So where a mother being absolute owner of a term, the same being limited to her in tail, is present at a treaty for her son's marriage, and hears her son declare, that the term was to go to him to his mother's death, and is a witnes to the deed, which is, after, to be entered, that the term is settled on the issue of the marriage after the mother's death, and she was compleated in equity to make good the fetlement. 2 Vern. 150.
If A. by a marriage-fetlement being tenant for life of a certain mill, remainder to his heir for tail, and the son who knows of the fetlement, encorages a person to take a lease for thirty years of those mills, and to lay out considerable fums of money in new building and improving them, in order to reap the advantage thereof after his father's death; this is such a fraud and practice, as ought to be fully convicted in equity; and it was theredeto was decreed in this case, that the father should collec-
the residue of the term that remained unexpired after the father's death. 1 Vern. 357.
So where a younger brother, having an annuity of 200l. per annum, charged on lands by his father's will, said to belong to himself, to the value of 120l. S. C. is encouraged to purchase of the elder brother, who told him, that though he had heard that there was a fetlement which had invested those lands out of which it fitted, that yet he had constantly paid this annuity, as also 2500l.
charged by the same will to his filters; and the elder brother afterwards gets the fetlement into his hands, and endeavouring thereby to avoid payment of this annuity, it was decreed in favour of the purchaser, purely that the annuity should still be paid on the encouragement given by the elder brother. 1 Vern. 136. Bibb and North. 2.
So where lands in mortgage running through three decents, and the peron intitled to redeem, not know-ning how much was due for the interest, is informed by the heir of the mortgage that it was considerably les-than really it was; whereupon he settles it upon his marriage, which is, after, to be voided by a statute; but that those who derive under this fetlement should redeem accordingly, without being obliged to pay the sum con-
If A. has a prior intailment to an estate, and is a witnes to a subsequent mortgage, but does not disclose his own intailment; this is such a fraud in him, for which his intailment shall be polpned. 2 Vern. 151.
Clare and Earl of Bedforde, cited to have been decreed.
So where a councell having a facias from A. advices B.
to lend A. 1000l. on a mortgage, and draws the mortgage, with a covenant against all incumbrances, and conceals his own facias; and it was held, that the facsate should be polpned to the mortgage. 1 Vern. 376.
Druyer v. Baldwin.
So if A. being about to lend money to B. on a mortgage for 200l. the intailment of D. had a prior mortgage, whether he bad any incumbrance on the mortgage, after, if it be proved that C. went to him accordingly, and that D. denied that he had any, D.'s mortgage shall be So if A. having a mortgage on a leasehold estate, lends the mortgage deed to the mortgage, with an intent to borrow more money; that is such a fraud in the mortgagee, for which his mortgage shall be polpned to the subsequent intailment. 2 Vern. 726. Peter and Ruff-} sel Mor. Eq. 321. S. C.
If a mortgagee, who being in the possesstion intending to obtain the greatest part of his estate to his godson, and the othother part to his wife, is persuaded by the wife to nominate her for the whole, on a promiss that she would give the godson the part deigned for him, it will be decreed against the wife on the point of fraud, though there was no memorandum thereof in writing purporting to the statute of frauds and perjuries. Preced. Chanc. 3. Drumright and Baines.

So where the defendant, on a treaty of marriage for himself and another with the plaintiff, signed a writing composing the terms of the agreement, and afterward declining to elude the force thereof, and to lose his by agreement, ordered his daughter to put on a good humour, and get the plaintiff to deliver up that writing, and then marry him, which he accordingly did, and the defendant, by act of a free to see them go, by a contract to be married; and the plaintiff was relieved on the point of fraud. Abr. Eq. 29. Holberg and Mellot. 2 Veh. 373. S. C.

The plaintiff’s wife, before her inter-marriage with the plaintiff, being polled a term for years, as executrix to her father in law, and which was liable as alleles, to the payment of his debts, in order thereto, and to raise money for that purpose, the plaintiffs, after their marriage, entered into an agreement with the defendant for sale of the house in question, for the residue of the term, for 450l. whereas 210l. was to be applied in discharge of a mortgage therefor to one J. S. and the remaining 240l. was to be paid to the plaintiffs; accordingly the plaintiff executed an affidavit of the house to the defendant, with a receipt indorsed thereon for the whole purchase-money, but the defendant did not then pay the purchase-money, but gave in due time the payment thereof to J. S. the mortgagee, and of the remaining 240l. to the plaintiff; and for the non-payment thereof the plaintiffs brought their bill to have a specific performance and payment of the money accordingly; the defendant, by his answer, admitted the whole cafe to be true as set forth; but insisted, that he ought not to be bound thereby, for that the plaintiffs could not make him a good title, they having by articles before marriage agreed to settle this house for the benefit of themselves and their issue, of which he had no notice at the time of his purchase; and for a discovery of these articles, and to have up his demand of the balance of the house, the defendant brought his cross bill; the plaintiffs by their answer admitted there were such articles, but insisted, that the house lying in Middlesex, those articles were never registered in the Middlesex office, and therefore void as against the plaintiff; but on a hearing at the Rolls, the whole of the Rolls decreed the bill as good, and the plaintiffs dispossessed; and on the cross bill decreed the note given for the purchase-money to be delivered up on a re-assignment of the house, and the plaintiff in that case likewise to have his title, by reason of the plaintiff’s fraud in concealing the articles; which decree was affirmed by Lord Chancellor Lory. Abr. Eq. 35. Beniff vs. Smith.

So in a case between two purchasers of lands in Yorks, where the second purchaser having notice of the first purchase, but that it was not registered, went on and purchased the same estate, and got his purchaser registered; yet it was decreed, that having notice of the first purchase, though it was not registered, bound him, and that his getting his own purchase first registered was a fraud; the device of these acts being only to give the parties notice, who might otherwise without such registry be in danger of being impeded upon by a prior purchaser or mortgage, which they are in no danger of when they have notice thereof in any manner, though not by registry. Abr. Eq. 358. Blade and Blade.

A. failing in his trade, compounded with his creditors at so much in the pound, to be paid at the time therein mentioned; and he having failed in payment at the preordained time, some of the creditors, being acquainted with the agreement, and being holding under hand and seal, he brought his bill to compel a performance thereof; but it appearing in the cause that A. to draw in the rest of the creditors, had made an under-hand agreement with some of them, who were feigningly to accept of the composition, to pay A. 300l. on the first and second, and which A. had not been his younger children, promising to do for them himself; this is such a fraud, for which equity will decree the heirs to give them such provision.
vifin himself. Prcsod. Chanc. 4. Chamberlain's case, cited to have been decreed.

So where tenant in tail is prevented by the infe in tail from suffering a recovery, in order to provide for younger children, by his provisiou to do for them himself; equity will compel him to do it after his father's death. Prcsod. Chanc. 5.

If a mother having a right to dower, to encourage a marriage of her son to A. B. releases her dower, and the relation is known to the wife and her relations, it shall bind the mother, though the release was obtained by a fraudulent suggestion. 1 Vern. 19, 20, 31, 32.

If a man charges lands in D. with a portion for a daughter by a first'vender, and then marries, and fetties part of those lands for the jointure of a female, who marries, and the charge of the portion is fettied as the jointure; that the portion would take place of the jointure, by will give others lands in lieu thereof, and the wife combines with her son, who is heir to A. to defeat this fettilement and provisiou on the daughter, by adhering to her jointure, and insisting, that the provisiou on the daughter was voluntary and fettilement to her; and that therefore she was not bound to accept of the devise; the daughter will be relieved in equity. 1 Vern. 219.

A widow can take a deed of settlement of her estate, and make a will over to her husband, who was not provisiou to such fettilements; and it appearing to the court, that it was in confiance of her having such estate, that the husband married her, the court fct aside the deed as fraudulent. 2 Chanc. Rep. 81. Howard and Hooker.

But where a widow took a mortgage on a second bond, and fettied over the greetest part of her estate to trustees, in trust for her children by her former husband; and tho' it was infilled, that this was without the privity of the husband, and done with a deling to cheat him, yet the court thought that a widow may thus provide for her children before the put herself under the power of a husband; and it being proved that 8000l. was thus fetted, and that the husband had preffured the deed, he was decreed to pay the whole money, without directing any account. 1 Vern. 408. Hunt and Mathews.

3. Of fraudulent conveyances to defeat creditors and purchasers within the statute 13 & 14 Elizabeth.

It being the Common law, if a man had a right and title to a thing, or a just debt owing to him, he might transfer it to any other person, and disavow it to the defrider of that right or debt; as if a man had a right to goods, and be that had them sold them by covin in a market-ovett, to alter the property of them; or if one paffed away goods to deceefe a creditor, these acts might have been fet aside; but if the gift were precedent to the right and title, then there was no way in such case to fet aside the conveyance. 3 Co. 83. Mor. 638. Dyer 295.

Ca. Litt. 290. a. b.

But now, by the 13 Eliz. cap. 5. 4. For the avoiding and abolishing of frauds, covious and fraudulent fcoffments, gifts, grants, alienations, conveyances, bonds, suits, judgments and executions, as well of lands and tenements as of goods and chattels, now of late more commonly practised than heretofore; which fcoffments, gifts, grants, alienations, conveyances, bonds, suits, judgments, and executions, have been and are devised and contrived of malice, fraud, covin, collusion or guilt, to the end, purpose, and intent to defray, hinder, or defraud creditors and others of their just and lawful actions, suits, debts, accounts, damages, penalties, forfettitures, heritages, mortuaries and reliefs, not only to the let or hindrance of the due course or execution of law and justice, but also to the overthrow of all true and plain dealings, bargaining and chevalie.

It is therefore enacted, that all and every fcoffments, gifts, grant, alienation, bargain and conveyance of lands, tenements, hereditations, goods and chattels, or of any of them, and of any sort of money or goods, chattels, or other chattels, or of any of them, by writing or other

Vol. II. No. 80.
ments or hereditaments, or any part or parcel thereof, to any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, for any money or other good consideration paid or given, (the said first conveyance; and as consideration for the said land and premises, and for the said grant, or by them or them revised, made void, or altered, according to the power and authority referred or expressed unto him or them, in and by the said fictitious conveyance, affinities, gift, grant, etc.) that then the said former conveyance, affinities, gift, demesne and tenements, and all land, lands, and hereditaments to after bargained, sold, conveyed, demised or charged, against the said bargains, vendees, leasors, grantees, and every of them, their heirs, successors, and assigns, and against all and every person and persons, who shall at any time have by, from, or under them, or any of them, shall be deemed, taken, and adjudged to be void, frustrate, and of none effect, by virtue and force of this present act.

Provided, that no lawful mortgage made, or to be made bona fide, and without fraud or covin, upon good consideration, shall be recorded or impaired by force of this act, but shall stand in the like force and effect, as the same should have done if this act had never been had or made.

In the construction of these statutes the following opinions have been held.

Where a tenant bonds the tenant pleaded nonparte, upon which they were at issue; and it was found, that before the writ purchased, the tenant enchanted divers persons, with an intent to defraud him who had cause of action to the lands, and notwithstanding the sheriff took the profits; and on this verdict it was adjudged for the defendants, that the act done in the said act was void against him.

Cra. Eliz. 233. Leamard and Bacon.

A. being indebted to B. in 400l. and to C. in 200l. B. brings debt against him, and hanging the writ, A. being polled of goods and chattels to the value of 400l. makes a fictitious conveyance of all the goods and chattels of him then in his possession, to B. in satisfaction of his debt, but notwithstanding continues in possession of them, and sells some of them, and others of them being seized he sells his mark on; and it was resolved to be a fraudulent gift and sale within the 13 Eliz. for that such a sale hath one of the qualifications required in a sale, and is the conveying of an inferior estate, or the conveying of a thing in the nature of an estate; and it is not necessary that the party should have actual possession of the thing conveyed, and the conveyance must be declared by the creditor alone, or in his own name.

It is for the jury to find that the owner continued in possession of his goods after his bill of sale of them, this is an undoubted badge of a fraudulent conveyance, because the possession is the only indicium of the property of a chattel, which is unixed and transferrable, so there are other marks and characters of fraud, as the seller of a chattel, being a person in possession of the same, for it is hardly to be presumed, that a man will strip himself entirely of all his personal property, not excepting his bedding and wearing apparel, unless there were some foetid correspondence and good understanding fetter entered between him and the vendee, for a private occupancy of all or some part of the goods for his support; also a secret manner of transacting such bill of sale and usufrual clauses in it, as that it is made honestly, truly, and bona fide, are marks of fraud and collusion, for such an artful and forced drefs and appearance give a suspicion and fix to the defendant's character.

Cra. Jac. 131, 132.

It is not necessary that he who contrived the debt should make the fraudulent conveyance; for if a man binds himself and his heirs in a bond, and lands depend to his heir, who makes a fraudulent conveyance of those lands, the creditor shall avoid it. 3 Co. 60.

If a person, intending to deceive a purchaser, conveys by deedintroled his lands to the King, and afterwards, for valuable consideration, conveys to J. S. the purchaser shall avoid this conveyance to the King by the 27 Eliz. for although the statute does not by express words extend to the King, yet being a general law, and made for superseding fraud, it shall include him. 2 Co. 54- 11 Co. 74.

So if A. being tenant in tail, remainder to B. in tail or life under an apprehension that A. defees to suffer a recovery, and destroy his remainder, by deed introled conveys his remainder to the King; yet if A. for valuable consideration afterwards by recovery conveys the estate to J. S. and dies without issue, the purchaser shall not avoid this conveyance to the King as fraudulent within the 27 Eliz. 11 Co. 74. 3 8.

In trespass against a bailiff of a manor for disfraining goods, he justified by virtue of his authority, and that by his precept he was commanded to disfrain the goods of J. S. which goods came to the plaintiff's hands by colour of a fraudulent gift of them to the plaintiff on issue, that the sale was made bona fide it was found for for the defendant, and adjudged for him, although it was objected, that he being no creditor could not take advantage of the statute, which being a penal law ought to be construed strictly. Latch 322. Sir Ambrose Tar-well ver. Tippet.

If it is made a fraudulent lease of his lands, with an intent to deceive a purchaser, and dies before he make any conveyance of the lands, and afterwards his son and heirs, knowing or not knowing of this lease, conveys to
j. S. for valuable consideration, j. S. shall avoid this lease within the 27 Eliz. 6 Co. 72. b. & c. 1 Term. 45.
6.
A. has a lease of certain lands for sixty years, if he live so long, and forges a lease for ninety years absolutely, and by indemnity rectifying this forged lease bargains and ells it for valuable consideration, together with the re right to the goods, if in this case A. is not a purchaser within the 27 Eliz. for though there were general words in the sale to pass the true interest, yet it is plain, that it was never contracted for, or originally included in the bargain; so that the bargain being made of an imaginary interest, the bargain and title under the char character of a real purchaser, to defeat the purchaser of the true lease of sixty years, which A. was really posses-

A deed, though it be fraudulent in its creation, yet by matter ex say fate may become good; if one makes a second feoffment to another for valuable consideration, and the feeoffment made to another for valuable consideration, and afterwards the feeoffor alfo, for valuable consideration, makes a second feoffment, the feeoffee of the feeoffee shall hold against the second feoffment of the first feoffor.
1 Bdf. 27. 6.
A. agrees with the East-India company to go as prefident to Bengal, and enters into a bond of 2000 l. penalty for performance of articles; but before he set out he made a feoffment of his estate, and among other things he declared the trust of a term of 1000 years to be made to B. in this case, if B. in this case, if B. in this case, if B. in this case, if B. in this case, if B. in this case, who afterwards married J. S. a gentleman of 1000 l. per ann., who before the marriage was advised by counsel, that the portion was sufficiently secured; and who afterwards on her death had, on her requell, expended 400 l. on her funeral, but never made any feoffment on her; and A.
having afterwards the goods and goods in the corpus under the cha character to a considereable value, the question was, whether this fettlement was voluntary and fraudulent as to them; and it was held to be a prudent and honest provifion, without any colour of fraud; and though in its creation it was voluntary, yet being the motive and inducement to the marriage, it made it valuable. Preced. Chafe. 377.
East-India Company ver. Cleavel.

On the clause of the 27 Eliz. that if a man sells lands to ufe, with a power of revocation, and after wards sells the lands for valuable consideration, that the former ufe shall be revoked; it has been holden, that if a man having a future power of revocation bargains and ells the land before his power commences, yet it is within the act; if the power of revocation be refer-ed with the contenf of A. and he conveys his land, not having revoked, the conveyance shall be good; if one having a power of revocation, extinguishes it by feoffment, and then sells, the sale shall be good. Mor 605.
3 Co. 82. b.
If a gift be made to deceive one creditor, it is void against all creditors; but where-ever a conveyance is founded fraudulent, it must be with respect to real cre ditors and purchasers for valuable consideration. 5 Co.
60. Mor 615.
But thoy a purchaser for valuable consideration within the 27 Eliz. hath notice of a fraudulent conveyance be fore, but is not, and yet after the purchase he shall avoid it; for the statute expressly avows such conveyance, so that whether the purchaser hath notice of them, or not, is not material. 5 Co. 60. Gooche's cafe. Mor 615.
If A. brings an action against B. for lying with his wife, A. affixes his honest truftees in truf to pay the feveral debts mentioned in a schedule, and in case other debts as he should mention within ten days, and A.
recover 5000 l. damage, and brings his bill to set aside this deed as fraudulent, and made to defeat him of his recovery; in this cafe A. can have no other relief but to come in upon the forpus, after the debts mentioned in the schedule, and appointed within ten days pursuant to it, are satisfied, the deed being neither fraudulent in law or equity, A. being no creditor at the time of executing it, and it was confientious in him to prefer his real creditors to one, whole debt, when recovered, was founded only
A. by bill of sale made over his goods to a trustee for
B. who lived with him as his wife, and was so required, and he also purchased a lease of the house wherein he wetl, in the name of a truftee, and declared the trust thereof to himself for life, then in trust for B. during the reduce of the term; and this bill of sale was held fraudulent as to creditors, but as to the declaration of the trust of the term, the court held it good, and not liable to A.'s debts, the term being never in him, and being so truttled at the time it was purchased, and A. might have given the money to B. who might have purchased it for herself, and in her own name. 2 Term. 490. Patter and Lady Lidley.

Fraudulent conveyances and gifts are only void against purchasers and creditors, and shall bind the parties them selves, and their representatives. Caz. Jurf. 270. See
2 And. 175.

And therefore where A. made a fraudulent sale of his goods to B. and delivered possession of some of them in his life-time, and the reft coming to the hands of his ad ministrator, it was held in an action brought by B. for these goods, that the administrator could not plead the statute of Frauds, nor maintain the poffeffion of the goods even to satisfy creditors. Vio. 196. He was
and
and

But if a man makes a deed of gift of his goods in his life-time, by covin, to ouf his creditors of their debts;
yet after his death the vendor shall be charged for them, and the creditor must have his share, c. 5 Eliz. 4. 5.

Where by special verdict it was found, that A. being poffeffed of divers goods to the value of 250 l. by covin, to defraud his creditors, made a gift of his goods to his daughter, upon condition, that upon payment of 201. it should be void, and died; and that J. S. intermeddled with the goods; after which the daughter took pofteffion of them by force of the gift, and then administration was granted to J. S. of all the goods, &c. of A. and in an action against him as executor, it was held, that the goods were not poffeffed by the gift, but A. was apponently fraudulent within the 13 Eliz, and that by his intermeddling, before administration gran ted to him, he became an executor de jure terti, and lia ble as such; and that the law continued the poffeffion in him from the time of his intermeddling to the time of granting administration. Caz. Eliz. 810. Befied
and
and
and
and

Staunton. 2. And. 172. 8. C.

If A. makes a bill of sale to B. a creditor, and after wards to C. another creditor, and delivers poftession at the time of the sale to neither, and after C. gets poftession of them, and B. takes them out of his poffeffion, C. can't maintain trespas, because the first bill of sale is fraudu lent against creditors, and fo is the second; yet they both bind A. and B.'s is the elder title, and the naked pofteffion of C. ought not to prevail against the title of
B. that is prior, where both are equally creditors, and poftession at the time of the bill of sale is delivered over to neither. Trias. 1756. Baker and Lloyd. Par Holt Ch. J.

If a gift be made to deceive one creditor, it is void against all the creditors of the party within the statute.
Mor 615.

4. Other statutes relating to frauds, and acts determined upon them.

Gist, 2. cap. 9. No gift or feoffment of lands or and other goods shall be made by fraud for maintenance; and if any be made, they shall be held no for evasion. And the dishonest shall have their recovery against the first disposers, as well of their lands as of their double damages, without redress to such alterations, so that the defendant commission their forces within the year after the inhabitants, and the said same in every plea of land, where to those elements be made by land, where the fees shall be the only:
Stat. 4, Hen. 4, c. 7. The defendant now owned in mentioned in the statute, and as to the first during his life, so as such defendant take the profits at the time of the suit commenced. And as to other pleas in pais of land, the defendant shall commission his suit within the year against the inhabitants of the freehold at the same time of the said suit, for such freehold to have the profits at the time of the suit commenced.
Stat. 11, Hen. 6, c. 3. In all manner of suits founded upon novel differences, the differences shall have their recovery against the defendants or their feefees, so as they, against whom the suit shall be brought, take the profits, shall be void.
Stat. 29, Car. 2, c. 3. (intitled, An act for prevention of frauds and perjuries.) To all. All leases of freehold or terms of years, or any uncertain interest in any lands, tenements or hereditaments, shall be void, unless the lessor's parts thereof be void, and the fees of only, or by part 1, and not put in writing and signed by the parties making the same or their agents thereto authorized by writing, shall have the force of leases will only, and shall not either in law or equity be taken to have any greater effect; any confirmation for making valid, for writing, c.
Sect. 2. Except leases not exceeding the term of three years from the making, wherein upon the rent referred shall amount unto two thirds parts at least of the improved value.
Sect. 3. No leases, eales or intereles, either of freehold or term of years, or any uncertain interest, not being copyhold or customary interest, of lands or her-editaments, shall be void, unless granted, intended, or being void, or in writing, signed by the parts or their agents thereto authorized, by writing, or open to be void for law.
Sect. 4. No action shall be brought whereby to charge any executor or administrator upon any special promiss to a greater damages out of his own estate, or whereby to charge the defendant upon any special promiss to answer for the debt or default of another, or to charge any perjury in the testimony, or in any agreement made by words signed to any contract or sale of lands or tenements or any interest in them, or upon any agreement that is not to be performed within one year from the making, unless the agreement upon which such action shall be brought, or some memorandum or note thereof shall be written, signed by the defendant, his executors or assigns, and preserved as a record, in the withal, or some other person by him authorized.
Sect. 17. No contract for the sale of goods, for the price of 10l. or upwards, shall be good, except the buyer accept part of the goods, or give something in earnest to bind the bargain, or to some note in writing of the bargain be made and signed by the parties to be charged by such contract, or by their agents lawfully autori-zed.

The plaintiff declares, that in consideration the promised to marry the defendant, he promised to marry him that the bequest of the defendant, and has since married A. B.
which the lease to her damage 1000l. and upon an ofsumptit obtained a verdict for 200l. The defendant moved in arrest of judgment, that this parcel promiss is not good in law. But after argument it was held, that this is not within the meaning of the statute, that such parcel promiss is not only to contracts in consideration of marriage; and that the cafe in 3 Lev. 411. has been contradicted by later jurisdictions. The defendant having married another person, has discharged himself to perform the promiss, and therefore the plaintiff cannot apply to the ecclesiastical to compel this performance. The defendant deceased, but the claim to recover damages here.

The plaintiff married the defendant without any previous settlement of her citation, which was a very con-double parcel of land. Quo warranto harrassed between them from after the marriage, and the defendant his will here, to c compell him to settle her own estate to her private use;

for he, that upon his application, she, then filied on levying the entire undisposed of her own estate, and drew up a bill writing with her own hand to the promiss, that she should deliver her estate to him, he, that he was bound to observe the advice of counsel, and having writ-his part of the statute, that he should have the undisposed of her own estate, and that he never intended the contrary, but that the said command her own fortune
as the plea.

The defendant denied he signed such agreement in writing, and as to any parcel promiss, he pleaded the fact of hands and perjuries, 29 Car. 2, c. 3.

It was inquired on for the plaintiff, that the court fre-cently compels the execution of promiss not solemnized according to that statute, where fraud and trick appear, and where the parts are not entered into execution, as it is here by the marriage, which was the consideration of that promiss. But Perker Lord Chancellor allowed the plea, and said this was a breach of promiss, which is a fact of injury that this court does not take cognizance of, since there is no action at law. But as to execute the real deed of settlement he had impriogned and written, there might have made it a proper case for equity;
but there is nothing of any such deceit: the promiss he made it on his word and promiss, without writing, and that is the very case the statute intended. To say therefore the agreement is to be executed in this court, before performed in part by the marriage, is to break the very words and intention of the statute, which has put this very case, and says it shall not be binding.

The plaintiff afterwards amended her bill for a further charge, that in order to induce her to marry him without a previous settlement, and to accuse the performance of his promiss in executing it afterwards, he promised to execute the factum on the marriage accordingly; that after the marriage he wrote a letter, wherein he promised to make such settlement, and that he was ready to sign the writings according to her desire, and which were part of the agreement he made on entering into execution of the marriage, but says he did not it in compliance with a custom established in the Romish church (of which he was a member) of receiving the factum on their marriages, and to give any faith to this pretended agreement.

And as to the letter, he doth not remember the particulars,
he doth not write any of the alleged copy, and he.
If he sign any writings, it only related to some promiss he had of making a premiss of 1500l. on her, and which he did soon after. He then pleads the fact of frais and perjuries again.

Lord Chancellor: The case is very much altered now, from what it was at first. Then it flowed purely on the parable promiss before marriage, upon which there was no colour to relieve the plaintiff. But such parable promiss on marriage is sufficient consideration, to support a settlement made agreeable to it after marriage. This has been always the practice, and the practice of the court is considered in the statute of annulment, and is in fact to establish a promiss made in writing after a marriage. Now here is great evidence of such a promiss made in writing after marriage; he doth not deny his writing, that he was ready to execute the writings as he declared; but avoids it by saying, they referred to propiss or promises, and wrote nothing in the words withal, or the never defined any such settlement, it does not appear when he did it; and I am very jealous he did it fines the amended bill. His answer to the charge of receiving the factum in confirmation of his promiss, is not at all fallacious. He has had more occasion to promiss the certainty, but on that account; and though he might receive it in compliance with the custom of his church, yet that is very confident with his laying hold of that solemn act of devotion, to testify his sincerity.
Therefore let the plea stand for an answer. \textit{Stron. 336.} \\ \textit{Mich. 6} \textit{Str. 1. Countey Dosterm, of Mountegro v. Max\textit{woll.}} \\
S. agreed to fell affale in land to \textit{O.} and wrote to him to deliver the title deeds to \textit{O.} to be having agreed to dispose of it to him. Afterwards \textit{S.} fold this affale to \textit{D.} who had notice of this transfection: \textit{O.} brought a bill against \textit{S.} and \textit{D.} insisting that the letter brought the cafe out of the statute of frauds and perjuries. But Lord Chancellor held it did not, because the agreement does not appear in it. \textit{Stron. 454. \textit{Leip. 7} \textit{Str. 1. See-}} \\ good v. \textit{Nid.} \\
The defendant before a chariet, and when it was made refused to take it; and in an action for the value, it was objected, that they should prove something given in earnest, or a note in writing, for there was no delivery of any part of the goods. But the Chief Justice ruled this not to be a cafe within the statute of frauds, which relates only to con raças for the actual sale of goods, where the bair is immediately asfurable, without time given him by special agreement, and no fter is to deliver the goods immediately. \textit{Stron. 560. \textit{Hold. 8 \textit{Str. 1. Torsor v. Sir John Olnrane.}} \\
There was a para agreement for a lease of twenty-one years, upon which the lefter entered, and enjoined for fix years, and then the Earl brought a bill against him to oblige him to execute counter-part in full. This letter precedent the statute of frauds and perjuries, which on argument was over ruled, the agreement being in part carried into execution. \textit{Stron. 783. \textit{Mich. 1} \textit{Str. 2.}} \\
By \textit{Haii Ch.} Justice, if \textit{A.} promise \textit{B.} being a for-getfully at \textit{D.} curse \textit{D.} of a wound, he will be his paid; this is only a promise to pay if \textit{D.} does not, and therefore it ought to be in writing by the statute of frauds. But if \textit{A.} promise in such case, that he will be \textit{B.}'s paymaster, whatever he shall determine; it is immediately the debt of \textit{A.} and he is liable without writing. \textit{Lord Raym. 266.} \\
Affirmation of a tradesman's goods as a security for money borrowed to buy those goods, where it shall be valid, though the goods remain in the tradesman's possession, \textit{Lord Raym. 725.} \\
In consideration that the plaintiff would let his horfe to \textit{J. S.} &c. is within the statute; otherwise if it had been in consideration that he would let \textit{J. S.} ride the horfe. \textit{Lord Raym. 1085.} \\
He payed to the care of the plaintiff, he will forbear to for a debtor, is within the statute. \textit{Lord Raym. 1087. \textit{Stron. 873.}} \\
5. in what cafe the court is cognizant; and in what cafe the wrong-doer is further punishable than by making void the fraudulent act. \\
It is clearly agreed, that the court of Chancery had always an original jurisdiction in relieving against frauds, and that at this day it is the only court where matters of fraud are properly cognizable. \textit{2 Fern. 264. 2.} \\
But it hath been doubted, whether a court of equity could give relief on the statutes which make conveyances and dispositions fraudulent against purchasers and creditors, being introductory of new laws, but it is now set-tled, that such relief may be proper in equity, and that directing an affale to be tried in law is only statutory in the court. \textit{Prevcd. Chand. 14. 2 Fern. 264. 476.} \\
\textit{A.} recovers a judgment against the defendant's father, and the plaintiff (the thief of the bailiff) levied 4l. of goods in possession of the defendant's father; the defendant brought a suit against the plaintiff, pretending the goods to be his, because the landlord had foed them for rent, and sold them to him; but on evidence the sale was proved fraudulent, and that the father was in plififion all along, and paid taxes for the farm and goods, &c. and therefore the judge gave direction to the jury to find for the defendant at law, but because he had not proved a copy of the judgment, as it was held ought, let \textit{Vol. II. \textit{N}o. 80.}
covenants or fraudulent sales, gift, grant, alienation, bargain, covenancy, bonds, lutes, judgments, executions, mentioned in the statute, and being private and knowing of the same, or any of them, shall writing in the declaration of trust, or any part thereof, shall maintain, justify, or defend the same, or any of them as true, simple, and done, had or made bona fide, and upon good consideration, or shall alien or assign any the lands, tenements, goods, leases, or other things mentioned in the statute, to him or them conveyed, or any part thereof, shall maintain, justify, and defend thereof one year of the value of the said lands, tenements and hereditaments, lands, rents, common, or other profits of or out of the same, and the whole value of the goods and chattels, and also so much money as are or shall be contained in such covenants or frauds, sale or conveyance, or any one moiety thereof, to be the Queen's Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the party or parties by such seigneur and fraudulent sale, grant, gift, grant, alienation, bargain, covenancy, bonds, lutes, judgments, execution, luses, rents, common, profits, charge, and other things aforesaid, to be recovered in any of the Queen's courts of record, by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, wherein no ill, protection or wager of law shall be admitted for the defendant or defendants, and also being thereof lawfully convicted shall suffer imprisonment for one half year without bail or mainprice.

8. In lands and houses not yet exempted, from the above act, for justifying apud L. of a fraudulent gift of goods, made by A. to the defendant to defraud the plaintiff of his debt; the defendant faith, that A. gave these goods to him at C. bona fide, and that he justified the gift there, and traverse the justifying it at L. and ruled to be no plea; for 31 Eliz., restrains common informers to bring their actions only in the proper county where the offence was done; yet that does not extend to a party grieved, but that he may inform in what county he pleases, for he is not a common informer.

9. A testator learning on this subject, see 13 Vin., and 2 Bac. Abt. tit. Frauds; and see Agreement, Mortgage, Trust, Will.

10. As if a person having no manner of title to a house, procure an affidavit of the service of a declaration in ejection, and thereupon gets judgment; and by virtue of a writ of har, fat, puffum or any other writ, the owner out of possession of the house, and feizes and converts the goods therein to his own use, he may be punished as a felon; because he used the process of the law with a felonious purpose, in fraudem legis.

11.Fraud, etc. A wood of ash-trees. Domest. Frechentuttum, (Frechenthius.) Among the customary services done by the tenants in Chalabout, a man belonging to the abbey of St. Edmondbury, this word signifies a young hog killed for pork, not bacon.

Fretum. (Novi fretatata,) A ship freighted, a laden vessel. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fretum, (Discif fretatata,) A ship freighted, a laden vessel. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fretum, was a composition paid by a criminal, to beat and pay the natural, of which the third part was paid into the Exchequer, and that called fredum. Cowell, ed. 1727.

See Delattura.

Fretum, See Delatture.

Freet-bench, Freet-bank. (Frennum bancus, that is, fede liberalis.) Signifies that estate in copyhold lands, that the feinit, or leasor, or seigneur, of the land, or the husband of her husband, for her dower, according to the custom in the county. (Kitchen, fl. 102.) As at Orleton in the county of Hereford, the relief of a copyhold tenant is admitted to her free-bench, that is to all her husband's copyhold lands, during her life, at the next court after her husband's death. Cowel, ed. 6. cap. 16. 1 Append. num. 3. hath these words, Confutud o'l in partibus illius, quod uxor suo mortis defuncturum habebat fraternum bancum juun de terris Sicaknumorum, & tenent nomine dixit.

Fret-bank calls it a cotton, whereby in certain cities, the wife shall have her husband's whole lands, &c. for her dower. Nat. Brev. fl. 150. See Pictolas, fl. 411. in the case of Made. Of the free bench, several matters have been observed. Ed. 1727. and West Eoburiae in the county of Eobis, a customary free-bench, doth have her free bench in all his copyhold lands, done fale & right forever; but if the commit incontinency, the better of her estate, yet if she will come into the court riding backward on a black ram, with his tail in her hand, and to the words following, the heir is bound by the custom to admit her to her free-bench:

Here I am

Riding on a black ram,

And for my christian name,

Have left my bankum bankum,

And for my tail's gone,

Have done this revolently home,

Therefore I pray you,

Mr. Steward, let me have my land again.

The like custom there is in the manor of Chalabout in the same county; in that of Ture in Devonshire, and other parts of the West. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Free-better, Signifies a person who fights without pay or reward, or for the tenure of his house.

Freehold, (Franchclusa.) In some places they claim as a free-bond, more or less ground beyond or without the fence. In Mon. Angl. 2 par. f. 241, it is said to contain two foot and a half, viz. totum beneficim vescit, Brentwood cum frank bonds, et dominum pulum & dimid., de circuitu ulius hujus, &c.

Freechapel. (Liberus capella.) In the opinion of some is a chapel founded within a parish, for the service of God, by the devotion and liberality of some good man, over and above the mother church, to which it was free for the parochioners to come or not come, and endowed with all the rights of the same, to the curfew, and theretouch called free. Others with more probability say, that those only are free chapels that are of the King's foundation, and by him exempted from the jurisdiction of the ordinary, but the King may license a subject to found such a chapel, and by his charter exempt it from the diocesan's jurisdiction. That it is called free in respect of its exemption from the diocesan's jurisdiction, appears by the Regifter of Writt, f. 40, 41. Thefe chapels were all given to the King, with chantries, 1 Ed. 6. 14. Free chapel of St. Martin le Grand, 3 Ed. 4. cap. 4. and 4 Ed. 4. cap. 12. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Freehold. See Delaturn.

Freehold. Frankenmentem, (Liberum tenementum.) Is that land or tenement which a man holdeth in fee, feetal, or at the lease for term of years. Bradton, lib. 2. cap. 9. In the Terms of Laus 's fl. 8, That freehold is of two sorts, freehold in deed and freehold in law. Freehold in deed is the real possession of land or tenements in fee, feetal, or for life. Freehold in law is the right that a man hath to such land or tenements before his entry or exit. It hath likewise been extended to those offices which a man holdeth either in fee, or for term of life. British defines it to this effect, frank tenement is a possession of land, or houses lying out of the soil, which a tenant holdeth in fee to him and his heirs, or at the least for term of his life, the soil be charged with free or other servages, cap. 32. Freehold is sometimes taken in opposition to villegage. Bradton, lib. 4. 37. 38. London in his explication of Saxons, says, with the Scripture, in the Saxon times, there was called either the land, that is, held by book or writing, or if land, that is, holden without writing. The former he reports was held with far better condition, and by the better fort of tenants, as noblemen and gentle- men, being free, as now we call freehold. The latter was commonly in the pallas of clowns, being that we now call ad voluntatem donati, at the will of the lord. The Regifter Judicialis, fl. 68, and in divers other places faith, that he who holds lands upon an execution
The text is too corrupted and unclear to provide a meaningful representation.
ancient, to whom he is heir, or after the death of his tenant for life, or in tail; he may, within forty days after his title accrued, have a bill out of Chancery to the mayor, &c. See the 11th Missar. and Old Nat. Bract. fol. 4.

Froth fuit. (Recent infect) Is such a present and curable infection, as never to depart from the time of the offence committed or discovered, until he be apprehended. And theeffect of this in the perfect of a felon is, that the party purrying shall have his goods again, whereas otherwise they are the King's. Of this see Stanoff. Pl. Cor. lib. 3, cap. 10, & 12. where he treats large upon this head, to be accounted froth, and what not. And the same author in his first book, cap. 27, 1. That froth fuit may continue for seven years. See Calke's Rep. lib. 3. Ridgedyv's cafe. Froth fuit femeth not to be either within the view or without; for Magna chart, That upon froth fuit within the view, tryers might be attached by the officers purrying them, though without the limits and bounds of the forest. Cap. 19. per teneam. Cowell. It seems to have been anciently holden, that to make a froth fuit, the party ought to have raised a hue and cry with all convenient speed, and also to have taken the offence at this day; it seems to be required, that if the party hath been guilty of no gross neglect, but hath used all reasonable care and diligence in inquiring after, purrying, and apprehending the felon, he ought to be allowed to have made sufficient froth fuit, whether any lost goods be proved or not, and whether such offender were taken by means of such purrying, or without any assistance from it. 2 Hauel. P. C. 169. See Leic. and Cry.

Fruiti Britannicum, The freights between Dover and Calais.

Fruiti Britannicum, The freights between Dover and Calais.

Frat or Frater, (Lat. frater, Fr. frere) An order of religious persons, of which, there are reckoned the principal branches, (Stat. 4 Hen. 4, cap. 17.) one Mlnn., Grey friars, or Franciscans, Augustinians, Dominicans, or Black friars, and White friars, or Carmelites, from the which refed. See Zachins de Repub. Eccles. pag. 380. and Lyndard. tit. de Reg. Domin. Augusti. i. 1. verb. Sanci Auguflini.

Fratres or Students or Oblates (Student or Oblates) Is an order of Franciscans, which are Minor, as well the Obolates as the Conventualls and Capuchins. Zach. de Repub. Eccles. tradit. de Regular. cap. 12. Thence we find mentioned anno 25 Hn. 8, cap. 12. They are called Obelates because they are not combined together in any cloister, convent or corporation, as the Conventualls are; but only tie themselves to observe the rites of their Oder more strictly than the Conventualls do; and upon a fingularity of real separate themselves from them, living in certain places, and companies of their own chuch: And of these you may read Hophimi de Orig. & Prorff. Missar. Mitfcon. fol. 85. cap. 28.

Frighburgh or Frithburgh, (from the Saxon Frith, i.e. pox, and large, i.e. fulghor) Is the same with frandle, the one being in the Saxons time, the other since the Conquest; wherefore, for the understanding it, read Fritched, and the laws of King Edward set out by Lumbard in 1432. In these words, he further states that, sundry & sumoni securitas, per quos sumoni estem fradis securitas, victor, ut atqueque sit habens, et socii habent in societate, quod anglor vicus (trebaragh) habent iure. Avereriet dicit eodem (tineannunatu) quod statu hic situ ut socii habet in societate, per quos sumoni estern fradis securitas. Every man in this Kingdom was affected to himself to have a congery, and in each congy was in the hands of ten families, who were pledged or bound for each other to keep the peace and obvise all, and if any offence was done by one, the other nine were to answer it; that is, if the criminal died from justice, they had thirty days allowed to apprehend him; if he was not taken in that time, then he was the fradis, (that is, the principal pledge of the ten, should take two of his own number, and the chief pledges of three neighbouring fradis, with two other out of each of these fradis, in all 12 men, whereas four were to be the chief, and the other eight were to be of the better sort, and those were to purge themselves and their fradis, of the forfeiture and punishment, and yet to be of the franchise, and if they should do, then the principal pledge, with the other eight to whom he did belong, was to make full satisfaction; but afterwards it became difficult to get the three neighbouring fradis to join with the other, and therefore those other nine made earth that they were not guilty, and that they would be secured, and he should not be charged; he therefore, as long as it continued, met Bracten mentions Fraghburgh, lib. 3. tradit. 2. cap. 10, in the words Archiepsiqui, episcep. ecmies & barones & ames qui habent fac. & fac. tel. & tel. & hujusmodi liberti, miles fac. & proprios servientes, armigeres, &c. defheripts, & panirem, camerarius, capites, &c. habent fac. frithburghi bohste deferen. Ism. & fals. jitt, eam enim que alius fradis vires gentes quem si forte secratus, ibi dimini jitt medio beato star ad re.tum, & freg. & non habentur, faciunt pro eis sedit. Societas. Et si Joerbernand et de enmilis alias qui de aliciensi monopagio. Where we learn the reason, why great men were not combined in any ordinary deten; but that their lands were the common patrimony, and for their mental favours, not less than the ten were one for another in ordinary deten. See Skene, verbo Freibergh. Ficta setiis erat, and in the first man, or at least for one of the deten. lib. 1. cap. 66. Auct. Mallode, part. jure, usual. in Hen. 2. fol. 145. But Specumere, verbo Friberg. Where between Frig and Frithough, the frit signifies liber folia, or foliffijus; the other pais secratus, Frithford and Frithhough, (from the Saxon frith, pox. fac. febris. cathedra. frath, locus) A feast, cliar or place of peace. In the charter of immunities granted to the church of St. Peter in York, by Hen. 6, confirmed, An. 5 H. 7, thus. — Quod si aliquis, vsejus spiritus agitatus, diabolicus au quoque impuro posse purgatum, in cathedra lapides juxta altare, quod Anglius vocat fridflong, i.e. e. cathedra quatuordecim tab. pacis i.e. bau promtus sagittis securius, habens multa jittum, jittum ab eis, multa pacis numeris claudaturas, fed apud Anglos Boileuse, loci, in fine, eximia, vocatol. Of these there were many others in England, but, the most famous at Beverley, which had this inscription, Hic fideles lapida fradis diecretor, i.e. pax cathedra, ad quem revocat purgandum, deus. The frit signifies also a palace, which is usually a privileged place. Frisowde anf Fridwit. Tis a millet paid by him who delivered the army: From the Saxon frith, expeditis, et vice, millet.

Frideles man. See Frideles man.

Fridius, From the Saxon, frith, libri, and Jifin, dimittere. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Fridius, A freeman: From the Sax. freed, liber, and Jifin, pugnari. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Friggit. I deduced from the French fripper, inter- pretation, to make roebuck and cheperch old appellation: see again. It is used for a kind of brook, in flat. 1. acc. cap. 11.

Firth. A word, from the Sax. Firth, fax. For the Etymology, see Etymologies. See also make them words. Cowell, edit. 1777. See Frith.

Friulich, Patis vocat; the break of the peace. Leg. Etheldred. cap. 6. See Frith.

Friulichin. Inter leges procurationem maximalam. cap. 1. specificatione licentia coniugii dicta. habenda, nisi in ter. to alius aequo aequora, uterisque, fraterque,
F R

Fitting of wheels, is perhaps what we now call the tinning of wheels, i.e. fitting and fastening the fellows (or pieces of wood that conjointly make the circle) upon the fellet, which on the top are let into a small fellet, and at the bottom into the hub—In Italian fruifum quod quisque

Fugae. (Derived from Fenge) In the reign of Elder the Third, the Black Prince of Valois having acquainted granted him, he sent him some seven frages or finge upon the objects of that Dukedom, viz. twelve peace for every five, called berulums, Rat. Fact. 25
Ed. 3. To the probable the building took its original from hence.

Fulg. In B. 43 Eliz. cap. 14. All faggots to be fold shall contain in compau, fefles the kind of the bond, twenty-four inches of affe; and every faggot within the bond shall contain three feet of affe, except only one faggot to be but one foot long,
to ftop or hinder the burning.

Fut. Stat. 9. Ann. cap. 15. All billets (except those made or beeche, by 10 Ann. cap. 6.) that he espoused in public places, where they are usually bought or fold, shall be alfield and cut, or marked in manner following:
that is to say, all billets of what fcaicing or denominations soever, shall be marked in length three feet and four inch, and be the following dimensions either.

Sect. 2. And if they shall not be thus alfield and marked, then on information to a justice of peace, mayor or other head offe, he shall call before him good and lawful men of the town, and shall swear them truly, to inquire whether the fame be of good and sufficient affe; and if they shall pretend that any of it is not sufficient, the same being defective, shall be forforefed, and delivered to the overers to be by them distributed to the poor.

round. How to cut and marked.

A Sing. 7 2 0 0 0
A Call 10 1 2 1 2 1
A Troi 15 0 15 1 14 3
A Cal. 15 17 0 0 0
A Cal. 18 21 0 0 0
A Cal. 22 1 24 2 27
A Cal. 23 3 27 2 27
A Cal. 26 30 0 0 0
A Cal. 28 0 32 2 23
A Cal. 30 3 34 3 24
A Cal. 30 3 34 3 24
A Cal. 30 3 34 3 24
A Cal. 33 3 34 3 24
A Cal. 41 3 43 3 0 0
A Cal. 43 0 0 0 0 0
A Cal. 45 0 0 0 0 0
A Cal. 46 0 0 0 0 0
A Cal. 47 2 0 0 0 0

Futur, (Fuga, from the French fage, forger.) Tho' it be a verb, yet it is used substantively, and is two-fold; futur in fact (in faite) when a man doth apparently and corporally fly, and futur in leg (in lege) when being called in the country he compact not, until he be outlawed; for this is flight in interpretation of Law. Stow. Pl. Cor. lib. 3. cap. 22.

Fuga retellium. A drove of cattle. See Stare-hand. Fugatia, Significas a change, and is all one with chofia.
Chorar Abuttæ Imprimatur Illiniæ de Glæna.—Præcipu. H 2

FR

FRR

FRR

FR

FR

FR

FR

FR

FR

FR

FR

FR

FR
A merchant of London departs the realm, to the intent to live freely from the penalty of the law, and out of his due obedience to the Queen, and for no mechandise, was arrested by the justice except two, to be no contempt to the Queen; for merchants were excepted out of the statute of 6 Ric. 2. cap. 2, and by the common law merchants might pass the fence without licences, but it were not to merchants.

Fugitivus goods, (Bona fugitivorum) Are the proper goods of him that fleeth, which after the flight lawfully found, do belong to the King, or lord of the manor.
5 Cot. 2. c. 16. See C.C. 462.

Fullgeta. (Fides.) Ferv. Du Fresne.

Fullham Bridge. See bridge.

Fuller’s earth, Filling and securing clay, Pe-ナルés on exporting them, 12 Car. 2. c. 32. 13 & 14
Car. 2. g. 9 & 10. IVI. c. 40. 46 Car. 1. c. 21. f. 32.

Fullum aquae, A stream of water, a stream, as such comes from a mill. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Fumage, (Fumagum.) Dunm, or manuring with dung, Et fait quattuor de fumagio, & maremio cætando, &c.
Charter Rici. 2. Priorat. de Hertford, pat. Ed. 4. part 3. m. 15. But indeed fumagum was properly found, for a certain man, who carried a meast from every house that had a chimney or fire place, Cowell, ed. 1727.

Fumaders or Fumadores, Are pickards garbaged, false, harbored in the smoke, and prifoned, so called in Italy and Spain, whither they are carried in great numbers, and there mentioned in 13 & 14 Car. c. 2. 18.

Fumator. The founder of a church, college, hospital, or other public benefaction. This title in the old religious houses was equivalent to patron: For it was not only given to the first actual funder, but continued to the funder and kinrugs, who held the fee of the fire
the endowments of such benefactions, and by fume was the patronage or advowson of them, and after the extinction or long intermission of the title, a person could prove his’felf from the first founder, was affirmed by the religious to the name and honour of their funder. Cowell, edit. 1727. See Annuity’s Ordinary in Funding, Used for pioneers, in Pat. 10 Ed. 2.

1. 1. 2.

Funds. The general fund established for making good defciences, 1 Ann. 1. c. 13. 3 Gren. 1. cap. 7.
Paid for paying off Exchequer Bills, 7 Ann. 1. c. 7.
Fett. 32.

Surplus of annuity funds may be charged with defciencies
of another year, 8 Ann. 1. c. 13. fett. 29.

The aggregate fund, 1 Gren. 1. c. 12. fett. 8. 15.
Gren. 1. c. 8. male perpenet, 5 Gren. 1. c. 3. fett. 22.

The sinking fund, 5 Gren. 1. c. 3. fett. 66.

Part of the Stock of the three companies to be reduced by the sinking fund, 7 Gren. 1. c. 5. fett. 39.

Appropriation of the sinking fund, 8 Gren. 1. c. 20.
Fett. 29.

The forfiples of the sinking fund appropriated, 9 Gren.
1. c. 5. fett. 34.

Addition to the aggregate fund, 1 Gren. 2. c. 2. 8.
Fett. 17.

Supply to the aggregate fund, 20 Gren. 2. c. 3. fett. 58.

For relief of the legislature, S. 15. int. 8, out of his legacy to the finking fund, 10 Gren. 2. c. 34.

The finking fund charged with annuities in discharge of navy bills, &c. 22 Gren. 2. c. 73.

Annuities granted out of the finking fund, 13 Gren. 2.
c. 16.

His Majesty may borrow money on the credit of the and-tax, 4 Gren. 3. c. 1. fett. 150.

Addition to the grant tax, 4 Gren. 3. c. 2. fett. 25.

Surplus of duties on licences and new fump duties appropriated, 30 Gren. 2. c. 19. fett. 20.

Certain duties carried on the finking fund, 32 Gren. 2.
c. 27. fett. 4.

Arms granted on the finking fund, and certain annuities consolidated, 4 Gren. 3. c. 18.

Funding,
Funeral charges. A person died in debt, and 600l. was laid out in his funeral; decreed the same should be a debt, payable out of a trust effect, charged with payment of the debt.

Furtat. See Furtur, furtum, a furt, or theft, i.e., the fourth part of an acre, which in Halfacre is still called a furtingle, and in former usage to the north of the North, a furteinte or small part of corn. See Kenn's Glossary.

Furtive. A mule paid for theft. Among the Laws of King Ethelred, made 1727, § 7, it is allowed they shall be winknells, qui nequeanimus furtidum reddidit, i.e., who were never accused of theft or larceny.

Furlong. Furlongum terrae, is a quantity of ground containing in square poles forty poles, every pole fixteen feet, by an half in length, and which therefore in vulgar parlance in the North, a furteinte or small part of corn is two gavens or gallons, i.e., the fourth part of a bushel. See Kenn's Glossary.

Furtum. A mule kept an owner.

Furtura. Furtura from the French furturer, i. e., peculiaris to line with fins) is the coat or covering of a beast. The statue 24 Hen. 8, cap. 13, mentions divers, as fable, which is a rich fur, of colour between black and brown, being the skin of a beast called a fable, of biggers like a wolf; in the fable, the skin and fable of a fable, being near the biggars of a wolf, of colour between red and brown, something mailed like a cat, and mingled with black spots; bred in Mafereu and Royalis, and is a very rich furer, Genus is the skin of a beast so called, of biggers between a cat and a wreele, mailed like a cat, and of the nature of a cat; bred in Spain, whereof there are two kinds, black and grey, and the black the more precious furer, having black spots upon it hardly to be seen. Furtures are of fashion like the fable, bred in France for the most part; the top of the furer is like black, and the eight in the back half in length, and which is called a yellow, the skin some courser; it liveth in all countries that be not too cold, as England, Ireland, &c. the best in Ireland. Miniver is nothing but the bellies of squirrel rels of same furer, as others, it is a little vermin like unto furtile, and of the name as a weeler, milk white, and brought in Furturum. In Latin, the title of a person of quality, and in the modern times, a plain or feudal nobleman. Sir Richard de Cowell—Placet, Term. Mich. and 2 Iul. rot. 7.
Gallic (Gabella, gallicium: Saxon gafol, alias gæol, i.e. cattle). Hath the same significance among the ancients, that gabelle hath in France: For Mr. Camden, in his Brit. pag. 213. Speaking of Wellingford, hath these words, Continetit 276 bagas, i. domis, reddentes xixi libras de gabo. And pag. 228. of Oxford there. Hac ura reddolat pro selansia & gabo, & alii confinuantur, pro annis, qve quosque gabelas hominum, tributum, similis erat Aeginae decimas libras. Gabella, as Columna defines it De Conf. Burgund. pag. 119. of vectigal solutio pro bonis mobilibus, id eft, pro ilia quotubant, disfigulando it from tributum, quia tributum erat propri proprietate, qui solutio vel principii solutio pro rebus inimmobilibus. The Lord Chancellor in his Commit do divinat, libit thes, usu. 2. c. 2. fol. 213. Here note, for the better understanding of ancient records, statutes, charters, &c. that gael, or gavel, gabol, gablinum, gabellum, gabellatum, & gabellaturn, do signify a rent, custom, duty, or service, yielded or done to the King, or any other lord. But that gabel did as well extend to money, as to other things in kind, is very plain by that demand, Dismodem, Boc, in Windes in Hiberia, where 'tis said, Rex Williamus tertius Windores in Dominice, Rex Edw. tennit ibi xx. bipes, &c. Et adules fact in vix villa C. Hage V. minis; ex hiis sunt xvi. quies de gabo & de alii ex earum som. fidel. And loth. In the same book in Simulat., it is thus expressed in the title of Tereus Ego, (which observe) Rex tentat ecle (I suppose it is that Chater, so famous for its ecle) Rex Edw. tertii, quamquam gellat, sed fact per quid belas fact ibis, in Dominis, et xx. scors cum xxvii. sc. a. vi. gablatores redd. xvi. xvi. single gablettes did pay seventeen shilling, and from their paying of rent were termed gablators. It seems probable, that this gabol is to be distinguished from a rent or payment made upon contract and bargain, and hath relation to such a one as was imputed by the power and will of the Lord. And these different forms of a rent or payment mentioned in Danmarks Book under several expressions, according to the nature of them, where sometimes it is written, that one redit to such a one or another, without any addition: And this, I believe, was rent upon agreement and contract, and then the persons so engaged in the third redit de gabo, to much. When gabel is mentioned without any addition, then it usually signifies the tax on sels, proper excisions, but afterwards it was applied to all other taxes, as galle de vint, &c. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Gallician (those that paid gable, rent or tribute. Dan. Diflor.)

Gallend, (Gabbam, Gabalea, Galaba) The head, or front part of a house, or housetop. The gable-head, the gable-end, &c. Quadrant partium terrae—extra gabbam malandini otii folis in latitudine, Paroch. Antiquit. pag. 201. See domus ficta in tertier gabbam tenentes mihi, & gabbam tenentes Laurentii. Kepharne. Ibid. pag. 286. See Kenme's Glossary. See R. Echtrich, &c. for the word. &c. In etj brief nova judgment ducet eae Gabellam styg force cona. Ptdh. fol. 332. a. that is, till the day of aem; never. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Gallus bencruxius, Rent paid in money. Selden of Tribus, pag. 321. Gallaghaba, In a Saxon word, signifying the payment, or surrendering of tribute or常务副. Also it sometimes denotes uffury. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Gallitain or Gallitain, Terra curialis, liable to tribute or tax. The Saxon Dictionary calls it rend. land. See C, Gallat.

Gallivet, Signifies a pawn or pledge, and is derived from the French gage, that is, pignor dare, Glanv. lib. 10. c. 6. Part, Quanduo ret mobiles prunam in venire, quanduo ret immobiles; and a little after that, thus, inauditor ret quanduo ad terminum, quanduo fine termini; item quanduo inauditor ret aliquo modo. And though the word gege be retained as it is a substantive, yet as it is a verb, ute hath turned the g. into a w. so that it is often written wage, as to wage delincence, that is, to give security that a thing shall be delivered: For if he who had claimed, being freed, hath not delivered the estate that were disdained, then he shall not only avow the default, but gage delincence, that is, put in sureties that he will deliver the gable disdained, F. N. B. fol. 74, 67, yet in some cases he shall not be tied to his security, as if the gable died in the pound. Kitchen, lib. 145. or if he Celebration in the noble field. This delinca, To wage law, see Lat.; and also see Malignage.

Galler delinences, See Gage.

Gager delinquences. See Gage.

Gager deli, See Wage, and Wager of Law.

Gagers, See Gauger.

Galliance (Lat. Vignuogium, i.e. ilia plagiis, vel plagiis, &c. French, gage, i.e. the gain or profit of tilled or planted ground). Signifies the draught-oxen, horses, wain, plough, and furniture, for carrying on the work of tillage by the better sort of farmers and villages; and sometimes the land itself, or the profit raised by cultivating it. Brudin, lib. 1. c. 6. Speaking of his own land, he says, "in hoc post, he had not any one, or the greatest number of the old houses, minias, et sic es destruent, que galbam non pottius eis in saepe vino poumo. And again, lib. 3. trad. 2. c. 1. Miles et libera non agricxerbibit nisi saepe scando delictum, sciendum quod dilectum quisque magnum vel parum et solis ementem et quod: Messor non nisi meritorius suis, et villanus non nisi foliis in saepe vino seno. For anciently, as it appears both by Magna Charta, cap. 14. and other books, the villain, when a monkey, had his wainage free, to the end the plough might not stand still: And the law, for the same reason, does still allow, a like privilege to the husbandman, that his draught horses and oxen are not in many cases disdainable. This in Hicton, 1. cap. 6. Anno 3 ed. 1. is called gynacce, and again, cap. 17. and in Magna Charta, cap. 14. it is called gynacce. In the Old Nat. Brev. f. 117. it is termed gainer. In these words, the wirte of Ael was prasent, &c. quad reddat unus bantum terre & unus bantam non; &c. not etiam fecerit, &c. as certain writers do. This was the gynacce, or the thing that lieth in gainers. This word was used only concerning arable land, because they that had it in occupation, had nothing of it, but the profit and fruit raised by their own pains towards their habitation, nor any other title, but what was as the word 1m in the same words, fol. 12. is used for a foeman, that hath such land in his occupation. In the 32d chapter of the Grand Coronet of Naundy, gainers are agric.
G A M

laminating challets, and for the violation thereof may bring an action of trespass. 2 Boc. Abr. 617.

Hens and chickens are tame; fo (cuckoos, like other domestick fowl, are tame by nature. Off. Ed. 8, 1 Rel. Abr. 5. 18 Hen. 8. 2. So several forts of dogs are tame, as the maltrie, hound (which comprehends greyhounds, &c.) spaniel and tombliner; and for these a person may sue for an action of trespass for allowing that they were there. Cre. Ediz. 122. 1 Sound. 84. So a perfon may justify in afflalt and battery in defence of his dog that is tame. Red. Edit. 611. So a repfkin heth of a terrene. Cre. Ediz. 126.

He who takes pernicious plants, or any other filces, are unfodled thofe which by reafon of their ftriftness or fiercenes make the dominion of man, and, in thefe no person can have a property, unless they be tamed or reigned by him; and as property is the power that a man hath over any other thing for his own use, and the liberty that he has to apply it to the fubftrances of his being, when that power ceafe, his property is null; and by confequence an animal of this kind, which after any fcarce escape into the wild common of nature, and afferts its own liberty by its ftriftness, is no more mine than any creature in a fodor, because I have it no longer in my power or difpower. 3 Ca. 16. 3 Lev. 237.

Hence it appears, that by the Common law every man had an equal right to fuch creatures, as were not naturall under the power of man, and that the mere capture or fteal created a property in them, except in the following cases. Cre. Ediz. 547. 1. By immediate manufcript, on the prefumptions and killing them; for in these cafes they belong to fuch perfon in the fame manner as any other chattels, and can't be violated from him, fince the fahle fteal and capture was fufficient to veil the property of them in him. 7 Ca. 10. 2. By taking and taking, and then alfo they belong to the owner, as do all the other tame animals fo long as they continue in this condition, that is, as long as they can be confoled to have the mind of returning to their miflfrs; for while they appear to be in this flate, they are plainly the owner's, and ought not to be violated; but when they forake the houses and habitations of man, and brake themselves to the woods, they are then the property of any man. 7 Ca. 16. 6. Del. Pleas. 314.

3. Another way of gaining property in them is by infaluation, and then the beafts muft be underftood to be mine, as the prefumption of afletion of mine. They are no more taken and carried off than any other thing of the land; and therefore if I incleave deer in a park or paffade, conies in a field or warren, they become my own, that no man ought to kill or take them away; now fince in this cafe, 'tis the infaluation only that retains them, (for taken and carried off by another is in their natural liberty,) therefore the party is had to have a right as he hath to any other profits there included, and a difficult and independent right in every animal. March 49.

4. The King, as an acknowledgment of his dominion over the faws and great rivers, by his prerogative has a property in fome animals under the dominion of royal creatures, as flurgeon, whales and fawms, all which are the natives of faws and rivers. 7 Ca. 16.

On these reafons and difficulties of the Common law, we may now fee how the law fands with regard to the hunting of game, within the ferveral fitu- tutes made for the prefervation thereof. First it is clear, that if a man pursue deer, hares or conies out of his land, or the lands of another into mine, and there takes them, they are the hunter's and not mine, because I never had any original property by including them into my land. 35 Ca. 154. But it is laid, if a man flies his hawk at a pheasant in another man's ground, and the hawk pursues the pheasant into another man's warren, the owner of the hawk can't juftifie the entering the warren and taking the pheasant. 38 Ed. 3. 10. b. 12 Hen. 6. 1. 3 Rel. Abr. 507. Pap. 105.

If a man hunts conies, and they come into my ground, I may force them, because they are indeed my property by the infaluation; but if he hunts them out of my ground, they are in the condition of natural liberty, and then I can't

I laminate challets, and for the violation thereof may bring an action of trespass. 2 Boc. Abr. 617.

Hens and chickens are tame; fo (cuckoos, like other domestick fowl, are tame by nature. Off. Ed. 8, 1 Rel. Abr. 5. 18 Hen. 8. 2. So several forts of dogs are tame, as the maltrie, hound (which comprehends greyhounds, &c.) spaniel and tombliner; and for these a person may sue for an action of trespass for allowing that they were there. Cre. Ediz. 122. 1 Sound. 84. So a perfon may justify in afflalt and battery in defence of his dog that is tame. Red. Edit. 611. So a repfkin heth of a terrene. Cre. Ediz. 126.

He who takes pernicious plants, or any other filces, are unfodled thofe which by reafon of their ftriftness or fiercenes make the dominion of man, and, in thefe no person can have a property, unless they be tamed or reigned by him; and as property is the power that a man hath over any other thing for his own use, and the liberty that he has to apply it to the fubftrances of his being, when that power ceafe, his property is null; and by confequence an animal of this kind, which after any fcarce escape into the wild common of nature, and afferts its own liberty by its ftriftness, is no more mine than any creature in a fodor, because I have it no longer in my power or difpower. 3 Ca. 16. 3 Lev. 237.

Hence it appears, that by the Common law every man had an equal right to fuch creatures, as were not naturall under the power of man, and that the mere capture or fteal created a property in them, except in the following cases. Cre. Ediz. 547. 1. By immediate manufcript, on the prefumptions and killing them; for in these cafes they belong to fuch perfon in the fame manner as any other chattels, and can't be violated from him, fince the fahle fteal and capture was fufficient to veil the property of them in him. 7 Ca. 10. 2. By taking and taking, and then alfo they belong to the owner, as do all the other tame animals fo long as they continue in this condition, that is, as long as they can be confoled to have the mind of returning to their miflfrs; for while they appear to be in this flate, they are plainly the owner's, and ought not to be violated; but when they forake the houses and habitations of man, and brake themselves to the woods, they are then the property of any man. 7 Ca. 16. 6. Del. Pleas. 314.

3. Another way of gaining property in them is by infaluation, and then the beafts muft be underftood to be mine, as the prefumption of afletion of mine. They are no more taken and carried off than any other thing of the land; and therefore if I incleave deer in a park or paffade, conies in a field or warren, they become my own, that no man ought to kill or take them away; now fince in this cafe, 'tis the infaluation only that retains them, (for taken and carried off by another is in their natural liberty,) therefore the party is had to have a right as he hath to any other profits there included, and a difficult and independent right in every animal. March 49.

4. The King, as an acknowledgment of his dominion over the faws and great rivers, by his prerogative has a property in fome animals under the dominion of royal creatures, as flurgeon, whales and fawms, all which are the natives of faws and rivers. 7 Ca. 16.

On these reafons and difficulties of the Common law, we may now fee how the law fands with regard to the hunting of game, within the ferveral fitu- tutes made for the prefervation thereof. First it is clear, that if a man pursue deer, hares or conies out of his land, or the lands of another into mine, and there takes them, they are the hunter's and not mine, because I never had any original property by including them into my land. 35 Ca. 154. But it is laid, if a man flies his hawk at a pheasant in another man's ground, and the hawk pursues the pheasant into another man's warren, the owner of the hawk can't juftifie the entering the warren and taking the pheasant. 38 Ed. 3. 10. b. 12 Hen. 6. 1. 3 Rel. Abr. 507. Pap. 105.

If a man hunts conies, and they come into my ground, I may force them, because they are indeed my property by the infaluation; but if he hunts them out of my ground, they are in the condition of natural liberty, and then I can't take them away from the hatter, for then the property is in no man; but damages I may have against the hatter.

5 Mod. 375.

But where a man hunts coynes in my warren, or deet in my park, and the warrenie pursue them, he may re take them; for the park or warren is an enlibishment by the publick to prefer and protec the game; for all the man's repleic, in which no man hath a civil right, is under the regulation of the publick; now in parks and warrens, officers are esliblished by authority to have an eye over the game, and to keep it within the boundaries;
so that the property is not altered by driving it out of the warren, the damage is in the party, and in the officers;
for, as long as he that is thus sought doth pursue it, it is not in its natural liberty, but is still belonging to the unoccupied warrens.
22 Hen. 8. 9. 2 Bac. Abr. 613. 614.

Alfo the Common law warrants the hunting of rave nous beasts of prey on another's ground, such as foxes, wolves, badgers, &c., to that the party in pursuicing them through the grounds of another is subject to no action whatsoever; but it hath been refolved, that the hunting and killing such noxious animals must be done in the or dinary and usual manner; and that therefore the digg ing for a badger is unlawful, and the party subject to an damages for paffing Lea, 472.

A warrenie or keeper of a park may justify the kil ning of dogs and cats, as well as other vermin, which he finds disturbing the game in those places. Cro. Jac.
44. 3 Lea. 28. cont. 1 Rot. Abr. 357.

A man can't have an action of trefpafes on the cafe,
for another man, who enters breaking into his ground,
because, they are no longer the others than they are inclofed;
so that no violation aifes to the property of one man by the beafts of another, but the coines being in their natural liberty may be lawfully killed by the owner of the foil. 5 Co. 104. Cro. Elia. 547. Mor. 420. 421.
2 Rot. Abr. 490. 491. 3 Lea. 28. cont. 1 Rot. Abr. 357.

An action of trefpafes may be brought for taking a man's deer in a park or chafe, or of coines in his war ren, which the law takes notice that they are inclofed, because there are the proper inclofures for that purpo
e, and confemionally those beafts are not in their na tural liberty, and therefore the property is in the plaintif.
but 7 Co. 17. cont. and see Cro. Car. 553.

In an action of trefpafes, Quare clausum frigint, & da mas ipse in plaintiff copi et aforruitat, they shall be intended to be included after a veridic; because where a veridic is had they are the plaintiff; and because that veridic must be intended to be true; therefore the de deer must be intended to be inclufed, as to be under the plaintiff's power; otherwise he could not have pro erty according to the veridic. Salk. 356. 5 Mod. 375.

But if in trefpafes, Quare duos damos ipfum le plaintiff in quodam clausum &2 plaintiff, suos le park, copi e a forruitat, the defendant demns generally; this hath been ruled to be ill; Because the court will not intent them to be tamed or inclofed; and in plafts, that are in their natural liberty, the plaintiff hath no property; for being only a place called a park, it can't be understood to be a park. 3 Lea. 377.

Any person, upon his own frank tenement, may erect a dove-houfe; nor can he for fuch building be indicted in the leet; this was a matter often controverted, because the pigeons and doves were to be accounted as tame ani mals, and therefore it was held, that if any person whoever did erect fuch houfes, were answerable for the damages; and because they were not liable to every man's action, to avoid multiplicity of suits, it was for merly held, that they were indifpensible in the leet; but the contrary opinion prevailed, because it was allowed the lord, as owner of the manor, to erect or put up any perfon to erect a dove-houfe; but no perfon could raife him self, or authorize another to create a nuisance; be fide, theree animals are rather to be accounted fere na tures; and by consequence, the only remedy any perfon had for the damage fullained by the birds feeding on his ground, was to kill them, and take them to himself,
G A M

G A M

are hereby declared to be persons, by the laws of this realm, not allowed to have or keep for themselves, or any other person or persons, any gams, bows, greyhounds, setting-dogs, ferrets, coeney-dogs, lurchers, hayes, nett, lowbells, hare-pipe, gins, snares, or other engines aforesaid, but shall be, and are hereby prohibited for that purpose.

Stat. 9 Ann. cap. 25. sect. 1. No Lord or Lady of a manor shall make above one game-keeper within one manor, with power to kill game; and the name of such person shall be entered with the clerk of the peace; such entry to be made and written without fee, and a statute care is taken that it be granted by the clerk of the peace, upon payment of 1s. and in case any other game-keeper, who shall not be otherwise qualified to kill game, shall kill any hare, pleasant, partridge, moor, heath-game or grouse, or if any game-keeper, or other person not qualified in his own right to kill game, shall fail or expose to sale, any hare, &c. the offender shall incur such pe-nalities as are inflicted by the 5 Ann. cap. 14. upon highways, carriages, inn-keepers or victuallers, for buying or selling of game; such forfeitures to be recovered as referred to the said act.

Stat. 1 Ann. cap. 11. sect. 1. No Lord or Lady of a manor shall appoint any person to be a game-keeper with power to kill game, unless such person be qualified, or be truly a servant to the said Lord or Lady, or immediately employed to kill the game for the sole use of such Lord or Lady; and no Lord, &c. shall authorize any person, or set them to kill game for the sole use of setting-dogs, hays, lurchers, guns, tunnels, or any other equipment to kill the game; and any person, not being qualified, or not being truly a servant of any Lord, &c. or not immediately employed to take or kill the game for the sole use of such Lord, &c. shall take or kill any game, or use any greyhounds, &c. being convicted thereof, shall,
for every offence, incur such forfeitures, &c. as are ap-

2. Statutes concerning the game in general, with cases determined upon them.

Stat. 4 & 5 Will. & M. c. 23. sect. 3. Every constable, headborough and tithingman, being authorized by warrant of one justice of peace, shall enter into and featch, upon the act for punishment of deer-fleekers, 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 10. the houses of such evil disposed persons not qualified; and in case any hare, partridge, pietacant, pigeon, filth, foul or other game, shall be found, the offender shall be carried before some justice of peace; and if such person does not give a good account how he came by such filth, or if he be not convicted in the act, or if the justice, prodare the party of whom be sought the same, or some other credible person to depose upon oath such filth thereof, he shall be convicted by the justice of such offence, and shall forfeit for every hare, partridge, filth or other game, any sum not under 5s. and not exceeding 10s., to be determined by the justice, one moiety thereof to the informer, and the other moiety to the poor of the parish where the offence was committed, to be levied by the justices and sale of goods, by warrant of the justice; and for want of such the offender shall be committed to the house of correction, for any time not exceeding one month, and not less than ten days, there to be whipt, and kept to hard labour; and in case any person not qualified shall keep or use any bows, greyhounds, setting-dogs, ferrets, coeney-dogs, hayes, lurchers, nets, tunnels lowbells, hare-pipe, snares, or other instruments for hunting of fowl, or any other engines aforesaid, and shall be thereof convicted as aforesaid, he shall be subject to the same penalties as are to be inflicted upon the persons who shall be found to have any hare, partridge, filth, foul or other game, as aforesaid; and if any person produced shall not before the justice give evidence of his title, or of the fair hunt, or of his right to keep such game, in the same manner as the person first charged, and so from person to person until the first offender be discovered.

Sec. 4. All lords of manors, or any persons authorized by them as gamekeepers, may within their royalties refuse such offender in the night-time, in the same manner, and be equally indemnified, as if such fact had been committed within any ancient chase, park or warren.

Sec. 7. No certiorari shall be allowed, to remove any conviction in the act, nor any judgment of any unlawfully procured, unless the party, against whom such conviction shall be made, shall before the allowance of such certiorari be come bound to the person prosecuting in 50l. with such furnaces as the justices of peace before whom such offender shall be tried shall think fit, with condition to pay unto the prosecutor (within one month) the costs thereupon confirm or proceed (granted) their costs, to be afertained upon their oaths; and in default thereof it shall be lawful to proceed to the execution of such conviction, as if no certiorari had been awarded.

Sec. 8. Where any offender shall be punished by force of this act, he shall not incur the penalty of any other law for the same offence.

Sec. 9. If any action shall be brought for any thing done in pursuance of this act, it shall be lawful for the person so to plead the general issue; and if the verdict shall be for the defendant, &c. such defendant shall have treble costs.

Sec. 10. If any inferior trademans, apprentice or other kill persons, shall hunt, hawk, fowl or foul (unless in company with the master of such apprentice, duly qualified) such person shall be subject to the penalties of this act, and shall be liable to the forfeitures and mis-tufts in coming on any person's land, and if found guilty,
the plaintiff shall recover full costs.

Sec. 3. In case any person not qualified, The defendant was convicted upon the statute 4 & 5 W. & M. c.
23. for allowing game, not being a person duly qualified, Mr. Wills, the defendant, took all the excepttions to the conviction. 1. That the information was not laid forth in the conviction, was insufficient to warrant the conviction; for the information only recited that he was an inferior tradesman, but did not shew that he had waited his sufficiency, or that he was a kill person, which are the words of the statute, and therefore it did not appear by this conviction, that the defendant was such a person as was intended by the statute, for he might be an inferior tradesman, and yet have a sufficient effe to qualify him to hunt, &c. 2. That it was not any where set forth in the conviction, that the defendant did unlawfully kill and take, and therefore appears in this conviction, the defendant must have bought the hare, and have hunted and killed it in his own yard, which would have been lawful. 3. That the conviction set forth, that information was given to such an one as such a person, and that he did not lay sufficient and he might be a lawful person, and not at all the information. But the court over-ruled all the exceptions; and to the first they said, that the statute was in the dis-putative, viz. inferior tradesman or kill person; and therefore saying that the defendant was either sufficient. To the second, the court said, that the statute forbade such persons as the defendant to hunt at all, and made it criminal for such persons to hunt generally. And in this statute there is no distinction betwixt lawful and unlawful hunting, as there is in the statute against deerfeelers; and they agreed, that in a conviction for deer-feeling, it must be set forth, that the defendant did unlawfully hunt; but in the present case it did not because there is no such distinction. To the third exception the court said, that the conviction set forth, that information was made to such an one subject to the juric &c. which must be intended, that he was one that at that time, and was of the craft. And to all the exceptions were over-ruled, and the conviction confirmed.

Sec. 10. Inferior trademans Trafals for breaking his dice, treading and eating his graves; and that the defendant said the said dice, being an inferior trademans, et alias ensor, &c. Upon Not guilty pleaded verdict for the plaintiff. And Mr. Wills moved an arrest of judgment, judgment. 1. That it was not fatal, that the defendant was not qualified by estate to hunt, without incurring the penalty of the act; for if he be, he might hunt b. law. But to this it was replied by the court, that hunting is a trade, prohibited by act of Parliament, in all inferior trades. Then the new statute 25 & 26 H. M. c. 25. only as to this point of inferior tradesmen, repeals the statute of 22 & 23 Car. 2. &c. 9. which enacted, that the party shall recover no more costs than damages, when the jury give damages under half frillings. But no act enables the party to move in another's ground; and therefore it is not material, how the person is qualified, in the case of an inferior tradesman, as to his estate. Then it was moved, that the plaintiff having concluded, contra fornam platati, this goes to the whole, and therefore it is ill; for without an offence against a person, and not against the statute. But to this His Lordship Chief Justice answered, that if an act of parliament increases the penalty, or deprives the party of the benefit of the Common law, there he ought to conclude contra fornam platati. But if a man brings an action for such an offence, and for a thing that is an offence only at Common law, and concludes contra fornam platati, though in grammar this goes to the whole, yet the court will refer it only to the offence that is prohibited, &c. by the statute, and it shall be fulfilled as to the offence at Common law. And he referred him to the case of Page and Harnswell at Allen 43. So it a man brings an action for an offence, which is not at law, but at the suit of the state, verbo stare, there the contra fornam platati shall be fulfilled. And he cited a case in 1 Vent. 103. where A. brought an action for withdrawing his wife contra fornam platati: and because there was no statute, this was null and void. But in this case, the act of 25 & 26. H. M. does not create a new penalty, but is a restitution of the Common law; and therefore the party has no need to declare contra fornam platati; and therefore it will be the better way hereafter to omit the contra fornam platati in such cases. And if the plaintiff declares that the defendant was an inferior tradesman, he shall have void for his wife contra fornam platati. And the plaintiff declares to contra fornam platati, where there was no need of it, without doubt it shall be fulfilled. And therefore judgment was given for the plaintiff, &c. &c. And in Eager term it was absolutely given for the plaintiff.

Lord Raim. 149. 3st. 392.

By the 5 Ann. cap. 14. &c. 2. it is enacted, "That if any person, or every man, carter, innkeeper, victualler, or alehouse-keeper, shall have in their or his or their family or posfession, any hare, pheasant, partridge, moor, heath-game or grouse, or shall buy, sell or offer to sell any hare, pheasant, partridge, moor, heath-game or grouse, or every such higler, &c. (generally, that is, every bird, or every name of game, except a bird, but by a person or persons qualified to kill or catch the game,) shall upon every such offence be carried before some justice of the peace for the county, riding, city, or town corporate, or liberties, where the said offence is committed, and if upon view, or upon the oath of one or more credible witnesses, shall be convicted of the fame, shall forfeit for every hare, pheasant, partridge, moor, heath-game or grouse, the sum of £i. one half to the informer, and the other half to the poor of the parish where the offence was committed; the same to be levied by distraits and sale of the offender's goods, under the direction of the justice or justices of the peace, before whom such offender or offenders shall be convicted, rendering the overplus (if any be), the charge of distraint being first deducted; and for want of dis-traits, the offender or offenders to be committed to the house of correction for the first offence for the space of three months, and for every such other offence for the space of four months; provided that such conviction be made within three months after such offence committed; and that if any certiorari shall be allowed to remove any conviction made, or other proceedings of or concerning this in any other court, the courts at Westminster, upon any pre-

or persons profecuting the fame, in the sum of fifty pounds, with such sufficient securities, as the justice or justices of the peace, before whom such offender shall be convicted, shall think fit, with condition to pay unto the said justice or justices of the peace, within four days after the conviction or proceedings granted, their full costs and charges, to be ascertained by their oaths; and that in default thereof, it shall be lawful for the said justice or justices, or other, to proceed for the due execution of such conviction, in manner after or as if no such certiorari had been awarded. [See 28 Car. 2. 1. 12. 1. 2. &c. borders inserted in this division.]

s. 3. And for the better discovery of such higler, chapman, carrier, innkeeper, alehouse-keeper and victualler, shall offer to buy or sell any hare, pheasant, partridge, moor, heath-game or grouse, and shall within three months make discovery of any higler, chapman, carrier, innkeeper, alehouse-keeper, or victualler, that hath bought or sold, or offered to buy or sell, or had in their possession, any hare, pheasant, par-	ridge, moor, heath-game or grouse, so shall be convicted upon oath of two credible witnesses, by virtue of this act, for such discovery and information.

s. 4. And it is further enacted, "That if any person or persons, not qualified by the laws of this realm so to do, shall keep or use any greyhounds, ferret-degs, hares, hucksters, tonds, or any other engine to kill or destroy the game, and shall within three months make discovery of any hare, pheasant, partridge, moor, heath-game or grouse, or shall receive any such hare, pheasant, partridge or moor, heath-game or grouse, so shall be convicted upon oath of two credible witnesses, by the justice or justices of the peace where such offence is committed as aforesaid, the person or persons so convicted shall forfeit the sum of five pounds; one half to be paid to the informer, and the other half to the poor of the parish where the sum was committed; the same to be levied by distraint of the offender's goods, by warrant under the hand and seal of such justice or justices, before whom such person or persons shall be convicted, as aforesaid, and for want of such distriss the offender or offenders shall be sent to the house of correction for the space of three months, and that it shall and may be lawful to and for any of such Majestv's justices of the peace in their respective counties, riding, cities, towns corporate or liberty, and the Lords and Ladies of his, her, their, or any of their respective manors, within the said manors, to take away any such hare, pheasant, partridge, moor, heath-game or grouse, or any other engine to kill or destroy any hare, pheasant, chapman, carrier, innkeeper or victualler, or any other person or persons not qualified by the laws to keep the same to their own proper use, without being accountable to any person or persons for the same; and that it shall and may be lawful to the Lord or Lady of his or her respective lordship or manor, by writing under his or her hand and seal, to empower his or her gamekeeper or game-keepers upon his or her own lordship or manor, as aforesaid, to kill hare, pheasant, partridge or any other game whatsoever; but if the said game-keeper shall neglect or refuse to proceed in the execution of such authority to kill or take the same for the use of such Lord or Lady, afterwards fell or dispose thereof, to any person or persons whatsoever, without the consent or knowledge of the Lord or Lady of such manor or manors that have given such power or authority in manner as aforesaid, such gamekeeper or game-keeper shall be convicted upon oath of such Lord or Lady of any manor, and upon the oath of one or more of such Majestv's justices of the peace, as aforesaid, upon such conviction, such game-keeper shall be committed to the house of correction for the space of three months, and there to be kept to hard labour.

s. 4. Not qualified by the laws of this realm. The defendant was convicted by Sir Henry Bateson, a justice of the peace of Middlesex, for unlawfully keeping a huckster.

lurcher, and a gun to kill and destroy the game. New exigence qualifications per hieus bivus regis ad hoc faciamur.
contra formam statutis in bonis ejus insert et preofari.
And this conviction being removed into the King's Bench by certiorari, was qualified. As general as well as in because it was only averred generally, that he was not qualified, and did not aver that the defendant had not the particular qualifications mentioned in the statute as to degree, elate, &c. Lord Raim. 1415.
On the facts then, conviction was taken,
that the defendant not being a person so qualified, and enumerating different the several qualifications in 22 & 23 Car. 2. omitted a new qualification allowed by this act, namely, that he was not a person authorized by a lord (or lady) of a manor to kill game for his use.
And by an act then passed, the defendant was not being a person qualified according to law, and so on, it had been enough; but the qualifications being di-strictly and generally mentioned, the omission of one is there was a conviction for keeping a greyhound; reciting that one William Tame came and informed, that the de-defendant being a person not qualified to keep a greyhound, did nevertheless keep one at such a place, and therewith killed several hares; and that he being summoned did appear,
and was convicted, that he had done nothing in exceee, and therefore the justices convined him.
It was objected, that the justice should set out, why the defendant is not a qualified person, as that he is not the son of an esquire, nor has 1000 a year in his own or his wife's right; for he ought not to make himself the sole defendant, because it is not enough to seem to think the conviction would be good, having followed the words of the statute, and that if the defen-defendant was qualified, he ought to have thrown it before the justice, for being summoned for that purpose. Eyre J. stated an objection, that he had taken upon him to say the defendant was not qualified; but only the witnesses: for the conviction runs, that the witnesses being sworn faith, that the defendant being a person
no way qualified, did such a day keep a greyhound; so that it appears, the witnesses have given the law to the ju-tice, and take upon it to judge of the defendant's qualifications, and the justice is only made use of an ins-strument, to reduce the opinion of the witnesses into a conviction. By Parker Ch. J. The being not qualified should be the conclusion of the justice, and not the words of the witnesses; for he ought not to swear generally a man is disqualified, since he is qualified with a general good: This is only an invention, to support a conviction in general terms, which would be bad if the particular facts were alleged. Pratt J. Where the justices have a summary jurisdiction, and no appeal lies (as in this case), we must keep them up firstrate to the law, and I should be glad if we could make them set out the whole particularly. The case was adjourned; and afterwards Pengally ferjeant mentioned two cases, Q. & Hoptaward, E.
12 Ann. there was it, "not being qualified, licenced, or autorized to keep any game" and it was qualified. The other was the same term, and qualified, because no qualifications were mentioned. And towards the end of the term this conviction was qualified; and the principal reason declared to be, because the witnesses had taken upon them to judge of the qualifications. Siran. 66.
Shall keep or use any greyhounds, hating-dogs, hares, beets, terriers, or any other enginy or engin
the game] The defendant was convicted on 5 Ann. c. 14.
for using a greyhound in killing four hares, per good be forfeited 20.— Reeve excepted to the conviction, that the act of parliament had only given the justices jurisdiction to convinct on the oath of one of the witnesses, whereas this was upon his own confession, which he infilled the justices had no power to take; and it follows in the act, that the person to convict shall forfeit, which word
"be is relative to the former method by oath of one or more credible witnesses: and he put the common cases upon the oath of a poor person, which must be upon complain of the churchwardens or overseers: the justices having jurisdiction only in that manner. Sed per curiam, (futer Eyre J.) The conviction must be confirmed.
The intent of mentioning the oath of one wittes was only to direct the justices, that they should not convic on his evidence: Suppose the confession had not been before the justices, and before two witnesses. Who had been filled, that would be convicting him on the oath of wittes, and yet the evidence would not be so strong as this.
By the Civil law, confession is esteemed the highest evidence and in some cases, though there are one hundred wittes, the party is tortured unto confession. Hence the justices had a better evidence than the oath of any single witness, and it is a monstrous thing to say that a better power of evidence shall not do. Eyre J. contra, thought there was no occasion to carry this act of parliament for that, by an act 22 & 23 Car. 2. cap. 20, giving power to conven for this office upon confession, and that it ought to have been a conviction upon that flate. The conviction was confirmed. Siran.
K. Conviction on 5 Ann. cap. 14. for keeping a lurcher to destroy game, not necessarily for defence of a house, or for a farmer from hurt. That it is not known be made use of the dog to destroy game; and it may be he only kept it for a gentleman who was qualified, it being common to put out dogs in that manner. Sed per curiam; The statute 5 Ann. c. 14.
that the justices, keep or use, so that the bare keeping a lurcher, is not a defence; and for this was determined in the case of The king against King, Paf. 5 G. B. R. which was a conviction for keeping a gun; and it was not doubted by the court, whether the keeping a gun was not enough to be thrown, but the only question they made was, whether a gun was such an engine as is taken in that statute: And in that case a difference was taken as to keeping a dog, which could only be to destroy the game, and the keeping a gun, which a man might do for the defence of his house. The conviction was confirmed.
The defendant was convicted for the office of peace for keeping 2 guns, contrary to 5 Ann. cap. 14, and it was objected, that a gun is not mentioned in that statute, and though there are many things, for the bare keeping of which a man may be convicted: yet they are only such as can only be used for destruction of the game, whereas a gun is generally used for defence of a house, or for a farmer from hurt. The conviction was confirmed, 5 Ann. cap. 12.
Curiam it was said, that a gun is mentioned in 22 & 23 Car. 2. cap. 25, and considered there as an engine; and the 5 Ann. having the general words other engines, shall the store be taken to include the gun.
Sed per curiam. That was the case of The king against King, Paf. 3 Gen.
but never directly decided. And upon consideration we are of opinion, that a gun differs from nets and dogs, which can only be kept for an ill purpose, and therefore this conviction must be quashed. Siran. 1098. Tin. 11 Gen. 2. King v.
Gardiner.
Conviction on 5 Ann. cap. 14. for keeping a gun not being qualified; and exception was taken by Mr. Fencherley, that there was not a reasonable commons, for it was made on 5 October to appear the same day, which might be impossible upon account of distance, or the communes beingerved late, and his wittes thereon did not get get together on free warning: then it is to appear apud paroll predicti, whereas there are two parishes mentioned before, for the man may have gone to one, whilst they were convicting him at the other. Solk. 181. Warg. centa. The defendant appeared at the time and made defence, so that cures all defects in the commohns. Et per curiam; The answer is right. Then it was objected, that the statute requires the conviction to be by justices of the county where the offence was committed, and that does not appear in this case. Et per curiam; That must appear, or else they have no jurisdiction. Et per Warg.
It does, for they distribute part of the penalty to the poor of the parish of Cledsheld in com't Kente, infra quom parcell offentium prad cuumfamm fuit. And the justices are iuices of the county of Kent, and file themselves to.
Supplemen. At 7 Gen. 5, it was qualified for per curiam. Their jurisdiction must appear otherwise than as K K

Strange moved to quash an indictment for killing a hare, this not being a matter indictable, the statute of 5 Ann. cap. 14. appointing a summary proceeding before justices of the peace, and cited Rex v. Martin, for the 1st time. The question was whether if an alehouse was quashed, because the statute 3 Car. 1. cap. 3. had directed a particular remedy. Et per cautam; The indictment must be quashed. Stran. 679. Hil. 12 Geo. 1. King v. Buck.

By fl. 9 Ann. cap. 25. fl. 2. it is enacted, That if any person of phaenofent, partriges, moor, hearth-game, or groule, shall be found in the shop, houfe, or poftelion of any perfon or perfons whatsoever not qualified, in his own right, to kill game, or being inculped thereto under fome fentence to fqual, the fame fhall be adjudged, deemed and taken to be an expoing thereof to fale within the true intent and meaning of the above statute 5 Ann.

And by fl. 28 Geo. 2. c. 12. fl. 1. If any perfon or perfons whatsoever, whether qualified or not qualified to kill game, fhall elfe, expofe or offer to fale, any hare, phaenofent, partrige, moor, hearth-game, or groule, for every fuch offence be fubjeft and liable to the fame forfutes, painf and penaltries, as are inflicted by the faid recited act upon higfars, champagne, carriers, inn-keepers, viitufers or ale-houfekeepers, for buying, felling or offering of game to fale. And further, if any fuch phaenofent, partrige, hearth-game or groule, fhall be found in the fhop, houfe or poftelion of any pofterier, falefman, fihmonger, cooker, or pafty-cook, the fame fhall be adjudged, deemed, and taken to be an expoing thereof to fale, within the true intent and meaning of this act, and the faid recited act, or any other act, which faid forfutes fhall be recovefed, and fuch penaltries inflicted, by fuch means, and in fuch manner, and from and within fuch time, and fhall be aplied to fuch ufe as are prefibed by the faid recited act, or by any other act or acts, for the prefervation of the game.

By fl. 5 Geo. 1. cap. 19. fl. 1. Where any perfon fhall, for any offence againft any law in being for prefervation of the game, be liable to pay any pecuniary penalfy upon conviflion before any juftice of peace; it fhall be lawful for any other perfon either to proceed to recover the faid penalfy, or any part thereof, for the fum by fuch penalfy as forfeited, on the cafe, bill, plaint or information, in any court of record at Wifhminfter, and the juftiff, if he recovers, fhall have double cofts.

2. Provided, that all {uits to be brought by force of this act fhall be brought before the end of the next term [by fl. 26 Geo. 2. cap. 2. action must be brought before the end of the fccond term] after the offence committed; and that no offender fhall be prefibed for the fame offence both by the way prefcribed by this law, and by the way prefcribed by any of the former laws; and that in cafe of any fercnd prefecution, the perfon doubly prefecuted may plead in his defence the former prefecution pending, or the convifHon or judgment thereupon.

Debt on 8 Geo. 1. cap. 19. for the penalty of 30l. by using a hound to deftroy game. And after a verdict for the plaintiff the judgment was arrested for 5 Ann. c. 14. by his not being hound, and the words other enines come after nets, &e. and are applicable only to inanimate things, and this being a penal law cannot be extended. The flatute 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 25. has indeed general words, or any other dogs to deftroy game, but this is not a conftitution on that flatute. Stran. 1126. Hil. 13 Geo. 2. Hooker v. Wile.

By fl. 2 Geo. 3. c. 19. fl. 5. It fhall be lawful for any perfon whatsoever, to fure for and recover the whole of the penalty mentioned in the foregoing act of 8 Geo. 1. for his own use, by action of debt, or on the cafe, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Wifhminfter, wherein no cffen, wagger of law, or more than one impaliance, fhall be allowed; and wherein, if he recovers, fhall have his double cofts; and that no part of the faid penalty, recovered in any fuch fuit or action, fhall be paid, or ap- plied to or for the ufe of the poor of the parish wherein fuch offence fhall be committed; any law or ufage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Sect. 6. Provided always, and be it enacted, That no fhall in any cafe, bill, plaint, or information, fhall be brought or exhibited, but within the space of fix months next after the matter or thing done, for which the fame fhall be commenced or exhibited as afofaiid.

3. Statutes concerning the several kinds of game, with cures determined upon them.

Conier. Stat. 21 Ed. 1. fl. 2. If any warreneer fhall find any trepofers wandering within his liberty, intending to do damage therein, and that will not yield themselves after hue and cry made to fhall unto him, but do flee, or defend themselves; although the warreneer, or his affidavit, do kill fuch offenders, they shall not be troubled upon the fame.

Stat. 1 Hen. 7. c. 7. When information fhall be made of unlawful hunting in a warren by night, or with painfled large coyne, the fcentering of which fhall amount to the peace, of any perfon suspected, he may make a warrant to bring fuch perron before himself, or any other of the faid council or juftices; and if fuch perron fhall conceal the faid hunting, or any of his accomplies, it fhall be felony; but if he confefs, it fhall be but treble felonie to him, which fhall be deemed as afection, and Lord Coke's Commentary on it in A new Treatife on the Law of the Game, lately published, pag. 9—16.

Sect. 3. Stat. 1. c. 13. fl. 2. If any perfon fhall in the night-time enter into any grounds inclosed, and used for keeping of coyne, and fright, drive out, take, or kill any coyne: he fhall, on conviction at the fuit of the King or of the party, at the affifes or jeftions, on indictment, bill, information, or otherwise, forfeit 10l. to the party grievous, or trelble damages and coyne, at the election of the party; and find forfeites for his good behav- ing for seven years, or continue in prifon till he does.

Sect. 5. If any perfon not having lands or heredita- ments of 40l. a year, or not worth in goods 200l. fhall use any gun or bow to kill coyne, or fhall keep any fer- rets or coney-dogs (except he has grounds included for keeping of fuch coyne); or keep for the breeding or keeping of any coyne, or coyne-dogs, in fuch cafe, any perfon having 100l. a year may feize the fame to his own ufe.

Sect. 7. But this fhall not extend to any grounds to be included and ufed for coyne after the making of this act, without the afent of the party.

Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 25. fl. 4. If any perfon fhall at any time enter wrongfully into any warren or ground lawfully ufed or kept for the breeding or keeping of coyne, whether it be inclosed or not; and there fhall chafe, take, or kill any coyne; and fhall be thereof convicted in one month after the offence, before one juftice, by confelfion, or oath of one witnefs, he fhall yield to the party grievous treble damages and coyne, and be imprifonned three months, and after, till he find forfeites for his good behaving.

Sect. 9. Provided no perfon fhall kill or take in the night any coyne upon the borders of warrens, or other grounds lawfully ufed for the breeding or keeping of coyne (except the owner or poiffessor of the ground, or perfons employed by them); on pain that the offender, on conviction in one month after the offence, before one Juftice, by confelfion, or oath of one witnefs, fhall allow to the party injured such damages, and in fuch time as fhall be ap- pointed by the juftice, and over and above pay down presently to the overfeer for the ufe of the poor fuch fun not exceeding 10l. as the juftice fhall appoint; which it is fhall be lawful to the juftice fhall commit him to the comittee for correction for fuch time as he fhall think fit, not exceeding one month.

Sect. 6. If any perfon fhall be found or apprehended fering or uing any fakes, or other like engines, and fhall be thereof in like manner convicted, he fhall give to the party 2 ried such damages, and in such time as the justice shall appoint, and pay down presently to the overseer for the use of the poor such sum not exceeding to 10s., as the justice shall appoint; which if he shall not do, the justice shall commit him to the house of correction not exceeding 40 days.

Sect. 4. Upon the borders of warrens:] But if they are out of the warren, no person hath any property in them, and a man may justly killing them if they eat up his corn; but no action lies against the owner of the warren.

So a person that hath a right of common may kill them, when they are out of the warren, and destroy the common; but he cannot have an action on the case against the Lord, for that would be to create a multiplicity of actions.

A commoner cannot kill the coyes which are upon the common. Gethb. 122.Cro. Ellis. 876. 1 Brede 227.

Lords of the soil may make coney-burrows. 1 Lestw. 1073. Transgressors for killing a man's coyes in his copo. Lam. 350.

Justices of peace cannot affile a fine certain for killing of rabbits in a private warren, Ld. Raym. 151. Information in nature of a Quo warranto is not to be filed at the instance of a private protector for setting up a warren. Ld. Raym. 1490. See the treatise preceding at full length, in A New Treatise on the Laws of Game, lately published, page 21-42.

By sect. 9 Geo. 1. c. 22. commonly called the Black Act, if any person being armed and disguised, shall appear in any warren or place where coyes are usually kept, or unlawfully rob any such warren; or (whether armed and disguised or not) shall refuse any person in custody for such offence, or procure any person to join him therein; he shall be guilty of felony without benefit of clergy.

Stat. 5 Geo. 3. c. 14. sect. 6. Whereas there are many instances where the land in this respect is insufficient for cultivation, and yet the game are capable of rendering great profit, by the breeding and maintaining coyes, as well to the owners of such lands, as to a multitude of industrious manufacturers, who gain their livelihood by working up coye wool: And whereas a great part of the said land is already used as warrens, in the breeding and maintaining coyes, but, because divers disorderly persons, neglecting their own lawful trades, have betaken themselves to the taking, killing, and stealing of coyes, in the night-time, whereby the owners and occupiers of such warrens are greatly discouraged, and many fields which were formerly capable of producing good hay have been destroyed, and the said coyes have been eaten, and other coyes have been deterred from flocking other lands, to the great prejudice of the manufacturers of this kingdom: And whereas the provisions already subjoined have, by experience, been found insufficient for the ordinary preservation of coyes in warrens: For remedy thereof, Be it further enacted, That if any person or persons shall, from and after the first day of June 1765, wilfully and wrongfully fly, in the night-time enter into any warren or grounds lawfully used or kept for the breeding or keeping of coyes, although the fame be not included, and shall then and there wilfully and wrongfully take or kill, in the night-time, any coye or coyes, against the will of the owner or occupier thereof, or shall be aiding and abetting therein, and shall be convicted of the fame before any of his Majesty's justices of oyer and terminer, or general gaol delivery, for the county where such offence or offences be committed; every such person and persons for offending, and being thereof lawfully convicted in such manner aforesaid, shall, and may be transported for the space of seven years, or suffer such other lether punishment by whipping, fine, or imprisonment, as the court, before whom such person or persons shall be tried, shall, in their discretion, order and direct.

Sect. 7. Provided always, and be it enacted, That no person who shall be convicted of any offence against this act, shall be liable to be convicted for any such offence under any former act or acts, law or laws, now in force.

Sect. 8. And whereas great mischief and damage has been, and still may be, occasioned by the increase of coyes upon the sea and river banks in the county of Lincln, or upon the land or ground within a certain distance from the said banks: For remedy thereof, Be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that nothing in this act contained shall extend to, or prevent any person or persons from killing and destroying, or from taking and carrying away, in the day-time, any coyes that shall be found on any sea or river banks, erected, or to be erected, for the preservation of the adjoining lands from being overflowed by the sea or river waters, so far as the flux and reflux of the tide does or shall extend, or upon any land or ground within one furlong distance of such sea or river banks; but that it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons, to enter upon any such banks, land, or ground as aforesaid, within the said county of Lincn, and to kill, destroy, take, and carry away in the day-time, to his or their own use, any coyes so found upon any such banks, land, or ground as aforesaid, within the said county, he or they doing as little damage as may be to the owner or tenant of such banks, land, or ground; any thing in this or any other act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Sect. 9. Provided also, That no person or persons shall be obliged to make satisfaction for any damages that may be occasioned by such entry, unless such damages shall exceed the value of one halfpenny.

Dor. Stat. West. 1. (3 Ed. 1. c. 20.) If trespasers in parks be thereof attained at the suit of the party, great and large amends shall be awarded according to the trespass, and they shall have three years imprisonment, and after the term, clear and free of the King's pleasur (if they have whereof,) and then shall find good sureties, otherwise they shall not commit the like trespass: and if they have not whereof to make fine, after three years imprisonment, they shall find like sureties; and if they cannot find sureties, they shall abjure the realm. And if none sue within the year and day, the King shall have the suit.

Trespasers.] This is, when a man either chafeth in a park, or endeavours to kill some of the game thereof. 2 Lestw. 199.

In park:] This act is to be understood of a lawful park only, whereunto three things are required, 1. A liberty, either by grant or prescription. 2. Inclosure by pale, wall or hedge, and 3. Beasts of the same. 2 Lestw. 199. See this statute, and Lord Coke's Commentary upon it at full length, in A New Treatise on the Laws for Preservation of the Game, lately published, pages 43-47.

Stat. 21 Ed. 1. c. 2. If any forester or parker shall find any trespasers wandering within his liberty, intending to do damage therein, and that will not yield themselves after hue and cry made to fland unto the peace, but do continue their malice, and disobeying the King's peace do flee, or defend themselves with force and arms, aloft such forester, parker, or their assistants, to kill such offenders, they shall not be troubled upon the fame.

Stat. 1 Hen. 7. c. 7. When information shall be made, of a man hunting in any forest or park, by night, or with painted coyes, to any other place, but to a justice of the peace, of any person to be unjustly thereof, he may make a warrant to take the person, and to have him before the maker of the warrant, or any other of the said council, or justices of the peace; who may by their discretion examine him of the said hunting, and of the said doers in that behalf: And if the said person wilfully conceal the said hunttings, or any person with him defenlive therein, that then the same conceal ment be, against every such person so concealing, felony, but if he be convicted of the truth, and all that he shall be examined of, and known in the trial, be freed, and the said offences of hunting by him done, shall be but trespass noisible at the next general sessions. And if any refrus or disobedience be made to any person having authority to execute the warrant, by any person the which so should be arrested, so that the execution of the warrant thereby be not had, then the said recous and difference shall be felony. And if any person shall be convicted of any such hunting, shooting with printed faces, visors, or otherwise disfigured, to the intent they should not be known, or of unlawful hunting in time of night, then the said warrant shall be valid, to have like punishment as he should have if he were convicted of felony.

When information shall be made.] This information must be made by the said naturalists, and it must be in writing, and be delivered in the same manner as the warrant. 3d part. c. 21. Sec. the foregoing part, and Lord Coke's Commentary upon it at full length in a New Treatise on the Laws of the Game, lately published, page 9—16.

Stat. 10 Hen. 7. c. 11. No person, not having any park, chase or forest of his own, shall have any cause to be heard before the said twelve buckstallants, on pain of 10l. a month, to him who shall refuse by act of debt: or the justices in feis may call before them any persons suspected, and examine them: and if they be found in default, may commit them till they have found surety for payment of the forfeiture to the King; and shall have the tenth part of such forfeiture for their labour.

Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 21. fett. 3. If any person unlawfully break or enter into any park impaled, or any other feudal ground closed with wall, pale or hedge, and used for the breeding of deer, or any where hunting be made or take, or take to hunt, any deer within such park, &c., or shall take away any hawks, or the eggs of them, unlawfully out of the woods or ground of any person, (not having lawful authority to do) and thereof be convicted as aforesaid, he shall likewise suffer imprisonment for three months, and after the said three months expired, shall find sureties for his good behaviour for seven years; and if he remain in prison until he find such sureties during the said seven years.

Stat. 4. Provided, that this act extend not to any park or inclosed ground, to be made and used for deer, without the grant and licence of the Queen.

Stat. 5. It shall be lawful for the party grieved to take his further remedy against all such offenders for his damages, and to recover the treble value of the same, as well before justices of eyre and terminer, justices of affize, and justices of peace, as elsewhere in any other the Queen's courts of record; and upon satisfactiion of the treble damages, or upon the confession thereof by the party, before the justices in open seisin, it shall be at the liberty of the party grieved, to receive the forfeiture or fine above mentioned.

Stat. 6. The justices of eyre and terminer, justices of affize, and justices of the peace, and gaol delivery in their seis, shall have power to inquire, hear and determine the offences aforesaid, as well upon informations taken before them, as by bill of complaint, information or any other action.

Stat. 7. If any person shall be bound before any of the justices to the Queen, for his good behaviour for seven years, according to this act, and the party so bound shall within the seven years come before the justice of peace of the county, where the offence was committed, in pursuance of the said conviction, and be convicted of such offence, and satisfy the justice grieved according to this act; the justices may within the seven years discharge the recognizance and the party.

Stat. 3 Jac. 1. cap. 13. fett. 2. If any person shall unlawfully enter into any park, or grounds inclosed with wall, pale or hedge, and used for the keeping of deer or coys, and unlawfully hunt, chase, or kill, or any deer or coys within such park or grounds, against the will of the owner, and thereof shall be convicted at the suit of the King or the party, he shall suffer imprisonment of three months, and shall pay to the party the treble damages and costs, to be addited by the justices before whom to be convicted, and shall find sureties for his good abusiness for seven years, or else he shall remain in prison until he find such sureties during the said seven years.

Stat. 3. The justices of eyre and terminer, justices of affize, justices of the peace and gaol delivery in their dear wounded, taken or killed thirty pounds, to be levied by diffs and sale of goods by warrant from the justice before whom the conviction shall be made; one third part to the informer, another third part to the poor of the parish where the offence shall be committed, and the other third to the owner of the deer. And for want of diffs they shall be imprisoned a year, and set on the pillage an hour, on some market-day in the town next adjoining to the place where the offence was committed, by the chief officer of such market towns or his under officers.

Sect. 3. Convicts, headboroughs and tithemen, by a justice’s warrant may enter and search as for stolen goods the houses and other places of suspected persons;
and if any venison or skins of deer, or tolls be found,
shall be seized and apprized in the same manner and by the same rules of evidence; and if he do not give a good account how he came by them, or in convenient time produce the party of whom he bought them, or prove such fale upon oath, he shall be convicted of such offence, and be subject to the penalties hereby inflicted for killing a deer.

Sect. 4. The convict or other officer or persons prosecuting may detain such offenders in custody, if they do not presently pay the monies due by the conviction, till a return may be made of the warrant for diffs, such detainer not exceeding two days.

Sect. 5. No return or entry of any act under them, may reftit such offenders, and be indemnified as if such fact had been committed in an ancient chase or park.

Sect. 6. No certiorari shall be allowed to remove any proceeding upon this act, unless the party convicted shall before it be allowed become bound to the procurator in fifty pounds for his sureties to bring before the justice of the fite, to pay within a month after the conviction confirmed, or a procedendo granted, their costs to be aftertained upon oath.

Sect. 7. No offender punished by virtue of this act shall incur the penalty of any other law for the same offence.

Sect. 8. Persons prosyected for any thing done in pur-fuance of this act may plead the general issue.

Sect. 9. If any persons shall in the night-time pull down or destroy the pales or walls of any park, forest, close, or other ground inclosed where deer shall be kept;
such persons being convicted by oath of one witness before a justice of peace, shall by such justice’s warrant suffer imprisonment for three months.

Sect. 2. Unlawfully hunt, kill] Where a man kills deer in pursuance of a propered right which he has, he is not within the intent of this, or any other act against deerfealing. L. Rom. 584.

Where deer are usually kept] These words extend only to ground inclosed. Stran. 1119.

A person who for killing deer was removed into the King’s Bench by certiorari, and was quashed, because it is said only that he killed deer in quaedam loco, where they had been usually kept, and did not say inclosed. L. Rom.
791.

Or be aiding or afflicting therein] On a conviction, the question was, whether he who went dogs to another to hunt, was aiding and afflicting therein, to wit, in the hunting, and not the opinion of three judges he was;
but Holt Ch. J. was of a contrary opinion, for this being a penal law shall be construed strically; and if so, then he who lent the dogs could not be afflicting in the act of hunting, and to none within the words of the statute, aiding or afflicting therein, that he might be afflicting there-unto. 2 Sect. 545, 543.

And shall be held lawful] There ought to be a summons
in this and in all other like cases, to warrant a conviction;
and that ought to give a reasonable time to appear in. But if the defendant hath appeared, it curtes the want of summons. 3 Sal. 181, 383. A deer-fealer may be convicted before appearance, if duly summoned: And the defendant may appoint an attorney to defend him, and the judges cannot enforce him to appear in person. Stran.
44.

Vol. II. No. 82.

Oath of one witness] This must not be upon the single oath of the informer; and a conviction was quashed for that reason; divers convictions having been quashed for the same reason before. Ld. Raym. 1545. Stran. 316.

Prosecuted in 12 months after the offence] A conviction being returned on a certiorari, the objection was, that the conviction appeared to be a year after the day of the information, and that it was held good to conviction be professed within a year after the fact; for that it is a good commencement of the suit, and it is from that the composition is made in all such cases. 1 Sal. 383.
But by the Black Act, this prosecution may be continued at any time within three years after the offence.

Wounded, taken or killed thirty pounds] Where several persons are convicted, they shall forfeit each 30l. and not one sum of 30l. for all. 1 Sal. 182.

Leved by diffs] Tho’ the sale of the goods is not mentioned in the statute, yet nevertheless where the law gives a diffs for a publick benefit, the officer may fall. 1 Sal.
579.

By warrant from the justice] Altho’ the convictable is not appointed to execute this warrant, nor is he so much as named in the clause; yet he is bound to obey the warrant, and is indictible if he do not. But he need not return as a warrant of his own, for that is not required, and it may be necessary to keep it for his own justification;
but he must either return the warrant, or certify what he has done upon it. 1 Sal. 381.

One third part to the informer] The penalty need not be distributed by the conviction, viz. 10l. to the in-former, 2ol. to the poor, and 10l. to the party griev’d;
for the judgment in such cases seldom mentions a disbur-fen; it is enough to say, that he is convicted, and heard forfeited 30l. according to the statute. 1 Sal.
383.

Sufficient diffs] If the justice finds there is nothing to detrain, then he must make a record thereof, and make an adjudication for corporal punishment; but the offender is not to pay part, and suffer corporally for the refuter. L. Rom. 545, 1195, 6.

The defendant was committed for want of diffs, and the warrant for that, it had been certified to the justice by the convictable, that there was not sufficient diffs. It was objected, that there ought to have been a warrant to levy, and a return to that, that there was no diffs; it may be the convictable only told him so.
But by the court, the warrant was void, as it lacked the word certificated imports to be in a legal manner. Stran.
263. See all those cases at full length in A New Treatise

Stat. 5 Geo. 1. cap. 15. sect. 1. No certiorari shall be allowed to remove any proceedings concerning any matter in the act 3 & 4 W. IV. & M. cap. 10. unless the party convicted shall before allowance of such certiorari, and at the same time that security is given for payment of costs, become bound to the justice before whom such conviction was made, with sureties to be approved of by the justice, in the penalty of 30l. for each offence, with condition to prosecute such certiorari with effect, and to pay such justice the forfeiture due by such conviction, to be distributed as the statute directs, or to render the person convicted to such justice in one month after the conviction shall be confirmed, or a procedendo granted; and in default the justice may proceed to execution as if no certiorari had been awarded.

Sect. 2. After confirmation of any conviction on the said statute by any superior court, and delivering the rule to the justice, whereby such conviction hath been so conformed, such justice may proceed against the party convicted as in the penalty of 30l. for each offence had been laid.

Sect. 3. Any person sued for any thing done in pur-fuance of this act, or of the said act of 3 & 4 W. IV. & M.
cap. 10. may plead the general issue, and if a verdict pas, for the defendant, &c. the defendant shall have treble costs.
Every person convicted by virtue of the said act, shall, before he be discharged out of custody, be brought to the person against whom the offence was committed in fifty pounds, with condition for his good behaviour, and not to offend in like manner, and on refusal of the sureties of the said bonds, shall be committed to the county jail until such bond be given; and if such person after his becoming bound be convicted of any matter in the said Statute, the bond shall be forfeited and the penalty recovered, with costs, in any court at Higheimster, which penalties shall be distributed in the same manner as the forfeitures are by the said statute, and the party convicted shall be likewise liable to the penalties therein.

If the keeper or other officer of any forest, &c., where deer are usually kept, shall be convicted on the statute of 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 10, for killing and taking away any deer, or deer-stealing without the consent of the owner or person chiefly intrusted with the custody of such forest, &c., he shall forfeit fifty pounds for each deer so killed, &c., to be levied by distriffs, and distributed as the forfeitures in the said act are to be, and for want of distriffs he shall be imprisoned three years, and be set in the pillory two hours in some market-day in the town next the place where the offence was committed, by the chief or under-officers of such town.

If any person shall pull down or destroy the piles or walls of any park, &c., where any deer shall be kept, without the consent of the owner or person chiefly intrusted with the custody of such park, &c., or of one witness, before one justice of the county where the offence is committed, he shall be subjected to the forfeitures by the act 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 10, inflicted for killing one deer.

The defendant being brought up from Newgate by the order of the judges, it appeared upon the return, that he was convicted for deer-stealing, as the statute of the 3 W. &c., 12, directeth, not having sufficient distriffs; and that it was done by one justice under the statute of the 3 W. &c.

And excepted to the warrant, that it doth not appear, the conviction of the defendant thereof, that the rule for confirmation was delivered to the justice, and therefore the justice could not proceed to execution: For the statute gives to the justice a jurisdiction after confirmation, which he had not before; and therefore he ought to have every thing requisite to found his jurisdiction upon. But by the court; We take notice of our own records, and by them it appears that the statute is not confirmed: And the statute doth not give the justice a new jurisdiction, but only revives his old one, which was superseded by the common. And the defendant was remanded. Sir. 293.

Stat. 5 Geo. 1. cap. 28, sect. 1. If any person shall enter any park or other enclosed ground, or wood, and therein wound or kill any deer there, without the consent of the true owner or person intrusted with the custody of such park, &c., or shall be aiding therein, and being indicted for such offence before any judge of gaol delivery in the county wherein such park, &c., shall lie, and be convicted thereof by verdict or confession, he shall be sent to some of his Majesty's plantations in America for seven years; and the court before whom he shall be convicted, or any subsequent court, shall have power to transfer such offender by order of court to the use of any person who shall contract for the performance of certain work.

No thing herein shall repeal any former law made for the punishment of deer-stealers, and when any offender shall be punished by force of this act, he shall not be punished by force of any other law.

There be several instances against the statute 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 10, may be commenced within three years from the offence committed.

If any venison or skin of a deer be found in the custody of any person, and it shall appear that he bought it of one that might justly be suspected to have ill-gotten the same, and that he did not produce the person from whom he bought it, or prove upon oath the name and place of abode of such party; then the person who bought the same shall be convicted of such offence by any one justice of peace, and shall be fined to the penalties for killing a deer, by Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 10. See title Black Act.

Sect. 7. If any person who shall hereafter be convicted of unlawful hunting, killing, wounding, or taking deer in any uninclosed forest or chase where deer are usually kept, shall during the continuance of the act 9 Geo. 1. cap. 22, [which see in Black Act] be guilty of a second offence of the like nature, and shall thereof be convicted upon indictment or information; such person shall be transported to one of his Majesty's plantations in America for seven years; And if he shall return to Great Britain or Ireland within the said seven years, he shall be guilty of felony without benefit of clergy.

Sect. 8. The defendant may be tried for such second offence before the justices of the shire, oven and terminer, or gaol-delivery of the county or place where such second offence shall be committed, and the justice before whom such offender was convicted of such former offence, shall certify a copy of such conviction to the next quarter-sessions of the county wherein such first offence was committed, to be kept amongst the records; and the clerk of the peace shall, at the request of the procurator, or any other in his Majesty's behalf, certify a transcript briefly containing the effect of the first conviction, which shall be a sufficient proof that such offender hath been convicted of such former offence.

Sect. 9. If any person armed with offensive weapons shall, during the continuance of the said act, come into any forest, chase or park wherein deer are usually kept, with an intent to course, hunt, take in toils, kill, wound, or take away any red or fallow deer, and shall there unlawfully beat or wound any person or keep or possess such forest, chase or park, their servants or allies in the execution of their offices, and be thereof convicted; such person shall be transported to his Majesty's plantations in America for seven years; and if such person returns to Great Britain or Ireland within the seven years, he shall be guilty of felony without benefit of clergy.

Stat. 28 Geo. 2, cap. 19, sect. 3. Whereas the burning and destroying of gofs, furze, and fern in forests and chasses, doth destroy the cover necessary for the preservation of the deer and game there; therefore if any person, not having a right or legal licence to do the same, shall set fire to, burn, or destroy (or be aiding therein) any gofs, furze, or fern in any forest or chase, without consent of the owner, or person chiefly intrusted with the custody of such forest or chase, or of some part thereof, and being brought before a justice, shall be thereof convicted by confession, or oaths of two witnesses, or by verdict or confession, he shall be fined not exceeding five pounds, or less than forty shillings, half to the informer, and half to the poor, and if not forthwith paid, to be levied by distriffs; and if no sufficient distriffs can be found, the justice shall commit him to the common gaol, for any time not exceeding three months, nor less than one month.

See title Fifth.
month, nor less than ten days, there to be whipt, and kept to hard labour.

Stat. 9 Ann. c. 25. § 3. If any person whatsoever shall take or kill any mhoor, heath-game, or grouse, in the nature, place, or aught, not to offend a justice, on oath of one witness, forfeit five pounds, half to the informer, and half to the poor, by diffrets; and for want of difcrets to be sent to the house of correction three months for the first time, and for every other offence four months.

Stat. 1 & 2 15 Hen. 8. c. 10. No perfon or persons, of what estate, degree or condition they be, from henceforth shall traxe, destroy and kill any hare in the snow with any dog, bitch, or otherwise. And that the justices of the peace, within every shire, at every fifeons of every county, by their sentence, shall have the power and authority to inquire of such offenders. And after such infinuations found, the said justices of the peace, and stews of for, for every hare so killed, Half to be upon every Such offender six shillings and eight pence, to be forfeited to our said Sovereign Lord, that shall be so found by the justices of peace in their seessions, and the forfeiture found in every leet to be to the Lord of the leet.

Stat. 23 Eliz. c. 10. § 5. If any manner of persons shall hunt with spanels in any ground where corn or other grain shall then grow (except in his own ground,) at such time as any earred corn or grain shall be growing in that place; and if any shall be found to hunt, or be thereof convicted at the aijces, affecions, or leet; he shall forfeit 40s. to the owner of the corn; and if not paid in ten days, he shall be imprisoned for one month. And any justice may examine the offender, and bind him over to appear at the next sessions to answer the offence, and for paying two hundred pounds to the publick,

Stat. 1 1 John c. 1. § 27. 2. Every person who shall shoot at, kill or destroy any hare, with any gun or bow, shall on conviction before two justices, by confession, or oath of two witnesses, be committed to gaol three months, unless he pay to the churchwardens for the use of the poor, 20s. for every hare; or after one month after his commitment become bound by recognizance with two sureties before two justices, in 20l. apiece, not to offend again in like manner. The recognizance to be returned to the next sessions. And every person, who shall traxe or course any hares in the snow, shall on conviction before two justices, by confession, or oath of two witnesses, be committed to gaol for three months, unless he pay to the churchwardens for the use of the poor, 20s. for every hare; or after one month after his commitment become bound by recognizance with two sureties before two justices, in 20l. apiece, not to offend again in like manner. And every person who shall at any time take or destroy any hare, with hare-pipes, cords, or any such instruments or other engines, shall forfeit for every hare 20s. in like manner.

Stat. 4. Every person who shall fell, or buy to sell again, any hare, shall, on conviction at the aijices or fetions, or before two justices out of seessions, forfeit for every hare 10s. half to the poor, and half to him that will sue.

Stat. 23 & 24 Car. 2. cap. 25. sect. 6. If any person shall be found or apprehended setting or using any faires, hare-pipes, or other like engines, or by any such engines, as by any conviction, by confession, or oath of one witness, before one justice, in one month after the offence; he shall give to the party injured such damages, and in such time, as the justice shall appoint, and shall pay down presently to the overrever for the use of the poor, such sum not exceeding the sum of money which he shall not do, the justice shall commit him to the house of correction not exceeding one month.

Stat. 9 Ann. c. 25. sect. 3. If any person whatsoever shall take or kill any hare in the night-time, he shall on conviction before one justice, on oath of one witness, forfeit 5l. for every hare, by the information of one, by diffrets; and for want of diffrets to be sent to the house of correction for three months for the first offence, and for every other offence four months.

G A M

G A M

By Stat. 9 Geo. 1. c. 22, commonly called the Act, if any person, armed and disguised, shall appear in any warren or place where hares are usually kept, or unlawfully rob any such warren; or (whether armed and disguised or not) shall use any perfon in custody for either of the said offences, as a means of paying him with any such unlawful act; he shall be guilty of felony without benefit of clergy.

Handker and provosting. Stat. 34 Ed. 3. c. 22. Every person who fineth a tawsk, terecist, later, or laterc, or other hawk that is left, shall presently bring the same to the sherif; and the sherif shall make proof thereof and despatch it in all the good towns in the county, that he hath such an hawk in his custody; and if he is challenged in four months, the owner shall have him again, paying the costs: If he is not challenged in four months, the sherif shall have him, making good the expense, if he be a simple man; but if he be a gentleman, and of estate to have the hawk, taking of him reasonable costs for the time that he had him in his custody.

Stat. 37 Ed. 3. c. 19. If any man feel any hawk, and the same carry away, not doing the ordinance afore-said; it shall be done of him as of a thief, thatareth a horfe or other thing. (That is, he shall be guilty of felony, but shall have his clergy. 3 Bay. 68.)

Stat. 11 Hen. 7. c. 17. No manner of person, of what condition or degree he be, shall take or cause to be taken, or destroy, or destroy to his own ground, or any other man's, the eggs of any falven hawk, or hawk, or hawk, or hawk, with purpose to destroy the same in any manner. And the said hawk shall be upon the ground where the eggs were taken. And no man shall bear or have a hawk of the breed of England, called a nyfel, godhawk, tafeil, later, later, tafeil, or taseil, or hawk, or hawk, or hawk, on pain of defeating his hawk to the King. And if he bring any of them over sea, or out of Scotland, he shall bring a certificate thereof from the officer of the port, or warden of the march; on the like pain of defeating the same to the King. And the person that bringeth any such hawk to the King, shall have a reasonable reward of the King, or else the hawk for his labour. And no man shall take any ayre, faltcon, godhawk, tafeil, later, later, or later, in their warren, wood, or other place; nor purposely drive them out of their covertts accomplished to breed in, to cause them to go to other covertts to breed; nor lay them for any hurt done them; On pain of ten pounds, half to him that will sue before the justices of the peace, and half to the King.

Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 21. sect. 3. If any person shall take away any hawks or their eggs, by any means unlawfully, out of the warren, or ground of any person; and be thereof convicted at the aijices, assizes, or inquisitions, on indictment, bill, or information, at the suit of the King, or of the party; he shall be imprisoned three months, and shall pay treble damages; and after the three months expired, shall find forfeites for his good behaviour for seven years, or remain in prison till the same.

Stat. 23 Eliz. c. 16. If any person of any manner of hawk in another man's corn after it is eared, and before it is hocked; and be convicted at the aijices, eggs, or leet; he shall forfeit 40s. to the owner: And if not paid in ten days, he shall be imprisoned for a month.

Partridges and pheasants. Stat. 11 Hen. 7. c. 17. it is enacted, That no person, of what condition he be, shall take or cause to be taken, any pheasants or partridges, by nets, snares or other engines, out of his own warren, upon the freehold of any other person, without the special licence of the owner or possessor of the same; on pain of 10l. half to him that shall sue, and half to the owner or possessor of the ground where they shall be taken.

Stat. 23 Eliz. c. 16. If any person, of what estate, degree or condition forever, shall take, kill or destroy any pheasants or partridges in the night-time; and be thereof convicted at the aijices, eggs, or leet; he shall forfeit for every pheasant 20s., and for every partridge, 6d., half to him that shall sue, and half to the lord of the manor.
manor, unless such lord shall likewise or procure the fish taking or killing, in which case the said half shall go to the poor, to be recovered by any warrant, suit, or action brought in the next court after conviction, or shall be imprisoned for one month. And moreover, besides such forfeiture and imprisonment, he shall give bond to some justic of the peace, with good security not to offend again in like manner for the space of two years.

Sect. 1. 7 Jac. 1. c. 27. sect. 2. Every person who shall fcout at, kill or destroy any pheasant or partridge, with any gun or bow; or shall take, kill or destroy them with setting-dogs and nets, or with any manner of nets, snares, engines, or instruments whatsoever; shall be fined half a pound in the next; and on conviction before two justices, by confession, or oath of two witnesses, be committed to goal for 3 months, unless he pay upon conviction to the churchwardens for the use of the poor 20l. for every pheasant, partridge, or egg; or after one month his commitment, become bound by recognizance with two sureties, forfeit for every pheasant 10l. and for every partridge 20l. half to him that will sue, and half to the poor.

Stat. 7 Jac. 1. t. 11. selt. 2. Every person whatsoever, who shall hawk at, destroy or kill, whether for game or partridge, with any kind of hawk or dog, by colour of hawking, between the first of July and the last of August, on conviction before two justices, by confession or oath of two witnesses, in six months after the offence, be committed to goal for one month, unless he pay upon conviction to the churchwardens or overseers for the use of the poor, 40l. for every such hawkings at any pheasant or partridge, and 20l. for every such pheasant or partridge which he, his hawk or dog shall take or kill.

Sect. 7. Every free warrener, lord of a manor, or freeholder feised in his own or his wife's right, of 40l. a year esate of inheritance, or 50l. esate of 80l. or worth in goods 400l., may take pheasants and partridges (in the day-time only) in his own free warren, manor or freehold, betwixt Michaelmas and Christmas yearly.

Sect. 8. Every person, who shall take, kill or destroy any pheasant or partridge, with setting-dogs and nets, or otherwise with any manner of nets, snares, engines, or instruments whatsoever; shall, on conviction before two justices, by confession, or oath of one witness, be committed to goal for three months, unless he forthwith pay to the churchwardens or overseers 20l. for every pheasant or partridge; and further to become bound by recognizance of 20l. before one justice, that he shall not therefor kill or destroy any pheasant or partridge. The recognizance to be filed at the next assizes.

Stat. 9. 6 Hen. 8. sect. 25. If any person whatsoever shall take or kill any pheasant or partridge in the night-time, he shall, on conviction before one justice, on oath of one witness, forfeit 5l. half to the informer, and half to the poor, by reason of which informations and be sent to the house of correction for three months for the first offence, and for every other offence four months.

Stat. 2. 6 Geo. 3. c. 19. For the better preservation of this game in the kingdom, may it please your most Excellent Majesty, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, and by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that no person or persons, after the first day of June 1752, shall, upon any pretence whatsoever, take, kill, destroy, carry, sell, or have in his or her possession, or be in any pheasant, between the 12th day of February and the first day of September in any year; or any pheasant between the first day of February and the first day of October in any year; or any fowl, commonly called black-game, between the first day of January and the 20th day of August of any year, shall be shot or killed by any person, whether on the day without the licence of a justice; and that all the money to be forfeited therein shall be paid into his Majesty's exchequer, and there to remain and be kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding three calendar months.
wild fowl with their spaniels only, without using a net or other engine, except the long bow.

Sect. 5. No person from March 1. to June 30. yearly, shall take or destroy the eggs of any mallard, teal or other water fowl, on pain of a year's imprisonment, and of forfeiting for every egg one shilling, half to the King, and the rest, in half and half, for the use of the court, or debt; or the justices of the peace may determine the same as in cases of trespas.

No manner of person, from the first day of March to the last day of June yearly, shall, by day or night, take or destroy any eggs of any kind of wild fowl, from time in any nest or place, of the court they shall chance to be laid by any kind of the same fowl; on pain of imprisonment for a year, and to forfeit for every egg of a burdaff 20 l. of a bitour or shavelard 8 d. and of other wild fowl (except crows, ravens, blackbirds or other fowls used to be eaten) 2 l. half to the King, and half to him that shall give by action of debt: Alto the justices of the peace may determine the same, as in cases of trespas.

Stat. 12 1. 5. 1. 27. 2. Every person who shall flout at, kill, or destroy with any gun or bow, any mallard, duck, teal or wigeon, and the fame be proved by the confession of two witnesses, or by the admission of the person that shall be committed to gaol for three months, unless he pay to the churchwardens for the use of the poor 20 l. or after one month after commitment become bound by recognizance with two sureties, before two juftices, in 20 l. each, not to offend again in like manner: Which recognizance shall be returned to the person committed.

Stat. 9 Ann. cap. 25. sect. 4. relating, That whereas very great numbers of wild fowl of several kinds are destroyed by the pernicious practice of driving and taking them with hayes, tunnels, and other nets, in the fens, lakes, and broad waters, where fowll resort in the mauling fTeaTe, and that at the time, the fowll are fick and moulding their feathers, and the flesh unsavoury and unwholesome, to the prejudice of those who buy them, and to the great damage and decay of the breed of wild fowl; it is therefore enacted, That if any person or persons whatsoever, [between June 1. and October 1. yearly, 10 Geo. 2. c. 32.] shall by hayes, tunnels, or other nets, drive and take any wild duck, teal, wigeon, or any other fowl, commonly reputed water fowl, in any of the fens, lakes, broad waters, or other places of resort for wild fowl in the mauling feaTe, fuch person or persons who fhall so offend, and thereupon be conveiTed before any one or more of her Majesty’s juftices of the peace, and committed, for fhich offence fhall be committed by one of more crefible wittneffes, fhall, for every wild duck, teal, or other water fowl fow as aforesaid, forfeit and pay the fum of five fhilling; one moiety thereof to be paid to the informer, and the other moiety to the poor of the parish where fuch offence fhall be committed; the fame to be levied by diftrefs and fale of the offender’s goods, by warrant under the hand and fce of the juftice and juftices of the peace before whom the offender fhall be convicted, rendering the overplus, (if any be) above the penaity, and one moiety thereof to the diftrefs, and for want of diftrefs the offender fhall be committed to fentence, for any time not exceffing one month, nor lefs than fourteen days, there to be whipped, and kept to hard labour; and the juftice or juftices of the peace, before whom fuch person or persons for offending fhall be convicted, fhall order fuch hayes, nets, or tunnels, that were used in driving the fowll of wild fowl, as aforesaid, to be fected and immediately destroyed in the presence of fuch juftice or juftices.

Cutting. It feems that by the Common law, the playing at cards, dice, &c. when praticed innocently and as a recreation, the better to fit a perfon for bufines, is not at unlawful, nor punishable for whatsoever 2 Vent. 175. 5 Med. 1. 1 Suld. 100.

Alfo it is agreed, that a perfon who wins money at gaming, may maintain a special indebitatus aiumfit to it; for the contract is not unlawful in itself, and the winner’s M m venturing venturing his money is a sufficient consideration to inti-mite him to the action. 3 Lev. 118. 6 Mod. 138.
5 Ac. 149. 2 Tert. 175.
But it seems to be the better opinion, that a general indebitatus assumpsit will not lie for money won at play, for the contract is executory, and but a wager, which is but a collateral promise; and this action will lie in case of gambling, but not for bargains on the cafe but where debts will lie, which must be on a contract executed, such as labour dues, or some other meritorious caufe. 6 Mod. 138. Lobb. 180. 5 Mod. 13. and Carth. 338. S. P. where it is said, that the chief reason of this opinion was, because the court would not countenance gaming, by giving such an easy remedy for money won at play; and see 3 Lev. 118. and 2 Tert. 175.
But an indebitatus assumpsit lies against him who holds the wager, because it is a promise in law to deliver it, if won. 5 Mod. 13. If upon a wager the money is depositioned in the hands of a third person, and the determination left to two, and one of them refuses to determine the matter, no action lies on such a wager on the judgment, and the party may justify the detainer; but if it happened that the wager became impossible to be determined, as if the judges died, or the time were paff, then the wager dissolves, and each party shall have his money again. 2 Buc. Abb. 600.
And although gaming, in the manner as has been said, may be lawful, yet if a party be guilty of cheating, as by playing with false cards, dice, &c. he may be indicted for it at Common law, and fined and imprisoned according to the circumstances of the cafe and heinoufness of the offence. 2 Buc. Abb. 610.
Also all common gaming houses are nuisances in the eye of the law, not only because they are great temptations to idleness, but also because they are apt to draw together great numbers of disorderly persons, which cannot but be very inconvenient to the neighborhood. 1 Hawk. P. C. 158.
Also from the destructive and pernicious consequences which such necessarily attend excessive gaming, both the courts of law and equity have shewn their abhorrence of it. Hence in a cafe where A. came to the house of B. and won of him 100l. which he carried away, and af-fterwards won 100l. more, which he had in his po-poffion, which B. and his servant took from him by vivence, and A. having brought an action of trespafs, the court of Chancery granted an injunction. 1 Vern. 489. Sir Basil Firebrace v. Bret. 2 Vern. 71. S. C. where the cafe came to a hearing, and the defendant finding, that the court inclined so strongly against him, submitted to a propofition made by the coufels, which was after-twixts decreed as by consent; and on this occasion the Lord Chancellor cited the cafe of Sir Cecil Bishop, and Sir Thomas Staple, that came before the Lord Chief Justice Hole in the King's Bench, upon a wager won at a horfe-race, where Lord Hole declared, he would give the defendant leave to impal from time to time.
So where one apprentice left to another 100l. at two fittings at which, 50s. of which was paid in ready money;
and for the other 50l. he gave his bond of 100l. penalty, and on a bill to be relieved against it, the court of Chancery decreed the bond to be delivered up and cancelled, although the defendant infifted by his anfwer, that he was unwilling, and declined playing for so much, and that he was preffed to it by the plaintiff. 2 Vern.
291.
1. Statutes concerning gaming, and cafes determined upon them.
2. Atfans and pleadings.
3. Statutes concerning gaming, and cases determined upon them.
Stat. 33 Hen. 8. c. 9. fot. 11. No person thall for his gain, lucre, or living, keep any common house, alley, or place of bowling, croquet, croquet-cayls, half bowl,
tennis, dice-table or carding, or any unlawful game,
on pain of foullings a day.—But it was repeafed upon this clause, in the third year of Jac. 1. that if the greaf-ests in an inn or tavern, call for a pair of dice or table, and for their recreation play with them, or if any neighbour's play at bowls for their recreation, or the like, there are not within this statute; for all of the games be-used in any inn, or tavern, or other house, yet if the Lords great tenants, then the gaming, or foreign or gain, but they play only for recreation, and for no gain at all; and for this the house, is not within the statute, nor is fuch perfon that plays in such house that is not kept for lucre or gain within the penalty of that law. Dott.
cap. 49.
Sect. 12. Every person using and having any the faid houses, and there playing, shall forfeit foullings and eightence.
Sect. 14. And all and every jurtice of the peace, mayor, thiifirs, and other head officers, may enter all such houses and places, where fuch games shall be fupposed to be holden; and as well the keepers of the fame, as also the perffons there reftoring and playing, may take, arrest and imprifon, and keep in prifon, until the faid keepers have found fureties to the King's fervice, to be bound by recognition or otherwife, no longer to serve, keep or occupy any fuch house, play, game, alley or place; and alfo that the perffons there fo found, be in like cafe bound therein, and not to keep any fuch houses, or to exercise from thenceforth, in, at or to any of the faiid places, or at any of the faid games.
Sect. 15. And the mayors, thiifirs, baillifs, confatables, and other head officers, within every city, borough or town, shall make due search weekly, or at the fartheft once a month, in all places where any fuch houses, or places shall be fupposed to be kept; and if they shall not make fuch search at the fartheft once a month, if the cafe fo require, every fuch perffon offending fhall forfeit foullings for every month.
Sect. 16. No manner of artificer, handcraftman, baker, baker's, or labourers, ferrar at hufbandry,
journeyman or fervant of artificer, mariners, fhefhermen, watermen, or any ferving man, fhall play at the tables,
tennis, dice, cards, bowls, flash-couying, logaring, or any other unlawful game, out of Chriftmas; on pain of twenty foullings; and in Chriftmas to play at the faid games only in their mafter's houses, or in their mafter's prefence; and alfo no perffon thall at any time play at bowls in open places out of his garden or orchard, on pain of fix foullings and eightence.
Sect. 18. And where any the forfeitures above-mentioned thall be found within the precincts of any behind, the owner of the land in which there is fuch a house, and the other thall be to him that thall fake in any of the King's courts, and elsewhere they thall be half to the King, and half to him that thall fake in like manner.
Sect. 22. But any manner may licence his fervant to play at cards, dice, or tables with himfelf, or with any other gentleman openly in his house, or in his presence. Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 5. fot. 7. All men are to be put out upon any fature [that is, any statute then in force] for using any unlawful game, fhall be fued and profecuted, or otherwise heard and determined, in the general quarter feffions or affires of the county where the offence shall be committed, or in the leet within which it fhall happen, and the place out of the county where the fame.
By Stat. 16 Car. 2. c. 7. fot. 2. it is enacted, "That if any perffon or perffons of any degree or quality whatsoever, at any time or times do or thall, by any fraud, fluff, cohefion, circumvention, deceit, or unlawful devil, or all practice whatsoever, in playing at or with cards, obtain their gain to him or themselves, to any or other persons, any sum or sums of money, or other valuable thing or things whatsoever: that then every perffon and perffons so offending as afofared, fhall ftip fee forfeit
G A M

forfeit and lose treble the sum or value of money, or other thing or things so won, gained, obtained or acquired; the one moiety thereof to our Sovereign Lord the King, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to the person or persons involved, or shall forfeit the money or other thing or things so gained; so as every such forfeit and person grieved in that behalf do, or shall prosecute and sue for the same within six calendar months next after such play; and in default of such prosecution, the former moiety thereof to the person or persons involved, or shall forfeit the sum or value of money, or other thing or things so gained, and all and every such plaintiff or plaintiffs, informed against, and shall, in every such suit and prosecution, have and recover his and their treble costs against the person offending and forfeiting as aforesaid.

And sect. 3. It is further enacted by the said statute, That if any person or persons shall at any time play at any of the said games, or any other pari-mutuel, game or games whatsoever, (other than with and for ready money,) or shall bet on the sides or hands of such as do, or shall play thereat, and shall lose any sum or sums of money, or other thing or things so played for, exceeding the sum of one hundred pounds, at any one time or meeting, or shall bet on the side or on either side or sides, and shall pay down the same at the time when he or they shall lose the same; the party and parties who lost or shall lose the said moiety, or other thing or things played for, or be played for, above the said sum of one hundred pounds, shall have in that case be bound or compelled, or compellable to pay or make good the same, but the contract or contracts for the said, and for every part thereof, and all and singular judgments, statutes, recognizances, mortgages, conveyances, aurances, bonds, bills, specialties, promises, covenants, agreements, and other acts, deeds and faculties whatsoever, as the said forfeit or it contained, or he, or she, or they, or any of them, or any of them, or his or her or their heirs, devisees and successors, shall be made, or the same be or are, given, acknowledged, or entered into, for security or for security or for the satisfaction of or for the same, or any part thereof, shall be utterly void and of none effect; and that the person or persons so winning the said monies or other things, shall forfeit and lose treble the value of all such sum and sums of money, or other thing or things so won; and shall forfeit, or obtain or acquire above the said sum or sums of one hundred pounds; the one moiety thereof to our said Sovereign Lord the King, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to such person or persons as shall prosecute or sue for the same within one year next after the time of such play or playing, and by virtue of any of the said debts, bills, plaint or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no effion, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed; and that every such plaintiff or plaintiffs, informer or informers, shall in every such suit or prosecution have and receive his treble costs against the person or persons offending and forfeiting as aforesaid.

In the construction of this statute the following opinions have been holden:

1. That if the forfeit or loss be a sum or value of 120 guineas on his banker, who accepts the bill, to an action brought by the winner, this rule will well plead this statute; altho' it was objected, that the nature of the duty was altered, and a new contract created by the acceptance, and that it would endanger the credit of such bills, if they could be avoided on this account; but these reasons did not prevail; for tho' it be in the nature of a bill of exchange, the drawer has every just cause, and no illegal and notorious winning, to which the plaintiff is privy. 1 Salk. 344. Carth. 356. 5 Mod. 175. 5 C. C.

2. But it terms, that if the winner had assigned this bill or note bona fide, upon good consideration, to a stranger, he had not been within the statute, not being privy to the note, but an honest creditor. 1 Salk. 345. Carth. 357.

3. Also it had been judged, that if a man wins above the sum mentioned in the statute at play, and the winner owes j.f. S. the like sum, who demands his money, and thereupon the winner tells him, that such an one, viz. the loser, was indebted to him, and that he would give him his bond for the money, which he accordingly does, that is, he promises to pay j. f. S. not privy to the monies being won at play, he is not within the statute. 2 Mod. 279.

4. It seems to be the better opinion, that a person's losing 80l. at one meeting, for which he gives security, and 70l. more at another meeting, to the same person, is not within the statute; but if these several meetings were appointed to evade the statute, it might be otherwise. 2 Mod. 54.

5. But it hath been adjudged, that if A. and B. enter into articles to run a horse-race such a day for 100l., which is won by A. and further in the same articles, that on a subsequent day, A. should, on B.'s request, bring his horse to run against him for 200l., more which B. never requests, the other 100l. is won by A., which is not above the sum mentioned in the statute, yet the contract being for more than 100l. makes the whole bargain void ab initio, and within the statute; which being made to prevent the use of excessive gaming, ought to be construed in the most extensive manner that can be to answer that end. 2 Lev. 94. 1 Vent. 253. 5 C.

6. If A. wins a watch from B. of 10l. value, which is presently delivered, and also 100l. for which a bond is given; this is not within the statute, which extends to those cases where credit is given for any sums lost at play above 100l. without any regard to whom the money may be; and here the watch is in the nature of ready money, and therefore not within the statute. 1 Lev. 244. 1 Sid. 354. 5 C. 1. Salt. 345. 5 C. cited as law by Holt, 276. 529.

7. It hath been adjudged, that if a person loses 60l. to one, and 60l. to another, at one sitting, or if he losses to each of three or four people 50l. or any other sum not exceeding 100l. that this is not within the statute.

8. If two are at play at backgammon, and one of the players flits a man, but does not move it from the point, upon which there enures a wager of 100 guineas, viz. whether he who flits the man was obliged to play it, and the determination left to the groom- porter, who determines that he was not; this is not within the statute, for the money was not lost on the chance of the play, but on the right of the play, which is a collateral matter. 1 Salt. 344. 481. 487. 4 Mod. 409. 5 Mold. 1. Comb. 328. Sim. 572. 1 Laun. 487.

Stat. 10 & 11 Will. 9. 5. 17. sect. 1. All lotteries are declared to be public nuisances; and all grants, patents, and licenses for such lotteries are against law.

Stat. 2. No person shall expose to be played, drawn or thrown at, or shall play, draw or throw at any such lottery, either by dice, lots, cards, balls or any other numbers of figures, or any other way whatsoever: And every person who shall expose to be played, drawn or thrown at, any such lottery, play or device, shall forfeit five hundred pounds, one third to the King, one third to the poor, and one third with double costs to him that shall sue in the courts at Westminster; and the offender shall likewise be prosecuted as common rogue, according to the statutes in that case made and provided.

Stat. 3. And every person who shall play, throw or draw at any such lottery, play or device, shall forfeit twenty pounds in like manner.

And by that 9 Ann. cap. 6. sect. 56. All judices of the peace, mayors, constables and other civil officers, shall use their utmost endeavors to prevent the drawing of any such unlawful lottery, by all lawful ways and means; and if such a lottery be set up, or by writing or printing published any such unlawful lotteries, which intent to have such lottery drawn, shall forfeit 100l. one third to the King, one third to the poor, and one third with full costs to him that shall sue in the courts at Westminster.

By the stat. 9 Ann. cap. 14. sect. 1 it is enacted, "That all notes, bills, bonds, judgments, mortgages or other securities or conveyances whatsoever given, granted, provided, or entered into, or executed by any person or persons whatsoever, either in whole or in part, or the like, to terminate or abate any conveyances or fees whatsoever shall be for any money or other valuable thing whatsoever won by gaming or playing at cards, dice, tables, tenis, bowls, or other games or games whatsoever, or by betting on the risks or hands of such as do game at any of the games aforesaid, or by taking in, or diverting or causing any money, such estate, interest or advanced for such gaming or betting, as aforesaid, or lent or advanced at the time and place of such play, to any person or persons so gaming or betting, as aforesaid, or that shall, during such play, do play or bet, shall be utterly void, frustrate, and of no effect, to all intents and purposes whatsoever, and that whether such mortgages, securities or other conveyances, shall be of lands, tenements or hereditaments, shall be such as incumber or affect the same, such mortgages, securities or other conveyances, shall enure and be to the use and benefit of, and shall devolve upon such person or persons as should or might have, or be entitled to such lands, tenements or hereditaments, in case the said grantor or grantors thereof, or the person or persons, so incumbering the same, had been naturally dead, and as if such mortgages, securities or other conveyances had been made to such person or persons so incumbering the same; and that all grants or conveyances to be made for gaming or playing at cards, dice, or other game or games whatsoever, or by betting on the risks or hands of such as do play, at any of the games aforesaid, lye to any one or more person or persons so playing or betting in the whole, the sum or value of ten pounds, and shall pay or deliver the same, or any part thereof, the person or persons so loosing and playing, or delivering the same, shall be at liberty within three months then next to sue for and recover the money or goods so lost, and paid or delivered, or any part thereof, from the respective winner and winners thereof, with costs of suit, by action of debt founded on this act, to be prosecuted in any of her Majesty's courts of record, in which actions or suits, no effusion, protection, waiving of law, custom, or privilege of court, shall be of any importance shall be allowed; in which actions it shall be sufficient for the plaintiff to allege, that the defendant or defendants are indebted to the plaintiff, or received to the plaintiff's use, the monies so lost or paid, or converted the goods won of the plaintiffs to the defendant's use, whereby the plaintiff is aggrieved, and according to the form of this statute, without setting forth the special matter; and in case the person or persons, who shall lose such money or other thing, as aforesaid, shall not within the time aforesaid, really and truly file, and without covin and collusion file, and with effect prosecute for the money or other thing, to be him or them lost or paid or delivered, as aforesaid, it shall and may be lawful and for any person or persons, by any such action or suit, as aforesaid, to sue for and recover the same, and to have the value thereof, with costs of suit against such winner or winners, as aforesaid; the one monetary thereof to the use of the person or persons that sue for the same, and the other monetary thereof to the use of the finder of the parol, where the offence shall be committed.

Sec. 3. And for the better discovery of the monies, or other thing so won, and to be used for and recovered, as aforesaid, it is further enacted, That all and every the person or persons, who by virtue of this present act shall or may be liable to be sued for the same, shall be obliged and compelled, upon oath, to appear before any such bills as shall be preferred against him or them, for discovering the sum and sums of money, or other thing so won at play, as aforesaid.

Sec. 4. Provided, that upon the discovery and repayment of the money, or other thing so to be discovered and recovered as aforesaid, the person or persons, who shall discover and repay the same aforesaid, shall be acquitted, indemnified and discharged from any further punishment, forfeiture or penalty, which he or they might have incurred by the paying for, or winning such money or other things discovered and paid as aforesaid.

Sec. 5. And it is further enacted, That if any person do or shall, by any fraud or false, collusion, convention, deceit or unlawful device or ill practice whatsoever, in playing at or with cards, dice, or any other games aforesaid, or in or by betting a stake or part in the stakes, wagers or adventures, or in or by betting on the risks or hands of such as do game at any of the games aforesaid, shall play as aforesaid, win, obtain, or acquire to him or them sum or sums of money, or other sums of money, or other valuable thing or things whatsoever, or shall at any one time or time and place win of any one or more person or persons whatsoever, above the sum of ten pounds; that then every person or persons so winning, by such ill practice as aforesaid, or winning at any one time or time and place, above the said sum or value of ten pounds, and being convicted of any of the said offences, upon an indictment or information to be exhibited against him or them for that purpose, shall forfeit five times the value of the sum or sums of money, or other thing so won as aforesaid; and, in case of his or their conviction of the same, such person or persons so convicted, shall be deemed infamous, and suffer such corporal punishment as in case of wilful perjury, and such penalty to be recovered by such person or persons as shall sue for the same by such action as aforesaid.

Sec. 6. And whereas divers lead and disseminate persons live at great expenses, having no visible estate, profession or calling to maintain themselves, but support those expenses by gaming only; it is further enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for any two of her Majesty's justices of the peace in any county, city, or liberty whatsoever, to cause to come or be brought before them, every person or persons of aforesaid, within whose respective county or liberty, whereby they shall have just cause to suspect to have no visible estate, profession or calling to maintain themselves by, but do for the most part support themselves by gaming; and if such person or persons shall not make it appear to such justices, that the principal part of his or their expenses is not maintained by gaming, that then such justices shall require of him or them sufficient sureties for his or their good behaviour for the space of twelve months, and in default of his or their finding such sureties, to commit him or them to the common gaol, there to remain until he or they shall find such sureties.

Sec. 7. And it is further enacted, That if such person or persons as aforesaid, shall do or cause any person or persons so to do whatever is for which he or they shall be so bound to the good behaviour, at any one time or time and place, play or bet for any sum or sums of money, or other thing exceeding in the whole the sum or value of twenty shillings, that such person or persons so playing or being shall be deemed or taken to be a breach of his or their behaviour, and a forfeiture of the recognizance given for the same.

Sec. 8. And for preventing of such quarrels as shall or may happen on the account of gaming, it is further enacted, That in case any person or persons whatsoever shall affront and beat, or shall challenge or provoke to fight, any other person or persons whatsoever, who shall be in the account of any money won by gaming, playing or betting at any of the games aforesaid, such person or persons affronting and beating, or challenging or provoking to fight, such other person or persons, upon the account aforesaid, shall be being thereof convicted upon an indictment or information obtained against him or them, to pay a fine not exceeding his or her yearly rents, to her Majesty, all his goods, chattels and personal estate whatsoever, and shall also suffer imprisonment without bail or mainprize, in the common gaol of the county where such conviction shall be had, during the term of two years.

Sec. 9. Provided, that nothing in this act shall extend to prevent or hinder any person or persons from gaining at any of the games aforesaid, within any of her Majesty's palaces of St. James or Whitehall, during such time as her her Majesty, her heirs or successors, shall be actually resident at either the said two palaces, or in any other royal palace, where her Majesty, her heirs or successors shall be actually resident, during the time of such reference; so that any such notice as aforesaid shall, if given, not be in any house, lodging or part of any of the said palaces, the freehold and inheritance whereof is or shall be out of the crown, or is or shall be in lease to any person or persons, during such time as such freehold and inheritance shall be out of the crown, or such lease to continue, and as such playing be for real and not only.

Upon a case stated at nisi prius in an action by the plaintiff as indorsee of several promissory notes, it appeared that the notes were given by the defendant to one John Church, for money by him knowingly advanced to the defendant, to be delivered out to the indorsee, and endorsed them to the plaintiff for a full and valuable consideration, and that the plaintiff was not privy to or had any notice, that any part of the money for which the notes were given had been lent for the purpose of gaming. Upon this a question arose upon the statute 9 Ann. c. 12, s. 1, which states, That where the whole or any part of the consideration is money knowingly lent for gaming, shall be void to all intents and purpoises whatsoever, whether the plaintiff could maintain this action against the defendant. And after two arguments the court were of opinion he could not; for it is well considered, that no person can be committed to gaol by the grand jury for endorsing the notes to one, whom they had never seen, and it will be a means to evade the act, it being so very difficult to prove notice on an indorse. And though it be some inconvenience to an innocent man, yet that will not be a balance to thole on the other side. And the plaintiff could not maintain his action, for a breach of the indenture. And it is the common hazard of taking notes of infants or feme covertts. As to what Holf said in Hofter v. Taceh, it was not the point adjudged; and the Chief Justice saith, he had seen a report wherein notice was taken, that all the learned part of the house was of the same opinion. And an action was brought for 15l. won as a wager at a horse-race. And upon a case made and argued, it was determined, that the action would not lie; for 16 Car. 2. c. 7. has these words horse-racing, and a great many other words, which are not particularly mentioned in statutes 9 Ann. c. 12, but are within the general words other game or games. And the court seemed to be of this opinion in Owles v. Cetins, Trin. 6 Ge. 2. though it was never determined. See 1 Fent. 253. The defendant had judgment. Stram. 1159.

The plaintiff and defendant gave together at tossing up by the party being play the note. And the plaintiff having won all the defendant's ready money, lent him ten guineas at the time, and won it, till the defendant had borrowed 120 guineas. In an action for money lent, it was insinfed for the defendant, that by the statute 9 Ann. c. 16, the plaintiff could not maintain an action; for by that act, all notes, bills, bonds, judgments, mortgages, or other securities or conveyances, given, granted, granted, within or executed, for money knowingly lent and advanced to game with, are made void; and the borrowing on an agreement to pay, is a security. But the Chief Justice saith there was no act within the act, for there is not the word contraclt, as in the statute of usury: and the word securities, as it stands in this act, must mean lafting liens upon the estate. The parliament might think there would be no great harm in a parol contract, where the cred it was not like to run very high; and therefore condemned the act to writen securities; whereas the plaintiff obtained a verdict for 125l. Stram. 1229.

The plaintiff brought his action for 200l. as the lesser of so much by gaming. And the question was, upon 9 Ann. c. 14, which gives an action of debts at any time within three months against the winner, whether the defendant could be held to special bail; the defendant's counsel comparing it to the case of actions upon penal statutes, where no bail is ever required. But the court held, there ought to be special bail in this case, which is at the suit of the party grieved, and wherein the said defendant is a debtor to the plaintiff. And the clause is to be construed as remedial. And therefore upon consideration, and talking with the other judge, special bail was ordered. Stram. 1070.

R Gen. 1. c. 2. sect. 26. 37. Every person who shall keep any office or place, under the denomination of tiler of houses, lands, advowsons, prefentations to livings, plate, jewels, ships, goods, or other things, for the improvement of small sums of money; or shall fell or export to sell the same or any of them, by way of lottery, or by lots, tickets, drawings or figures, in pursuance of any act, or in furtherance of any lottery or scheme; or shall make, print, or publish any lottery or scheme for advancing small sums of money by several persons, amounting in the whole to large sums, to be divided among them by the chances of the prizes in some public lottery; or shall deliver or send to the persons advancing such sums, to instil them to a share of the money so advanced, according to such proposals or schemes; or shall make, print, or publish any proposal or scheme of the like nature, under any denomination whatsoever, and shall be thereof convicted, on oath of one witness, by two justices where the offence shall be committed, or the offender shall be found, he shall, over and above any penalties by any former act, be made against private lotteries, forfeit five hundred pounds; one third to the King, one third to the informer, and one third to the poor; to be levied by distrafs and sale by warrant of such lotteries, and shall also by such justices be levied by distrafs and sale, and shall be a penalty of the same kind as any other fixed or running game in any year, and from thence till the said sum of five hundred pounds shall be paid: provided that persons aggrieved may appeal to the next quarter-fees. And every person who shall be adventurous in, or in any way contribute on the account of lotteries, lotteries, lotteries, schemes, or plans, shall forfeit double the sum contributed, with costs, half to the King, and half to him that shall sue in the courts at Westminster.

Stat. 9 Gen. 1. c. 19. sect. 4, 5. If any person shall, by colour of any grant from any foreign prince or flate, let any lottery or scheme, or make an acting in the nature of a lottery under any denomination whatsoever, print, or publish any proposals for any such lottery or undertaking; or shall sell or dispone of any ticket in any foreign lottery, and shall be convicted thereof, on oath of one witness, before two justices where the offence shall be committed, or the offender shall be found, he shall, over and above any penalties by former acts against unlawful lotteries, forfeit two hundred pounds; one third to the King, one third to the informer, and one third to the poor; to be levied by distrafs and sale by warrant of such justices; and shall also by them be committed to the common gaol for one year, and from thence till the said sum of two hundred pounds shall be paid: Provided that persons aggrieved may appeal to the next quarter-fees.

Stat. 2 Gen. 2. c. 28. sect. 9. Where it shall be proved on the oath of two witnesses before any justice of the peace, as well as where he shall find upon his own view, that any person hath used any unlawful game contrary to the statute 33 Hen. 8. c. 9, the said justice shall have power to commit him to prison without bail, unless and until he shall enter into recognizance, with sureties or without, at the discretion of the justice, that he shall not from thenceforth play or act for any such game.

Stat. 6 Gen. 2. c. 35. sect. 29, 30. If any person shall fell, procure or deliver any ticket, receipt, chance or number, in any foreign or pretended foreign lottery, or in any clai, part or division thereof, or in any undertaking in the nature of a lottery; or shall fell, procure or deliver any receipt, chance or number, in any duplici or pretended duplicate of any foreign or pretended foreign lottery; or shall receive any money for any such ticket, ticket, receipt, chance or number, or in consideration of any money to be repaid in case any ticket or number, in any foreign or pretende lottery, or any clai, part or division thereof, shall prove fortunate; and shall be convied thereof in the courts at Westminster, or on the oath of one witnesses before two justices where the offence shall be committed, or the offender shall be found, he shall forfeit two hundred pounds; one third to the King, one third to the informer, and one third to the poor; the fame (in case of conviction before the justices) to be levied by distrife by warrant of such justices; and shall also be committed to the common gaol for a year, and from thence till the two hundred pounds be paid: Provided that perfon aggrieved may appeal to the next quarterfession.
G A M

Stat. 12 Geo. 2. c. 28. fall. 1. If any perfon shall each, set up, continue or keep any office or place, under the denomination of a fale of houfe, lands, adowments, prefentations to livings, plate, jewels, fhips, or other things by way of lottery, or by lots, tickets, numbers or figures cast on cards or dice; or shall make, print, advertise or publish proposals or schemes for advancing small fums by severall perfans, amounting in the whole to large sums, to be divided among them by chance or the prizes in fame publick lottery established by act of parliament; or shall deliver out tickets to the perfans advancing fuch fums, to inthiue them to a thafe of the money so advanced, according to fuch proposals or schemes; or shall expafe to fale any houfe, lands, adowments, presentations to livings, plate, jewels, fhips or other goods, by any game, method or device whatsoever, depending upon, or to be determined by any lot or drawing, whether it be out of a box or where, by cards or dice, or by any machine, engine, or device of chance of any kind whatsoever; he shall, on conviction before any justice of the peace, (or mayor) on the oath of one witnefs, or view of fuch justice, or confinement, forfeit two hundred pounds, by di-frefs and fale, by warrant of one justice of the county; or where the offence fhall be committed; which faid forfeiture (after deducting reasonable charges of the prosecution) fhall go, one third to the informer, and two thirds to the poft of the parish, except in Barth, where the faid two thirds fhall go to the poft of the hospit in the.

Sect. 2. The games of ace of hearts, faro, bafket and hazard, fhall be deemed games or lotteries by cards or dice; and every perfon who fhall set up or keep these games, fhall be liable to all the above mentioned penalties for feiting up or keeping any games or lotteries in this manner.

Sect. 3. And every perfon who fhall play, fet at, flake, or punt at any of the faid games, fhall forfeit fifty pounds in like manner.

Sect. 4. Moreover, every fuch fale of houfe, lands, adowvons, presentations, plate, jewels, fhips, goods or other thongs, or any game of lottery, or other device, depending upon any chance or lot, fhall be void; and the fame being exposed to fale in manner aforefaid, fhall be forfeited to fuch perfon as fhall fucb the fame in any court of record or at the affizes.

Sect. 5. But if any perfon think himfelf aggrieved by any fuch game, or by any justice of the peace, he may appeal to the next feflion, giving reasonable notice to the proctor, and entering into a recognition before fome justice of the peace, where the conviction was made, with two fureties, on condition to try fuch appeal at fuch next feflion; and if the conviction fhall be affirmed, the party appealing fhall pay to the proctor treble costs.

Sect. 6. And no convidion fhall be quaffed by the feflions for want of form, nor fhall be removed by cer-rivaris, till after determination in the feflions.

Sect. 7. And if the offender fhall not have fufficient goods whereof to levy the penalties, or fhall not immediately pay or give fecurity for the fame; the justice for whom he fhall be convicted may commit him to the common gaol, not exceeding six months.

Sect. 18 Geo. 2. c. 34. fall. 1. No perfon fhall keep any houfe, room or place for playing, or fuffer any perfon within fuch place to play at roly-poly, or any other game with cards or dice, already prohibited by the laws of this rehin; and if any perfon fhall keep fuch houfe, or fuffer any perfon to play at roly-poly, or other game with cards or dice, prohibited by law, he fhall be liable to the penalties and procedure as by the act of the 12 G. 2. c. 28.

Sect. 2. And if any perfon fhall play at roly-poly, or any game with cards or dice, prohibited by law, he fhall be liable to the penalties and procedure as by the fame act of the 12 G. 2.

Sect. 4. And if any wretifes fhall neglect or refuse to appear upon fummone, or fhall refuse to give evidence, or fhall not forth at fuch time as fhall he appointed, by de-frefs, by warrant of the perfon alleging fuch fummone; and if he have not fufficient goods whereof to levy the fifty pounds, he fhall be committed to the common gaol for fix months.

Sect. 5. No perfon, other than the plaintiff and defendants, fhall be incapacitated from being called to witnefs, touching any offence againft the laws for preventing efcective and deceitful gaming, by reason of having played, betted or flaked at any prohibited game.

Sect. 7. And no privilege of parliament fhall be allowed to any perfon, against whom a percaoncuron fhall be commenced for keeping any roly-poly, or any thong going house or place for playing at any prohibited game.

Sect. 25 Geo. 2. cap. 36. sect. 2. Whereas the multitude of places of entertainment for the lower fent of people is a great caufe of thefts and robberies, as they are thereby tempted to spread their small fuffiance in robus lusts, and in unlawful methods of supplying their wants and renewing their plea-

tures: In order therefore to prevent the faid temptation to thefts and robberes, and to correct as far as may be the habit of idleness, which is become too general over the whole kingdom, and is productive of much mischief to the public, it is enacted, That any houfe, room, garden or other place kept for publick dancing, mufick, or other publick entertainment of the like kind, in the cities of London and Wifhinfier, or within twenty miles thereof, without a licence for that purpofe, from the laft prefiding Micbenham quartr-courtiers of the peace, to be held for the county, city, riding, liberty, or division in which fuch houfe, room, garden or other place is fituat (who are hereby authorized and empowered to grant fuch licencee as they in their difcretion fhall think proper) fetigned under the hands and feals of four or more of the justices there assembled, fhall be deemed a disorderly houfe or place; and every fuch licencee hereby fhall be figned and fealed by the faid justices in open court, and afterwards be publicly read by the clerk of the peace, together with the names of the justices fubfcribing the fame; and no fuch licence fhall be granted at any adjournment thereof; and that such licencee fhall not be ferue or be taken for any fuch licencee; And it fhall and may be provided, that for any confable or other perfon, being thereunto au-brized by warrant under the hand and feal of one or more of his Majefy's justices of the peace of the county, city, riding, division or liberty, where fuch houfe or fuch fett, or publick entertainment is kept, or fuch place, and to feize every perfon who fhall be found therein at the time that they may be dealt with according to law: And every perfon keeping fuch houfe, room, garden or other place, without fuch licence as aforefaid, fhall forfeit the fum of one hundred pounds to fuch perfon as fhall fucb the fame for the fame; and be otherwife punifhable as the law dire-icts in cafes of disorderly houfe.

Sect. 3. Provided, That in order to give notice what places are licensed pursuant to this act, there fhall be aff-fixed and kept up in some notorious place over the door or entrance of every fuch houfe, room, garden or other place, fignifying the fame, and of the fum of the faid purpofes, and fo licened to be afoeaid, an infcription in large letters, over the words following: vediect, LICENCED PUR-

SUANT TO ACT OF PARLIAMENT OF THE TWENTY-FIFTH OF KING GEORGE THE SECOND; and that no fuch keeper or other perfon of any other place, wherein are played any of the faid purpofes, alfo licenced as aforefaid, fhall be open for any of the faid purpofes, before the hour of five in the afternoon, and that the affixing and keeping up of fuch infcription as aforefaid, and the faid limitation or restriction in point of time, fhall be infrufed in, and made conte to the keeper or other perfon keeping the fame, and in the keeping and affixing and continuing both of either of the faid conditions, fuch licence fhall be forfeited, and fhall be revoked by the justices of the peace in their next general or quarter-feffions; and fhall not be renewed; nor fhall any new licence be granted to the fame person or persons, or any other person on his or any time hereafter appear, act or behave him or her-their or any of their behalf, or for their use or benefit, directly or indirectly, for keeping any bawdy-house, room,
garden or other place, for any of the purposes aforesaid.

Provided, and whereas, by reason of the many subtle and tricky contrivances of persons keeping bawdy-houses, gaming-houses or other disorderly houses, it is difficult to prove who is the real owner or keeper thereof, by which means many notorious offenders have escaped punishment; Be it enacted, &c. That any person who shall at he shall refuse to be examined on oath, without offering just cause for such refusal, the justice shall commit him to the publick prison for any time not exceeding three months.

Sect. 17. And no persons charged on oath with being guilty of any of the offences punishable by this act, and which shall require bail, shall be admitted to bail before twenty-four hours notice at least, shall be proved by oath to have been given in writing to the proctor, of the names and places of abode of the persons proposed to be bail for any such offender or offenders, unless the bail offered shall be well known to the justice or justices, and he and they shall approve of them; and every such offender and offenders, who shall be bound over to the general quarter-fees of the peace, or goal-delivery of the county, city or town, wherein the offence charged on him shall have been committed, to answer for any such offences punishable by this act, and for the general quarter-fees of the peace, or fessons of oyer and terminer and goal-delivery which shall be held next after him, her or their being apprehended, unless the court shall think fit to put off the trial on just cause made out to them.

Sect. 18. And in all proceedings on this act, any person shall be admitted to be a witness, notwithstanding he being an inhabitant of the place wherein the offence shall have been committed.

Sect. 19. And the justice before whom any person shall be convicted upon this act, shall cause the conviction to be drawn up in the form in the effect following:

To wit,

BE it remembered, that on this day of in the year of his Majesty's reign, A. B. is convicted by me, one of the justices of the peace for the said county of or for the riding or division of the said county of or for the city, liberty, or town of (as the case shall happen to be) for and for the said as to judge him, or her, to pay and forfeit for the fine, the sum of Given under the day and year after said.

The same to be written upon parchment, and transmitted to the next seessions, to be filed amongst the records; and if any person shall appeal to the said seessions, the justices there shall, upon receiving the said conviction, proceed well and truly to consider of the matter, and the execution of the judgment shall in such case be suspended; the person convicted entering into recognizance at the time of the conviction, with two forfeitures in double the sum he shall have been adjudged to pay, upon condition to prosecute such appeal with effect, and to be forthcoming to abide the judgment and determination of the said forfeitures; and the seessions shall award such forfeits as shall appear just and reasonable to be paid by either party; and if the judgment shall be affirmed, the appellant shall immediately pay the sum adjudged to be forfeited, together with such forfeits as the court shall award, and in default thereof shall suffer the pains and penalties by this act inflicted upon persons respectively who shall neglect to pay or shall not pay the forfeitures by this act to be paid.

Sect. 22. And no person punished by this act, shall be punished by any other law.

2. Action and pleadings.

In debt A. won 80l. at one meeting of B. and for which B. gave security, and then they appointed another meeting, and A. won 750l. more of B. The question was, whether this was within the statute. The court was divided, which the plaintiff persevering, discontinued his action; but the better opinion was, that it was not within the statute; for if it had been pleased, that the several meetings were positively appointed to choke the statute, it might be otherwise. 2 Mod. 55. Hill. 27 Car. 2. C. B.-%. The plaintiff, A., being at play, and A. owing C. 100l. brings C. to B. who owed the debt, and B. gave C. a bond for the 100l. C. not being privy to the matter, accepted the bond, and afterwards put it in suit. The obigor pleaded the statute, but the plaintiff challenging the whole matter, the court were of opinion upon demurrer, that it was not a case within the statute; and for judgment for the plaintiff. 2 Mod. 278. Hill. 29 Car. 2. C. B. post. n. In debt upon articles for 100l. won at a horse-race, defendant pleaded the covenants, by which it was farther agreed, that the plaintiff, but the request of the defendant, would not run his horse again, at another day and place for 200l. more, and then pleads the statute; the defendant replied, that the defendant did not make such request. But upon demurrer the defendant had judgment. For though the statute allows the losing of a 100l. yet in this case the 100l. was not lost [before] a decision given to run for more. And though there was but 100l. actually lost, yet the contract being [originally] made for more, it was void for the whole ab initio, and can't be made good by the subsequent event. 2 Lev. 94. Hill. 25 Car. 2. B. R. Edgely v. Refin- dale. V. R. 253. C. Edgely v. Hill. 34 Edw. 6. Sect. 2. Where the contract is intrusted to two of the wagers are divided, yet no part of the money is recoverable. 3 Salk. 175. cites Rinfingtan's case. The case of Edgely v. Refindale, cited 5 Mod. 352. in the case of Stanhope v. Smith, is stated to have been upon articles of agreement concerning a horse-match, wherein the defendant agreed to run four heats, at several days for 40l. each heat; and this was held by my Lord Hale to be but one agreement, though to be run at several times, and the defendant in that case had judgment.

Indub. ass. lies not for money won at play, but there ought to be a special declaration; two cases of two of the judges, that peradventure, by special pleading, a good replication may be made. Lutw. 180. Whitgre v. Chancy, S. P. because it wanted consideration; it being but executory. Per Hs. Ch. 1. 5 Mod. 14. in a case of Walker v. Walker. 1 Salk. 23. Hard's case. S. P. 6 Mod. 129. Pojch. 3 Anne, B. R. Smith v. Arty. 1 Salk. 240. Argyll v. H. In which case, the Court of King's Bench said, it was evident the Act 1 Car. 2. 253. 254. 255. was intended to be a public act, and therefore a given by the Court of King's Bench in a case. But it is a peradventure, and the Act has nothing at all to do with any Act of Parliament. A. 3. Hill. 3. 351. 352. But for money flaked on a wager, it lies; being in a third person's hands, the winning the wager determines the property. 2 Show. 82. contra v. Stem. 3 Lev. 176. contra. Egleyton v. Lewis, 2 Vent. 136. v. Colman. A general indemnity in a wager or money won at play: But it must be laid by way of mutual promises specially, and to judgment was reversed. But the chief reason was, because the court would not countenance gaming, by giving to easy a remedy: And though the precedent of Egleyton v. Lewis was thrown in, in which judgment was affirmed in com. fac. yet it would not prevail. Carth. 338. Jacobson v. Colgrave. An express promise will support an action. Per Parker Ch. 10. Mod. 312. Pojch. 1 Gen. B. R.

In an action upon a note for money won at play, defendant pleaded the statute, and set forth, that at one sitting he lost 85l. to the plaintiff, and 40l. more to IV. But upon demurrer, judgment was given for the plaintiff; for the statute intends a remedy, where more than 100l. is lost to one person, and at one sitting; but if it be but to several it is not within the stat. 5 Mod. 351. Trin. 8 Eff. 3. B. R. Stanhope v. Smith.
As if A. were 91. to B. and B. refusing to play any longer with him, A. notes 101. to C. at the same fitting, yet this did not deter B. of the money which he lawfully won. 5 Mcb. 352. in the case of Sunbury v. Smith. This perhaps is to be accounted for, as the first debt of the 91. B. may fall out the fraud speciously, and so avoid it. 12 Mcb. 258. in the case of Walker v. Walker. But Brin. 28 Car. 2, B. R. where B. had lost to B. at one fort of game 91. and to C. at another fort of game 50/., and to D. at another fort of game 50/., and in an action of debt on bond brought for one of the sums, defendant pleaded the statute, and that he lost the several sums as above, at the same times; it was declared, to, because it did not appear, that the several winners were parties together, or in trust for another, and the statute only voids debt won, where they are parties or trustees for each other, and not to different gamblers. But it was adjudged for the defendant, the statute being to extend against play. 3 Hid. 671. Hudson v. Main.

In an action for money won at play, the first count was laid properly upon mutual promissory, and the second count was congus etiam ad ludium praedictionis curiat. &c. without a confession; after verdict for the plaintiff, judgment was given. Lord Raym. 1034.

In an action brought for 81. the defendant pleaded that he lost it to the plaintiff at play, and that at the same time he lost 40/. and pleaded the statute of gaming, &c. the plaintiff demurred; and adjudged a good plea since both the sums amounted to more than 101. and were lost at one fitting; contra, if the 40/., had been left by covin, to avoid the payment of the 81. adjudged in C. B. Lord Raym. 452.

The flat of gaming may be pleaded by the acceptor of a bill of exchange payable to the plaintiff who was the winner. Lid. Raym. 87.

The defendant was convicted on an information upon the gaming-stat, which says he shall forfeit five times the value, to be recovered by a common informer, upon present conviction. And it was moved, that a fine should be set upon the defendant, if he refused to speak with the informer. Sed per curiam; All the judgment we can give is, quod convitus sit; and a new action must be brought upon that judgment for the forfeiture, which was thought sufficient to deter the offenders. Lid. Raym. 77. 12 Eliz. 8. 162. 5 Mcb. 431. Grea. Car. 504. Co. Ext. 362. The defendant was discharged without any fine or costs. Siran. 1048.

For more learning on this subject, see 12 Vin. Abr. tit. Gaming. See Lyttson, Prazin and Camis. See also statutes respecting Gaols, and Gaols, are mentioned in the laws of King Athlon. See Vagia-tion.Author.

Gaol. (Gaula, Fr. geol, i.e. cavesa, a cage for birds.) It is used metaphorically for a prison. Crowd.

1. By what authority gaols are erected, to whom they belong, and who are to be at the charge of repairing them.
2. To what place offenders are to be committed.
3. At whose charge prisoners are to be carried to gaol; how they are to be set on work, and how maintained therein.
4. Of the offence of breaking gaol.

By what authority gaols are erected, to whom they belong, and who are to be at the charge of repairing them.

Gaols are of such universal concern to the publick, that none can be erected by any seif authority than an act of parliament. 2 Hid. 705. Hence the coroner is to inquire of the death of all perons whatsoever who die in prison, to the end that the publick may be satisfied, that in another such occasion, to the great end by the common course of nature, or by some unlawful violence, or unreasonable hardships, put on them by thee under whose power they were confined. 3 Hid. 529. 49.

Voc. H. IV. 95.

Also all prisons and gaols belong to the King, situate in a subject may have the custody or keeping of them. 2 Hid. 529.

And in this purpose, by the 5 H. 4. cap. 10, reciting, "That divers confables of cafes within the realm, being aligned justices of the peace by the King's commission, had by colour of such commission used to take people, to whom they bore evil will, and imprisoned them within the said cellars till they have made fine and at the same fine and at the same, and in an action of debt or debt brought for one of the sums, defendant pleaded the statute, and that he lost the several sums as above, at the same times; it was declared to, because it did not appear, that the several winners were parties together, or in trust for another, and the statute only voids debt won, where they are parties or trustees for each other, and not to different gamblers. But it was adjudged for the defendant, the statute being to extend against play. 3 Hid. 671. Hudson v. Main.

In an action for money won at play, the first count was laid properly upon mutual promissory, and the second count was congus etiam ad ludium praedictionis curiat. &c. without a confession; after verdict for the plaintiff, judgment was given. Lord Raym. 1034.

In an action brought for 81. the defendant pleaded that he lost it to the plaintiff at play, and that at the same time he lost 40/. and pleaded the statute of gaming, &c. the plaintiff demurred; and adjudged a good plea since both the sums amounted to more than 101. and were lost at one fitting; contra, if the 40/., had been left by covin, to avoid the payment of the 81. adjudged in C. B. Lord Raym. 452.

The flat of gaming may be pleaded by the acceptor of a bill of exchange payable to the plaintiff who was the winner. Lid. Raym. 87.

The defendant was convicted on an information upon the gaming-stat, which says he shall forfeit five times the value, to be recovered by a common informer, upon present conviction. And it was moved, that a fine should be set upon the defendant, if he refused to speak with the informer. Sed per curiam; All the judgment we can give is, quod convitus sit; and a new action must be brought upon that judgment for the forfeiture, which was thought sufficient to deter the offenders. Lid. Raym. 77. 12 Eliz. 8. 162. 5 Mcb. 431. Grea. Car. 504. Co. Ext. 362. The defendant was discharged without any fine or costs. Siran. 1048.

For more learning on this subject, see 12 Vin. Abr. tit. Gaming. See Lyttson, Prazin and Camis. See also statutes respecting Gaols, and Gaols, are mentioned in the laws of King Athlon. See Vagia-

tion.Author.

Gaol. (Gaula, Fr. geol, i.e. cavesa, a cage for birds.) It is used metaphorically for a prison. Crowd.

1. By what authority gaols are erected, to whom they belong, and who are to be at the charge of repairing them.
2. To what place offenders are to be committed.
3. At whose charge prisoners are to be carried to gaol; how they are to be set on work, and how maintained therein.
4. Of the offence of breaking gaol.

By what authority gaols are erected, to whom they belong, and who are to be at the charge of repairing them.

Gaols are of such universal concern to the publick, that none can be erected by any seif authority than an act of parliament. 2 Hid. 705. Hence the coroner is to inquire of the death of all perons whatsoever who die in prison, to the end that the publick may be satisfied, that in another such occasion, to the great end by the common course of nature, or by some unlawful violence, or unreasonable hardships, put on them by thee under whose power they were confined. 3 Hid. 529. 49.

Voc. H. IV. 95.
Provided, that this act shall not extend to charge any person inhabiting in any liberty, city, town or borough corporate, which have common gaols for felons taken in the same, and comminations of affile or gaol-delivery of such felons, for any affilement, to the making the common gaol or gaols of the respective thire or county.

And it is further enacted by the said statute, sect. 6, "That every person or persons of or belonging to the county of this realm, or the dominions of (or, are situate upon any lands or hereditaments of or belonging to the King's Majesty), in right of the crown, that the said lands and hereditaments, with their and every of their appurtenances, shall not at any time be alienated from the crown, sold, let, granted or given by the public service and benefit of the county.

2. To what place offenders are to be committed.

By the 5 H. 4, cap. 10, it is enacted, "That none shall be imprisoned by any justice of the peace, but only in the common gaol, faring to Lords and others, who shall have given the same, and that the act is only declaratory at the Common law, 2 Jult. 23.

But the court of King's Bench may commit any prisoner to the county which they shall think most proper, and the offender so committed or condemned to imprisonment can't be removed or bailed by any other court; but

But by the 31 Car. 2. cap. 2, sect. 12, it is enacted, "That no subject of this realm, being an inhabitant or resident of this kingdom of England, domain of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall or may be sent prisoner into Scotland, Ireland, Jersey, Guernsey, Tangier, or into any parts, garrisons, islands or places beyond the seas, which were, or at any time hereafter shall be within or without the dominions of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, and that every such imprisonment is by the said statute enacted and adjudged to be illegal; and that every such subject so imprisoned shall have an action of false imprisonment, &c. and recover treble costs, and no other damage; and that before he shall be committed to the person making such warrant, who shall incur a praemunire.

And as prisoners ought to be committed at first to the proper prison, to ought they not to be removed from thence, except in some special cases.

To which purpose, by the said statute, 31 Car. 2. c. 2, sect. 9, it is enacted, "That if any subject of this realm shall be committed to any prison, or in custody of any officer or officers whatsoever, for any criminal or culpable criminal matter, that the said person shall not be removed from the said prison and custody into the custody of any other officer or officers, unless he be a habeas corpus, or some other legal writ; or where the prisoner is the subject of the prison, from the county, to another county within the same county, in order to a trial or discharge by due course of law; or in case of sudden fire or infecction, or other necessity; upon pain that he who makes out, signs or counter-signs, or obeys or executes such warrant, shall forfeit to the party wronged a hundred pounds for the first offense, two hundred pounds for the second, &c. See 19 Car. 2. cap. 4, for impounding justices of the peace to remove prisoners in case of infecction.

By statutes 1 & 2 Will. 3. c. 10. All murderers and felons shall be imprisoned in the common gaol, and the sheriffs shall have the keeping of the said gaol.
they shall have any goods within the county or liberty, to sell such and so much of the goods and chattels of the said persons, as, by the direction of the said justice or justices of the peace, shall certify and pay the charges of such a commission or finding to the said goods; and the apportionment of such a commission shall be paid by the parish or parishes, where such goods or chattels shall remain and be, and the overplus of the money which shall be made thereof to be delivered to the party to whom the said goods shall belong.

And it is further enacted, sec. 2. That if the said persons shall not have any goods or chattels, which may be sold for the purposes aforesaid, within the county or liberty, an insufficient affidavit shall be made by the constables and churchwardens, and two or three other the honest inhabitants of the parish or parishes where such goods shall be taken or apprehended, that the said taxation being allowed under the hand of one or more justice or justices of the peace, if there be such constables or churchwardens there inhabiting, and in default of them, by four of the principal inhabitants of the said parish, township or parish, where such offenders shall be taken or apprehended, that the said taxation shall be made out of the county or liberty, and that the punishment of such persons shall be four times and a half such a tax or taxes as shall be laid upon the said goods, or as shall be the damages remaining to the person who shall pay the said taxes or damages; and if the said persons shall not be made prisoners, or any justice of peace near adjoining, shall and may give warrant as aforesaid, to the constable, tithingman or other officer, there to disfrain the goods of any for any reason and cause, for which the said person shall not be made prisoner, and if such person or persons be not so authorized shall have full power to disfain, and by appraisement of four substantial inhabitants of the said place, to sell a sufficient quantity of the goods and chattels of the said person for selling, for the levying of the said taxation; and if any exempt of the money come by the sale thereof, the same to be delivered to the owner.

By sec. 27 Geo. 2. c. 3. the expense of conveying poor offenders to goal or the house of correction, shall be paid by the treasurer of the county, except in Abridges.

By some opinions, a gaoler is compellable to find his prisoner sufl lenance; but as this is denied by others, and as there are several statutes which provide for the maintainence of prisoners, without supposing the gaoler any way obliged to it, it feems this opinion is not maintainable, Ca. 37. Sec. Li. 325 a. where Lord Coke says, 'that in the old times, they made the prisoner himself, or his widows, the defendant shall not waste his haw, for he cannot refuse the prisoner, and ought not to suffer him to die for default of sustenance; otherwise it is for tubbing a man at large.'

By the 14 Eliz. cap. 5. sec. 57. it is enacted, 'that it is the duty of the justices of peace of every thire within this realm, at their general quarter-sessions of the peace to hold within the same thires, or the most part of the said justices, being then present, to rate and tax every parish within the said thires, at such reasonable sums of money, for and towards the relief of prisoners, as they shall think convenient by their discretion, so that the said taxation and rate do not exceed above 6 d. or 6 s. by the week out of every parish; and that the churchwardens of every parish within this realm, for the time being shall every Sunday levy the same, and once every quarter of a year pay the said money to the said by the said churchwardens, at every general quarter-sessions to be holden within the said thires, to such sufficient persons dwelling within the said thires, as shall be appointed by the said justices in their said open quarter-sessions, to be there ready to receive the said money, and to be paid to the said prisoners; and that the collectors for the said prisoners shall weekly distribute and pay all such sums of money as they and every of them shall receive, for the relief of the
4. Of the offence of breaking prison.

The offence of breaking a goal or prison, by the Common law, was no less than felony; and this whether the party were committed in a criminal or civil case, or whether he was actually within the walls of the prison, or only in the custody of any person who had lawfully arrested him, or whether he was in the King's prison, or one belonging to a lord of transeffe. 2 Rol. 589. Stamd. P. C. 31. Crs. Cor. 210.

But now by the statute 1 Ed. 2. 2. the severity of the law is relaxed, and the breaking of prison is only felony, as 2 Rol. 589. 2 id. 2. 5. 2. Concerning prisoners who break prison, our Lord the King willith and commandeth, that none from henceforth that breaketh prison shall have judgment of life or member for breaking of prison only, except the cause for which he was taken and imprisoned did require such judgment, which is according to the law and custom of the realm; albeit in times past it hath been used otherwise.

In the construction of this statute, the following opinions have been held:

That any place whatever, wherein a person under a lawful arrest or committed for capital offences is restrained from his liberty, whether in the rocks or street, or in the common gaol, or the house of a confidable or private person, or the prison of the ordinary, is a prison within the statute. 2 Rol. 589. Dyer 99. pl. 60. Crom. 38. Crs. Cor. 210. Hale's P. C. 107.

That if the party who breaks from prison were taken on a warrant on an indictment or appeal, it is not material, whether that of which he is accused, was in truth committed or not, for there is an accusation against him on record, which makes the commission lawful, be he ever so innocent. 2 Rol. 590. Hale's P. C. 109.

Also if an innocent person be committed by a lawful mittimus on such suspicion of felony, actually done by some other, as will justify his imprisonment, though he be neither indicted nor appealed, he is within the statute if he break the prison, for that he was legally in custody, and ought to have submitted to it till he had been discharged by due course of law. 2 Rol. 590. Dyer 99. pl. 60. Crom. 38. 2.

But if no felony at all were done, and the party be neither indicted or appealed, no mittimus for such a supposed crime will make him guilty within the statute by breaking the prison, for that his imprisonment was unjustifiable. Hale's P. C. 109. 2 Rol. 590. cont. 2 Lew. 106.

Also if a felony were done, yet if there were no just cause of suspicion either to arrest or commit the party, and the mittimus be not in such form as the law requires, his breaking of the prison cannot be felony, because the lawful term of imprisonment, in such case, depends wholly on the mittimus, which, if it be not according to law, the imprisonment will have nothing to support it. 2 Rol. 591. H. P. 109. but for this see Mil. 28. 2 Hauk. P. C. 1245.

That there must be an actual breaking, for the words felony from prison, are necessary in every indictment for this offence, cannot be satisfied without some actual force or violence; and therefore if the prisoner, without the use of any violent means, go out of the prison doors, which he finds open by the negligence or content of the gaoler, or if he escape the breach made by others without his privy, he is guilty of a misdemeanour only, and not of felony. 2 Rol. 599. Hale's P. C. 108. Stamd. P. C. 31.

Nor will the breaking of prison, which is necessitated by any accident, happening without any default of the prisoner, as where the prison is fixed by lightning, or otherwise, without his privity, be broken out to live his life, come within the statute. Pol. 256. 2 Rol. 590. Hale's P. C. 108.

Nor is it felony to break a prison, unless the prisoner escape. Kett. 87. 2. 2. 2.

That the imprisonment be for any offence made capital by the statute, the breach of prison is as much within the act of Ed. 2, as if the offence had always been felony; but if the offence, for which a man is committed, were but a trespass at the time when he breaks the prison, and afterwards becomes felony by a matter subsequent, as where one committed for having carelessly wound a man, who afterwards dies, breaks the prison before he dies, the fiction of law, which to many purposes makes the offence a felony ab initio, shall not be carried any farther to make the prisoner-breach also a felony, which at the time when it was committed was but a misdemeanour. Hale's P. C. 128. 2 Rol. 591.

Also it seems the better opinion, that if the offence, for which the party was committed, be in truth but a trespass, the calling it felony in the mitimus, will not make the breaking of the prison amount to felony; and that on the other side, if the offence were in truth a capital one, the calling it a trespass in the mitimus will not bring it within the statute; for the cause of the imprisonment is what the statute regards, and that is the offence, which can neither be lessened nor increased by a mistake in the mitimus. But for this see 2 Hauk. P. C. 129.

That the breach of prison by a person attainted is within the statute, tho' his crime doth not now require any judgment, because it hath been given already, whereby he is out of the strict letter of the statute, but clearly fell within the meaning of the words. 2 Hauk. P. C. 127.

That the offence of breaking prison is but felony, whatsoever the crime were for which the party was committed, unless his intent were to favour the escape of others who were committed for treason, for that will make him a principal in the treason. 2 Hauk. P. C. 127.

That he that breaks prison may be proceeded against for such crime before he be convicted of the crime for which he is committed, because the breach of prison is a distinct independent offence; but the sheriff's return of a breach of prison is not a sufficient ground to arraign a man without an indictment. 2 Hauk. P. C. 127—8.

That it is not sufficient to indict a man generally for having feloniously broken prison; but the case must be set forth specially, that it may appear that he was lawfully in prison, and for a capital offence. Hale's P. C. 109. 2 Rol. 591. See $$$, Marbif. 255.

Gaoler, Is the master or keeper of a gaol or prison. 2. The duty and power of gaolers and keepers of prisons. 3. For what offences they shall forfeit their offices.

1. The duty and power of gaolers and keepers of prisons.

A gaoler is considered as an officer relating to the administration of justice, and is so far under the protection of the law, that if a perfon threatens him for keeping a prisoner in safe custody, he may be indicted and fined, and imprisoned for it. 2 Rol. 76.

If a criminal endeavouring to break the gaoler, shall be lawfully killed by him in the affray. Jerk. 23. 2 Hauk. P. C. 71.

Besides the duties imposed on gaolers by act of parliament, and the abuses for which by statute they are punished, it is supposed by them to be part of their duties, and as part of imprisonment, as also to the forfeiture of their offices, for gross and palpable abuses in the execution of their offices, such as refusing prisoners to escape, barbarously maddening them, see 9 Co. 50. Raym. 216. 2 Rol. 38. 3 Cs. 44.

By the 1 Ed. 3. cap. 10. "If any keeper of a prison or under-keeper, by too great durs of imprisonment, and by pain, make any prisoner that he hath in 1 his ward to become an appellee against his will, he is guilty of felony.

In the application of this statute it is said to be no way material, whether the approbement be true or false, or whether the appellee be acquitted or condemned; but at law this offence was esteemed a misprision only, unless the appellee were hanged by reason of the appeal. Staun. P. C. 35. 3 hif. 97.

Upon a great number of cases, and evidence, the courts to which they more immediately belong, for any griefs inbehaviour in their offices, or contempt of the rules of such courts, and punishable by any other courts for disobeying: writings of habets corpus awarded by such courts, and not brought up at the day of trial by such writs. 2 Hened. P. C. 151, and vide tit. Habets Corpus.

By the 4 Ed. 3. cap. 10. recting, That whereas in times past, sheriffs and gaolers of gaols would not receive theives, pervert appealed, indicted or found with the manner, taken and attainted by the constables and townships, the said taking great fines and ransoms of them for their receipt, whereby the said constables and townships have been unwilling to take thieves and felons because of such extreme charges, and the thieves and felons more encouraged to offend, it is enacted, That the several and different fines found of them, by the delivery of the constables and townships, without taking any thing for the receipt; and the judges to deliver the gaol, shall have power to hear their complaints, that with complaint against the sheriffs and gaolers in such case, and shall be heard by the several judges and gaolers, if they shall be found guilty. By the 23 H. 6. cap. 10, a gaoler upon commitment may take 6d.

By the 3 H. 7. cap. 3. it is enacted, That every sherfiff, bailiff of franchise, and every other person having authority or power of keeping of gaols, or of prisoners for felony, duely appointed to the same, and upon no guilty pleaded, she was found guilty and her crime extortion of fees, and hard usage of the prisoners in a most barbarous manner; and after the said by her counsel moved in arrest of judgment, and could not prevail, the said judgment given against her, the said was fined one hundred marks, removed from her office, and the custody of the prison was at present delivered to the sheriff of Middlesex, till the dean and chapter should further order the same. Rayn. 216. 2 Lev. 71. Lady Braghten's case.

And by the 8 & 9 Will. 3. cap. 27, it is enacted, That if any marshal of the King's Bench prison, and warden of the Fleet, shall be executed by the several persons to whom the inheritance of the prison, prison-houses, birds, tenements and other hereditaments then belonging or uncertain respectively, in his or their respective proper person or persons, or by his or their sufficient deputy or deputies, for such or any other prison within the kingdom, shall take any sum of money, reward or gratuity whatsoever, or security for the same, to procure, admit, receive or entiate any such or any other prison, the said marshal of the King's Bench prison, and warden of the Fleet, and his respective deputies or underkeepers or any other keeper of any prisons as aforesaid, shall for every such office forfeit the sum of 500 l. and his said office, and be for ever after incapable of executing any such office.

It hath been resolved, that a forfeiture by a gaoler who hath lost a particular interest, as of him who hath custody of a gaol for life or years, does not affect him in remainder or erection who hath the inheritance, but that upon such forfeiture his title shall accrue, and not go to the King. P. P. 371. 2 Lev. 71. Rayn. 216. 3 Lev. 288.

But by the 8 & 9 Will. 3. cap. 27, it is enacted, That the offices of marshal of the King's Bench prison, and warden of the Fleet, shall be executed by the several persons to whom the inheritance of the prison, prison-houses, birds, tenements and other hereditaments then belonging or uncertain respectively, in his or their respective proper person or persons, or by his or their sufficient deputy or deputies, for such or any other prison, and for all forgeries, efts and other misdemeanor in their respective offices, by such deputy or deputies permitted, or committed, the said person or persons, in whom the aforesaid inheritance respectively are or shall then be, shall be answerable; and the profits and aforesaid inheritances of the said several offices shall be quitted, seised or extended to make satisfaction for such forgeries, esfts or misdemeanor respectively, as permitted, suffered or committed by the person or persons themselves, or either of them in whom the respective inheritances of the said prisons shall then be.

See title Prison, Esqtie.

Gaol-delivery. See Juticies of gaol-delivery.

Gara, A measure or small quantity of ground; one farthing part of a fen. See in practice Berford for acres and short gars, 6 l. Mag. angl. tom. 3. par. 2. pag. 29.

Garde, (Garba, from the Fr. garbe, a flock) Signifies a bundle or sheaf of corn. Carta de Forfia, cap. 7. And garde jigituram is a sheaf of straws, containing twenty-four, otherwise called niofis jigituram. Stark, Garda, De omni omnino decime garba Des debita g. Ll. Edwards Conf. cap. 17. It is understood for all manner of corn and grain that is usually bound in sheafs, as decime garbarum. Garba is also taken for a handful, viz. Garba acuis fit ex triginta peciis. Fleta, lib. 2. c. 12. Cowell, edit. 1727.
Garritts, in Stat. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 10. grinds the dust, full or uncleanliness that is ferred from spice, drugs, &c.

Carling of botanizers, in Stat. 2 R. 3. cap. 11. Is the cutting or cutting out the good from the bad. As garlic is spice nothing but to purify it from the dross, and that is done by cutting, or cutting out the bad from the good. From the Italian garbi, that a silence, neutrally: Thence probably we for when we see a man in such habit. He is in a kindred garb. Coddell, edit. 1727.

Garber of fitters, (mentioned in Stat. 21 Jac. cap. 19.) is an officer of great antiquity in the city of London, who may enter into any house, watchcloth, &c. to ward burning and touch drugs, spices, &c. and to garble the name, and make them clean.

Garritts, The word piskey is printed by mistake for farce; however it is Sigilus. the baggage of an army. — Cam certum nigret elegentiat flanationi caput aurognium specie (qvec garcinus argyropus) A tersus locutus. Waltham in R. 2. pag. 224. Coddell, edit. 1727.

Garrius, (Fr. garcon.) A boy, a stripling, a groom. Plq. Ca. 21 Ed. 1. Garter filde, groom of the robe to the King. Coddell, edit. 1727.

Garrits and Garritts, The baggage of an army, so called. A Guttarii, or five miliarum: Waltham, pag. 242. For garciones are those servants which follow the camp. Habet garciones seu farcitiis superanne. Incipillus, pag. 886.

Garb, Carth. See Guard and Guardian.

Garritdash, (Fr. garderobes.) A vessel for armament. In the n. 5. by charter dated 16 Juni. 7 Regni granted to Sir William Bourchier, comitem earum de Eves in Normandy. — Reddendo dicti Regis & Ferdinandi suis apud coritum Rathamagi sumus gardebrach de jiffiam Sanclis Gergii finguis annis, &c. Baronag. Anglia, 2 part. 4.

Gartherobe, (Garderobes.) A closet or small apartment for hanging up clothes, being the same with wardrobe. See 2 Inst. 255.

Garrit or Guardia, Is a word used among the scalfists for the Lat. cothelis & guardianus. See guardon, dictur ille, et cuffiaura summi off. Lib. Feod. 1. tit. 2 & 11.

Carth. See Guardian.

Car, is a coarse wool full of hair, such as grow about the flanks of sheep. Stat. 31 Ed. 3. c. 8.

Sargarrete, To speak with a loud voice: Sit hae verbis dominis Parvis unius, gargante supra fixa. — Cam certum, or being in the 14. Ed. Matr. anno 1522.

Carisius Hircus. The river Yare in Norfolk. H.

Garishill, but more truly Garishphill, Is that sort of spice we call clove. Camden, edit. 1727.

Garland, A chaplet, a coronet, a garland. — Car- tarii, or the heralds garland. Canitera dictum reprimand. Mat. Par. anno. 1247.

Garniture. Garniture, furnishing, possession, ammunition, and other implements of war. Mat. Par. fab. ann. 1250.

Garniturenum, Garnish, trimming, or any thing adorning clothes or wearing apparel. Min. Arg. tom. 2. p. 321.

Garish, As to garish the heir, that is, to warn the heir. 2 Eliz. c. 3.

Garnish, Is taken for the party in whose hands money is attached, within the liberties of the city of London, to used in the Ward of London's court, because he has had garnishment or warning not to pay the money, but to appear and answer to the plaintiff-creditor's suit. Coddell, edit. 1727. See Antidation.

Garnishment, (from Fr. garnir, to furnish, to provide with.) In a legal sense signifies a warning given to one for his appearance, for the better furnishing of the cause and court: for example, One is sued for the de- tinue of certain evidences and charters, and faith, that the evidences were delivered to him not only by the plaintiff, but another ali, and therefore prayeth, that that other may be required to plead with the plaintiff, whether the conditions be performed or not; and in the petition

Garth, he is bid to pray garnishment. New Stat. of England, fol. 312. cl. 4. and Termi de la Ley, Grahn, f. 191. which may be interpreted either warning of that other, or else furnishing of the court with parties sufficient throughout to determine the cause, because until he appears and join, the defendant is, as it were, out of the court, and if no other party be joyned he cannot be sided of all parties to the action. With this agrees Britton, cap. 29, where he relates, That contracts, some be naked, and some furnish'd, and (to use the literal figurative of the word) appurtenance, but a naked con- tract, nondum patronum, gives no action; and therefore it is nothing but the former, and the latter cannot be appurtenance, which ought to be with these five sorts of garnishments. Howbeit it is generally used for a warning in many places, particularly in Kitchin, fol. 6. Garnigler le courte, is to warn the court; and reasonable garnishment in the former place intends reasonable warning, and again, fol. 283, and many other authors. And in the flante, cap. 2. Upon a garnishment, or two nickles returned. But this may well be thought a metonymy of the effect, because by the warning of parties, the court is furnished and adorned. Coddell, edit. 1727.

Gariture, (Garrijura.) A furnishing or providing. Camden, edit. 1727.

Garrienna, A warren. Coddell, edit. 1727.

Garritummum, A fine or amerciament. See Domes- day; its written in Spendam, Giffs. Geffana. See Cer- tianum.

Garrit, (Gartarium, in French jurist, i. perifels, for sporitaria) Signifies in divers statutes and elsewhere, a special garter, being the ensign of a great and noble order of knights, called Knights of the Garter, being of all others the most excellent. This high order, as ap- peared by Mr. Camden, 211, and many others, was first instituted by King Edward the Third, in the 29 year of his reign, upon good sucesss in a furbish, wherein the King's garter (as it is said) was used for a token. 'Tis true, Fuldaire Virg. gives it a more light original, but his grounds, by his own confinition, arise from the vulgar opinion; King Edward the Third (fays he) after he had obtained many great victories; (the Kings of France and Scotland being both prisoners in the Tower of London at one time; King Henry of Castile the bald, expell'd, and Don Pedro restored by the Prince of Wales,) did, upon no weighty occasion, first erect this order in 1520. vide. He dancing with the Queen, and other ladies of the court, took up a garter that happened to fall from one of them, which he could not help picking up; and thinking it was meet (which is commonly thought truth) he caught it up, and made that garter to be of high reputation, and shortly after instituted this order of the Blue Garters, which every companion of the order is bound daily to wear, being richly decorated with gold and silver, and having their words fixt on it, Hoc est quod regem post mortem, which is commonly intepreted, Gwill him that evil thinketh; or rather thus, To be him that evil thinketh. Erne in his Glory of Ge- neraliy, fol. 120. agrees with Camden, and more partic- ularly fer down the victories by which this order was occasioned. See very ingenious and elaborate Tastive on this Subject by Elias Afmine, 1549. This order con- fifts of twenty-six martal and heroic nobles, wherein the King of England is the Sovereign, and the rest are either nobles of the realm, or princes of other countries, friends and allies of this kingdom; the honer being to great, that Empires of other Kings of nations have defined, and thankfully accepted it. For the ceremonies of the chapter proceeding to the election, of the investiture and robes, introductions and vow, with all other matters con- cerning it, see Mr. Segar's Honour Military and Civil, 2. cap. 9. f. 65. and the said Testive by Mr. Afmine, 1549. 65. and the very true and principal garter of arms among our order, is strange, that in his English heralds, created by King Henry the Third, there are two pages, pag. 584. and mentioned 14 Car. 2. cap. 32. See Herald.

Garth, A little backside or chafe, in the North of England. Alfo a dam or weaver in a river, for the catching of fish, vulgarly call'd a gar-thar. Coddell, edit. 1727.

Garthman,
GAV

Gavellere, Gavelth, The duty or work of ploughing so much earth, or ground, done by the customary tenant for his lord. — Item respectus de 35 acris de confinantia arundis, gavel-her. — Item homini ibi quinque juros, gavelis, quod simul damnum ad fermenatum, & feminisco, & hereditum, et laborant quod quid gavel-her.
Summer of Gavelkind, p. 17.

Gavelled, Corn, rent, or provision of bread, referred from the tenant to be paid in kind. Allcator Pres sumus pro gavelled ex berentae tres summas & demund. — In Gavelled, de conjectuante armatum & metentum duo laudam. — S. Kitchin, Gavelkind, pg. 25.

Gavelgbna, Gavelguld, That yields rent or annual profit. — Si antem in gavelgibna, id eft, in gallum reddente dama popes fta, vel in galebras 30 sol, capta judici-Anglo. leg. p. 155.

Gavelkind, Is by Mr. Lumbard, in his Exposition of Saxon Words, verbo Terra de Scriptis, composed of three Saxon words, gys, cau, nom, signifies any distance or length. But physic in his Reformation of decayed Intelligence, c. 3. calls gavelkind, quod simul damnum, quod gavel-her, that is, give to each child his part. But Taylor in his History of Gavelkind, would derive it from the British gevel, a hold, or tenure, and comes of cemhald, generatio out familia, and so gavel-cemhald might signify Tenura generationis, pag. 92 & 123.
Whatsoever is the true etymology, it signifies in law a custom, whereby the land of the father is equally divided at his death among all his sons, so that the land of the brother equally divided at his death among all his brethren, if he have no issue of his own. Kitchin, fol. 107.

Tentniciis præcis patris succedit in agris
Moscula ferri omnis, ne faret utilia potens.

This custom is still in force in divers places of England, but especially in Kent, Suffolksted in Heretoffshire, and elsewhere, more with some difference; but the statute of 33 H. 8. c. 26. all Gavel-kind lands in Wales are made defendable to the heirs, according to the courts of the Common law. Camden, in his Britannia, pg.
239, faith in express words, Cantuani eo legi Gulielmo Nomannio de dictandum, ut patrias conjectuantes illegales retirent, et en uma specie Gavel-e Kurds, & Gavel-kind omnibus. Haec terrae ut omnia conjectur, littera et seminabit, vel seminavis si no futuris, adding withal worth the noting, viz. Hanc haroeditatis cum quantum denocam omnia agerat, audient, & fine dominis confiderit, cantuati vel lands vel wendenals, alienus licet.
Hanc fit lipsius, qui fuerit damnum, de landis, &c. It appears by 18 Hen. 6. c. 3. that in those days they were not above thirty or forty perkins in Kent that held by any other tenure, but it was altered afterwards in much land in that county, upon the petition of several gentlemen there, a statute made 33 H. 8. cap. 3.
In Gavel-kind, though the father be hanged, the son shall inherit; for their custom is, The father to the bough, the son to the plough. Doctor and Student, cap.
10. On Litt. lib. 2. cap. 10. sect. 165. and Co. 9
Reg. Stellis, c. 3. Their ancestors held their lands by writing, or in rent; which were held by writing were called buckland, whole owners were men who, to this day, we now call freeholders. That which was held without writing was called folcled, and the owners were of fervile condition, and were poecified ad voluntatem Domini,
but the inheritance of freehold did not in those days depend to the actual tenure, but to all alike, which in Saxen was called lands jeullan, and it was as good to have from whence came the custom of Gavel-kind. And the reason why it was retained in Kent, and no where else, is, because the Kentishmen were not conquered by the Normans: For Sigmond, the archbishop of Canterbury, and one Egbert, an Freeman, commanded the forces in that county, ordered every man to march with his men, and from whence came the custom of Gavel-kind.
And the reason why it was retained in Kent, and no where else, is, because the Kentishmen were not conquered by the Normans: For Sigmond, the archbishop of Canterbury, defence of the laws of their country; and he imagining himself to be encompassed in a wood, granted that and their poverty should enjoy their rights, liberties and laws; some of which, as particularly this of Gavel-kind, continues to this very day. Gavel, ed. 1777.
Of the same opinions concerning the original of this custom the most probable seems to be, that it was first introduced by the Roman clergy, and therefore propagated more extensively in Kent, because there the Christian religion was first propagated. This tenure is reckoned by the bell antiquaries to be the same with the Saxon feud lands, which was even afterwards called after the feudal services. 2 Bat. Abr. 657. Sumner 12, 351 37.
How this property came to escape, and to remain intire down to the people of Kent from their Saxon ancestors, is not agreed among the several antiquaies; some of them tell us, that the Kentishmen came with boughs, and demanded their custom to be confirmed by the Conqueror, or else resolved to oppose his march;
others reject that story as a monkish tale, and think the Kentishmen submitted, and that the Conqueror came with Odo, bishop of Bayeux, from Normandy; which hath less probability, considering the many exceptions of the Kentish lands from feudal fealties; probably, not written in the story as to the expedition of the Conqueror with arms, it might thus far be true, that they came with their boughs to submit them telves to him on his first entry, and might petition for the establishment of their rights and customs: and the Con queror, who was a very politic prince, might, to gain reputation with his new people, so as this influence of his clemency; which seems the more probable, because the monks, the historians of those times, drop the story, and we all know they have not been at all favourable to his character; and the Romanick part of the story might be invented by Spet, to aggrandize his own monarchical.
kind 137, 171. Sumner 12.
1. Several properties of this custom.
2. Particular cases which have been adjudged relating to this custom.
1. Several properties of this custom.
The first quality of the land was, that it was alienable, without any licence, according to the true nature of the Roman patrimonial property, and very different from the feeventh part, which was the custom of the matrimon ial, in nature of the contract in the Roman law, and without any feudal words or reservation of tenure. 2
Bat. Abr. 638. Sumner 88.
The next property is, that these lands are not forfei table for felony, but for treason they are; for the feudal forfeitures only held in lands where there were tenures, and not in the alodial property; and the alodial property was only forfeitable, according to the Roman Civil law, for the crimes lesven majestatis; and therefore the clergy,
that were judges with the eal, never allowed the lands to be forfeited but for the crime of high treason; but subsequent flatures comprehend Gavel-kind, because such laws extend on the whole lands of the kingdom, unless Gavel-kind were excepted; but if a man be outlawed, or abjure the realm for felony, he shall forfeit his land in Gavel-kind, and his wife her dower in them; and tho' the stiffnecks in which the custom is to be taken, because derogatory from the Common law, is usually given for a reason that this custom be not the true feudal law, that outlawry and abjuring the realm are punishments in troduced since the conquest, and consequently since the establishment of Gavel-kind in Kent, and therefore like other new laws shall extend to that custom. Lamb.
When any tenant dies without his heir within age, the lord might and did commit the guardianship to the next relation within the court of judicature in whose jurisdiction the land was;
but the lord was bound on all occasions to call him to an account, and if he did not see that the accounts were fair,
the lord himself was bound to answer it; this province
the Chancellor hath taken from inferior courts since the conquest, only in Kent, where these customs are con tinued; but the custom is not used even in Kent to this day, because there it is supposed these lords in giving tutors do it at their own peril in the account, and therefore every judgment is ar erent to intermeddle. Lamb. 611, 612, 624, 626.
The infant at fifteen was reckoned at full age to fall for money; this they undoubtedly took from the Civil law, which reckons fourteen the age of puberty; for they reckoned, that though the infant had ended his years of infancy, yet he might not have completed his account with his guardian till the age of fifteen, and that was esteemed to be the age when he was com pletely out of guardianship. Lamb. 612.
The guardian appointed by the lord is to have the name allowance, and no other, with the guardian in office at Common law, and is subject to the account of the heir for his receipts, and to the dollars of the lord for the name cause. Lamb. 625.
The liberty of selling was allowed at the age of fifteen for the convenience and necessity of commerce, for which the small divided fines were absolutely necessary; yet it was decided that the conditions of such sales should be,
that the infant could not be wronged or impugned a fore an infant that falls must have a valuable consideration, because otherwise 'tis a plain sign that the infant was de frauded; if a woman sold at the age of fifteen gavelkin marriage privileges, this was a good conveyance; for marriage was reckoned to be a good and sufficient confide rance, and therefore need not be confirmed by an act of date. It must pass by feoffment, and the livery upon the feoffment must be made by the infant in person, because an infant can't appoint an attorney by the Common law;
and since the express words of the custom do not derogate
from the Common law in that point, an equitable con duction does not get admitted to make it derogate, for all customs are to be confirmed clearly. Lamb. 628.
This custom, like all others that are derogatory from the Common law, is to be continued strictly; because as far as the particular custom hath not derogated from the law, the general custom of the whole kingdom ought to prevail; and we are not to presume that the particular custom goes further than by notorious facts may appear, therefore in this case, if an infant in gavelkind be dispelled,
and releas to his dispossessor, or releas to a discontinuance, it is not within the custom, and therefore void; so if he make a feoffment with warranty, the warranty is not complemented within the custom, and to void; for the custom is not acted upon it, and is a conveyance by a naked feoffment. 1 Rot. Abr. 568.
It must be lands in possession, and not in reversion or remainder, because the true value of a reversion or remainder can't be known or compared, and therefore the greater need of more than ordinary direction in such case, which is not found in lands; besides, a reversion or remainder could not be immemorial; and therefore the custom could not be thereunto appendant, because the immemorial customs only were confirmed by the Con queror; so that since the Norman conquest such a lase can't be adjudged legal. Bridw. 33. pt. 52. Lamb.
627.
When the infant is not to be land coming by decessor, and not by pur chase, because the infant's purchase could not be a subjed matter for the custom; for the Conqueror must, as is said, be preumed to confirm nothing but a privilege that is immemorial; therefore it must be governed by the general 627. It must be lands in possession, because the infant had the privileges of the infant at Common law, because tho' he had the privilege of alienation at fifteen, yet that did not take from him any privilege he had before at the Common law. 1 Rot. Abr. 144.
As to the geld, or allodial rent, that was referred upon the lands, the lord might demand, how the geld was vigor for his rent as when the tenant held it in medium benefit for tho' the lord parted with the lands, yet the rent still remained to be the lord's as it was before, and therefore he had it for the same remedy as all other per

A. feited of lands in gavelkind had issue three sons, and devised part to one, and part to another, and another part to a third; and appointed by his will, that if any of them die without issue, that the other should be his heir; and it was adjudged, that each of them had an infeft-call by implication, by that part of the will, that if any of them died without issue, the others and like the word heir makes a fee-simple in that part that descends to the survivor, upon the death of the rest without issue.

An man feited of land in gavelkind makes a feifment to the wife of himself and his wife in tail, the remainder to his right heirs; the word heis in the remainder is of limitation, and not of purchase; and therefore the remainder shall descend according to the custom of gavelkind.

Bro. vit. Cust. lam., (1.)

Lands in Kent were disavowed (by s 2 H. 8. cap. 3, and a private act made 2 & 3 Ed. 6.) to all intents, construct; and purposes whatever, that they should descend as lands at Common law, any cufrom to the contrary notwithstanding; and the quesoion was, whether these lands loft by these uattudes all their other qualities or cufroms belonging to gavelkind, as well as their partibility; and resolved that they lose only their partibility;

Lambs, 10. 2 Kib. 288. Hard. 375.

For this act were made at the petition of those gentlemen whose lands were disavowed, to prevent the extircation of their families by the frequent divisions of those lands; therefore 'tis to be presumed, that the legitimate owners would be entitled to the remainder partibility, as that part of the cufrom which tended to the crumbling of families, and not those other beneficial cufroms annexed to such lands in Kent, such as devifing, forfeiture for treason only,

2. To expound this private act of the 2 & 3 Ed. 6, literally in the clause (that they should be as lands at Common law, to all intents and purposes,) I would take away all manner of power of devifing those lands, for lands at Common law were not devidible; and this act being subseqent to s 2 H. 8. and s 3 H. 8. of wills, must repeal them, and consequently prevent all future devies; but this restraint can't be intended to be within the view of the pettiiters, nor of the legislature that framed the act upon the petition.

3. That in the beginning of the clauze the words to all intents and purposes, &c. are large, yet they are restrained by the last words of the clauze, viz. that they should devid as lands at Common law, and consequently the cuftom of partibility is as good and as well established by law, as it is by common usages, and other qualities annexed to the partible land in Kent, be benefical to gavelkind; for the cuftom of gavelkind prevails in other countries besides Kent; and yet it may be very much questioned, whether the gavelkind of Kent, and that in other countries, agree in any thing but the manner of devid; and if this doubt may be admitted, then those extraordinary cufroms in Kent can't be extinguisht in a statute, without particular words for that purpose.

S. ibd. 137. Rraym. 59, 77.

To illustrate this point further, it will be necessary to take notice of the words afofo, if a man feited in lands in gavelkind give or devise them to a man and his elder heirs, this does not alter the cuftomary inheritance, or hinder the devisers, according to the rules in gavelkind, for that can be only done by act of parliament.

Cic. Lit. 27. a.

If a man feited in lands in gavelkind give or devise them to a man and his elder heirs, this does not alter the cuftomary inheritance, or hinder the devisers, according to the rules in gavelkind, for that can be only done by act of parliament.

Cic. Lit. 27. a.

If lands in gavelkind devid the King and his brother, the King shall take one moiety, and his brother the other; but if the King dies, his moiety shall devid the King; and not according to the rules of devid in gavelkind; for the King was feited of his moiety pure corone; therefore it shall attend the crown, and consequently go to the elder son.

Psic. 205. Cic. Lit. 15.
dom, that the judge may be apprised of them, and where they obtain, and to give their decisions with regard to them. 1 Sid. 138. Cro. Car. 562. 2 Sid. 153. Bruse v. Brodey. Lamb. 595.

Heirs in gavelkind shall make partition as parceners, and a writ of partition lies between them as it does be- tween certain lessees, to the declaration among the parties what is the custom must be mentioned; as to say, that the land is of the custom of gavelkind, but they need not pre- serve; for the custom, as different from the general law of the kingdom, must be taken notice of to the judge, yet there is no necessity for prebischiving, because it is lic. in Chit. 17 b. Lit. felt. 285. See 14 Hen. 6 Atr. tit. Gaukind.

Gaukind, Is a tenant who is liable to tribute. Villani de Terring qui vocatur gauvel. Sumer, Gau- kind, p. 73.

Gauklem, The duty or work of measuring of grain, or currying such kind, required by the lord in his customary tenant. — Confectans falcantique qui vocatur gavel. — Sumer of Gaukind, Append. — Et per una septemina domin facat fipula qui vocatur gavelmed, ib.

Gauklers, Javelin, darts, the flagge $c. being the same with ja, and so derived from jaum. Primos iugitora fijam Willielmam tam jacatis, quam unguari gavelones appellant, gavurer maxime notitiam habebunt et usum — hes l'isconser juventur. Mar. Par. aub anno 1356.

Gauklerp, Bedrep, or duty of reaping at the bid or command of the lord. — De custodia metuenda 40 acariorum cendimorum in hortia in autumno 40 fol. 6 decem. Sumer of Gaukind, p. 10, 21.

Gauklerp. See Gauklerp.

Gaukelter, (Sax.) Sextriurum veligalis; (seruicas fel- licis sextarius maneri vel prudens demum ab sibi fructuarii serivias quintas, conuii vel veligalis nominis, prorsus.) Is a type of gavelter, or rent of rent. About the same articles to be charged on the woads and bailiffs of the church of Canterbury's mansors, this of old was one. — De gaukelter cujuslibet bracini braziati infras libertatem maneriae, viz. Uhun lagenam et dimidiam cujuslibet. We may find it elsewhere under the name of Toke; thus, De Tokele gualter, faci et quibus bracIne per annum annorum legem de cujuslibet, and is without dispute the same. In lieu of which the abbots of Angstorn, of cuftom, received that penny mentioned by Selden in his Distinctione appertained to Eceto, cap. 8. num. 3, and there (I believe) misprinted Coilegleyn-penny for Tokeleyn-penny. Nor differs it (I think) from this Tokeleyn-penny, at the end of H. I. laws, as called cob-guell, Sax. Dict. and see Zollter, Cowell, edit. 1727.

Gauvelorch (Sax.) Was either manuopera by the hands and person of the tenant, or correpgra by his carts or carriages. Phil. of Tarrsonage.

Gaugerum, A gauging or gauking, done by the gauker. Librum de uxoriis 5 H. 3. de dolubor nofirura & gaugco mercaturum burzegul, & de gaucozarius done, & denarii prid. soli. obliv. ab empare, & obliv. a vendi- tore. Mandat per brevia de Cars. quad annus ligma de diis siunum fiant de ceith em reto gaugco anglicos. Ronan. Currem praeterea de eun. negl. — The true English gauker.

Gauger, (Gaukerter, from the French gaukerter, i. e. in gyrum torquere) Signifies an officer of the King's ap- pointed to examine all tuns, pipes, hogheads, barrels and tertia's of wine, beer, ale, oil, honey, butter, and give them a mark of allowance, before they be sold in any place. And because this mark is a circle, made with an iron instrument for that purpose; it forms that from thence he taketh his name. Cowell, edit. 1727.

All wines brought to be sold shall be gauged by the King's gauger, 27 Ed. 3. 3. 1. c. 8. 31 Ed. 3. 3. 1. c. 5. 31 Ed. 3. 3. 1. c. 8. Vellips of wine, vinegar, oil, honey, &c. shall be gauged, 4 Ric. 2. c. 1 18 Hen. 6. c. 17. Rheinsh wine exempt, 14 Ric. 2. c. 8.

The contents of pipes, hogheads, &c. of wine and fih, 5 Hen. 6. c. 11. The gauger shall at all times be ready to do his duty, 23 Hen. 6. c. 15.
Gentleman. Generalis is an irregular compound of two languages, the one from the French gentil, that is, Hughes, vel longiisa longus natus; the other from the Saxon man, as if you, a man well born. The Italiu follows the very word, allying the word we call gentleman. The Spaniard keeps the meaning, calling him hidalgo or hijo d'alge, that is, the son of some man, or of a man of reckoning: The French also call him gentilhomme. So that gentlemen are those whom their blood and race doth make noble and known; in other words, so like in Latin, nobilis, Smith of Rep. Arg. lib. 1. cap. 10. Under this name are comprized all above yeomen, so that noblemen are truly called gentlemen; but by the course and custom of England, nobility is either major or minor; the greater contains all the degrees from knights upwards; the latter, all from barons downward. Smith wh. foot. cap. 2. The reason of the name may arise from this, that they observe gentilisatem faum, that is, the race and propagation of their blood, by giving of arms, which the common fort neither doth, nor may do; for by the coat of a gentleman given, he is known to be such, or not to be descended from the house of his ancestors in so many years since. Gentiles humes, lie in Tarraque' del Nitikatia, cap. 2. pug. 53. Cicero in his Topics, of this matter speaks thus, Gentiles fac qui inter se edam fumum nominis or ingeninis arund, quam majorum nata ferculatam servavit, qui capitne non sunt diminis. And in the first book of his Tus. Smith of Arg. Ionicis, callit Textum gentilis, of the King's, gentleman's feum. These words, gentilis dom, for a gentleman, was adjudged a good addition. Hill 27 Ed. 3. The addition of knight is ancient, but of such or gentleman rare before the fir of H. 5. c. 5. See 2 Par. hist. feg. 595 & 667, where they are John Kingdon made a gentleman by King Richard 2. Pet. 13 Ric. 2. part. 1. n. 13. intit. Genu Generation. Successi Etehaldos Offa quinto gen. Malmoj. lib. 1. c. 4. Genu, North Wales. Cowell, ed. 1727. Genu, (Lat.) The general flock, extraction, &c. of the word is the same in law, gene or general; but the word for, is the species of it, or particular. 2 Lit. 528. George Noble. A piece of gold current at six shillings and eight-pence in 1 H. 8. when by indenture of the Mon one pound weight of gold was to be coined into the value he 1727. Cowell, ed. 1727. Genua. A clown or villain. Gennadus. Cowell. ed. 1727. C. pleasant. Gernutia, (Sax. Gerunfa, i.e. fumpus, praeumium.) In ancient charters it is used for an income; as Sciutus me A. pro tot libris, quos B. mibi dedis in gerunfa, dedulis, confcsses, &c. Sometimes for a fine or a fine; as, Gerunfa capo de nativa foffa ingregua fine lenta, quod dixit Childew. In Skelh, Par. is written Gerunfa. Datis abexti tralibus maris sui in gerunfa, i.e. pro fres. And in Scotland, gerunfa. Sometimes' tis taken for any an exaction or demand; as, Alach rexatientia cujuslibet confluentis fines rovetur, i.e. free alienus gerunfa, ex facultatis exillation. Mon. Ang. 21. cap. 13. tem. pa. 104. Gernutatius. Finable, or liable to be mutilated, fined or amerced at discretion of the Lord.—In Berton parvus—fatn tres cediefis quorum sulpitul obligatur fiemel in heboladato & mietis in aurum unam annum de tribus tria radiis etatis. Dovmus illeis tres cedieres, si voluntis, ad chorum in colnuncia quorum terminum ad voluntatem Domini. Cartular. S. Edb. MS. 1. 153. Cowell, ed. 1727. Gernutia, Allembled. Cowell. ed. 1727. Gern, (French, gift.) A lodging or flag of rest in a journey or progress. Smith of Rep. Arg. lib. 4. A. D. 1352. when the 57th, (i.e. the flages of his Majesty's progress) were altered, Archbishop Cranmer intreated Cecily to send him the new-sected gifts, that he might from time to time know where his Majesty was.
;

.

G

G L A

F

I

H

and

7. 39.
F.N.S. 140. Peri. 30. 21 Ed. 4. 25. 21
21 H. 6. 43.
courted,
he whom ^. made a prefent of a jewel to a lady chattels

aaion
but the marrtage not taking efFed, he brought an
gift,
of detinue againft her, and (he, taking it to be a opinion,
offered to wage her law; but the court was of being to a
that the property was not changed by this gift,

In witnefs, iSc.

her to do
fpecial intent, and therefore would not admit Mich. 28 Car. 2.
it; cited per the Ch. J. 2 Afad. 141.
C. B. in the cafe of Beaumont v.

—— —

of a deed of

THIS

gift

of the one part.,

iSc,

year.,

the faid

natural love

torn.

and T. B.

^uicquid

edit.

for the better maintenance
B. Hath given, granted,

edit.

as hii fon,

alfo

hold the faid meffuage or tenement, lands and premijfes hereby given and granted, or mentioned or intended to be given and granted unto the faid T. B. his heirs and affigns,
to

proper ufe and behoof of him

the faid

T. B.

his

And the faid A. B. for himfelf, and adminijlrators, doth covenant and grant to and with the faid T. B. his heirs and affigns by his heirs and affigns, thefe prefents, that he the faid T. B.
henceforth for ever hereafter, fijall and lawfully may from peaceably and quietly have, hold, occupy, poffefs, and enjoy the faid meffuage, tenement, lands, hereditaments and premiffes hereby given and granted, or mentioned or intended fo to be, with their appurtenances, free, clear and difcharged other gifts, grants, bargains and of and from all former and
and

affigns

for ever.

executors

his heirs,

feoffments, jointures, dowers, eflates, -entails, rents, rent- charge, arrearages of rents, Jlatutcs, judgments, recogfales,

nizances, Jiatutes merchant and from all other titles,

In witnefs,

them, or any or either of them.

TO

from

or under him,
ijfc,

I A. B. of, &c. fend greeting.
That I the faid A. B. for and in confideration of the natural love and offeElion which I hove and hear unto my beloved brother L. B. of, &c. and for divers other good caufes and confiderations me hereunto moving, have given and granted, and by thefe prefents do give and grant ye.

all and fingular my goods,
and perfonal ejlate whatfoever, unto the faid L. B.

hands, cujtody or poffffion foever they

be,

chattels,

whofe
within the kingdom
in

of Great Britain, (Sc. To have and to hold, and enjoy all and fingular the faid goods, chattels, and perfonal ejiate eforefaid, unto the faid

and

affigns,

L. B.

his

And I

the

to the only

L. B.

his executors,

proper ufe

adminifirators

and behoof of him the faid and affigns for ever.

executors, adminifirators faid A. B.

all

5

is"

See ©tttlD.

compenfation or muldl for a fault,

alfo a

amore in alterum furatum halent in duos geldos
From hence weregcld is the price of a

in

orfgeld the price of cattle, angild the fingle value

and fingular the aforefaid

geld,

There

goods.

are likewife

and which fhew the kinds of payments, as danegeld, vadegeld, feneand many more. Ccwelly 1727.

CDtlDalC, (from the Sax. gild, i.e. folutio, and contribution where every one paid his (hare.

cele, ale,)

Couiell,

See §>OtI)alC.

1727.

liable to

empt, becaufe ccclefia donata.
It is mentioned An. 27
H. 8. c. 26. but we find gildable expounded in an old
MS. to be that land or lordftiip which is fub difiriSlione curia vicecorri.
See 2 Par. Infl. fol. 701.
Inquifitio
capta apud Atherflon, i^c. 5 H. 5. per facram. IVill.
Peirs
al. qui dicttnt quod Johannes Chefterfhire, qui tenet unum tenementum IS duo crefta cum pertin. in le geldable de fohanne Lile per quod fervitium ignorant, erexit crucem S. jfohannis Hierofol. fuper domum fuam, ad habendum privi-

^

legium

£3"

Templar, de Baljhade,

libertat.

prad. tenementum fub
contra

formam

crtice in

Jiatuti inde

Dugdale, Ar.

fur.

eo

quod teneret

prajudicium Dom. Regis

editi, (s'c.

MS.

dsf

penes GuJ.

SempUngham

dicunt quod prior de

te-

net tres cariicaias terra in S. (^ non funt geidabiles.
Ex
Rot. Hundr. in Ttirr. Lond. de Anno 3 Ed. i. Line.
Pipes
adulterins.
Rot.
©iiDaC
3 Johannis. PerCowell, edit. 1727.
haps ufed for adulterate money.

CDilljalDa 2CClttOntfO?tim, Was ufed for the fraternity of Eafterling merchants in London, called the Jiill-yard.

22 Hen. 8. cap.
See ColD.

Stat.

dDtloing.

(II5ilD:?mcrrljant,

(GUda privilege or liberty granted

8.

mercatoria)

Was

to merchants,

were enabled (among other things)

a certain

whereby they

to hold certain pleas

of land within their own precinfts ; as King John granted gildham mercatoriam to the burgefles of Nottingham.
dDtltluitc.

dDitDlersi,

15 Ric.

2.

See (35i)Ittoite.
See ^jjtcerj'.

dDinjcc.
c.

May make their girdles with white metal,

ir.

(©irarmiS, or CDtlifarmClS, (mentioned in the ftatute

From the Lat.
13 Ed. I. flat.' 2. c. 6.) An halberr.
A kind of bis arma, becaufe it wounds on both fides.
hand-ax, according to Skene. .Fleta mifwrites it fifarms, of goods and chattels.

all people, (sfc.

plate, jewels, leafes

company.

and 6 Ed. 6.

fulling

for

ftat.

deniable, (Geldabilis,) Tributary, that pay tax or tribute.
Camben, dividing Suffolk into three parts, calls the drfi gildable, becaufe liable to pay tax, from which the other two parts were ex-

£5?

Know

Mon.

CUtltiabIC or

is,

and of thejlaple, extents, and of
and incumbrances

terfons laivfully claiming or to claim by,

gift

A

troubles, charges

whatfoever, had, made, committed, done or fuffered, or to be had, made, committed, done or fuffered, by him the faid A. B.
his heirs, executors or adminijirators, or any other perfon or fraternity or

A

(0tlD, Is feveral

with the appurtenances
and all deeds, evidences and writings concerning the faid premiffes only, now in the hands or cujiody of the faid A. B, or which he may get or come by without Juit in law, to have heirs

A

d^tlD,

geld, hornegeld, fotgeld, penigeld,

part and parcel thereof,

it the only

kind of fulling-mills,

of,

;

and

A

(I5iC5mili.S,

be-

and preferment of the faid T.
aliened, enfeoffed and confirmed, and by thefe prefents doth give, grant, alien, enfeoff and confirm, unto the faid T. B.
Jll that meffuage or tenement, fttuate, &c. with all and fmgular its appurtenances, and all houfes, outhoufes, lands,
tic. and the reverfton and revcrfions, remainder and reand all mainders, rents and fervices of the faid premijfcs
the ejlate, right, title, intereji, property, claim and demand whatfaever of him the faid A. B. of, in, and to the faid in, and meffuage or tenement, lands and premises, and of,
to every

flream of water to a mill.

3.

burling of woollen cloth, prohibited by
cap. 22.

A. B. of the other part, witneffeth.
A. B. as well for and in confideration of the and affeSJion which he hath and heareth unto

T. B.

the faid

The

aquae,

(25ifta

Ang.

of a thing, tzvigild the double value.

l^c. fon of the faid

That

ad-

by thefe prefents.

many words which end with 0/, i^c.

his executors,

componere faciat.

of tenements and lands.

Indenture, made the day and tween A. B.

L. B.

whatfoever, /hall

man,

Form

the faid

and will warrant, and for ever defend

King, being apprifed of the value, lets a thing referving only 5/.
for years, £5?f. worth 500/. per ann.
Skin.

to

affigns, againji all perfons

If the per ann. this is not a letting to farm, but a gift.

151. in the Exchequer. Arg. ^^ Car. 2. B.R.

premiffes,

and

minifirators

lib.

I.

c.

Efl armorum genus longo manttbria

14.

Spel.

porre£la cufpide.

Marifcus profert gladiolum, cefMat. Parif. An. 1206.
dDlabtllSi, (J'*^ Z^eidii,} Is mentioned in our Latin authors, and in the Norman laws, and it fignifies a fu-ClaUiolltm, Sedge.

pites

£3'

alia ignis pabula.

Camden, in Britannia, writes Comiad gladium Ceflria. And in Selden, Tit. of Honour, pag. 640. Curiam Juam liberam dc omnibus placitis, &c. exceptis placitis ad gladium ejus periinentibus.
And 'tis probable from hence, that at the creation of an preme

iurildidiion.

tatus Flint, pertinet

earl,

he

is

gladio fuccinitus, to fijnify that he had a jurif-

See Pleas of the Sword.
fword ; alfo a lance or horfeman's and dngger, were Gleyre, long fword, fhort fwor.
ftafF.
the weapons allowed the parties in a trial by combat.
di(Sion over the county.
(EJlail'C,

(Fr.)

A

'

Coivell, edit.

17 27.


G L E

Glaisgill, was a learned lawyer, and Chief Justice in High Court's Seat, who wrote a book of the Cause in the Land of England, which is the ancientst of any extant, touching that subject. Simon C. Pros. cap. 1. sed. 5. He was then called in Latin Revolutiv de Glaisgill. He died in Richard the First's days, at the age of 60 on the coast of Palatinum, being with him in his voyage to the Holy Sepulchre, and was buried at St. Helen's, in the church of the same city. The penalty of exporting glais from Ireland, 19 Gen. 2. c. 12, sect. 19. Penalty of exporting glais from Ireland, 19 Gen. 2. c. 12, sect. 21. Duty on exportation, &c. 19 Gen. 2. c. 12, sect. 16, &c.

Gleismen, Are reckoned among wandering rogues and vagrants, by the old statutes, 39 Eliz. and 1 Stat. 1. c. 7.

Gleis, A glave or gleave, a javelin, a hand-dart. Quod vidiri subjiciat de glavis et alabastrer in gangafliff, tels gralins, quid ganea (legendum e glavis) diévis, cum jarn conquisit posto posta, quia scilicet capitum manu multi prefurit. Gervas. Dunsbern. fept. ann. 1118.

Glawance or. See Plowden, f. 320, the case of mines.

Gleba, Obelam ferre. Anns 1335. Coffes & maqvrater dominus Beatrice Maria Malagleone extra partum ass. Propter cuta violentia cognomina tolerant glauum pro reddito ex parte deo gervino extra parum orientalem cognomina prestat. Morte Morly Sluselby & has cognostum vocatur gleba. Jacko Antiquitates of Extey, p. 48. For it seems the ancient custom of that city was, when the chief lord in fee could not answer the rent due to him out of his tenement, and no deliverer could be there levied thereupon; then the land to stay; and there took a turf or stone, and brought this fame to the court seven days successively; and this was called Gläba. H. b. p. 50.

Gleba, Obelathumb. (Gleba,) Church-land. Dux vel terra ad ecclesiam pertinent. Chars Effredi Regis, Monast. de Crodon, apud Inshulph. Impri syn in pallium Christiana pro gleba ecclesiastic. & pro futo separali eumhurtei done. Synodale says, Gleba s. f. terra in qua competet ecclesiae, et alio pro positum ad foci terrae curas mentioned in the statute of 14 Car. 2. c. 25. We most commonly take it for land belonging to a parish church, besides the title. Synod says, The four acres of land, quilk is given to the ministers of the church in Scotland, is called one glebe, the quilk field be free fra payment of any tithes. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Glebe is a portion of land, meadow or pasture, belonging to, or parcel of the parsonage or vicarage, over and above the tithes. Galsp. Rep. 459.

Glede, A small herd of the glebe, which is a void except for no reftory may be without glebe. But he may exact these glebe. So of a manor, excepting the demefnes. Mich. 19 Jue 1. per Hobart, Wince 23.

Glebe (s) in the case of Myle v. Ever. Glebe, as the Plaizant the reftory, respecting the land, he shall pay tithes to his grantee, 2 Boll. 184, in the case of Myle v. Ever. The endowment of the vicarage has special words, that the vicar shall have minutes deehn of the glebe, be shall have it. Not; It ought to be ancient glebe at the time of the endowment. At. 910. Tit. 38 Eliz. Binks cafe.

Glebe, As long as the vicar occupies the glebe land in his own hands, he shall pay no tithes, but if he demeene it to Vol. II. No 94, another, the leffe shall pay tithes to the parson that is improred. Leafe, &c. Harris v. Cotton.

Glebe of the glebe shall be taken by the parson, if it be at a very low rent, otherwise if it is at a rack rent; for quare of the diversity. Ng 35. Perkins v. Wilde.

If the parson of a church not impropre algebra the glebe, he shall pay tithes. But otherwine's, if it is an impropre church, because of the statute of 32 H. 8. of dilillation, Ng 152, cites it, as the case of Sverre v. Vifyr, cites D. 43. a.

By flat. 28 Hen. 8. c. 11. sect. 6. Incumfent may devif corn fown by him, and growing on his glebe. A prohibition was granted to lay wales, upon a fugg-tion, that the glebe of the Gleba, and plagued up the ancient glebe land, Camp. 59. Tit. 3 Jue 4. B. 2.

An agreement was about glebe lands included, and the parson, &c. to have an equal quantity, and as good in another place. The agreement was decreed. 5 Car. 1. Chm. Rep. 41. Morgan v. Clerke.

Parson exchanges his glebe land and dies; the successor enters into the exchanged land, and takes the profits; yet the successor is bound for his time; & adjurator. 'Tis clear the exchange shall not have been good, if it had been made after the 13 of E. But the exchange in this case was before. Ng 5. Thovert's case.

Prohibition was moved for to a parson for digging new coal-mines in his glebes, and also for setting trees; for 'twas waffe and prohitibable by the statute De ne pronomantur arboros, &c. The court held, it lay not for the mines; for then no mines in glebe could ever be opened. Lev. 107. Tit. 15 Car. 2. B. R. Earl of Rutland's cafe.

By statute. 25 Hen. 8. c. 11. Every successor, on a month's warning, after induction, shall have the manion-house, and the glebe belonging thereto, not fown at the time of the predecessor's death, 28 H. 8. cap. 11.

He that is inflicted may enter into the glebe land before induction, and has right to have it against any stranger, per Cels Ch. J. Roll. R. 192. See Ulfarr.

Glencybern, A customary or servitude. See Collegio, edit. 1727.

Gloeberries, Commisaries appointed to hear the differences between the scholars and the townsmen. In the edit of Hugh Balgun, bishop of Ely, an. 1576, there is mentioned the Matter of the Glcestor.

Gloestere and Glocesterchirche. The statute of Glcestor and its exposition, 6 Ed. 1. b. 1. c. 2. The custom that the lands of schors shall be refered to the church, after the vicar's death, 17 Ed. 2. fl. c. 16. For rebuilding the town, 27 Hen. 8. c. 1. The poor in Glcestorshire provided for, 13 Geo. 1. c. 19. For suppling the city with water, 14 Geo. 2. c. 11. For en-larging the streets and market-places, 23 Geo. 2. c. 15.

Gloves, Frames for knitting gloves not to be exported, 2 & 3 Will. 3. c. 30, s. 8.

Glynn, Signifies a valley in Down. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Gl, Is used sometimes in a special signification, as to go to Glcestor, to be difcharged in court; to alo is to go without day. Brer. tit. Eylar de Records, nam. 1. See Smith de Rep. Angl. lib. 2. c. 13. and钦Bin, f. 193.

Gleaning of vagabonds, That is, feeding them to the wall, 35 Ed. 1. c. 7.

Gloster, may compare with gates within the forest without especial warrant. Note, That Glostem ex bofia vallantinor ferfris, Manwoode's Forest Laws, cap. 25, num. 3.

Com's
Gold, silver, and goldsmiths. Goldsmiths shall make their work of due standard, and shall be ordered as the goldsmiths of London, Act. pater Chart. 28 Ed. 1. c. 20.

Gold and silver shall not be carried out of the realm, 9 Ed. 3. f. c. 1. 38 Ed. 3. f. c. 7. 5 R. 2. f. c. 2. 2 H. 6. c. 6. 17 Ed. 4. c. 1. 4 H. 7. c. 3.

Goldsmiths work shall be assayed and marked, 37 Ed. c. 7. 2 H. 6. c. 14. 17 Ed. 4. c. 1.

Note that make white plate shall fall, 37 Ed. c. 7. Exchanges of money out of the realm, not to be made without the King's licence, 5 R. 2. f. c. 2.

Multiplication of gold and silver, 5 H. 4. c. 4.

Reliefed 1 H. 7. c. 30.

Gilding or silvering copper or laton prohibited, 5 H. c. 13.

Silver gilt shall be good alloy, and shall be fold at 45 s. 8 d.

No metal shall be gilt but silver, or any thing filtered but knights spurs, 8 H. 5. c. 3. 17 Ed. c. 1.

The price of silver limited, for the increase of money, 2 H. 6. c. 13.

Silver plate shall be as fine as the sterling, 2 H. 6. c. 14.

The goldsmiths of London to have the rule and search of all goldsmiths within two miles of their city, 17 Ed. c. 4.

Foreign goldsmiths shall dwell in open freets in the city, 17 Ed. 4. c. 1.

Refiners shall flee to none but officers of the mint and goldsmiths, 4 H. 7. c. 2.

Shall sell silver into masts molten and alloyed, 4 H. 7. c. 2.

Silver shall bear 12 penny weight alloy in a pound, 4 H. 7. c. 2.

Deciet in gold lace of Venic, Florence or Genoa prohibited, 4 H. 7. c. 22.

Gold or silver not to be paid to foreigners, 4 H. 7. c. 23.

Goldsmiths shall mark their work, and keep the standard, 18 Eliz. c. 15.

Foreign coin and bullion may be exported free, 15 Car. 2. c. 12.

Gold and silver extruded from metals to be sent to the mine, 1 W. 11. M. f. c. 20. fell. 3.

Penalty of casting ingots like the Spanish, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 27. f. 3.

Officers of customs may seize bullion if shipped unflamped, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 17. fell. 6.

Penalty on broker selling bullion, not being a trading goldsmith, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 17. fell. 7.

Warden of the goldsmiths may search for bullion, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 17. fell. 8.

If offender cannot prove bullion to be lawful silver, by the oath of one witness, he shall be found guilty, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 17. f. 8.

Gold and silver shall not be stamped at Goldsmiths Hall before exportation, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 17. fell. 5. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 19. fell. 6.

Public houses prohibited to use plate, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 19. f. 3.
the King and his liege people, whereinunto men upon their evil course of life, or hideous demonet, are sometimes bound: For as Lambert, in his Earthward, lib. 2. c. 2. it is said, that by this is more finely bound than to the peace; for the peace is not broken without an affray, but this fury De bona gesta may be forfeited by the number of a man's company, or by his or their weapons or harneis. See also Gran. foil. of Fetics, fol. 110—117. Couns.

Convict behawing. See Good behaving.

A binding to the good behaviour is not by way of punishment, but it is to show, that when one has broke the good behaviour, he is not to be trusted. Per Hilt Ch. J. Trin. 1 Aua. B. R. Farr. 29, in the cause of the Queen v. Rogers.

1. In what cases, in what manner, and how long, a person may be compelled to find surety for his good behaviour.

2. When surety is discharged or superseded; of breach thereof, and of proceedings and proceeding therein.

1. In what cases, in what manner, and how long, a person may be compelled to find surety for his good behaviour.

Per Hilt Ch. J. Trin. 1 Aua. B. R. Farr. 29, in the cause of the Queen v. Rogers.

A law none can be compelled to find surety for his good behaviour, except be by ancient custom with his consent, or for vagrancy, or some certain offence; and here one being committed thus: Whereas A. has been convicted of a misdemeanor, and cannot find security for his good behaviour, therefore, &c. And here could be no certiorari, there being no record of the conviction, the party being brought up upon a habeas corpus, was discharged on motion, per cur. Trin. 12 W. 3. B. R. 12 Med. 413. Anw.

If one lives extravagant and high, who has no visible way of getting it, it may be reasonable to enquire how he lives, and may be liable to find sureties of the good behaviour; but if a man lives in a reasonable manner, it is said, 1 Hilt Ch. J. 1 Rich. 13 W. 3. B. R. 12 Med. 566, in Eldin Clinton's case. A justice of peace cannot bind one to the good behaviour upon a general information, or commit him to prison for refusing to find sureties for his good behaviour upon such information. St. Paulf. 25 Car. 1. Sir Wiliam Brocket's café. If a witness is insolent we may commit him for the immediate contempt, or bind him to his good behaviour, but we cannot indit him for it, and that is according to the Common law of England; per Hilt Ch. J. Trin. 1 Aua. B. R. Farr. 29, in the cause of the Queen v. Rogers.

Surety for the good behaviour may be required of Gallicans, turbulent, insolent persons, as of forfible entires, or obfene writers or raufons, but not in respect of bare words; unless they tend to a breach of the peace, or scandal of the government. Hench. Pl. C. cap. 61.

9. See Pl. 1, 2, 3, 4.

A. was committed to Newgate by the mayor of London for calling B. an alderman of London, fool and knave upon the Royal Exchanges, in the presence of others; upon a habeas corpus, it was certified, that the cettom of London was, upon such a misdemeanor, to commit any citizen to prifon, &c; but by act of the whole court, he was discharged. And Harman said, He could not see how the cettom could be maintained, and that a man may be imprisoned for a contempt done in, but not for one done out of court. Cro. E. 689. Trin. 41 Eliz. B. Chaf. Daven's café.

One was indicted for that he slandered & contemnuoue propatarst a publick man in this manner. That none of the justices of peace underlaid the flattates for the ex-céfe, unless Mr. A. B. and he underlaid but little of them; no, nor many parliament men do not understand them upon the reading of them. And it was moved to quash the indictment, for that a man could not be indicted for speaking such words; and of that opinion was the court. But they said he might be bound to his good behaviour, Per Jefh. 21 Car. 2. B. R. Inst. 16. The King v. Barford.

In an action on the cafe for maliciously prosecuting an indictment of perjury, of which he was acquitted. Upon Christ assailed, it appeared on the evidence, that the defendant was a justice of peace, and procured good behaviour, as witnesses to appear against the plaintiff, and his own name was indorsed on the indictment to give evidence.

The court agreed, this did not make him a proctor; for if a justice of peace knows any person that can give evidence against one indicted, he ought to cause him to do it. But it seems approved on the evidence; for that this indictment was drawn up by an order of fellows. Kyfing Ch. J. said, the plaintiff deceased to be bound to his good behaviour, for bringing this action. Medb. 2. B. R. Fett. 47. Geyling v. Pelfield.

A offers money to a woman with child to buy poison to kill the child: this is a good cause to bind A. to his good behaviour. Trin. 28 Eliz. B. R. Cas. E. 49, in the case of Sir Cecham and Ut. v. Wintam.

If one do affront any court of justice, this is a good cause to bind the party to his good behaviour. Perch. 24 Car. 2. B. R. For the affronting of justice is a publick misdemeanor, and not a private one, although it be done but to the person of one man, as to the judge of a court, a justice of peace, &c. because such persons are publick ministers of justice, and act for the commonwealth. L. P. R. 649, 650.

S. at 34 Ed. 2. 1. Improvers justices of peace to chaffle rioters, barbarers, and other offenders, and also to imprison and punish them according to law, and by diʃcretion and good advisement; and also to bind persons of evil life to the good behaviour, and to hear and determine icencies and trefpafs done in the fane county according to law.

This statute being penned in such general words from a great measure to have left it to the diyention of justices of peace, to determine what persons are fit to be bound to their good behaviour, and consequently seems to improperly them, not only to bind other, who fercm to be notoriously trouble-makers, and likely to break the peace, as eves-doppers, &c. but also those who are particulaly scandalous, or contemners of justice, &c. as haunts of bowdy-houses, or keepers of lewd women in their own houses, common drunkards, or thiefs that live in the day, and go abroad in the night, or such as keep infamous companies, or such as are generally suspected as robbers, or other kind criminal persons; and such as become contemnuoues words of inferior magistrates, as justices of peace, mayors, &c. not being in the actual execution of their offices, or of inferior officers of justice, as constables, &c. being in the actual execution of their office; but it seems that rath, quarter-fome or unmanly words, spoken by one private person to another, unless they directly tend to a breach of the peace, are not sufficient cause to bind a man to his good behaviour. 1 Hench. Pl. C. Afr. 152. cap. 61. j. 2. the book at large, fett. 2. 3. 4.

Sureties of good behaviour may be required of persons convicted of disturbing divine service, 1 Hf. 2. c. 3. fett. 6.

Or defending against game laws, 5 El. c. 21. fett. 3. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 25. fett. 4.

Or entertaining outlawed felons, 43 Eliz. c. 13. fett. 5.

Or perfons infected with the plague going abroad, thas no fett. 1. 31 fett. 7.

Or unlawfully hunting in pafs. 2 Jac. 1. 1. 3. fett. 2.

Or convicted a second time of drunkenneses, 4 Jac. 1. c. 5. fett. 3. 21 Jac. 1. c. 7. fett. 3.

Or referring to take the oaths of supremacy and allegiance, 1 Hf. & M. 2. c. 8. fett. 9.

Or oath made to the throne, 5 Hf. & 2. c. 13. fett. 2.

Or of persons unlawfully gaming, 0 den. c. 14. fett. 6.

Or committing disorders in dock-yards, 1 Geo. 1. c. 25. fett. 2.

Qe.
Or defouling timber, 1 Gen. 1. c. 48. sect. 3.
Or forcing through turnpike, 8 Gen. 2. c. 20. sect. 11.
Or pretending to witchcraft, 9 Gen. 2. c. 5. sect. 4.
Or affilling in running good, 9 Gen. 2. c. 35. sect. 19.

Where one is arrested to the peace, the justice is not bound to demand sureties, but the party ought to offer sureties, otherwise the justice may award him to good.

Br. Peace, pl. 7. sect. 23 H. 7. 8.

Note: Where supplication of peace is directed to the justices of the peace, to whom the writ is first delivered, shall alone make pretent to take the pary to find sureties, and it shall be returnable before him only, and he only shall take sureties, and shall make the return alone without the others. Br. Peace, pl. 9. sect. 21 H. 7. 20. per Fin. Chief Justice.

The court was moved to grant the good behaviour against the Lord Folio, because he was indicted for a foul batter at the felions in London, and the bill was found against him; but per Roll Ch. J. it cannot be granted on a motion, but you must prefer articles against him here on oath, and then you may move for it; and if there appears caufe in the articles, it shall be granted. Sir, 397. Mich. 1671. B. R. Davus v. Lord Folio.

That he does, a favours sworn in court, declare that the party, against whom the articles are sworn, may be bound thereupon to the good behaviour, must express some special matter in those articles, for which he ought to be bound to the good behaviour; for if the articles be only general, the good behaviour is not to be granted upon them; for no acquittal upon account of the uncertainty of it, and the party cannot tell what answer to make to such a general accusation. L. P. R. 650.

Bond of 1000l. may be required for keeping the peace, as the cafe may stand, viz. if the party bound be a dangerous person; per Roll Ch. J. Pafch. 1652. B. R. Sir, 379. 1253. 1256.

The return of the recognition ought to be certified by the persons who took it, and if by any other, as the sheriff, &c. it is not good. Trin. 21 fac. 1. B. R. Crow. 669. Leonard Ford v. King.

By the course of the court, a person bound to keep the peace, ought to continue upon his recognizance for a year; per Holt Ch. J. 12 Med. 251. Mich. 10 H. 3. B. R. 2.

When such surety is discharged, or superseded, of breach thereof, and of pleading, and proceeding therein.

In error, when the peace is granted in B. R. and after superseded of the Chancery comes to them, it is to all intents and purposes their power in bank is expired, and the party, against whom it was awarded, is discharged against them of the bank; per all the justices. Br. Peace, pl. 17. sect. 21 Ed. 4. 458.

And when a man has found surety to keep the peace against A. S. and all the King's people, the party cannot release it after, because others have interpell in it; but by and by, it is used otherwise now. Ibid.

And if he pays the money, he shall be awarded to presume that the peace is now determined, and he appears to be a tressfeifer of the law; and if the sureties die, there, upon a form of the King's attorney, the court shall award proceed, to compel the parties to find new sureties; per all the justices, and by others s. contra, for the executors are old Adam. Ibid.

And by some, if a man finds surety of the peace, and no day is limited, there none can release it, but he is bound during his life, and therefore it is good to find surety till such a day. Ibid.

A new King cannot take the forfeiture of main-prize taken by the former of the King his predecessor. Tempore E. 3. tit. Re-attachment in Fine, 18. And such main-prize was anno 1 H. 7. 20. And the opinion of the court was, that by the death of the King it is discharged; and that every forfeiture of the peace, and main-prize, for keeping of day in the time of another King, are discharged by the demise of the King in every court; good fait con-

...
To have security of peace of one, you must make afdvance of the cause of fear, and exhibit it in articles, and then make affidavit that you demand this, not of any ill will or malice, but out of fear of some bodily hurt.

See [362]

Good country, Bene patria, is an affile or jury of countrymen or good neighbors. See De Verba. Sig. 2.
Verba Patrum.

Good and thistle, (Bona & cardo) Personal, &c.

Good, (from the Fr. goulet, or the Latin gula) In a flat, [364] 17 Car. 2. cap. 11. is a breach in a bank, or erosal, or a passage where the flux and reflux of the sea.

Good, Court, and Guia, (from the Fr. gerts, i.e. a wear) Locut in flavis centenariis, psalmi ciprum et glandan-orum. A wear. It is recorded, that all such gorses, mills, stones, boats, kites, and kiddles, which he leased and set up in the time of King Edward, the King’s grandfather, and after, whereby the King’s ships and boats were disposed, that they could pass in such water as they were want, shall be out, and utterly pulled down, without being Litt. fol. 5. b.) seems to derive it from gwes, a deep pit or water, and calls it gerts or guef. But geurs, or not a mistake. For he says in Domesday, it is called qued gorse, and the verse rhymes for a gers. And we find in the Black Book of Hereford, fol. 20. Quad tris gorgites in aqua de Meneau anchoriatur per banum in Grande monte. Where gorges is used (tho’ improperly) as a Latin word for gorses or walks. Coke, edit. 1727.

Cope, A small narrow lip of ground. — Due réde juste mont vent femel letiit gors paper flussering. Paroch.
Antiqu. p. 399. Una unc a denumia gorda manum stedam, & vacantur quinque gorges, lib. 532. Una unc cum una gore.
lib. 534. See Kemner’s Glossary.

Gert, (from Lat. gutter, or Saxo gustan) A ditch, stream or gutter. Coke, edit. 1727.

Ghastly Onomat, Ghastly; Ghastly, Ghastly, Are certain officers appointed to take care of, and relieve the poor and maimef men belonging to the King’s navy, 11 & 23 Car. 2. Att. to prevent Difficulties of Seamen, &c.

Graft. Acts of parliament for a general and free pardon, are called Acts of Grace. 7 Geo. 1. c. 29, &c.

Graal See Chalice.

Graduates, (Graduat) Are such scholars as have taken degrees in an university. 1 H. 6. c. 3.

Gratus, A year; the epiphany William the Conqueror in Ordinaries vitalis, lib. 8.

Pro simp. gradibus & fervator atque dudous Virgini in Gremio Plautii, &c. Skif pick.

Graffer (Fr. Greffer, Sarre) Signifies a notary or scrivener, and is used in the Stat. 5 Hen. 3. c. 1.

Grafia, Graffio, Graffio, An Earl, as Land-grave, a Magnate, a Judge, an Advocate — Nex principis, ut graffio hanc tentatione praefato matter ac-
lib. 100.

Grafittium, A writing-book, a register, a lieger-book or cartulary of deeds and evidences. David Episcopus Meneva, duum aedificii in excellam de eis, a cibellio capitele fideli subdito, & librarium graffitium qua graffio cum splendor. Annual. Eccles. Meneverens

Graile, Graible, or Graulbe, A gradual or book containing some of the offices of the Roman church.
Grable, says Livywood, sic dicitum a gradibus in tall libra contents, Provincial. Ang. lib. 3. The word is mentioned in Plaudus, fol. 552, and 37 H. 6. 32. It is sometimes taken for a mafs-book, or part of it inscribed by Pope Celfinius, Ann. 432. according to Citgrave.
Cowell, ed. 1727.

Grable, The 24th part of a penny-weight. In 51
Hen. 3. Denerius Anglia qui nominat Belrigalii, recusdus fines benva ponderabili triginta & duos gramis frumenti in media mone. Threfe thirty-two groats in the middle of
Vol. II. No. 84.

the ear of corn are the natural grain, which for the better accommodation of accounts, are now reduced to twenty-four artificial grains. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Grain, Stubs or bushes. De Gramina uerista. Mon. 2
cont. p. 31. See French, "Bristle.

Grand affile. See Affile and Magna afellia.

Grand rape. See Cape and Attainment.

Grand days, Are those in every term solemnly kept in the inns of court and Chancery, &c. In Eweter-term, Assize-day, in Trinity-term, St. John Baptist’s day, in Michaelmas-term, All Souls-day, (and of late All Hall-day) and in Hilary-term, the Feast of the Purification of our Lady, commonly called Candlemas-day. And there are Dies non juridici, no days in court. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Grand offioe, Magna difficiltas. It so called for the quality and extent thereof, for thereby the sherif is commanded, and the other justices thereto, to make such quis qui fumma eo suum opponat, dice bonum ilium ractenam, & quod de extilias urverdum moni reipublific, & quod haleat corpus eis, &c. This writ lies in two cases, either when the tenant or defendant is attched, and so returned, and appears not, but makes default, then a grand default is to be awarded: Or else when the tenant or defendant hath once appeared, and after makes default, then this writ lies by the Common law in lieu of a petit capa, 2 Par. Inst. lib. 254. 51 H. 3. cap. 9.
Wyn. 1. cap. 44. and Fitler, lib. 2. c. 69. It will, penalis.
See Chalice.

Grand jury. See Jury.

Grand testamp. See Chevalry and Serenity.

Granger, (Grafiapia) A house or farm, not only where corn is laid up, as barns be, and granaries, &c.
but also habes for horses, stalls for oxen, sties for pigs, and other things necessary for husbandry: And by the grant of a grange such places will pass. Provins. Angl.
lib. 2. tit. De jussicta, cap. item amiri.

Grangerus, The granger or grange-keeper, an officer belonging to religious houses, who was to look after their grange or farm in their own hands. — Grangerus, qui sive succedentem de feudo causae officii sicuti et alicujus habi et aliquo, denatur effigies in carta graniaria, &c.
Iam in canoni
canibus commendariis intendero. — Ex Cavarl. S. Ed-mundi, MS. fol. 323. He was otherwise called gran-arius, and in this he differed from the granaristus; that this later was keeper of the granary or corn-chamber in a religious house, the other accounted for the profits of a country grange. And therefore it was expressly provided that the same person should not execute both offices.
Nec fassobinorum quod praestat fit granarius & granarios fundal. Flota, 1. 2. c. 12. sect. 1.

Gratiation, Is he who has the care of places for all manner of holden. See Orange and Chantage.

Grant. (Genus) Signifies a gift in writing of such a thing as cannot aptly be paid or conveyed to the grantee only, as rent, reversion, services, advowsons in groes, common in groes, tithes, &c. or made by such persons as cannot give but by deed; as the King, and all bodies polieick, which differences are often in speech neglected, and then it is taken generally for every gift whatsoever,
made of any thing by any person; and he that granteth is named the grantor, and he to whom it is made, the grantee. II. Lib. Symbol, part. 1. lib. 2. sect. 334.
A thing is said to lie in grant, which cannot be assigned without deed. Caks, lib. 3. fol. 63. Lincoln college cafe.
Cowell.

The word grant is regularly applied to things incor-poral, such as advowsons, rents, common, reversion, &c. which are therefore said to lie in grant, and not in livery, because they can’t pass from one to another without deed. G. Lib. 172. a. 332. a.

On this distinction between the corporeal and incor-poral, it hath been held, there can be no discontinuance of things which lie in grant; and therefore if tenant in tail of a rent, advowson, common or remainder, or reversion expectant on a freehold, make a grant by deed or die, or divide the tenant of the land, and of such rent it is liable, there is said to be a feoffment with warranty, that these acts work no discontinuance of the intail; for nothing passes but during the life of tenant in tail, which is lawful.

If a person obtain a grant to build houses on church or college land, and this is confirmed (where confirmation is necessary), this grant makes no alienation, but is only as a license of covenant; for the tail remains in the grantor, and so by consequence the houses are also in him.

The kind of persons held of advowsons in right of their churches are restrained from alienating the same, or granting the next or other advantage thereof, to the prejudice of their succedors; for these are parcels of the possessions and hereditaments of the church, and not things whereof an annual rent or profit can be referred.

But the these grants are void against their succedors and the King, yet the grant of a beneficial in such case, is good against himself; so that he cannot avoid it during the time that he continued bishop, the statute being made only for the benefit of the succedors and the King, that by the preceding penitentiary they might not be prejudiced in their respective rights; but not to retain those in poftsession from doing any thing to bird themselves during their own time.

The like law in case of grants made by deans and chapters, for they are void when the dean (being principal member of the corporation) dies, and binds both dean and chapter during his life only.

As the grant of the next avoidance of an advowson is void against the successor himself, but shall bind the bishop and corporation; an advowson may be granted by a bishop out of the poftsession of the bishoprick, this is not void against the bishop that makes the grant thereof.

Where the matter and fellows of a college by deed indorsed a leave not warranted by the statute, and levied a fine, and years passed without claims; in this case, tho' it was held, that the leave was void against the succeeding matter, yet that it was good during the life of the matter that was party to the leave, and made no claim, because he is the head and principal part of the corporation.

In infants to their want of understanding are so far protected by the law, that regularly all their grants are void in the same manner as their contracts.

But herein the law distinguishes between such grants as are void, or only voidable; The first of which are all such grants, or deeds, made by an infant, which do not take effect by delivery of his hand; as if an infant give a horse and no delivery of the horse with his hand, and the horse take the horse by force of the gift, the infant shall have an action of trespass, for the grant was merely void.

But if an infant enters into an obligation, makes a feoffment, levies a fine, or suffers a recovery, these are not merely void, but only voidable by him.

If an infant being fed of a carde of land, grant a rent-charge to be infeuing out of the same carde by deed, and the grantee disclaim, he shall punith him as a trespfter, notwithstanding that the infant delivered the deed with his own hand.

If an infant grant a rent by fine, this grant is voidable by himself during his minority, by a writ of error; but if he do not avoid it during his minority, it is good for ever; also if he die during his minority, his heir shall not avoid it.

An infant being lord of a cophold manor may grant copholds; these estates have their force and effect from the custom of the manor by which they have been defignated, and are demolishable, time out of mind, without any regard to the person of the grantor.
After a grant to a man in fee farm from a man in fee farm is made, the grantor is bound to deliver it to the grantee and to perform all the promises made in the grant. The grantor is also bound to inform the grantee of any material facts that may affect the grant. If the grantor fails to deliver the grant, the grantee may sue for specific performance or rescission. If the grantor delivers the grant but it is subsequently found to be defective, the grantee may rescind the grant and seek damages.

The grantor is also bound to indemnify the grantee for any losses suffered as a result of the grant. If the grantor breaches this obligation, the grantee may sue for damages. If the grantor has knowledge of a defect in the grant, the grantee is entitled to rescission even if the grantor is ignorant of the defect.

The grantor is also bound to pay any taxes that may become due after the grant. If the grantor fails to pay these taxes, the grantee may do so and recover the amount paid from the grantor.

In summary, a grantor is bound to perform all the promises made in the grant, inform the grantee of any material facts, deliver the grant, indemnify the grantee for any losses, and pay any taxes that may become due after the grant. If the grantor fails to do so, the grantee may rescind the grant and seek damages.
nor the grant to them, and in which part of the whole the grant should take effect, and according to such direction the attorney is to enter. 1 Lev. 32.

3.

What is the interest of a may granted.

It is laid down as a general rule, that a man cannot grant or charge that which he hath not; and therefore if a man grant a rent-charge out of the manor of Dale, and in truth he hath not any thing in the manor of Dale, and afterwards he purcath the manor of Dale, yet as it respects the same. Perk. fait. 65.

A corroyly uncertain cannot be granted over, because of the prejudice that may accrue thereby to the original granter; but a corroyly certain may. 21 Ed. 4. 43. 2 Rol. Abr. 45.

So a common found number in fee may be granted over, but a common found number for life or years found number cannot be granted over, because of the prejudice it may be to the tenant of the land. 21 Ed. 4. 84. 2 Rol. Abr. 46.

If the King grant a warren to J, and his heirs in his name, the grantee may grant the warren over to another in fee, because this liberty is inherent of the same seignior. 2 Rol. Abr. 46.

So if the King grant to another and his heirs a fair or market in certain manors or towns, the grantee may grant over the manors or towns, with the fair or market. 2 Rol. Abr. 46.

If a rent be granted in tail, the grantee cannot grant it over without the consent of the tenant, because, as such, it may be invested within the statute of uses; but if the grantee brings his writ of annuity, it is no longer within the statute; because then it is become a charge merely personal, without any relation to the land out of which it was at first granted, and therefore it become a fee-simple conditional, as such a gift of lances had been before the statute; and therefore the annuity not being within the statute may be aliened or granted over. Poph. 87. Co. Lit. 19. a. 7 Co. 61. Necic's case.

The grantee of a rent-charge in fee may grant over any part of it, though it hath been objected to these kind of grants or divisions of rent-charges, that thereby the tenant is exposed to several faults and difficulties for a thing, which in its original creation was simple and recoverable upon one annuity; but the answer to this is, that it is the tenant's own choice, whether he will submit himself to that inconvenience or not, because the grants, before the 4 & 5 Ann. could not take any benefit of the grant by difficulties, without the consent or agreement of the tenant, nor by affize, without he obtains fein of it from the tenant; besides, since the law allowed of such a fort of grants, and therefore established such fort of property, it would have been unreasonable and severe to hinder the proprietor to make a proper distribution of it for the convenience of his children, or to provide for the contingencies of his family, which were in his view. 9 H. 6. 13. 2 Rol. Abr. 45. Co. Lit. 148. a. but Grat. Eliz. 747. fees contrary.

The Common law hath so utter an abhorrence to any act that may promote maintenance, that regularly it will not suffer a possibility, right or thing, in all a full act, to be Titil for payment broken to be granted or aliened over. 21 Ed. 4. 24. 2 Co. Lit. 214. 1 Rol. Abr. 356. 2 Rol. Abr. 45. and Skinner 6. 26. that arcarages of rent are not alienable.

So though a bond be a chofe in action, cannot be aliened over, for as to enable the assignee to sue in his own name, yet he has by assignment such a title to the paper, wax, that he may keep or cancel it. Co. Lit. 231. 2 Rol. Abr. 46.

So if an obligor makes two executors, and one of them delivers the obligation to a stranger in satisfaction of a debt which he himself owes, and dies; although the debt does not pass to him, yet the parchment or paper writing, and the grantee in an act of demise brought by the former executors may be sufficient for their benefit. 2 Rol. Abr. 46. Grat. Eliz. 478. pl. 8. 496. pl. 15.

So a husband possessed of an obligation in right of his wife may alien it to a stranger, and the assignee may
If a man grant 200 fagots of wood to be taken out of all his lands, or 20 s. in lieu thereof, out of his lands, with the condition of the grant, that they shall be to have the one or the other; in this case the grantee, may, without any election, grant over the fagots, because he had a present interest in them; but the 20 s. being given in lieu thereof cannot be granted over before election. 2 Rel. Abr. 47. Sanderlin, and Husk. 2d.

If a man grant of divers woods bargains and sells 500 cords of wood to B. and his affigees, to be taken by the appointment of the bargainer; by this bargain and sale a present interest is in B. in which he may grant over before any appointment by the bargainer. Mer. pl. 95. 2d. 2 Rel. Abr. 96. 3d. 8. C. C. cited.

A man may grant that which he hath potentially, though not actually, as if a feoff covenant that it shall be lawful for the lessee at the expiration of the lease to carry away the corn growing on the premises, although by possibility there may be no corn growing at the expiration of the lease; yet the grant is good, for the grantor hath such a power in him, that the property shall pass as soon as the corn is extant. Hob. 132. Graham and Halley adjuged. 2 Rel. Abr. 48. 3d. 8. C. C. cited.

So if A. lease land to B. for years, and grants that he shall have a present interest in the soil, as grants which news yearly, which shall be on the land at the end of the term; this grant is good, and passes the property to the grantee. Hob. 132. 2 Rel. Abr. 48.

But a man cannot grant all the wood that shall grow upon his fheep that he shall buy afterwards; for there he hath it not actually nor potentially. Hob. 132. 2 Rel. Abr. 48.

A personal truth which one man reposes in another cannot be assigned over, however able such assignee may be to execute it. Perk. feft. 99.

Therefore if a man grant unto another to be his carver, or fewer or chamberlain, &c. these cannot be granted over. Perk. feft. 101.

A guardian in foggay may grant the wardship over to another, but such grant shall not be effectual after the death of the grantor, because by the law of nature such guardianship belongs to the next of kin. 3d. Rel. Abr. 46. but for this vide Vaughan. 180.

If a man gives his horse to another to go to York, he must not will himself, or give it to another to go there. 2 Rel. Abr. 46.

The grantee of a common may grant it over before he hath any seisin thereof by the mouths of his cattle, for the freehold is in him by the grant. 3d. Rel. Abr. 46. but for this vide Vaughan. 180.

If a man gives his horse to another to go to York, he must not will himself, or give it to another to go there. 2 Rel. Abr. 46.

The grantee of a common may grant it over before he hath any seisin thereof by the mouths of his cattle, for the freehold is in him by the grant. 3d. Rel. Abr. 46. but for this vide Vaughan. 180.

If a man grants a rent may grant it over before any seisin thereof. 2 Rel. Abr. 47.

If a common be granted to husband and wife, and to the heirs of the husband, after the death of the husband, his heir may grant over the remainder, for the estate was vested in him. 2 Rel. Abr. 47.

Leiſe for years may, before entry, grant or assign over his interest to another; for the leiſer having done all that is requisite on his part to devêt himself of the poſſeſſion, and pafs it over to the leiſer, hath thereby tranfered such an intereft to the leiſer as he may at any time reduce into poſſeſſion by an actual entry, as well after the death of the leiſer as before, and such an intereft that the leiſer, his executors, and conſequently may be granted or assigned over before entry. Ca. Lit. 46. b.

A. make a leaf of land to B. for life, remainder to his executor for years; in this case the term vests in B. so that the grantor it over; for as an heir represent

VOL. II. NO. 84.
But where a remainder is limited to the eldest son of Jane S. whether legitimate or illegitimate, and the latter issue a babel, he shall take this remainder, because he acquires the denomination of her issue, by being born of her body, and so it never was uncertain who was designed by this remainder. *Oth. 35.

If a grant is made to a father and his four sons, the grant is good for the apparent certainty of it; but if the father has several sons, or if a grant be made to a man’s cousin or friend, there are void for uncertainty. *Cap. 374.

By an addition we mean names of dignity, which are marks of distinction, imposed by publick authority, and, always make up the very name of the person to whom they are given; and these are of two sorts: 1st, Such as exclude the surname, so that the persons may not seem to be of any common family; and 2ndly, Such marks of distinction as are also imposed by the King, and parcel of the name itself, but do not exclude the surname, such as Knight and Baronet. *2 Inf. 666. *Dyer 88. *1 Show. 392.

As to the names of dignity, which exclude the surname, we have already observed, that in grants a mistake in the Christian name will not vitiate the grant, because there cannot regularly be more than one person of that name. *C. L. 3.

So a grant to a Duke’s eldest son, by the name of a Marquis, or the eldest son of a Marquis, by the name of an Earl, &c. it good, because of the common courtesy of England, and their places in heraldry. *Carr. 440.

So where a conveyance was made of a reversion to Ralph Everet, knight, Lord Everet, and he brought an action of covenant, to which the defendant pleaded, that at the time of the grant he was not cognizant of repudiation per nomem filii; and it was held to be no good plea, for the person is sufficiently expressed by Lord Everet, and the addition of Knight, tho’ false, does not take away the description of the true person. *1 Bulk. 21. *Lord Everet v. Strickland. *Cr. Cur. 240. *S. C.

It is lawful in G. R. and Ireland, by three judges in G. R. where the party fet forth his title to an advowson by virtue of letters patent granted to A. two armigers & potions militis; and upon oyer of the letters patent it appeared, that the grant was made to A. knight, that it could not be intended the same person, because Knight is a name of dignity, but A. is a surname, and hence, a name of worship; and if he is afterwards made a knight, the name of Esquire is thereby extinguished, and consequently that a grant made by the King to A. knight, when there was no such man a knight, was a void grant. *Carr. 440. *The King v. Bishop of Chester. *5 Mod. 297. *2 Selw. 560. *S. C. and see *Lit. Rep. 200. *S. P.

As to grants by and to corporations, there we shall only observe, that tho’ the names of corporations have a certain and significant meaning, and are not as arbitrary as those of common persons; that yet if there be enough said to show that there is such an artificial being, and to distinguish it from all others, the body politic is well named, tho’ the words and syllables are varied from. *10 Ga. 125. *Gould. 122. *Comp. Incumb. 474.

As if a corporation be founded by the name of the Dean and chapter of the cathedral church in Oxford, and they make a leaf by the name of the Dean and chapter of the cathedral church in the universal church: the name, it is well enough, for the place of the situation is well and sufficiently shown. *Poph. 57. *2 Roll. Abr. 42. *S. C.

So if the prior of St. Michael in Coventry make a leaf by the name of the Dean of Coventry, this is good; so if they had granted an annuity or curacy, and the name of the feant had been omitted. *10 Ga. 172.

Swif a corporation be instituted of St. George the Martyr, and in a leaf they omit the word Martyr, it is well enough; for the name of dedication is but an empty sound, and no otherwise requisite than to distinguish the corporation from all others. *Poph. 57.

It there be an immaterial addition, this doth not hurt; as if the President and scholars of Corpus Christi college in Oxford make a leaf by the name of President and scholars of Corpus Christi college in commune Oxon. this is good; for while per se null, non vitatur. *C. Lit. 816.

If a title be the corporation be expressed by words synonymous, it is sufficient; as if a college be instituted by the name of Gardianus & scholars donum five collegii scholarium de Morton, and they make a leaf by the name of Collegii & scholarum, it is good. *10 Ca. 125.

It seems by the better opinion of the books, that a mistake of the Christian name will vitiate the grant; as where the grant is without any Christian name at all, or where a wrong name is made use of, as Edmund for Edward, for a person cannot have two Christian names; neither can the party be declared against by his right name, with an averment, that he made the deed by a wrong name, for that would be to fet up an avemment contrary to the deed, and contrary to that faction allowed by law to every solemn contract; and therefore if he be implicated by the name in the deed, he may plead that he is another person, and that it is not his deed. *36 H. 8. 16. *Dyer 279. *Owen 107. *C. Lit. 3. *C. L. 358. *64a. *Perk. Jot. 36.

It makes a great mistake to take a Christian name does not vitiate the grant, because there is no repugnancy that a person should have two different surnames, so that he may be implicated by the name in the deed, and his real name brought in by an alias, and then he cannot deny the name in the deed, because he is obliged to lay any thing contrary to his own deed. *3 H. 25. 4. *Roll. Abr. 146.

Afo, tho’ a person cannot have two Christian names at one and the same time, yet he may, according to the institution of the church, receive one name at his baptism, and another at his confirmation, and a grant made to or by him, by the name of confirmation, will be good; for tho’ our religion allows no re-baptism to make double names; yet it doth not force men to abide by the names given by their godfathers, when they come themselves to make profession of their religion. *45 Ed. 3. 22 b. *C. Lit. 3. *2 Rel. Abr. 43. *1 Brown. 147. *Lit. Rep. 182.

So if a man make a leaf by a contrary name to that which by the institution is given, yet the leaf is good; for this does not take effect altogether by the institution, but partly by the dexteris; as if John by the name of Jane leaf lands, admitting that there are differenc names, yet the leaf is good. *2 Rel. Abr. 42. *Hide and Challenor.

If a rent be granted to J. S. or J. D. the grant is void, because a corporation, for the deed is in the disadvantage; and tho’ the deed be delivered to J. S. yet this cannot make the grant good; for the deed was void at first, and cannot be made good by the delivery. *Perk. Jot. 56.

If a rent or any thing else that lies in grant, be to be right heir of J. S. and J. S. alio, this grant is void; for there is no person capable of taking, as answering this description. *Perk. Jot. 52.

For more learning on this subject, see 2 Bac. Abr. and 19 Vin. Abr. tit. Grants.

Form of a grant of an annuity out of lands.

THIINDENTURE made, &c. between A. B. of, &c. of the one part, and C. D. of, &c. of the other part, witnesseth, That the said A. B. for and in consideration of the sum of, &c. to him in hand paid by the said C. D. the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, by the said pretences doth give, grant and confirm unto the said C. D. and his heirs, one annuity of, &c. to be received, taken, had, and to be limb ing out of all that meaflurc or tenement situate, &c. therunto.
Grants, for Grandees, or great men, in the Parl. Roll of 6 Ed. 3. n. 5. 6. Et les dic. comm. barus, &c. another grants; which wood is mistranslated by some authors to signify commons. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Graar. To be compelled to pay at reasonable prices, 25 Farm. 1. 4. 5.

Graafheit. Graafing, or turning up the earth with a plough, as we still say the clod is greased or slightly hurt, and a bullet of grafs on any place, when it gently turns up the surface of what it strikes upon. Hence the customary service for the inferior tenants to bring their ploughs, and to do one day's work for their lord, was within the parish of Arcelsten in the county of Oxford, called grafs-hearth, and grafs-burt. See Parochial Antiquities, p. 496, 497. and the Glossary annexed to that work. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Graba, A grove, a coppice, a thicker, a small wood. See also 8. face, suffer no graven or carved Image, or Image of the wood belonging, and every part and parcel thereof; to have and hold the said wood or yearly rent-charge of, &c., aboue mentioned, and every part and parcel thereof, unto the said C. D., and his assigns, for and during the natural life of the said C. D. payable and to be paid in and upon, &c., yearly and ever after, by you and your assigns. And if it shall happen that the said wood or yearly rent-charge of, &c., or any part thereof, shall be bound and unbound, in part or in all, by the space of twenty days next after either of the said days or times of payment thereof, whereas the same shall or of right ought to be paid, as afofd, that then and in such case, and at any time there after, it shall and may be lawful to and for the said C. D. and his assigns, into the said premises above mentioned, or in any part thereof, to enter and distress, and the distresses and distresses then and there found, to take, lead, drive, carry away and impound, and the same in full to demand and keep, with the said wood, and the advantage of (if any be) together with all rights and charges to the same, shall be fully paid and satisfied, and the said A. B. for himself, his heirs and assigns, due covenant and grant to and with the said C. D. his executors, administrators and assigns, that he the said A. B. his heirs and assigns, and all and singular his said officers and agents, and of the said wood and the same, and in manner and form above expressed, according to the true intent and meaning of these presents. And also, that the said megressive, &c., and hereditaments above mentioned to be charged or chargeable with the said wood hereby granted, shall from time to time be and continue ever and ever to be, the subject of the payment for the said wood or yearly rent-charge of, &c., yearly, during the life of C. D. In witness, &c.

Grant of the King. Leaves of small farms may be made by persons aligned by the King, Stat. de Stat. 52 H. 3. 25 G. 15. 5. 6.

His prerogative that advowsons do not pass with a manor, Prærog. Reg. 17 Ed. 2. b. 1. c. 15.

Certain grants of annuities made void, 11 Ric. 2. c. 8.

In a petition for a grant of lands, mention shall be made of the value, 1 H. 4. c. 6. and of what the petitioner has received before, 2 H. 4. c. 2. the Queen and Royal Family excepted, 6 H. 4. c. 2.

No undue grants to be made, 4 H. 4. c. 4.

Annuities granted by the crown to be paid according to their priority, 7 H. 4. c. 16.

Confirmation of grants, 7 Ed. 6. c. 11. 7 Ed. 4. c. 4. 7 Ed. 6. c. 3. 4 & 5 Ph. & M. c. 11. 18 Eliz. c. 2. 43 Eliz. c. 1.

Grantees of lands, &c., that came to the Crown by attainder, shall hold them in the same manner as if there had been no charge or allegation, &c. above mentioned, as in the days and times and in manner and form above expressed, according to the true intent and meaning of these presents. And also, that the said megressive, &c., and hereditaments above mentioned to be charged or chargeable with the said wood hereby granted, shall from time to time be and continue ever and ever to be, the subject of the payment for the said wood or yearly rent-charge of, &c., yearly, during the life of C. D. In witness, &c.
The Stable of a kind small fish, mentioned in flat. 22 Ed. 4. c. 4.

Githrich. (Pacis fratis seu voluntatis) is a branch of the peace, in enim Regis githrichore 100 lb.—mem. Lit. Leg. 15o. cap. 30. Chartis Williamii Conq. Erz. Sancl. Psalmus in Heli. a. d. 50. githrichore, i.e. quad prior tenet placitis de illos quipsum Regis vel libertatis ipsius privatis. Ex Reg. Priorat. de Cekoforu.

Githibrate, (Sols pacis) A sanctuary. See fitbract.

3. By 37 Ed. 3. 5. were merchants that engulfed all merchandise vendible; but now it is a particular and well-known trade, incorporated into a company, which is one of the twelve, and have a very handsome hall, from them filled Grocers-Hall. Council, edid. 1727.

Grocers wages. Raisins, ses. prunes, and currans, in three ships to be imported, and in what cases to be deemed aliens goods, 12 Car. 2. c. 18. sect. 8, 9.

No grocery to be imported from the Netherland or Germany, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 11. sect. 23.

What grocery imported shall pay ten pounds for every hundred pounds value, 2 W. & M. jiff. 2. c. 4. sect. 15.

Raisins imported to pay but five pounds, and currans fifty shillings for every hundred pounds value, 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 5. 100.

Curans imported in English or Venetian shipping, now exempt from paying the subsidy granted by 3 & 4 W. c. 7. sect. 4, 5. 6. sect. 12. 28 Geo. 2. c. 29. sect. 3.

Every hundred weight of raisins imported pays fifteen shillings, 8 Ann. c. 7. sect. 6.

Importers of raisins what time to have payment of duties, and what allowance for prompt payment, 8 Ann. c. 7. sect. 12.

Landing raisins without entry, or unshipping with a design to land them before payment of duties, what to forfeit, 8 Ann. c. 7. f. 14. 17.

 Duties in what cases to be paid on exportation, 8 Ann. c. 7. fett. 15.

All to be levied, 8 Ann. c. 7. fett. 16.

Gynna (Taleutus, mentioned in 33 H. 8. cap. 10.) Is the name of a servent in some inferior place. Verigton in his Reflexiones of decayed Intelligence, faith, that He findeth it to have been in times past a name for youths, who albeit they served, yet were they inferior to men-servants, and were sometimes bent on foot on errands, serving in such manner as lackies do now. Council, edid. 1727.

Gynnapotter, An officer or superintendent over the Royal gaming-tables; in Latin, written Jucce Rigi junia primarius.

Sylla, A great. Consulla est Rigi una grossa, qui conduct quater denarius de quicquis viro il muliere. Henry Kayvghton, fab an 1738.

Sylla. In grisse, absolute, independent; as formerly a villain in grisse, was such a servile person, as was not appendant or annexed to the land or manor, and go along with the tenure as an appurtenance of it, but was only a personal goods and chattels of his lord, at his lord's free pleasurable and dispost. So adversion in grisse disfirmed from adversion app endant.
Quiddy latis, is great wood, and properly signifies such wood as, in either by the Common law or custom of the county, timber. 2 Per. Jod. 562.

Graffete, signifies a fine, and is corrupt from graffam. For Please, fol. 571, fath thus, Et il est j. K. grant that Villainus in graffe was a servant which did not belong to the land, but immediately to the person of the lord: For an adowson in graffe is a right of, as own not annexed to the fee or manor, but it belonged to the patron himself, distinct from the manor.

Graffite, or of Merchants' Ditts. a den, cave, or hollow place in the ground; also a shady, woodly place, with springs of water. L. Fr. Ditt. 127.

Graffam, is a tribute paid for the ground on which a fish band can go. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Graftsman. See Deft.

Graffam, by 43 Ed. 3. cap. 10, seems to be an engine to ithech woolen cloth after it is woven. Graft halfprize, A rate paid in some places for the taking of every fat, ox, or other unfruitful cattle. Clayton, Rep. p. 92.

Graffiti, Derived from the French grazer, Signifies generally the principal officers of the forest; of whom you may read in the forest records. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Gutta, Gruel, broth, Potage: In the accounts of the cathedral church of Saint Paul in London about 5 Ed. 2. Sanna frumenti ad panem 182. quarter, sanna frumenti 125. quarter, sanna orde ad gutting 135. quarter. Ex Libro Statut. Eccl. Paulinie, MS. fol. 73.

Guadage or Ouadage, (Guadagium vel guidagium,) Ex quod datur allot, ut toti combustor per terram alterius; that which is given for safe conduct through unknown ways, or a strange territory. Sir Edward Coke calls this an old legal word. 2 Jod. 526.

Guadum. See Waldum.

Guanaugium. See Waldnage.

Guard, (Fr. gard, Lat. caudium, A custody or care of defence. And sometimes it is used for those who attend upon the safety of the Prince, called the life-guard, Ut, sometimes such as have the education and guardianship of infants, and sometimes persons are called guardians of a wordship, as droit de gard, gitehine de gard. F. N. B. 130.

Guadianum, (Fr. gardin, Lat. caesus, guardianum,) Signifies generally him that hath the charge or custody of any person or thing; but most commonly him that hath the education or protection of such people, as are not of sufficient discretion to guide themselves and their own affairs, as child en and ideals; being indeed as largely extended as tuter and curator, among the Civilians; for whereas tuter is he that hath the government of a youth, until he come to fourteen years of age; and curator is he that hath the direction and ordering of his estate afterwards, until he attain to the age of five and twenty years, or he that hath the charge of a frantic perdon during his lunacy; we use only guardian for both these: And for the better understanding of the law in this point, we are to observe, that a tutor is either saltitator, or a prater; datus legi Adversa; or laely, legitimus, so quick have three forts of guardians in England; one ordained by the father in his last will, another appointed by the judge, the third catt upon the minor by the law and custom of the land: Touching the first, a man having goods or children, may appoint a guardian to the body or person of his child, by his last will and testament, until he come to the age of fourteen years, and the disposing and ordering and the setting of his estate for as long as he thinks meet, which is commonly to one and twenty years of age. The same he may do of lands not holden in capite, or by knights service. But the ancient law in this case is very much altered by the statute of 15 Car. 2. cap. 24, which ordains, that, "Whosoever his parent hath, or shall have any child of fourteen years of age, or above, he hath the management of the same, and of the revenue of twenty-one years, or any part thereof, at the death of his child, it shall be lawful for the father of such child or children, whether born at the time of the decease of the father, or at that time in utero, or at any time in utero after, or whether such father be within the age of twenty-one years, or not, if the same be executed in his lifetime, or by his last will and testament, in writing, in the presence of two or more credible witnesses, to dispose of the custody and tuition of such child or children; for and during the time he or they shall remain under age, or any lesser time, to any person or persons in possession or remainder, other than the child's relations; and such disposition shall be good against all persons claiming such child, as guardian in sejus, or otherwise, &c. But if the father order no guardian to his child, the ordinary may appoint one to manage his goods and chattels, till the age of fourteen years, at which time he may chuse him another guardian, according as he by the Civil law he may have his curator; for we all hold ourselves that we are the Civilians in this case, and that is leo curate nos datur. And for his lands the next a kin on that side, by which the land cometh not, shall be guardian, and was herefore called guardian in sejus. See more of the old law in this case as in 1 Stat. I. cap. 1. And in note Dr. Loudther Legum Ang. cap. 44. Stann: Preren. cap. 24. Old Nat. Breel. fol. 94. and Steene de verbo. varian; from whence you may learn great affinity, and yet some difference between the laws of Scotland and ours in this point. Cowell, ed. 1727.

A guardian is one appointed by the wisdom and policy of the law to take care of a perdon and his affairs, who by reason of his imbecility and want of understanding is incapable of acting for his own interest; and it seems that by our law his office originally was to instruct the ward in the arts of war, as also of husbandry and tillage, whom he that came of age he might be the better able to perform those services to his lord, whereby he held his own land. 2 Boc. Air. 672. See 2 Jod. 12, 13, 564, 555.

And therefore Bradton, lib. 2. cap. 38. fol. 86, treating hereof, says, De illis, qui sunt inferiores & infra aestas, & quos operet off sub tutela & cura aliquid... & regere non possunt, & quorum unum debent esse sub facultate Dominii cum terri & tenementis... quos sunt de jicio eorum... & quorum sub facultate parentium & proximorum confugiun- mirum, ut praeda... eff... & quibus daturus caesusque aliquando de jure de diversis... & de aliis tute... & de aliis ad humine. — So Flata, cap. 9. fol. 4. Quidam sub caedea par- rentum & proximorum confugiunmirum, & illis daturus caesus de jure gentium. 127.

1. Of the several kinds of guardians, namely, by the Common law, by capite, and by statute.

2. Who may and are intituled to be guardians; by what authority they are appointed, and of reposing and punishing abuses by them.

3. Of the time and manner of appointing a guardian; and of the guardian's interest in the body and lands of the ward, and his remedy for the same.

4. What things a guardian may lawfully do, and which shall bind the infant.

5. Of the infant's remedy against his guardian for abuses by him; and in this also to be a guardian to account, and what allowances he shall have.

1. Of the several kinds of guardians, namely, by the Common law, by capite, and by statute.

2. By whom and for what reason, and in what case, and by what authority, and of what power, and what authority and protection they have in this case.

Guardians by the Common law. There are four kinds of guardians by the Common law, viz. guardian in chivalry, fojes, nature and nurture. Cf. Lit. 88, &
At guardians in chivalry it is to be observed, that by the Common law, if tenant by knight-service had died, his heir male being under the age of twenty-one years, the lord should have the lai de hominis of him, to such heir his land until he should attain to the age of twenty-one years, and for the performance of his service; and such land had likewise the custody of the body of the infant to breed him up, and inure him to martial discipline, and was therefore called guardian in chivalry. Lit. j. c. 153.

Ca. Lit. 74, 75, 76. 2 rol. 12, 13.

But if an heir female were unnativized, and under fourteen at her accurs's death, the lord was guardian till the infant arrived to that age; also by W except. 2, cap. 22, the lord should have had the land till the child were sixteen to tender convenient marriage to her; and if the lord died within the two years, the law gave the same interest to his executor and executors. Lit. 75, 76.

Wardship was due to the lord in regard to tenare, therefore if the lord had released his seigniory to his ward, or the seigniory had descended to him, he should have been out of ward, for coiffeufa tertiis effeisset. Co. Lit. 75, 76. 2 rol. Abr. 36.

An heir who had been in ward by reason of a tenure in capite, when he came of age must have sold livery, t. e. to have the lands delivered to him by the King, the expense of which was half a year's profit of his lands holden; but if the heir had been of age at his ancestor's death, he should have had the land till the child were fourteen, for they were unable to tend convenient marriage to her; and if the lord died within the two years, the law gave the same interest to his executor and executors. Lit. 75, 76.

On the death of guardian by knight-service, the executors should have had the wardship of the heir, for they had it to their own use, and might have granted or alienated it over; and therefore were not at all accountable to the infant when he came of age. Co. Lit. 90.

But this fort of guardian ship being a fort of conflation of a young and valorous age among the Cather: nations to breed them to arms; it was esteemed a great burden, and therefore is now fallen by the 12 Car. 2, cap. 24, by which all tenures by knight-service, and forage in capite, are turned into common feuage, and discharged of homage, livery, premier feisin, wardship, and all other burdens which were law inclined to such tenures, and must per fili marriage & per forse fiin chivalris. 2 B. Rot. 674.

2. By the Common law, if tenant in forage die, his heir being under fourteen, whether he be his issue or cousin, male or female, the next of blood to the heir to whom the inheritance is to descend, shall be guardian of his body and land till his age of fourteen; and although the nature of forage tenure be in some measure changed from what it originally was, yet it is still called forage tenure, and the guardian in forage is still only where land of that kind (as much of the lands in England now are,) descend to the heir within age; and then the heir after fourteen may chuse his own guardian, who shall continue till he is twenty-one, yet as well the guardian before fourteen, as he, whom the infant shall think fit to chuse after fourteen, are both of the same nature, and in both the same office and employment. Co. Lit. 86. 2.

By the Common law, if tenant by knight-service had died, his heir male being under the age of twenty one years, the lord should have the lai de hominis of him to such heir had arrived to that age, and for the performance of his service; and such land had likewise the custody of the body of the infant to breed him up, and inure him to martial discipline, and was therefore called guardian in chivalry. Lit. j. c. 153.

Hence the law has invested them not with a bare authority, but also with an interest till the guardian himself, and not his heir financial, but the authority itself, the law has made them accountable to the infant, either when he comes to the age of fourteen years, or at any time after, as he thinks fit; and therefore are not to have any thing to their own use, as the guardian in chivalry had. Co. Lit. 90, a.

Guardian by nature, who is the father or mother; and here we must obviate, that by the Common law every father hath right of guardianship of the body of his son and heir until he attain to the age of twenty-one years; Co. Lit. 84, 89 E. 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 11, & 11, 73. 41, 42, 74. 115, 120, 2 rol. 63.

But neither the mother, nor any collateral ancestor could have had the custody of the heir apparent before the lord, for though they may have an action of trepals quae capacitatem & heredem rotisque, yet they can have it only against a stranger guardian in chivalry. Lit. J. c. 114. Co. Lit. 84.

Guardians by curtesy. By the custom of the city of London, the custody and guardianship of orphans under age unmarred belongs to the city. 1 Bat. Abr. 675.

By the custom of Kent, where any tenant died, his heir within age, the lord of the manor might and did commit the guardianship to the next relation within the court of justice, in whose jurisdiction the land was; but the lord was bound on all occasions to call him to an account, and if he did not fulfill that the accounts were fair, the lord might have rescinded to another. This proviso the Chancellor hath taken from inferior courts only in Kent, where their customs are continued; but the custom is not used even in Kent this day, because the lord in giving tutors do it at their own peril in the account; and therefore every man thinks it dangerous to impress it. Lit. 611.

This guardian appointed by the lord is to have the same allowance and no other, with the guardian in forage at Common law, and is subject, as has been said, to the account of the heir for his receipts, and to the difficulties of the lord for the same cause. Lamb. 624.

If copyhold lands descend to an infant within the age of fourteen years, the next of kin, to whom the lands cannot descend, shall be guardian both of the infant's land and estate, if by the custom of a manor it does not belong to another. 2 Rol. Abr. 40. 2 Lutw. 1185. 8 P. f. said to be refolved.

And therefore, if a copyhold defend to a lunatick, or an infant within the age of fourteen, the lord, without a special custom for that purpose, hath no power of appointing a guardian. Hib. 215. Hot. 16, 17, 2 Lutw. 1185.

Guardians by statute. By the Common law no person can be appointed a guardian, because the law had appointed one, whether the father was tenant by knight-service or in forage. 3 Co. Lit. 37. 2 rol. 62.

The first statute, (1 Sid. 350b.) that gave the father a power of appointing, was the 4 & 5 E. 3, &c. cap. 8 which provides under severe penalties, such as fine and imprisonment for years, " That nobody shall take away any any maid or woman child unmarried, being within the age of sixteen years, out of or from the poli- cie, custody, or guardianship, and against the use of such maid or woman child, or of such being or persons to whom the father of such maid or woman child by his last will and testament, or by any other act in his life-time, hath or shall appoint, assign, bequeath, give or grant the order, keeping, education and governance of such child, or any of them.

In the construction of this statute it hath been held, that if two persons are appointed guardians by authority of this statute, and one of them dies, the guardianship will not survive, because the statute gives an authority to a special purpose, and enlists the ravisher criminal within the statute.

2. That in case of devise of such custody or guardianship made by or during the life-time of the testator, the testamentary power may be confused.

The 15. Car. 2. cap. 24. enacts, "That where any person hath or shall have any child or children under the age of twenty-one years, and not married at the time of his death, it shall and may be lawful to and for the father of such child or children, whether born at the time of the decease of the father, or at that time in utero feri more, or whether such father be within the age of one and twenty years, or of full age, by his deed executed in his life-time, or by his last will and testament, in the presence of two or the father of two children made since the 24th day of February 1645, or hereafter to be made, shall be good and effectual against all and every person or persons claiming the custody or tuition of such child or children as guardian in foro, or otherwise; and such person or persons to whom the custody of such child or children shall be devised or devised as aforesaid, shall and may maintain an action of ravishment of ward and trespass against any person or persons which shall wrongfully take away or detain such child or children, for the recovery of such child or children, and shall and may recover damages for the same in the said action, for the use and benefit of such child or children."

"And such person or persons to whom the custody of such child or children hath been, or shall be so devised or devised, shall and may take into his or their custody, to the use of such child or children, the profits of all lands, rents, and issues,属于ments of lands or children, and also the custody, tuition and management of the goods and chattels and personal estate of such child or children till their respective age of one and twenty years, or any lesser time, according to such devise aforesaid, and may bring such action or actions in relation thereto, as by law a guardian in common forage might do.

In the construction of this statute the following opinions have been held:

1. That a testamentary guardian, or one formed according to this statute, comes into possess, and is the owner in all cases of the interest of such child or children, and differs only as to the modus habendi, or in a few particular circumstances; as, if the testator shall explain it by a longer time, viz. till the heir attains the age of twenty-one, where before it was but to fourteen: feclinly, it may be by other persons held; for before, it was the next of kindest not inheritable could have it, now who the father names shall have it.

2. That though neither before nor since this statute a person under age may devise his lands, yet a person under age may, within this act, dispose of the custody of his child, and such disposition draws after the statute, &c. as an act for the custody.

3. That an infant hath the same remedy against a testamentary guardian, as he had against a guardian in foro, tho' the statute speaks only of remedies for the guardian.

4. If the father being of age devise his lands to y. s. during the minority of his son and heir, in trust for his heir, and for his maintenance and education until he be of age, this is creating the custody within this statute, for he might have done this before the statute.

5. If a man devise the custody of his heir apparent to y. s. and mentions no time, either during his minority, or for any time after, this is a good devise of the custody within the act, if the heir be under fourteen at the death of the father, because by the devise the minis habendi cupididiam is changed only as to the perfon, and left the fame as it was as to the time, but if above fourteen at the father's death, then the devise of the custody is merely void for the wrongfulness of the act did not intend every heir should be in custody until one and twenty years, and tamen, sed ne distinet: therefore he shall be in this custody but so long as the father appoints, and if he appoint no time there is no custody.

6. That this testamentary guardian hath the custody not only of the land defended or left by the father, but of all lands and goods any way acquired or purchased by the infant, which the guardian in foro had not.

7. That this guardian cannot affign or transfer the guardianship over to another, neither shall it upon his death go to his executors or administrators; for tho' he at an interest, yet it is an interest joined with a trust, with which the testator might think those persons incapable of executing, and he placed that trust and confidence in the guardian himself; but it seems, that if two or more are made guardians, and one of them die, the survivor or successors shall fill up continue guardians, for from the nature of the thing, the authority must be joint and equal, especially if, in the nature of the case, there were other, the more guardians were appointed for the security of the infant, the less secure it would be, because upon the death of one of them the guardianship would be at an end.

8. That if a person, appointed guardian pursuant to this statute, die or refuse to take upon him the guardianship, the Lord Chancellor may appoint a proper guardian.

9. Alfo if a person appointed guardian pursuant to this statute, becomes a lunatick, or is otherwise incapacitated to execute the trust reposed in him, or if he abides the truth, by doing any thing prejudicial either to the perfon of the infant, or his estate, it seems, that the court of Chancery, may either totally remove him, and appoint another guardian, or else impose such terms on him, by obliging him to give security, &c. as will effectually hinder him from doing any thing prejudicial to the infant; but in what particular instances of this kind a court of equity will interpose, do not seem to be clearly agreed.

10. That a coheir is not within the statute to dispute of the custody of his infant heir, because of the meannes of his estate, and the prejudice that would accrue to the lord of the manor; and therefore the lord, or those intituted by the custum, shall have the custody of him.

And note that both by the 4 £ 5 & 6. Ph. 5. M. and by this statute, there are express savings with respect to the city of London and other towns, as to the custody of orphans.

1 Sid. 353.

11. if he may and are entitled to be guardians; by what authority they are appointed, and of restraining and punishing abuses by them.

Here in the first place we must take notice, that there can be no guardian in foro but where lands of that nature defend to the heir.

Ca. Lit. 88. 2 Med. 176.

Therefore such a man died of a debt-charg, a common, or such-like inheritances, which lie not in tenure, and (dispose not of the custody of his child,) he may chuse his guardian; if he be so young that he can make no no choice, it is most fit that his next cousin, to whom the inheritance can't be defend, should have the custody of him, and whoever takes the rent, &c, is chargeable in account; but he has any force land, the foage shall take the rent charge; Co. in custody, Ca. Lit. 87.

So the wife's heir shall not be in ward during the life of her brother for the estate, because of his continuance of his wife's estate, the defendant to the heir is interdicted.

F. N. B. 143.

By the law, the next of blood, to whom the inheritance can't be defend, is entitled to the guardianship; as if the land descended from the father, the mother, or other next cousin of the mother's side, shall be guardian in foage, &c for convey, where lands descend from the mother; but the Civil Law appoints the guardian that is nearest next, which our law says is committitur even haps. Co. Lit. 87.

If the younger brother die feized in tail, leaving issue under fourteen, the eldest, not the middle brother, shall be his guardian in foage, for in equal degree the law prefers him. Co. Lit. 88.

But if tenant in tail have no brother or sister, and die, leaving issue under fourteen, the next cousin of the father's or mother's side that first feizes the heir shall have the custody of him; for the relation on both sides is equal, and no cause appears wherefore either should be preferred; and he that first takes care of the heir throws himself to be most concerned for his interest. Co. Lit. 88.

But if donees in frank-marriage die, their issue being under fourteen, the next cousin of the part of the donee that was the cause of the gift (being not inheritable to the donor's reversion) shall have the custody. Co. Lit. 88.

A. feized of some lands as heir to his father, and of others as heir to his mother, dies, leaving issue under fourteen, the next cousin of either side, that first seizes the body of the heir, shall have the custody of him; and the next cousin of the father's part shall enter into the lands of the mother's part, &c for convey. Co. Lit. 88. 8.

If a woman hath issue a son by a former husband, and she marries a second husband, feized of foage lands, by whom she has issue another son, and the husband and wife die, leaving the said son under fourteen, his brother of the half blood shall be guardian in foage, as next of kin, to whom the inheritance can't be defend. Co. Eliz. 295. 2 Ad. 171. Mor. 625. 2 Jas. 17.

If A. be guardian in foage of B. under fourteen, he shall be guardian in foage of another infant whom B. ought to be guardian of, as being his next cousin per curiae dict, and an account lies against him. Co. Lit. 88. 8.

An infant, idiot, lunatick, non comper, one blind and dumb, deaf and dumb, or leper removed, can't be guardian in foage. Co. Lit. 88. 8.

It is clearly agreed, That the King as patron patriae is universal guardian of all infants, idiots and lunatics, who can't take care of themselves: and as this cafe can't be excercised otherwise than by appointing them proper curators or committees; it seems also agreed, that the King may, as he has done, delegate the authority to his Chancellor; and that therefore at this day, the court of Chancery is the only proper court, which hath jurisdiction in appointing and removing guardians, and in preventing them and others from abusing their power or effectes.

And as the court of Chancery is now invested with this authority, hence in every day's practice we find the chancellor's order to be the right of guardianship, who is the next of kin, and who the most proper guardian; as also orders are made by that court on peticious or motion, for the provision of infants during any dispute herein; likewise guardians removed or compelled to give security; they are likewise punished for abuses committed on account, and censured. Care taken to prevent any abuses in them in their power or effectes, all such wrongs and injuries being redressed a contempt of that court, that by an established jurisdiction the protection of all persons under natural difficulties. 2 Ily. 177.

But it is clear, that the ecclesiastical court hath not authority to refer to a guardian, or offofimentary guardian; and therefore where Sir Henry Wood having devolved the guardianship of his daughter, by his will in writing, according to the 12 Car. 2, to the Lady Chelyer his sister; the Dutchess of Cleveland, to whom the daughter, being about eight years old, was committed, pretending that Sir Henry Wood by word revealed this disposition of the guardianship, fixed in the Prerogative court to have this miscarriage of cedex proved; and the court granted a prohibition; for they are not to prove a will concerning the guardianship of a child, which is a thing of a temporal nature, and of which the courts are but authorities; if the same be not referred to the nature or not. 1 Kent. 257, Lady Chelyer's case.

3. Of the time and manner of appointing a guardian; and of the guardian's interdict in the body and lands of the ward, and his remedy for the same.

The authority of a guardian in chivalry did not determine until the heir, if a male, came to the age of twenty-one years, because it was provided, that till that age he was not capable of doing knight-service, and attending his lord in the wars; the guardianship of an heir female determined by all the laws at fourteen years at Common law; by Wm. P. 1, the lord had the wardship till the attained the age of sixteen, to tender her convenable marriage; the authority of a guardian in foage ceases at the age of fourteen, at which age the infant may call his guardian to an account, and may chuse a new guardian.

Lit. 103. 2 Ily. 125.

If a guardian in foage die, the guardianship shall go to the next of kin of the infant, to whom the inheritance can't be defend, and shall not go to the executors of the guardian, because they can take nothing but what the teltator had to his own use; besides, the law gives the guardianship to successive lads as are performed have most affection for the infant; and therefore will not intrust executors with it, who may happen to be strangers.

If a femme infant who is in ward marries, at Common law the guardianship is determined, because the husband is immediately on the marriage become her guardian; and it would be inconsistent that the foall at the same time be under the power of another guardian, 2 Ily. 260.

If a femme guardian in foage marries, the husband becomes guardian in right of his wife; but if the devil the guardianship cured by the law, and the first go to the next of kin to the infant.

Plow. 293. a. Co. Lit. 89. a. S. P.

A guardian in foage shall not forbear his interest by outlawry or attainder of felony or treason, because he hath nothing to his own use, but to the use of the heir.

Co. Lit. 88. b. Gaud. 316.

It is said, that in Chancery a guardian can't be otherwise appointed than by bringing the infant into court, or his praying a commissary to have a guardian assigned him.

Afr. Eq. 260. Lloyd and Caron

Regulary an infant is to sue both at common law and in Chancery, by his prochein any or guardian; but he must always defend by guardian, who is to be admitted by the court. Vide Head of Infants.

The respective courts in which the suit is commenced, must affig a proper guardian to the infant; and therefore if an infant is sued, the plaintiff must move to have a proper guardian assigned him. Stil. 269. Brid. 74. 1 Ily. 322.

And as an infant can bring his bill but by prochein any, so he must take care of it; for if the bill is dismissed, the prochein any must pay the costs thereof.

Afr. Eq. 73. Aventh and Cradick.

Where a bill is brought against an infant (if in town) he has the guardianship of it as to himself, and he can appoint a guardian assigned him, by whom he may defend the suit; if in the country, he sues out a commissary to assign a guardian, and put in his answer; and whether he pleads, answers or demurs, demur, fill it must be done by his guardian; for if it is the plea, answer or defence of the infant, without doing it, it will be irregular.

But where the infant neglects to appear, or to have a guardian affigned, it is a motion of course (he being in contempt to an attachment) to pray for a meeinger to bring him into court, and when he is there the court alway, should proceed; for this can be done against a seer of the thing who is an infant, and whose person is saced. 2 Dac. Atq. 601 See Privilege.

As the law hath invested guardians not with a bare authority only, but also with an interell till the guardianship ceaseth; so it hath provided several remedies for guardians against those who violate that interest; and therefore at Common law there were remedies both of tural and poftflly, to recover the guardianship. 2 Inl. 90. 9 Cc. 72.

As at Common law there was the writ De ostitio terrae et hereditis, called the writ of right ward, whereby the guardian recovered the custody of body and lands; but if the ward were married, then the guardian was driven to his action of trepafs, quere f e intrinfi maritaggio non fatisfidt; but this was remedied by the statute of Martin, cap. 6, which provides, that in the writ of right warddef the plaintiff shall recover the value of the marriage. 2 Inl. 90.

Alfo at Common law an action of trepafs lay for the guardian, which was a poftflory action; and in this at Common law he could only recover damages for his ward, and not the ward itself; but the statute of Mat- fion, which provides, that in the writ of right ward the plaintiff recovered the body of the heir, and not damages only. 2 Inl. 90, 430. 9 Cc. 72. Huf- fuy's cafe. Hob. 94.

If upon a habiet corpus an infant be brought into court, and it appears, that the question is touching the right of guardianship, the court can't deliver the infant to the guardian, for he may have a writ of rafivation of ward. 3 Kel. 446.

4. What things a guardian may lawfully do, and which shall bind the infant.

From the authority and interell, which the policy of the law has invested guardians with, it appears, that a guardian may do several acts which will bind the infant, fuch as making leaves for years, which he may do in his own name, and such leaves may maintain efjetment thereupon. 4 Co. Lit. 88, 89. Lit. Est. 123, 124. In re J. in Chancery, Eng. B. 27.

Therefore if a guardian in focage makes leaves for years to continue beyond the time of his guardianship, such leaves seem not to be absolutely void by the infant's coming of age, but only voidable by him, if he thinks fit; for they were not derived bare out of the interell of the guardian, or to be misconducted thereby, but take effect also by virtue of his authority, which for the time was general and absolute; and therefore all lawful acts done during the continuance of that authority are good, and may fuftiff after the authority itself, by which they were done, is determined; and consequently the infant is bound by them. If, by the bearevac is the name of the infant, and hath nothing to do with his lands. Bro. Tit. Gard. 70. Tit. Gar- den, 19. 2 Rol. Atr. 41. Brijlen and Hufsey. Cra. Juf. 55. 98. Skepland and Rider.

A. lest lands to B. for four years, and died, and the land being held in focage, and the heir under four- cests, the infant got in the land in focage by indenture, before the first lease was expired, lets the same lands in his own name to B. for eight years: and if by this acceptance of a new lease from the guardian in focage the first lease was fu- rendered, was the question; and 'tis said to be holden by the court, that it was forfended; or if it could not be properly cashed, for want of a revocation in the guardian in focage, yet they held, that at last the first lease was thereby determined by admittance of the leflee's own children by marriage, which if the first should fland in the way he could not do. Com. 158, 372. 4 Len. 7. Owen 45. 56. Willis and /his head.

If a woman who is guardian in focage to her fon marries again, and her husband and the join in a lease of the infant's land, the lease upon the steps of the marriage becomes void; for the interest in the lands was in right of the infant, and therefore shall not bind her, as those acts which in the soil with her husband in parting with her own poffeffion. Plow. 293. Othens's cafe.

A guardian in focage may grant copyhold eflates in his own name, and such grants shall bind the heirs, for he is dominus pro tempore, and shall take the profits to his own use, though he shall account for them; and he shall keep courts in his own name. Cra. Juf. 55. 99. Poph. 127. 2 Rol. Atr. 42.

Alfo it hath been resolved, that a guardian in focage may grant copyholds in reverson according to the cust- ion of the manor, and that such grant shall be good; though they come into poftflion during the non-age of the infant. Mich. 8 W. 3. in C. B. Lade and Barker.

A guardian in socage in whom any may make partition in be- half of an infant, if equal; for the same was not only void, but the law to take care of the inheritance of the infant; and this separation and division of his part from what be- longs to another is so far from being a prejudice to the infant, that it is really for his benefit and advantage. 2 Rol. Atr. 28.

As the authority and interest of a guardian extends only to fuch things as may be for the benefit and advantage of the infant, and whereas he may give an account; on this foundation it is held, that a guardian cannot preferit to any benefice in right of the heir, because he can thereby make no advantage of the infant (for that would be enmity); and consequently has nothing therein whereby he can give an account, and therefore the infant himself shall prefent thereto. Ca. Lit. 17. k. 89a. 29 Ed. 3. 5.

But yet a preferment made by the guardian in the name of the heir, is a good title to the heir in quere im- pedit. 42 Ed. 3. 17.

In ejecution the cafe was, that one A. devised land to B. his fon in tail, with divers remainders over, and makes one C. over-leer of his will, and willed that he should have the education of his fon till he came to twenty-one, and to receive, fet and let for the faid B. the faid land, and for his fon, and the guardian is to account to the faid B. being allowed his charges, &c. C. makes a lease for seven years in his own name, with re- ferervation of rent to himself, and this lease by computa- tion was to continue half a year after B.'s attaining his full age, and if this lease was good for any part of the term was the quifton, C. being dead, and B. not yet of age; and it was argued to be good for the whole term, or at leaft during the minority of the fon, and only void for so much as exceeded the full age of the fon, and that C. had an interell in the land, and not a bare au- thority only; for then all leaves much be made in the name of the tenant, and make such prudence as whenever he thought fit, which the tenant never in- tended to impower him to do; but Popham, Clench and Fenner held, that as this devise is, C. was but a guar- dian for nurture, and could not make leaves at his own will and pleasure, for then he might make them for a hundred years; but here he can only make leaves at will, for there is no other time certain appointed, and he is but in the nature of a bailiff, and accountable; and therefore it was adjudged that the lease was void; from which cafe it appears, that if the authority had been enough to enable him to make leaves for years, fuch leaves made during the continuance of that authority would not have determined therewith, but should have subsisted during the whole term for which they were made; and the infant in fuch cafe could not when he came of age have avoided them, as he may leaves made by his guardian in focage, if he thinks fit; be- X x cau cafe the title would have been in by the will and devise, not by the guardian for nature.
If a guardian borrows money of A. to pay off an incumbrance on the infant's estate, and promises to give A.
security for his money, but dies before it is paid off, this
A.'s money is applied to pay off the incumbrance, yet the court will decree him satisfaction out of the infant's estate; but if the sum disbursed excesses the profits of the estate, for so much A. shall have an account as for money due to the guardian, and it shall be raised out of the infant's estate. 2 Fer. 450. Hoper and Eybe.
A guardian is an infant, having a considerable sum of money in his hands that was raised out of the infant's estate, lays out, with the consent of the grandmother, 300 l. in a purchase of lands which lay contiguous to the infant's estate, and takes the purchase in the name of J. S. for his benefit, if when he came of age he should again inherit, and allow that money on a count; the infant dying in his minority, it was held by my Lord Chancellor, C. B. Akinin and J. Latyshe, against the opinion of the Master of the Rolls, that this' neither the heir nor administrator of the infant were intitled to the land, yet the guardian must account for the 300 l.
the sum raised out of the infant's estate: and that it was not in the power of the guardian, without the direction of this court, to turn the personal into real estate, by which it would descend to the heir; and that the object, that an infant may make a will at seventeen of his personal estate, but not of his real, was not incorporated.
A mother, as guardian to her infant son, had out of his personal estate paid off a mortgage; the infant afterwards died, and the estate devolved to a remote heir, and then the mother would have had back the money; but the court denied her any relief. 2 Fer. 193. Zabuc and Lloyd. v. Broughton.
If a guardian puts in an answer to a bill in Chancery for an infant, on oath, such answer shall not conclude the infant, nor be read in evidence against him; for the effect of an infant's answer to a bill in Chancery is to no other purpose than to make proper proof, so as to have an opportunity to take depositions, and to examine witnesses to prove the matter in question.
Ch. 79. 3 Mat. 259. 1 Show. 89. S. C. Eydeson and Potty.
An estate having devolved to an infant subject to cumbrances; and the question being, whether a guardian might, without the direction of a court of equity, apply the goods seized to discharge the incumbrances, or the interest of them, or whether they should not be accounted personal estate, and for the administrator of the infant be intitled to them, if the infant died in his minority; it was held by the court, that a guardian, without any direction, may pay the interest of any real incumbrance, and the principle for a stranger to cut down timber trees, or to proftrate any of the houses, and doth not,
according to his duty and office as guardian, endeavour to keep and preserve the inheritance of the ward in his custody and keeping, and doth not prohibit and withhold the wrong-deer, this shall be taken in law for his content, according to the rule, Qui non prohibet proib hibitionem suam in se ducit. But if such ward be discharge be done without the knowledge of the guardian, or with such force that he could not withhold, then ought the guardian to caufe an affize to be brought against such wrong-deer, by the seisin, wherein he shall recover the freedom and damages for such wrong and dif-truction.
And if the heir brings his action of wafle within age,
the judgment, according to the statute of Gleichen, cap. 3, shall not only be to recover deminuendum, but the guardian shall lose the whole wafle, and yield to the heir the single damages, if the wardship be not sufficient to fancy the damazes. 2 l. 405.

If the guardian doth wafle, and after affregate over his interest, an action of wafle both against the grantor in the tenant. 4 l. 305.
Also if the wafle be committed to bear the time of the infant's coming of age, that he could not conveniently bring his action in wafle during his minority; yet after the determination of the guardian's interest, if recovering his actions of wafle, and in such case, as he cannot recover the wardship which it ended, he shall by the statute of Gleichen recover table wafles. 2 l. 306.
By 3Wilm. 2. cap. 3. If like for years, or guardian allows the infant's estate to run to waste, the freedom shall be to sue of noveldiffe, and both the fec lfe and fee f. shall be esteemed difie, and the survivor of them shall be liable to this remedy. So, if either happens to die, he that survives may be confined a diffe, and as such liable to this action. 2 l. 412.
Not only guardians in chivalry, but in fegale and by muture, come within this law of Wilm 2. So also their alienations not only in fee, but in tail, or for life, are within the act.
If a guardian accepts of a foftiment from his ward,
the ward may bring an affize against him as a diffe;
for the guardian acts contrary to his duty, when he affents to any alienation made by his infant; for its duty to keep the inheritance of his ward, and to deliver it up to him at full age, and not to bring it into his own
If a guardian, after the full age of the heir, continues to administer the infant's estate, and an affize of defcription lies against him by the heir; but he cannot be deemed a diffe, because he does not actually outhe the heir of his freedom, which is required in a diﬀen, but holds him out by an intermediate entry between him and his ancestry, which makes the diﬀenization between an abatement and section. 2 l. 547. 2 l. 572. 2 l. 584.
If an infant appears by guardian, and follows a recovery, this shall bind him; and one of the reasons hereof is, that if the recovery be to the prejudice of the infant, he has his remem for it against his guardian, and may reimburse himself out of his pocket, to whom the law had committed the reversion. 2 l. R. 735.
By the Common law, guardians in fegale are accountable to the infant, either when he comes to the age of fourteen years, or at any time after, as he thinks fit.
C. L. 87.
But the guardian, on his account, shall have allowance of all reasonable expenses; and if he is robbed of the rents and profits of the land without his default or negligence, be shall be discharged thereof upon his account;
for he is in the nature of a bailiff or tenant to the infant, and undertakes no otherwise than for his diligence and care. 2 l. 215.
If a man enters as guardian into the lands of an infant, who has no title to be guardian, 'tis at the election of the infant to make him a diﬀen on account of his wrongful entry upon, and actual outher of such infant, or else diffem the wrong, and call him to an account as guar-

GUA

GUA
G U E

If a guardian takes a bond for the annuities of rent, he thereby makes it his own debt, and shall be charged with it. 2 Chon. Reg. 97. Wall and Backly.

I. For a guardian to an infant, whose lands are incumbered to the value of 600l. buys it off with 100l. of the infant's money, he shall not charge the infant with the 600l. 2 Chon. 243.

The receiver's infant's infalvtes the profits of an infant's estate, and continues to do so for several years after the infant comes of age, before any entry is made on him; yet he shall account for the profits throughout, and not during the infant'sancy. Merc. Ed. 1297.

A receiver to the guardian of an infant, who has had his account allowed him by the guardian, shall not be obliged to account over again to the infant when he comes of age. Prev. Chon. 533.

For more learning on this subject, see 14 Vin. Abp. tit. I. England, apointed a magistrate or governor over these Eastern parts, whom they called Cornutum Iterators Saxonum pro Britanniam, having another that did bear the same title on the opposite part of the sea, whose office was to fortify and furnish the sea coasts with munition against the incursions and robberies of the Barbarians; and that was more for the same reason, that our Eastern parts was first crested among us, in imitation of that Roman policy. Cowell. ed. 1727. See Cinque ports.

Guardian of the peace. Cap. 57. See Constables of the peace.

Guardian of the spiritualities. (Coepis spiritualium) is one to whom the spiritual jurisdiction of an, diocese is committed, during the vacancy of the see. 25 Hen. 8, 21. And the guardian of the spiritualities may either be guardian in law, orjure magistratus, as the archbishop is of any diocese within his province; or guardian by delegation, as he whom the archbishop or vicar-general doth for the time depute. 15 Eliz. cap. 12.

And the guardian of the spiritualities had all manner of ecclesiastical jurisdiction of the courts, power of granting licences and dispensations, probate of wills, &c., during the vacancy, and of admitting and infirmiting clerks preferred; but such guardians cannot as such consecrate or ordain, or predest to any benefice. Wood's Hist. 26. See Bishop.

Such provisions relating thence engraved with the excise, 2 W. & M. jf. 2 cap. 9. fol. 12. 4 Ann. cap. 6. fol. 34.

Goods of their own growth may be imported duty free, 3 Geo. 1, c. 4. f. 5.

Salt imported from thence to pay at foreign, 5 Geo. 1, c. 18. ef. 11.
GUN

GUN

Sect. 19. Juries of peace in their functions, and rewards of kets, have power to bear and determine those offences.

Sect. 20. Penalty of 20l. on juries concealing offenders.

Sect. 22. Forfeitures arising by this act shall be paid for within one year by the King, and within five months by common pardon, otherwise they shall be lost.

Sect. 24. Saving for servants carrying guns by their masters' orders.

S. was convicted of shooting in a gun contrary to this statute, and committed to gaol; and upon bak. corp. exceptions were taken to the return. 1f. That the caption is taken before J. S. and T. N. ad pacem confection, without laying (juries) and so by what appearance the same is good. 2dly. That there shall be a conviction by oath, where the statute lays (proof and examination) which must be intended by jury, 3dly. That it does not appear, that it was before the next justices, as it ought to be. 4thly. Nor that the statute had been proclaimed in the same county, whereas there is an express provision in the statute, that none shall be punished before it is proclaimed, which Tishden J. said, ought to appear in the return, (though the statute perhaps was proclaimed one hundred years since). 1 Sid. 419. No judgment. Trin. 21 Car. 2. B. R. The King v. Saunders, 1 Saund. 263. S. C. says, that it was upon the question of the exceptions, that the conviction was to be coram T. B. & G. B. or. Aubus jiffic. dominii regis ad pacem in com. preditos conferment, But that the word (affin.) was omitted. For it ought to have been conferenda, affinatis. And so it does not appear, whether the said justices were aligned to keep the peace or not. The reporter adds a note, that the conviction was before two justices of peace, but the statute gives authority to one justice alone, being the next justice of the county where the offence is committed, to commit the offender for the forfeiture, but that here it does not appear whether either of the said two justices was the next justice of the county, or whether the other exception intended to be moved; but the conviction being qualified for the exception aforesaid, this exception was not moved, and that he was of counsel with the defendant. Vent. 33. Ann. But S. C. reports, that as to the words (upon due examination and proof before a judge of peace), it was refused, that that was not intended by a jury, but by witnesses, and that no wit of error lies upon such conviction: And that an exception was taken, because it was coram J. S. judge of the peace, without adding non ad diversas fiuasiones, transferrantos, &c. advandis, affinatis, and that the court agreed it ought to be in return upon conviction, to remove indults taken at former assizes, and otherwise of convictions of this nature; for it is known to the court, that the statute gives them authority in this case. Vent. 33. Trin. 21 Car. 2. Ann.

A person being brought before the next justice of peace in the county where, &c. for shooting with halflust in a hand-gun, who, upon examination finding it true, made a record thereof, and committed the party to prison, 'till he was transported 10l. vis. 5l. for the informer, and 5l. to the King. This record being certificated upon a babus corpus, it was held by the whole court, that if the justice of peace does not observe the form preferred by the statute, it is void, & coram non ju:s, and needs no writ a fieri, but if he acts according to the statute, then neither B. R. nor justices of peace, can redeem it, or let the party at large. 1750. Hill. 3 Car. 3. B. R. Cafe's cafe.

The judgment on an indictment upon this statute was, that the defendant seditiis domini regni, &c. fecem libera- rum, &c. where the words should have been seditio liberae gentis. Instead of liberae gentis for thue and other reasons the judgment was reversed. Rynm. 378. Trin. 32 Car. 2. B. R. The King v. Aliph.

The conviction was for having a gun in his house, and this being excepted to, because the statute is usf.§ keep in his or her house, and perhaps it might be lent him, and the words of the statute ought to be purged; f°' the conception

Counsel-papers, otherwise called fudian paper, is mentioned among drugs and poisons to be garbled, by 1 Jus. c. 19.

Cultars and half guineas, may be imported, 8 H. 3. c. 1.

Cule of August, (Gula Augi'i, Wy. 2. cap. 30. 27 Eliz. 3. cap. 3.) De folio Saxtoni, &c. 62, alias gula de Augusti, And Plowden, fol. 316. caie of mines.) Is the day of St. Peter ad vicinola, which was wont to be, and is still celebrated upon the first of August, and probably called the gula of August, from gula, a throat. The reason we have in Dunsian's Rationale Dictionarium, bk. 7. cap. De solio lantio Pietro ad vicinola, where he saith, That one Quirinus, a Tribunus, having a daughter that had a disease in her throat, went to Alexander, then pope of Rome, the sixth from St. Peter, and defined of him that he should borrow or fee the chains that St. Peter was chained with under Nero; which request obtained, his said daughter's disease was cured of her defence, and Quirinus with his family baptized. Tune dictus Alexander papa, fith Durand, bu ffimum in calendis Augusti celebrandum infirmit. & in honour hearit Petri ecclesiam in urbe fabricavit, ut ipfa vincula repugisset, & Ad vincula nominaret, & calendis Augusti dedicaretur. In quas jubvstitas populos supplytus in vincula habeat exciscere. So that this day which before was only called the calendis of August, was upon this occasion termed indirectly either from the instrument that wrought the miracle, St. Peter's day ad vicinola; or from that part of the maid wherein the miracle was wrought, the Gula of August. See Hadvian. de Oc. A. 1358. Augustinianum fictum ficta in Hoc die inter Hook-day & Gulam Augi•: Rentiae Manriri Regalis de Wy. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Gulnis, Taxum, The hook upon which the hinge turns. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Gulsum, Gulsumus, The hook upon which the hinge turns. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Gulsum, Gulsumus, The hook upon which the hinge turns. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Sect. 33 Hen. 8. cap. 6. fel. 1. enacts, That no man shall flock in a house to keep in his house a hand- gun, cross-bow, hagbut or demi-hagbut, unless his lands are of the value of 100l. a year, in pain to forfeit 10l. for every such offence.

Sect. 2. Gt. Howbeit, the followers of lords spiritual or temporal, knights, esquires, gentlemen, and the inhabitants of cities, boroughs or market towns, may keep in their houses, and use to shoot (but at a dead mark only) with any hand-gun of the length of one yard, or hagbut, or demi-hagbut of three quarters of a yard; so may the owner of a flipp, for the defence of his flipp, and also he that dwells two forlings or houses of a town, or the owner of a house of the same debt, and the lady that may flock at any wild beast or fowl, save only deer, hert, hooved, partridge, wild swan or wild eike.

Sect. 5. None may license his servant to shoot, except his game keeper, on pain of 10l.

Sect. 12. 13. Gunsmiths or merchants may keep guns by them, offering the lengths aforesaid.

Sect. 14. Proclamation to issue before an offender can be punished.

Sect. 15. Owner of the gun to forfeit, and not the matter of the house.

Sect. 16. It shall be lawful for any person to convey the person offending against this act before the next justice of peace; who, upon due examination and proof, shall have power to commit him to prison, there to remain 'till he has satisfied the penalty; which in this case shall be divided between the King and the party that so takes the offender.
GUN

Volon was quashed. 1 Sow. 48. Trin. 1 W. & M. The King v. Lovelock.

The conviction was non kilnaght 100 l. per annum, and did not stay when; and this was excepted to, because it may be that he had committed the guilt, but he kept a gun, but not when he was convicted; to which it was answered, that the words were as much as to say, the conviction is quashed.

The defendant was non belles terre, & c., excepted on, and referred to the time of the indictment, and not to the pleading; the judgment for that and other reasons was reversed. 3 Mod. 285. Poph. 2 W. & M. The King v. Smith.

The defendant was made a bankrupt, and a quo warranto was brought in the King's Bench. 1 Mod. 71. In the case of the King v. Asp.

T. B. was constituted special bailiff to serve an execution in debt on a judgment, and ferrying a refous, carried with him a dog; whereupon, the defendant, being a justice of peace, made one of his servants to go and search him, and finding him armed brought him before his magistrates, being the next justice of peace, who by consent was appointed to examine the cause. It was held to be illegal. But, on a hawson corpus, the legal march was no offence for a thief or his ministers in executing their office to carry such a hand-gun, and that a dog was a hand-gun within this statute. 1 Car. 2. 1 B. R. The King v. Asp. 1 Id. 4 Mod. 51. in the case of the King v. Asp.

The defendant not having 100 l. a year, did shoot in a gun in February, and in March following was carried before a justice of peace, and by him convicted of this offence. It was moved to quash this conviction, because it was before a single justice, who had not power by the statute to try causes in a summary way, unless the party is brought before him, and upon view of the offence committed, which was not done in this case, and therefore it was ordered to have a cause why it should not be quashed. 4 Mod. 147, 148. Trin. 4 W. & M. The King v. Bullock. 1 Blow 307. 2 Trin. 4 W. & M. S. P. The King v. Litten.

An indictment will lie on this statute before the justices, though this hath been formerly doubted; because though the justices have power by the general words of their commission to punish offences against the peace, yet flooding is not such an offence, for it is only a defect of the duty of watching against such who flow in a gun. 32 Geo. 3. C. 1. 47. page 143.

Gunpowder. By Hat. 10 Cor. 1. c. 21. All persons may make and sell gunpowder, and bring into the Kingdom salt, petre, brimstone or any other materials for the making of it. By Stat. 1 Jac. 2. c. 8. sect. 3, it is enacted, That if any person shall obtain a grant for the sale or making, or importing of gunpowder, he shall incur a penamance.

By Stat. 2 Geo. 2. c. 29. A bounty is granted on exporting British gunpowder, but to be abated if duties on salt-petre cease. By Stat. 1 Geo. 1. c. 26. sect. 4. No person shall carry in the streets of London or Westminster, or the suburbs thereof, more than twenty hundred weight of gunpowder at one time; and all gunpowder carried in the said streets in any cars or carriages, and the barrels clothe jointed and hooped, and put into cases of leather or canvas, and the said barrels being made by man or horse shall be put in cases of leather or canvas, and entirely covered with: And if any such to be carried otherwise, it shall be forfeited, and may be seized by any person to his own use, the offender being thereof convicted before two justices. By Stat. 11 Geo. 1. c. 3. sect. 3. If any person shall work with any iron hammer plated with iron or steel in any warehouse or place while any gunpowder is there, he shall on conviction within one month, be the oath of one witness before one justice, forfeit twenty shillings to the informer; to be levied by distress by warrant of such justice; and for want of sufficient distress, to be committed to the house of correction, to be kept in hard labour not exceeding one month, not less than fourteen days.

Stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 20. sect. 2. No matter of any vessel outward bound, shall receive on board any gunpowder, either in merchandise or there for the voyage, (except for the King's service,) on the Thames above Blackwall, upon pain of five pounds for every fifty pounds weight, and fo in proportion.

Stat. 3. And the matter of every vessel coming into the Thames, shall find all the power on board, either at the first arrival at Blackwall, or within twenty-four hours (if the weather permit,) or he comes to a color there, or at the place of unloading, on pain of five pounds for every hundred weight.

Stat. 4. And if any officer of any ship (except the King's) shall between London Bridge and Blackwall keep any gun leazed with ball, or fire any gun on board above Blackwall, before his arrival, or after un-lenting, he shall forfeit for such gun loaded five shillings, and for such gun fired ten shillings.

Stat. 5. And the corporation of Trinity hoofe at Den- ford Street, may appoint a person to inspect vessels; and if any such officer obstruct him, he shall forfeit five pounds.

Stat. 6. And the said penalties shall go to the poor of the corporation.

Stat. 7. And two justices of London, or the respective counties where the offence shall be committed, shall on complaint in ten days summon the offender, or after oath made of the offence, not more than twenty-four hours, for apprehending him, and on appearance or contempt may convict them either by oath of witness, or confession, or his own view, and levy the penalty by distress, and if not redeemed in five days, by fine; for want of distress he shall be fined for three months, or till paid, and persons aggrieved may appeal to the next King's bench.

Stat. 15 Geo. 2. c. 32. sect. 1. No person not being a dealer in gunpowder shall keep more than fifty pounds weight, or being a dealer, not more than two hundred pounds weight, longer than twenty-four hours at any time, in any house, or in bounds, or in yards, or within thirty miles of the Tower, or of St. James's, or of the Thames, except in vessels passing or remaining detained by the weather, or other causes loading or unloading, or going on the highway; on pain of forfeiting the same, and the value thereof, with full costs to him who shall sue in any court of record at Westminster in thirty days.

Stat. 2. Any justice of the peace within the said limits, on demand by any informant, may issue his warrant for apprehending any person to search in the day-time for dangerous quantities of gunpowder, and break open any place, if there be occasion, and the searchers may feize, and may remove the same in twelve hours out of the said limits, and detain the same till it be determined in the courts, or if any further order be made thereon.

Stat. 3. And persons permitting others to keep gunpowder in any places not belonging to the owners of such gunpowder, shall forfeit one shilling a pound.

Stat. 22 Geo. 2. c. 38. sect. 1. No person shall keep gunpowder for more than twenty-four hours at any one place, any quantity of fire gunpowder not exceeding one hundred weight, in any house or other place, in any city or the suburbs thereof, or in any market town, or within one hundred yards thereof, or within two miles of any of the King's palaces, or one mile of any of the King's magazines; nor shall keep for more than twenty-four hours at any place, a greater quantity than three thousand pounds weight in any house or other place.

Vol. II. No. 85.
of those three nations or people who left Germany, and came to inhabit this island. In Lib. Edw. Confess. cap. 35. we read, "Galli voce familiae, com romanis, Iuliji, in quo regni, fiant cornug: quorum, fiant propriis, &c."

Cutten. The gout. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Cuttena. A gouty or spout to convey the water from the leads and roofs of churches. — Cutten is species plantij fanguis magnus placens facient factorem in ast superiores ecclasis, et punctum familiaris facient de tribulatione fpeculorum, ait ecclesiis externis, ut plebis liberam florent haben per guttulas nec ampullas. — Liber Statutorum Ecel. Paulum London. MS. fol. 41 a.

Cutten-sil or Cutten-silis, is a tile made three corner-wide, especially to be laid in gutters, and at the corners of tiled house and cow-houses, &c., Ed. 4. c. 6. a. 29.

City, (Tommas.) His executors how incorporated for the management of his charities, 16 Ed. 1. c. 12.

Cutte-merch, is a British word, signifying a fine made to some lords of manors upon the marriage of their tenants daughters, or otherwise upon their committing incontinency. Cowell, edit. 1777. See Chartier and Lardirte.

Cuttlow. (Guilliamus, from the Sax. Cuthul, i.e. patriolum, et iis, ibes, i.e.) A place of execution. Lucus judicii seu accidens judicii. Ommas galliowta, id ef, occidenlos loca, titular Regis just in fide ac. I.L. 1. cap. 11.

Cuwp, Cutfia, (Fiamium.) Were properly such goods as felons or thieves, when pasued, cast down and left in the highway, which became a ight to the King or lord of the manor, unless the right owner did legally claim them within one year and a day. — Recognition of militibus & libris omnibus, quid ad nos sita & gwas, ita: ita & fatua reditum nihil sibi the gwas of Erniet, silectis post ear quinque percellis. Pars. Antig. p. 10. where the word signifies only stray-cattle. See Cutfia and Strap.

Cutpitt. It was founded by injunction upon an Ad quod damnum, 13 Ed. 3. n. 12. that there did belong to the liberty or hundred of Pathebouche, in cam. Was a certain court called gypit held every three weeks. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Cutpits. See Egyptians. — Cutpits were kept to a part of wandering monks, who left their own cloister and visiter several others, pretending piety. Mut. Parj. p. 490.

Cutpits. (Fr. Touss.) In Law-French signifies a Jew. — Ex que vol gvy vo de accor en avant tel manere de diser. Provisiones de Judicinium, 53 Hen. 3. n. 11.

II.

Habar. Copps, Is a writ that lies for the bringing in of a jury, or so many of them as refuse to come upon the matter facieus, for the trial of a cause brought tointelligence. Old Nat. Breol. fol. 157. See great diversity of this writ in the table of the Register Judicial, verbo habres, and the New Book of Entries, verso cowen. Cowell.

Habar. Copps, Is a writ which a man,indicted of a trefpas before judges of peace, or in a court of franchie; and being apprehended for the fame, may have out of the King's Bench to remove himself thither at his own costs; and to answer the cause there. F. N. B. fol. 290. And the order in this case is, first to proceed a constietor out of the Chancery directed to the said judge, for the remaining removing the indictment into the King's Bench, and upon that to procure this writ to the sheriff, for the causing his body to be brought to a day, Arg. * Act. 81. but finds divers causes, wherein this writ is to be used, * Cowell.

Wherever a person is restrained of his liberty by being confined in a common gaol, or by a private person, whether it be for a criminal or civil cause, he may regularly by habeas corpus have his body and cause removed to some superior jurisdiction, which hath authority to examine the legality of such commitment, and on the return thereof either bail, discharge, or remand the prisoner. * 196. *B. 366. But's cafe.

The habeas corpus ad faciendum is that which issues in criminal cases, and is deemed a prerogative writ, which the King may issue to any place, as he has a right to be informed of the place and condition of the prisoner, and for what reason he is confined. It is also in regard to the subject deemed his writ of right, that is, such an one as he is intituled to a simple justice, and is in nature of a writ of error to examine the legality of the commitment; and therefore commands the day, the cause, and caufe of detention to be returned. 2 Inf. 55. 4 Inf. 123.

The habeas corpus ad faciendum & recipiendum issues only in civil cafes, and lies where a person is sued, and, according to superior jurisdiction, may be removed, he have the cause determined in some superior court, which hath jurisdiction over the matter; in this case the body is to be removed by habeas corpus, but the proceedings must be removed by certiorari. 3 Bac. Abr. 2. If upon this writ a civil action, and also a matter of crime be determined, as that if a person be arrested for debt, and also charged with a warrant of a justice of peace for felony. If, it appears to the judge or court, that the arrest for debt, or other civil action, is fraudulent, they may remand him. 2. If it be found real, they may commit him to the King's Bench with his caufe, tho' they are in the nature of matters of storm and stress, or that the court will consider the crime as of the civil action; but then in the term the court may take his appearance or bail to the civil action, and remand him, if they see cause, as to the crime to be proceeded on before; but upon the writ ad faciendum & recipiendum, there ought not finally a matter of crime to be returned, for that belongs to the habeas corpus ad faciendum. 2 Hal. Hiff. P. C. 145. and fee 6 Med. 123.

There is likewise a writ of habeas corpus ad referendum, wherein a person is confined in gaol for a cause of action accruing within some inferior court, and a third person hath also a cause of action against him, in which case he may have this writ in order to charge him in such superior court; for inferior courts being tied down to causes arising within their own jurisdiction, the party would be without remedy, unless allowed to sue him in another court; but it seems, that regularly a person confined in B. R. cannot be removed to the G. B. by this writ, nor vice versa, for in these cases there can be no defect of justice, as these courts have concourse as well of local as transitory actions. *Dyer 197. a. 249. pl. 84, 296, 307. 1 Med. 235. *Styl. Prat. Regist. 330. If the habeas corpus issues out of Chancery, and on the return thereof the Lord Chancellor finds that the party was illegally restrained of his liberty, he may discharge him; or if he finds it doubtful he may bind him; but then it must be to appear in the court of King's Bench, for the Chancellor hath no power in criminal causes; or the Chancellor may commit the party to the Fleet, and in term-time may proritis manibus deliver the record into the King's Bench, together with the body, and thereupon the court of King's Bench may proceed to bail, discharge, or commit the prisoner. 2 Hal. Hynt. P. C. 147.

1. What courts have jurisdiction of granting the habeas corpus ad faciendum; how far they have a discretionary power in granting or denying it; and of the habeas corpus act.

2. In what cases, and to what places, it may be granted.

3. Of the manner of suing it out; to whom it shall be directed; by whom it shall be returned; manner of compelling a return, and remedy for a false return.

4. What matters must be returned, together with the body of the party, and where the return shall be deemed certain and sufficient to warrant the commitment.

5. Of failing any contrary to the return; of amending any defect in the return, and of bailing, discharging or remanding the prisoner.

6. Of the habeas corpus ad faciendum & recipiendum.

1. What courts have jurisdiction of granting the habeas corpus ad faciendum; how far they have a discretionary power in granting or denying it; and of the habeas corpus act.

It is clear, that both by the Common law, as also by the statute, the courts of Chancery and King's Bench have jurisdiction of awarding this writ of habeas corpus, and that without any privilege in the person for whom it is awarded; but it seems, that by the Common law the court of King's Bench could only have awarded it in term-time, but that the Chancery might have done it as well out of as in term, because that court is always open. 2 Inf. 55. 4 Inf. 290. 2 And. 297. 2 Tom. 13. 14. 17.

If the habeas corpus issues out of Chancery, and on the return thereof the Lord Chancellor finds that the party was illegally restrained of his liberty, he may discharge him; or if he finds it doubtful he may bind him; but then it must be to appear in the court of King's Bench, for the Chancellor hath no power in criminal causes; or the Chancellor may commit the party to the Fleet, and in term-time may proritis manibus deliver the record into the King's Bench, together with the body, and thereupon the court of King's Bench may proceed to bail, discharge, or commit the prisoner. 2 Hal. Hynt. P. C. 147.
and extend beyond his authority. And for any offense, the said person shall be brought before the court of Exchequer or Common Pleas, unless it were in the case of privilege, because those courts are confined to civil causes; and therefore unless the party were an officer, or intimated to the privilege of the court as an offender, or an officer, such courts had been a fair commence-ment in their suits, they could not grant a habeas corpus ad satisfiendum, tho' they might any other writ of habeas corpus.}

4. But this writ shall be granted upon any of the writs of habeas corpus or certiorari, and in all cases in which it is shown that the defendant was lawfully held, and that no habeas corpus ad satisfiendum or any other writ of habeas corpus could be granted by the common law, if such were in the case of privilege, because such suits are confined to civil causes; and therefore unless the party were an officer, or intimated to the privilege of the court as an offender, or an officer, such courts had been a fair commence-ment in their suits, they could not grant a habeas corpus ad satisfiendum, tho' they might any other writ of habeas corpus.

5. But this writ shall be granted upon any of the writs of habeas corpus or certiorari, and in all cases in which it is shown that the defendant was lawfully held, and that no habeas corpus ad satisfiendum or any other writ of habeas corpus could be granted by the common law, if such were in the case of privilege, because such suits are confined to civil causes; and therefore unless the party were an officer, or intimated to the privilege of the court as an offender, or an officer, such courts had been a fair commence-ment in their suits, they could not grant a habeas corpus ad satisfiendum, tho' they might any other writ of habeas corpus.
And it is hereby further enacted, \textit{sect. 7.} 7. That if any person, who shall be committed for treason or felony, plainly and specially express'd in the warrant of commitment, upon his prayer or petition in open court the first week of the term, or the fifth day of the following term, or general safe-delivery, be brought to his trial, shall not be indicted some time in the next term, feizings of timer and terminer, or general safe-delivery, after such commitment, the justices of the said court shall, upon motion in open court, the last day of the term or feizings, for without the prisoner upon bail, unless it appear upon oath, that the witnesses for the King could not be produced the same term; and if such prisoner upon his prayer, \\textit{sect. 8.} 8. That nothing in this act shall extend to discharge out of prison any person charged in debt, or other action, or with process in any civil cause, but that after he shall be discharged of his imprisonment for such his criminal offence, he shall be kept in custody according to law for such other term.

And it is further enacted, \textit{sect. 10.} 10. That it shall be lawful for any person as aforesaid, to move and obtain his habeas corpus, as well out of the Chancery or Exchequer, as the King's Bench or Common Pleas, and if the said Lord Chancellor or Lord Keeper, or any judge or judges, baron or barons, set the time being, of the determination of any of the said habeas corpus for the vacation-time, upon view of the copy of a warrant of commitment or detainer, or on oath made that such copy was sealed, shall deny any writ of habeas corpus by this act required to be granted, being moved for as aforesaid, they shall severally notorize to the party granting the form of good.

It is provided, \textit{sect. 18.} 18. That after the affizes proclaimed for that county where the prisoner is detained, no perfon shall be removed from the common gaol upon any habeas corpus granted in pursuance of this act, but upon such habeas corpus shall be brought before the judge of the affizes in open court, who thereupon shall do what is to justice shall appertain.

But it is provided, \textit{sect. 19.} 19. That after the affizes are ended, any person detained may have his habeas corpus, according to the direction of this act.

\textit{sect. 3.} 3. Assisted and subjaeted by two witnesses. One witness, by an affidavit that the other is sick, is sufficient.

\textit{comb. 6.}

\textit{sect. 7.} 7. The first week of the term. A person need not enter his prayer the first week, if there be an act of parliament, which concludes the habeas corpus act, and take away the power of bailing for a time.

\textit{salt. 103.} — The grand seizings of \textit{Halses} is in nature of a term; so that the party entitling his prayer thereon the want of profession for a term, \textit{B. R.} may bail him.

\textit{comb. 6.}

\textit{sect. 10.} 10. In the vacation time. And therefore this statute makes the judges hable to an action at the suit of the party prayed in one case only, which is the refusing to award a habeas corpus, and in vacation time, but leaves it to their discretion, in all other cases, to pursue its directions in the same manner as they ought to execute all other laws, without making them subject to the action of the party, or to any other express penalty or forfeiture.

\textit{hat. P. C. 42.}

\textit{section 11.} 11. In the construction of this statute it was held by two judges, in the absence of one, contrary to the opinion of the other, that perons committed by rule of court are not intitled to the benefit of this act; and that none are intitled to make their prayer but such as are committed by a warrant of a justice of peace, or secretary of state, and they committed by rule of court, for that is not within the meaning of the act, which speaks of a commitment by warrant.

\textit{cofis in Law and Equity 429. See Boll.}

\textit{sect. 2.} 2. In what cases, and to what places, is any person granted.

A \textit{habeas corpus} is a writ of right, which the subject may demand, and is the most usual remedy by which a man is restored again to his liberty, if he hath been against law deprived of it. \textit{V. 1.} 276.

By the 31 Car. 2 sect. 1, \textit{sect. 6.} 6. It is enacted, That if any judge of this realm shall be committed to any prison, or in course of any office or service, for any criminal or supposed criminal matter, that the said person shall not be removed from the said prison and delivered unto the custody of any other officer or officer, unless it be by \textit{habeas corpus}, or some other legal writ; or where that writ is delivered to the comtiable, or other inferior officer, to carry an \textit{habeas corpus} to the common gaol; or where any person is sent by order of any judge of office, or justice of the peace, to any common workhouse or house of correction; or where the prisoner is removed from one prison or place to another within the same county, in order to a trial or discharge by one course of law; or in case of full term, for infection, or other necessity; upon a pain, that he who makes the seizings, or any other person by him, shall be in any court of records, or other court of record, in any county of this realm, in the name of the King, shall recover damages in proportion to the injury done him.

\textit{firm. Corpus com cas. 1, 21 H. 6. 44. a. 1 hyl. 15. 10 H. 7. 17. 5 Ch. 64. 11 Geo. 2. 52.}

But it was held in \textit{Bollands} cafe, who together with the other jurors appointed to try an indictment for a riot between the King and \textit{Pen and Mast}, were fined at the Old Bailey, because they found a verdict contrary to the former evidence of \textit{direct and circumstantial evidence} in matter of law; and for nonpayment of the fine, divers of them being committed to a prison, who brought \textit{habeas corpus} in C. B. and the imprisonment held illegal, in several conferences with all the judges; that yet no action lay against the commissioners, because they acting as judges and commissioners of oyer and terminer, can no more be punished for an erroneous commitment, than they can be for erroneous judgment; and the highest remedy the party in this case can have is a \textit{writ of habeas corpus. 41 Med. 113. 3 Ed. 322, 328. 2 Vaughan 153. 2 Jon. 13. 1 Sid. 773.}

If a husband confine his wife, she may have a \textit{habeas corpus}; but the judges on the return of it, cannot remove the wife from her husband.

2. \textit{Lec. 128.}

A motion was made by \textit{Craggs} for the Lord \textit{Leigh}, for having in court the body of his wife; and the case was, The parties were married in 1669, and because they were both within age, no settlement was made till 1671; Lord \textit{Leigh} perjuries his wife to levy a fine of some lands of good per annum, whereas the had the inheritance, to him and his heirs; and because he prayed to advise his friends, he continued her until her mother had petitioned the King and council, and there the matter was referred to three lords of the council; and they made an award, which the Lady \textit{Leigh} was ready to perform; but the Lord \textit{Leigh} took upon him an affirmation to be sealed, upon which the made the same report as before, that she might advise with her friends, but he refused to permit it, and presently compelled his wife to go with him to his house in the country, where he made her his prisoner; and ther by the barbarous usage of his husband he fell sick, yet he would not let her physician or servants to attend her, or to be visited by her friends; and per. cur. a \textit{habeas corpus} was granted, for this is a writ of right, which the subject may demand, and the King ought to have an account of his subject; and ther it was objected, that here was no affidavit but of such common for the King had made it. The lady, or to her mother, yet the \textit{habeas} shall go to put the Lady in a condition to make oath of this matter herself, and to exhibit articles against her husband; for here is sufficient matter to compel him to find sureties of the peace, and of his good.
If a person be in custody, and also indicted for some offence in the inferior court, there must, besides the break corpus to remove the body, be a certiorari to remove the record; for as the certiorari alone removes not the body, so the break corpus alone removes not the record itself, but only the prisoner with the cause of his commitment; and therefore, although upon the break corpus, and the return thereof, the court can judge of the sufficiency or insufficiency of the record, committed upon the bodies, or of discharging, or remand the prisoner, as the case appears upon the return, yet they cannot upon the bare return of the break corpus give any judgment, without the record itself being removed by certiorari; but the same fames in the same force it did, though the return should be adjudged insufficient, and the party cited discharged thereon of his imposition; and the court below may institute new process upon the indictment. 2 Hal. Htji. 210, 211. 1 Saik. 352. Comb. 2.

But it is otherwise in a break corpus in civil causes, which supplies the power of the inferior court; so that if they proceed after, their proceedings are causa non judicii. 1 Saik. 352.

If a person be excommunicated, and the signinavit does not express that the cause of excommunication is for any of the offences within the statute 5 Eliz. the remedy expressly upon that statute is a break corpus; and upon the return of it the parties shall be discharged; 1 Term. 24. Dominus Lex v. Salter. & sid. 1 Sid. 181. 1 Rob. 683.

If the Chief Justice of the King's Bench commit one to the jail for his warrant, he ought not to be brought to the bar by rule, but by break corpus. 1 Salk. 349. Per Holt Ch. J. G. Phear. The gaoler, in the absence of the officer, took the body of the lord, he being judge of horfe, dealing, and in gaol at St. Alban's, was brought by break corpus and certiorari to B. R. and the court demanded of him what he could say why execution should not be done upon the indictment; and because he could not give good cause to stay execution, he was committed to the jail, who was commanded to do execution, and the next day he was hanged. G. Car. Cor. 760.

It hath been already observed, that the writ of break corpus is a prerogative writ, and that therefore by the common law it lies to any part of the king's dominions; for the King ought to have an account why any of his subjects are imprisoned, and therefore no action will lie at common law, but to return the cause with break corpus, &c. 2 Rol. Abr. 69. Cro. Jec. 543.

Hence it was held, that this writ lay to Calicie at the time it was subject to the King of England. Palm. 54.

It hath been said, that this writ lies to the marches of Wales, as it does to all other courts which derive their authority from the King, as all the courts exercising jurisdiction within his dominions do, and that it being a prerogative writ, it does not come within the rule Breach Domino Regis non currunt, &c. for that must be understood of writs between party and party. 2 Cro. Jac. 69.

And it hath been adjudged, that this writ lies to the five parts and to Berwick, a though objected to have been part of Scotland. Palm. 54. 96. Cro. Jac. 543.

8. C. 2 Rol. Abr. 69. and till writ has to a county pa- tante. 6 Rob. 2. & Car. 2. p. 686.

Also by the break corpus, &c. 31 Car. 2. c. 26. — for. 11. It is said to declare, "That in such corpus, according to the intent and true meaning of the act, may be directed and run into any county palatine, the five parts, or other privileged places within the kingdom, to bring bodies from the jails of Holm, or any of the jails of Tewkes, and the jails of Jersey or Guernsey; any law, &c.

3. Of the manner of suing it out, to whom it be directed, by whom it be returned; manner of compelling a return, and remedy for a false return.

By the 1 & 2 Ph. & M. cap. 13. No writ of break corpus or certiorari shall be granted to remove any prisoner out of the county, or to remove any recognizance, except the same writ be signed with the proper hand of the Chief Justice, or in his absence, one of the judges of the court, out of which the same writ shall be awarded or made; upon pain that he writeth any such writs, not being signed, as aforesaid, to forfeit for every such writ 5 l. A break corpus was prazed to the gaoler of the county gaol at Berwick, to remove one for in B. R. to allign errors in perfon, upon his record of his convic- tion of a premonitory for recidency; but this was not granted till the writ of error was brought into court under seal, and the record certified. Mch. 26 Car. 2. P. 96's case.

Every break corpus adjudicandam nulli in term-time be prazed; and if a writ were granted; but the writ van- ish corpus ad faciendum & recipiendum is usually granted without motion, as it relates to a civil affair only. 2 Med. 506.

Surety debt was brought against husband and wife on an obligation sealed by them both, and both being taken upon the recognisance for his body; it was moved for new break corpus to bring them into court, to the intent that the husband only might be committed into custody, and the wife discharged; and it was held by the court, that this break corpus for removing the bodies might have been for them without motion, but where the party is committed for a crime, there it ought to be on motion. 1 Lew. 1. Slater and Slater.

Wherever a person is imprisoned by any person whatsoever, whether he be one concerned in the administration of justice, as a sheriff, gaoler, &c. or a private person, such as a doctor of physicks, who confines a person under pretence of curing him of madness, &c. the break corpus must be directed to him. Gath. 41.

A break corpus was directed to the Chancellor of Durham, by which he was directed to make a precept to the sheriff to have the body of J. S. with the cause of his commitment, Carum Domino Regis apud Wigan; the Chancellor returned, that he make a precept to the sheriff to have the body before him, with the cause of, who accordingly returned the cause and the body before him, and set out the cause, & habeas corpus directions; & per Hale Ch. J. a break corpus ad faciendum & recipiendum directed in this manner is good; for a break corpus ad faciendum, for the King may fix his writ to whom he pleases, and he must have an answer of his prisoner where-ever he be; there is a great deal of difference between a break corpus ad faciendum and other break corpus; for this is the subject's writ of right, in which case the county palatine has no privileges, in 32 Ed. 1. a break corpus ad faciendum was directed to the Chancellor, to commit him to the county gaol; but the person whose body was to be taken did not return the body to us, for here is no corpus pata-
H A B

H A B

for it is not enough to say, that the filfiff returned the body to him, but he ought to return it to us here: we have nothing before us, therefore he must be removed, for he is brought up without a warrant. Hill. 25 & 26 Car. 2, in B. R. 3 Bac. Ab. 9. 3. Bac. Ab. 279. 8. A habeas corpus directed in the disjunctive to the sheriff or gaoler is wrong; but when a man is taken on a warrant of the sheriff, in pursuance of a writ to the sheriff, the habeas corpus ought to be directed to the sheriff, for the party is in his custody, and the writ itself must be returned, otherwise it is where one is committed to jail, immediately, as in cases criminal. 1 Stat. 350, per curiam.

This writ must be returned by the very same person to whom it is directed. A habeas corpus was awarded to the sheriff of ——who before the return leaves the office, and a new writ must return the truth of the whole matter, under seal of an almoner; but if he be committed to jail, one that is not an officer, there must be a warrant in writing, and where there is one, it must be returned; for otherwise it would be in the power of the gaoler to alter the cause of the prisoner, and make it either better or worse than it is upon the warrant; and if he may take upon him to return what he will, he makes himself judge, whereas the court ought to judge, and that upon the warrant itself. 1 Stat. 349.

If a person in custody on an execution has a writ of habeas corpus brought by him, the writ of execution must accordingly itself must be returned, as well as the sheriff's warrant for taking him into custody, the order for the return, and the body of the prisoner, there must be a writ of habeas corpus, as against the sheriff, as the writ is right; and though the writ be wrong, yet if the writ is right, the party is rightfully in custody of the sheriff. 1 Stat. 350.

Upon a habeas corpus directed to the constable of Windsor Castle to remove from custody of one Mr. Taylor, a barrister, at the day of the return of the writ, a return brought in the prisoner into court, and the writ, and the warrant by which he was committed; but the court fled I do not know where, for it ought to be entered in Latin, and higrofied in due form. 1 Paych. 18 Car. 2. Taylor's case. 3 Bac. Ab. 157.

It is laid in general, that upon the return of the habeas corpus the cause of the imprisonment ought to appear as specifically and certainly to the judges, before which it is returned, as it did to the court or person authorised to commit. 1 Paych. 137.

For if the commitment be against law, as being made by one who has no authority to do the cause, or for a matter for which by law no man ought to be punished, the court are to discharge him, and therefore the certainty of the commitment ought to appear; and the commitment is liable to the same objection where the cause is to be held, for forth, that the court cannot adjudge whether it was a matter of ground and of imprisonment on behalf but for this title Commitment and Criminal in criminal cases, and 1 Hal. Hcals. P. C. 384. Stain. 676. 12 C. 130-1. 49.

Rivard an attorney of C. B. being committed to Newgate by my Lord Mayor and Sir John Robben for refusing to give security for his good behaviour, was brought by habeas corpus to the C. B. and it was returned as the cause of his commitment, that whereas he had been complained of to my Lord Mayor and Sir John Robben for several misdemeanors, particularly for housing his Majesty's subjects to the disobedience of his Majesty's laws, more particularly of an act of parliament made in the 22d year of his reign, against sedition; and whereas he had been examined before them for abetting such as abettad fetious concinitics, contrary to the statute 22 Car. 2, and upon his examination they found cause to fetiphe him, therefore they required fore- ties of him for his bad behaviour, and for refusal committed him. 34. Judging, was of opinion, that by abetting such as frequentcd sedition; concinitics, must be intended abetting them in that particular, and signifies as much as encouraging them to frequent such concinitics, and finding cause to sedition him, &c. (which cannot now be question'd, for the return is admitted) they may may well send him to prison, and therefore I ought to be reminded. But Longham Ch. Jull. Tyrell and Archer, were of a contrary opinion. 1. Because it does not appear as the frequenters of conscience in any way which the law allows, by ascertaining an a paell for them, or the like. 2. To say that he was complained of, or that he was examined, is no proof that he was guilty;
and then to say, that they had cause to felip him is, too cautious; for what can he tell when they may count a case of felony, and how can that ever be tried? at this rate they would have arbitrary power, upon their own allegiance, to commit whom they pleased; whereas they cannot require forcics for any man’s behaviour, and consequently not a writ for refusal, unless the juries have any such act of their own knowledge, or by proof of writs, that tend to a breach of the peace.
Upon this return, Archer declared his opinion to be, That he should not be reminded, but give his own recognition to appear in court the next term, to answer any thing that shou’d be alleged against him; but Longham and Tyrell were for his absolute discharge; for seeing by the return it did not appear there was any case for his commitment, they thought they had no reason to require a recognition of him. Thereupon Hill moved, that he could not be discharged, the cause being two for it. But Archer replied, that it had been several times held, that where there were three opinions, that was taken to be proof of the matter contained, and accordingl’y Radnor was discharged. Longham and Tyrell made another objection to the return, viz. that they should have expressed the sum in which they required him to give security, (which they had not done:) for they said that their petition, that might be willing to be bound for him in 40L. 5. It must not be willing to be bound for him in 100L. 6. But as to this it was said, that yard had refused absolutely to give any security, and therefore it was no purpose to tell him of the sum; if he had contented to give security, then the juries ought to have told him the sum. Trin. 22 Car. 2. 1. B. R.
Brodys’s cafe. 3 Bus. Abr. 12.

5. Of staling any thing contrary to the return; of amending any defect in the return; and of bailing, discharging, or remanding the prisoner.

It seems to be agreed, that no one can in any case contrast the truth of the return to a habeas corpus, or plead oroggst any matter repugnant to it; yet it hath been held, that a man may confest and avoid such a return by admitting the truth of the matters contained in it, and fuggsting others not repugnant, which take of the effecr Cl. Lit. 821. 3 C. R. 71. b. 2 Hen. P. C. 113.

Upon a habeas corpus it was returned, that Swallow, a ccetizen of Lounds, was fined for slander, and was committed for his fine by the judgment of the court in Lounds. Swallow alleged, that he was an officer of the mint, and by an ancient charter of privilege granted to the minter or moneyst, he ought to be exempted. It was at first doubted whether he might not plead this to the return, it being a matter consistent with it. Upon the suite I. P. 2. it is held the parties may come in and plead, and to upon 5 Ebra. But here there is a difference; for he might have pleaded this in the court below, but now that is past, and here is a judgment and execution.
Another day Swallow brought into court a writ of privilege upon that charter, and the recorder prayed that it might not be allowed against the ancient customs of the city; for if such a way might exempt men, they should have little benefit by it, for such cases. But the court privilege ought to be allowed, for it is very ancient, and it appears he has an office of necessary attendance elsewhere, which makes the privilege reasonable; the king may by his charter exempt from juries, if there be enough besides,
much more here; and if there be not sufficient besides,
upon what ground he pleads the privilege, it might be supponded; and Swallow may be discharged by this court now and as well he could at first, or as if he had taken upon him the aldermanship. This court is supreme and ma-datory in such cases. And he was accordingly discharged, and remanded in B. R. Swallow’s case. 1 Scot. 275;
2 Ed. 55. 56. 57.

Ato the court will sometimes examine by affidavit the circumstances of a fact, on which a prisoner brought before them by a habeas corpus hath been indicted, in order to inform themselves, on an examination of the whole facts, whether it appear that the prisoner himself, or not: And accordingly here, where one Jackson, who had been indicted for piracy before the justices of Admirals: on a malicious prosecution, brought his habeas corpus in the fast court, in order to be discharged or bailed, the court examined the whole circumstances of the fact by affidavits upon which they determined that the prisoner, himself, if any one, was guilty, and carried on the procession to fix on himself: And thereupon the court, in consideration of the unreasonable of the prosecution,
and the uncertainty of the time when another felions of Admiralty might be held, admitted the said Jackson to bail, and committed the prosecutor till he should find bail to answer the facts contained in the affidavits.
5 Med. 323. 454. 2 Jan. 222. Trin. 4 Geo. 1.

It seems, that before the return filed, any defect in form, or the want of an averment of a matter of fact may be amended; but this must be at the peril of the officer, in the same manner as if the return were oriiginally what it is after the amendment. 1 Med. 103, 103.

But after the return filed it becomes a record of the court, and cannot be amended. 1 Med. 102, 103.

So after a rule to have the return filed, as where a habeas corpus, alias & per curiam was directed to Sir Robert, mayor of London, to have the body of Briggs, daughter and heir of Sir Thomas Hiji, deceased; and upon the poucr he returned good temper receptionis bojes brevis nec a quos passa sunt jus infra ecfuiva mentum; and the conseil of the lord mayor examined the return that the poucr was carried away for the bord matter for detection in custos! pur for bceft grefor: Gd pe per er this is an insufficient return; for he ought to lay not only temper receptionis bojes brevis, sed; debusis, upon return of a poucr. Then a question was, if the return could be amended; for though a rule was made out, the return should be filed, yet this was not actually done;
but per cur., this is filed by the rule of the court, and after cannot be amended; and this return the court held to be equivocal; for it is well enough known that the officer is not detained in ferris; but though the hath the liberty of the house, if he cannot go out of the house, or be accompanied by the keeper, then the habeas cur-tody; and the court shall adjudge what force of outisdy is intended by the writ. Hill's 26 & 27 Cur. 2. in B. R.
Emerson v. Sir Robert Turner. 2 Sco. 128. 3 C. R. 4434.

Upon the return of the habeas corpus the prisoner is regularly to be discharged, bailed or remanded; but if it be doubtful which the court ought to do, it is said that the prisoner may be bailed to appear de die in diem till the matter is determined. 5 Med. 22. Spa. 16.

By the petition of right, or 17 Car. 1. cap. 10. the court must within three days after the return of the habex corpus either discharge, bail or remand the prisoner.
But it seems that a commitment by the court of King’s bench to the Marshalsea is a remaining, being an imprisonment within the statute. 5 Med. 22. 3 Bus. Abr.
14.

Also it hath been ruled, that the court of King’s bench may, after the return of the habeas corpus is filed, remand matters, whether it hath reason to bale him or not.
Then he came, and order him to be brought up to time to time, till they shall have determined whether it is proper to bail, discharge, or remand him absolutely. 1 Vent.
330.

And also in doubtful cases the court is to ball or discharge the party on the return of the habeas corpus; yet if a person be convicted, and the conviction on the return of the habeas corpus appears only defective in point of

form,
form, it is at the election of the court either to discharge the party, or oblige him to bring his writ of error. 1 Salk. 348. 5 M'd. 19, 20.

If on the return of the habeeus corpus it appears that the whole or part of the rights granted by the writ of error, the court shall not determine that point, yet will it let the defendant at liberty, so as to let him choose where he will go into a court of error; and being there, he will order him into such hands as will take effectual care of him. 3 Salk. 526. 2 Lev. 128. Stra. 982.

6. Of the habeeus corpus ad faciendum & recipiendum.

The habeeus corpus ad faciendum & recipiendum is used only in civil causes, and lies for removing fuces out of an inferior to some superior court, at the application of the defendant, who may imagine himself injured by the proceedings of such inferior court. 1 M'd. 235. 2 M'd. 158.

This writ fuges the powers of the court below; so that if they proceed after, the proceedings are void, and cannot be enforced. 1 Salk. 352.

By this writ, the proceedings in the inferior court are at an end, for the person of the defendant being removed to the superior court, they have lost their jurisdiction. Therefore, the proceedings in the inferior court, are de novo, and bald de novo must be put in in the superior court. Sinn. 244.

And allothis writ be of a right, yet where it is to be a rightful suit, the court may refuse it, as where an action of debt was brought against a female heir, and after appearance and plea, pleaded, and married, and then removed the cause by habeeus corpus to B. R. where she pleaded her coverture in abatement; and the court held, that if this matter had been moved on the return of the habeeus corpus, they would have granted a procedendo; but that now the plea in abatement was given, and to her being an heir, the court doth not notice the proceedings below, or of what preceded the habeeus corpus. 1 Salk. 8. Hetherington v. Reynold.

After an interlocutory, and before final judgment in an inferior court, a habeeus corpus cum cauca was brought; before the return of the writ, the defendant died, and a procedendo was awarded, because by the 8 & 9 W. 3. cap. 11. the plaintiff may have a fea facias against the executor, and proceed to judgment, which he cannot have in another court; and by this means he would be deprived of the effect of his judgment, which would be unanswerable. 1 Salk. 352.

If an action be brought in London for calling a woman a whore, this cannot be removed by the habeeus corpus, because the words are not actionable elsewhere; and if allowed to be removed, the custom would be destroyed. 2 Rol. Abr. 69, and fees Erath. 75. See 14 Vin. Abr. tit. Habeas Corpus.

Habendum, is a word of form in a deed or conveyance. Every conveyance must have two principal parts, viz. the premies and the habendum. The office of the premies is, to exprese the names of grantor, grantee, and the thing granted. The office of the habendum, is to limit the estate, so that the general implication of the estate, which, by the word grant, is implied in the premies, is by the habendum controlled and qualified. As in a lease to two persons, habendum to the one for life, the remainder to the other for life, this altereth the general implication of the joint-tenancy in the freehold, which should pass by the premies, if the habendum were not. 3 Co. vol. 2. fol. 53.

Buckleys case. Curiel. 390. 1682.

The office of the habendum is to limit the certainty and extent of the estate to the feoffor or grantee, for the habendum need not repeat the thing granted; it is sufficient if it be named in the premies, because it is the premies that makes the gift, and the word habendum does of its own nature imply a thing limited or designated. 2 Rol. Abr. 69. 2 Co. 55. n. 9 Co. 47.

Of the habendum there are these things observable: 1. That the habendum can't pass any thing that is not expressly mentioned or contained by implication in the pre-millies of the deed; because the premies being part of the deed by which the thing is granted, and consequently that makes the gift; it follows that the habendum only limits the certainty and extent of the estate in the thing given, can't increase or multiply the gift, because it were absurd to say, that the grantor should hold a thing which was never given him. 2 Rol. Abr. 65.

Hence it is, that if a man grant a habendum together with another manor, or with the advowson of another manor, only the manor granted in the premies will pass. 2 Rol. Abr. 65.

But if a private person grants a manor, habendum una cum advocatione, which belongs to the manor, this is a good conveyance in the advocation, because it was impliedly given by the gift of the manor itself. 2 Rol. Abr. 65.

2. How far the habendum may alter or abridge the gift in the premies; and here it is regularly true, that the habendum, that is repugnant and contrary to the premies, is void, and shall be rejected; because the rule in the interpretation of all deeds is, that all grants shall be taken most strongly against the grantor; and therefore he shall not be allowed, by any subsequent part of the deed, to contradict or retract that gift which he made in the premies; as if a man gives lands to J. S. and his heirs, for life, this is a void habendum, because repugnant to the premies. 2 Co. 23 Bache's cafe.

But for the better explication of this rule, it will be necessary further to consider it under these exceptions;

1. That if no express estate be given in the premies, but only a grant generally to J. S. for J., this creates an estate for life in J. S. by the habendum, and therefore gives J. S. an estate in the prenies for his own life; for which reason it is implied in the premies, that if the habendum had by the habendum limited the rent to J. S. for years, or at will, there would be nothing good; for the law creates an estate for life in J. S. only because there was no express estate given by the grantor; but when upon the face of the deed it evidently appears, that the rent was given but for a determinate number of years, or only at the will of the grantor, the law will never create an estate against the express provision of the parties, or permit J. S. to enjoy the rents beyond the period of time positively limited in the deed. Hoo. Lit. 170. 2 Co. 24 a. 55. 2 Rol. Abr. 65, 66. Str. Eli. 254. 15 Co. 15.

2. If to the perfection of an estate limited in the premies there be a ceremony necessary, which is not requisite to pass the estate in the habendum, then if the ceremony be not performed, to carry the estate in the premies, the habendum shall fail; tho' it be repugnant to the premies; as if a man covenant, grants, demises, and to farm lesse land to J. and B. and the heirs of B. habendum to J. and B. for three hundred years, this is a term of years in J. and B. tho' there be words of inheritance, for it was plainly the intention of the cessor to create a tail in the feoffee for life, and after the life of the feoffor, J. and B., and their heirs demise; besides, it is evident that the legacies by the premies could have but an estate at will, because the words of inheritance in the premies were not sufficient to:

A a a

747
But if the grant in the premises be of a rent to a man and his heirs, habendum, for the life of the grantor, this is a void habendum, because it totally defeats the operation of the word heirs in the premises, and consequently is repugnant, and not explicable, and therefore void. 2 Co. 25, 26.

If a man make a bequest in fee in 20 acres to A. and the other moiety to A., and the other moiety to B. this is good, and the habendum makes them tenants in common; for though the premises be joint, and therefore of themselves would operate to give a joint estate and possession, yet the habendum explaining the manner of placing is not inconsistent or repugnant, because it makes no division of that undivided possession which was given in the premises. Co. Lit. 192. b. 183. a.

But if the habendum had limited 10 acres to A. and the other 10 acres to B., this would have voided, because the habendum, in this case, contradicts, and is repugnant to the premises; for by the premises, the entire and undivided possession of the whole twenty acres is equally given to both; and therefore the habendum that excludes A. out of his share of ten acres, and B. out of his share of ten acres, is contradictory to the premises, and therefore void.

Habendum to lie for two, habendum to one for life, remainder to the other, this is a good habendum, because it explains the right of the gift in the premises, and shows that they hold the whole in fee demised, one after another. Co. Lit. 193. 194. 24 Keb. 105.

The gift of land to two, habendum to one for life, remainder to the other, this is a good habendum, because it explains the right of the gift in the premises, and shews that they hold the whole in fee demised, one after another. Co. Lit. 193. 194. 24 Keb. 105.

But a demise to A. habendum to B. and C. pro terminis vitæ of alterius personæ vitæ is void, because a void habendum, because it explains the title of the gift in the premises, and shows that they hold the whole in fee demised, one after another. Co. Lit. 193. 194. 24 Keb. 105.

A demise to A. habendum to B. and C. pro terminis vitæ of alterius personæ vitæ is void, because a void habendum, because it explains the title of the gift in the premises, and shows that they hold the whole in fee demised, one after another. Co. Lit. 193. 194. 24 Keb. 105.

A demise to A. habendum to B. and C. pro terminis vitæ of alterius personæ vitæ is void, because a void habendum, because it explains the title of the gift in the premises, and shows that they hold the whole in fee demised, one after another. Co. Lit. 193. 194. 24 Keb. 105.
BATTLE, is the plant of the French lilies, signifying a part or haven of the sea, where they flow into other countries, and where they do arrive when they return from their voyage;

This word is used 27 Port. 6, c. 3:

Cowell, edit. 1727. See Daffy.

Daffy, abundance, plenty. — Reciprocis de cofae & turis, et se mune propter habundam cofa maximam.

Bachell, A hatch, a gate or door.

Cowell, edit. 1727.

Bachell, A hatch or cutting instrument of iron.

Cowell, edit. 1727.

Bachell, A hatch or cutting instrument of iron.

Cowell, edit. 1727.
HAL

prolet iherum ad plazium abattores, &c. Haven or Port Church, 4 Ed. 4, fol. 147.

Haga, (Sax. haga, mansis;) A house in a city or borough. In Domflevy, tin. Sylfex, Terra Regis, num. 11.
Radulfus tenet uam hagem de vic. dux. Willeriam quinquo hage de quinque sol. &c. An ancient anonymous author expounds haga to be domus or house. Cum (pro on a past) persona longa hagem apellatis fil-242. Cate in Litt. fol. 56. b. See Palu. It also signifies an hedge. In an old book, aometne belonging to the abbey of St. Austin in Cambrai, we find that King Stephen fent this writ to the chief and justices of Kent, that they should not take any parcel of the Saxons, Rex Agilmarum, &c. &c. &c. &c. &c. &c. juridicitii de Kent, faltem. Principis quod se sciatis ha-tere ecclesiam etiendum Augustini & monastri hagem faunam, quam Gesta est divit, &c. Cowell, edit. 1777.

Haga. A hedge. Sax. haga, mergd into haga, with-—Quid tandem dilius placent— inclusivis fissa-
p. 2. 247.

Hagquit. See Pague and Pagueut.
Paga, and Paffpa. A hedge, and sometimes taken for a park or enclosure, valetatum fuit, &c. fissata haga & falatum. Brit. lib. 2. c. 40. num. 3. Hence hoijenement for a hedge-fence. Rit. reg. 33 Ed. 3, in Sac. de Poitou.

Hagan. This word is the irregular compound of the French
f. sapra, and the Sax. kete, companis, and used for a permission to take thorns or filth to make or repair hedges; or rather a mullet for breaking hedges. See Peygugue.

Hgufia. Hagiat, Reque of 2 Ed. 6, against shooting with hali dorn, 6 & 7 Will. 3. c. 13.

Haggenlen. See Vamora.

Hagbennum. See Herbenamum.
Payer-powder. See Powder and thot.

Hake. A sort of fish dried and salted, called commonly Pove John, in the Western parts of England, hawket, from Sax. hagrot. The proof of this is, the Sax. &e. & e. &g. &e.
Et in tribus capita unlabthe piseus cum una viridly hag, cum separa consig, & cum una espa de hale.
Antiquit. Parochial. p. 575. See Spealmans Gafiyry in Haketen.

Haleton, A military coat: balatus fuit Esopotes quadrum armaturn, quam aditum vulgariter appellatur.
Walt. in Ed. 3.

Halfe-blood. See Administration. Defect.

Halfe-bauche. See Pague.

Hallemark. (Dimidia merk,) Is a noble. F. N. B.
fol. 5, where he faith, That in cese a writ of right be brought, and the fein of a demonstration alleged, the plaintiff is kept travelable by the defendant; but he may tender or proffer the half mark for the inquiry of this fein; which is in plain terms, that the defendant shall not be admitted to deny, that the defendant or his ancestor, was feigned of the land in question, and to prove his denial; and that he shall be admitted to render half a mark in money, to have an inquiry made, whether the defendant, &c. were so feigned or not. And in this figurative we find the same words in the Old English Nat.
Brev. fol. 26. Know, that in a writ of right or an advowment brought by the King, the defendant shall not proffer the half-mark, &c. whereof Richard, abep. p. 1560, giveth this reason, because in the King's cause, the de-defendant shall be permitted to traverse the fein, by licence obtained of the King's serjeants; to which effect see F. N. B. fol. 31.

Halffpay officers, What persons are intitled to receive half-pay, 4 Ge. 1. c. 3. sect. 18. Rules for applying half-pay, 32 Ge. 2. c. 18. fent. 19. 25. See Halle.

Halftoll, Is used in the Chancrey for the selling of commissions to delegates, appointed upon any appeal, either in ecclesiastical or marine causes. 8 Ed. 5.

Halftongue. See Medicus Linguari.

Halifiat, Provisions for buying and selling of wool
the last of 23 P.; fol. 12. 3.

Haligian. See Halmace.

Halme. See Palmace, and Palmature.

HAL

Halte, An hole; from the Sax. hale, anghus. Cowell,
ed. 1727.

Haltonwelf, i.e. Hollynowdife, or people who held lands for the service of repairing or defending a church or paleloure, for which pious labours they were excused from secular and military services. Hugo episcopus Danemelii hominum de episcopato pro administra
se in guerram Sottie, &c cum rediit sent ent ab eo as non licentiam, scit en apud Darn elnum inuncar. Quad if e graviora fuerant, secreent se partem contra episcopos, dicente se efti haliwoloff, &c et suas tas tenere ad defensionem caupris S. Catharieti, ut deere se extere episcopat, 'federet ultra Timan &

Hall, (Halia, Saxon bexol) Ar cindered denoted a chief mansion-house or habitation; which word we retain in many counties of England to this day, especially in the county of Palatinate of Chietor, where every gentleman of quality's seat is termed a Hall. In the book of Chast. Terra Hugonis de Munsterto. In Neotour hailu dict, Hugo tenet wax terram quam Adan Reset init cl. R. E. (Rege Edvards) sine halla, i.e. sine domo. Cowell,
ed. 1777.

Hallage, Is a fee due for elects brought for sale to Blackwell-Hall in London, Ge. vol. 6, f. 57. b. Also the permitted to be sold at a fair or market, for such communi-daries as are vended in the common hall of the place.

Hallamste, The day of All-hallows, or All-saints,
Nov. 1. of the crofts quarters of the year was commonly so computed in ancient writings from Halmas to Hollimste.

Hallinort, Is a part of Yorkshire, in which the town of Steffield stands, 21 fac. cap. 23. Cowell, edit.
1777.

Halmerd, The Dans when they invaded this nation, had havocks with two edges; the Saxons had a like weapon so called from the Germ. halt, palutum, and bord, bi-poicz, which being adorned with gold and jewels, was worn by noblemen, and from them the English had that weapon, which is still used in Princes courts. Cowell,
ed. 1727.

Hallmec, See Badmec.

Halmec, or Halme, (from the Sax. heale, i.e. ana, and gems, i.e. cowemus) Is that we now call a court-baron; and the esmycele is the meeting of the tenants of one hall or manor. Omen casia terminatur vel hondredwo vel comitat vel balmece fsecum baktemium, vel Dominianum civis. L.L. Hen. 1. cap. 10. The name is still retained at Lugton, and other places in Hertfordshire.
It is taken sometimes for a convention of citizens in that place, which is also called half ornament, or balmece.
As in London every company hath a hall, wherein they keep their courts, 4 lysi. f. 249. This halfmece and hallmecere are often confounded, though originally they were two distinct courts. But the word halmece rather signifies the lord's court, or a court-baron held in the manor, in which the differences between the tenants were determined from: the Sax. hall, aulum, and gems, conventus. Leg. H. cap. 1. quo. In W. Thor, anos 1770. Ipsis Transtramini afferimatis se ad capitetum carum beat. Augustini Conturor, pleseçindus caufa, vel judicium jujidim, velo modo detere accedere, fed in halmece iu-uo in Thoma omnia sua Iudicia tacciweri.
Cowell, ed. 1727.

Hallsbergia. A coat of mail: from the Sax. hal, i.e. ellum, and vlongin, currens. It was properly a defence for the neck. Cowell, ed. 1777.

Halstang, See Clairefand and Pillawen.

Hallhead in Clee, Maiteners of its spinners how pute into it. Pillonwefol.

Hallwefol, Properly an holy or ecclesiastical court;
howbeit there is a court held in London by this name, before the Lord Mayor and sheriffs, for regulating the bakers, and was anciently held on Sunday next before St. Thomas's day, and therefore called the Holywefol, or hole court: for it is there run thus: Caw to mace was in coalelable caylde London, cearw majors &
veeces, &c. Cowell, edit. 1727.
Hand in and hand out, is the name of an unlawful game, prohibited by 17 Ed. 4. c. 2.

Hand in it. Four justices by the standard. Stat. 33 H. 8. 5. &c.

Hand-gritch. Peace or protection given by the King with his own hand. See among the compass of Alured and Gudrun, sect. 1. Et hoc est primum dictum eccles, pariter parietae juris, ut Regis hand-gritch jener insano

Hampshire. A county, a manorial pledge, that is, an inferior undertaking; for head baron is a superior or chief instrument. Sylm.

Hand in and hand out. Is the name of an unlawful game, prohibited by 17 Ed. 4. c. 2.

Handfast. Is four inches by the standard. Stat. 33 H. 8. 5. &c.

Handfast, (Ambrosius Dei gracia Dunelmensis) etiam quattuor deinum in hac capite, anno regni non, &c. It signifies also a franchise or privilege so called, granted to the lords of manors, whereby they hold peace, and take cognizance of the breach of that immunity. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Handfast. A surety, a manorial pledge, that is, an inferior undertaking; for head baron is a superior or chief instrument. Sylm.

Hand in and hand out. Is the name of an unlawful game, prohibited by 17 Ed. 4. c. 2.

Handfast, (Ambrosius Dei gracia Dunelmensis) etiam quattuor deinum in hac capite, anno regni non, &c. It signifies also a franchise or privilege so called, granted to the lords of manors, whereby they hold peace, and take cognizance of the breach of that immunity. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Handfast. A surety, a manorial pledge, that is, an inferior undertaking; for head baron is a superior or chief instrument. Sylm.

Handfast. Is four inches by the standard. Stat. 33 H. 8. 5. &c.

Handfast, (Ambrosius Dei gracia Dunelmensis) etiam quattuor deinum in hac capite, anno regni non, &c. It signifies also a franchise or privilege so called, granted to the lords of manors, whereby they hold peace, and take cognizance of the breach of that immunity. Cowell, ed. 1727.
HAW

HAW

Vatches or Vatches, (mentioned in the Stat. 27 H. 8. 23. by the name of hatches and tis) are certain dams or mounds made of rubbish, clay or earth, to prevent the water from the stream-work and tin-walkers from running into the fresh rivers. And the tenants of Babbletree, and other farmers there, are bound to do yearly certain days works ad la hatches.

Survey of Cornwall.

Vatches and Capps. Shall be fulled by hand, and not in a mill, 2 Ed. 4. c. 5.

Hatters, &c. are to be looked upon as merchandizes, that ought to be ushered in open market. The appellation feemeth to arise from their uncertainty, like those that with hawks seek their game where they can find it; you may read the word 25 Hen. 8. c. 6, and 33 Hen. 8. c. 4. We now call those hatters that go up and down the streets crying news books, and selling by retail; and those that sell by wholesale from the press are called Mercies.

Cowell, ed. 1727.

Hawkers of unblanpt news-papers to be sent to the house of correction, 16 Geo. 2. c. 16. sect. 8.

There shall be paid to his Majesty by every hawker, pedlar, petty chapman or other trading person, going from town to town, or to other markets houses, and travelling either on foot, or with horses or other vehicles, carrying to sell any goods, a duty of 4 l. for each year; and every person so travelling with a horse or other beast bearing or driving burden shall pay 41. a year for each horse or other beast, and above the other 4 l.

Sect. 2. Every pedlar, &c. so travelling, upon receiving his licence shall pay unto such persons as the Lords Commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury shall appoint to be commissioners for licensing hawkers, pedlars and petty chapmen, not exceeding three, or any person deputed by them, one moiety of the duty, and give security by bond, with one surety to be taken in his Majesty's name, for the payment of the other moiety at the end of six calendar months, unless the party shall choose to pay down the other moiety; in which case he shall be allowed 21. in the poorer for prompt payment.

Sect. 3. If any such hawker, &c. be found travelling without licence, such person shall forfeit 21. one moiety to the informer, and the other moiety to the poor of the parish; and if any person so travelling, upon demand made by any justice of peace, mayor, constable or other officers of the peace, or any town corporation or borough where he shall so travel, shall refuse to produce his licence, he shall forfeit 51. to the churchwardens of the parish to the use of the poor, and for nonpayment shall suffer as a vagrant, and be committed to the house of correction.

Sect. 4. The commissioners, or any two of them, are required upon the terms aforesaid to grant a licence to every hawker, &c. for which licence they shall be paid only 11. unless such hawker, &c. shall travel with horse or other beast, and in that case there shall be paid 21. over and above the duties; and the commissioners shall keep a distinct account of the duties, and pay the money into his Majesty's Exchequer, upon Wednesdays in every week (unless a holy day) and then on the day after, and upon neglect of the same shall incur the penalties as other the officers of the Exchequer.

Sect. 5. If any person shall forge any licence, or travel with such forged licence, such person shall forfeit 51. one moiety to the King, and the other moiety to him that shall sue for the same, to be recovered in any of his Majesty's courts at Westminster, and shall be subject to such other penalties as for forgery.

Sect. 6. Any person fined for putting in execution this act, may plead the general issue Not guilty; and if the plaintiff be nonsuit, &c. such defendant shall have treble costs.

Sect. 7. If any constable or other officer shall neglect to be allying in the execution of this act, being required, and being thereof convicted by the oath of one witness before any justice of peace, he shall forfeit 41. to be levied by the licence for the sale of goods, by warrant of such justice; the one moiety to the poor of the parish, and the other moiety to the informer.
HAV.

HAY.

The game with Flute.

Haymarket. A compound of two French words, viz. haye, i.e. fette, and gard, i.e. caufin, and signifies one that keeps the common herd of the town; and the reafon may be, because one part of his office is to look that they neither break nor crop the hedges of enclosed grounds: He is an officer sworn in the lord's court, and of the form of oath you may fee in Heaton, f. 46.

Haymakers, Are fuch as play at hazard, a game at dice called; hazard or common hazard ad falia tolas, adjudicatur quod per fex dies in diuiso hic petitar foopar fuper coliujarium. Inter Plac. Trin. 2 Hen. 4. Suffer, 10.

Headborough, Head-borrow, Head-borough, is derived from the Saxon bend, i.e. toft, or caput, toft, caput. He ferves him that is in feet for the frank-pledge, and him that had the principal government of them within his own pledge. And as he was called headborough, fo was he alfo called buco-bad, buco-bad, third-borough, third-borough, chief pledge, or buco-badder, ac- cording to the diversity of each in several places. Of this the Lambard in his Explanation of Saxon words, in his Century, and in his Treatise of Confables, and Smith de Regis, lib. 2. cap. 22. the officer is now called a confable. The headborough was the chief of the ten pledges, the other nine were called hamborough or pligis manuhas, i.e. inferior pledges. See fifthburgh.

Headland is the upper part of ground left for the turning of the plough, whence the beam-saw. Tho. Anq. 587.

Head-pence, was an excifion of 40 l. or more, herefore collected by the fheriff of Northumberland of the inhabitants of that county twice in seven years, that is, every third and every fourth year, without any account made to the King, which was therefore by the statute of 23 Hen. 6. cap. 7. abolish'd for ever. See common fume.

Head-filker. See Head-pence.

Head-filk or Head-filk, (Colisjtrium) is compound of two Saxon words bela, i.e. bela, and fingo, fingo; or fingo, i.e. bela and fingo. See fifthburgh. But head-filk cannot signify a pillory in the charter of Commons of Forrest, cap. 14. Et pro culpa fententiae regis decem filios quis non? .i. atque. halfeimg. Sometimes 'tis taken for a pecuniary punishment or mulct, to commute for banding in the pillory, and is to be paid either to the King or to the chief lord, the fettolm man and the commissary chief, ruled Regis nor terror. Beuf. Doniz halfeimg. Leg. H. 1. cap. 11. Covell, ed. 1737. Headsmen. See halfeimg.

Hearth-money. See Quarter-money.

Heart. See Game.

Head-merchant, A fisherman below London bridge, who fishes for eels, smelts, &c. commonly at ebbing tides, and therefore is so call'd. Mentioned in Art. for the Thames Jery, printed 1328. See in his Survey of London, p. 152. fays, they are a fort of poachers, or unlawful catchers of fish in the river of Thames.

Hedberth, The privilege of having the goods of a thief, and the trial of him, within fuch a liberty. See in Art. of the Mandate, the Confessor to the abbev of St. Edmund—Hedberth, hidas reddiculam videlicet. Handfroke, &c. &c.

Hedbing-wears, ( Mentioned in 23 Hen. 8. cap. 5.) Are weares or engines made or laid at ebbing water for taking fish. Covell, ed. 1727.

Hedermannus.
Hebdomasibus. The weeks-man, or canon or prebendary in a cathedral church, who had the peculiar care of the quire, and the offices of it for his own week.

Cowell, the Cowell, for For'. I don't know if it is Cowell or Coivell, but I put both. This is a well-known word for a week.

Hebdomasibus, (Gr.) A week. This is a word for a week, and it is used in the Greek language.

Weel, is the name of an engine to take off in the river Ouse near York, anno 23 Hen. 8. cap. 18. and Heagcium, which occurs in our records, may be the rent paid to the lord of the fee, for liberty to use these engines.

Cowell, ed. 1777.

Hebdomasibus, (Gr.) A week. This is a word for a week, and it is used in the Greek language.

Vot., the Vot., of the Vot. This is a word for a week, and it is used in the Greek language.

The Vol., 8. printed by the kerker. This is a word for a week, and it is used in the Greek language.

Thus, accordant port, a wharf or landing-place; as in this charter of Addida, wife of King Henry.

Siunt praefectus & futuri quod ego Addida, Dei gratia Anglom Regina, dedi ecclesiae de Radinga, unumque anno in Natali Domino centum solis de hisa mea ad faciendum annuariarium Domini mei Rhetoricus, & uni & fummo principis in domino centum solis quatuor viginti, & barini & bartini paterini de praedita heda mea London.

Tyll. & C., Cartular, de Radinga, MS. fol. 5. a. Cowell, ed. 1777.

Pedagium, Toll or custom paid at the bithe or wharf, for landing goods, &c., from which custom duties example are granted by the King to the persons and societies: — Sicpe abas & mensis de Radinga et homines comum & eis insuper quiet de heagcium & thelomis & omnibus exaltationibus & conjunctutibus per totam Angiam.

Cattulae, Abbatiæ de Radinga. MS. f. 7-a.

Hedge-locking. See Wood.

Vofita, The Mahometan mer, or computation of time, beginning from the flight of Mahomet from Mecca, which was July 16, an. Chrft. 622.

Benfaire. See Pintarfce.

Gretir, (Heeres) Though the word be borrowed of the Latin, yet it hath not altogether the same significacion with us that it hath with the Civilians; for whereas they call Hreem, qui ex testamento fecundat in universum just tatfattari; the Common law calls him heir, that succeds by right of blood in any man's lands or tenements in fee; whereas the Common law nothing paffeth jure hereditatis, but only fee; moveable, or chattel immovable, are given by testament to whom the testator leftth, or else are at the disposal of the ordinary, to be distributed as he in confidence thinketh meet. Cauffeett in Confejted. Burg. pag. 909, hath a diffchnction of heres, which, in some forts, accordeth well with our law; for he, faith, there is heres fanguisinis & hereditatis. And a man may be heres fanguisinis with us, that is, heir apparent to his hereditary, or his ancestor; and yet may, upon displication, be defeated of his inheritance, or at least the greatest part of it. Every heir having lands by defeat, is bound by the binding act of his ancestors, if he be not: For the inani commendum, fictive debts & cont. Co. on Litt. fol. 7, 8. Cowell, ed. 1777.

An heir, faith Lord Coke, in the legal underfanding of the Common law, is he to whom lands, tenements or hereditaments, by the act of God and right of blood do defend, of some estate of inheritance. Co. Litt. 7, 6. 2 Co. 12, b.

The word heir in the notion of it implies, that the party has all those legal qualifications which our law requires in all persons that represent or stand in the place of another, and is of such importarce, that regularly without the word heir no fee-simple can be created. Co. Litt. 9.

1. Of the feudal kinds of heirs, namely, the heir apparent, the heir general, the special heir, the customary heir, and the heirs falic.

2. Of what conditions and covenants of the ancestor shall the heir take advantage; and by what conditions, covenants and contracts of the ancestor shall the heir be bound.

3. What actions may an heir commence and prosecute in right of his ancestor, and what cases shall be bounded to answer his ancestor's debts and contracts.

4. What shall be effects in the hands of the heir.

5. Of the feudal kinds of heirs, namely, the heir apparent, the heir general, the special heir, the customary heir, and the heirs falic.

6. The heirs apparent. Here we must obserue, that no person can be heir unto the death of his ancestor, according to the rule, Nemo est heres viventis; yet in common par- tance he, who stands nearest in degree of kindred to the ancestor, is called, even in his lifetime, heir apparent.

Co. Lit. 8, a.

Also the law takes notice of an heir apparent so far as to allow his ancestor to bring an action of trespass for taking away his son and his quit rents, quarantine, &c., and if the defendant shall be found to answer his ancestor's debts and contracts.

Co. Lit. 37. 334. 335. 2 Lea. 232.

Burchet v. Durand.

But the son and heir hath no power over the inheritance during the life of the ancestor: Therefore if a son and heir's bargains and sells the inheritance of his father, this is void, because he hath no right to transfer; so if he releases, the law is the same. Kelso. 84. Co. Lit. 265.

But if the son makes a covenant of the inheritance of his father, this passes an estate during the son's life; for it is a subject to the father, and the son, after the father's death, cannot avoid it. For no man can allege an injury in another by a voluntary act of his own. Co. Lit. 265, a.

Neither is there any privity between the heir apparent and his ancestor, as to make a fine levied by the ancestor a bar within the 4. H. 7, and if the heir apparent be feised of lands and the father levies a fine and dies, it shall not bar the heir; because he does not claim or derive any title to the land from his father, and therefore in that respect shall have five years to preserve himself from the fine: For the privies understood and intended by the at, are those who are privy not only in blood, but likewise in estate and title to the land of which the fine was levied, that is, those who most necessarily mention the conuator, and convey themselves by him, before they can make out their title to the estate. 2 Ift. 523- 3 Co. 89, a. Hob. 333.

Heir general. The heir general or heir at law is he who after his father or ancestor's death hath a right to, and is introduced into all his lands, tenements and hereditaments. But he must be of the whole blood, not a bastard, alien, &c. See Descritt and Coparentes.

None but the heir gene., according to the course of the Common law, can be heir to a warrant or file an appeal of the death of his ancestor.

Co. Lit. 80, a. Gae. Fasc. 126, a.

If a condition be annexed to Borough English or Gavel-kind lands, and the condition is broken, the heir at law of the land; for the condition is a thing of new creation, and collateral to the land: But when the eldest
The heir at law is bound by the ancestor's alienations and disposition, as also by his covenants and conditions, as far as he hath assented; but if a man covenants, that after his death his heir at law shall stand seized to the use of his youngest son, this is void. Hob. 313. for Heirs.

The heir at law is bound to make it good.

1. Where there is a covenant for further assurance, binding the heir, because the heir is bound by the covenant.

2. In the return of the flave purchase-money, he may but have the survivor of the flaves, if he hath any, against the decree.

2dly, The plaintiff may bring his bill of revivor, to carry the decree into execution: And this is the safest and lawfulest mode of obtaining one against the ancestor, and his heir does not claim under that title, but by virtue of another title, paramount, there the decree can never be carried into execution against him; as where an estate is decreed against a man, and his heir inverts his father had no title thereto, or was only tenant for life thereof, the decree that is to be executed against him is never to be carried into execution against him; he is at liberty to controvert the jusfrice and validity of that decree; he may make a new defence from what his ancestor did, and vary his case as he shall be advised, and the parties go into a new examination of the matter, and hear the cause de novo, and the court judge whether the decree is good, or not, and may affirm or reverse it at their pleasure.

But where one man obtains a decree against another for a real estate, and the party dies before the plaintiff is put into possession, in that case the heir at law claims the estate by virtue of his ancestor, and the party is not at liberty to make a new defence, or enter into new proof so as to overthrow the former decree, especially where it appears to the court that the decree had been of an ancient standing.

Secondly. The plaintiff in tail enters into former deas, and as the statute De donis prefers the estate to his heir, his ancestor cannot grant or alien, nor make any rightful estate of freehold to another, but for the term of his own life. Lit. foll. 613.

If the issue in tail be attained of scion in the life of his father, and is partitioned, upon the death of the donor, the donor cannot enter, for though the disability to take by defect remains after the pardon, yet the donor cannot enter against his own gift while there is any issue in being; and though the issue cannot by reason of such partition claim as heir to the donor, yet he may claim as a special occupant, for the gift is still a good uti juris perann, who shall take upon the death of the donor; but then the issue must take it, subject to the charges of his father, because he is to take it as the tenant left it, and consequently is to make good all charges which he left upon the estate. 1 Co. 166. a. 2 Co. 325. c. 3 2 Co. 335. c.

If A. binds himself in a recognizance or flavute, and after his death some of his lands descend to the heir of the part of the father, and some to the heir of the part of the mother, both heirs shall be equally charged; and if the conveyance loads one only, he shall have contributions. 3 2 Co. 335. c.

The heir at law is bound by his ancestor's alienations and disposition, as also by his covenants and conditions, as far as he hath assented; but if a man covenants, that after his death his heir at law shall stand seized to the use of his youngest son, this is void. Hob. 313. for Heirs.

So if A. binds himself in a recognizance or flavute, and after his death some of his lands descend to the heir of the part of the father, and some to the heir of the part of the mother, both heirs shall be equally charged; and if the conveyance loads one only, he shall have contributions. 3 2 Co. 335. c.

2. Of what conditions and covenants of the ancestor shall the heir take advantage; and by what condition, covenants and contracts of the ancestor shall the heir be bound.

Conditions and covenants real, or such as are annexed to estates, shall descend to the heir, and be alone taken as the estate of the ancestor.

And this is not only where there are express words, but also where there are none; for the law by implication refers the condition to the heir of the fequest, or, for being prejudiced by the disposition, it is reasonable that he should take the same advantage that his ancestor were entitled to as to his estate. 3 Ed. 3. 349. 476. 4 Ed. 3. 407. 476.

If a man feised of lands in right of his wife, makes a feoffment in fee upon condition, and dies, and after the condition is broke, the husband shall enter for though no right descended to him, the title of entry be force of the condition which was created upon the feoffment, and referred to the feoffor and his heirs, descended. 8 Cl. Litt. 253. 6 Cl. Litt. 253.

The heir shall take advantage of a namus parce, for being incident to the rent, it shall descend to the heir, being a security or penalty to engage the payment of the rent; whoever therefore has a right to the rent, ought in reason to have the penalty which was created upon the feoffment, and referred to the feoffor and his heirs.

If a man feised of lands in right of his wife, makes a feoffment in fee upon condition, and dies, and after the condition is broke, the husband shall enter for though no right descended to him, the title of entry be force of the condition which was created upon the feoffment, and referred to the feoffor and his heirs, descended. 8 Cl. Litt. 253. 6 Cl. Litt. 253.

The heir shall take advantage of a namus parce, for being incident to the rent, it shall descend to the heir, being a security or penalty to engage the payment of the rent; whoever therefore has a right to the rent, ought in reason to have the penalty which was created upon the feoffment, and referred to the feoffor and his heirs. 8 Cl. Litt. 253.

The heir shall take advantage of a namus parce, for being incident to the rent, it shall descend to the heir, being a security or penalty to engage the payment of the rent; whoever therefore has a right to the rent, ought in reason to have the penalty which was created upon the feoffment, and referred to the feoffor and his heirs. 8 Cl. Litt. 253.

The heir shall take advantage of a namus parce, for being incident to the rent, it shall descend to the heir, being a security or penalty to engage the payment of the rent; whoever therefore has a right to the rent, ought in reason to have the penalty which was created upon the feoffment, and referred to the feoffor and his heirs. 8 Cl. Litt. 253.

The heir shall take advantage of a namus parce, for being incident to the rent, it shall descend to the heir, being a security or penalty to engage the payment of the rent; whoever therefore has a right to the rent, ought in reason to have the penalty which was created upon the feoffment, and referred to the feoffor and his heirs. 8 Cl. Litt. 253.

The heir shall take advantage of a namus parce, for being incident to the rent, it shall descend to the heir, being a security or penalty to engage the payment of the rent; whoever therefore has a right to the rent, ought in reason to have the penalty which was created upon the feoffment, and referred to the feoffor and his heirs. 8 Cl. Litt. 253.
If A. inter alia B., upon condition, that if the heirs of A. pay to B. the sum of 20 l., then he and his heirs may re-enter; this is a good condition, of which the heirs of A. may take advantage, and yet A. himself never can. Co. Lit. 214, 24. A. having issue three sons, William his eldest, Nathaniel his second, and Daniel his third; William died in the lifetime of his father, leaving issue only a daughter; afterwards the father devises the estate in question to A. his wife for her life, and after her death to his son Daniel and his heirs, provided that if Nathaniel doth within three months after the death of his wife pay to Daniel, his executors or administrators, the sum of 500 l. then the said lands shall come to his own Nathaniel and his heirs; the wife lived several years, and during her life Nathaniel died, leaving the plaintiff his heir, and the wife afterwards dying, the plaintiff brought his bill within three months after in equity praying, that upon the payment of the 500 l. he might have a conveyance of the estate; and the principal point of the case was, whether this 500 l. being to be paid by Nathaniel within a limited time, and he dying before that time came, whether his heir at law could now on payment of the money make a title to the said lands. For this was agreed that he was not to take the estate to the heirs in equity by the death of his wife, and that he could not; that this was a condition precedent and merely personal in Nathaniel, who had neither iss in re, nor ad rem, and could neither have devised or released, or extinguished this condition, and being a bare possibility, and he dying before it was performed, his heir could not, on this account, take the estate to the heirs in equity; and that it was not a conditional devise to Nathaniel, yet that is not designed to give them any estate originally, but to denote the quantity of estate which Nathaniel was to take, and for this were cited 10 Co. Lamb. 72. Frow. Bret. and Rigden. On the other side it was insisted, that this was like the condition in Co. Lit. 205, 210. b, where a feuement is made on condition that the feoffor shall before such a day, or there, if the feoffor die before the day, his heir may perform the condition, for the reasons there mentioned; and that it being to at law, it shall still be confirmed more liberally in equity, where the letter of a condition is not always required to be strictly performed; and for this were cited, 1 Chanc. Ca. 89, 2 Chanc. Ca. Bottie and Falkland. That the possibility of performing this condition was an interest or right, or strictura juris, which vested in Nathaniel himself, that he preserved the feoffor; and therefore this differed from Bret and Rigden, in Co. Lit. 210. a, where a feuement is made on condition that the heir shall be descendent of the heir of the donor; for this were also cited, 2 East. Partry and Rogers, 3d. Ca. 538. 3d. East. 691. 4th. East. 71. Anth. Manning's case. The case of the feuement being first heard by the Master of the Rolls, was thought by him a matter of great difficulty, and therefore he appointed the counsel to speak to it when the court was fall; afterwards it was decreed by my Lord Chancellor, with the assistance of the Master of the Rolls, for the plaintiff, on Lit. 3d. 334, 335. And my Lord Chancellor said, that though a condition in feuements to law was not done within the time of the feoffor, the devise may take benefit by it by equity, ER. and that Nathaniel might have released or extinguished the condition. 3 Barr. Ab. 21, 22, Athl. 5th, 1. between Marks and Marks, in Chanc. As the heir at law is the proper and only person, who can take advantage of conditions, ER. annexed to the real estate; so shall he be bound by all such conditions, ER. which run with the land, whether such conditions were annexed to the estate by the original seffor, grantor or immediate ancestor. 1 Rol. Abr. 432. If a gift be made in tail on condition, that the donee should not sell the gift, and the donee hath issue two daughters, and one of them disconsents, the donee may enter and evict them both, because it was the original condition annexed to the whole estate, that no part of it should be discontinued. Co. Lit. 165. But here we must take notice, that neither tenant in tail, nor his issue can be restrained from aliening by fine or recovery, though they may be restrained from aliening by sequestration, or other tortious act, which amounts to a discontinuance. See Collatt. So where one devised lands to A. and the heirs male of his body, provided, that if he does attempt to alien, that then in lieu of the estate shall fail, and B. shall enter, and A. makes a satisfaction in B., and B. shall enter, and it was adjudged against B. and that the condition was void, because non sequitur what shall be adjudged an attempt, and how it should be tried. 1 Vent. 321. 3 Rich. 2d. Piercy and Dunclay. Also where a condition is annexed to the estate given to the heir, and which goes in abrogation and refrain thereof, the same shall in some cases be confirmed a limitation; for if it were a condition, nobody could take advantage of it but the heir himself. Dyer 316. to Co. 41. 1 Vent. 159. As if a devise was in Borough Englysh to surrender to the use of his wife, and after devess to his wife for life, remainder to his eldest son, paying 40 l. to each of his brothers and sisters within two years after the death of his wife, ER. this is a limitation, and not a condition; for if it should be a condition, it would extinguish in the heir, and there would be no remedy for the money. Gra. Emb. 204. Willd. and Hammond. 3 Co. 20, 1. 2 Lem. 114. S. C. So where one devised lands in fee, having issue two sons and a daughter, devised to his youngest son and daughter 20 l. apiece, to be paid by his eldest son, and devest his lands to his eldest son and his heirs, upon condition, that his eldest son should not part with the same, and the devise to Nathaniel, yet that is not designed to give them any estate originally, but to denote the quantity of estate which Nathaniel was to take; and for this were cited 10 Co. Lamb. 72. Frow. Bret. and Rigden. On the other side it was insisted, that this was like the condition in Co. Lit. 205, 210. a, where a feuement is made on condition that the feoffor shall before such a day, or there, if the feoffor die before the day, his heir may perform the condition, for the reasons there mentioned; and that it being to at law, it shall still be confirmed more liberally in equity, where the letter of a condition is not always required to be strictly performed; and for this were cited, 1 Chanc. Ca. 89, 2 Chanc. Ca. Bottie and Falkland. That the possibility of performing this condition was an interest or right, or strictura juris, which vested in Nathaniel himself, that he preserved the feoffor; and therefore this differed from Bret and Rigden, in Co. Lit. 210. a, where a feuement is made on condition that the heir shall be descendent of the heir of the donor; for this were also cited, 2 East. Partry and Rogers, 3d. Ca. 538. 3d. East. 691. 4th. East. 71. Anth. Manning's case. The case of the feuement being first heard by the Master of the Rolls, was thought by him a matter of great difficulty, and therefore he appointed the counsel to speak to it when the court was tion upon B. without entry. 2 Mod. 7. Smithworth and Co., 20.

But whenever the ancestor makes a conveyance or disposition on condition, which goes in restraint and abridgment of the estate of the heir, he must have notice of it; for having a good title by descent, he is not obliged to take notice of such condition at his peril, as others must do. 8 Co. 4. Fryer, 572.

As when A. feited of lands in fee, and having issue only one daughter named B. by leaf and release conveys his lands to the use of himself, and after his death to the use of B. in tail, provided the married, with the consent of the trustees, or the major part of them, some person of the family and name of Fitzgerald, or who should take upon himself the trust immediately after the marriage; but if not, then the trustees to raise a portion out of the said lands for B. and the lands to remain to C. afterwards A. dies, and B. marries one who neither is, nor took upon his name the name of Fitzgerald, and the only point upon which judgment was given was the want of notice in B. of the settlement, without being heir at law, and so having a title by descent, the was not bound as effe to take notice of the condition. 3 Mod. 28, 1 Lut. Scog. Mollen and Fitzgerald.

3. What actions may an heir commence and prosecute in right of his ancestor; and where an heir shall be bound to defend his ancestor's debts and contracts.

It is clear that the heir may bring any real action deural, in right of his ancestor, but cannot regularly bring any personal action, because he has nothing to do with the allies or personal contracts of his ancestor. Co. Lit. 1644.

Also if an erroneous judgment be given against the ancestor, by which he lost the lands, the heir may bring a writ of error. 1 Roll. Abr. 747. Dyer 90. Gadd. 337.

And if one land be on the part of his mother, and lost by erroneous judgment, and dies, the heir of the part of the mother shall have the writ of error. 1 Leon. 261. 2 Sid. 56.

So the younger son, when intitled to the land by the custom of Borough English, shall bring the writ of error, and not the heir at Common law, for this remedy defends with the land. Owen 68. 1 Leon. 261. 4 Leon. 5. adjudged; and see Bridge. 71.

So if there be an erroneous judgment against tenant in tail female, the issue female, and not the fon, shall bring a writ of error. Dyer 90. 1 Leon. 261. 1 Roll. Abr. 747.

If a man sells land to the use of himself and the heirs of his body, the remainder to his own right heirs and dies, leaving issue only a daughter, who levies a fine, and dies without issue, and J. S. brings a writ of error as coifin and collateral heir to the daughter, yet he shall never reverse the fine, for there could no right descend to him from the daughter, because she had but an effe tail, which determined by her death without issue; and it does not appear that the remainder in fee was in the daughter as right heir; wherefore J. S. shall not reverse the fine, quia de non apparatatis & non extenfatis etdem eff parte, especially in a court of judicature, where the judges can take notice of nothing that does not come judicially before them, and appear in the pleading. Dyer 92. Cro. Eliz. 409. 1 Leon. 36.

If J. S. binds himself and his heirs in a bond, and thereupon judgment is obtained against J. S. and J. S. makes his will, and his heir at law executor, and dies, leaving lands which descended to his heir, yet he shall not be within writ of error, for he is not privy to the judgment; and if an extent is made upon him, it is a tenant, but after the lands are taken in execution, he may have a writ of error. Syl. 38, 39. White and Thomson's, for Roll.

Also the heir at law may, in right of his ancestor, maintain an action on debt for rent referred on a lease made by his ancestor, for the rent is part of the lands, and incident to the rent; but for arrears of rent incurred in the life-time of the ancestor, neither the heir nor the executor could by the Common law maintain an action, because they were considered as part of the personal estate, and as to the executor, he could not represent his testator as to any contracts relating to the freehold and inheritance. 11 H. 6. 15. 19 H. 6. 41. Co. Lit. 152 a. But new by the 32 H. 8. cap. 37, an executor may maintain an action of debt for such rents accruing after the death of the Dece.

If a nobleman, knight, esquire, &c. be buried in a church, and have his coat of arms, and pennons with his arms, and such other emblems of honour as belongs to his degree, set up in the church, or if a grave-stone or tomb be laid or made, &c. for a monument of him; in the event of the church being in the possession, and that those be annexed to the church, he cannot the parson, or any, take them or deface them, but he is subject to the heir and his heirs, in the honour and memory of whose ancestor they were set up. Co. Lit. 18. 1. For this see 1 Roll. Abr. 675. Noy 114. Godst. 200. Co. Jat. 367. 2 Huf. 151.

Where the ancestor binds himself and his heirs in an obligation, the obligee may sue the heir or executor, or the administrator of the executor, at his election, and may have execution of the land defended to the heir; for the Common law having allowed the action of debt against the heir, he could have no benefit by the action, unless he doth agree to be obtained an action of execution of the land which defended to the heir. Plow. 444. 3 G. 12. 1. Co. Jat. 450. 1 And. 7.

But the body of the heir is protected, for it would be most unreasonable to subject the heir to the payment of his ancestor's debts, any farther than to the value of the effects defended. Dyer 81. pl. 52, 207, pl. 15. Mor. pl. 207. Co. Lit. 152, 252.

Also the heir must be expressly named, otherwise he is not chargeable, and the reason why the heir is not chargeable in this case, as the executor in case of a bond entered into by the testator, without being named, is this, by the Common law only the goods and chattels of the debtor, and the annual profits of the land, and not the land itself, were liable to execution for debt or damages, because thence being the security the creditor depended upon, they were liable in the hands of his representative or executor, as well as in the hands of the debtor himself; and hence it was, that the executor and debt of the testator, so far as he had chattels or assets, tho' he was not named in the contract; but the land was not liable to execution, because it was preferred from the personal contracts and engagements of the tenant, that he might be the better able to answer the feudal duties to the lord, which were imposed by the government; and therefore if the land not being originally liable to the demand in the hands of the obligor, must be much less liable in the hands of the heir, who was not comprehended in the contract. 2 Huf. 19. Pisos. 460. Hob. 60.

But if A. had granted, for him and his heirs, to B. and his heirs, such a rent out of his lands; in this case, the heirs being comprehended in the contract, are bound to make good the grant, so far as they have assets by defence from the grantor; and this was allowed at Common law, because the grantee of the rent had the land originally in view for his security; and by the grant itself having it in his power to restrain the land for the rent, it was assumed to the heir, whether the land do answer the rent or be differved, or by an execution upon a bond in a writ of annuity. 1 Rol. Abr. 226. Polkam 87. Hob. 58. Dyer 344 b. Co. Lit. 144 b.

If the ancestor bind himself in a fiatute, recognizance, &c. the heir is liable not only as tenant, but after the death could not have his age; and cannot oblige a purchaser, whether for valuable consideration, or without, to contribute, but one heir may oblige another to contribute; as if a man feided of two cre, the one defenfible, according to the course of the Common law, the other in Borough English, acknowledged a fiatute, &c. the heir at law shall oblige the Borough English to contribute; So one expecarner shall oblige the other.
other to contribute; or if the cohezor had lands, some defendible to the heirs of the father, and some defend-dible to the heirs of the mother, the father shall compel the heir on the part of the mother to contribute; & all vice versa. 3 Co. 12. Sir William Herbert's case.

By the Common law, if the heir before an action brought against him had aliened the affects, the obligee was entitled to recover of him, or his heirs, whatever the writ, the lands, which he had or defecded at the time of the original parched, had been liable. C. Lit.
102.

In consequence of this doctrine, that the lien shall have relation to the time of the original parched, it hath been held, that if there had been two creditors, that T. S. whole heir is bound, viz. A. and B. and A. files an original in C. B. and hath judgment thereon, Trin.
Term 2 Jac. 2. by default, and thereupon a general ejectment is made against all the lands of the heir, and a moity thereof is delivered to A. B. on a bill filed in B. R.
& 2 Jac. 2. has a special judgment against the affects confed by the heir, Trin. Term 3 Jac. 2. tho' B.'s judgment be subsequent to A.'s, yet it appearing that his bill or original was filed before A.'s, the judgment shall have relation thereto, and therefore he must be first satified. C. th. 245.

It is from the above case, that tho' A.'s judgment had been on an original actually filed before B.'s, that B.
must have been preferred, because his judgment was general against the heir, and the execution a general and common execution by ejectment, and not against the affects only by way of extent, and therefore such a judgment shall not operate by way of relation to the original,
but binds only as in common cases from the time of the judgement given. C. th. 246. Per curia.

But to prevent the wrong and injury to creditors by alienation of the lands descended, &c. by the 3th & 4th & 5th. cap. 14. it is enacted, "That in all cases, where there shall be liable to be arrested, the creditor, in regard of any lands, tenements or hereditaments defending to him, and shall fail, alien, or make over the same before any action brought or process fell against him, that such heir at law shall be answerable for such debt or debts in an action or actions of debt to the value of the land so to him aliened, or made over in which cases all creditors shall be preferred, in all actions against executors and administrators, and such execution shall be taken out upon any judgment or judgment's fo obtained against such heir to the use of the said land, as if the same were his own proper debt or debts; saving thereby the lands, tenements and hereditaments lands fief aliened before the action brought, shall not be liable to such execution."

"Provided, That where any action of debt upon any specialty is brought against any heir, he may plead visus per diem at the time of the original writ brought, or the bill filed against him; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding. And the plaintiff in such action may reply, that he had lands, tenements or here-editaments from his ancestor before the original writ brought, or the bill filed: And if, upon issue joined thereupon, it be found for the plaintiff, the jury shall inquire of the value of the lands, tenements and hereditaments lands fief aliened, and onum demurrer, or null nullity it shall be for the debt and damages, without any writ to inquire of the lands, tenents or hereditaments so fiefed.

Alfo if, before this statute, the ancestor had devise d away the lands, a creditor by specialty had no remedy either against the heir or devisee. Atr. Ep. 149.

But now, by the said statute 3 & 4 W. 3. cap. 14.
receiving that the ancestor, and the heirs, and the specialties bound themselves and their heirs, and afterwards by will devised of the lands, with an intent to defraud their creditors; it is enacted, "That all wills and renunciations, limitations, dispositions, or appointments, of or concerning any manors, meffuages, lands, tenents or hereditaments, or of any rent, profit, term, or receipt out of the same, whereas any person or persons at the time of the doing thereof, or their heirs, or their lands wills or renunciations, shall be deemed and taken (as against such creditor or creditors as aforesaid, his, her, or their heirs, devisees, executors, administrators and assigns, and every of them,) to be fraudulent, and clearly, absolutely, and utterly void, fruitless, and of no effect (any pretence, colour, signified or presumed consideration, or any other matter or thing to the contrary notwithstanding.)"

And for the means that such creditors may be enabled to recover their said debts, it is further enacted, that in the aforesaid cases before mentioned every such creditor shall have and may have and maintain his, her, and their action and actions of debt upon his, her, and their said bonds and specialties, against the heir and heirs at law of such obligor or obligors, and such devisee and devisees jointly, by virtue of this act; and such devisee or devisees shall be liable and chargeable for a false plea by him or them pleased, in the same manner as any heir should have been for a false plea by him pleased, or for not confessing the lands or tenements to him defended." 149.

Provided, That where there hath been or shall be any limitation or appointment devisible or not devisible, or concerning any manors, meffuages, lands, tenements,
or hereditaments for the raising or payment of any real or void debt or debts, or any portion or portions, som or sums of money for any child or children of any person, other than the heir at law, according to, or in pursuance of any marriage-contract, or agreement in writing bona fide made before such marriage, the same, and every of them, shall be in full force, and the same manors, me-ffuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments, shall and may be helden and enjoyed by every such person or persons, his, her, and their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, for the time and during the term of the said appointment, devise, or disposition was made, and by his, her,
and their trustee or trustees, his, her, and their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, for such estate or intereft, as shall be limited or appointed, devised or dis-poted, until such debt or debts, portion or portions shall be raifed, paid, and satisfied; any thing contained in this act to the contrary notwithstanding." 149.

And it is further enacted by the said statute, "That every man is prevented thereby from defeating his creditors by will, that yet any settlement or disposition he shall make in his life-time of his lands, whether voluntary or not, will be good against bond creditors; for that was not provided against by the statute, which only took care to secure such creditors from any imposition, which might be supposed in a man's last sickness; but if he gave away his estate in his life-time, this prevented the defendant of so much to the heir, and consequently took away their security against him who was an assignee, and refcut of the lands descended; and as a bond is no lien whatsoever on lands in the hands of the obligor, much less can it be so when they are given away to a stranger.

In debt in the hands of heir, it is pleaded visus per diem on the day of the bill, the plaintiff replied specially, viz.
the obligor (father of the defendant) died on such a day, and that the defendant (after the death of his father) and before the day of the bill, viz. on such a day, which was a day after the death of the obligor, had lands by defect from the elder of the same fee-simple, unto pratt (plaintiff) de debts prattis prattia prattiae, et
H. praet. & foc paras et servosco, unde petit juricium, according to the above statute. To this the defendant made a frivolous rejoinder; and thereupon the D d d plaintiff.
plaintiff demurred. The question was, If the replication was good in pursuance of the statute; for it was objected that it was ill, because the plaintiff had put the value of the estate in the replication, viz. $10,000, &c. de debito praebita justissimis partis, which ought to have been omitted; because the statute is express, that after the issue joined the jury shall inquire of the value, so that it is matter of impart only ex affectis, and not to the point of the issue; and by this statute the plaintiff is only to recover pro parte against the defendant with respect to the value of such alienated effects, and is not to have a general judgment against the heir, as at Common law a false plea; sed pro cur. upon debate, this replication was held good, and as it ought to be, and as that and, &c. de debito praebita justissimis partis had been omitted, it might have been a good cause of objection; for the statute doth not give occasion to alter any more of the form of the replication common in such cases, but only as to the time concerning affects by defect; and the conclusion, which (before the statute) was to the country, must now be with an averment only, because the defendant may have an opportunity to answer the new matter alleged in the replication. Carth. 35. Rofflaw and Heister adjudged, 5 Mod. 122. S. C. adjudged, and that the statute was made not to create, but to prevent duction in pleading.

It seems that neither before nor since this statute the executor ought to be made a party to the suit; for the person of the heir is not entitled to actions, but with respect to the land; and if before the statute, the heir had alene before act on brought, he should not be charged for the profits he received; which is evident from the plea of riens per diem the day of the writ purchased; much less could his executor, not can he yet, unless some statute make him so: For an executor is but in nature of a trustee for the personalty, and not at all privy to the inheritance. Trin. 33 Car. 2. in C. B. between Baron Nifon and Dandy adjudged. 3 Bac. Abr. 28.

If there be judgment in debt against two, and one dies, a se futurum les against the other alone, reciting the death, and he cannot plead that the heir of him that is dead has effects by defect, a demand judgment if he ought to be charged alone: For at Common law, the charge upon a judgment being personal survived, and the statute of Wifom. 2. that gives the elites, does not take away the remedy of the plaintiff at Common law, and therefore the party may take out his execution with a way he pleases; for the words of the statute are fit in electro : But if he shou'd, after the allowance of the writ, and revival of the judgment, take out an ejitl to charge the land, the party may have remedy by fuzetion, or elfe by audita querela. 1 Lev. 30. Raym. 227. 11. 21. 23. 24. 25.

If there be a fequestration for a personal duty against the ancestor where the heir is not bound, and the defendant dies, there is an end of the fequestration, and it cannot be revived against the heir; because neither the heir nor the lands are bound by such decree: But if the decree were upon a covenant that bound the heir, and the defendant died, such decree might be revived by judicium solis factis against the heir to whom cause against the decree, if the decree be enrolled of record, or if not, by bill of revivor; and when revived against heir and executor (which is the usual and regular way), the fequestration also will be revived on motion, if, upon coming into court, cause is not shewn why the decree should not be revived: And in this case it hath been resolved, that the decree should have the fame authority to bind the personal affects as a judgment at law, and therefore shall go pari passu to be paid off and discharged; but the heir of the lands came by the statute, which only gives an elite for a moiety of the land in satisfaction of the debt, and therefore that could give no authority to lay a fequestration on the real estate for a mere personal duty, where the heir is not bound in the covenant. 1 Taur. 143. 3 Lev. 325. 2 Taur. 37. 959. 4.

4. What shall be affects in the hands of the heir.

Where the ancestor binds himself and his heirs, all his lands of freehold, and which defend in secpn, are affects by defect, and shall be liable, as far as they extend, to answer the ancestor's obligations. See Bro. tit. Affects, 1 Lev. tit. Affect. 1 Kol. Abr. 269. tit. Affects. See Act.

A revision after a leaf for years made by the ancestor is present affects, so that the heir cannot plead rents and profits in delay of execution of the rent and revision, though the plaintiff cannot have benefit of the revision till the leaf be determined. 1 Salt. 323. 5. Faw. 42.

2 Mod. 50. 51. Heron's Prud. 546.

So a revision exequient upon the determination of an estate for sale in possi effect, and ought to be pleaded specially by the heir, and the plaintiff in such case may take judgment of it cum accidexit. Carth. 120. per Hef.

But a revision in fee exequient upon an estate in tail is not affects, because it lies in the will of the tenant in tail to dock and bar it at his pleasure. 6 Co. 58. 1. Ros. Abr. 269.

If A. hath issue B. and C. and conveys lands to hee of himself for life, the remainder to B. in tail male, the remainder to his own right heirs, and A. dies, and the revision descends to B. his fon, and B. dies feised, and the revision descends to his son, who dies without issue, so that the tail is spent, and C. enters, these lands shall be affets to answer the debts of his father. Carth. 137. 3 Lev. 286. 3 Mod. 253. S. C. Kellow ver. Rawdon.

The lands, as has been observed, must defend to the heir; and therefore it was formerly held, that if he took by purcaha, as if the testator devised them to him, paying so much, or if he devised lands to one of the two, and his heirs at law jointly, that those lands were not affects; but if he devised one part to A. another to B. and another to his heir at law, this third part was affects. Co. Eliz. 431. 2 Mod. 268.

But the statute of frauds and perjuries 129 Car. 2. 2. 3. it is provided that if the debts came to the heir by reason of a special occcupancy, they shall be ealeable in his hands as affects by defect, as in cases of lands in fee simple, and in case there be no special occcupancy thereof, it shall go to the executors or admininators of the party that had the estate thereof by virtue of the grant, and shall be affects in their hands.

Also by the tail Nature, por. 10. & tit. where lands are settled in truth, and defend in fee to the heir of effe- tory quoy trufl, the same shall be affects in the same manner as lands in possession, but he shall not, by reason of any plea or other matter, be chargeable to pay the condemnation out of his own estate. Vid. 32 Car. 2. 4. 68. 322.

An act of the 12th of the 20th year of George the third, for the avoidance of an inheritance in affects, for the heir having a right in equity, that ought in equity to be liable to satisfy a bond debt. 4 Chon. Co. 148.

Tenier in tail suffers a recovery to let in a mortgage of 500 years, and then limits the land to the old uses, and makes his will, and devites all his lands for the payment of his debts; the redemption was limited to him, his heirs and asigns; and the court thought that the equity of redemption of this mortgage should be affects to satisfy creditors, or a suberant grace of an annuity. Preed. Chon. 39. Forst. and Agin.

A right without any estate in possession, reverson or remainder is not affects till it be recovered and reduced into possession. 6 Co. 58.

For more learning on this subject, see 14 Vin. Abr. and 2 Bac. Abr. tit. Heir Veir apparent. See Drir.

Veirress, Is a female heir to a person, having an ef- tate in possession, and a estate in fee tail, where there are fewe joint female heircoes, they are called coheires. Steali- ing an heircoes, and marrying her against his will, when felony, see Marriage.

Veir-loon, [of the Saxon heores, i. e. heretres, and lond, i. e. membranu The word by time heres, in the first infancy, remote than at first it did bear, comprehending al implements of heoldhood, as tables, prel, cupboards, bedsteads.
bedfords, mainfoot, and such like; which, by the custom of some countries, having belonged to a house during certain decents, are never inventoried after the decease of the owner, as chattels, but accrue to the heir with the house, and are called heirlooms. Some stand, for Jnn. ^meti belong go 104. nature Lord R. were neither can't pennons, mortem brum quorwidum, fucceffion the hundredi fucceffion, fucceffion the fucceffion. Lady chattels, being generations, worn by the book, have fixed as evidences of their family, being the personal and ancient evidences of the late Lord Petre against the wife of the first exec- tor for a necklace of pearl, said to have been in the family for many generations, and worn as a personal or- nament by the Lady Petre for the time being, or for de- fault of such, by the Lady Dowager pr tempore; and to prove the property, an ancient inventory made by the defendant's husband, being executor of the Lord Petre, now interlaced, being found among the ancient evidences of the family, was allowed; for the mentioning this necklace in it heews he did not claim it in his own right, and none but a madman will inventory more alls than those that are in the house, nor will a thief claim the Lord Petre were proprietor, or not, he himself could not be witness; yet the executor, by inventorizing it, charged himself with it as alls, and there it shall be taken as such; and per Hol Ch. J. the wearing of a pearl is a conversion; and goods in grofs cannot be an heirlooms, but they must be things fixed to the tree-

Helding. A braif coin among the Saxons, equivalent to our half-penny.

Helm, Thorns or straw, Cornui. edil. 1727.

Helmuccolt. The hel-wall or end wall, that covers and defends the reft of the building. From Saxon belan, to cover or heal; whence a thatcher, flifer or tiler, who covers the roof of a house, is in the weftern parts called a keller.—Isulfili edilen Domine pr quodam he-

Hemp and flax. Every perfon occupying 60 acres, to low one road with hemp or flax, 24 H. 4. e. 4. 5 Ed. e. 7. Ed. &. M. 3. fett. 2. Shall not be watered in any running stream or common pond, 33 H. 8. e. 17.

Foreigners using the trade of dressing flax, &c. to enjoy the privileges of subjects taking the oaths, &c. 15 Gar. 15. ed. 3. fett. 9.

Duties on hemp, &c. and yarn of flax or hemp import-ted, 2 W. & M. fett. 2. c. 24. fett. 31. 32. 4 W. & M. c. 5. fett. 2.

The tithes of hemp and flax atertainfed, 3 W. & M. c. 3. 11 & 12 W. & M. c. 2. e. 16.

Flax or hemp may be importat from Ireland duty free, 7 & 8 W. & M. 5. ed. 2. d. 2. e. 8. Penalty on workmen imbrzeating it, 1 Anun. b. c. 2. e. 18.

Bounty on the importation of hemp from the plantations, 3 & 4 Ann. c. 109.

Hemp water totted, &c. from the plantations, free from duties, 3 Gar. c. 12.

Undecided flax may be importat duty free, 4 Geo. 2. c. 27.

Medium of the duties on rough flax, &c. for 7 years, to be an annual charge on the aggregate fund, 4 Geo. 2. e. 5. &d. 8. Car. L. 2. c. 107.

No drawback on the re-exportation of unwoofht hemp to the plantations, 4 Geo. 2. c. 27. fett. 7.

Against frauds in manufactures of hemp, flax, &c. 22 Geo. 2. c. 27.

Bounty on the importation of hemp and rough flax from America, 3 Geo. 4.

Vernishit, Qui eos inutitir helicfis, from the Germar beoff, a war-horfe. With us it signifies one that runs on foot, attending upon a perfon of honour or worship. Stat. 3 Ed. 4. c. 5. and 24 Hen. 8. cap. 13. It is written beoffam, An. 6 Hen. 8. cap. 1.

And stamps. A capital payment of money instead of hens at Leges: From the Saxon bim, gallina and penning, denarius, Sint queti de cheveguio & henugyio, & buckfayl & trijir, &c. Monast. 2 tom. 287. In a charter of Eto. 3 confirming many privileges to the priory of Palen, 25 Ed. 3.—Qui Du Pefne this may be bemon, gallingaum, or a compofition for eggs. But possibly it is misspelled be-Bicfayl for breud-pen, or head-pen. Cornui. edil. 1727.

Hendreda, A duty to the King in Cambridgeshire.

Demerit.

Hengen, (Saxon bengen) A prifon, gaol or house of correction. Si quis amitis defitus, vel aliena, ad tantum laborum numat, ut amicum non hokeat, in prima accusatius petatur in bengen, & ille solutum dace ad dei judicium modus. L.L. Hen. 1. cap. 65.

Vajntice, Significat quinctus rafuerdcius de latrane fulceiis aliqua compositione. Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 47. See Bankuit.

Pecaspete, The name with bussifanes, i.e. the mater of a family: From the Saxon berrpesf, i.e. fixed to the householder, or person, &c. From the liberman rettius digna, fis headset, fis foliator, fis in hundreds, & in pligos conitutio. Leges Canuti, cap. 4. See Vite dertett.

Pomspunp, Olim Remeceft & pityca Petepence: From the Saxon berrpesf, fixed, and penning, denarius. See Petepence and Remeceft.

Pomspunp, (Saxon bengen) A prifon, gaol, or house of correction. Si quis amitis defitus, vel aliena, ad tantum laborum numat, ut amicum non hokeat, in prima accusatius petatur in bengen, & ille solutum dace ad dei judicium modus. L.L. Hen. 1. cap. 65. See Bankuit.

Petral, Veralt, or Peralto, Italian heralds, Fr. be-

Pomspunp, Olim Remeceft & pityca Petepence: From the Saxon berrpesf, fixed, and penning, denarius. See Petepence and Remeceft.

Pomspunp, (Saxon bengen) A prifon, gaol, or house of correction. Si quis amitis defitus, vel aliena, ad tantum laborum numat, ut amicum non hokeat, in prima accusatius petatur in bengen, & ille solutum dace ad dei judicium modus. L.L. Hen. 1. cap. 65. See Bankuit.
or other bodies: The Roman call them pluraliter Freidetis, P. civ., lib. 19, describe them thus: Hic et hic apud apparitores ministri, quos haldon dicunt, quorum praefedit arborum Rex vacuatur; hi beli et pacti notant; ductus, comitiubus & Regi fatti insignia optant, ac eorum funera curant. Nym more, they are the judges and examiners of the church's offices at the coronation of Princes, manage and perform such like: There is one and the same use of them with us and the French, whence we have their name; and what their office is with them, see Lexpau., lib. 1. De Mynfr.
Fianc. cap. 90. Herald. There are divers of them with us, whence being the chief, are called Knights, and of them of Garter is the principal, instituted and created by Henry the Fifth, Stan's Annals, p. 584. whose office is to attend Knights of the Garter at their solemnities, and to maschall the funerals of all the great nobility; as Princes, Dukes, Marqueses, Earls, Viscounts and Baronets.
And in the case of arms in Ralgher and Perriphus's cafe, we read that Edward the Fourth granted the office of King Herald to one Garter, cum feudis & pretitis ab antiquo, &c. fol. 12. The next is Clarevines, ordained by Edward IV, for attaining the dukedom of Clarence, by the death of his brother Grace, whom he beleaved for aspiring to the crown; and the heralds, when they belonged to the Duke of Clarence, a king at arms, and called him Clarevines; his proper office is to maschall and dispose the funerals of all the lesser nobility, as Knights and Esquires, through the realm, on the South side of the Trent. The third is Norrey, or North-roy, whose office is the fame on the North side of the Trent that Clarevines hath on this side, as may well appear by his name, signifying the Northern King, or King of the North-parts. Besides these, there are 6 others properly called heralds, according to their original, as they were created to attend Duke, &c. in martiall executions, viz. York, Lancaster, Sowerset, Richmond, and Wiltshire. Lastly, there are four others called Hambly or Purforis at arms, reckoned in the number of heralds, and do commonly succeed in the place of the heralds, when they die, or are preferred;
and those are Bleau-mant, Rouge-croix, Rougetragen and Portelli. These heralds are by some authors called Narsies, and by the ancient Romans Vexillia, who were priests. Nam Nama Pompillus deini cultus inflation in alto partes diesit, & inuam fuscum ordinum cito ordes constituit. & septum partem foar cistitutionem collis et urbicem ad vivam. Societates: Erent autem ex opininis demibus vitri offerti; & quorum partes in ovorum venditum, ut fi diuiti publico inopine praebentur, neque jussum abdum aquaticum alicuius acceptur, sed iuris nom. 12. Kings at arms are mentioned in flat. 14 Car.
2. 33. Of these, see more in Spelman's Glossary. Cowell, edill. 1727.
By the law of arms and heraldry, every one who is not a peer or heir prescriptive in any of those dangerous sort, ought to be laid betwixt two officers of arms
by the arms
before the Earl Marshal of England, or his deputy, and before him are to go four officers of arms, whereas the one is to bear his patent, another his collar of SS, the third a coronet of brans double gilt, fourthly, a cup of wine; and his patent shall be read before the Earl Marshal, of which he will feign from before, and the head, and the collar of SS about his neck, and after wards the wine poured upon his head. Lc. 248. 32 Eliz.
B. R. Detheek's cafe.
Uertlatt, (Harbohydram.) Signifies the fruit of the earth, produced by nature for the bite or mouth of the cattle;
but it is most commonly used for a liberty that a man hath to feed his cattle in another man's ground, as pro jure dep saboti aculum foetum ut in festis, says the taught Spelman.
Hertch, (Hercham.) Signifies, that there hath a herd of a forest by patent may have trespas for the graze, but not for trees or the fruit of them; and he may take beasts damage-feast, and have quere clamyrum friget, and by such grant may inclose the forest. D. 255. b. pl. 40. Trin. 11 Eliz.
Grantee of herbage may include, and may have action
2 Roll. R. 356. cites D. 285. But the law that he hath herbage may include, yet he that hath reasonable herbage Grantee of herbage of a park cannot dispart it. Arg.
Geol. 419. Trin. 21 Jan. B. R. in the cafe of Lord Zamb gard. Page 459.

A lease was made of a manor with all gardens, orchards, yards, &c. and with all the profits of the wood, excepting to lef for acres, to take at his pleasure; for Dyer. The wood is not comprised within the lease, but the leffe shall only have the profits, as parishage, herbage, &c. 11 Eliz. in C. B. 4 L. S. 8. &c.
Herbaguam antenius. The first crop of graze or hay, in opposition to after-math and second cutting.—Dicent
good off common via, & sea communis pofura, quen famum & anterius herbaguam amunicia. Antq. Parochial,
pag. 459.
Hereter, or Heretbry. An inn. Cowell, edit. 1727.
Herterwe, or Heretbryng, (from the French hererther, that is, heretis accipere,) Signifieth an officer in the King's house, who goes before and allows the noblemen, and those of the houseold their lodgings. Kitchin,
fol. 176. used it for an innkeeper.
Herberettiam. Lodginges to receive guests in the way of hostelry and hospitable living, ed. 1727. 4 L. S. 8.
Herbergotts, Spent in an inn. Cowell, edit. 1727.
Herberitch, To harbour, to entertain, from herbergum, herterga, Saxon hæra berg, a house of entertainment.—Balliit præceptum civibus fudantium damnationem doom to all who dwell within the and ad household populum in anno Yn-Hence our herberger or harbinger, who provides harbour and house-room, &c.
Heret, A harrow, Lat. horca. Flota, lib. 2. cap. 77.
Cartuc & hercis reparare, and in Domusjoy, per Guilefol. 760. Hoba Rex, &c. unus jumag de era &c. &c.
Hyp. 270. Hererich, (from the French heres, to harbour.) Ar-abant & hercubant ad curiam Dominum, I. e. they did plough and harrow at the manner of the lord, 4 Hyp. fol. 270.
Herdwick, or Heredes, (Heredescc) A grange or place for cattle and husbandry. Et unus heredciejuscecdum, et unus jumag de heredc eorum de jamin. Ang. 3 part.
Herdwier, Herdives, Herdfman, or herd, is fomary labours done by the shepherds, herdfmen, and other inferior tenants at the will of their lord. Cowell, edill. 1727.
Herdwicke, The King's edile, commanding his bindings into the field: From the Saxon bares, exercitus, and laps, a menefer. Cowell, edill. 1727.
Hereditamenta, (Hereditamenta.) Signify all such things immovable, be they corporeal or incorporeal, as a man may have to himself, and his heirs, by way of inhertance; (see 32 Hyp. cap. 2. or not being otherwise bequested, do naturally, and of course descend to him and his heirs, as the next heir of blood fall short in the compass of an executor or administrator as chattels do. It is a word of large extent, and much used in conveyances for the grant of hereditaments, tiles, feignorises, manors, houses and lands of all sorts, charters, rents, feruices advowson, commons, and whatever may be inherited, will pat. &c. cloth. &c. &c. 11 Hyp. fol. 6. Hereditamenta est omni quod justerit hereditario ad hereditam tramont.
Heredictamenta corpora (according to Judge Dodecric.) are recenues local, and of annual value. Hyp. of Wales, fol.
9. 70, condition is without question an hereditament.
3 Rep. b. 25. Trin. 25 Eliz. in the Mardips at Hodebury's cafe.
Writ of error is an hereditament, but by the Common law cannot be forfeited or escheat. 3 Rep. 2. S. G.
Verdict, the (Hercis.) Among Protestants, it is said to be a false opinion repugnant to some point of doctrine clearly and necessarily established in the temporal courts by the Christian faith, or at least of most high importance. 1 Hawk. P. C. 3.

Anciently, under the general name of hereby there have been comprehended three sorts of crimes: 1. Adultery, when a Christian apostatizes to Paganism. 2. Wicercraft. 3. Forged heresy, which seems to be an apostacy from the established religion; for which, and for several of determining, punishing, and the difference between the Civil and Imperial laws, Popish canons, and the laws of England concerning hereby, see a large account in 1 Hal. Hyf. P. C. 383 to 410.

It seems difficult precisely to determine what error will amount to hereby, and what not; but the statute E. E. cap. 1, which erected the high commissiion court, having restrained it to such as are either determined by scripture, or by one of the 4 fir general councils, or by some other council, by express words of scripture, or by parliament, has never been thought by any learned man, in the different courts, to be contrary, or imaginable. Yet, I have observed, that there is scarce any the smallest deviation from them may be reduced to hereby, according to the general generality, latitude and extent of their definitions and descriptions; from whence he observes, how miserable the servitude of Christians was under the Papal jurisdiction, who used to arbitrary and unlimited a power to determine what they pleased to hereby, and then, united appelation presbyter, subjecting men's lives to their sentence. 1 Hal. Hyf. P. C. 383, 389.

According to the Common and Imperial law, and generally by other laws in kingdoms and states where the ecclesiastical jurisdiction was the judge of hereby, and hereby they obtained a large jurisdiction touching them; 1 Hal. Hyf. P. C. 384.

Hence it is, that by the Common law with us, the conviction of the clergy or provincial synods, might and frequently did proceed to the pencening of heretics, and to the demand of the ecclesiastical judge was the judge of hereby, and hereby they obtained a large jurisdiction touching them; 1 Hal. Hyf. P. C. 384.

Hence it is, that by the Common law with us, the conviction of the clergy or provincial synods, might and frequently did proceed to the pencening of heretics, and to the demand of the ecclesiastical judge was the judge of hereby, and hereby they obtained a large jurisdiction touching them; 1 Hal. Hyf. P. C. 384.

Hence it is, that by the Common law with us, the conviction of the clergy or provincial synods, might and frequently did proceed to the pencening of heretics, and to the demand of the ecclesiastical judge was the judge of hereby, and hereby they obtained a large jurisdiction touching them; 1 Hal. Hyf. P. C. 384.

It is also agreed, that every bishop may convict persons of hereby within his own diocese, and proceed by church censures against those who shall be convicted; but it is not within the power of the bishop, or the ecclesiastical judge, to be delivered over to the secular power; and this being signified under the seal of the ordinary into Chancery, the King might thereupon by special warrant command a writ of habeas corpus to issue, if this were a matter that lay in his discretion to grant, suspend or refuse, as the case might be circumstanced. 1 Hal. Hyf. P. C. 392.

For humble and pacific means to have no cure of hereby, either to determine what it is, or to punish the heretic as such, but only as a disturber of the public peace; and that therefore, if a man be proceeded against hereby, in the ecclesiastical courts, he may be delivered over to the secular power; and this being signified under the seal of the ordinary into Chancery, the King might thereupon by special warrant command a writ of habeas corpus to issue, if this were a matter that lay in his discretion to grant, suspend or refuse, as the case might be circumstanced. 1 Hal. Hyf. P. C. 392.

But it seems agreed, that regularly the temporal courts have no cure of hereby, either to determine what it is, or to punish the heretic as such, but only as a disturber of the public peace; and that therefore, if a man be proceeded against hereby, in the ecclesiastical courts, he may be delivered over to the secular power; and this being signified under the seal of the ordinary into Chancery, the King might thereupon by special warrant command a writ of habeas corpus to issue, if this were a matter that lay in his discretion to grant, suspend or refuse, as the case might be circumstanced. 1 Hal. Hyf. P. C. 392.
tenant, Bro. for Rol. for from paid goods counts.

1. The manor of the

2. That the death of the

3. That the death of the

4. That the death of the

5. That the death of the

6. That the death of the

7. That the death of the

8. That the death of the

9. That the death of the

10. That the death of the

11. That the death of the

12. That the death of the

13. That the death of the

14. That the death of the

15. That the death of the

16. That the death of the

17. That the death of the

18. That the death of the

19. That the death of the

20. That the death of the

21. That the death of the

22. That the death of the

23. That the death of the

24. That the death of the

25. That the death of the

26. That the death of the

27. That the death of the

28. That the death of the

29. That the death of the

30. That the death of the

31. That the death of the

32. That the death of the

33. That the death of the

34. That the death of the

35. That the death of the

36. That the death of the

37. That the death of the

38. That the death of the

39. That the death of the

40. That the death of the

41. That the death of the

42. That the death of the

43. That the death of the

44. That the death of the

45. That the death of the

46. That the death of the

47. That the death of the

48. That the death of the

49. That the death of the

50. That the death of the

51. That the death of the

52. That the death of the

53. That the death of the

54. That the death of the

55. That the death of the

56. That the death of the

57. That the death of the

58. That the death of the

59. That the death of the

60. That the death of the

61. That the death of the

62. That the death of the

63. That the death of the

64. That the death of the

65. That the death of the

66. That the death of the

67. That the death of the

68. That the death of the

69. That the death of the

70. That the death of the

71. That the death of the

72. That the death of the

73. That the death of the

74. That the death of the

75. That the death of the

76. That the death of the

77. That the death of the

78. That the death of the

79. That the death of the

80. That the death of the

81. That the death of the

82. That the death of the

83. That the death of the

84. That the death of the

85. That the death of the

86. That the death of the

87. That the death of the

88. That the death of the

89. That the death of the

90. That the death of the

91. That the death of the

92. That the death of the

93. That the death of the

94. That the death of the

95. That the death of the

96. That the death of the

97. That the death of the

98. That the death of the

99. That the death of the

100. That the death of the

101. That the death of the

102. That the death of the

103. That the death of the

104. That the death of the

105. That the death of the

106. That the death of the

107. That the death of the

108. That the death of the

109. That the death of the

110. That the death of the

111. That the death of the

112. That the death of the

113. That the death of the

114. That the death of the

115. That the death of the

116. That the death of the

117. That the death of the

118. That the death of the

119. That the death of the

120. That the death of the

121. That the death of the

122. That the death of the

123. That the death of the

124. That the death of the

125. That the death of the

126. That the death of the

127. That the death of the

128. That the death of the

129. That the death of the

130. That the death of the

131. That the death of the

132. That the death of the

133. That the death of the

134. That the death of the

135. That the death of the

136. That the death of the

137. That the death of the

138. That the death of the

139. That the death of the

140. That the death of the
HER

If in repliuen the defendant avows for an heiror upon a lease made by indenture to A. his executors and assigns, for 99 years, if the said A. B. and C. or any of them, should so long live, rendering rent, and rendering and paying after the death of the said A. his executors and assigns, his heir or beft left beft for an heir, or 501. at the election of the heir, his heirs or assigns, and A. assigns to J. S. and dies, on whom the leffer ditaire; and upon order of the indenture it appears, that the clause for the heiror was rendering, and paying to the leffer, his heirs and assigns, after the death of the said A. B. and C. and every of them, his or their beft lease in the name of an heiror, or 501. &c. Then the leffer beft intituled to an heiror on the death of A. B. or C. yet ought he to have set it forth according to the indenture, and not to have avowed for an heiror after the death of A. his executors and assigns, when there are no words which make an heiror payable on the death of the executors or assigns. C. R. 237. 2 M. 6. 321. 3 Med. 415.

And if by the custom of a cophold manor the lord may grant a cophold to three persons, to hold to them the leases in quieton and corners in charta, & non aliis, for three lives, and that on the death of every tenant the lord should have his beft beft for an heiror, and a grant is made to J. S. and his assigns, to hold to him for his own use, and the lives of the two others: This at least is a good grant for the life of J. S. though not strictly purvue to the cophold, and the lord on his death shall have an heiror; but he would have a better than the death of the Cenlent. 31. 3 Med. 415. because they were never his tenants. 6 Med. 93. 1 Salk. 180. 8. C.

It seems to have been always agreed, that for an heiror cuftorn the lord might feize the best beft beft of the tenant, or what ever else was due as an heiror, wherever he could find it. B. c. 2. 3. 28.

But according to some ancient opinions, the lord could only ditaire, but not feize for an heiror-service; because they fly they, it lies in render, and not prender; also the form of pleading is, that he was seized thereof by the hands of the tenant, which would be absurd, if the lord had such a property therein as he might feize it as his own. Daltor and Student, Dialogue 2. cap. 9. N. Bendl. 30. 47. 92.

But it hath been solemnly adjudged, that for an heiror-service; or for a heiror referred by way of tenants, the lord can ditaire or ditaire and ditaire; when the grant agrees that the lord shall on the death of the beft beft, the lord hath his election which beft he will take, and by feizing thereof reduces that to his possession, wherein he had a property at the death of the tenant, without the concerning act of any other person; and it may happen, where the leflee relieves 26. for robbe, for there the lesslee has his election which he will pay, and being to do it shall the lord cannot feize, but must ditaire. Prec. 96. 589. 26. 47. 98.

Allo though the lord may either feize or ditaire for an heiror-service, yet he can only feize the proper beft of the tenant, but he may ditaire any man's befts which are upon the land, and retain them until the heiror be paid. C. R. 260.

So it hath been ruled, that for a heiror cuftorn or service the lord may feize as well in the manner as out; but if he ditaire, it must be in the manner. 1 Salk. 390. 31. 92. 8. 11. 3 Med. 251. 1. 92. 31.

But it is said, that this liberty must be understood to be annexed to ancient tenures, on which the lords had many privileges, and not to be extended to those which are created within time of memory, upon particular reservation; for where a lease was made of lands for 99 years, if A. and B. thought so long live, reserving a yearly rent and heiror, or 401. in lieu thereof, after the death of either of them, provided, that no heiror shall be paid after the death of A. lving B. and A. and B. being both dead, and consequently the lease determined; the court was divided in opinion, whether the leffer could ditaire for the heiror or not. 1 Salk. 81. 3 Med. 231.
Regulations of the herring fair at Yarmouth, 31 Ed. 3.

The contents of barrels of salmon, herrings and eels, with rules for their package, 22 Ed. 4. c. 2. 11 H. 7.

Penalty of £5 for stealing or changers herrings not well salted, packed and casked, 5 El. i. 6. sect. 6 & 7.

Allowance on the exportation of herrings, §. 5 & 6 H. & M. c. 7. sect. 10. 9 & 10 H. 3. c. 44. sect. 15. 16. 17. 5 Geo. 1. c. 18. Of white herrings from Scotland, 5 Ann. c. 6. art. 8.

One of exporter that herrings were cured with salt that paid duty, 5 Ann. c. 29. sect. 6. altered by 6 Ann. c. 12. sect. 3.

Duty on red herrings for home consumption, 8 Geo. 1. c. 4. on white herrings, 8 Geo. 1. c. 16.

Duties reduced, and taken off where only home-made salt is used, 3 Geo. 2. c. 20. sect. 14 & 15. 26 Geo. 2. c. 6.

Duties on red and white herrings revived, 5 Geo. 2. c. 6. sect. 3.

Effabilitation of the British white herring fishery, 23 Geo. 2. c. 24. 26 Geo. 2. c. 9. 28 Geo. 2. c. 14.

Officers are to view the vessels at their return, 23 Geo. 2. c. 24. sect. 15.

Duties to Greenwich hospital to be paid before bounty is received, 28 Geo. 2. c. 14. sect. 10. 30 Geo. 2. c. 30. sect. 10.

Staves of herring-barrels in Scotland to be half an inch thick, 29 Geo. 2. c. 23. sect. 4.

Not to extend to the white herring fishery, 3 Geo. 2. c. 30. sect. 6.

One shilling per barrel payable in Scotland on herring for home consumption, 29 Geo. 2. c. 23. sect. 6.

Further bounty on vessels employed in the white herring fishery, 30 Geo. 2. c. 30.

Such serum may be used in the herring fishery as are not adapted to it, 30 Geo. 2. c. 30. sect. 2.

Penalty on obstructing those employed in the herring fishery, in the free use of ports, thores, &c. 30 Geo. 2. c. 30. sect. 7.

For other matters, see Fifth and Sixth.

Heworth, A furrey, from the Sax. Saxon, brida, dimidi, and bursting, vel fadiger. Quia qui fadiger, debentur se quandomque conatus. Du Fréne in voce heworth.

Heytesbury, A formerly of the county of Wilt., and a manorial, the Trench of the king, and a manorial. Trench and the county of the king's writ went not: But by the flat of 14 El. c. 13.

Herts, 300. 300.

Hexam and Hexamhoith: shall be within the county of Northumberland. See 4 Ingl. fol. 22. It was also of old a bishopric by the name of Episcopatus Hugonfeldeby. See Ad. Ang. 2 por. fol. 691.

Hypoth. See Hypoth.
way; and that any such carriage may be called the King's highway; and that a river common to all men may also be called a highway; and that nuisances in any of the said ways are punishable by indictment; for either, if they were not be punished at all: For they are no nuisances; but by keeping down the highways, to some particular persons; because if such action would lie, a multitude of suits would ensue. But it seems, that a way to a parish church, or to the common fields of a town, or to a village, which terminate there, may be called a private way; because it belongs not to all the King's subjects, but only to the particular inhabitants of such a parish, house or village, each of which, as it seems, may have an action for a nuisance therein.

Palm. 389. Cr. Etj. 63. 664. 1 Vent. 180, 258. 3 Kad. 28. Cr. Lit. 56. 6 Med. 225. 1 Harn. P. C. 201.

If passers have used time out of mind, when the roads are bad, to go by cutlets on the land adjoining to a highway in an open field, such cutlets are parcel of the highway; and therefore if they be sown with corn, and the track found, the King's subjects may go upon the corn. 1 Roll. Abr. 390. Cr. Cor. 526. S. C.

That every highway is to be the King's; yet this must be understood so as that every highway the King and his subjects may pass and repass at their pleasure, 2 Ed. 4. 9. 1 Roll. Abr. 392.

But the freehold, and all the profits, as trees, &c., belong to the lord of the soil, or to the owner of the lands on both sides of the way. 1 Roll. Abr. 392.

Also, the lord or owner of the soil shall have an action for trespass for digging the ground. 8 Ed. 4. 9. 1 Roll. Abr. 392.

But the lord of a rape, within which there are ten hundreds, may prefer to have all the trees growing within an highway within this rape, tho' the manor or land adjoining belongs to another; for alone to take the trees is a good badge of ownership. 1 Roll. Abr. 392. 1 Brow. 42. Nelf. 141.

1. If a man hath a right to a way; how such right must be claimed; and whether a highway may be changed?

2. If the owner is obliged to repair it by the Common law, and by reason of turbulence, tenantry, or prescription.

3. If who are compellable by statute to repair the highway.

4. If shall be affirmed for repairing the highway; and of other profits, and lands setted in trust for that purpose.

5. Of enlarging the highway.

6. Of appointing surveyors of the highways, and in what manner they ought to execute their office.

7. Of stopping a highway, and other nuisances therein by the Common law.

8. Of hedges and ditches, trees and bushes near and in the highways; of removing other encroachments; and the punishment of persons for taking away things made use of for the benefit of the highway.

9. Nuisances by drawing a carriage with more than six horses, or length, and by having empty carriages in the highway.

10. Nuisances by unlawful breach and tire of schools; and by riding upon carriages, or mischief of the drivers.

11. How perfect charges with respects relating to the highways are to be proceeded against.

13. If a man hath a right to a way; how such right must be claimed; and whether a highway may be changed.

A man may have a way either by prescription or grant, by reservation, or by way of privilege, and shall not in a war. clauded, be obliged to throw which way he claims it; but it will be sufficient for him to allege that it, &c., but in a bar or replication he must show his title precisely. 1 Vent. 774. 2 Lev. 148. 3 Kad. 528, 531. St. John v. Atch.

Vol. II. No. 22.

But he who preaches for a way, must fly in certain whether it is a foot, horse, or cart-way. Rel. 163. adjourned upon demur.

It in bar of an action of trespass the defendant pleads that T. S. and all those whose estate he hath in certain parts of his own lands, and themselves and their servants, time out of mind have used a way in & traverse the place where, &c., to the said lands; this is a good plain case if it is not shown a pass lane the said way is claimed, and the other, because it is claimed by prescription, which ought not to be laid in cert. lcs. 2 Ye. 103. adjourned.

If A be adjudged a fee of a backside in a town, and the high-street is next adjoining thereto of the East, and there is a gate in the backside which incloses in the street, the gate being in the East next to the street, and A is also feised in fee of a messuage and a piece of land near adjoining to the backside of the North of the backside, and by deed appoints B of the messuage and piece of land which are of the North of the backside, and by the same deed further grants to him and his heirs liber, ingressum, egressum, & regregium in, & extra rad. &c., and prescribes to the said messuage and piece of land, for the liberty is granted to him of ingress and egress in, & extra rad., &c., for to this the said messuages and pieces of land, for the liberty is granted to him of ingress and egress in, & extra rad., &c., to the said land, and appurtenant to the premises before granted. 1 Roll. Abr. 351. Halder and Holman.

In trespass for breaking his chaise if the defendant justify going over this clofe, because he hath used time out of mind to have a way over it from D. to Blackare, &c., the plaintiff replies, that at the time of the trespasses the defendant went with his carriages from D. to Blackare, &c., and being to a mill, he will not maintain his action, for when the defendant was at Blackare, he might go whither he would. 1 Roll. Abr. 391. Sanders and Meyin, and fee 1 Med. 190.

But it seems, that if a man hath a way for carriages from D. to Blackare over my clofe, and after he purchases land adjoining to Blackare, he cannot use the said way for carriages to the land adjoining, for then it may be very prejudicial to my clofe; but it seems, if I will help myself, I must shew the special matter, and that he used it for the land adjoining. 1 Rel. Abr. 391.

A way might be claimed as appentant or appurtenant to a house, because it is on an easement, and no interest. Yebo 159. But it may be good appenchant thereunto, and as such pass by grant thereof. Cr. Jas. 190.

If in bar to an action of trespass the defendant pleads, that if S. and all those whose estate he hath in certain lands, time out of mind for themselves and their servants, have had and used passagium in, &c., & traverse the place where, &c., & as justifies as servants, this is no plea, for passagium is properly a passage over water, and not over land; and he ought to have preferred in the way, and not in the passage, and should have used such words as are proper and known in the law. Yebo 163. adjourned.

A man may prefer for a way from his house thro' a certain clofe, &c., to church, though he himself has lands next adjoining to his said house, whereof which necessity he must shew pass for; for the general prescription shall be applied only to the lands of others. Palm. 387, 388. 2 Rol. Rep. 397.

Upon trial of an action of trespass a cafe was made, that the place where the supposed trespass was committed was formerly the property of the plaintiff, who since years since built a street upon it, which has ever since been used for a highway; and that defendant had land contiguous, parted only by a ditch, and they had a bridge over the ditch, the end whereof reflected in this highway. And it was affirmed for the defendant, that by the plaintiff's making it a street, it was a dedication of it to the public; and therefore however he might be liable to an indictment for a nuisance, yet the plaintiff... could not sue him as for a trespass on his private property. Sed per curiam; it is certainly a dedication to the publick, so far as the publick has occasion for it, which is only for a right of passage. But it never was underlaid to be a transfer of the absolute property in the soil. So the plaintiff had judgment. Stron. 1004. Hill. 8 Cas.

A man cannot allege, that he cannot use his way as well as he could before, but must plead that he could not use it at all. 1 H. 52. 53.

An ancient highway cannot be changed without an injunction found on a writ of All good durnons, that such change will be no prejudice to the publick; and it is said, that if one change a highway without such authority, he may flip the new way whenever he pleases; nor can he name a subject in an action brought against him for going over such new way, justify generally as in a common highway, but ought to sue for such change, by way of rescipe, how the old way was obstructed; and a new one set out; neither are the inhabitants bound to keep watch in such new way, or repair it; or to make amends for a robbery committed in it. Cr. Cn. 665. Vangb. 341. Wh. 141. 1 How. P. C. 201-2.

But it hath been held, that if a water, which hath been an ancient highway, by degrees changes its course, and goes over different ground from that whereon it used to run, yet the highway continues in the new channel in the same manner as in the old. 22 Aff. 53. 1 Rol. Abr. 350.

2. Who are obliged to repair the highways by the Common laws, and where a person shall be liable by reason of inclosure, tenure or prescription.

Of Common right, the general charge of repairing highways lies on the occupiers of lands in the parish wherein they lie; but it is said, that the tenants of the lands adjoining are bound to scour their ditches. 1 Rol. Abr. 39. March 26. 1 Vent. 90; 183. 8 Hn. 7.

Also if a parish is part in one county, and part in another, and the highways in one county are out of repair, the whole parish shall contribute to the repair; but there may be an agreement between the inhabitants, that the one shall repair one part, and the other the other; and such agreement is good between themselves, and for breach the one may have a action upon the other; but in an indictment they shall take no advantage of such agreements, for as to the King they are equally liable. 1 Med. 111. 1 Vent. 256. 3 Keb. 301.

Therefore if the indictment is general against all the parish, all the parish shall be charged; but if it be intended to charge one part or precinct of the parish, then the way in all the ways of the parish, it must be alleged in pleading, that by special prescription, or ratline tenure, such a part of the parish de temps dont, &c., have been charged with the repairation of the ways. 1 Vent. 256. 1 Med. 301.

But though the parish be obliged of common right to repair the highways in it, yet it is certain, that particular parsons may be bound to repair the highway, by reason of inclosure or prescription; as where the owner of the lands not inclosed, next adjoining to the highway, incloses his lands on both sides of it; in which case he is bound to make a perfect good way, and shall not be excused by making it as good as it was before the inclosure, if it were then any way defective, because by the inclosure he takes from the people the liberty of going over the lands adjoining to the common track. 1 Ed. 204. 300. 1 Sid. 404.

Also it is said, that if one incloses land on one side, which hath anciently been inclosed of the other side, he ought to repair all the way; but that there be no such ancient inclosure of the other side, he ought to repair but half the way. 1 Sid. 404.

There was an old hedge time out of mind belonging to A., on the one side of the way, and B., having land lying on the way, makes a new hedge.

there B. shall be charged with the whole repair. 1 Sid. 404. 2 Keb. 165. 2 Sound. 157.

But if A. makes a hedge on the one side of the way, and B. on the other, they shall be chargeable by moieties. 1 Sid. 404. 2 Keb. 165.

But it seems clear, that wherever a person makes himself liable to repair a highway by reason of inclosure, that by throwing of it open again, he thereby frees himself of the burden of any future repair. 2 Sound. 168.

Particular persons may be bound to repair a highway by prescription; and it is said, that a corporation aggregate may be charged by a general prescription, that it ought and hath used to do it, without any new consideration in respect whereof they had used to do it, because the corporation is a body, neither is it any plea, that they have done it out of charity; but it is said, that such a general prescription is not sufficient to charge a private person, because no man is bound to do a thing which his ancestors have done, unless it be for some special reason; as having lands devoted to him holden by such service, &c., but it seems, that an indictment charging a tenant of lands in fee with having used of right, to repair such a way ratline terre fiat, without adding, that his ancestors, or those whose estate he hath, have so done, is sufficient, for 'tis implied. 27 Aff. 48. 27 Id. 4. 38. Tr. Prefcription 49. 70. Keil. 53. a. Lard. 151. 179. 456.

And it seems certain in all these cases, whether a private person be bound to repair a highway by inclosure or prescription, that the parish cannot take advantage of it on the general issue, but must plead it specially; and that therefore, if to an indictment against the parish, for not repairing a highway, they plead Not guilty, this shall be intended only that the ways are in repair, but does not go to the right of repARATION. 1 Med. 111. 2 Keb. 301. 1 Vent. 256.

3. Thee are compellable by statute to repair the highway.

By fl. 3 & 3 Ph. c. 8. sect. 2. & Mer. 6, and 2 Car. 2. c. 12. sect. 9. "The parishioners of every parish shall endeavour themselves to amending of the highways therein, and shall be chargeable thereunto as followeth, that is to say, Every person for every ploughland in tillage or pasture, that he or the shall occupy in the parish, and every other person keeping there among any stock of cattle or any other beast, or any other necessaries to meet the things convenient for that purpose, be liable to work either men, women or boys, upon every day, every forty days making default, on the highway, and every houholder, and also every cottager and labourer of that parish able to labour, and being no hired servant by the year, shall by themselves, or one sufficient labourer for every of them, upon every of the fast days, work and travel in the amendment of the said highways, upon every of the fast days making default, to be thought needful by the surveyors, to be occupied upon any of the fast days, that then every such perfon that shall have set any such carriage, shall fend to the fast work, for every carriage to fered, two able men, three to labour for the day, upon pain to lose for every man not to fent to the fast work, twelve-pence; and every perfon and carriage above said, shall have and bring with them such fhovels, spades, picks, mattocks, and other tools and instruments: as they do make their own ditches, and do such as be necessary for the said work: And all the said perfons and carriages shall do and keep their work as they shall be appointed by the said supervisors, or one of them, eight hours of every of the said fast days, unless they shall be otherwise licensed by the said supervisors, or one of them."
the city of London,) that shall be affi detached to the payment of any subsidy to her Majesty, to five pounds in goods, or forty shillings in lands, or above, during all such time as they shall stand so detached, and not altered, and being any of the parties chargeable for the amendment of the highway law, but having attained the same two able men yearly to labour in the highways at the times appointed.

And it is further enacted by the said statute, sect. 3. "That every other that shall occupy a plough-land in tillage or pasture, lying in several parishes, shall be chargeable to the making of the ways within the parish where he dwelleth, as far forth, and in such manner and form as any person having a plough-land in any one parish, is or ought to be chargeable.

It was made a great doubt in the construction of these statutes, what should be accounted a plough-land within the purview thereof; for the setting whereof it was enacted by 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 29. "That any person that shall have in his or her occupation, wood-land or other land, to the value of fifty pounds per annum shall be adjudged and deemed to have a plough-land, as to all or any of the purposes before that statute made, or of concerning the highways, any thing in them, or any usage or custom to the contrary in any wife notwithstanding."

And it is further enacted by the above-mentioned statute of 72 Car. 2. c. 12. sect. 4. "That if in such places there be more than one surveyor or teams for the amendment of the highways, but the usage and practice in the carry flones, gravel, earth or other materials for such amendment, upon the backs of horses, or by any other kinds of carriages; that in all such places the inhabitants using any such carriages or other carriages, shall fend in such their horse as are accustomed to such kind of la bour, and such their other carriages, with able perfons to work with the same, in like manner, and under the like directions, forfeitures and penalties, as by any former statute for repairing of highways, is appointed for such carriages and teams.

In the execution of these statutes, the following opinions have been holden. 1. That clergy men are within these statutes in respect of their spiritual possessions, as much as any other persons in respect of any other possessions. 3 K. 255. 476. 1 Vent. 273. 2 Inf. 740. 2 Hanb. P. C. 204. -By statute 30 Geo. 2. c. 25. sect. 22. Perfons for serving themselves as surveyors in the Militia, shall during the time of such service be exempted from peremptorily doing any highway duty, commonly called statute-work.

2. That he who keeps a draught ought to fende a team, though he occupy no land in the parish, and in such manner as he who occupies a plough-land ought to fende a team, though he keep no stock. Exem. 185. 356. Dall. cap. 26. 2 Keb. 617.

3. That notwithstanding the words of the statute 39 & 30 Phil. & Mar. c. 6, extend only to the occupiers of land, yet if the owner neither occupy them, nor let them, but suffer them a lie free, he shall be charged as much as if he had occupie them only, and not suffer for his negligence. Palm. 580. 2 Ed. Rep. 412.

4. That he who keeps a draught and but two horses, ought to attend with them at the time appointed, and to carry such loads as they are able to carry. Dall. c. 26.

5. That it is no excuse for parishioners indicted at law or not repairing their highways, that they have done their full work required by statute; for the statute being in the affirmation, doth not abrogate any provision of his kind by the Common law. Dall. cap. 26. 1 Hanb. P. C. 204.

6. The King's charter, or letters patent, discharging certain lands from the duty of contributing to the repair of the highways, are not sufficient to exempt lands from the charge of the repairing the highways, which by the statute Phil. & Mary, and other subsequent statutes, are chargeable to be fended for that purpose. 3 Adb. 96. 1st and Whiteh, lowed by the said justices in their special fessions, shall be collected and gathered by the said surveyor or surveyors of the highways; and if any person or persons refuse to pay the monies so aslected on him or them, that then the same shall be levied upon the said surveyors, by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the persons refusing, rendering to the party the overplus, reasonable charges for making the said distress first to be deducted.

And it is enacted by the said flate, 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 12, sect. 14, "That no fines, illde, penalty or forfeiture, for more than two years, in case of default, shall be levied and paid into the county, or the county court, but shall be levied and paid into the hands of the surveyors of the parish or place, to be applied towards the repair and amendment of such highway; and that if any fine, penalty or forfeiture, imposed on any parish or place, for not repairing the highways, shall hereafter be levied on any one or more of the inhabitants of such parish or place, that then such inhabitant or inhabitants shall make his or their complaint to the justices of the peace at their special fessions; and the said justices, or any two of them, are by the said statute empowered and authorized by warrant under their hands and seals, to cause a rate to be made, according to the manner aforesaid, for the reimbursing such inhabitant or inhabitants the money so levied on him or them as aforesaid; which rate so made and confirmed by two justices as aforesaid, shall be collected and levied by the surveyor or surveyors of the highways of such parish or place so presented to or indicated as aforesaid, and the said surveyors shall, within one month next after the making and confirming the rate aforesaid, pay unto the inhabitant or inhabitants, such money so levied on him or them as aforesaid.

It is enacted by the said statute of 22 Car. 2. c. 12, sect. 2, "That where any lands have been, or shall be given for the maintenance of caufeyes, pavements, highways and bridges, all such persons that are or shall be enfeoffed or trufred with any such lands, shall let them to farm at the most improved yearly value without fine; and that the justices of the peace in their open fessions shall inquire by such ways and means as they think fit, into the value of all such lands given or to be given, and order the improvement and employment of the rents and profits thereof according to the will and direction of the donor of such lands, if they find that the persons so intrusted have been negligent or faulty in the performance of their trust, (except such lands have been given to the use aforesaid, to any court or corporation, or to any person, company or society of this kingdom, which have victors of their own,) any law, statute, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.”

5. Of enlarling the highway.

It is enacted by 13 Ed. 1. commonly called the statute of Windsor, cap. 5, "That highways leading from one market-town to another shall be enlarged, so that there be neither dyke, tree nor bough, whereby a man may lurk to do hurt, within two hundred foot of the one side, and two hundred foot of the other side of the way; and that the said authorities shall, in all cases, rectify great trees, &c., and if by default of the lord that will not avoid the dyke, understand, or hedges in the manner aforesaid, any robberies be done therein, the lord shall be answerable for the felony; and if murder be done, the lord shall make a fine at the King’s pleasure: And if the lord be not able to fell the woodlands, the country shall be held ill his behalf.

"And the King willeth, that in his demesne lands and woods within his forest and without, the ways shall be enlarged, as before is said. And if peradventure a park be taken from the highway, it is requisite that the lord shall for his part pay the space of two hundred feet from the highways, as before is said, or that he make such a wall, dyke or hedge, that offenders may not pass nor return to do evil.

Also it is enacted by the above-mentioned statute of 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 12, sect. 15, "That the surveyors of the highways shall make every cure-way leading to any market-town, eight feet wide at the least, and as near as may be even and level.”

And it is further enacted and declared by the same statute, sect. 21, "That no house, caufeway, or caufeway for the taking of such taxes and tolls, nor the goods and chattels of publick highway, be less or under three feet in breadth.”

Also it is enacted by 8 & 9 Ed. 3. cap. 15, sect. 1, "That the justices of the peace of any county, city, riding, division, liberty, or place, or the major part of them, being five at the least, at their quarter-fessions, shall on their oath examine by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the persons, who shall be found defaulting in their respective counties, divisions, ridings, liberties or places, so that the ground to be taken into the said highways shall not exceed eight yards in breadth; and that the said power do not extend to pull down any house, or to take away the ground of any garden, orchard, court or brickfield; And for the satisfaction of the persons of the owners of, or may be interested in the said ground that shall be laid into the said highways, the said justices are by the said statute empowered to impanel a jury before them, and to administer an oath to the said jury, that they will affix such damages to be given, and recompence to be made to the owners and others interested in the said ground, for their respective interests, as they shall think reasonable, not exceeding five and twenty years purchase for lands so laid out, and likewise such recompence as they shall think reasonable, for the making of a new ditch and fence to that line of the highway that shall be so enlarged, and also satisfaction to any person that may be affected thereby, for the enlargement of the said highways: And upon payment of the said money so awarded, or leaving it in the hands of the clerk of the peace of the respective county, for the use of the owner, or of others interested in the said ground, the interest of the said persons shall be for ever deriv’d out of them; and the ground that shall be laid into any highway by virtue of the said act, shall be afterward a publick highway to all intents and purposes whatsoever; and the said justices shall have power to order one or more affembements or affidgments to be made, levied or collected upon all and every the inhabitants, owner, or occupier of lands, houses, tenements or herdements, in their respective parishes or places that ought to receive the same, to such person or persons, and in such manner as the said justices at such stellements shall direct and appoint; and the money thereby raised shall be employed and accounted for, according to the order and direction of the said justices, for the enlargement of the said highways, and for the making the said ditches and fences: And the said affidiments shall, by order of the said justices, be levied by the overseers of the highways, by distress and sale of the goods of persons so affidicted, not paying the same within ten days after demand, rendering the overplus of the value of the goods so distrained to the owner or owners thereof, the necessary charges being first deducted.

But it is provided by the said statute, sect. 2, "That no such affidiments or affidments made in any one year for enlarging of highways, shall exceed the rate of his pense in the pound of the yearly income of any lands, houses, tenements or herdements, nor the rate of his pense in the pound for personal effects.

Also it is farther enacted by sect. 3, of the said statute, "That if any one or more shall be made by the said justices for the laying out of any ground for the enlarging of highways, the owners or proprietors of the said ground shall have free liberty, within eight months after such order, to cut down any wood or timber growing upon the said ground; and upon the neglect thereof, that the same shall be laid by order of the said justices.
and owners of such wood or timber shall receive the full of what shall be made thereof, the charges being first deducted.

It is farther enacted by sect. 5. of the said statute, "That any person aggrieved by any order or decree of the said justices may appeal to the judges of assize at the next assize held after the said order or decree shall be made; and any of the said judges who shall be nominated to the said justice of the peace shall reverse the said former order or decree, as in judgment they shall think fit, and if affirmed, to award costs against such appellants for their vexation and delay, and to caufe the same to be levied by diffrents and sale of the appilant's goods, rendering the overplus to the said appellants.

It is farther enacted by the said statute, sect. 6. "That any common highway shall be inclosed after a writ of Alios habemus issued, and ifquisition thereupon taken, any person aggrieved by such inclosure, may make his appeal to the quarter-sessions of the county to be held after such inclosure taken, which shall finally hear and determine such appeal; and if no such appeal be made, then the said inclosure and return entered and recorded by the clerk of the peace of such county at the quarter-sessions, shall be for ever afterwards binding to all persons whatsoever.

6. Of appointing surveyors of the highways; and how they ought to execute their office.

It is enacted by the 3 & 4 Will. & Mar. c. 12 sect. 1. "That upon the fifth and twentieth day of December in every year, unless that day be Sunday, and then on the seven and twentieth, the comftables, headboroughs, tithingmen, churchwardens, surveyor or surveyors of the highways, and inhabitants in every parish, shall assemble together, and the major part of them as are so assembled, shall make a lift of the names of a competent number of the inhabitants in their parish, who have an estate in lands, tenements or hereditaments in their own right or their wives, of the value of ten pounds by the year, or a personal estate of the value of one hundred pounds, or are occupants or tenants of houces, lands, tenements or hereditaments, of the yearly value of thirty pounds, if any such there be; or if there be no such inhabitants, then the said lift to be of the most sufficient inhabitants of such parish, and shall return such a lift unto two or more of the justices of the peace in or near the division of the county in which their parish lies, at a special feftion to be held for that purpose within the said division, on the third day of January next following, at which it shall begin on a Sunday, and then to be the fourth of the said month, or within fifteen days after; for which purpose the said justices are required to hold a special feftion at some place within that division where the said feftion lies, and to give notice of the time and place where they intend to hold the same, to the said comftables, headboroughs, tithingmen, churchwardens, and surveyors of the highways of every parish within the said division, at least ten days before the holding of the said feftions; and the said justices shall then and there, out of the said lifts, according to their discretion, and the largenes of the parish, by warrant under the hand and seal of them and one or more of them, as they shall think fit and approve of, being of like sufficiency as afoforeaid, to be surveyor or surveyors of the highways of every parish within the said division, or for any hamlet, precinct, liberty, tithing or town, of and in the said division, for the year ensuing, to take a survey of all the said common highways, highways and water-courses, bridges, caufeways and pavements within the parish, town, village or liberty, and to return to the justices of the peace of the county, and in default thereof shall incur the penalty afoforeaid, as if he or they had renounced or neglected to accept and execute the said office, unless he shall have some reasonable excuse for omitting the same, to be allowed by two justices of the peace of the said division, &c. And when defaults and negligence they shall think fit and proper, to be made known in any of the said highways, &c. they shall from time to time, the next Sunday immediately after sermon, give publick notice of the same in the parish church, and if the said highway be not removed, repaired and amended within thirty days after such notice given, that then the said surveyors or surveyors shall be discharged, and the highway may be opened and repaired, and amended the same, and dispofed of the said annoyance, to and for the repair of the said highway; and the said surveyors or surveyors shall be reimbursed what charges and expenses they shall be at in doing, by the parties who should have done the same, and in case of any party's neglect to pay the said surveyors their said charges, then the said surveyors shall apply themselves to any justice of the peace within the division of the county wherein such highways lie.
Highways are, and in default thereof to any neighbouring justice for the said county, and upon his or their making oath before such justice of the notice to the defaulters in manner aforesaid, the said surveyors shall repay all such their charges, as shall be allowed to be reasonable by the said justice, to be recovered in manner aforesaid, as is set forth by law. And for every such surveyor, as shall cause any such fees to be made and digged for gravel, sand, cinders, as is aforesaid, shall within one month next after such digging or pit made, cause the said field to be filled and topped up with earth, at the costs and charges of the parishioners; upon pain to forfeit to the owner of the said field, of the said field, for the highways hereby shall be made and digged, for every default five marks, to be recovered by action by debt,

And it is farther enabled by the same statute, sect. 6, "That every supervisor shall within the limits where he shall be supervisor, have authority to turn a water-course, or spring of water, being in any highway, or in the pleasure ground of any of the several persons or places, whatever next adjoining to the said highways, in such manner as by the said supervisors shall be thought meetest."

But by sect. 26 Geo. 3. cap. 28. it is enacted, "That if any person shall, by reason of getting any gravel, sand, flocks, chaff, or other materials, for the making of any highways, or for the making of any water-courses, or putting down gravel, or for any other purpose, whatsoever, make or cause to be made any pit or hole in any common, heath, or waste ground, he shall forthwith cause the same to be sufficiently fenced off, during such time as it shall be continued open, and shall, within fourteen days after digging for such materials in such pit or hole, cause the same to be filled up, and all the materials to be brought away, and if he shall not fill up, slope down or fence off the same, and keep the said fence from time to time in good repair, one justice on view, or of one of the witnesses, may order him to fill up, properly slope down, or fence off the same; and when any fence shall be let up, may order the same to be repaired, and that he shall forthwith cause such order in ten days after his receipt thereof, or the same being left at his usual place of abode, and due proof being made, upon oath before any one justice, of the offence committed, of the service of such order, and of his refusal or neglect to comply therewith, such person shall forfeit not exceeding ten pounds, or else forthwith, to be laid out in filling up, sloping down, or fencing off the same, and towards the repair of the roads in the parish or place where the offence shall be committed, and in such manner, as the justice shall direct; which forfeiture in case the same be not forthwith paid, shall be levied by the several by warrant of such justice, in such way as shall be thought fit and convenient for the purpose thereof."

It is enacted by 5 El. 13. "That it shall be lawful for the surveyors of the highways, for the better proportion and amendment of the ways within their several parishes and limits where they shall be supervisors (if it shall be so to them thought meet), to make or cause to be made, and digged out of, any quarry or quarries, or any gravel, and being within the parish where they shall be surveyors, without licence, controlment or imprisonment of the owner, so much as by their directions shall be deemed necessary for the amendment of the said highways: And that for default of any quarry or quarries within their several parishes and limits, or in default of rubish not to be found in any such quarry, it shall be lawful for every such surveyor, for the use aforesaid, in the several grounds of any person or persons being within the parish and limits where they shall be surveyors, and no adjoining to the way wherein such reparations shall be thought needful, to make or cause to be made, and digged out of, any gravel, or cinders is like to be found, to dig or cause to be digged for gravel, sand or cinders, and likewise to gather flones lying upon any lands or grounds within the parish, and meet to be used to such purpose, and thereof to take and carry away so much as by the discretion of the said surveyors shall be thought necessary, so as not to be prejudicial to any owner or occupier of the said lands, or any other person or persons having any estate, interest, or reversion in the same, but it is provided by the said statute, sect. 6. "That it shall not be lawful to any such supervisor, by virtue of the afo, to cause any rubish to be digged out of any quarry or quarries, but only shall extend to such rubish as shall be found there ready digged, or for any quarries, or otherwise by his or their licence and command, nor shall not extend or give authority to any supervisor to dig or cause to be digged any gravel, sand, or cinders in the houfe, garden, orchard, or meadow of any person, nor that it shall be lawful to any such supervisor to cause any more pits to be digged for gravel in any several and included ground than one only; and that the same pit or hole so digged for gravel as is aforesaid, shall not by any way be in breadth or length, above the lengthen of the said house, and the breadth of the said house, and the breadth of the land the house is upon; And every such supervisor, as shall cause any such pit to be made and digged for gravel, sand, cinders, as is aforesaid, shall within one month next after such digging or pit made, cause the said field to be filled and topped up with earth, at the costs and charges of the parishioners; upon pain to forfeit to the owner of the said field, of the said field, for the highways hereby shall be made and digged, for every default five marks, to be recovered by action by debt,

And it is farther enabled by the same statute, sect. 6, "That every supervisor shall within the limits where he shall be supervisor, have authority to turn a water-course, or spring of water, being in any highway, or in the pleasure ground of any of the several persons or places, whatever next adjoining to the said highways, in such manner as by the said supervisors shall be thought meetest."

But by sect. 26 Geo. 3. cap. 28. it is enacted, "That if any person shall, by reason of getting any gravel, sand, flocks, chaff, or other materials, for the making of any highways, or for the making of any water-courses, or putting down gravel, or for any other purpose, whatsoever, make or cause to be made any pit or hole in any common, heath, or waste ground, he shall forthwith cause the same to be sufficiently fenced off, during such time as it shall be continued open, and shall, within fourteen days after digging for such materials in such pit or hole, cause the same to be filled up, and all the materials to be brought away, and if he shall not fill up, slope down or fence off the same, and keep the said fence from time to time in good repair, one justice on view, or of one of the witnesses, may order him to fill up, properly slope down, or fence off the same; and when any fence shall be let up, may order the same to be repaired, and that he shall forthwith cause such order in ten days after his receipt thereof, or the same being left at his usual place of abode, and due proof being made, upon oath before any one justice, of the offence committed, of the service of such order, and of his refusal or neglect to comply therewith, such person shall forfeit not exceeding ten pounds, or else forthwith, to be laid out in filling up, sloping down, or fencing off the same, and towards the repair of the roads in the parish or place where the offence shall be committed, and in such manner, as the justice shall direct; which forfeiture in case the same be not forthwith paid, shall be levied by the several by warrant of such justice, in such way as shall be thought fit and convenient for the purpose thereof."

It is enacted by 5 El. 13. sect. 7. "That where any soil hath been cast into the common highway, or common faring way, that there is a bank between the said way and the ditch, it shall be lawful for the said supervisors, &c. to make flives or other devices by their discretion, to convey the water of the said ditch, by any of the said ways into the ditch; any law, right, interest or usage to the contrary notwithstanding."

And it is farther enabled by the said statute of 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 12. "That it shall be lawful for the said surveyors, where the ditches and drains already made are not sufficient to carry off the water that lies upon the highways, or the ditches and drains laid the next adjoining to the said highways, and keep them sixured, cleansed and open, and come upon any of the said lands with their workmen for so doing."
It is said, that he who hath lands next adjoining to a highway, is bound of common right to scour his ditches; but it is said, that he who hath lands next adjoining to such lands, is not bound by the Common law so to do, without some special prescription for that purpose; and perhaps it is the better opinion, that he who hath trees next adjoining to the highway, and hanging over into it, to which people have not been allowed by the Common law to lop the same, and it seems clear, that any person may justify the lopping such trees, so far as to avoid the nuisance.

It is further enacted by 18 Eliz. c. 10. sect. 5. "That where a ditch shall not repair, ditch, or scour any ditches, or hedges adjoining on either side, to any high or common faring way, shall be kept and repaired, and kept low, by the owner or owners of the ground or soil, which shall be inclosed with the said hays, fences, dikes, or hedges aforefaid, &c.

And it is further enacted by 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 12. "That if any occupier or occupier of lands next adjoining to any highway, shall neglect to cleanse or scour their ditches, ditches and ditches adjoining to the said highways, or the earth taken out thereof, to be carried away, and left sufficient trunks, tunnels or bridges where any cart-ways are, into the said highways, for the passage of ten days after notice thereof given by a surveyor, &c. every such offender shall forfeit five shillings, &c.

And it is further enacted by the said statute of 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 12. "That the poultries of the land next adjoining to any highways, where they are not twenty feet broad, shall neglect to cleanse or scour their ditches, ditches and ditches adjoining to the said highways, or the earth taken out thereof, to be carried away, and left sufficient trunks, tunnels or bridges where any cart-ways are, into the said highways, for the passage of ten days after notice thereof given by a surveyor, &c. every such offender shall forfeit five shillings, &c.

But it is no nuisance for an inhabitant of a town to unlace billets, &c. in the street before his house, by reason of the necessity of the case, unless he suffer them to continue there an unreasonable time. 2 Rol. Ad. 137.

Any one may justify pulling down, or otherwise destroying a common nuisance, as a new gate or houff erected in a highway; and it hath been of late holden, that there is no need, in pleading such justification, to shew that a ditch, hedges, or anything, might have been made by a Roll. Ad. 144. "That the highway, or inadmissible.

Alfo besides that all nuisances are punishable by inadmissible with fine and imprisonment, it is said, that one convicted of a nuisance to the highway, may be com- presentment for what or for asking any things made use of for the benefit of the highway.

It is said, that he who hath lands next adjoining to a highway, is bound of common right to scour his ditches; but it is said, that he who hath lands next adjoining to such lands, is not bound by the Common law so to do, without some special prescription for that purpose; and perhaps it is the better opinion, that he who hath trees next adjoining to the highway, and hanging over into it, to which people have not been allowed by the Common law to lop the same, and it seems clear, that any person may justify the lopping such trees, so far as to avoid the nuisance.

It is thus enacted by 6 Ann. c. 29. "That if any surveyor shall neglect to put either that or any former law for repairing highways in execution, he shall forfeit five pounds, to be levied by dirifets, &c. by warrant of one justice of the peace."

7. Of lodging a highway, and other nuisances therein by the Common law.

It is clearly agreed to be a nuisance to dig a ditch, or make a hedge over-thwart the highway, or to erect a new gate, or to lay logs of timber in it, or generally to do any other act which will render it less commodious.

Kitchin 34. 1 Haw. P. C. 212.

Also it is agreed, that it is no excuse for him who lays logs in the highway, that he laid them only here and there, for that the people might have a passage thro' them by windings and turnings. 2 Roll. Ad. 137. 1 Haw. P. C. 212.

It is a nuisance to suffer the highway to be incommoded by reason of the foulefts, &c. of the adjoining ditches, or by boughs of trees hanging over it. &c. And it is said, that the owner of land next adjoining to the highway, ought of common right to scour his ditches; but that the owner of land next adjoining to such land, is not bound by the Common law so to do without a special prescription; alfo it is said, that the owner of trees hanging over the highway, to the annoyance of travellers, is bound by the Common law to cut them down, and it is clear that any other person may lop them, so far as to avoid the nuisance. 8 H. 7. 5 a. Kitch. 34. Dalh. cap. 26. 1 Haw. P. C. 212. 213.
by any hedges, trees, bushes, or branches whatsoever, and that the fun may freely flume the fads ways to dry and amend the fame.

Also it is further enacted by the above-mentioned flature of 18 El. 13, cap. 6, "That every occupier of lands adjoining to the grounds adjoining to any highway, or common farring way, where any ditching or feeworing fhould or ought to be as afofrad, fhall from time to time, as need fhall require, ditch and feewor in his own grounds adjoining to the highway, or over the ground next adjoining, may have pallage over fuch next ground adjoining; so pain of forfeiture for every time fo offending for every rod not fo ditched and feewored, twelve pence.

And by Stat. 1 Geo. I. c. 2, s. 2, feft. 8, "If any perfon who ought to fcur and keep open ditches and water-courses adjoining to highways, and not to remove any annoyances fhall, by the space of thirty days after notice given by the surveyors, neglect to do the fame, or fhall leave the earth of ditches foured in the highways for eight days, oath being made thereof by the surveyors before the juries at their fpecial fessions; fuch offender fhall pay twenty pounds for every such ditch and water-course, and keep open forfeit two flulings fhould, and for each other offence afofrad, any fun not exceeding five pounds nor under twenty fhulings, to be levied by duiffs and fide; fuch forfeitures fhall be applied by the surveyors to the amendment of the highways: And the surveyors are authorized to open new ditches and water-courses, and to remove all annoyances, and where the ditches and drains are not fufficient to carry off the water, to make new ditches and drains through the lands adjoining, and keep them open.

Stat. 7 Geo. 2. cap. 9, feft. 1, "If the surveyors of the highways fhall find any highway deep and rounded, and the hedges adjoining to be fo high as to prevent the benefit of the in and winds, it fhall be lawful for fuch surveyors to make preffumpfion of fuch hedges to the juftices of peace, who live in or near the division where the highway is, at their fpecial fessions held for fuch purpofes; which juftices, or two of them, are empowered to fummons the occupiers of the lands, whose hedges are prefumed to be, to appear at the next publick meeting of the juftices, to shew caufe why fuch hedges fhould not be new made or cut low; and if it fhall appear that fuch way is deep and rounded, and damaged by the height of fuch adjoining hedges, the juftices of the peace, or their prefident, fhall then be required to inftruct fuch of the surveyors of the highways of the parish where fuch hedges are, directing fuch surveyors to leave notice in writing at the place of abode of fuch perfon, that they are required to new-make or cut low the fads hedges, within thirty days after fuch notice (provided fuch notice be given between the lat of Spelder and the 5th of February); and in case of their negleét to do the fame, the surveyors are required to exeute the hedges to be new-made or cut low, fo as fuch hedges be left three foot high above the bank.

Sect. 2. Such perfonfs as fhall negleét to new-make or cut low fuch hedges, fhall repay to the not new-made or cut low, and fuch perfonf fhall have been put to on that occafion, and in cafe of negleét to repay fuch expences within fourteen days after the fame fhall have been demanded, the juftices at their monthly or other publick meeting, in or near the division where the hedges are fituated, are to ifte out a precept to the confabiles and both liders, or other officers of the place, requiring them to levy for the payment of fuch surveyors, fuch fums of money as the fads expences fhall amount unto, upon the goods of fuch perfonfs as have negleéted to pay the fame.

Sect. 3. Provided, that nothing herein fhall alter the laws in relation to timber trees, which grow in hedges adjoining to the highways.

As to remuving trees and bushes from the highway, it appears from the above-menentioned flature of 12 Hen. 3, cap. 5, that no small tree or biff, whereby a man may lurk to do hurt, ought to be fured to stand within two hundred feet of either fide of a highway leading from one market town to another.

And it is further enacted by the faid flature of 5 El. 13, feft. 7, "That all trees and bushes growing in the highway, fhould be cut down by the owner or owners of the same, or the land, or the lands wherein the same grow, and it is also enacted by the faid flature of 18 El. 13, feft. 7, "That whenever fhall not cut down or keep low all trees and bushes growing in or next adjoining to any the fads ways, according to the intent of the above-mentioned flature of 1 El. 13, fhould forfeit ten flulings.

As it is enacted by the faid flature of 7 8 H. 3 & M. c. 12, that no tree, bush or shrub fhall be permitted to fland or grow in any highway not full twenty feet broad, but the fame fhall be cut down, grubbed up, and carried away by the owner or owners of the land or foil where the fame fhall fland or grow, within ten days after notice to him or them given by the faid surveyors, or any of them, on pain to forfeit for every neglect five flulings, &c.

As to the manner every other annoyances obftrucling the highway are to be removed; it feems clear, that by the Common law any one may abate a nuisance to a highway, and remove the materials, but not convert them to his own ufe; also it feemeth, that an heir may be inflicted for continuing an intercouch, or other nuisance to a highway, begun by his ancestor, because such a continuance thereof amounts in the judgment of law to a new nuisance. 1 Hard. 214.

But in the Common law not having been thought sufficiently to have provided against micthiefs of that kind, it was enacted by tie above mentioned flature of 18 El. c. 10, part. 7, "That no perfon having any ground adjoining to any highway, or common farring way, leading to any market town, fhall cut or feewor any ditch, and throw or load the soil thereof into the highway, and fuffer it to be there by the face of fix months to the annoyance of the faid highway, or common farring way, upon pain of forfeiture for every load of foid to call into the highway, or common farring way, in ditching or feeworing, twelve pence: And that the surveyors may make fuches through banks occasioned by the cattling such foil into an highway, &c.

And it is further enacted by the faid flature of 3 & 4 H. 3 & M. c. 12, that no perfon fhall lay in any highway, not twenty feet broad, any fline, timber, fraw, dung or other matter, whereby the fame fhall be any ways obftrueld or annoyed; on pain to forfeit for every such obftruclion, &c. in the above-mentioned flature, &c. as fhall be faid and added. That if any timber, fraw, hay, fraw, flibble or other matter for the making of dung, or on any other pretence whatsoever, fhall be laid in any fuch highway as afofrad, whereby the fame fhall be any ways obftruclion or annoyed, the owners or polleffors of the lands next adjoining the faid fame, fhall fuffer the faid timber, fraw, hay, fraw, flibble or other matter, and have, take, and difpofe of the fame to his and their own ufe; and if any fuch owner or occupier of lands next adjoining to the faid highways, fhall negleét to clear the fads ways of the fads nuisances, he fhall forfeit five flulings, &c. and the repons of perfonps for taking away things made ufe of for the benefice of highways, it is enacted by the above-mentioned flature of 7 & 8 Will. 3, c. 29, "That every perfon who fhall pull up, cut down or remove any poult, block, great flone, bank of earth or other security, which was fet up, placed, and made for fecuring any horfe or foot cufter in a publick highway from waggons, wains and cartes, fhall, upon complaint to any juftice of the peace of the place or division where such offence fhall beproved by the oath of one credible witnes, &c. forfeit twenty flulings, one moiety thereof to the surveyors, &c. and the other moiety to him that fhall discover the fame."
9. Nuisance by drawing a carriage with more than six horses in length; and by having empty carriages in the highways.

It is enacted by the above-mentioned statutes of 22 Car. 2. cap. 12. par. 6, 7 and 8, 23 H. 3. c. 39. and also by 6 Ann. c. 29, and 9 Ann. c. 18. and 1 Geo. 1. c. 2. § 11. "That no travelling waggon, wain, cart or carriage, wherein any burdens, goods and wares shall be conveyed for hire or for sale, shall be drawn by more than five horses, as shall be employed in or about husbandry and manuring of land; and in carrying of hay, straw, corn unthreshed, chalk, timber for shipping, materials for building, stones of all sorts or such ammunition or artillery as should be for the service of his Majesty, his heirs or successors; and if any horse or horses shall exceed the number as shall be employed in or about husbandry and manuring of land, and in carrying of hay, straw, corn unthreshed, chalk, timber for shipping, materials for building, stones of all sorts or such ammunition or artillery as should be for the service of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, shall be levied on the owner, or driver of such cart or waggon, to help such insufficient horses up such uphill, or out of such foul place, on pain of forfeiting five pounds, one moiety to the surveyor of the highways of the place where such offence shall be committed, for the repairs of the said highways, and the other moiety to him who shall recover thereby and profectute for the same, to be levied by diists of all or any of the horses, oxen or beasts of any person offending against the said statutes, which diists may be made by any person whatsoever, (without any warrant, as it is deemed from 9 Ann. c. 18.) And the beasts so diisted are to be delivered forthwith to the surveyor of the highways, or other parish officer, from the plae where the offence shall be committed; and if the said penalty be not paid within three days, the said surveyor or other parish officer may, by warrant of one justice of the peace, if the said officer or his officers shall be bound thereby to the said justice, who is to distribute the said diists in the manner above directed, rendering the overplus to the owner, the charges being first deducted; and if the offender shall immediately pay the said penalty to the person who shall make such diists, or to the surveyor, or other parish officer where the offence shall be committed, then the person so receiving the same shall deliver it to the next justice of the peace, to be by him distributed as aforesaid. Provided that if any person shall refuse or neglect to carry any of the said beasts by him so diisted to the surveyor, or other parish officer as aforesaid, he shall forfeit to the said justice of the peace, of the said penalty of the party so diisted, by warrant of one justice of the peace, and if any surveyor, or other parish officer, shall refuse or neglect to deliver any sum of money, or penalty by him received to the said justice, he shall forfeit twenty pounds, to be levied, &c. as aforesaid. And it is further enacted by the said statute of 9 Ann. c. 18. That if any person employed by any carrier, or other person subject to the penalties mentioned in the said act, shall drive, or assist in the driving of any travelling waggon, &c. with more than six horses, &c. the person so offending shall forfeit five pounds, to be levied, and diisted as in like manner as the forfeitures before mentioned are directed and appointed. Stat. 5 Geo. 1. cap. 12. § 1. No waggon, travelling for hire, shall go or be drawn with more than six horses; and no cart, travelling for hire, shall go or be drawn with more than three horses (four horses by 16 Geo. 2. c. 20.) or ofable objections. Why is not the person who feized, and is to be made the benefit of the said basis, and the reason of excluding informers where there is a penalty? Making proof must mean legal proof. The other also is not natural justice. There are exceptions in the act as to one horse, or one piece of timber, so drawn by ever so many horses; and ought not the owner to have an opportunity of proving it? The rule was dischargd with cofis. Stran. 1181. Hill, 16 Geo. 2. Rex v. Ser-
...
the offender shall be apprehended; and if there be no other officer, then to some other officer for the use of the poor as aforesaid.
And by sec. 9, 10, of the 4th statute, if the driver of any wagon, cart, car, dray, or other carriage, on any publick highway, shall ride upon any such carriage, not having some other person lawfully entitled to ride upon such carriage as are drawn by one horse only, or by two horses abreast, and be conducted by some person holding the reins, excepted,) or if the driver of any carriage whatsoever, on any of the said highways, shall, by negligence or willful misbehaviour, interface the free passage to any other carriage, or he shall remove the said highways; or if the driver of any empty or unloaded wagon, cart or other carriage, shall refuse or neglect to turn aside, and make way for any coach, chaise, chariot, loaded wagon, cart, or other loaded carriage, he shall, on conviction by confession, or oath of one witness, before one justice, forfeit any sum not exceeding £20, by dint of, for want of sufficient diligence, to be committed to the house of correction, or some other prison of the place where the offence shall be committed, or the offender shall be apprehended, to be kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding one month. The said justice shall certify the said prisoner, by the sub-sector, to the sheriff of the county where the offence shall be committed, to be committed, or shall by him applied in the repair of the highways within such parish.
Sect. 11. And if he shall refuse to discover his name and place of abode to the justice before whom he shall be summoned, he shall be committed for trial to some constable or other peace officer, and shall be conveyed or convicted to the common bail or house of correction of the place where the offence shall be committed, there to remain until he shall declare his name and place of abode to the said justice, or to other justice of that place.
Sect. 12. If any person shall be convicted of any offence committed against this act, may by authority of this act,
and without any other warrant, apprehend the offender,
and shall with all convenient speed convey or deliver him to a constable or other peace officer of the place where the offence shall be committed or the offender shall be apprehended, in order to be conveyed before a justice,
there to be dealt with according to law.
Sect. 13. And any person shall be admitted to be an evidence, notwithstanding his being an inhabitant of the place where the offence shall be committed.
Sect. 15. Provided, That persons punished by this act shall not be punished by any former law.

11. How persons charged with offences relating to the highways are to be proceeded against; and how such persons may defend themselves.

It is enabled by the above-mentioned statute, 2 & 3
Ph. & Mar. cap. 8, sec. 2, "That the sum of every lump may be ascertained by the oath of the shippers of all offences which shall be committed within the limits of every of the said highways, and to afford such fines and assessments for the same, as shall be thought meet by the said justices and any person whom they shall appoint in the said premises for that purpose; and that the amount shall be paid to the constable and churchwardens of such places, and that all arrears that shall be made, the same to be yearly delivered within six weeks after the last court of Michaelmas: And the clerk of the peace shall make the like oath indented of the fines, for the defaults preferred before the justices of the peace, and any such oath shall be sufficient warrant for the said bailiff or chief constable, to levy the said fines, &c. by way of different; And if two sufficient diffs are not given as directed above, or if the said offender shall otherwise refuse to pay the said fine, &c. and do not pay the same within twenty days after a lawful demand of the same by the said officers, he shall forfeit double the sum that he should before had paid, and be liable for
And it is further enacted by the said statute, sect. 3.
That every of the said bailiffs and head constables, shall be at least once every year, before the first day of March and the last day of April, make a true account and paygent of all such sums of money (to the constable and churchwardens of every parish where the offences were committed, or two of them,) as shall be collected upon any of the said offenders on pain of, to forfeit for every time he shall not do, forty shillings.

And it is further enacted by the said statute, sect. 4.
That all fines, &c. which shall be due for any offence against the provisions thereof shall be to the churchwardens of every parish wherein the offence shall be committed, to be bestowed on the highways in the said parishes; And the said churchwardens shall have authority to call the said bailiff and head constable accountable to before the justices of peace, or two of them, whereof one to be appointed for the purpose, shall furnish information or otherwise; The which justices shall have authority to commit the said constable and head constable to prison till he shall pay all such arrears as shall be adjudged by the said justices; and every of the said bailiffs and head constables upon their accounts shall have power and authority to apprehend and collect and pay, eightgence for his own pains, and trouble, and to escape for the fees of the clerk of the peace, or steward of the, where the effect intended of every several parish that they shall deliver as is aforesaid; and the successors of every churchwarden shall have the like action of account against their predecessors, as is before appointed against the bailiff.

And it is enacted by the above-mentioned statute of 5
El. c. 13. sect. 8. That every surveyor shall within one month after any default or offence against the said statute of 2 & 3 Ph. & M. c. 8. or the said statute of 5 El. c. 13.
present every offence to the next justice of peace,
on pain to forfeit for every such offence in such fort, not by him preferred, forty shillings: And that every such justice of peace to whom any such offence
shall be so preferred, shall certify the same to the next general county session; on pain to forfeit, for not certifying of such. Such presentments of every such offence, five pounds; and that the justices of peace of every county where the said offences shall be committed,
may inquire thereof at their quarter-sessions, and affix
such fines for the same, as they or two of them, whereof
one to be of the seigneur, shall think meet.

And it is further enabled by the said statute, par. 9.
That every justice of peace may of his own proper knowledge, in the open general sessions, make presentment of any highway not well and sufficiently repaired and amended, or of any other default or offence, contrary to either of the said statutes of 2 & 3 Ph. & M. c. 8. or the said statute of 5 El. c. 13. present every such offence in such peace, on pain to forfeit for every such offence in such fort, not by him preferred, forty shillings: And that every
such justice of peace to whom any such offence
shall be so preferred, shall certify the same to the next general county session; on pain to forfeit, for not certifying of such such presentment of every such offence, five pounds; and that the justices of peace of
every county where the said offences shall be committed,
may inquire thereof at their quarter-sessions, and affix
such fines for the same, as they or two of them, whereof
one to be of the seigneur, shall think meet.

And that for every such default as preferred, as is aforesaid, the justices of peace of the said county shall have authority to affix such fines, as to them, or two of them, whereof the one to be of the seigneur, shall be thought meet: Saving to every person that shall be touched by any such presentment his lawful traverse to the fame presentment, as he might have under the common law; and the cause of forfeiture entry by the laws of this realm before the making of this statute.

It hath been held in the execution of this clause, that the party against whom such a presentment shall be made, cannot take any traverse to the want of repair of such highway; but it is agreed, that he may plead that some other
other person ought to repair the same, and traverse his own obligation to do it. Neither it is obvious upon what reason the former opinion is grounded, that he cannot traverse the want of repair of such highway, for since the statute expressly gives to every person, who shall be touched by any such pretenement, his lawful traverse to the same, as he might have to an indictment of trespasses or other things, it follows, if he is touched, that every defendant to any such indictment may traverse the whole matter alleged against him, why may he not as well have the same benefit in the present case? And though the record of a justice of peace setting by force of any statute as a judge, be not traversable; yet it seems hard by such a generality as to make any person not traversable, which, by the express words of the statute, which authorizes the making of it, is allowed to be traversable: It is true indeed, that a pretenement in a court hlet is not traversable, unless it touch the party's freethed; but I do not see why such a pretenement in pursuance of this statute should have the like privilege, since the statute hath no mention of such pretenements in courts-leet, but gives the like traverse as is allowed by law upon any indictment of trespass, &c. 1 Hawk. P. C. 217.

It is farther enacted by the said statute of 5 El. c. 13. sect. 10. That all such fines, &c. as shall be suffered by the said pretenements, shall be elided and levied in due manner, and imposed to such uses and intents, as in the said statute of 2 & 3 P& H. are appointed.

And it is farther enacted by the said statute of 18 El. c. 10. sect. 8. That all justices of alms, justices of outer and inner, and justices of the peace in their sittings, and towards oaths, in their leets, shall hear and determine every offence, matter and causes, that shall grow, come, or arise, by reason of the said statute.

Alfo it is enacted by the said statute of 22 Car. 2. c. 12. sect. 9. That if any person shall fail in his respective day's labour in every year towards the repairing of the highways, or neglect to lend his respective carriages, &c. required of him, the forejours enated to move to the next justices of the peace, who shall, upon proof by oath of one credible witnes, by leave of dirstres and sale of goods, &c. for every day-labourer failing as aforesaid, one shilling and sixpence; and for every man and house that shall make default, three shillings, and for every cart with two men, ten shillings, for every respective day wherein they shall make default; which penalties shall be employed towards the repairs of the highways.

And it is further enacted by the same statute, sect. 10. and 3 & 4 Will & Mar. c. 12. That the allotments to be made of the several of these statutes for the repairs of the highways, shall be levied by dirstres and sale of the goods of every person so afflicted, not paying the same within ten days after demand, rendering the overplus to the owner, the necessary charges being first deducted.

It is enacted by the said statute of 22 Car. 2. c. 12. sect. 4. That all defects of repairs of cauces, pavements, highways or bridges, shall be presented in the county only, where such cauces, &c. lie, and not elsewhere; and that no such pretenement or indictment shall be removed by certiorari, or otherwise, out of the said county, till such indictment or pretenement be traversed, and judgement thereupon given.

And it is farther enacted by the said statute of 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 12. That all matters concerning highways, causes, pavements and bridges, mentioned in the said act, shall be determined in the county where the same do lie, and not elsewhere; and that no pretenement, indictment or diversity, made by virtue of the said act, shall be removed by certiorari out of the said county into any other court.

Yet it hath been resolved, That if the quarter-seffions, under pretence of the jurisdiction given them by these statutes, take upon them to do any thing manifefly excepted to them, as to make an order on forreators on the highways to make up their accounts, before a special seffion, their proceedings may be removed by certiorari into the King's Bench, and there quashed; for the quarter-seffions have no manner of power given them to intermediate originally with such accounts, but only by way of appeal. 1 Hawk. 215.

A certiorari was granted to remove an indictment for not doing the statute labour in the highways, on producing a precedent where it was done, in the case of Rex v. Eddon, 12 Geo. 1. Strange 894. Mich. 3 Geo. 2. Rex v. citizens of Enkawshe.

An order was made on the 7 & 8 Will. 3. c. 29. for the parish at large to repair the highways, the 6d. in the pound levied on the inholders not being sufficient. And a certiorari being moved for, it was objected 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 12. had taken it away; to which it was answered, that the objection was held to be without a final law.

Sec per certiorari. They must both be taken together; the latter rate must be made in aid of the inholders, by virtue of the former law. So a certiorari was denied. Strange 9444. Alien. 6 Geo. 2. Rex v. inhabitants of Eskiwall.

Upon motion to quash a certiorari to remove an indictment against the defendants at seffions, for not repairing a bridge: it was infibled, that by 1 Ann. cap. 18. the certiorari is taken away. To which it was answered, and resolved by the court, That this act extended only to bridges where the county is charged to repair, and that where a private person or parish is charged, and the right of the public is in question, the act of 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 11. had allowed a certiorari to be removed by certiorari, and therefore the court refused to quash. Stran. 920. Easf. 4 Geo. 2. Rex v. inhabitants of Hamworth.

It is enacted by the said statute of 3 & 4 W. & M. 12. That no person shall be punished for any offence against the said act, unless such offender be prosecuted for the same within five months after the offence committed, and that no person who shall be punished for any offence, by virtue of the said act, shall be punished for the same offence by virtue of any other act, or law whatsoever.

As to the manner offenders may defend themselves, it is enacted by the said statute of 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 10. That the defendant is not bound to answer to the indictment, or to his demurrer; and therefore he has the power to traverse the matter alleged against him, which is true in deed, that it is generally holden, that no traverse can be taken against a pretenement by a judicje of peace of his own knowledge, as to the want of repair; yet this opinion seems fully quashable. 1 Hawk. P. C. 219.

However it is certain, that in all other cases whatever is indited or pretenmented, in any court, except a court-leet, for any offence relating to the highways, may traverse the whole matter alleged against him in such indictment or pretenement; but it seemeth to be agreed, that he who is prefentenced for such an offence in a court-leet, can only traverse it, if it concerns his freedom, by charging it to be beyond such repairs in respect of the tenure of his lands, &c. for which purpose it is certain, that he may remove it by certiorari into the King's Bench, and there traverse it; also there is no doubt that after conviction, or upon a demurrer or confeffion, any one may take exceptions to such an indictment or an order, for want of a court; but the court in di ception will very rarely suffer a man to take such exceptions, before such conviction or confeffion, without a certificate that the ways are in good repair. 1 Hawk. P. C. 219.

Therefore, for the better understanding in what cases it may be a case of right, or, confes of an indictment or pretenement of this kind, I shall lay down, says Mr. ferjeant Hawes, the following rules concerning them.
H I G

... Thit, that it is fale in every fuch indictment to fhew both the place from which, and the place to which the way fuppofed to be out of repair did lead, yet except for want of fuch certainty, have fometimes been delivered guilty for fuch an indictment, fuppofing a way at D. leading from D. to C. is not good; for it is impossible that a way leading from D. fhould be in D. or no other place is alleged. 1 Haw. P. C. 219.

2dly, That it is neceflary in every fuch indictment to fhew in what place the nuisance complained of did exift, which cannot be inferred by flying a way at D. leading from D. to C. is not good; for it is impossible that a way leading from D. fhould be in D. or no other place is alleged. 1 Haw. P. C. 219.

3dly, That every fuch indictment ought alfo certainly to fhew to what part of the way the nuisance did ex- dent, as fhewing how many feet in length, and how many feet in breadth it contained, or otherwife the de- fendant will neither know of the certainty of the charge, againft which he is to make his defence, neither will the court be able from the record to judge of the greatneef of the offence, in order to affift a fane answerable thereunto; time neceffary, without adding adjoined, that an in- dictment for ftopping a certain part of the King's high- way at K. is naught, for the uncertainty thereof. Also it hath been reafoned, that the place wherein fuch a nu- fance is alleged, is not fufficiently afcertained in fuch an indictment, by fhewing that it contained fo many feet in length, and fo many in breadth, by elimination. 1 Haw. 319, 220.

4thly, That every fuch indictment muft fhew, that the way wherein a nuisance is alleged, is a common highway; for which caufe it hath been reafoned, That an in- dictment for a nuisance on a highway, without adding adjoined, that an in- dictment for ftopping a certain part of the King's high- way at K. is naught, for the uncertainty thereof. Also it hath been reafoned, that the place wherein fuch a nu- fance is alleged, is not fufficiently afcertained in fuch an indictment, by fhewing that it contained fo many feet in length, and fo many in breadth, by elimination. 1 Haw. 319, 220.

5thly, That it is not safe in an indictment againft a common perfon for not repairing a highway, which he ought to have done in refpeét of the tenure of certain lands, barely to fay that he was bound to repair it re- afe, without adjoined, that an in- dictment for ftopping a certain part of the King's high- way at K. is naught, for the uncertainty thereof. Also it hath been reafoned, that the place wherein fuch a nu- fance is alleged, is not fufficiently afcertained in fuch an indictment, by fhewing that it contained fo many feet in length, and fo many in breadth, by elimination. 1 Haw. 319, 220.

6thly, That it is not safe in an indictment againft a common perfon for not repairing a highway, which he ought to have done in refpeét of the tenure of certain lands, barely to fay that he was bound to repair it re- afe, without adjoined, that an in- dictment for ftopping a certain part of the King's high- way at K. is naught, for the uncertainty thereof. Also it hath been reafoned, that the place wherein fuch a nu- fance is alleged, is not fufficiently afcertained in fuch an indictment, by fhewing that it contained fo many feet in length, and fo many in breadth, by elimination. 1 Haw. 319, 220.

But it hath been reafoned, That an indictment againft a man for ftopping a highway in his own land, is good, without laying the offence done to & armi. Also it is faid, That a prefentment that a way is obstructed, in fact a place is decayed by the default of the inhabitants of fuch a town, is good, without naming any perfon in certainty. But it hath been adjudged, that an indictment againft particular perfons must fpecially charge them every one; for which it is faid it hath been reafoned, that an in- dictment againft general for not repairing any public ways, that they, & cures temporis, did not reafon them, is not good. 1 Haw. P. C. 220.

By that 1 Geo. 1. ft. 2. c. 52. fett. 12. Perfons ag- nified by any thing done on that act (except thofe who fhall neglect to pour their ditches, and carry away the earth taken out of the ditches, or carry away the fit, timber, flaw or dung left in the highways, or thofe who fhall not remove any other annoyance by water.-

Vil. II. No. 59.

Stat. 5 Geo. 2. cap. 29. sect. 1. If any perfon fhall wil- fully and malicioufly throw down or defroy any turnpike- gate, or any poft, rail, or other fuch thing belonging to any turnpike-gate, erected to prevent pilfering without paying the toll direcd by any act of parliament made or to be made, and fhall be convicted before his Majesty's juftices of affile, overt and terminer and general good-delivery; every perfon fo offending fhall be adjudged guilty of fe- lony; and the court before whom such perfon fhall be tried, fhall have power to transport fuch felon for seven years.

Stat. 2. If any offender fhall return into Great Britain or Ireland before the expiration of seven years, he fhall suffer death without the benefit of clergy.

Stat. 3. The commiffioners impowered to put in exe- cution any act of parliament for repairing the highways, or making rivers navigable, may out of the tolls difcharge the defts of any action or proceedings, which fhall be commenced upon the account of the pulling down and de- ftroying any turnpike-gate, poft, rail, or other fence, be- longing to any turnpike-gate, or any turnpike house, or any lock, flace, or other works, or any navigable river erected by authority of any act of parliament.

Stat. 4. If the commiffioners, appointed to put in any act of parliament for repairing the highways in execution, fhall exceed their power by erecting any new gates, where they have not power to erect fuch gates, it fhall be lawful for juftices of peace in quarter-feffions, upon complaint, in a summary way to hear and deter- mine the fame, and to order the fheriff to remove fuch gates.

Stat. 5. This act fhall continue for five years from the 24th of June 1732. [Further continued by sever- al acts, and made perpetual by 27 Geo. 2. cap. 16.]

Stat. 8 Geo. 2. c. 20. ft. 1. If any perfon fhall wilfully and malicioufly draw up any navigable gate, erected by authority of parliament upon any navigable river; every perfon fo offending being convicted upon the oath of one witnefs before two juftices of the peace for the county or place, or of the adjacent county, fhall be fell to the house of correction and kept to hard labour for one month.

Stat. 3. Every offender afofaid may be determined in any adjacent county in England.

Stat. 4. No attainer for any of the offences made fe- lony by this act, fhall work corruption of blood, loss of dower, or forfeiture of lands and goods.

Stat. 5. If any perfon fhall commit any of the offences declared to be felony by this act; and being out of prifon fhall discover and cause to be apprehended certain perfon, who fhall commit any fuch offence, fo as they be con- vinced; every fuch perfon, on conviction of the offenders, fhall have his Majesty's pardon for the felonies aforefaid.

Stat. 6. The inhabitants of every hundred in England, within which any highway is injured, fhall make satisfaction for the damages, and the fiad damages, which may be recovered by action of debt, &c. in the name of the clerk of the peace of the county, without naming the name of the clerk of the peace; and the damages to be received or who be to the use of the truftees or proprietors of any turnpike or navigable river; (the fame to be re-coaru, may appeal to the next felions, whose order shall conclude and bind all parties.

H I G

needing for any offence twenty pounds) and the inhabitants of such hundred shall be taxed for the relief of such inhabitants against whom execution shall be had, in such manner, as is prescribed in an act of the 27 Geo. cap. 12.

Sect. 7. Where any of the offenders shall be convicted within twelve months after such offence, any hundred, who shall make such satisfaction, shall be paid out of the tolls of the turnpike so pulled down.

Sect. 8. If any clerk of the peace shall commence such action, and shall die or be removed before recovery, no such action shall, by such disclaimer or death, be suspended; but it shall be lawful for the clerk of the peace next succeeding, to prosecute such action.

Sect. 9. No action shall be prosecuted to recover damages by virtue of this act, unless information upon oath be made within six days before some justice of peace, whereof the defendant shall be committed, inhabiting within the hundred, or near the same.

Sect. 10. No such action shall be prosecuted to recover damages against a hundred, except such action be commenced within six months after such offence.

Sect. 11. If any person shall affidavit any collectors of the tolls to have been in the execution of their office, or shall forcibly pass through any turnpike-gate or fence, without paying the toll, or if any person shall carry away forcibly or detain any collectors of the toll, so as they shall not be able to return to their duty for three days; in any of the said cases, the party offending, upon conviction before the quarter-sessions of the county, shall forfeit five pounds; one moiety to the informer, and the other moiety to the confable of the parish where such offence shall be committed, to the use of the truants or undertakers of any turnpike or navigable river, to be levied by warrant of the justices by divers of the said infidels, the party offending shall by warrant of such justices be sent to the common gaol of the county for six months; and if such party still offend a second or third time, he shall forfeit ten pounds in manner aforesaid; and for want of divers, shall be sent by two justices to the common gaol for one year, and shall also give security at the quarter-seances for his behaviour for seven years.

Sect. 12. It shall be lawful for such collectors of the toll to seize any person guilty of the offences before mentioned, and such person to carry before a justice of peace, and such justice is authorized to oblige such person to give security, or pay the said sums for the use of the county, the common gaol, or any ract where such offence shall be committed, and for want of security to commit the person to the common gaol till give security.

Sect. 13. If any confable refuse to execute any warrant under the hands and seals of a sufficient number of commissioners of the turnpike to be money for any default, or shall refuse to execute any warrant under the hands of two justices for apprehending any person that shall be guilty of any offence against this act; or if any other person shall refuse to assist such confable in apprehending such offenders; such confable or any other person shall forfeit five pounds to the clerk of the commissioners or undertakers of any turnpike or navigable river, for the uses as the tolls shall be directed to be applied to; to be levied by divers by warrant of two justices to be directed to the high confable, to be by him levied as before directed.

Sect. 14. All forfeitures by this act shall be paid over to any person, to whom the commissioners or undertakers, or any five of them, shall direct; and in case such confable or clerk shall refuse to account for or pay over the same, it shall be lawful for any two justices, upon oath of one witness, to commit the party relating to the common gaol, until he shall pay the same, as before directed.

Sect. 15. It shall be lawful for any person aggrieved to appeal to the next quarter-seances, giving reasonable notice, which notice shall be determined by the quarter-seances; and if it shall appear that reasonable notice was not given, they shall adjourn the appeal to the next quarter-seances, and the quarter-seances shall bear the matter, and award costs to either party.
the highways." This seems to be descriptive only of such offences as are the objects of turnpike acts, such as Polluting without paying the toll, taking off horse-drawn cart and the like; but the words do no means include the offence of failing or neglecting to do the flat rate labour. Besides this, the intention of sect. 11. of this act is for the encouragement of informers, by giving the whole penalty to them for their own benefit. Now the surveyor of the highways can never have been within the meaning of this clause, because by the 23 Geo. 2, and 1 Geo. 3, he is bound to inform:—The words are, "he shall give an account there of," and it is a misnomer in him to omit it. If the clause in q. 6 should extend to the highways in general, the consequent provisoes are made, but by an affliment upon land; because if the penalties, which by the former acts were ordered to be applied towards repairing them, were wholly vested in the informer, there would be no funds for that purpose. But what seems absolutely decisive of this point is the recital in sect. 28 Geo. 2, cap. 17, sect. 15. which immediately follows the next act.

Sat. 26 Geo. 2. c. 32. [intituled, An act for the amendment and preservation of the publick highways and turnpike roads of this kingdom, and for the more effectual execution of the laws relating thereto.] Whereas by the great number of turnpike roads already established, and being pollution and dill and in and upon the publick highways and turnpike roads of this kingdom, and the excessive weights and burdens loaded and carried in and upon the same, and the small breadth and narrow dimensions of the felie of the wheels of such waggons and carriages respectively, great part of the said highways and ways roads are become rough, and almost impassable; and unless a speedy remedy be had in the premistis, all the provisions made by law for the high- ways and roads, and for maintaining and keeping the same in repair, will in great measure be rendered in vain; and whereas there is a great prejudice and difficulty of the said streets, the true meaning of this act, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay the sum of five pounds, to be recovered and applied in such manner as herein after mentioned; or otherwise shall forfeit and lose any one of the horses or beasts of draught of such waggons, carriage, or being the flail or stall horse, together with all gear, bridles, halters and accoutrements, to such horse or beast of draught respectively belonging, to the sole use and benefit of the person or persons who shall flail or disfrain the same.

Sat. 7. and whereas in and by several acts of parliament made and passed for amending and regulating particular highways and roads within the kingdom, several high and extraordinary tolls and duties are or are directed to be levied and paid for waggons and other carriage, drawn by more than a certain number of horses or beasts of draught therein respectively mentioned, with an intent in effect to prohibit the passage of such waggons and thereby the better to preserve the said roads: it shall and may be lawful to and for the trustees appointed or to be appointed, in or by virtue of any act of parliament now in force, or now depending in parliament respectively, for repairing and mending such particular highways and roads as aforesaid, or any part of such carriage, or beasts of draught, for the better supply of the said districts; and they are hereby authorized and required to mitigate, lessen and reduce the said high and extraordinary tolls and duties, for in respect of such waggons or other carriage, having wheels of the breadth or gauge herein before preferred, in futh
and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and

and
for such county, riding, liberty or place, where such appeal shall lie, to try such appeal at the quarter-sessions of the peace to be held for such county, riding, liberty or place, next and immediately after such notice given; and the said justices upon hearing the matter of the said complaint, or upon due proof made to them of such notice being given, or if they or any of them shall not so give notice, or if they shall not procure the said appeal, shall and may at such differences mitigate the penalties or forfeitures incurred by the party complaining, or vacate or set aside the said conviction or convictions, or set the party or parties at liberty, or if the officers or the said trustees, or any or either of them, were guilty in his duty required by this act, or to have omitted giving notice as aforesaid, every such officer shall be forthwith removed from his office by the said trustees respectively, and is hereby for ever after rendered incapable of holding any office whatsoever under the said trust.

and this act shall be openly read in the presence of the said trustees or any of them that shall commit the said offence, for the being of them.

And if any such officer shall be found to have been guilty in his duty required by this act, or to have omitted giving notice as aforesaid, every such officer shall be forthwith removed from his office by the said trustees respectively, and is hereby for ever after rendered incapable of holding any office whatsover under the said trust.

And to person or persons who shall keep any uncleasing-house, ale-house, or other house of public entertainment, or who shall sell any wine, cider, beer, ale, spirituous or other strong liquors by retail, shall be capable of taking, holding or enjoying, for the places of trust or profit under the trustees of any act of parliament made or to be made for erecting turnpike-roads, respectively, or of farming the tolls thereby granted and made payable, during such time as he shall keep such uncleasing-house, ale-house, or other house of public entertainment, or shall sell any wine, cider, beer, ale, spirituous or other strong liquors by retail.

And in case any action or prosecution shall be commenced and prosecuted in pursuance of this act, under the authority of the said trustees, or any of them, or of any of the said trustees, or any five of them; in every such case, the trial of such turnpike-roads respectively, or any five or more of them, all out of the profits arising by the tolls of such turnpike roads, allow and pay to the prosecutor for so much as the costs allowed by this act shall be a full and entire reimbursement of him just and reasonable expenses.

Provided, that nothing in this act shall be construed to oblige the said trustees to commence or prosecute, or to be commenced or prosecuted, any action or proceeding for any such offences, unless under the condition of the said act that one or more witnesses or witnesses can be had and produced, to prove the commission of such offence.

And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any action or suit shall be commenced against any person or persons for any thing done or said in pursuance of this act, then and in every such case such action or suit shall be commenced and prosecuted within fix calendar months next after the said committed, and not afterwards; and the same and every such action or suit shall be brought in the county, riding or place, where the person against whom such action or suit shall be commenced or prosecuted is or are or any of them are, and not elsewhere; and the defendant or defendants in every such action or suit, shall and may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence at any trial to be had thereupon; and that the same was done in pursuance of this act or of the authority of this present act; and if the said act shall appear to have been done, or by any such action or suit shall be brought after the time herein before limited for bringing the same, or be brought or laid in any other county or place than as aforesaid, then the jury shall find for the defendant or defendants; or if the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall be non-suited, or did continue his, her or their actions, after the defendant or defendants shall have appeared; or if upon demurrer judgment shall be given against the plaintiff or plaintiffs; the defendant or defendants shall and may recover treble costs, and have the like remedy for recovery thereof, as any defendant or defendants both or have in any other cases by law.

The trustees appointed by or under the authority of any act of parliament made or to be made for repairing and amending turnpike-roads, or any five or more of them respectively, shall be incapable, as to the time to time, as there shall occasion, of all the turnpike roads within their respective districts to be levied, and put in good condition in such manner as shall be most commodious for the use of travellers, and for the several forts of carriages passing upon the same.

And if any person or persons shall unload, or cause to be unloaded any goods, wares or merchandise, from any cart, wagon or other carriage, at or before

Vol. II. No. 89.
any forfeiture or penalty inflicted as aforesaid, to examine into the real merits of such prior forfeiture, action, information, proceeding or conviction; and if thereupon it shall appear that the same was not done, made or professed effectually, to recover and apply the penalty or forfeiture, shall pass to and be in every way made good to and for the use of the state, or the use of any one or more of the judges or jurors, or of the year, or for the use of the said justice or justices, or of the revenue shall be committed, upon the oath of one or more of the said justice or justices, rendering the overplus to the owner (if any be) on demand, after deducting the reasonable charges of making such dittrefs and sale, to be settled by such justice or justices, three or more of them, or by the said justice or justices; and each and every driver of such waggon or carriage, so offending and being thereof convicted as aforesaid, shall be committed to the house of correction for the space of one month; and in case any collector or receiver of the tolls or duties at any gate or turnpike, or where near to which any such carriage or engine, or the weighing of cargoes shall be built or erected, shall permit or suffer any cart, waggon or carriage aforesaid, not having the fellies of their wheels of the breadth or gage of nine inches from side to side, to pass or repass through any such gate or turnpike without the wheels or the breadth, and being thereof convicted in manner as aforesaid, such collector or receiver offending shall be committed to the house of correction, to be there kept to hard labour for the space of one month.

Sect. 9. Any waggon, win or other four-wheel carriage, not having the fellies of their wheels of the breadth or gage of nine inches from side to side, may travel, pass or be drawn upon any turnpike road, provided every such waggon, win or other four-wheel carriage, be not drawn by more than fix oxen in pairs and two horses, or eight oxen in pairs and one horse; and that any cart or other two-wheel carriage, having the fellies of their wheels of the breadth or gage aforesaid, may travel, pass, or be drawn upon such turnpike road, provided such cart or two-wheel carriage be not drawn by more than six oxen or neat cattle in pairs and one horse, or four oxen in pairs and two horses.

Sect. 10. In all such places where by virtue of any aë or acts of parliament now in force, the toll or duty on horses or other beasts drawing or pulling thro' any turnpike bar or gate, doth not amount to more than the sum of one halfpenny for every horse drawing any wheel-carriage whatever, or not having the fellies of their wheels of the breadth or gage of nine inches from side to side, or more than one penny for two horses drawing any such carriages as aforesaid, or to more than three halfpence for three horses drawing any such carriages as aforesaid, the trustees or any five or more of them appointed by virtue or under the authority of such aës or acts of parliament, shall and may, if they shall find the same necessary, upon considering the state of their respective tolls, collect double the former tolls or duties, in case such tolls or duties do not exceed one halfpenny, and three halfpence in case the same duty in case the same duty in the present toll or duty amounts to two pence or more upon the horses drawing any carriage, in such and the same manner as if such toll or duty was laid upon the carriage.

And no suit or action at law may be lawful for all courts, and all and every justice or justices of the peace, before whom there shall be any action, information or proceeding, for any penalty or forfeiture inflicted by any aë or acts of parliament made or to be made for repairing and amending turnpike-roads, or any way relating to or concerning the said turnpike-roads, or any riding, division or place, where the same shall be committed, upon the oath of one or more of the said justice or justices, rendering the overplus to the owner (if any be) on demand, after deducting the reasonable charges of making such dittrefs and sale, to be settled by such justice or justices, three or more of them, or by the said justice or justices; and each and every driver of such waggon or carriage, so offending and being thereof convicted as aforesaid, shall be committed to the house of correction, to be there kept to hard labour for the space of one month.
laws have been made for and relating to turnpike-roads since 24 Geo. 2, and more acts of the same kind are likely to be made for it enacted, Let every producer or informer may at his election sue for and recover any forfeiture or penalty, imposed by this any act or acts of parliament made or to be made for erecting turnpikes for repairing and amending turnpike-roads, or by any other act or acts of parliament, in the same manner as such forfeitures and penalties are respectively and severally directed to be fixed for and recovered, or by action at law, to be brought by such informer or prosecutor in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, in manner following, that it is, forfeiture of any such horse, shall be lawful to sue for and recover the same, but shall be likewise liable to such forfeiture, as in the value of which any such horse, beaft of draught, and other goods, as is or are liable forfeited, shall be given in damages without any proof of any seizure or demand.
Sect. 17. And every surveyor of any turnpike-road, and every toll-gatherer, and all such forfeitures employed by commissioners and trussers appointed for the repairing roads, as receive salaries or rewards, who shall wilfully neglect to levy any supernumerary horse or horses drawing in any wagon, wann or cart, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this and the said recited act, and shall also wilfully neglect to lay such information upon oath before one or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace for the county wherein such offence was committed, or before the proper commissioners or trustors of the public respective meetings, as by the said recited act is directed, shall, upon due information made upon oath before one or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace for the said county or place, forfeit the sum of ten pounds; five pounds thereof to be paid to the informer, and the remaining the roads in such manner as the commissioners and trussers for such respective turnpikes shall think fit.
Sect. 30 Geo. 3. c. 28. This act was to continue only for seven years from the 24th of June 1753; it is therefore expired in the 24th of June 1759: But part of it is continued for the further term of seven years by the following act passed last session.
Sect. 5 Geo. 3. c. 38. (Initiated, An act to continue part of an act made in the thirteenth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Second, intituled, An act to render more effectual the federal laws now in being, for the amendment and preservation of the public highways and turnpike-roads of this kingdom; and for making further provisions for the preservation of the said roads.)
Sect. 1. Whereas by an act made in the thirteenth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Second, intituled, An act to render more effectual the federal laws now in being, for the amendment and preservation of the public highways and turnpike-roads of this kingdom, it was, among other things, enacted, That during the time of seven years, to be computed from the 24th day of June one thousand seven hundred and eighty six, the trussers appointed or to be appointed, by virtue or under the autho-ritv of any act of parliament made or to be made, for making, repairing or amending turnpike-roads, or such person or persons as arc or shall be authorized by them, shall and may, and they are hereby required to,
and take for every waggon, wann, cart or carriage, havving the felles of the wheels thereof of less breadth or gage than nine inches from side to side, at the height, at the bottom or side thereof, or for the horses or beafts of draught drawing the same, one half more than the tolls or duties which they shall be lawful to take therefor, and for every other act or acts of parliament made or to be made for making, amending or repairing turnpikeroads, except carts or carriages drawn by one horse or two oxen, or by two horses or four oxen, having the felles of the wheels thereof of less breadth or gage than four inches at the bottom from side to side: And it is by the said act recited, That there are in several acts of parliament made for amending and repairing turnpikeroads, exemptions allowed from payment of tolls in particular cases in the said acts respectively mentioned, and where is alluded in particular cases to pay lesser tolls than are charged upon other waggons, carts or carriages, paying through turnpike-gates or bars; and that it would tend to the advantage and preservation of turnpike-roads, to confine such exemptions, liberties, privileges and advantages, to carriages with wheels of the breadth or gage of nine inches, and therefore enacted, That where any time aforesaid, no perfon shall, by virtue of any of the said acts of parliament, have, claim or take, the benefit or advantage of any exemption from tolls or part of tolls, or to pay lesser toll for or in respect of any waggon, wann, cart or other carriage, or any horse or draught tolls or in other carriages of the like nature as shall be made; and that nature of tolls to be payed, unless such waggon, wann, cart or carriage, have felles of the wheels thereof of the breadth or gage of nine inches, except as before excepted: And it is thereby also enacted, That, during the time aforesaid, it shall not be lawful for any waggon, wann or carriage, having the felles of the wheels thereof of the breadth or gage of nine inches as aforesaid, to pass upon any turnpike-road, or through any turnpike-gate or bar, unless the same be drawn by horse or horses of draught, in pairs; provided, that where there is an odd horse or beaft of draught, belonging to such waggon wann or carriage, it shall be lawful for the same horse or beafts of draught, to draw such waggon or wann, together with the other horses or beafts of draught, drawing in pairs; and provided, that such horses, or beafts of draught, do not in the whole exceed the number of horses, or beafts of draught, allowed by law; and that it should not be lawful for any wann or carriage, having the felles of the wheels thereof of less breadth or gage than nine inches, to pass upon any turnpike-road, or through any turnpike-gate or bar, if the same be drawn by horses, or beafts of draught, in pairs, and not by oxen: And it is hereby enacted, That in every such case, when it shall be lawful for the same carriage or waggon to be driven on any turnpike-road, any common stage-waggon thereby prohibited, shall be punished for the same by inditement or information, and shall, at the election of the protector or informer, for every such effence, be subject and liable to the like penalties and forfeitures as the owners of waggons and carriages, having the felles of the wheels of lefs breadth or gage than nine inches from side to side, are made subject and liable to, by an act made in the twenty-fifth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Second, intituled, An act for the amendment and preservation of the public highways and turnpike-roads of this kingdom, and for making the more effectual execution of the laws relating thereto, to be paid and applied to such uses and purposes, and to be levied and recovered as is thereby directed; and that no such imposition shall be made for or in respect of any wann, cart or carriage, the felles of the wheels thereof of less breadth or gage than nine inches, as is herein before recited shall be further imposed: Be it therefore enacted, That so much of the said act as is herein before recited, shall (except only where the same is hereby altered or varied) be further continue

3 ed
Sect. 2. Provided always, That nothing herein contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to continue a charter of any turnpike-road; and that, notwithstanding the continuance of the said act, the trustees appointed or to be appointed by virtue or under any authority of the act of parliament made or to be made for making, repairing or amending turnpike-roads, and such person and persons as shall be authorised by them, shall and may, and they are hereby required and directed to repair all wagons, vans, carts and carriages, having the felles of the wheel tire of the breadth or gage of nine inches from side to side, at the bottom or sole thereof, and drawn according to law, to pass through any turnpikegate or gates, bar or bars, within one hundred miles from London, or on pavements for such toll or duty as shall not exceed one half of the full or duties payable for such wagons, vans, carts and carriages respectively, or for the hoes, or beafts of draught, drawing the same, by virtue of any act or acts of parliament made or to be made for making, repairing or amending turnpike-roads; but the said charters as to this respect are to be void:

and it is hereby enacted and directed, that after and from the said twenty-fourth day of June one thousand seven hundred and sixty-five

can determine; except he wheels of such wagons as shall be fixed thereon, in the manner heretofore determined and directed,

Sect. 3. And it is further enacted, That from and after the said twenty-fourth day of June, the trustees appointed or to be appointed by any act of parliament, paid or to be paid for the making, repairing or amending any turnpike-road, or any person authorised and appointed by them, shall, during the time aforesaid, permit and suffer any wagons and vans, having the whereof from wheels of such wagons and vans shall roll a footpace of at least sixteen inches wide, on each side of the said wagons or vans; and having the felles of the wheels of the broad of the breadth of nine inches from side to side, at the bottom or sole thereof; to pass through any turnpike-roads, and such person and persons as shall be authorised by them, shall and may, and they are hereby required and directed to repair, and to prevent any injury done to the felles of the wheels of such wagons and vans,

by any alteration or changes thereof, which shall be made or suffered, or that any person shall enter on or perform any thing in or to the said wagons, vans, carts

and carriages, the felles of the wheels of which shall be less than six inches wide, on either side of the middle of such road, any post or posts, heap or heaps of flints, or use of the surface of the said road, by which the passing thereof shall or may be obstructed, impeded, confined or detained; such surveyor or other person shall forfeit one half of the fine stated and declared to exist

in or upon the surface of the said road, to be recovered before one justice of the peace, whether such justice be or be not a trustee of such road;

and shall be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of such person or persons, by warrant under the hand and seal of such justice, which warrant such justice is hereby directed to sign, and to deliver to the person or persons to whom distress is claimed shall think him, her or themselves, aggrieved by the determination of such justice, he, the or they may appeal to the general quarter-fellows of the peace, who shall finally determine the matter, and allow such college

not exceeding forty shillings to either party, as such fellow shall think fit; in which case no certiorari shall lie or be brought.

Sect. 4. And whereas the trustees appointed or to be appointed by any act or acts of parliament made or to be made for making, repairing or amending any particular highways or roads, may have neglected, or may hereafter neglect, to meet on the day appointed, or to be appointed by any act or acts respectively for their first meeting; or to meet on any day appointed by such trustees, or for any other purpose by adjournment for their meeting, or for want of a proper adjournment; by which means, or some or one of them, the intent of the said act or acts may be frustrated; Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all or either of the said cases, it shall be lawful for any two or more of the trustees, appointed or to be appointed by any act or acts respectively, or their clerk or clerks, to caufe notice in writing to be affixed on all the turnpikes that shall be then erected on the said respective roads, or, if no turnpikes shall be then erected, to caufe the like notice to be affixed in the most conspicuous place, in one of the principal towns or places nearest to such road, having the felles of said to be repaired or lie, at least ten days before the intended meeting, appointing such trustees to meet at such place where the preceding meeting was appointed to have been held, or at the place directed for the first meeting of such trustees, if no preceding meeting shall have been held; and the said trustees when met, shall have power of such notice, shall and may, and they are hereby required to proceed to carry such act or acts into execution in the fame, and at full and ample a manner, to all intents and purposes, as they might or could have done if no such neglect had happened.

Sect. 5. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the 26th year of the reign of his late Majesty George the Second, intitled, An act for the amendment and preervation of the publick highways and turnpike-roads of this kingdom, and for the more effectual execution of the laws relating thereto, it is, amongst other things, enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for any waggons, or other four wheel carriages, having the felles of the wheels thereof of the breadth or gage of nine inches, to travel, pass or be driven, upon any turnpike-road, with any number of horse or horses, or draught, not exceeding eight; and for every cart or other two wheel carriage, having the felles

of the wheels thereof of the breadth or gage aforesaid, with any number of horses or beafts of draught not exceeding five, without being subject or liable to be weighed

at any one horse, or engine: And whereas great damage hath been done to the turnpike-roads in many paracles, and to the goods and chattels of many persons, therein, which have not been carried by such waggons and carts; Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That so much of the said aforesaid act of the 26th year of his said late Majesty's,

as exempts such waggons, carts and carriages from being weighed or impounded, or that any engine, machine or engine, shall be, and the same is hereby required, and that it shall and may be lawful to and for all trustees appointed, or who shall hereafter be appointed, by any act or acts of parliament

for the repair of any highway or highways within that part of Great Britain called England, or for any of five of them, at any or any part of any gate or gates, bar or bars, which they have erected or shall ere for the receiving of toll, or tolls, or at any other convenient place upon the said roads, during the time aforesaid, to order or caufe to be built or erected, if they think fit, any crane, machine, engine or engine, which they shall judge proper for the weighing of such goods and chattels, or that any engine, machine or engine, to be weighed or impounded, to be liable thereto, and with the same thereof (except such waggons and wains as aforesaid, the fore and hind wheels of which shall roll a surface of at least sixteen inches wide, on each side of such waggons and wains); and for them, or any five or more of them, or for any person or persons impowered by them, or any five or more of them, to receive and take, over and above the costs, fees, and charges, or hereafter to be made, the sum of 20l. a hundred weight, for every hundred weight which every such waggon, together with the loading thereof, shall weigh, over and above the weight of six ton; and also the sum of 20l. a hundred weight, for every hundred weight which every such cart or other cattle as aforesaid, and more of these things as the said Magistrate or his Agent shall think fit, and shall be made, upon complaint to him or them made upon oath, (which oath such justice or justices is and are hereby authorized and required to administer) to levy the said by driffels and fale of the offender's goods and chattels, rendering the overplus to the owner on demand: And if any person or persons shall be hereby aggrieved, by the determination of such justice of the peace, he, she, or they may appeal to the general quarter-seinion of the peace, which shall finally determine the matter of such appeal, and allow such costs, not exceeding forty five shillings, to either party, as such felleion shall think fit; in which case no costs shall but be brought.

H I G

Sect. 9. And whereas the said turnpike-roads are not sufficiently improved to punish nuisances in the several roads under their care; Be it therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said turnpike-roads, in the several roads respectively, or any five or more of them, and they are hereby required, if they shall think fit, to direct professions by indictment, or otherwise, against the offender or offenders for any nuisance done, committed or continued in, to or upon any of the turnpike-roads under their care respectively, at the expense of the revenues belonging to such turnpike-roads referred to.

Sect. 10. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action or suit shall be commenced against any person or persons for any thing done or acted in pursuance of this act; then, and in every such case, such action or suit shall be commenced or procecuted within fix calendar months next after the fact committed, and not afterwards; and the same, and every such action or suit, shall be brought in the county, riding or place, where the person, against whom such action or suit shall be commenced, both ordinarily inhabit and reside, or in the county or riding where the fact was committed, and not afterwards. And if proceedings or suits be commenced, or such action or suit be brought in the county, riding or place, where the person, against whom such action or suit shall be commenced, both ordinarily inhabit and reside, or in the county or riding where the fact was committed, and not afterwards. And if proceedings or suits be commenced, or such action or suit, be in any county, riding or place, the same shall be brought in the county, riding or place, where the person, against whom such action or suit shall be commenced, or upon the person, or persons, or both, as the case shall require.

Highwaysmen. A reward of 40l. is given for the apprehending and taking of a highwayman, to be paid within a month after conviction by the sheriff of the county, in 4 & 5 Will. & Mar. c. 8. See Felony, Robbery, Diglets. See Game, Poachers.

A turnpike road. The words were anciently added in deeds after the in capite et terminis, and written with the same hand as the deed, which witnesses were called, the deed read, and then their names entered: And this clause of bis testatis in subjects deeds continued till the reign of Hen. 8. but now is quite left off. Co. Litt. fol. 6.

Vinde. (John, serjeant at law) The manor of Thir- lynn, how allured to him and his heirs, 34 & 35 Hen. 8. c. 24.

Vendulorum Hortulorum. A society of men; from the Sex.

Hortendus, fictorius: for in the time of our Saxon ancestors many persons in every county, in three challes, the lawf, the middle, and highbys, and were valued in the same, the clas they were in; that is, if any injury was done, satisfaction was to be made according to the value or worth of the man to whom it was done. The lawf were those who were worth ten pounds, or two hundred shillings, and they were called viri decemtiem, or capiendentes, their value were at five hundred shillings; the middle were valued at six hundred shillings, and were called fisbandenors, and their wives fisbandens. The highbys were valued at twelve hundred shillings, and were called rossbandens, and their wives rossbandens. Bremp. Leg. Alf. cap. 2, 35, 31, 32. See Claustrum and Ceasbandia.

Vint. (Sex.) a servant, or one of the family; but it is now taken, in a more restrictive sense, for a servant at husbandry; and the master-lord, he that overrules the rest.

Sect. 12 R. 2. cap. 4.

L. 11.

Ustall.
Yoga, Poggius, Poggius, A mount or hill. From the German, or from the Sax. bown, tech. the being changed into n. Education und quendam edictum & hujam pettorum, & ulti ad ecipient quendam vatum quam recent Stammghaum, hujus Stammhau, &c. mentem lapidumm. Du freune. Couvel, edit, 1727.

Hoggatter, A little bog. In legitam Forsfler, Scape, copy, this for by Eflam, time of a certain house which is accounted of his family in whole house lies; and if he offend the King’s peace, his host must be answerable for him. Brenttan, lib. 3. tred, c. 2, c. 10. In the laws of Hogiogus, let forth by Lombard, he is called Agnes, where you may read more of this matter. Couvel, edit. 1727. See These rights of anilure.

Hoggarthes, Hoggarthes, A sleep of the second year.—Aegri primo computo poijiaui noti sunt quasi vacator seconda anns hoggati. Et conuerterunt multos cum malitias, & harzard et cum harcariis, &c. femina cum sutilis. Rega computi domus de Frendon. MS. Centum et centurionibus, filletis, multos cum malitias, matrix cum matriculari, hogiaci cum hoggatis. Catull. Abbat, Glatton. MS. fol. 48. a. and indeed in many, especially the northern parts of England, sleep after they lose the name of lambs, are called bags, as in Kent, togs. Couvel, edit. 1727.

Hoggs, Hoggs, A measure of wine, oil, &c. containing half a pipe, the fourth part of a tun, or fifty-three gallons. Stat. r. 3. e. 13. See Drabell.

Hogius, Hogius, A leg or fwire, beyond the growth of a pig.—Porelli primo computo poijiaui noti sunt vacator, sed secunda annus hogvagi. Regula computi domus de Frendon. MS.—Centum conti centurionibus, filletis, multos cum malitias, matrix cum matriculari, hogiaci cum hoggatis. Catull. Abbat, Glatton. MS. fol. 48. a. and indeed in many, especially the northern parts of England, sleep after they lose the name of lambs, are called bags, as in Kent, togs. Couvel, edit. 1727.

Hoggshead, A measure of wine, oil, &c. containing half a pipe, the fourth part of a tun, or fifty-three gallons. Stat. r. 3. e. 13. See Drabell.

Hogius, Hogius, A leg or frame, beyond the growth of a pig.—Porelli primo computo poijiaui noti sunt vacator, sed secunda annus hogvagi. Regula computi domus de Frendon. MS.—Centum conti centurionibus, filletis, multos cum malitias, matrix cum matriculari, hogiaci cum hoggatis. Catull. Abbat, Glatton. MS. fol. 48. a. and indeed in many, especially the northern parts of England, sleep after they lose the name of lambs, are called bags, as in Kent, togs. Couvel, edit. 1727.

Hoggs, Hoggs, A measure of wine, oil, &c. containing half a pipe, the fourth part of a tun, or fifty-three gallons. Stat. r. 3. e. 13. See Drabell.

Hogius, Hogius, A leg or frame, beyond the growth of a pig.—Porelli primo computo poijiaui noti sunt vacator, sed secunda annus hogvagi. Regula computi domus de Frendon. MS.—Centum conti centurionibus, filletis, multos cum malitias, matrix cum matriculari, hogiaci cum hoggatis. Catull. Abbat, Glatton. MS. fol. 48. a. and indeed in many, especially the northern parts of England, sleep after they lose the name of lambs, are called bags, as in Kent, togs. Couvel, edit. 1727.
H O M

H O M

parcell of the sum, or he may recounter and hold over till he shall levie the entire sum, not accounting the time of his expulsion. But otherwise, if the expulsion was by a stranger. 4 Rep. 82. Mich. 41 & 42 Edw. Corbet's case.

There is a difference between an "eligit" and a flute-merchant; for in an "eligit" he can't hold over; but upon a flute-merchant he may, because the extender is to have his charges and expenses over and above the debt, which are not to be recovered upon the "eligit." Arg. Mich. 1560. Hard. 40. 8. cites 4 Rep. 67. b. Faulcon's case. See De Fed. Stct. 321. 341.

Holtm. (Sax.) Holme, sula annia, A river island, according to Bede; or plain grass grounded upon water-sides, or in the water, according to Camden. Cum duoibus holmis in campis di Veteris. Mon. angl. 2 par. fol. 262. b. Therefore where any place is called by that name, or where this syllable is joined with any other in the names of places, it signifies a place surrounded with water; as the Finistaltres, the Stephambros, near Driftil: But if the situation of the place is not near the water, then it may signify a hollow place; for holm in Saxons, is in English an hill or cliff. Conybeare, ed. 1727.

What holydays and what days are to be kept, 1 Ed. 1. f. 14. 14.

Fairs and markets not to be kept on Sundays and principal festivals, except four Sundays in Autumn, 27 H. 6. f. 5.

Shoemakers in London not to sell or fit or on their goods on Sundays, 4 Ed. 1. f. 7. 1 Jac. 1. f. 22. f. 29. Days to be observed as holy days, 2 & 2 Ed. b. e. 10.

4. El. f. 5. f. 14. 15. 36. 40.

What holydays and fasting-days shall be kept, 5 & 6 Ed. e. c. 3.

Penalty of not referring to church on Sundays and holy-days, 1 Ed. 2. f. 2.

Wednesday not to be a holy-day, 27 El. e. 11.

ViCtuallers prohibited to utter fiRs on fiRs-days, 27 El. e. 11.

The penalty of eating fiRs on fiRs-days diminished, 33 El. e. 7. f. 22.

Regulations of licences to eat fiRs in Lent, 1 Jac. 1. e. 20.

The fifth of November to be kept as a day of thanksgiving, 3 Jac. 1. e. 1.

The punishment of using sports on the Sundays, 1 Car. 1. e. 2.

Carriers, drovers, butchers or bakers, not to travel or expose meat on the Sundays, 3 Car. 1. e. 2. 29 Car. 2. e. 7.

The 29th of May to be an anniversary thanksgiving, 12 Car. e. 14.

The 20th of January to be kept as an anniversary day among the Covenanters, 12 Car. or c. 30.

The 2d of September to be annually kept as a fast in London, 19 Car. 2. e. 3. f. 28.

No wares to be exposed to sale on the Sundays, 29 Car. 2. e. 7.

Except viands in inns, Ut. or markets, ibid. fett. 3. or markets, 10 & 12 H. 3. e. 24. fett. 11.

Coachmen or chairmen may ply on the Lord's day, notwithstanding the 20 Car. 2. e. 7. 9 Ann. 2. c. 25. fett. 20. 21.

Perfons not to travel in boats, Ut. on the Sundays, 29 Car. 2. e. 7. fett. 22.

Hoklly. Rock fiRs may be used in it's flat work.

Honom, (Homamia, Probably derived from homus, because the tenant does this service to his lord, he.

I buy your man; it is also called marked. Co.

282
Homicide, properly so called, is either against a man's own life, (called self-murder, or _felo de se_,) or the life of another. Homicide against the life of another either amounts to felony, or does not. That which amounts not to felony, is either justifiable, and causes no forfeiture at all, or exculpable, and causes the forfeiture of the party's goods.

1. Of self-murder, or _felo de se_.
2. Of justifiable homicide.
3. Of exculpable homicide.
4. Of manslaughter.
5. Of murder.

1. Of self-murder, or _felo de se_.

In this, as well as all other felonies, the offender ought to be of the age of discretion, and _capas mensis_; and therefore, that an infant killing himself under the age of discretion, or a lunatick during his lunacy, cannot be a _felo de se_.

But here I cannot (says Mr. ferjeant Hutchinson) take notice of a strange notion, which has unaccountably prevailed of late, that every one who kills himself must be _non capas_ of course; for it is laid to be impossible that a man in his fenses should do a thing so contrary to nature and reason as to kill himself, for the command of the principle of self preservation. If this argument be good, self-murder can be no crime; for a madman can be guilty of none. But it is wonderful that the repugnancy to nature and reason, which is the highest aggravation of this offence, should be thought to make it impossible to be any crime at all, which cannot but be the most surprising conclusion to this position, that none but a madman can be guilty of it; may it not with so much reason be argued, that the murder of a child or of a parent is against nature and reason, and consequently that no man in his fenses can commit it? But has a man therefore no use of his reason, because he acts against right reason? Which may not the passions of grief and discontent tempt a man knowingly to act against the principles of nature and reason in this case, as those of love, hatred, and revenge, and such like, are too well known to do in others.

2. Homicide.

The lawes have always had such an abhorrence of this crime, that not only he who kills himself with a deliberate and direct purpose of so doing, but also in some cases he who maliciously attempts to kill another, and in pursuance of such an attempt unwillingly kills himself, shall be adjudged in the eye of the law a _felo de se_; for wherever death is caused by any act done with a murderous intent, it makes the offender a murderer; and therefore if A. discharge a gun at B. with an intent to kill him, and the gun break and kill A. or if A. strike B. to the ground, and then hastily falling upon him wound himself with a knife, which B. happens to have in his hand, and die, in both these cases A. is _felo de se_ for he is the only agent.

3. Homicide.

Homicide, properly so called, is either against a man's own life, (called self-murder, or _felo de se_), or the life of another. Homicide against the life of another either amounts to felony, or does not. That which amounts not to felony, is either justifiable, and causes no forfeiture at all, or exculpable, and causes the forfeiture of the party's goods.

1. Of self-murder, or _felo de se_.
2. Of justifiable homicide.
3. Of exculpable homicide.
4. Of manslaughter.
5. Of murder.

1. Of self-murder, or _felo de se_.

In this, as well as all other felonies, the offender ought to be of the age of discretion, and _capas mensis_; and therefore, that an infant killing himself under the age of discretion, or a lunatick during his lunacy, cannot be a _felo de se_.

But here I cannot (says Mr. ferjeant Hutchinson) take notice of a strange notion, which has unaccountably prevailed of late, that every one who kills himself must be _non capas_ of course; for it is laid to be impossible that a man in his fenses should do a thing so contrary to nature and reason as to kill himself, for the command of the principle of self preservation. If this argument be good, self-murder can be no crime; for a madman can be guilty of none. But it is wonderful that the repugnancy to nature and reason, which is the highest aggravation of this offence, should be thought to make it impossible to be any crime at all, which cannot but be the most surprising conclusion to this position, that none but a madman can be guilty of it; may it not with so much reason be argued, that the murder of a child or of a parent is against nature and reason, and consequently that no man in his fenses can commit it? But has a man therefore no use of his reason, because he acts against right reason? Which may not the passions of grief and discontent tempt a man knowingly to act against the principles of nature and reason in this case, as those of love, hatred, and revenge, and such like, are too well known to do in others.

2. Homicide.

The lawes have always had such an abhorrence of this crime, that not only he who kills himself with a deliberate and direct purpose of so doing, but also in some cases he who maliciously attempts to kill another, and in pursuance of such an attempt unwillingly kills himself, shall be adjudged in the eye of the law a _felo de se_; for wherever death is caused by any act done with a murderous intent, it makes the offender a murderer; and therefore if A. discharge a gun at B. with an intent to kill him, and the gun break and kill A. or if A. strike B. to the ground, and then hastily falling upon him wound himself with a knife, which B. happens to have in his hand, and die, in both these cases A. is _felo de se_ for he is the only agent.

3. Homicide.

Homicide, properly so called, is either against a man's own life, (called self-murder, or _felo de se_), or the life of another. Homicide against the life of another either amounts to felony, or does not. That which amounts not to felony, is either justifiable, and causes no forfeiture at all, or exculpable, and causes the forfeiture of the party's goods.

1. Of self-murder, or _felo de se_.
2. Of justifiable homicide.
3. Of exculpable homicide.
4. Of manslaughter.
5. Of murder.

1. Of self-murder, or _felo de se_.

In this, as well as all other felonies, the offender ought to be of the age of discretion, and _capas mensis_; and therefore, that an infant killing himself under the age of discretion, or a lunatick during his lunacy, cannot be a _felo de se_.

But here I cannot (says Mr. ferjeant Hutchinson) take notice of a strange notion, which has unaccountably prevailed of late, that every one who kills himself must be _non capas_ of course; for it is laid to be impossible that a man in his fenses should do a thing so contrary to nature and reason as to kill himself, for the command of the principle of self preservation. If this argument be good, self-murder can be no crime; for a madman can be guilty of none. But it is wonderful that the repugnancy to nature and reason, which is the highest aggravation of this offence, should be thought to make it impossible to be any crime at all, which cannot but be the most surprising conclusion to this position, that none but a madman can be guilty of it; may it not with so much reason be argued, that the murder of a child or of a parent is against nature and reason, and consequently that no man in his fenses can commit it? But has a man therefore no use of his reason, because he acts against right reason? Which may not the passions of grief and discontent tempt a man knowingly to act against the principles of nature and reason in this case, as those of love, hatred, and revenge, and such like, are too well known to do in others.

2. Homicide.

The lawes have always had such an abhorrence of this crime, that not only he who kills himself with a deliberate and direct purpose of so doing, but also in some cases he who maliciously attempts to kill another, and in pursuance of such an attempt unwillingly kills himself, shall be adjudged in the eye of the law a _felo de se_; for wherever death is caused by any act done with a murderous intent, it makes the offender a murderer; and therefore if A. discharge a gun at B. with an intent to kill him, and the gun break and kill A. or if A. strike B. to the ground, and then hastily falling upon him wound himself with a knife, which B. happens to have in his hand, and die, in both these cases A. is _felo de se_ for he is the only agent.

3. Homicide.

Homicide, properly so called, is either against a man's own life, (called self-murder, or _felo de se_), or the life of another. Homicide against the life of another either amounts to felony, or does not. That which amounts not to felony, is either justifiable, and causes no forfeiture at all, or exculpable, and causes the forfeiture of the party's goods.

1. Of self-murder, or _felo de se_.
2. Of justifiable homicide.
3. Of exculpable homicide.
4. Of manslaughter.
5. Of murder.

1. Of self-murder, or _felo de se_.

In this, as well as all other felonies, the offender ought to be of the age of discretion, and _capas mensis_; and therefore, that an infant killing himself under the age of discretion, or a lunatick during his lunacy, cannot be a _felo de se_.

But here I cannot (says Mr. ferjeant Hutchinson) take notice of a strange notion, which has unaccountably prevailed of late, that every one who kills himself must be _non capas_ of course; for it is laid to be impossible that a man in his fenses should do a thing so contrary to nature and reason as to kill himself, for the command of the principle of self preservation. If this argument be good, self-murder can be no crime; for a madman can be guilty of none. But it is wonderful that the repugnancy to nature and reason, which is the highest aggravation of this offence, should be thought to make it impossible to be any crime at all, which cannot but be the most surprising conclusion to this position, that none but a madman can be guilty of it; may it not with so much reason be argued, that the murder of a child or of a parent is against nature and reason, and consequently that no man in his fenses can commit it? But has a man therefore no use of his reason, because he acts against right reason? Which may not the passions of grief and discontent tempt a man knowingly to act against the principles of nature and reason in this case, as those of love, hatred, and revenge, and such like, are too well known to do in others.

2. Homicide.

The lawes have always had such an abhorrence of this crime, that not only he who kills himself with a deliberate and direct purpose of so doing, but also in some cases he who maliciously attempts to kill another, and in pursuance of such an attempt unwillingly kills himself, shall be adjudged in the eye of the law a _felo de se_; for wherever death is caused by any act done with a murderous intent, it makes the offender a murderer; and therefore if A. discharge a gun at B. with an intent to kill him, and the gun break and kill A. or if A. strike B. to the ground, and then hastily falling upon him wound himself with a knife, which B. happens to have in his hand, and die, in both these cases A. is _felo de se_ for he is the only agent.

3. Homicide.

Homicide, properly so called, is either against a man's own life, (called self-murder, or _felo de se_), or the life of another. Homicide against the life of another either amounts to felony, or does not. That which amounts not to felony, is either justifiable, and causes no forfeiture at all, or exculpable, and causes the forfeiture of the party's goods.

1. Of self-murder, or _felo de se_.
2. Of justifiable homicide.
3. Of exculpable homicide.
4. Of manslaughter.
5. Of murder.
H O M

HOM

1. It must be owing to some unavoidable necessity, to which the person who kills another must be reduced, without any manner of fault in himself. 1 Hawk. 69.

2. There must be no malice coloured under pretence of necessity, for wherever a person who kills another, acts in truth upon malice, and takes occasion from the apparent necessity to do it, he is guilty of murder. 1 Hawk. P. C. 60. 2 Rol. Rea. 120. 121. Kelynge 28. H. P. C. 38. Bract. lib. 3. cap. 4.

3. According to the opinion of the old books, (which in this respect seem to be contradicted by others more modern,) it seems that one rule only must be observed, viz., amounting to justifiable homicide, in a special plea to an indictment or appeal of murder; and that the fame being found true, he shall be dismissed, without being arraigned, or enforced to plead Not guilty. And indeed it seems extremely hard, that a sheriff or judge who condemn or execute a criminal, &c. should be forced on a frivolous pretension to hold up their hands at the bar for it, &c. But it is agreed, that no one can plead a fact amounting to homicide je defendanda, or by misadventure, but that in such a case the defendant must plead Not guilty, and give the special plea in evidence. And it is agreed, that where a special fact, amounting to justifiable homicide, is found by the jury, the party is to be dismissed, without being obliged to purchase any pardon, &c. 1 Hawk. 69.

Justifiable homicide is either of a public or private nature. That of a public nature is that which is occasioned by the due execution or advancement of public justice. That of a private nature is such as happens in the just defence of a man’s person, house, or goods, 1 Hawk. P. C. 70.

As to justifiable homicide in the due execution of public justice, the following rules must be observed.

1. The judgment, by virtue whereof any person is put to death, must be given by one who has jurisdiction in the cause; for otherwise both judge and officer may be guilty of felony. 1 Hawk. P. C. 70. Dall. cap. 93. 10 Cal. 76. 22 Ed. 4. 33. a. H. P. C. 35.

And therefore, if the court of Common Pleas give judgment on an appeal of death, or judgces of peace on an indictment of treason, and award execution, which is executed, both the judges who gave, and the officers who executed the sentence, are guilty of felony; because these courts have no more jurisdiction over these crimes than mere private persons; and their proceedings therein are merely void, and without any foundation. 1 Hawk. P. C. 70.

But if the judgces of peace, on an indictment of trefpafs, arraign a man of felony, and condemn him, and he be executed, the judges only are guilty of felony, and not the officers who executed their sentence; for the judges had a jurisdiction over the offence, and their proceedings were irregular and erroneous only, but not void. 1 Hawk. P. C. 70. H. P. C. 35. Dall. c. 98.

2. The judgment must be executed by the lawful officer. Indeed it was formerly held, that any one might as lawfully kill a person attainted of treason or felony, as a wolf or other wild beast; and anciently a person condemned in an appeal of death, was delivered to the relations of the deceased in order to be executed by them. 1 Hawk. 70. 1 Inf. 128. b. 2 Inf. pl. 3. S. P. C. 13. a. 11 H. 4. 12. a. Plew. Com. 306. b. 3 Inf. 127.

But at this day, as it seems agreed, if the judge, who gives the sentence of death, and, a factiur, if any private person execute the fame, or if the proper officer himself do it without a lawful command, they are guilty of felony. 1 Hawk. 70. 5. 2 Inf. pl. 41. Brs. Appel. 69.

3. The execution must be pursuant to, and warranted by the judgment, otherwise it is without authority; and consequently, if a sheriff be held a man where it is no part of the sentence to cut off the head, he is guilty of felony. 1 Hawk. 70. 35 H. 6. 57. b. Bros. Appeal 5. S. P. C. 13. H. P. C. 19. 277.

M m

Jul: Scutt

Vol. H. NO. 69.

killed is not looked upon as a fals de fe, insaith as his affent was merely void, as being against the law of God and man: But where two persons agree to die together, and one of them at the persussion of the other buys ratbane, and mixes it in a potion, and both drink of it, and he who bought and made the potion, survives by using proper remedies, and the other dies, it is more certain, that he who dies shall be adjudged a fals de fe, because all that happened was originally owing to his own wicked purpose, and the other only put it in his power to execute it in that particular manner. 1 Hawk. P. C. 68. cites Brat. 136. Mar. 754.

As to what kind of an offender shall forfeit, it seems clear, that he shall forfeit all chattels real or personal which he hath in his own right, and also all chattel real whereof he is possessed either jointly with his wife, or in her right; and also all bonds and other personal things in action belonging solely to himself; and also all personal things in action, and, as for foy, entire chattels in possession to which he was intitled jointly with another, on any account except that of merchandise: But it is said, that he shall forfeit a moiety only of such joint chattels as may be severed, and nothing at all of what he was joint possessor of as executor or administrator. 1 Hawk. P. C. 68. it contains many authorities.

However the blood of a felf de fe is not corrupted, nor his lands of inheritance forfeited, nor his wife barred of her dower. 1 Hawk. P. C. 68. Plow. Com. 261. b. 262. a.

And as to what of the personal estate is vested in the King, before the self-murder is found by some inquisition; and consequently the forfeiture thereof is fixed by a pardon of the offence before such finding. 1 Hawk. P. C. 68. 3. Cal. 110. b. 3 Inf. 54. 1 Sound. 362. 1 Stat. 1350. 107.

And such inquisitions ought to be by the coroner (preceding paragraph) if the body can be found, and such inquisition as fone may, cannot be travelled. 1 Hawk. P. C. 68. H. P. C. 29. 3 Inf. 55.

But if the body cannot be found, so that the coroner, who has authority only over felf de fe corporis, cannot proceed, the inquiry may be by justices of peace, (who by their commission have a general power to inquire of all felonies,) or in the King’s Bench, if the felony were committed in the county where the said court sits; and such inquisitions are travelable by the executor, &c. 1 Hawk. P. C. 69. 3 Inf. 55. H. P. C. 29. 2 Lev. 142. 1 M. 6. 28. 3 M. 30. 1 Lev. 158.

And also all inquisitions of this offence being in the nature of indictments, ought particularly and certainly to fet forth the circumstances of the fact; and in the conclusion add, that the party in such manner murdered himself. 1 Hawk. 69.

Therefore it is evident, the prisoner must be insufficient, as if it be found that the party flung himself into the water, &c. felf osfumpit sese, which is nonsensical, (because ‘emergere signifies only to rise out of the water,) or if there be wanting the proper conclusion, &c. felf fuccepit moraturus, the inquisition is not good. 1 Hawk. 69. 2 Lev. 142. 2 M. 30. 1 Lev. 158.

Yet if it be in sufficient, the coroner may be for- merly with a rule to amend a defect in form. 1 Hawk. 69. 1 Sid. 225. 259. 3 M. 101. 1 Ker. 907.

By the rubric in the Common Prayer, before the burial office, (confirmed by fl. 13 & 14 Car. 2. e. 4.) persons who have lived violent hands upon themselves, shall have no charge used at their interment.

2. Of justifiable homicide.

Concerning justifiable homicide, the following rules are permitted by Mr. Serjeant Hatton.
Justifiable homicide in the due advancement of public justice, relates either to criminal or civil causes. As to the first, it may be justified in several cases; as if a person having actually committed felony will not suffer himself to be arrested, but stand on his own defence, or fly, so that he cannot piously be apprehended, or if a person, whether a felon or public officer, with or without a warrant from a magistrate, he may be lawfully slain. 1 Hawk. P. C. 70. 23 Aff. 55. Br. Cor. 82. 80. S. P. C. 13. 3 ibid. 221. Dalt. cap. 98. H. P. C. 30. Crom. 30.

If an innocent person be in the midst of felony, where, in truth, no felony was committed, and will not suffer himself to be arrested by the officer who has a warrant to that purpose, he may lawfully be killed by him, if he cannot otherwise be taken; for there is a change against him upon record, to which at his peril he is bound to answer. 1 Hawk. 72. 47.

If a criminal, endeavouring to break the goal, affails his gader, he may be lawfully killed by him in the affair. 1 Hawk. 71.

If those who are engaged in a riot, or a forcible entry, or detraining, stand in their defence, and continue the force in opposition to a demand of their peace, &c., or reject such justice endeavouring to arrest them, the killing of them may be justified; and so perhaps may the killing of dangerous rioters by any private persons, who cannot otherwise suppress them, or defend themselves from them, inasmuch as every private person seems to be authorized and lawfully engaged to arrest him in the public service. 1 Hawk. 71. Crom. 30. 615. H. P. C. 37. Poph. 121.

If trespallisurers in a forest, chase, park or warren, or any inclosed ground wherein deer are kept, will not render themselves to the keepers, upon hue and cry made to hand to the keepers, nor fly beyond them, or defend themselves against them, they may be slain by force of the statute de multrestialis in paris, and 4 Will. & Mar. cap. 10.

If either of the parties fighting in a combat allowed by law, for the trial of some special cases, be slain, he who kills him is justified, and the death of the other is imputed to the just judgment of God, who is presumed to give the victory to him who fights in maintenance of the truth. 1 Hawk. P. C. 71. Dalt. cap. 98. Poph. Cap. 9. 615. 3 ibid. 221. 37 H. 6. 21. a.

The advancement of public justice in civil cases may also be justified in some cases: As where a felon, &c., attempting to make a lawful arrest in a civil action, or to retake one who has been arreståte and mise his escape, is resisted by the party, and unavoidably kills him in the affair. 1 Hawk. P. C. 71. 4 Will. & Mar. cap. 10. 1 Hawk. P. C. 71. Dalt. cap. 98. 11 Will. & Mar. cap. 66. 615. Dyer 324. 128. Dalm. cap. 98.

And in such case the officer is not bound to give back, but may lend his ground and attack the party. 1 Hawk. P. C. 71. H. P. C. 37.

But no private person of his own authority can arrest a man for a civil matter, or be for felony, &c., 1 Hawk. P. C. 71. 37. Neither can the sheriff himself lawfully kill those who barely flee from the execution of any civil process. 1 Hawk. P. C. 71. H. P. C. 37.

As to justifiable homicide of a private nature, in the just defence of a man's perion, house or goods, it may happen either by the killing of a raving dote, or an insurrection, in the making of such defence. And, first, the killing of a wrong-doer in the making of such defence, may be justified in many cases; as when a man kills one who affails him in the highway to rob or murder him; or the owner of a house, or any of his servants, or lodgers, &c., kill the robber who attempts to burn it, or to commit in it suicide, robbery, sabbath breaking, or other felony; or a woman kills one who attempts to ravish her; or a servant coming suddenly and finding his master robbed and slain, falls upon the murderer immediately and kills him; for he does it in the height of his furious, and under such apprehension that he cannot tell whom he strikes upon himself; but in other circumstances, he could not have justified the killing of such an one, but ought to have apprehended him, &c., 1 Hawk. P. C. 71. 71. 24 H. 8. cap. 5. Dalt. cap. 98.

Neither shall a man in any case justify the killing another by a preface of necessity, unless he were himself wholly without fault in bringing that necessity upon himself; for if a man, in defense of an injury done by himself, kill any person whatever, he is guilty of manslaughter at least; as where divers rioters wrongfully detain a house by force, and kill those who attack it from without, and endeavour to burn it. 1 Hawk. 72. 47. H. P. C. 37.
Excusable homicide is either per insurrectionem, or fe défendens.

Per insurrectionem or by misadventure, is where a man in doing a lawful act, without any intent to do harm, by the negligence of his own, or of a person who is with him, or by the negligence of a labourer at work with a hatchet, the head thereof flies off, and kills one who stands by.

Hawk. 73. H. P. C. 58, 59.

Where a workman, having first given loud warning to all persons to stand clear, flings down a piece of timber from a great height, and by the negligence of him, if a man fall, who happens to be underneath: But if any person fling down such a piece of timber idly in play, or even a workman fling it down in the streets of a town, where the danger is apparent in repect of the number of people continually passing by, he is guilty of manslaughter.

Hawk. 73. H. P. C. 58, 59.

Where a workman throws stones, rubbiff, or other things, from a houfe, in the ordinary course of their business, by which a perfon underneath happens to be killed; if they look out and give timely warning to those below, it will be excusable; but if they do it without due caution, it will amount to manslaughter at least; it was a lawful act, but done in an improper manner. It is laid by fome, that if this be done in the streets of London, or other populous towns, it will be manslaughter notwithstanding the caution above-mentioned. But this will admit of some limitation, if it be done only in the morning, when few or no people are walking and the ordinary caution is used, it feemeth that the party is excusable. But when the ftrets are full, that will not suffice; for in the hurly and noife of a crowded street, few people hear the warning, or sufficiently attend to it.

Pf. 235, 9.

Where a schoolmaster in correcting his scholar, or a father his fon, or a master his servant, or an officer in whipping a criminal condemned to fuch punishment, happens to occasion his death; yet if four perfons in their correction, be guilty of malice, and thereby cause the party’s death, they are guilty of manslaughter at leaft; and if they make use of an infirm unront for correction, and apparently indulging the party’s life, as in an iron bar, or fword, or kick him to the ground, and then flamp on his belly, and kill him, they are guilty of murder.

Where one lawfully using an inferioe diversion, as shooting at butts, or at a bird, be by the glancing of an arrow, or such-like accident, kills another.

Where a perfon happens to kill another in playing a match of foot-ball, wrestling, or such like sports which are attended with danger, without any intent either for the trial, exercise and improvement of the strength, courage and activity of the parties.

But if a perfon kill another by throwing at a deer, or a third perfon’s park, in the doing whereof he is a trespasser; with throwing a fword, or a gun, or throwing stones in a city or highway, or other place where men usually resort, by throwing stones at another wantonly in play, which is a dangerous sport, and has not the least appearance of any good intent; or by doing any other fuch like action as cannot but endanger the bodily hurt of one some or other; or playing at any sport without the King’s command; or by partying with naked swords, covered with buttons at the points, or with swords in the scabbards, or such like rafh sports, which cannot be used without the manifold hazard of life, he is guilty of manslaughter.

Hawk. 74. H. P. C. 24, 25. 3 Jef. 117.

And if a man happen to kill another in the execution of a malicious and deliberate purpose to do him a pernial hurt, by wounding or beating him; or in the wilful commiſſion of any unlawful act, which necessarily tends but to attempt with the danger of an unforeseen hurt to some one or other; as by committing a riot, robbing a perfon, &c. he shall be adjudged guilty of murder.

And a furer, he shall come under the fame conftruction, who under pretence of a deliberate intention to commit a felony, chances to kill another, in the act of doing that atame with an overt act of violence, or with fuch perfon as be by fuch persons are by no means favoured, and they must all their take care of the confefion of their actions; and it is a general rule, that wherever a man intending to commit a felony, happens to commit an accident as is as much guilty as if he had intended the felony which he actually commits.

Hawk. 74. 3 Jef. 56. Keilw. 117. H. P. C. 52.

If any one shoot at any wild foul upon a tree, and the arrow killeth any reasonable creature after it, without any evil intent, this is by misadventure; for it was not unlawful to shoot at the wild foul: But if he had shot at a cock or a hen, or any time foul of another man’s, and the arrow by mischance had killed a man; if his intention was to feast the poultry (which must be collected from circumstances,) it will be murder by reason of that felonious intent; but if it was done wantonly, and without that intention, it will be barely manslaughter.

Pf. 258, 9.

The rule before laid down fuppofeth, that the act from which death ensued, was malum in se. For if it was barely malum in se, as shooting at game by a perfon not qualified by law to keep a perfon for that purpose; the cafe of a perfon offending, will fall under the fame rule as that of a qualified man. For the fettures prohibiting the deftrution of the game under certain penalties, will not in a quell of this kind enhance the accident, and thereby make it a foul.

Pf. 258, 9.

Neither flall he be adjudged guilty of a lefs crime who kills another, in doing fuch a wilful act as fhews him to be as dangerous as a wild foul, and an enemy to man-kind in general; as by going deliberately with a bow and fword, or discharging a gun among a multitude of people, or throwing a great stone or piece of timber from a houfe into a street, through which he knows that many are paffing; and it is no exceffe that he intended no harm to any one in particular, or that he meant to do it only for sport, or to frighten the people, &c.

Hawk. 74. H. P. C. 52, 57. 3 Jef. 57. Dalt. cap.
Homicide, fe defendants, or by self-defense, seems to be where one who has no other possible means of preserving his life from one who conspires with him on a sudden quarrel, or of defending his person from one who attempts to beat him, (especially if such attempt be made upon his honor, &c.) kills the person by whom he is reduced to such an inevitable necessity. 1 Haw. P. C. 74, 75. H. P. C. 40. S. P. C. 15.

And not withstanding a person, who retreats from an assault to a wall, or from some such treachery, beyond which he can go no further, if it kills the treacherous, is adjudged by the law to act upon an unavoidable necessity: But also who he being affighted in such a manner, and in such a place, that he cannot go back without manifestly endangering his life, kills the other without retreating at all. 1 Hawk. 75. Bro. Cor. 125. 43 dig. 31. 3 lefl. 56. H. P. C. 41.

And notwithstanding a person, who retreats from an assault to the wall, give the other divers wounds in his retreat, yet if he give him no mortal one till he get thither, and then kill him, he is guilty of homicide fe defendaifs only. 1 Hawk. 75. H. P. C. 41. Crown. 28. S. P. C. 12.

And an officer who kills one that kills him in the execution of his office, and even a private person that kills one who feloniously affights him in the highway, may justify the fact without ever giving back at all. 1 Hawk. P. C. 75. H. P. C. 41. 3 lefl. 56. H. P. C. 28. a.

According to most good opinions, even he who gives another the first blow on a sudden quarrel, if he afterwards do what he can to avoid killing him, is not guilty of felony; yet such a person seems to be too much favoured by this opinion, insomuch as the necessity to which he is at first reduced, was at the first giving to his own fault.

It is not agreed, that if a man strike an officer upon malice prepens, and then fly to the wall, and there kill him in his own defence, he is guilty of murder. 1 Hawk. P. C. 75. S. P. C. 15. a. Crown. 28. a. Dall. cap. 98. Kelsey 58. H. P. C. 42.

It seems clear, that neither of these homicides are felonies, because they are not accompanied with a felonious intent, which is necessary in every felony. 1 Hawk. 75. 3 lefl. 56. 2 lefl. 149.

And from hence it seems plainly to follow, that they were never punishable with loss of life: And the same also further appears from the writ De foii & aie, by which when, if any person committed for killing another, were found guilty of either of these homicides, and no other crime, he might be bailed; and indeed it seems to be against natural justice to condemn a man to death, for what is owing rather to his misfortune than his fault. 1 Hawk. 75.

It is true indeed, that some of our best authors have argued from the statute of Marlisle, Ch. 26, which enacts, that murderum de eisere non adjudicaret, ubi in situ clausum adjudicatum est. That before this statute homicides by maladyventure, or fe defendaifs, were adjudged murder, and consequently punished by death. 1 Hawk. 75. 2 lefl. 56. S. P. C. 48.

But to this it may be answered, that murder in those daysSignified only the private killing of a man, by one who was neither seen nor heard by any witneses, for which the offender, if found, was to be tried by ordeal, and if he could not be found, the town in which the last habitation was, to be amerced forty-six marks, unless it could be proved that the person killed was an Englishman; for otherwise it was prefixed that he was a Dane or Norman, who in those days were often privately made away by the English. And it being a doubt whether homicide by maladyventure, or fe defendaifs, were to be esteemed murder, or not, it seems there was been the chief intent of the makers of this statute to settle this question. 1 Hawk. 75. Balf. 134. b. Kelsey 121. Bradl. 135. a.

However it is certain, that notwithstanding neither of these offences be felony, yet a person guilty of them is not liable by judiciles of peace, but must be committed...
AND in some cases a man shall be said, in the judgment of the law, to kill one who is in truth actually killed by another, or by himself; as where one by ducet of impeachment compels a man to accuse an innocent person, who on his evidence is condemned and executed; or where one compels a man to kill himself or another; or where one lays petition to an indidtment to kill another, which was afterwards accidentally taken by another, who dies thereof; 1 Hen. P. C. 79. S. P. C. 36. c. 3 Inf. 91. Dott. cap. 93. supra eb. 1. f. 7. Plow. Civ. 474. and 475.

Alfo he who wilfully neglects to prevent a mischief, which he may, and ought to provide against, is, as some have said, in judgment of the law, the actual caufe of the damage which ensues; and therefore if a man have an ox or hare, which he knows to be mischieffull, by being used to goe or sitke at those who came near them, and do not tie them up, or leave them to their liberty, and they afterwards kill a man; according to some opinions, the owner may be indicted, as having himfelf killed him; and this is applicable to the Mofaicall law. However, as it is agreed by all, such a person is guilty of a very gros misdeemeare. 1 Hen. 79. Fiz. Crown 311. S. P. C. 17. a. Cent. 33. & K. Exc. cap. 93. Pult. 122. b. H. P. C. 53. Exdon. c. 2. v. 29.

Alfo it is agreed, That no person shall be adjudged by any act whatever to kill another, who doth not die thereof within a year and a day after; in the computation whereof, the whole day on which the hurt was done shall be reckoned the first of the next indictment. 70. P. C. 70. H. P. C. 55. Pult. 123. a. Dott. cap. 93 S. P. C. 21. d.

But if a person hurt by another die thereof within a year and a day, it is no excuse for the other, that he might have recovered, if he had not neglected to take care of himfelf. 1 Hen. 79. 3 Inf. 53. Kefynge 25. 1 Ed. 17.

As to the place where fuch killing is within the compu- lation of the law, it feems, that the killing of one who is both wounded and dies out of the realm, or wounded out of the realm and dies there, cannot be determined at Common law, because it cannot be tried by a jury of the neighbourhood where the fact was done. But it is agreed, that the death of one who is both wounded and dies beyond fea, and it is faid by fome, that the death of him who dies here of a wound given there, may be heard and determined before the confable and martial, according to 24 Ed. 1. p. 19. a. the civil law, and the King is to apoye a confable. And it feeme alfo to be clear, that when a fact is being examined by the privy council, may by force of 33 H. 8. cap. 23. be tried (in relation to the principal offenders, but not as to the accessaries,) before commis- fioners appointed by the King, in any county of England. 1 Hen. 75. 3 Inf. 48. 2 Inf. 51. Co. Lit. 75. S. P. C. 65. a. Brf. Appeal 153. 2 Cor. 247. 1 Ed. 19.

A murder at fea was ancienly recognizable only by the civil law, but now by force of 27 H. 8. 4. and 28 H. 8. 15. it may be tried and determined before the King's Commissioners in any county of England, accord- ing to the course of the Common law; yet the killing of one who is at land of a wound received at fea, is nei- ther determinable at Common law, nor by force of either of these statutes; but it feems, that it may be tried by the confable and martial, or before the commissioners appointed in pursuance of the afofcd statute of 33 H. 8. 23 1 Hen. 70. 3 Inf. 48. 49. 1 Law. 759. H. P. C. 54. 3 Inf. 48. 49.

And it is faid by fome, that the death of one who died in one county, of a wound given in another, is not indelible- able at all at Common law, because the offence was not complete in the place where the wound happened, but only of what happened in their own county. But it hath been held by others, That if the corps were carried into the county where the stroke was given, the whole might be enquered of by a jury of the fame county. And it is faid, an appeal might be brought in either county, and the fact tried by a jury returned for the other county. And at this day, by force of 2 & 3 Ed. 6. 24. the whole is triable by a jury of the county wherein the death shall happen, Hawk. Hawk. Hawk.

1. Kelynge Ltv. Sf.-

Appeal with whatever crime he is guilty of murdering, and talk calmly therein, or perhaps if he has no consideration to say, that the place wherein the quarrel happens, is not convenient for fighting; or that if he should fight at present, he should have the disadvantage, 1 Hawk. 80. Kelynge 56. 1 Lev. 120.

And if A. on a quarrel with B. tell him that he will not strike him, but that he will give B. a pot of ale to strike him, and thereupon B. strikes, and A. kills him, he is guilty of murder; for he shall not elude the justice of the law by such pretence to cover his malice. 1 Hawk. 81. H. P. C. 48.

And in like manner, if B. challenge A. and refuses to meet him; but in order to evade the law, tells B., that he shall go the next day to such a town about his business, and accordingly B. meet him the next day in the same condition to defend himself, and then about him, A. and B. fight, and A. kills B. is in my opinion guilty of murder, unless it appear by the whole circumstances that he gave B. such information accidentally, and not with a design to give him an opportunity of fighting. 1 Hawk. 81. Cor. Cen. 22. H. P. C. 48.

And at this day it seems to be settled, That if a man slays another with malice prepense, and after be driven by him to the wall, and kill him there in his own defence, he is guilty of murder in respect of his first intent. 1 Hawk. 81. Cor. Cen. 22. 6. Dalton. cap. 93. H. P. C. 47. Kelynge 58. Hugmore's case.

But it is said, that if he who draws upon another in a sudden quarrel, makes no pase at him till his sword is drawn, and then fight with him, he is guilty of manslaughter only, because that by affaulting the other, in a most outrageous manner, without giving him an opportunity to defend himself, he knew that he intended not to fight with him, but to kill him, which violent revenge is no more excused by such a flight provocation, than if there had been none at all. 1 Hawk. 81. Cor. Cen. 23. a. 6. Dalton. cap. 94. Hugmore's case.

And according to this notion, it is thought proper to consider, 1. Such murder as is occasioned through any excusable personal injury to him who is slain in particular; which seems to be most properly called expreti malice. 2dly. Such as happens in the execution of an unlawful action, principally intended for some other purpose, and not to do a personal injury to him in particular who is slain, in which case the malice feems be he generally laid to be implied. 1 Hawk. 80. Kelynge 127. Spen. 756.

As to murder in the first senfe, such as flew a direct and deliberate intent to kill another, as poisoning, stabbing, and such like, are so clearly murder, that there are not any questions relating thereto worth explaining: But the cases which have been disputed, have generally happened in the following insances. 1st. In dealing. 2dly. In killing another without any provocation, or but upon a fight one. 3dly. In killing one whom the peron killing pretended to hurt in a less degree. 1 Hawk. 80.

In the first infulance of this kind, it seems agreed, that whereas two persons in cool blood meet and fight on a precedent quarrel, and one of them is killed, the other is guilty of murder, and cannot help himself by alleging that he was first struck by the deceased; or that he had often declined to meet him, and was prevailed upon by the prosperity of manhood only, because he did it in the heat of blood; 1 Hawk. 82. 81. 6. Balf. 86. 87. 6. Balf. 147. 1. Roll. Rep. 395. 3. Roll. 171. 2. H. P. C. 48.

But and from that clearly follows, that if two per-
H O M M
the 50. 1 Hawk. 82. Gr. 23. 4. 4 alt. cap. 93.

But the law to far abounds all dulling in cold blood,
that not only the principal who actually kills the other,
but also his second is guilty of murder, whether they came to it in self defence, or to prevent a greater harm, or to prevent committing other crimes, or in respect of that countenance which they give to their principals in the execution of their purposes, by accompanying them therein, and being ready to bear a part with them: But perhaps the contrary opinion is just, for it seems too far a construction to make a man by such reasoning the murderer of his friend, to whom he was so far from intending any mischief, that he was ready to hazard his own life in his quarrel. 1 Hawk. 82. H. P. C. 51. Debt. cap. 93.

As to the happening of this kind, viz. first murders as happens in killing another without any provocation, or but upon a flight one it is to be observed, that wherever it appears that a man killed another, it shall be intended prima facie that he did it maliciously, unless he can make out the contrary, by showing that he did it on a sudden provocation, 1. 1 Hawk. 82. Kyenge 27.

Also it seems to be agreed, that no breach of a man's word or promis, no treaflps either to lands or goods, no affront by bare words or guefBers, however fale or malicious it may be, and aggravatcd with the most provoking circumstances, will exceeu from being guilty of a murder not by far enough to be a fufficient

But if a person so provoked had beaten the other in only a manner, that it might plainly appear that he meant not to kill, but only chaffed him; or if he had reftrained himself till the other had put himself on his guard, and then in fighting with him had killed him, he had been guilty of manuflaughter only. 1 Hawk. 82. Kyenge 55 61. 131.
in the event of the second offence shall he be adjudged guilty, who seeing two persons fighting together on a private quarrel, whether fudden or malicious, takes part with one of them, and kills the other. 1 Hawk. 82. Kyenge 61. 136. 4 cen. Jefc. 296. 12 Co. 87.

Neither can he be thought guilty of a greater crime, who was fighting with him, or being actually struck by him, or pulled by the nose, or clipped upon the forehead, immediately kills him; or who happens to kill another in a contenance for the wall; or in the defence of his perfon from an unlawful affault; or in the defence of his house from those who claiming a title to it, attempt forcibly to enter it, and to that perfon shout at it, &c. or in the defence of his pillory of a room in a publick house, from those who attempt to turn him out of it, and thereupon draw their swords upon him; in which case the kiling the affiant hath been holden by fome to be justifiable: But it is certain, that he cannot amount to no more than manslaughter. 1 Hawk. 82. 3. H. P. C. 57. 3 Jefi. 55. Kyenge 137. H. P. C. 57. Gr. 27. a. Kyenge 51.

Nor was he judged criminal in a higher degree, who feeing his fon's nose bloody, and being told by him, that he had been beaten by fuch a boy, ran three quarters of a mile from home to defend his child, and that the boy had beaten his child, thereof whereof he afterwards died. 1 Hawk. 83. H. P. C. 48. Cen. Jefc. 296. 12 Co. 87.

As to the third infuffion of the kind, viz. fuch murders as happens in killing one whom the perfon killed intended to be, a lefs degree; as to which it is to be observed, that wherever it is a matter of revenge, unlawfully and deliberately beats another in such a manner that he afterwards dies thereof, he is guilty of murder. However unwilling he might have seen to have gone to far, 1 Hawk. 83. Noy. 11. Almarg's case. H. P. C. 49. 50. 51. 52.

Also if seems, that he who upon a sudden provocation executes his revenge in such a good manner, as to the cool and quiet, and that is not his purpose, is guilty of murder, if death ensue; as where the husband or other ought to find a bow flaying wood, tied him to a horfe's tail,

As to the case where such killing shall be adjudged murder, which happen in the execution of an unlawful action, principally intended for some other purpose, and not to do a personal injury to him in particular who happens to be slain, they are as follow. And first, Such killing as happens in the execution of an unlawful action, whereas the principal iutention was to commit another tehy; it seems agreed, that wherever a man happens to kill another in the execution of a deliberate purpose to commit any felony, he is guilty of murder; as where a perfon shooting at tame fowl, with an intent to hit them, accidentally kills a man; or where one fet upon a man to rob him, and kills him in affault upon him; or where a perfon shooting at, or fighting with one man with a design to murder him, kills him, and kills an-

What is said of such cases, where the were all of a person having such a felonious intent, is the subsequent cause of a third person's death, but also where it is way exceptionally causes such a misfortune, it makes him guilty of murder; and such was the case of the husband, who gave a poisoned apple to his wife, who eat not enough of it to kill her, but innocently, and against the husband's will and perfuafions, gave part of it to a child who died thereof; such also was the case of the wife who mixed rathbane in a potont fent by an apothecary to her husband, which did not kill him, but afterwards killed
the apothecary, who to vindicate his reputation tainted it.
It is not material in this cafe, that the fhring of the potion might make the operation of the poison more forcible than otherwise it would have been; for inasmuch as such a murderous intention, which of itself perhaps in ftrictnefs might juftly be made punishable with death, proves now the operation of the King's losing a fajcEh, it shall be as severely punished as if it had been intended effect, the miling whereas to oeing to any want of malice, but of power. 1 Hawk. 84. Plew. Cam. 474. 9 Co. 91. b.

But if one happened to be poisoned by rathbane laid in order to deftroy the perfon by whom he is fo killed, is guilty of homicide per accidementum only, because his intentions were wholly innocent. 1 Hawk. 84. Pl.
Cam. 474. 9 Co. 91. b. a.

Also if a third person accidentally happen to be killed by one engaged in a combat with another upon a fudden quarrell, it seems that he who kills him is guilty of man-uflaughter only; but it hath been adjudged, that a person, whether of peace, confable or watchman, or even a priva-

c perfon be killed in the endeavouring to part those whom he fees fighting, the perfon by whom he is killed, is guilty of murder; and that he cannot excuse fhimself by alleging that what he did was in a fudden effay in the heat of blood, and through the violence of passion, for he who carries his refentment to high as not only to ef-cute his revenge against those who have affronted him, but even against fuch as have no otherwife offended him
but by doing their duty, and endeavouring to refrain the violence of others, it is a good defence, that he was justified in a manner, and the breaker of the parties in
the
the King's name to keep the peace, or otherwise man-feftly shewing his intention to be not to take part in the quarrel, but to appease it; he who kills him is guilty of manflaughter only, for he might suspect that he came to kill him, and therefore it is not a felony, nor a

As to the second inftance of this kind, viz. such kil-ning, as happens in the execution of an unlawful action, where the principal defign is to commit a bare breach of the peace, not intended against the perfon of him who happens to be slain; it seems clear, that where dis-ercers resolvling generally to reflit all oppofers in the comniin of any fit breach of the peace, and to execute it in fuch a manner as naturally tends to raife tumults and affrays, as by confmitting a violent diffeft with great numbers of people, hunting in a park, &c. and in fO doing kill to man, they are all guilty of murder; for they make a defign, or abufe the danger of their offenders, who willfully engage in fuch bold disturbances of the pullick peace, in open oppofition and defiance of the jufice of the nation. 1 Hawk. 85. Savil 67. More

Yet where divers rioters, having forcible poiffeflion of a houfe, afterwards killed the perfon whom they had ejected, as he was endeavouring in the night forcibly to regain the poiffeflion, and to fire the houfe, they were adjudged guilty of manflaughter only, notwithstanding they did the faft in maintenance of a deliberate injury, perhaps for the murder of another; the perfons that did it were all forfeeters.
The first point of this kind, viz. such killing as happens in the execution of an unlawful slicon, where no mischief was intended at all, it is said, that if a person happen to occasion the death of another, in advicing or advising the person to perform his duty and the main defect of some others; as by rising with a horse known to be used to kick among a multitude of people, by which he means no more than to divert himself by putting them into a fright, he is guilty of murder. 1 Hawk. 87.

As to the sixth instance of this kind, viz. such killing as happens in the execution of an unlawful slicon, where no mischief was intended at all, it is said, that if a person happen to occasion the death of another, in advicing or advising the person to perform his duty and the main defect of some others; as by rising with a horse known to be used to kick among a multitude of people, by which he means no more than to divert himself by putting them into a fright, he is guilty of murder. 1 Hawk. 87.
The body of such criminal to be hung in chains. See sect. 5.

When one conveys away secretly or keeps in his custody another man against his will, then upon oath made thereof, and a petition to the Lord Chancellor, he will grant a writ of requitio facti, with an alias, and pluries, upon which the sheriff returns an elongatus, and thereupon issues out a capias in quibulum, made by the sheriff, and when he is thereupon taken, the sheriff cannot take bail for him: But the court, where the writ is returnable may, if they think fit, grant an habitus corpus to the sheriff to bring him into court, and bail him, or eafe remand him. 2 L. R. 23.

A homine requitio cannot be brought either by the wife herself, or by her procurator agnus against her husband; and the nature and proceedings in the writ shew it to be so. Peijia. 1718. Ch. Prax. 492. Atwood v. Atwood.

Habeas corpus was returned, that W. was in custody by capias in quibulum. The case was, That upon a homine requitio, the sheriff returned an inquisition, finding that the party was elogium; whereupon a writ homine made, returnable Otho. Martinius, which was not yet come; but the defendant was taken upon it. It was objected, that he could not be bailed upon the writ homine for that it was an execution, and he had no day in court, and the plaintiff could have a new writ homine. That which seemed to be the fene of the Chief Justice, to which the refl agreed was, (among other things) that after elogium returned, and writ homine also awarded, the defendant is not concluded to plead non est against the action, because he obliges the return, and that upon pleading non est he shall be bailed. And they disliked the cause in Rym. 374. and the Lord Grey's cause, Skin. 61. but approved the cause in the Regis 79. a. and cited Kel. 71. a. P. N. R. 74. adding this farther reason, that because the former writ is denied, and balled, and the matter stands indifferent on the record, and having been bailed laid down by Lord Cott., upon Hig. 1. cap. 15. The court held, that there might be a new writ homine; for the bail must be in a sum certain with condition, that he appear to die in deces, and if judgment be aed and him, that he render his body to writ homine, otherwise removeth the bail; and that the plaintiff may not go at large, and therefore if he be rendered, he is in custody as before; and the court held, that before the writ homine returned, the defendant cannot be bailed. 2 Salk. 381. Mod. 12. I. 5. B. R. 38. h. Nuts. 107.

The defendant pleaded in abatement, want of addition in the pluries, as to his plea, as to bail, as to quia emptor. The plaintiff demurred; Hilt Ch. J. at first, inclined strongly, that the plea was good, and would distinguish this from other writs of replevin; for here, he said, the proceeds of outlawry issues immediately upon the pluries homine requitio, which he affirmed to be a writ homine in itself; but in common writs, the proceeds of outlawry is not upon the pluries requitio, but upon the capias in quibulum, which files upon the sheriff's return of aderentia elogium upon the pluries; and upon the sheriff's special return of the capias in quibulum, that is, upon his return of mulla bona on the writ homine, a capias shall go against the perfon, and fo to outlawry. But by Petrol J. There is no difference; for in both cases, the proceeds of outlawry is upon the writ homine, and not upon the original writ; for in a homine requitio, there shall be no writ homine 'till return of the homine requitio; and as the first writ homine in common return must be (as afore) in the writ homine, which was the first return of the perfon, thereon the whole court awarded a requitio suitor; for in outlawry lies in a homine requitio, yet there is not any addition to it. For the pluries, on which we hold plea here, is not the original in replevin; but the original writ of replevin is it, which writ is vicissits; so if the replevin be removed by recorders, this upon the homine requitio then there will be proceeds of outlawry, yet there is no addition according to the writ, so that it is not the original, and therefore out of the writ homine. There being no addition to the first replevin, the pluries, (which indeed is the original to us) must have none; but proceeds out of the first replevin, so that it is said, that there never is any addition to a writ that is vicissits. 6 Mod. 84. Mod. 8. Ann. B. H. Lord Bacon v. How. See 1d. Vin. Abt. iv. Homine requitio.

Domina. A sort of feudatory tenants. They claimed a privilege of having their cauks and persons tried only in the court of their lord. When Gerard de Cornil in 5 R. 1. was charged with treason and other high misdemeanors, he pleaded, that he was Hono comites Johannis, and would come to the law or justice of his court. Pauchald. Antiquit. p. 152.

Homplagium. Is used in the laws of Hen. 1. cap. 82. for the pluries capias. So gnis in domo vel curia Regis facere habitationem et homplagium; Dominae. A home-hill, or manor-houfe. As in a charter granted about the 5 Edw. 1. Cowett, edit. 1727.

Hendehbrenden, (from the Saxon, hond, hand, and haboden, having,) Signifies a circumstance of manifeft theft, when one is apprehended with the manner or wittinger, i.e. the thing stolen in his hand. Briston, lib. 3. tradt. 2. cap. 8. 32 & 35. who also uses hendehbrenden in the same fente, 6. Latra manufcrn. See Hendehbrenden. So in Fisto, lib. 1. c. 35. Forst manufcrn of us alias legitto depli eventus fisit de aliquo terrino hand-haboden. 22 backhouse, &c. i. 5. dividend or aliquam aquis re lais qui dextrum quod aliquid juxta, &c. J. B. le fide, que dedit uocifer, &c. limes, &c. Has ilec rafterionem i.rum patet populari criminaliter ali quater.

It also signifies the right which the lord hath of determining this offence in his court.

Hone, The penalty of convining it, or selling it in the mane of the lord. 23 Edw. 11. c. 8. f. 4.

Dontud, be, belaves the general significatiun, fized efficently for the more noble fort of frigerniers, on which other inferior bulethings or menors depend, by performance of some cufions or services to they who are lords of them; (though anciently banter and borony signified the same;) be, belaves the poft, or the order of the gabinets, fedis, fedis pluram recordis, concomitantes, frequentis, &c. Be honor pharma complemtarum mensae, pharma fedis militaria, pharma regia, junctus dedit usum utrius de benefit for freedom regale, tentamque for prorsum in capite, nam assumere istis honores by act of parliament, may in part be collected out of the statute of 33 Hen. 8. c. 37, 38. where Angilsh, Grafton, and Hamilton Courts, are made honours. And by 37 Hen. 8. cap. 18. the King is impoverished by letters patent to erect four several honours, viz. Wollaston, Kingdom of Cornwall, Arundel, and Donnington, and as many other honours as he will. In reading several approved authors and records, the following are observed to have been likewise honours, viz. The honours of Wigmore, Lancaster, Apulia, (formerly Picterg,) Clare, Tickhill, Wallingford, Nottingham, Basing, Wil, and Esq Greenwood, Belford, Northumberland, Hoxholm, Wragby, Brudisland, Beverley, Spital, Wymington, Cn, Raleigh, Montgomery, Hunsdon in Herefordshire, Eye, Darmon's Gill, Gloucester, Arundel, Trenorton, Richard's Caflis, Croft-Church, Heregrove, Cocker-moat, Bulleardis, Stafford, Burydale, Wetherenden in Yorkshire, Totnes, York, (Rot, Pipen 31 Hen. 2.) Cambridges, Candis, Thyn, Oakhampton (had 92 knights-fees belonging to it.) Grimsthorpe, Eyeworth, Oxford, Lincoln, Abergeve, Dudley, Tamworth, Moston, Welford, Barns, Middleham, Hadon-Cullen, Droge-Coffle, (Trin. 33 Hen. 1. l. 1c. 46.) Croydon, (Ex. 9 Hen. 7. cap. 1.) King John'scaflis, Houghton, Hitchin, Harford, Newcome, Chelcer, Lewest, Pickering, Meddon, Tuttle- warwick, Worsham, Brenchale, Bremether, Halton, Gobour; for John de Madox and Ex. 5. wrote himself Dominus Infidelis de Heslham & de dominicos de Gobour & Bremether. And in a charter of 15 Hen. 3. I find mention of the honours of Dermenard, Cargis and Cl wormagen, Cowell, edit. 1727.

Buchheims.

When the King grants an honour with appurtenances, it is more high than if a manor was granted with the appurtenances; for to an honour, by common ctement, appurtenances, Placema, Church, dignity, decadence, frondalis, is called an honour. In Illner in the time of Ed. 3. Roll. 151. Scarp. For a manor and honour are not of one condition.

An honour ought to consist of lands, liberties and franchises. 1 Bosb. 157. Pofh. 10 Jan. The King v. Lovett.

The King cannot create an honour, but by act of parliament: for etat. cur. 1 Bosb. 156. Pofh. 10 Jan. The King v. Lovett.

The King granted to a subject a great honour, called An Honour, and plaited by the name of An Honour; and that name hath stood to this day. King Richard the Second created Ralph Newell Earl of Warwickland, to him and his heirs males of his body, which honour defended to Charles Newell, Earl of Warwickland, who was attainted of treason; adjudged, that a name of dignity or honour may be intailed upon one and that name of his body, and that such an intail is within the statute De dote, because it concerns land; for every Earl, &c. is created of some place; that such a dignity may be forfeited at Common law, (for 'tis an ancient office) that is, it may be forfeited upon an attainder to treason, and this by a condition in law, annexed to the dignity, viz. that no son of this house, or of any person derived from him, may hold any temporal cas & sufficient cas temporal & therefore he forfeits it when he takes counsel or arms against the King; and if such a dignity had not been forfeitable at Common law, 'tis now forfeited by the statute 26 Hen. 8. cap. 13. by the word hereditamentum, for a dignity is an hereditamentum. 7 Reg. 29. 315. c. 2.

It is illegal to purchase honour, (as a Dukedom) for money. 1 Wm. 5. Pofh. 1c. 45 E. of Kinglon v. Lady Edw. Pierspint. At this day the Earl of Arundel only hath his Earldom by presentatio, the beginning of which is time out of mind, and consequently the beginning of his Earldom is the most ancient in the realm. 1 Bosb. 156. The King v. Lovett.

Bounties, cutiris, Are court held within the Honours stofredeil, mentioned 33 Hen. 8. 37. and 37 Hen. 8. 18. and within a court of honour of the Earl Marlsh of England, &c. which determines disputes concerning precenters and points of honour. See Cautille, Chart of Clauses.

Dukedom, cutiris. Are such as are incident to Grand Jefory, and annexed commonly to some honor. See 12 Gor. 2. cap. 29.

Dukedom, cutiris. Com amanuens ab ille libertatis, tamen undes hominem circiter, adem rem. Charta Wil. Comus Major, Aeg. 1 fas. 73.

This should have been written honoratae cutiris, and signifies a thiefy, taken with hand, i.e. having the thing stolen in his hand. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Hoppens, Signifies a valley in Daynsday-book; it so do he hops, hangle and hough. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Plants and hop-binds, the quality on importing or using corrupt hops, 1 Jas. 1. cap. 18.

Hops imported, what duties to pay, 2 IV. & M. fes. 1. cap. 10. 9 Ann. cap. 12.

Made perpetual, and part of the aggregate fund, by 1 Geo. I. c. 12.

What fees payable to Customs-houses for officers for hops brought to London, 1 Ann. fl. 1. c. 26.

Dutes of those of Britisish growth to be under the management of commissioners of excise, 9 Ann. c. 12. f. 5.

No bitter to be used in burning but hops, 9 Ann. c. 12. f. 5.

Foreign hops not to be imported in Ireland, 9 Ann. c. 12.

1 Geo. I. c. 12. f. 6.

Money lent on hop duties how repaid, 1 Geo. I. f. 6. c. 12. 7 Geo. 1. f. 6. c. 20. f. 37. 37.

The drawback on hops exported to Ireland taken off, 6 Geo. I. c. 11. f. 46.

Planters to give notice of the time of bagging, 6 Geo. 2. c. 21. fes. 27.

No hops to be imported into Ireland from other parts but Great Britain, 5 Geo. 2. c. 9.

Landing foreign hops before duty paid, hops to be burnt, and ship forfeited, Geo. 2. c. 19. 2. f.

Penalty of 20l. per hundred horns, Geo. 2. c. 19. 2. f.

Damages to be made good, as by 9 Geo. I. c. 27. Cutting hop-binds, 10 Geo. 2. c. 32. f. 4.

By flat. 6 Geo. 2. c. 37. f. 6. unlawfully and maliciously cutting hop-binds is made felony without benefit of clergy.

Boys Apprentice. The day-bell, or morning-bell, or what we now call the four clock-bell, was called hora auraece, as our right a clock bell, or the bell in the evening, was their igniculum, or coveret. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Hordium, A hoard, a treasure, or repository. As in the laws of King Canute, c. 104. Sed homar hordarium, quod diuere pagiuma depositam & esjam juvat, et trags, id est frumentum solum, debet ipsa cofertere. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Hordium palmace. Hoc induratae situatur, quod Rob. Bevereae. dedit unam virgatam terre in Gillingham, red. inde quolibet anno ad fijum S. Mich. quatuor Brittiffi orde palmace palmis firma justa mulis precision per duos denarios. Decess. 43 Ed. 4. f. fons Kington Payner arm. Doubtless this is meant of barley-barley, which in Norfolk is called sprat-barley, and bartledore-barley; and in the marches of Wales, cynfege, it being broader in the ear, and more like a hand than the common barley, which in old deeds is called Hordium quadrifrons. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Housewearer, piggellers. Are trees so called, that have been usually lopped, and are about twenty years growth, and therefore not loppable. Hord, feft. 407. Soby's cafe.

Hovegeld. Is a compound from the Saxen word hweon, corn, and egel, cattle, signifying a tax within a forest, to be paid for hervd beasts. Cmp. Jurift. 197. And to be free thereof is a privilege granted by the King unto such as he thinketh good. Iam ibid. & Raffel in his Expedition of Words, Quemiam sim de omnibus collection in fores de hulfis carnalis affift. 4 Inft. fl. 399. Et foi
HOR

Size of horses to be pillared in the fen, 8 &. 8. felt. 2.

Horse shall be held in fairs, 31 El. c. 12.

The owner of a stolen horse held in a fair, may have him again, paying the price within six months, 31 El. c. 12. felt 9.

Exportation of horses permitted, and the duty on them aforesaid, 22 Car. 2. c. 15. felt. 8.

Huckney coaches to be 12 hands, 9 Ann. c. 27. felt. 14.

Horses at races to be entered by the owner, 13 Gr. 2. c. 19.

Horse-racing for plates under 50l. or with horses carrying small weights, prohibited, 13 Gr. 2. c. 19. felt. 15.

Horses may run for the value of 50l. with any weight, and at any place, 18 Gr. 2. c. 36. felt. 11.

For other matters, see Cattle, Fairs and Markets, Felons without Clergy, (under Felon) tit. Agricultura and Horse-racing.

Horses bred. Action on the cafe lies for abusing a horse bred, by immediate riding, &c. And a difference has been made in our law betwixt riding a horse and horseracing for plates, or, in the first cafe, the party may set his servant, &c. upon the horse, but not in the second. 1 Met. 210.

Horses for the King's service. None shall take the horse, or any part thereof, without the King's service or officer's consent, or sufficient warrant; on pain of imprisonment, &c. Stat. 20 Ric. 2. c. 12.

Horses gentilizate, A great chamberlain, Da Frazier, Hospitallers, (Hospitallor, &c.) were the knights of a religious order, so called, because they built an hospital at Jerusalem, wherein pilgrims were received. To these Pope Clement the Fifth transferred the Temples, which order, by a council held at Fieren in France, he suppressed, for their many and great offences. The institution of these temples was first allowed by Pope Gregory the Second, and stamped with the privilege of the Pope, and several others, and confirmed by the Parliament, and had many privileges granted them, as immunities from payment of tithes, &c. You shall find their privileges referred to them by Magna Charta, cap. 37, and you shall find the right of the King's subjects vindicated from the jurisdiction of St John's, by the statute of Westminster, cap. 2. 4.

Their chief abode is now in Malta, an island given them by the Emperor Charles the Fifth, after they were driven from Rhodes by Shahyan the Magnificat, Emperor of the Turks; and for that they are now called knights of Malta. They are mentioned 13 Ed. c. 13. felt. 57. Pope Walsingham in Hist. Ed. 2. and Stowe's Annals, hist. All the lands and goods of these knights here in England were given to the King, by 36 Hen. 8. c. 34. See Man. Aug. 2. par. fed. 439.

Hospitals. The ordinances to reform the state of hospitals, 2 Hen. 5. c. 1.

Mayer, &c. of St. Leonard, York, may gather corn, 3 H. 6. c. 2.

Masters of hospitals may occupy the lands of the hospital, tho' they are clergymen, 21 H. 8. c. 13. felt. 7.

A confirmation of grants made to hospitals, 14 Ed. c. 14.

Penalty of a reward for nominating a person to an hospital, 31 Ed. c. 6. felt. 28. 32.

Liberty to found hospitals, &c. 35 Ed. c. 7. felt. 27. 39 Ed. c. 5. 21 Jac. 1. c. 1.

Incorporation of the governors of Gay's hospital, 11 Gen. 1. c. 12.

Establishment of the hospital at Bath, 12 Gen. 2. c. 37. 39 Ed. c. 5. 21 Jac. 1. c. 1.

It is granted to the Governors of the Founding hospital, 13 Gen. 2. c. 20. Money given them, 29 Gen. 2. c. 20. felt. 13.

For building hospitals and work-louses at Bristol, 18 Gen. 2. c. 38.

Money for building the hospital near Glastonbury, 29 Gen. 2. c. 39. felt. 10. 39 Ed. c. 5. 21 Jac. 1. c. 1.

For other matters, see Charitable Uses. Hospitallor, Hospitallor, Hospitallor.
HOT

HOU

Hospitium. The fame with procuration, or visitation-money. Et munus Iouae legationis cum ecommunicatus hospitium habebat unum et quidam modesti monasterii minorum hospitium; etiam eorum hospitiatim, &c. &c. Norbert the German, fol. 1193.

Hospitium. Is the fame with Hospitium. See Procuration.

Hospitabilia. A right to receive lodging and entertainment reserved by many lords in the houses of their chamberlains. For this reason the phrase was called "hospitabilia." Hordens.

Hospitellus (Hospitellus), from the French houster, i.e. houster, Signified with us at the first that otherwise are called inn-keepers. Stat. 31 Ed. 3. fl. 2. c. 2.

Hospitellus. A house, (Fr. house.) An instrument used mostly by gardeners, and well known. Et fut qui quis de aurar & tollero, & fejus ferendi, fei collegiato, & hominum facultatis, de obvrat, & de panonis & aduertos, & emittis allis confunstentialibus. Carlota Hamonis Maffy.

Hospitiumidea. Hub, bole, confecrated in the holy churches of the holy church. See Anon. d. 1727.

Hospitiumidea. An hospitorium. See Anon. d. 1727.

Hospitiumidea. A place or room in religious houses, allotted to the use of receiving guests and strangers, for the care of which there was a peculiar order appointed, called Hystitariis, and Hystitariarum. Non Nihilostrum Elyon Elyun, &c. the consecration of the sanctuary, the Middle Ages, or the middle ages, of the Middle Ages, or the Middle Ages, of the Middle Ages, of the Middle Ages, or the Middle Ages.

Hospitiumidea. (Heritarius, from the Lat. offer, a goatherd.) The manor of Braighton, f. Elyon, in the reign of Edw. 2. was held by John Mauduit in capite per fejerantiam matrimonii domini Domini Regis, vel domini boeticum pertinem ad domini Regis. Paroch. Antiquus, paroch. Antiquus.

Hospitiumidea. In partem effet, (Fr. botcheps, a confused mangle, of divers things jumbled and put together.) Among the Dutch it signifies feth cut in pieces, and fodder with herbs or roots, not unlike that which the Romans called granum, which in the statute literally it signifies a pudding mixt of divers ingredients, but by a metaphor signifies a commodity, or putting together of lands of several tenure, for equal division of them, &c. 55. For example; A man feised of thirty acres of land in f. Elyon, hath two daughters, and gives with one of his daughters, to a man that marries her, ten acres of the same land in front-marriage, and dies feised of the other twenty acres. Now, if the feth is thus married will have any part of the twenty acres whereof her father died feised, the muft put her lands, given in front-marriage, in herpotat, that is, the muft refuse to take the soc fluits off the lands given in front-marriage, and fuffer the land to be common, and mingled together with the other lands whereof her father died feised, so that an equal division may be made of the whole between her and her sister, and for her ten acres the feth shall have fifteen acres, ele her fether will have the whole. See Case in Lat. lib. 2. cap. 12, and Britton, fol. 119. There is also in the Civil law eelatis bonum answerable to this, whereby if a child added by the father, do after his father's death challenge a child's part with the ret, he muft caue it in all that formerly he had received, and then take out and every other. Cowell. See Admissit Boultford. The land there to be of the nature of copyhold, and how to be leased by the ward of the manor, fol. 17 Hen. 8. c. 2.

Bothy. (Hore.) Is a certain space of time of sixty minutes, twenty minutes before the usual hour. See Stat. 5. c. 1. 1727. It is not material at what hour of the day a posin is born. 1 Ed. 13. See Statute.

Bothy. Is a kind of fee paid for burning goods, by a carrier, or at a wharf or key. See H. E. 1727.

Bothy. A place of dwelling, or habitation, also a family or household. In a house four things are needful--

1. Habitatus humanis. 2. Delicatissimis habitantibus, 3. Ne- ceffitas humanis. 4. Substas actis. For any hurt or hinderance to the first, third, and fourth of these an action lies; for profitter no quia faciatur in juro, quod secundum prifer alijens. The lawful of every man is to him as his cattle and forges, goods in the house of small injury and violence, as for his rope, according to the maxim, Damas sunitique ex tutissimum refugium. See C. 5 Rep. Seminae's cafe.

Bothy. The privilege that the law gives to houfe, for the habitation of men, is great; for fith, it ought to have the precedence in a prapate quod reddat before lands, meadows, pastures, and woods, the right of presence of a man hath privilege to protect him against an arrest, by force of a process of the law, at the suit of the fujelicet. Co. Rep. 11. Beaulieu's cafe. Thirdly, Thofe that dig for falt-plate, shall not dig in the manufa-houfe of any fujelicet with right to his affent; for them, he, his wife, nor his children, cannot by the common law, nor by the roads preferred for that. Fourthly, He that kills a man who will rob and spoil in the houfe, shall forfeit nothing. Cowell, edit. 1727.

In cafe of felony, or fujelicet of felony, the King's officers may break the houfe to take the felon; because it is for the good of the commonwealth to take felon, and because in every felony the King has interest, and where the King has interest, the writ of itself is a nov emittas propter aliquam libertatem, and to the liberty or privilege of a houfe shall not hold against the King. 5 Rep. 93. (d.) cites 9 Ed. 4. 9.

A. and B. were joint-tenants of a houfe, A. was bound in a statute to f. Elyon, and died, f. Elyon, sold. The marriag returned him dead; f. Elyon, suifed another writ to extend all the lands which he had when he acknowledged the statute, or after, and all goods which he had at his death; whereupon the fujelicet and jury came to the houfe, the door being open, there being a joint-tenant (A.) and offering to enter, B. shut the door against them. It was resolved, 18. That every man's houfe is as his cufle, as well to defend him against injuries as for his repose. 2. Upon recovery in any real action or ejection, the fujelicet may break the houfe to take it into fettlemet. and deliver felimon, &f. to the plain- riff, the writ being made facing privy, and after judgment it is not the houfe of the defendant in right and judgment of the law. 3. In all cafes, where the King is party, the fujelicet (if no door be open) may break the party's houfe to take him, or to execute other proces of the King, if he cannot otherwise enter; but he ought first to signify the cause of his coming, and requifite the door to be opened; and this appears by the statute 16H. 7. 17. which is only in affiance of the Common law, and without default in the owner, the law will not fuffer a houfe to be broken. 4. In all cafes, when the door is open, the fujelicet may enter and make execution at the faite of any fujelicet, either of body or goods; but otherwise where the door is shut, there he cannot break it to execute proces at the faite of a fujelicet, 5. Tho' a houfe is a cafe for the owner himself and his family and his own goods, &c. yet 'his no protection for a stranger flying thither, or the goods of such an one to prevent law proceedings; and therefore in such cases, after request to enter, and denial, the fujelicet may break the houfe. 5 Rep. 91. a. to 93. a. Mich. 2. 2nd. B. R. Seminae's cafe, also Seminae v. Grynaia.

Commissioners of bankruptcy can't break open a houfe to search for the bankruptcy's goods, unlef the be bankruptcy's goods. 2 Story 247. Mich. 34 Car. 2, B. R. Aout. P. p.
Salk.

5

two-

or

for justified

2.

in

the case

or

Genr v. Sparke.

If a person authorized to arrest another who is sheltered in a house, is denied quickly to enter into it, in order to take him, it seems generally to be agreed, that he may justify the breaking open the doors upon a copy from the King's Bench or Chancery, to compel a man to find sureties for the peace or good behaviour, or even upon a warrant from a justice of the peace for such purpose.

So where one known to have committed treason is pursued either with or without warrant, by a constable or private person. Ibid.

So where an affray is made in a house in the view or hearing of a constable; or where those who have made an affray in his presence fly to a house, and are immediately pursued by him, and he is not suffered to enter in order to suppress the affray, in the full case, or to apprehend the affraiers in either case. 2 Hawk. Pl. C. 37. c. 14. 9.

But it hath been resolved, that where justices of peace are, by virtue of a statute, authorized to require persons to come before them, to take certain oaths prefixed by such statute, the officer cannot lawfully break open the doors of the person whom he shall be named in any warrant made in pursuance of such statute, in order to be brought before the justices to take such oaths; because such warrant is not grounded on a precedent offence; neither does it appear, that the party either is or will be guilty of any. Ibid. f. 11. See 14 Fin. Abs. tit. Habe.

Duties on windows in dwelling houses, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 18. 5 Ann. c. 13. 8 Ann. c. 9. How payable by houses inhabited by two families, and by the inns of court, 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 10. f. 18. & 19.

Justices of the peace to appoint collectors of the duty,

6 Geo. 1. c. 21. fett. 61.

Hundred liable to damages by the burning of houses,

6 G. 1. c. 22. fett. 7.

A new duty on houses and windows granted, 20 Geo. 2. c. 3. & 42.

Apartments in the universities to pay as houses,

2 Geo. 2. c. 3. fett. 32.

Provisions for enforcing the payment of the duties,

2 Geo. 2. c. 10.

No settlement gained by paying those duties, 21 Geo. 2. c. 10. f. 13.

For enforcing the payment in Scotland, 26 Geo. 2. c. 17.

Additional duty on houses,

31 Geo. 2. c. 22. fett. 31. 2 G. 3. & 18.

For whom made, see Fabric without Clergy (under Felony) tit. Habeas. Borning.

Vulture, A compound of bashe and late, i.e. compen-fantis, signifies neither, or an allowance of necessary timber but out of the lord's wood, for the repairing and support of a house or tenement. And this belongs of common right to any kelse for years or for life: But if he take more than is needful, he may be punished by an action of waste. Habeas, says Co. on Litt. fol. 41, is twofold, viz. Eiusaemium assumendi & ordinandi. Cowell, edit. 1777.

House-breaking, or Housetrobbing, is the robbing of a man in some part of his house, or his booth or tent, in any fair or market, and the owner or his wife, children or servants being within the same; for this is felony by 23 H. 8. cap. 1. and 3 Ed. 6. cap. 9. And since it is no theft felony, though none be within the house, booth or stall, by 25 El. 15. See Burglary, Robbery.

House-burning, See Arson, Burgling.

Houses of Correction, To be built in every county,

18 Eliz. c. 3. 7 Jac. 1. c. 4.

Justices of peace may upon pretention enlarge houses of correction, 14 Geo. 2. c. 22. fett. 2.

Justices of a liberty or corporation may commit to the houses of correction of the county, 15 Geo. 2. c. 74.

Houses of correction to be under the government of the justices, 17 Geo. 2. c. 5. sect. 31.

Whoso may be committed to the house of correction. Vagabonds and disorderly persons may be sent thither, 39 El. c. 4. fett. 3. 4. 7 Jac. 1. c. 4. fett. 4. 12 Ann. fl. c. 2. 23. fett. 6.

Poor persons refusing to work, or wandering, 43 El. c. 1. 7 Ann. fl. c. 23. fett. 5.

Lewd women having husbands, and persons running away, and leaving their children to the parish, 7 Jac. 1. c. 4. fett. 7. & 8.

Or non-conformists against 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 1. fett. 2.

Poor refusing to go to place of settlement, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 13. f. 3.

Or persons offending against the same, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 25. fett. 5. & 7. 4 & 5 W. M. c. 23. fett. 3. 11. 5 Ann. c. 14. fett. 2. 4. 9 Ann. c. 15. fett. 4.

Or refusing oaths of allegiance and supremacy, 1 W. & M. fl. c. 8. fett. 9.

Or not wearing badge according to 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 30. fett. 2.

Or persons offending against the act concerning haw-kens and pedlars, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 27. fett. 3.

Or offending against fals duty, 1 Ann. fl. c. 21. fett. 5. 9 Geo. 2. c. 18. fett. 2.

Or acting contrary to the acts for preferring the fille-

Permons convict of theft or larceny, 5 Ann. c. 6. f. 2. Peroms not paying penalty for firing houses negligently, 6 Ann. c. 31. fett. 1.

Coachmen and chairmen on misbehaviour, 9 Ann. c. 23. fett. 49. 1 Geo. 1. c. 57. fett. 8.

Offenders against the acts concerning drapery, 1 Geo. 1. c. 15. fett. 6. 11 Geo. 1. c. 24. fett. 18. 7 Geo. 2. c. 25. fett. 2. 6. 1 Geo. 2. c. 28. fett. 10.

Seamen committing disorder in deck-yards, 1 Geo. 1. c. 75. fett. 1.

Or servants employed in adulterating tobacco, 1 Geo. 1. c. 46. fett. 5.

Vagrants, 6 Geo. 1. c. 10. To the most convenient houses of correction, 14 Geo. 2. c. 33. fett. 3.

Co. taylors refusing to work, 7 Geo. 1. c. 13. fett. 6.

Journeymen shoemakers on second condition of im-bazzlement, 9 Geo. 1. c. 27. fett. 1.

Or weavers, &c. combining against 12 Geo. 1. c. 34. fett. 1.

Or for not paying debts and damages, adjudged by judges on dispute about wages, 13 Geo. 1. c. 23. fett. 6.

Dyers guilty of deceit, 13 Geo. 1. c. 24. fett. 5.

Or persons convicted of perjury, 2 Geo. 2. c. 25. fett. 2.

Watermen, &c. not paying penalty of acting against

2 Geo. 2. c. 26. fett. 3.

Or mariners defecting, 2 Geo. 2. c. 35. fett. 4.

Or offenders against the act for regulating coal trade, 3 Geo. 2. c. 26. fett. 16.

Or offenders against the act concerning ballasting, 6 Geo. 2. c. 29. fett. 3.

Or for maliciously drawing up flood-gates, 8 Geo. 2. c. 20. fett. 2.

Persons lodging on the coast to run goods, 9 Geo. 2. c. 25. fett. 18.—Or persons not paying penalty for fraudulently removing goods, 11 Geo. 2. c. 19. fett. 4.

Or offending against the act concerning plays and interludes, 10 Geo. 2. c. 28. fett. 6.

Persons riotously hindering the exportation of corn,

11 Geo. 2. c. 22. fett. 1.

Or on oaths of murther or mistrep, 2 Geo. 2. c. 19. fett. 4.

Vehige, Ready, or quickly. Item diximus de illis lateratibus, qui in vehige aguntur culpibus inimicos, i.e. could not readily be convicted. Leg. Lachian, c. 10. From the Sax. v. heiged, i.e. beiged, in a short time. Cowell. edit. 1777.
HUE

Hudgeld. Significat quiescantiam transegrafsionis illius in fornum transegrafsionem. Fleta, Viz. xii. c. 47. 60. De dictione Fletae is to be expounded for hildgelde, which fee, & querre. When a villain or servant had committed any trespass, for which he derived whipping or corporal punishment, when he bought off his penalty with money, the price of exemption from such punishment was called hudgeld, or hildgelde; hence the name given to the offender, describing the party, and flying as near as he can which way he went; the confable ought forthwith to call upon the parson for aid in seeking the offender, and if he be not found there, then to give the next confable notice, and the next, until the offender be apprehended, or be let him be thus pursued until he be apprehended. Of this Bracton 3. prac. 464. 2. cap. 5. Smith de Rep. Angl. lib. 2. cap. 20. and the fl. 13 Edw. 1. of Wintller. 3. & 28 Ed. 3. 11. u. 27 Eliz. 13. The Normans had such pursit with a cry after offenders, which they called Clamor de havo, whereas you may read the liberal Clamary. cap. 54. And it may probably be derived from barbier, faqatural. Havo is used alone in slat. 4. Ed. 1. b. 2. In the ancient records this is called Hafetum & clamor. See Coke's 2 par. Inst. fol. 172.

But the clamor de havo was not a pursuit after offenders, but a challenge of any thing to be his own after the fashion of our challenge. A loud voice, before many witnesses, affirms it to be his proper goods, and demanded restitucion. This the Scots call buttifum; and Stew ne verb. signif. verb. Hafetum, faith, it is deduced from the Frenchoyer, a. audire, (or rather 182,) being a cry used before a proclamation; the manner of their hue and cry he thus describes, If a robber be done, a horn is blown, and an ort crye, after which, if the party fly away, and doth not yield himself to the King's bailiff, he may be lawfully slain, and hanged up upon the next gallows. Of this hue and cry, see Cramp. 2. Inst. of Peace, fol. 160. and in Rot. Clavij. 30 Edw. 3. a cry, it need not be heard, but he himself, being taken, to take the city of London into the King's hands, because the citizens did not, secedum legem & suffectu demin Regni, raise the hue and cry for the death of Guido de Arisia and others who are slain. Cowell, edit. 1772.

Warriored. Hue is the pursuit of an offender from town to town till he be taken, which all that are present when a felony is committed, or a dangerous wound given, are by the Common law, as well as by the statute, bound to raise against the offenders who escape, on pain of fine and imprisonment. 3 Inst. 116. 27. Inst. of Justice, & inst. of Justice, cap. 28. 109. Fleta, Coram. 395. C. Eliz. 654.

The raising of hue and cry is enjoined by the Common law, which may be called a raising of it at the suit of the King, as well as by several acts of parliament, which may be called a raising of it at the suit of the party that is injured. This party is not only authorized to levy hue and cry, but is also bound to do it under pain of fine and imprisonment. 2 Inst. 172. 3 Inst. 116. 1 Hal. Hist. P. C. 464.

From hence it follows, that although it is a good course, as my Lord Hale says, to have a precept or warrant too, in a case of justice of peace for raising hue and cry, yet it is neither usual nor right, at that place to be so鹘, most especially, for the felony may escape before the justice can be found; also hue and cry was part of the law before the statute of 1 Ed. 3. cap. 16, which first instituted justices of the peace. 2 Hal. H. P. C. 99.

And although also, says he, it is essentially incumbent upon confables to pursue hue and cry when called upon, and they are fervently penitent if they neglect it; and it prevents many inconveniences if they be there; for it gives a greater authority to their pursuit, and enables the pursuants, in his affidavit, to plead the general issue upon which they proceed; and so to prevent the inconveniences that may happen by unfirmes, it is most advisable that the confable be called to this action; yet upon a robbery, or other felony committed, hue and cry may be raised by the country in the absence of the confable; and in this there is no inconvenience, for if hue and cry be raised without cause, they that raise it are punishable by fine and imprisonment. 2 Hal. Hist. P. C. 99, 100.

The regular method of levying hue and cry, is for the party to go to the confable of the next town, and declare the fact, and describe the offender, and the way he is gone; whereas the confable ought immediately, whether it be hue and cry, to make search for the offender; and upon the next finding him, to send the like notice, with the utmost expedition to the confables of all the neighbouring towns, who ought in like manner to search for the offender, and also to give notice to their neighbouring confables, and they to the next, till the offender be found. 1 Inst. 116. Dal. Jusfici, cap. 28. Cramp. 178. 2 Haw. P. C. 75.

The confable is not only to make search in his own vill, but is also to raise all the neighbouring vills, who are all to pursue the hue and cry with hornstaves as well as the constables untill the offender be taken. 2 Hal. Hist. P. C. 101.

In case of hue and cry once raised and levied upon supposal of a felony committed, though in truth there was no felony committed; yet those who pursue hue and cry may arrest, and proceed as if a felony had been really committed. 2 Hal. Hist. P. C. 101.

And therefore the justification of an imprisonment by a perdon upon supposition, and by a person, especially a confable, upon hue and cry levied, do extremely differ; for in the former there must be a felony avered to be done, and it is sufficient, but in the latter, viz. upon hue and cry, it need not be avered, but he only levied, upon information of a felony is sufficient, though pre-coch the information were false; and therefore an averment of a felony committed, in case of a justification of an imprisonment upon hue and cry, is not necessary. The reasons whereof are, 1. Because the confable cannot examine the truth or falsehood of the suggestion of him who first levied it, for he cannot administer him an oath; and if he should forbear his pursuit of the hue and cry till it be examined by a justice of peace, the felon might escape, and the pursuit would be lost and fruitless. 2. Because the confable is by several acts of parliament very compellable to pursue hue and cry, and that it is punishable for him to withdraw the cause of the vill, if they do it not. 3. Because that first raised a hue and cry where no felony was committed, viz. the person that gave the false information, is severally punishable by fine and imprisonment, if the information be false; and therefore it be hue and cry for that which is innocent. But in the case that they that pur-sue the hue and cry, may justify the imprisonment of that innocent perdon, and the raifer is punishable; and by the same reason, if he give notice of a felony committed where there was in truth none. 5 Ed. 5. a. 21 H. 7. 28. a. per Red. 2 Ed. 4. 857. 29 Ed. 3. 39. 2 Inst. 172.

If hue and cry be raised against a perdon certain for felony, tho' possibly he is innocent, yet the confable, and those that follow the hue and cry, may arrest and imprison imprison him in the common gaol, or carry him to a jailice of the peace. 2 Hal. H. P. C. 102.

If the perfom pursu'd by hue and cry be in a house, and the door be closed, and refused to be opened upon demand of the constable, and notice given of his diffes, he may break open the doors; and this he may do in any case where he may arrest, though it be only a suspicion of felony, for it is for the King and Commonwealth, and therefore a virtual sum punita in the case of the same law is upon a dangerous wound, or given, and a hue and cry levied upon the offender. 7 Ed. 3. 16. 6. 2 Hal. H. P. C. 102.

It feems in this cafe, that if he cannot be otherwise taken, he may be killed, and the necessity excuseth the constable. 1 Ed. H. P. C. 102.

If a person accused against any person, or where any hue and cry comes to a constable, whether the perfom be certain or uncertain, the constable may search in suffed- pected places within his ville, for the apprehending of the felon. Dott. cap. 28. 2 Ed. 4. 8. b. Camp. of Peace 178. 2 Hal. H. P. C. 167.

But though he may search suffedped places or houses, yet his entry must be per efta opus, for he cannot break open doors barely to search, unless the perfom against whom the hue and cry is levied be there, and then it is true he may; therefore in case of such a search, the breaking open the door is at his peril, viz. justifiable if he be there; but if it must be always resorted to, that in case of breaking the door, there must be first a notice given to them within of his busines, and a demand of entrance, and a refusal, before doors can be broken. 2 Hal. H. P. C. 103.

If the hue and cry be not against a person certain, but by description of his stature, perfom, clothes, horfe, &c. the hue and cry both justify the constable, or other perfom, following it, in apprehending the perfom so described, whether innocent or guilty, for that is his warrant; it is a kind of process that the lawallows, (not usual in other cafes) viz. to arrest a person by description. 2 Hal. H. P. C. 103.

But if the hue and cry be upon a robery, burglarly, manslaughter or other felony committed, but the perfom that did the fact is neither known nor described by perfom, clothes or the like; yet such a hue and cry is good, as hath been said, and must be pursu’d, tho’ no perfom certain be named or descibed. 2 Hal. H. P. C. 103. 2. Ed. 4. 8. b. But in the checky cafe, all that the constable can do, is to take the persons who purife the hue and cry, to take such perfoms as they have probable cause to suspect; as for instance, Such perfoms as are vagrants, that cannot give an account where they live, whence they are, or such fapceus perfoms as come late into their inn or lodgings, and give no reason why they were there when the hue and cry is given, and the like. 2 Ed. 4. 8. 6. 2 Hal. H. P. C. 103.

And here the justification of the imprisonmen is mixed partly upon the hue and cry, and partly upon their own suspicion; and therefore, 1. in respect that it is upon hue and cry, there needs no averment that the felon was done, yet a must be proved that an information was given that the constable was there, if the arrest be by that constable that first received the information, and to raised the hue and cry; or if the arrest were made by that constable, or those vials to whom the hue and cry came at the second-hand, it must be averred that such a hue and cry came to them, purporting such a felon to be done; but 2. as inasmuch as the hue and cry neither names nor describes the perfom of the felon, but only the felony committed; and therefore the arrest of this or that perfonal perfom, and so applied, is left to the suspicion and discretion of the constable or the people of the second or of the felon, will it, that arrests any perfom upon both gen- eral hue and cry, must aver that he suspected, and therupon a reasonable cause of suspicion. 2 Hal. H. P. C. 104.

But now by the statute of 7 Jac. 1. cap. 5. the con- stable, or any that come in his affiance, even in this case of hue and cry, may plead the general affiance, and give the whole matter of the justification in evidence; for, the pursuit of hue and cry, tho' performed by others as well as the constable, is principally the act of the constable of the ville, and the others are but his deputies or stiftants within the precincts of his constabulate. 2 Hal. H. P. C. 104. 2.

For there can be no doubt but that both by the Common- law, as also by the several statutes which intitute the le- vying of hue and cry, they who neglect to levy one, (whether officers of justice, or others) or who neglect to pursue it when rightly levied, are punishable by indem- nity, and may be fixed and imprisoned for such neglect, 2. 3.

And now by the 8 Geo. 2. cap. 16. fin. 11. it is en- acted, "That every constable of the hundred, and every constable, bottholdcr, headborough or usherman of any town, parish, village, hamlet or tything within the bended, or the branches within the precinct thereof, wherein the robbery shall happen, as soon as the forfeiture shall come to his knowledge, either by notice from the party or parties robbed, or from any other perfom or persons, to whom notice shall be given thereof pursuant to this or any other fature, shall, with the utmost expedition, make and cause to be made, freed fuit and hue and cry after the felon or felons by whom such robbery shall be committed; and if any constable, bottholdcr, headborough or tythingman, shall offend in the premises, by refusing or neglecting to make, or cause to be made, such freed suit and hue and cry, every such offender shall, for every such refual or neglect, forfeit five pounds. but this statute contains also these clauses relating to the raising hue and cry, etc.

Hudson. Ships to transport horse. *This mentioned in Huscen by the name of worfri. And Brabon- ten, ann. 1190. calls them affers, viz. Rec Tenea. de ded. Regi Anglie. 2 magno nonat quos vacat offer. It doth not appear by Vifans or Somers, whence this word is derived. Some will have it from the French huits, i.e. a doer; because when the horses are on shipboard, the doors or hatches are flut upon them to keep out water. Canali, edit. 1727.

Ufful, A referrant of exactions taken there; 7 Hen. 8. c. 3. Their duties on fit-hill and bersmis restored, 39 Hen. 8. c. 33. 5 Eliz. c. 5. fett. 3. The custom of Hull to have a deputy refident at York, &c. Eliz. 11. 8. 4. For excelling workhouses and maintaining the poor at Hull, and for the same purposes in the town of Hull, etc. 15. 6. c. 6. 2. Hulling, A hill. — Habendum & tenendum dominum pollumam in bullis, & baltinis, i.e. in hills and dales. Mem. Angl. tem. 2. p. 292.

Humber (River) in Yorkshire, fifty-partes and pikes, £c. to be removed, 23 Hen. 8. c. 18.

Hundred (Hundredum, centuriae) Is a part of a thire so called, either because of old each hundred found 100 fiefutors of the King's peace, or a hundred able men for his wars. But by and by think's it called, because it was composed of an hundred families. Till that Bracton tells us, that an hundred contains centum vil- las; and Gibbons Commons tells us, that the life of Man- hach-343 villas. But in these places the word villa must be taken for a country family; for it cannot mean a village, because there are not above 40 villages in that land. So where Ms. Lambert tells us, that an hundred is so called, a samus centum hominum, it must be under- stood of an hundred men, who are heads or chief of so many families. These were first ordained by King Al- fred, the 20th King of the West-Saxons: Aedred Ræs, (litt. Lomard, vers Centurias,) &c. &c. Guthrumus Law, (sets in the chart, and in his Sceat, the hundred was called thou a hundred, and therefore the hundred, £c. This dividing counties into hundreds, for better government, King Alfred brought from Germany; For
For these towns, or centers, is a jurisdiction over a hundred or towns. This is the original of hundreds, which still retain the name, but their jurisdiction is devoted to the county-court, some few excepted, which have by privilege annexed to the Crown, or granted to some great subject, and to remain full in the nature of a franclise. The Crown could only grant to such counties, whereof these hundred-counts, formerly farmed out by the sheriff to other men, were all, or the most part, reduced to the county-court, and to remain at present. So that where you read now of any hundred-counts, you must know they are general archcives, wherein the sheriff has not to do by his ordinary authority, except they of the hundred refuse to do their office. See Wal. part 1. Symbol. lib. 2. f. 228. Ad hundredum post Posbha, &c. as preposterous hundredum post solum St. Mich. Mon. Angl. 2 par. f. 223 a. The word hundred is sometime of an immnute or village, wherein a man is quit of hundred-penny, or penalties due to the hundred. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Hundred is to have jurisdiction or power to administer justice in 100 villis, or of 100 men, or of 100 parishes. Br. Court Bar. pl. 8. cit. B H. 3. 3, per Red. Every hundred in England is an hundred in a county, and every parish in London as a vill in an hundred. 9 Rep. 66 b. Hundreds were either parcel of the counties, and there the sheriff did constitute bailiff, (tou, those hundreds which were anciently parcel of the farm of the sheriff, that the statute 2 Ed. 3. cap. 12. speaks of,) or else they were granted by charter, in lieu of the charges, whereof the hundred sometimes held at farm, and sometimes in fee, called hundreds in fee, liberties of hundreds, manors of hundreds. Per Hobe Co. B. Vent. 405. Hill. 22 & 23 Car. 2, in the cause of Atkins v. Clare.

In King John's time, the kingdom was in grots, and then divided into counties and hundreds, and all persons then came within one hundred or other; and then the King's relations had the government of them, and therefore they were called Confessors, &c. and the Earls, Lord-lieutenants, &c. at this day; and then when the office became troublesome, there were ordained Pistons, which name remains to this day, and the others continue to be called Confessors, but have no power in the county, having only the honorary name of Earls or Comites of such or such a county, &c. and for the better government of these counties, the Pistons were two courts; but this is not altogether true, for as it was given to them as a peer of the realm, but the turn of the Piston had yet a supernodant power, they being derived out of the Piston's turn, as in Dyer 13. And then afterwards the King granted away some hundreds in fee-sable, and some franchises, and the last excluded the King utterly, but the hundreds granted away were not wholly exempt. On this article it is not certain, and the parliament hereupon took notice, that the execution of justice was by this much interrupted, and therefore came the statute of 9 Ed. 2. That if sheriff should be sufficient persons, and have lands in the county, and so able to answer both the King and country, and that bailiffs and farmers of hundreds should be sufficient men. And at this time hundreds were granted for years. Then came the statute of 2 Ed. 3. cap. 4 & 5. That sheriff should continue but for one year. But this took not away the whole inconvenience; for the Crown still granted away bailiwicks and hundreds, for lives, at the consideration of a default, or for the maintenance of the public peace. And so therefore came the statute of 2 Ed. 3. cap. 12. and 14 Ed. 3. cap. 9. By the first it was enacted, That all hundreds and waipontages granted by the King shall be annexed to the county, and not feared. And by the other that all such hundreds and waipontages, as the King shall grant, shall have power to put in bailiffs, for which they shall answer, and no more shall be granted for the future; and one reason of this was, because the King granted away hundreds, and abated not the sheriff's farm. Arg. 2 Show. 80, 89. Poth. 32 Car. 2. L. R. 2.

Other hundreds shall be kept only by those that have land sufficient within the hundred. 9 Ed. 2. p. 2.

Hundred shall be annexed to counties. 2 Ed. 3. c. 12. Shall be left at the ancient farm. 4 Ed. 3. c. 15. 28 Ed. 1. c. 2. 14. Not answerable to persons who are robbed travelling on a Sunday. 29 Car. 2. c. 7. fist. 5. Liable to penalty on exportation of wool, 7 & 8 Will. 3. c. 28. f. 4. Liable to damages sustained by pulling down buildings, 1 Gen. 1. c. 5. fist. 6. By killing cattle, cutting down trees, burning hedges, 6 Gen. 1. c. 22. fist. 7. 29 Gen. 2. c. 36. 9. For destroying turnpikes, or works on navigable rivers, 8 Gen. 2. c. 42. fist. 6. For cutting hedges, 10 Gen. 2. c. 32. fist. 4. For destroying corn to prevent exportation, 11 Gen. 2. c. 22. fist. 5. For wounding officers of the customes, 15 Gen. 2. c. 34. fist. 6. Or by destroying woods, &c. 29 Gen. 2. c. 36. f. 9. All monies recovered against the hundred to be levied by a rate, 23 Gen. 2. c. 46. fist. 34. For other matters, see Huc et cry. Robbery.

Hundredth's, (Hundredth,) Are men impannelled, or fit to be impannelled on a jury upon a controversy, dwelling in the hundred where they are in question lies, Crompt. Jur. vol. 217. and 22 Hen. 8. 6. And default of hundredth's was a challenge or exception to panels of jurors, by our law, till the 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. enacted that to prevent delays by reason of challenges to panels of jurors for default of hundredth's, &c. writs of venire faciendo should issue in the county at Westminster, shall be awarded of the body of the proper county where the issue is true. Hundredth signifies also him that hath the jurisdiction of a hundred, and holdeth the hundred-court, 13 Ed. 1. cap. 3. 9 Ed. 2. f. 2. and 2 Ed. 3. cap. 4. And sometimes it is used for the bailiff of an hundred. Pecul. Mirror of Justice, lib. 1. cap. Del officio del corone. Hundred-Legh, Signifies the hundred court, from which all the officers of the King's forest were exempted by the charter of King Canuus, c. 9. See Manwood; see also Traficott.

Hunting. See Come, Fletching.

Huntingdon, near Chffer, how repaired, 37 Hort. s. c. 9.

Hunsheerf, A domeckie, or one of the family, from the Sax, byread, familia, and seif, firmus, Bit in annu convenient in hundredem duum quia quinque libri tam hundredreft quam seifari ad digresind. se decanie plena funt. Leg. H. s. c. 8.

Hurters, The cappers and hat-merchants, being called hurriers, were partly one company of the haberdashers. Stour. Survey of London, p. 312.

Hurt, Hap, Hert, Are derived from the Sax, i.e. a wood, or grove of trees. There are many places in Kent, Suffolk, and Hampshire, which begin and end with this syllable; and the reason may be, because...

Q. 77, 12.
I

CHRIS, A kind of defensive coat worn by horsemen in war, not made of fossil iron, but many plates fatten together, which fome by tenure were bound to find upon any invasion. See Dudgeon. Wulflingham, in the Life of Richard II. fol. 239. tells us, Acceptab e ver ejusdem fablus Philipus quod mille hieras vel taurus, una quinque iugum, redemerit de manibus creditorum. And in pag. 249. Acceptab quodam vigilimentum pretia- tum duobus Londonijs, quae jacte vocavit. —It was called hircia, because at frift it was made with leather. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Jutibus, (Lat.) Signifies him that felfeth by default; quod placcitum fem neglegentis, & jutibus cede remane- fi. Formul. Selen. 159.

Jamaica. See Plantations.

Jamaicawood, (mentioned 15 Car. 2. cap. 5.) Is a kind of speckled wood, of which are made cabinets, called there grubbil. The tree (as they fay) is low and small, feldom bigger than a man's leg.

Jambret, Armour for the legs; from jambe, idia. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Jampurum, Furf or gore; also a gorey ground, Ce. x part. 175. A word much ufed in fine, and the name femes to derive itself from the French jaumer, i. e. yellow, because the bloffoms of it are of that colour. Ce. en Lit. p. 5. fays jampurn, signifies a wetherplace. Manwood, in his ForL-Law, cap. 25. num. 3. fays, No man may cut down furze or whifs within the forêt without good licence.

Jaques, A fort of small money ufed formerly here, and mentioned by Stanfurd, in his Pifs of the Crews, cap. 20. Jac. (Span. Jârre, i. e. an earthen pot) With us it is taken for an earthen pot or vefiel of oil, containing twenty gallons.

Jarrock, (mentioned in Stat. 1 R. 3. c. 8.) Is a kind of cork, or other ingredient, which this statute prohibits dyes to use in dyeing cloth.

Junn, (Fr. Jaune, i. e. yellow colour.) Preterea concedi abbati & conu. & hominibus curum de Stannal de fte de bardeus fii colliure jaum & feugere & Sæna & genetam per terram jannum fine impedimenti, & Ch. Charta Will. de Baye, fine dat. Doubtles here jaum is ufed for furze or gore, which we now in law Latin call jampurn, and anciently jumnum; &c. Donation ilias jaum in Dun- sked. Pl. Attff. 22 H. 3. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Jreni, Saffif, Jaff, Jaffi, Cambridge, and Huntingdon.

Sch dien, Is the motto of the Arms of the Prince of pair; from the Germ. ich dien, i. e. I serve. It was formerly the motto of the King of Bohemia, who was slain in the battle of Gruffy by Edward the Black Prince, and taken up by him to shew his devotion to his father, King Edward III.

Jōna, (Jonica.) A figure, image or representation of a thing. 'Tis mentioned in Matt. Parif. pag. 140, 491. in Hevelon, p. 670. and in Brampton, pag. 1178.

Juwex, Juwes, Juwex. A bruife, a swelling, any hurt or maim without breaking the skin, which they call properly fura, a wound, and apertus plagus, an open wound. —S inveniatur plaga apertura, vel brevifirum for fura orbis. Broden. lib. 2. traft. 2. c. 5. f. 7. So urzes was ufed for a black and blue foot, or livid mark of beating- Ligna fuitum brevisari, orbis, & illus, qui julicari non pavemento plagam, ib. cap. 24. fol. 2. So illus eoci opere in eoci cruentare et eoci apparet. As in the laws of H. 1. c. 94. —S ilius alius urzes, ret certis illibus & non equitatis, quatuor orbis ibi fit, vel non contrectus, vacuo vitam endematur deminis, iujus ba- minum vobravtis. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Jurentiae nominis, Is a writ that lies for him, who upon a capias or certior committit and promised to pri- son for another man of the fame name; in fuch cafe he may have this writ directed to the fhiriff, which is in nature of a com mission to inquire, whether he be the fame perfon against whom the action was brought; and if not, then to discharge him. Reg. Org. 194. F. N. B. 267.

Stat. 37 Ed. 3. cap. 2. For the mischifes which happen of that the escapators, fhiriffs and other minifers, feize the lands and goods of many, furnifying that they be outlawed, because they bear fuch names as thofes which are outbreaked, it is declared, that if any complain of him in fuch cafe, he fhall have a writ of Identitatis nominis, as hath been ufed; and if any man's lands or goods be feized in fuch cafe, he fhall find furety before the minifer which hath the warrant to feize, to anfwer to the King of the value of fuch lands or goods, in cafe that he cannot pay fuch furety, without taking any thing of the party; and if fuch minifer do not the fame, and thereof be attained, the party fhall recover towards the double damages, and he fhall be grievously amerced towards the King.

Stat. 9 Hen. 6. cap. 4. A writ of Identitatis nominis may be maintained or any. or any tellew as well as for any perfon himfelf.

Execution infixed for damages recovered againft the bailiff of A. by the name of J. S. of D. and there was J. S. the father and J. S. the fon, and the father being dead the fon fixed this writ, and prayed to have a superfederat; and Warner in J. S. demanded of Bifhulmo if he had any pre- ceed to award a superfederat in fuch cafe, which Bifhulmo refus'd No; wherefore he and Husen J. being only proficient, fay they would advise. Winch 6. Pach. 19. Jcr. Earl of Northumberland v. Earl of Devon. Con. fac. 623. C. C. by the name of Stabs v. Cook; and upon furmise that the fuit was againft J. F. the elder, and execution being fueld, the fhiriff had endeavoured to levy the damages, &c. upon the goods of J. S. they ounger, who fixed this writ to be difcharged; and the writ was allowed, tho' after verdict, judgment, and execution awarded. Hutt. 45. S. C. by the name of Wifon v. Stabb, and that upon the directing the right hand of J. S. to an fhiriff upon the identitatis nominis, the question was, if the superfederat lies thereupon, it being only a furmise and matter in fact, and lies more properly, and more frequently, for preventing an arreft upon outlawry, and after the party is taken upon the vveal of ftatute, is a thing not frequent in ufe, and is in nature of an end, good for the goods, and that finding furety to pay the debt it found that he be not another perfon; and the court inclined strongly, that it is no superfederat, but much in the difcretion of the court, cites Lib. Infrar. and Sec. Ed. 3. 51. 52 & 53. Hen. 320. S. C. and the parties before cited) were produced, yet the court was of opinion that the writ in the personal caufe, and the superfederat thereupon, was not war- ranted, but the defendant, being named J. S. the younger, might have action of false imprifonment. —Shea.
cause the defendant, being named J. S. without addition, 1 therefore be accounted the younger, but always the elder of the two of that name; but to avoid duplicity of fuits, it was ordered that the defendant in the former action should appear to the act. in the Identify minis, and plead, and go to trial, and if the defendant in the former action was bound to give bond for the former action, then the defendant in the latter action shall give bond for the former action, with the security to be delivered to the new defendant, or of otherwise, then to the new plaintiff. Sec. 12 N. Acr. tit. Identify, minis.

I. E. of Greece word properly signifying a private man, who has no publick office.

Among the Latins it is taken for licentii, imperii, and in our law for non contemptui, or non naturali, or a natural foul.
The words of the statute 17 Ed. 2, c. 9, are Rex habet et fidelium terram fatum non naturalium, whereby it appears he must be a natural foul, that is, a fool a naturativus:
for if he was once wife, or become a fool by chance or misfortune, the King shall not have the custody of him.
Stannul. Prerog. cap. 9. 3 F. N. B. leg. 231. If one have understanding to measure a yard of cloth, number twenty, rightly name the days of the week, or to beget a child, he shall not be counted an idiot or natural foul, Cowell, edit. 1727.

But the general description of a person, who, from his want of reason and understanding, comes within the protection of the law, is that of non contumens. Co.
Lit. 240. 4 Co. 124. Sin. 177.

There are, says my Lord Cole, four kinds of men who may be said to be non contumens. 1. An idiot, who is non cooper from his nature. 2. One made fuch by ficknefs. 3. Lunatick, qui alignatur gaudet lucidi interlocuti, who is non contumens only for the time that he wants understanding. 4. One that is drunk; which left is far from coming within the protection of the law, that his drankenpf is an aggravation of whatever he does amifs.

Co. Lit. 247. 4 Co. 124. See 1 Hale Hig. P. C. 30

1. An idiot is a fool or madman from his nativity, and one who never has any lucid intervals; therefore the King has the protection of him and his effate, during his life, without rendering any account; because it cannot be presumed that he will be ever capable of taking care of himself or his affairs: And such a one is described a person that cannot number twenty, tell the days of the week, does not know his father or mother, his own age, &c. But these are mentioned as instances only;
for idiot, or not, being a question of fact, must be tried by jury or infention. Dryr. 25. Mer 4. pl. 11.

But tho’ an idiot must be so a naturativus, yet if by infention it be found, that A. is an idiot not having any lucid intervals per fpectrum alto occurring, this is a sufficent finding; for the infention having found the party an idiot, the adding fipectrum alto occurring is surplusage, and shall be rejected. 3 Mod. 43. 44. Sin. 177.
Stom. 5. 175. S. C. Pedeney and Lady Frazier.

2. One made such by fickness, which my Lord Hale calls Dementia accidentalis vel adventitious, and which he again distinguishes into a total and a partial impatient, from its being more or less violent, is such a madman as executed an accidental criminal; and the party also is in every thing else be intitled to the fame protection with an idiot; and tho’ his disorder seems permanent and fixed, yet as he had once reason and understanding, and as the law fees no impossibility but what he may be reforted to them again, it makes the King only a truftee for the benefit of the party, for the good of the state, without giving any profit or interest in his effate. 1 Hale Hig. P. C. 30.

3. A lunatick; this is also Dementia accidentalis vel adventitious, and takes its name from the great influence which the moon has in all disorders of the brain; and tho’ such a one hath intervals of reason, yet during his madnes may be said to have the same indulgence as to his 247; and stands in the same degree with one whole disorder is fixed and permanent. 4 Co. 125. 3 Hale Hig. P. C. 31.

4. One made mad by drunkennes, which is called Dementia effusiva; and tho’, as has been said, such a person be not intitled to the protection of the law, yet if a person by the wilful drink of his physician, or by the contrivance of his enemies, eat or drink such a thing as caused phrenzy, this puts him in the same condition with any other phreny, as much as to furnish him; also if by one or more such practises an habitual or fixed phreny be caufed, tho’ this madness was contrived by the vice and will of the party, yet this habitual and fixed phreny thereby ceafed puts the man in the same condition, as if the same was so tricked involuntarily at first. Plac.
Hig. 1737. Geo. Tylcffe 29a. Co. Lit. 247. 1 Hale Hig.
P. C. 32.

But tho’ this subject of madmen may be spun out to a greater length, and branched into several kinds and degrees, yet it appears that the prevailing diſfuiclion herein in law is between decency and lunacy; the first a fatuity a naturativus, vel dementia naturalis, which excetteth the government to his acts, and intitles the King to the receipt of the rents and profits of his eflate during his life, without being obliged to render any account for the same; the other accidental or adventitious madness, which, whether permanent and fixed, or with lucid intervals, goes down as to the fum of lunacy, and is not accounted with idiocy, as to acts done during the phreny; but herein they differ, that in the latter case the King, as has been told, is only a truftee for the lunatick, and accountable to him, if he happen to be reforted to his understanding, or to his representatives, if it has, per otherwise. 3 Sec.
Acr. 80. 4 Co. 125. a.

1. How idiots and lunaticks are to be found fuch.
1. Who had an interest in, and jurifdiction over them;
and of appointing them proper curators and committees, and the power and duty of such committees.

2. How for the want of understanding fuch shall be faid to prejudice them in civil and criminal eafes.

3. How for their acts are good, void, or voidable; and how they are to sue or defend.

4. How idiots and lunaticks are to be found fuch.

Every perfon of the age of discretion is in law prefumed to be of found mind and memory, unless the contrary appear; and this rule holds as well in civil as criminal eafes. 1 Hale Hig. P. C. 32.

The quality of lunacy, madness or lunacy in civil eafes, and in order to the commitment or eylate of the person and his eflate, which belongs to the King, either to his own use and benefit, as in case of idiocy, or to the use of the party, in case of accidental madmen or luacy, is by writ or commission to the sheriff or eolicetor, or particular commissaries both by their own order and by infention to inquire, and return their infcription into the Chancery; and thereupon a grant or commitment of the party and his eflate ensues: And in case the party or his friends find themfelves injured by the finding him a lunatick or idiot, a special writ may lie to bring the party before the Chancellor, or before the King. In Council, to be judged and if, on examination, it ap-ppear the party is no idiot, the whole commifion and office shall be discharged without any traverse or monfranf de droit. 9 Co. 31. a. 4 Co. 126. And for this writ of Idita inquireris, see Fin. N. B. 292. 3.

Also the party found an idiot or lunatick, may traverse the infcription, as may any other perfon having a title to the land, and therefore it is said, that by the statute 13
Hen. 6. there ought to be a month’s time between the return of the infcription and the grant of the eylate and lands, in order for the parties to come in and tender such traverse. Sin. 176.

If a lunatick or a perfon be found a lunatick, and the custody granted to T. S. and the party thus found bring a faire facias to set aside the infcription, the committee of the lunatick cannot plead nor join sliie in fauch faire facias; for he can have no interest in the effect of the lunatick, being only in the nature of a bai-liﬁf to the King, and therefore his duty is to inform the King's Attorney General of the nature of the affair, who is the proper person to contest the matter in behalf of the King. 2 Sid. 124. Sufan Thor v. Cawards.

IDE
As to idoeocy, lunacy or madness, which excusses in capital cases, it is not necessary that it was found by inquillition that the party was a madman, idiot, lunatick and that he be actually mad, for if he was not actually mad at the time of the fact committed, this shall excuse; and this regularly is to be tried by an inquest of offiﬁce to be returned by the sheriff of the county wherein the court ﬁles for the trial of the ofﬁence; and if it be found that he was not mad, he shall be deliberated from any other trial; but if they shall ﬁnd that the party only feigns himself mad, and he refuses to answer or plead, he shall be dealt with as one who stands mute. 26 A. ﬂ. pl. 27. Bro. Cre. 101. 1 And. 107,
P. C. 25.
1. Also in a case a man in a frenzy happen by some over-fright, or by means of the gaoler, to plead to his indictment, and is put upon his trial, and it appears to the court upon his trial that he is mad, the judge in derection may discharge the jury of him, and remit him to god speed. If after a bare hearing or appearance especially in cases of any doubt upon the evidence touching the guilt of the fact, and this in favorem vitae and if there be no colour of evidence to prove him guilty, or if there be a pregant evidence to prove his intimacy at the time of the fact committed, then, upstanding in favour of life and liberty, it is in law it should be proceeded in the trial, in order to his acquittal and
2. Who hath an interest in, and jurisdiction over them;
and of appointing them proper curators and committees
and the power and duty of such committees.
It seems to be agreed at this day, that the King as pars patriae hath the protection of all his subiects, and that in a more particular manner has the special protection of those who, by reason of their imbecility and want of understanding, are incapable of taking care of them-theselves; this, in some books, is called a prerogative in the crown, and in others a regius munus, or duty which the King owes to his subjects in relation to their subjicet Written and all the other matters of his understanding, it is in law it should be proceeded in the trial, in order to his acquittal and My Lord Coke in his 2 Int. is of opinion, that by the Common law the King had no prerogative in the custody of an idiot’s lands, but that the same belonged to the lords of whom the lands were held, and that the fame was given to the King by some act of parliament after the making of Magna Charta, and before the statute De prærogativa Regis 17 Ed. 1. cap. 9.
In 3 Cr. Bevans’s case, he says, that this prerogative was by the Common law, and that the statute De prærogativa Regis is only declaratory thereof. 2 Int. 14. 4 Co. 126. a. Dyer 25.
But however that may be, now, by the statute
De prærogativa Regis, 26 Ed. 2. cap. 9, it is enacted, that the King shall have the custody of the lands of natural fools, taking the proﬁts of them, without waste or defraution, and shall ﬁnd them their necessaries, of whole fees over the lands be holden; and after the death of such idos, he shall render it to the right heirs, so that such Ides shall not alien, nor their heirs shall be disseised.
And cap. 10 of the said statute, “The King shall provide when any (that before that time had his will and memory) happen to fail of his will, and there are many perils between, that their lands and tenements shall be safely kept without waste or destrution, and that
Vol. II. No. 97.
they and their household shall live and be maintained competently with the proﬁts of the same, and the residue, becoming to the King immediately, that be kept to their use, to be delivered unto them when they come to mature years, if such lands and tenements shall in no wise be aliened, and the King shall take nothing to his own use; and if the party die in such estate, then the residue shall be distributed for his soul, by the advice of the ordinary.”
This distribution, established by this statute, between the King’s interest in the lands of the lunatick, is laid down and admitted in all the books which speak of this matter; and on this foundation it hath been reolved, that the King may grant the custody of an idiot’s lands to a persons his heir and executors, and that he may not take the same interest from one as he had in his ward by the Common law. 3 Bro. Lib. 6. Dyer 25. Mor. 4. pl. 12. 1 And. 23. 4 Co. 127. C.
Lit. 247.
But though a lunatick is by commitment to be he-care of the publick, and such committee is to be appointed for him by the Lord Chancellor, whose acts are subject to the control and correction of the court of Chancery; yet such a one, wether so appointed, or whether he of his own hand take upon him the care and management of the estate of a lunatick, is but in nature such a trustee or trustee for him, and accountable to him, his executors or administrators. 4 Co. 127. 2
Ch. Lib. 239.
And as the committees of a lunatick have no interest, but an estate during pleasure, it has been ruled, that they cannot make leases, nor any ways incumber the lunatick’s estate; without a special order from the court of Chancery, where the proﬁts and estates are directed to maintain the lunatick. 1 Vern. 262. Fryer v. Merchant.
Alfo where a lunatick, before he became such, made a mortgage of good part of his estate for 50 l. and the
the committee transferred this mortgage, and took up 3 400 l. more upon it; and it was held by my Lord Keppel, that this mortgage was good, and a security for the 50 l. only. 1 Vern. 262, 263.
And though the King, as has been said, has the sole direction and management of idiots, &c. yet a private person may confine a friend who is mad, and bind and beat him, &c. in such a manner as is proper in such circumstances. 2 Rol. Lib. 54.
And alfo by the 12 Ann. cap. 23, reciting, that whereas there are sometimet in parishes, towns and places, persons of little or no estate, who by lunacy, or otherwise, are furiously mad, and dangerous to be permitted to go abroad, and by the laws in being the juflices of peace and others have not authority or right to restrain and confine them, it is enacted, “That it shall not be lawful for any two justices of the peace, where such lunatick or mad person shall be found, by warrant under their hands and seals, directed to the constables, churchwardens and overseers of the poor of such parish or place, or some of them, to cause such person to be prerephrased and kept safely locked up in such place within in the county where such parish or town shall lie, as such justices shall, under their hands and seals, direct and appoint; and if such justices ﬁnd it necessary to be there chained, if the legal settlement of such person shall be in any parish, town or place within such county; and if such settlement shall not be there, then such person shall be sent to the place of his or her last legal settlement, as vagrants by this act are directed to be sent, (whipping excepted) and shall be kept safely locked up or chained, as aforesaid; and the charges of keeping and maintaining such performing, out of the more or less, of such person, if such person hath an estate to pay and satisfy the same, or out of the amount (which shall be for and during such time only,) as such lunacy or madness shall continue, shall be satisﬁed and paid by order of two or more justices of the peace for the county, town or place where such settlement shall lie, out of the estate of such person, if such person hath an estate to pay and satisfy the same, or out of the amount, (which shall be for and during such time only,) as such lunacy or madness shall continue,” shall be satisﬁed and
paid by order of two or more justices of the peace for
the county, town or place where such settlement shall lie, ways and means as the poor of such parishes, town or place, are by the laws in being to be provided for."

Provided, that this act, or any thing contained therein, shall not extend, or be construed to extend, to restrain or abridge the prerogative of the Queen, or the power or authority of the Lord Chancellor, Lord Keeper, or Commissioners of the Great seal, or to the time being, or to the Vice-Chancellor of the Court of Chancery, of the Court of the Palatine of Lancaster for the time being, or of the Chamberlain or Vice-Chamberlain of the County Palatine of Chester for the time being, touching or concerning the premises."

3. How far their estate of underrighting shall be said to prejudice them in civil and criminal cases.

Civil cases. An idiot, or person non campus, may inherit, because the law, in compolation of their natural infirmities, presumes them capable of property. Co. Lit. 2. 21 P.C. 203.

Also an idiot, or person of non-fane memory, may purchase, because it is intended for their benefit; and if after recovery of their memory they agree thereto, they cannot avoid it; but if they die during their lunacy, their heirs may avoid it, for they shall not be subject to the compulsion of reform; and want capacity to contract; so if after their memory recovered, the lunatick, or person non campus, die without agreement to the purchase, their heirs may avoid it. Co. Lit. 2. 21 P.C. 203.

If an idiot or lunatick marry, and die, his wife shall be endowed; for this works no forfeiture at all, and the King has only the custody of the inheritance in one case, and the power of providing for him and his family in the other; but in both cases the freehold and inheritance is in the idiot or lunatick; and therefore if lands defend to an idiot or lunatick after marriage, and the King, on occasion, finds, take those lands into his custody, or grants them over to another, as committee, in the usual manner, yet the King has no right in the lands, should he not be tenant by the curtesy, or the wife endowed, since their title does not begin to any purpose till the death of the husband or wife, when the King's title is at an end. Co. Lit. 31 a. 4 Co. 124, 125. Yet see Pleas. 203 b. 1 He. Co. 7.

A lunatick shall be tenant by the curtesy, and shall have dower, so that a woman, being a lunatick, kill her husband, or any other, yet shall be endowed, because this cannot be felony in her, who was deprived of her underfranding by the act of God. Perk. 365.

If a person non campus be divorced, and a defect cann, this is a fault, takes away his entry, but not the entry of the heir; for regularly the non campus in this case cannot allege the disability in himself, because he cannot be suppos ed concur of it, nor is he allowed ever, at any time, to allege it, for when he is once non campus, there is no certain time when he can be adjudged to recover that capacity, unless he is legally committed, and then the acts during his lunacy will be set aside and discharged, and afterwards the commission superseeded; for in no other way can the non campus be legally restored to his right, and to his capacity of ability. Lit. 405. 247 Co. Lit. 61.

And the act, being a violation of a copulative manor, may make grants of copulative estates, for such estates do not take their perfection from any power or interest in the lord, but from the suffum of the manor, by which they have been demised and demisable time out of mind, 4 Co. 23 b. Co. Copyhold 75, 107.

The acts of lunatics are both by the Civil law, and likewise by the Common law, incapable of being executors or administrators; for these disabilities render them not only incapable of executing the trust reposed in them, but also by their infirmity, and want of underfranding, they are incapable of determining whether they will take upon themselves the execution of the trust or not. Godfr. Opin. Leg. 36.

Therefore it hath been agreed, that if an executor become non campus, that the spiritual court may, on account of this natural disability, commit administration to another. 1 Saunt. 36.

An idiot, or person non campus, being robbed, shall be bound by a lack of his goods in a market court. 2 Hals. 713.

Criminal cases. It is laid down as a general rule, that idiots and lunatics, being by reason of their natural dis abilities incapable of judging between good and evil, are incapable of any criminal prosecution whatsoever. 1 Hals. P.C. 142.

And therefore a person, who offends his memory by sickness, infirmity, or accident, and kills himself, is not de fe de f. 3 Hals. 54.

So if a man give himself a mortal stroke while he is insane, and recovers his underfranding, and then dies, he shall be held in de facto for tho' the death was occasioned by the homicide, the act must be that which makes the offence, 1 Hale Hals. P.C. 412.

But it is not every melancholy or hypochondrical dif témper that denominates a man non campus, for there are few who commit this offence, but are under such infirmities; but it must be such an alienation of mind that renders them to be madmen, or frantick, or delirious of the use of reason. 1 Hale Hals. P.C. 412.

And as a person non campus cannot be a felo de fe by killing himself; so neither can he be guilty of homicide in killing another, nor of petit treason; also if one who is committed for a capital offence, and becomes non campus by conviction, he shall not be arraigned; and if after conviction, he shall not be executed. 1 Hale Hals. P.C. 39. 1 Hals. P.C. 2.

It seems to have been always held, in respect of that high regard which the law has for the safety of the King's person, that a madman might be punished as a treasonable killing, or offering to kill the King; but this is now contradicted by better and later opinions. Finch, Caron, 351. Regis. 209. 4 Co. 124, b. 1 Roll. Rep. 324.

The great difficulty in these cases is, to determine where a person shall be said to be so far deprived of his faculties, as not to have any of his actions imputed to him; or where, notwithstanding some defects of this kind, he still appears to have so much reason and understanding as will make him accountable for his actions, which my Lord Hale distinguishes between, and calls by the name of Total and partial infirmity; and this is to define the indivisible line that divides perfect and partial infirmity, yet say he, it must rest upon circumstances, only to be weighed and considered both by the judge and jury, left on the one side there be a kind of insubstantial towards the defects of human na ture, or on the other side too great an indulgence given to great crimes; and the best measure he can think of, to avoid this, is such a perfom, as labouring under melancholy, infirmities, hath yet ordinarily as great understanding as ordinarily a child of fourteen years hath, is such a person as may be guilty of treason or felony. 1 Hale Hals. P.C. 32.

It hath been already observed, that he who is guilty of any crime whatsoever that his voluntary drunkenness, shall be punished for as much as if he had been sober, Vide supra.

Also he incites a madman to do a murder, or other crime, is a principal offender, and as much punishable as if he had done it himself. Pich. 53. Dall. 261, 262. Co. Lit. 247.

And here we must observe a difference the law makes between civil suits that are terminated in compromissorum damnii illiati, and criminal suits, or prosecutions, that are ad personam & in vindicetim criminis commissi; and therefore it is clearly agreed, that if one who wants discretion committed to a madman, and the acts of the person or persons so committed be shall be compelled in a civil action to give satisfaction for the damage. 2 Roll. Ab. 547. Hals. 134. Co. Lit. 247. 1 Hals. P.C. 2. 1 Hals. Hals. 15, 16, 38.

4. How far their acts are good, void, or voidable; and how they are to sue and defend.

We must first distinguish between acts done by idiots and lunatics in pairs, and in a court of record; that as to these Schelms acknowledged in a court of record, as acts fines and recoveries, and the ules declared on them. They are good, and can neither be avoided by themselves nor the bill charged; for they are under the law, and the bill charged, that had they been under those disabilities, the judges would not have admitted them to make those acknowledgments.

If a person non compos acknowledges a fine, it shall stand against him and his heirs; for the judges can admit a fine from a madman under that disability, yet when it is once received, it shall never be recoverable, because the record and judgment of the court being the highest evidence that can be, the law presumes the conizzer at that time capable of contracting; and therefore the credit of it is not to be controlled, nor the record, unless it be for a fraud upon the estate.

So in case of a fine levied by an idiot, it shall stand against him and his heirs; for no avowment of idiocy can vacate the fine; nor will an officer, finding him an idiot, a niatrity, be sufficient to relieve the fine, for that were to lessen the credit of judgments in courts of record, by trying them by other rules than themselves.

As to acts done by them in pari, they are distinguished into two kinds, viz. (a) those to themselves and their executors, which they can only do at law, through the medium of others; and (b) acts to others, which they can do in equity, and are the same in effect as if they had done them for themselves, because the decision of the court is the same. And if an idiot or lunatic enter into recognizance, or acknowledge a statute, neither they themselves, nor their heirs nor executors can avoid it; for these are securities of a higher nature than specialties and obligations, which yet they themselves cannot avoid, and being matters of record, and equivalent to judgment of the superior courts, neither they themselves, their heirs nor executors, can avoid them.

If an idiot or lunatic enters into recognizance, or acknowledges a statute, neither they themselves, nor their heirs nor executors can avoid it; for these are securities of a higher nature than specialties and obligations, which yet they themselves cannot avoid, and being matters of record, and equivalent to judgment of the superior courts, neither they themselves, their heirs nor executors, can avoid them.

If a peron makes a will, and afterwards becomes non compos, it shall be void, and the property of the will shall revert to the testator.

If a peron makes a will, and afterwards becomes non compos, it shall be void, and the property of the will shall revert to the testator.

But every person making a will is presumed to be of sound under standings, until the contrary is proved; so that the usu fronds lies on the other side. If the testator used to have fits and lucid intervals, and it cannot appear whether the will was made in the lucid intervals, if there be no other competent witness to the will, tho' the testator had no lucid intervals, yet if it can be proved that he was mad at the time of making the will, if the will be a feeble orderly will, but the least word of folly in such a will will overthrow it: On the other hand, if one be a very idiot and make a good feble will, yet the will shall not be good. Stain. 71. Gadalphi. Orph. Leg. 25.

If a peron makes a will, and afterwards becomes non compos, it shall be void, and the property of the will shall revert to the testator.

By the flat. 4. Co. 2. etp. 10. it is created, "That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons being idiot, lunatic or non compos mentis, or for the committee or committees of such person or persons, in his, her or their name or names, by the direction of the Lord Chancellor of Great Britain, or the Lord Keeper, or Commissioners of the Great Seal for the time being, by an order made upon hearing all parties concerned, on the petition of the person or persons for whom such person or persons being idiot, lunatic or non compos mentis, shall be set free of all the monies of the mortgagor or mortgagee, or of the person or persons intituled to the monies secured by or upon any lands, tenements or hereditaments, whereof such person or persons being idiot, lunatic or non compos mentis, is or are, shall be free and unfreighted in mortgaging, or of the power of persons intituled to the monies so secured, to convey and affume any such lands, tenements or hereditaments in such manner as the Lord Chancellor, or the said per. or persons so to be set free to direct any other person or persons, such conveyance or affumere to be in due and lawful manner, such shall be good and effectual in law, to all intents and purposes of the case, as if the said person or persons being idiot, lunatic or non compos mentis, was or were at the time of such conveyance or assumption of same mind, memory and understanding.
New Terms of Law Justice. That a jeffal is when the parties to any suit have in pleading proceeded so far, that they have joined issue, which shall be tried, or is tried by a jury, and the pleading or issue is fraudulently joined or tried, that it will be error if they proceed: then some of the said parties may, by their counsel, move it to the court as an error and before the cause is continued to the trial, but the jury be charged; the finding of which defects, before the jury charged, was often, when the jury came into court to try the issue; then the counsel which will flew it, shall fly. This impeach you ought not to take; and if it should be after verdict, then he may fly. To judgment you ought to come at the issue, as you have given of this many cases to be tried, for the refusal of which divers futes were made, viz.

32 Hen. 8. 30. be unrementioned, and others in Queen Elizabeth and King James's days, viz. 15 Eliz. 14. 12 Jac. 13. 1699. See Amendment.

It is to be seen that there is, a branch, or large candelabrum of bras brought into several counties, and hanging down in the middle of a church or choir, to spread the light to all parts. This invention was first called Aber-jeffe and Stirps-jeffe, from the similitude to the branch or geological tree of Jesse. This useful ornament of churches was first brought over into England, by Archb. of Ely, abbot of St. Augustine, in Canterbury, about the year 1150. as thus recorded by the historian of that abbey: Polpium eiam in ecclesia feis, candelabrum eiam magnum in thoro eadem, quam jeofail, etc., in partibus eum tradui marum. Cowen. Will. Thorne p. 1796.

Boeth. Retton, and Jefim; (from the French potters officers.) Is any thing thrown out of a fhop, being in the danger of work, and by the waves driven to the shore. See Jefin, and No. 5. fol. 16.

Jews, (judas,) Here in England, in former times, the Jews and all the egoons belonged to the chief lord where they lived; and he had such an absolute property in such men that he had liberty to remove to another lord without leave. This appears in Matt. Par. pag. 311. 1060. where we read that Hen. 3. fold the Jews to Earl Richard his brother for a certain term of years, that pass Rex exoneratus, comes eueravor. They were distinguished from the Christians both living and dying; for they had proper judges and courts, where their caufes were decided; and they wore a badge on their outward garments upon the breast in the fhape of a table, and were fined if they went abroad without such badge. They were never buried in the country, but brought up to London, and there buried. But the body and hat might be buried without the walls of any other citie. And anciently we had a court of the juftices alligned for the government of the Jews. See 4 Jef. fto. 254. Rev. v. Wiger. Jafum. Preceptum nndi quid emans

et efferentia for usum baliomini eum, quod eum judea difcere in inferioribus infantibus, uidc que trini verum eique cathoicaus inferius vel eque de cps et tibi; qui fuerit sevrus dextra

Judea: et Christianus aberreret.

See 5. Jef. 1. cap. 12. in the Statute of the Pillory, directis, among other things, That the jurzy therein mentioned shall impaire if any buy fith of Jewes, and then fell it to Christians. In 9 Ed. 1. A Jew had his trial for mediotione lingum, viz. Judiecm, and they were sworn on the five books of Mijas, held in their arm (bracis) and by the name of the God of ftreke that shall stand. D. 14. fto. 59. marg. cite 9 Ed. 1. flt. 13 Ed. 1. Stat. 3. cap. 1. called the Statute of Ambages, is directed to extend to all except Jews. A Jew born in England pacheted land, and married a Jewes; he is converted to Christianity, but the is not converted, and the wife have dowry, before the time of Ed. 1. and Partum. Roll. 9. 17. The marrying a Jew, either by a Christian man, or Christian woman was anciently reckoned felony, and the party offending to be burnt alive. 3 Jef. 89. and in the understanding, and not abd, lultick of new compa

J. L. O

ments, or to the king, her or themselves executed the laws; any law, &c.

And it is further enacted, That all and every fact per son and persons, being ident, &c., and only truth or tru, tees, mortgages or mortgages as afoead, or the com mittee or committees of all and every fact person and persons, being ident, &c., and only truth or tru, tees, mortgages or mortgages as afoead, shall and may be impowered and compelled, by such order so as afoe

fald, to be obtained, to make such conveyance or con veyances, affurances or assurances, as afoead, in like manner as trustees or mortgagees of face money is com

pable to examine, tenderer or allign their truth

cificate or mortgages.

When an idot doe fie or defend he shall not appear

by guardian, prochein army or attorney, but he must be

The statute of Wt. 2. cap. 15. extends not to an idot,

2 Jef. 390.

But otherwise of him who becomes now compa mens: for he shall appear by guardian if within age, or by at torney if of full age. 4 Co. 124. b. Palm. 520. &

vid. 2 Sawa. 335.

If a trufafs be committed in the lands of a luntuick

who is legally committed, the committee cannot bring an action of trufafs, but this must be brought in the name of the lunutick. 2 Sid. 125.

If a trufafs be sued, he must have a committee af

figned to him to defend the suit. 1 Vern. 2. 160.

For more learning in this subject, see 3 Bac. Atr. tit.

Idads and Lunticks. See Lunticks.
A Jew brought an action, and the defendant pleaded that the plaintiff is a Jew, and that all Jews are prejudicial enemies regni & religionis; judgment is action. But per
ew. A Jew may recover as well as a villain, and the plea is but in differ-city so long as the King shall prohibit the same by a peace or a Characters (he for void the inquisition of causes criminal and publick, and written upon the bill, when they may like their evidence as defective, or too weak, to make the best pretense; the effect of which words so writ is, that all other inquiry upon that party for that fact is there by stopped, and he delivered without further answer. It has a resemblance of that ancient custom of the Romans, where the judges, when they supposed a peron accused, did write A. upon a little table provided for that purpose, i.e. absolverant; if they judged him guilty, they wrote C. id est, condemnamus: if they found the case distinct and doubtful, they wrote N. L. that is non litigat.

Ignorant. (Ignorantia) Which is want of knowldge of the law, shall not excuse any man from the penalty of it: And every person is bound at his peril to take notice of the law of the realm; and ignorance of it, though it be involuntary, where a man affirms that he hath done all that in him lies, shall not excuse him.
But though ignorance of the law excueth not, ignorance of the fact doth; as if a person buy a horre or other thing in open market, of one that had no property therein, and not knowing but he had right; in that case he had no title, and the ignorance shall excuse him.
But if the party bought the thing for nothing in the market, or knew the seller had no right, the buying in an open market would not have excused. Dedit. and Stud. 5
Rep. 83.

Ignatius. See Parliaments.

Illum. (Illuminating) Is one of the four famous ways that the Romans made in England, called Stratums lucernarum because it took beginning in Lucania, which were the people that inhabited Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgehire.

Illict-Streets. Is one of the four famous ways that the Romans made in England, called Strandum lucernarum
because it took beginning in Lucania, which were the people that inhabited Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgehire.

Illicit. See Parliaments.

Ilium. That may or can not be levied, and therefore mild is a word fet upon a debt allowable. Id. ib.

Illicit. If any man illiterate or not lettered, and I deliver a writing, which is in contrary to that which is acknowledged in the deed; it is a good deed. 9 H. 6. 50. b. 10 Hen. 6. 6. 10. 2 Rep. 9.
But if I can read, such a false reading will be not relied for, it is in my own folly. 2 Sm. 139.

Illucic. If any one to release 20 l. and the other makes a general release, and he being not lettered, delivers it by agreement as a release for 20 l. only, this deed is void.
47 Ed. 3. 3. 17.

If agreement to release all trespasses, and in the deed is a put a release of land, and this is delivered by a man not lettered, as a release only of trespass, this deed is void.
45 Ed. 3. 2. 44. 44 af. 30.

So where there is not any agreement to make any relesa, but a man comes to another not lettered, and prays him to a deed, faying, that it shall be no prejudice to him, and he seizes it without hearing it; the deed is a good deed, because he did not pray to hear it.
44 af. 30. 44 Ed. 3. 23. Dubitation.

If a man for great age cannot see to read, and seals an obligation upon false reading, he shall avoid it. 3 H. 0.
52. B. Mich. 9 79. in the star-chamber, Slater's cafe, cited 1 Rep. 280. Revised, though he was lettered; for now he has a device, and the reading is not legible.

If a deed be read to a man illiterate, to be upon condition, where it is without condition, it is not his deed. 9 H. 6. 59.

If a deed be read to a man illiterate, as a gift in trust, with a letter of attorney, where it is a fonction in law, it is good and effectual because it is in the letter of attorney; for all is but one deed, and by the up-very seconndum formam chartae, nothing makes, the deed being void. 3 Ed. 3. 31. b. Curia.

Sff
If an obligation be read to a man illiterate, that he binds himself by it in
all. 3 Ed. 3.
now letter'd will make a feuility, and upon any parchment, &c. two feuilities are contained, and only one is read to him, yet the deed, for this feuility which is read to him, is good. 3 Ed. 3. 37.
If three distinct obligations are written upon one piece of parchment, and one of them only is read to the obliger, and he being a man not letter'd, seals and delivers the deed, this is good for that which was read, and void for the others. 11 R. 27, p. Pigges's cafe.
Illustrate. To illustrate, to draw in gold and co lores the initial letters, and the ornamental pictures in manuscripts, &c. See also Illegible, Illustration, Illegere non sufflilam. Brompton, fub anno 1576. Tho' persons who particularly practised this art, were called illustratores, whence our illuminators.
Images. How to be defined, 3 & 4 Ed. 6, c. 10.
Imbargo. A stop or stay, most commonly upon ships by public authority. 18 Car. 2, cap. 5. See Merchants, Ipswich.
Imbiteit, or Imbeil. To wage, scatter and confound;
as if a person intruded with goods, wags and diminish them, we say he hath imbested the goods. 14 Car. 2.
c. 31. See Felony, Stories, Wool.
Imbecility. See also Imbecility.
Imbucus. A brook, a gut, a water-palmer. See Part of Parts and Parts, p. 43.
Imbicidy. See Chimney.
Impalpable, To put in the pound. Leg. Hor. 1, c. 9.
Immunities. See Pyraographic, London.
Impaule (Impaule). To impanel a jury, is to enter into a panelment schedule by the flourish, the names of the jury summoned to appear, for the performance of such public service as juries are employed in. A privilege was sometimes granted, that a person should not be impanelled, or returned upon a jury. The same impanelleur in algemine affinis, jurisdictu, recognitus, &c.
Impartial. (Inter��ebr or interiqloua) Is a motion or petition made in court by the tenant or defendant, upon the count of the demandant, or declaration of the plaintiff, whereby he craves refpite, or a farther day to put in his answer. See Bract, tit. Continuance. Impar tance is general or special. Special is with this claue, Salutis omnium advantage, tam ad jurisdicitionem curae, quam ad brevem & narrationem. Kitchen, f. 200. General is that which is made at large, without inferring that, or the like claue. Cawood.
The declaration and before the defendant can be compelled to plead, many times there is an impari tance; which is a longer and further day given by the court, and usually till the first day of the next term, upon a petition made by the tenant or defendant, whereby he craves refpite. And this femeth to be special or general; spe cial, as where this or the like claue is inserted, Saving all advantages, as well to the jurisdiction of the court, as to the writ and declaration; general, is confequently where that or the like claue is not contained. Reg. Placit. 55.
Formerly the defendant in all cases had an impari tance to the term next after the return of the proces, except the proceedings were by original, or for and against attorney ies or other privileged persons, or against plaintiffs in the tyranny of the marshal; in which cases the defendant was bound to plead, without any impari tance, and the same term the declaration was delivered, (if delivered four days before the end of the term) and except the proceed gments were by original, or for and against attorney est that the first return of Egner or Michaelmas term, and the action laid in London or Middlesex; and in which cases, if the declaration was delivered before the eftion day of Menj, Pafh. or fainemum animarum, the defendant was to plead within ten days of the eftion day of the folhe course, in the Philippa. Mich. 5 Ann. But now, by a rule made in Trinity term 5 & 6 Car. 2. upon all proces to be sued out of this court, returnable the fift or second return of any term, if the plaintiff declines in London or Middle sx, and the defendant lives within twenty miles of London,
the declaration shall be delivered with notice to plead within four days after the delivery, and the defendant shall plead within the fift days without impari tance; and in case the plaintiff declines in any other county, or the defendant lives about twenty miles from London,
the declaration shall be deliver'd with notice to plead within four days of the delivery, and the defendant shall plead within the fift eight days without any impari tance; and in default of pleading in either of these cases, judgment may be entered. In both these cases the declaration must be delivered at least four days before the end of the term, exclusive of the day of the delivery, otherwise the defen dant would be held to an impari tance. 1 At. Prat. in K. B. 148, 149.
The defendant may imparl if the plaintiff amenys his declaration; otherwise if he accepts of cops, for by such amicus it shall be accounted as a new declaration;
but if the defendant accepts of cops for such amendment, now impars, it must be given for the impars by the amicus; and therefore it is reason he should plead to the declaration so amended, and not imparl. 2 L. P. R. 34, 35. cites Mich. 22 Car. 2, B. R.
If the plaintiff declines, but proceedeth no farther for three terms, defendant may imparl. 2 L. P. R. 35.
cites Hill. 23 Car. 2. C. 3. 3.
If the court have proceeded to issue, and the defendant amends his plea, he shall pay the plaintiff's cops, but the court will not grant an impars; per Roll Ch. J.
1655. For after issue joined, and warning given for a trial upon that issue, it is too late to imparl. 2 L. P. R.
35.
The court would not grant the defendant an impars, that he was sued upon a bond of 28 years old, and could not see the bond; but bid him pray over it of, and plead; for the antiquity of the bond is no caufe of imp Where the plaintiff fues out a special original, the defendant cannot imparl, but must plead as soon as the rules are out; because, where the writ is general, the caufe of action appears in the declaration, which the law allows the defendant convenient time to confider of, and avise upon; but when the defendant is taken upon a special copy, there the declaration is mentioned in the writ itself; and the defendant sees what the caufe of action is, and may take a copy of it, and prepare his an swer ready against the term by the times that the rules are out. 2 L. P. R. 36.
Imparltance is to enable the party the better to in form himself upon the caufe of action, in order to his de
A second imparlance was moved for in a gui warrant, and said to have been granted, in the cafe of the city of London, but the court denied it; for J. fryj, that by The court of the course, they were to have but the com rains; and so the court said, that being ex gratis, they may grant or deny it as they please. Comb.
12. Ill. 3 & 2 fam. 2, Ann.
One pleaded a foreign plea after imparlance, which could not be; but it was objected, not to be after imp parlance, because there was no entry of defectu sim & sequenti, and said to have been allowed in an homo replegiandi, or in affife, unless upon good caufe flown; because it is
S. 3 Bileth. 35. Ann. 1856. See Pleading,
and 14 Vic. Abr. tit. Imparltance.
Imparltances are allowed in general actions of trespass, but not in a special clianum frugi. 3 Saltb. 188. Hill. 9 W. 3. 3 Eliz. v. Thomar.
The defendant may imparl in an homine replegiandi, or in affife, unless upon good caufe flown; because it is
S. 3 Bileth. 35. Ann. 1856. See Pleading,
and 14 Vic. Abr. tit. Imparltance.
Imparltance, is any imparlance, perpna imparlt Scatters, is he that is included, and in possession of a benefic vironment, which are called the imparlances, as and imparlance of a benefic appropriate unto them.
Cawood, edit. 1797.
Imparltance, (from the Lat. inparltare,) Is the ac and accusation of a person for treason, or other crimes and misdemeanors. Any member of the house of commit
commonly do not implead any of one of their own body, but also any lord of parliament, &c. and thereupon articles are exhibited on the behalf of the common, and managers appointed to make good their charge and accusation; which being done in the proper judicature, forsooth the accused, and the same evidence is required in an impeachment in parliament, as in the ordinary courts of justice; but not in bills of attainder. State Trials, vol. 4. 311. vol. 1. 676. No pardon under the Great seal can be pleaded to an impeachment by the common in parliament. 12 W. 1. c. 3.

Impeachment of Waite, (Impeacitio volit, from the French impeachment, i. impeachment) Signifies a referral from committing of waifte upon lands and tenements; and therefore he that hath a lease without impeachment of waifte, hath by that a property or interest given him in the houses and trees, and may make waifte, in them without being impeached for it, that is, without being questioned, or demanded any recompence for the waife done. See Ca. tit. 11. Brouls's cafe, fol. 82. See Waife.

Impeach, (French impecher, Latin impeach.) To impeach, to accuse and prosecute for tellow or treachery, &c. (Impetratio Reg. Navarre against impacachate ne more diti Caroli de Helifania. Hen. de Knighten, feb. anno 1256. Spenel and Sumpner tell us, that it is derived from the Lat. impecher, which is to accuse, or in jur. vetere, from whence impeach signifies an accusation, viz. fine impotitius volsi, is without impeaching or accusing him of waifte.

Impeachment. Expeditudin, impeacitio came, Dogs lated and disabled from doing mischief in the forset, and pur- lices of them, Omnes came infra foreslum flike fei impeacitio aut amputatio foefro artiff. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Impedias. A defendant, or deforciant. Cowell. edit. 1727.

Impeiments in law, Persons under impeiments are those within age, under coverture, non compus mentis, in prion, beyond fe, &c. who, by a faving in our laws, have time to claim, or to profect their right, after the impeiments removed, in cafe of fines levied, &c. 1 Ex. 5. cap. 7. 4 H. 7. cap. 24. See Limitation.

Impetacle, A fort very fine cloth. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Impediments in law, Persons under impeiments are those within age, under coverture, non compus mentis, in prion, beyond fe, &c. who, by a faving in our laws, have time to claim, or to profect their right, after the impeiments removed, in cafe of fines levied, &c. 1 Ex. 5. cap. 7. 4 H. 7. cap. 24. See Limitation.

Impetacle, A fort very fine cloth. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Impediments, impeached, Burqness & pif- catosi civilitas rati in London, fuper illegitima proprietas, &c. connatami effe ceram nobi & impeclitii. Pat. 1. p. 1. m. 15. intenius. Impetatio. Accussion or impeachment; As, fine impotitius volsi, or fine impotitius impier, i. e. without impeachment of waifte, the party shall not be questioned or impeached of his waifte.

Impeation, (Impeacitio.) An obtaining by requelt and prayer. It is used in our statutes for the pre-obtaining of benefits and church offices in England, from the court of Rome, which did belong to the gift and disposition of our Lord the King, and other lay patrons of this realm; the penalty whereof was the fame with prebendaries. 23 Ed. 1. See 38 Ed. 3. fol. 2. cap. 1.

Impeation. Signifies as much as impairing or pre-judging. For the words of the flature 23 Hen. S. c. 9. are, To the impeachment and diminution of their good name. Impedito, (from the Fr. plaidier,) To free, arbit or preface by couple of law. Impealments, (from the French word employer, to em-ploy or the Latin impelere, to fill up,) Is used for all things necessary for a trade, or furniture of a household: And in that feife you fhall often find the word used in wills, and conveyances of moveables. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Implication, Is the law doth imply something that is not declared between parties in their deeds and agreements: And when our law giveth any thing to a man, it giveth implicitly whatsoever is necessary for the execution thereof.

It is a general rule, that when an estate is to be raised by implication, it must be a necessary and inevitable im- plication, and such as the words can have no other

An implied intent must not, without clear expressio, alter the equitable general law. Arg. Hill. 28 & 29 Curt. 2. 1 Chan. Cafes 297. in the cafe of Ford Lord Gray v. Lady Gray et al.

An estate by implication was never thought of in a deed, nor in a will but in e loco necessitatis, 4 Mist. 1756. Mich. 4 W. 4 M. B. R. Davis v. Speed.

No implication shall be allowed against an express estate limited by express words. 1 Salt. 226. Hill. 5 W. 4 & M. B. R. Godright v. Cowroth.

An express estate shall not be enlarged by implication, but by express words it may. per Wright K. and 2 Ch. J. and 1. Mich. 1703. 2 Fern. 449. Bann- field v. Popham. See Till. Will.

Impollability. A thing impossible in law, is all one with a thing imposible in nature: And if any thing in a bond or deed be incapable to be done, such deed, &c. is void. 21 Cat. 1. B. R. Yet where the condition of a bond becomes incapable by the act of God, in such cafe it is held the obligor ought to do all in his power towards a performance; as when a man is bound to encoiff the oblige and his heirs, and the oblige dies, the obligor must encoiff his heirs. 22 Cat. 1709.

Impoll, (from the Lat. impone,) Signifieth the tax received by the Prince, for such merchandise as are brought into any haven within his dominions from foreign nations. 31 Eliz. 5. It may in some fort be distinguished from custom, because custom is rather that profit the Prince makeath of wares shipped out; yet they are fre- quently confounded. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Impoll-mone, Money paid at lifting of foldiers: from the pronunciation in, and Fr. priff, paratus. Id. ib.

Impollabilitas, Is a word often mentioned in Matt. Paraf. and it signifies invaluable.

Impoll, A plea, impeachment; also the art of printing, and likewise a printing-house. Stat. 4 Car. 2. c. 23.

Impoll, Thohe who fide with, or take part with another, either in his defence or otherwise. 'Tis men- tioned in Matt. Wjflon, viz. Juramentum ex parte Regis Anglicum futes, et iniuriam fuitimul impeclitii, whereupon redemptionem fuitem redempti, pag. 282. So in another place, Omnes bonitus & impeclii Domini Ludwici, &c. So in Matt. Parr. pag. 177. Quod nos criminis impeclitii ejusdem Regis, &c.

Impollment, (Impollamentum,) Is the restraint of a man's liberty, either it be in the open field, or in the flocks, or cage in the streets, or in a man's own houfe, as well as in the common galo. And in all these places, the party so restrained is faid to be a prisoner, fo long as he hath not his liberty freely to go at all times, to all places whither he will, without bail or mainprize. Cowell, edit. 1727.

None shall be imprisoned but by the lawful judgment of his peers, or by the law of the land. M. G. 9 H. 3. c. 2. 25 Ed. 3. 2. 5. 4.

Bailiff accountant not having lands to be attached by their bodies, to render account. St. Markb. 52 H. 3. c. 2. 13.

Execution against the body on a statute merchant, St. de merci. 11 Ed. 11.

The creditor on a statute merchant to find his debtor in prion with bread and water, St. de merci. 11 Ed. 1. and to recover his cofts. Hill. 829.

See Falle Impollment. Balneas Cusps.

Impolluation, is properly so called, when a benefice ecclesiastical is in the hands of a layman; and appropria- tion when in the hands of a bishop, college or religious house, though sometimes they are confounded. It is said there are 38 benefices in the Church of England. Id. ib.

Impollment. See Appoiment.

Impuatute. To improve land. Impollamentm, the improvement so made of it. Id. ib.

37}
In another right, as where executors or administrators sue for a debt or duty, &c. of the testator or intestate.

Jalauta, Profit or product of ground. Cassell, edit. 1757.

In a letter to Mr. Dilettis, Savon. See Combe's Briton, in Otarien, where he says, speaking of Eddington, the barony of Patrick Earl of Dunbar, which also was Interested and outlived between England and Scotland, as we read in the book of Inquisition, that is, (as he believes) he was to allow, and to observe in this part the ingred and ejectum of titles that travelled to and too between both realms; for England only in ancient time called in their language an entry and ser-court or gate-house, inter alia.

Cassell, edit. 1777.

Intraelitott. To reduce a thing to serve instead of a cake; the word is often applied to mastic, as in Greece. A ploughman says 144, viz. 'Gut' feil morten patres edehon, incaltematam retinebat, so in Mahaly. Eccles. B. Mariae generis Di Leo, incaltemataverat.

In tu fili. Confess. See Catu confessui.

In tu filio professo. Cauth professo.

Inattention. See Certainty.

Inattention, See Ecton, Situating.

Inception. The fame person is patron and incumbent, and he devives the next avoidance; it was objected, that by his death the church is void, and then the presentation is a cllege in action, and not grantable, and the device takes not effect till after the death of devisor, and then it is a good device before the late inception in his life. Rel. Rep. 214. 13 Jac. 2. B. R. in the case of Harris v. Aylen. 3 Blant. 42. S. P.

The condition of a lease, that if he alien to any person during his life, the lessor might enter. Leisce devives it to B. this does not take effect in his life, but has inception in his life. Rel. R. 214. cites D. 45. 3. 5 Duke S. C. cited.

Lease to A. for life, remainder to the right heir of A. is a good remainder to vest upon the death of A. for the inception in his life. Rel. R. 215. cites 7 H. 4.

Initiation gives inception to a lay fee, so that if a caveat be entered before to prevent inducement, a prohibition shall be granted. 2 Rel. 594. Prohibitions (M) pl. 14.

Jureff. See L. R. 622.

Jurisdiction, (Incumbent) Is he that by charms or veires conjures the devil. 36 carminulis vel continuales damnum, ephor. The ancients called them carminis, because in old times charms or veires were in use. 4 Per. Rep. 44. See Witchcraft.

Jurisdictionis, (Incuratorius,) Is a woman that uses charmers and incantations. See Incantateur.

Jurisdiction, Incident, Signifies a thing necessarily depending upon another as more principal. For example, a court-baron is incident to a manor, and a course of yeo-powders to a fair, that they cannot be severed by grant, or by fee or fair be granted, these courts cannot be severed. Kitchin, fol. 30. See Ca et lit. fol. 151.

The law gives to every tenant for life, as incident to his estate without partition of the party, three kinds of efovere, viz. housebote, which is two-fold, one, for burning and burning. Poughbote, the efover for poughing; and haybote, that is efover for fencing and inclosing; and these must be reasonable, and leffe may take upon the land demesned without any assignment, unless restrained by special covenant. And the same of tenant for years. Ca. Li. 46.

The law gives in see, leesse it for life or free (excluding all timber trees) and after the lessor has an intention to fell the trees excepted; the law gives to him and such as shall buy them price, as incident to the same, to come upon the land of the free or free (excluding the trees) and the buyers to view them; for without this they cannot view them. Resolved 11 Rep. 57. Lynda's case.

Licence to lay pipes of lead in another's land to convey water to your cistern; I may enter and dig the ground to amend the said pipe, though it be not expressly granted to me, for a yearly rent to such grant. Dr. Incidents, pl. 8. cites 9 Ed. 4. pl. 25.

It licence be given to a duke to hunt in a park, the law for convenience gives such attendance as are requisite to the dignity of his estate. 9 Rep. 49. b. Trin. 7 Jac. 1. in the Earl of Salisbury's case.

Licence to erect a hay stack, gives licence to include. Admitted. 36. 2. Rol. R. Hill, 17 Jas. 2. B. R. in the case of Wedd v. Paternoster.

At nisi prius, eram Holf, the quittance upon evidence was, whether every house in the market round, had so many feet of ground toward the market belonging to it. Per Har Ch. J. If the act for building of London orders a man to build his house contiguous to his neighbour's fol, 36 of necessary consequence, gives you all easments over your neighbour's fol, as lights, passage, &c. without which you cannot use your house; but therefore gives you no intertitle in the fall. And in this case, a buonkeeper who pretended the like interest before his door, though he has no easement, another person, who deems to be a witness. 12 Med. 357. Polach. 17. 16. Farmers of Newgate Market v. Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's.

If a man, either by grant or prescription, has a right to a wreck thrown on another's land, of necessary consequence he has a right to the way over the land taken in and upon the said vessel, there is a right of taking the wreck, and of depositing the wreck is in him before seizure. 6 Med. 135. Polach. 3. Ann. B. R. Anno. See 14 Vin. Abr. tit. Incidents.

Juroflexures, Destroying them in the night, to be made good by the neighbouring towns, 13 Ed. 1. c. 46. 3 & 4 Ed. 6. c. 3. 6 Geo. 1. c. 4. 23 & 25 Car. 2. c. 7.

Persons obtaining inclusions or waives dibiled, 9 & 10 Wil. 3. c. 4.

Taking away gates, poles, pofter, files or hedge wood, or destroying them, how punished, &c. 43 Eliz. 2. c. 17. Car. 2. c. 2. 3. W. & M. c. 10. f. 9. 5 Geo. 1. c. 15. sect. 6. 6 Geo. 1. c. 16.

See Appoiment, Waftes. See L. R. 622.

Juxtae, Præcor vix. Prohibes ne summeus monachus, &c. ut ad am sundet, nec ad feras, fec incoporos faus, vel umnum ex benedictus fuis mutantes. Leg. 1. M. m. 11. tom. 1023.

Jurisdiction, (from the Latin verb incumbere, to mind diligently.) Is a civic right on his benefices with cure, Ca. Li. f. 119. and called incumbent of that church, because he doth or ought to bend his whole study to discharge his Duties on jappanned and lacquered goods, to be paid at Colombo, 12 & 13 W. 3, c. 11, sect. 15.
Unrated India goods to pay customs at full at the sale,
2 & 3 Ann. c. 9, sect. 6.
Security to be given for importing the goods to Great Britain, and paying the duties, 6 Ann. c. 9.
Bonds for exporting India goods to be delivered up,
if no production within three years, 8 Ann. c. 13, s. 24.
India goods to be carried to Ireland only from England,
5 Geo. I. c. 11, s. 12.
Printed silk calicoes, &c. not marked forfeited, 5
Geo. I. c. 11, s. 15.
India goods carried to Ireland, Jersey, Guernesey, Alderney, Sark or Man, or the plantations, not shipped in Great Britain, forfeiture of ship and goods, 7 Geo. I. c.
21, sect. 9.

The time of sale for unrated India goods, enlarged to three years, 7 Geo. I. c. 21, sect. 11.
Forei grains may be taken out of warehouses and refreed, 15 Geo. II. c. 31, sect. 8.
Unrated East-India goods to pay duty of 5 per cent.
21 Geo. II. c. 2, sect. 2.

Indictment. Is a writ or prohibition that lies for a patron of a church whose clerk is defendant in court chancellor, in action of tithes commenced by another clerk, and the tithes belonging to the fourth part of the court, or of the tithes belonging to it; for in this case the suit belongs to the King's court by the writ. 31 Geo. II.
c. 5. Wherefore the patron of the defendant, being like to be prejudiced in his church and advowson, if the plaintiff obtain in the court chancellor, hath this means to remove it to the King's court. Reg. Oriz. fol. 35. See Old Remedy for the patron disturbed by it, 13 Ed. I. c.

1. c. 5. sect. 4.
The ecclesiastical court may hold pleas of tithes not amounting to the fourth of the church, St. Cimample, Agins, 12 Ed. I. c. 18.

It shall not be granted till the matter is contended in the spiritual court, 34 Ed. I. c. 1.

Indico and Indigo. Restraints on exporting it from the plantations before it had been in England, 12 Car.
cap. 18. sect. 18. 15 Car. c. 2. 7. sect. 6.
To what places the duties, 4 W. 3 & M. c. 5. sect. 2.
Indigo may be imported, 7 Geo. II. c. 35.

Indicted. (Inditatus) When any one is accused by bill or declaration, preferred to jurors at the King's suit, for some offence, either criminal or penal, he is said to be indicted thereof. Cowell, edit. 1777.

Indictio. The fame with indictment. Nonnullam Italiae de focis super tribunato, & indictiones rubricai
s facentae in apparellis.
An indictment is a brief narrative of an offense committed by any person, which the public good requires should be punished; and therefore it is said to be a prosecution at the suit of the King merely. 2 Hal. Hlft. P. C. 169. 2 Hawk. P. C. 210.

However, from being the King's suit, it is every day admitted that the party, who prosecutes it, is a good witness to prove it. 2 Hawk. P. C. 210.

And from its being the King's suit is it agreed, that no damages can be given the party griev'd upon an indictment, or any other criminal prosecution; notwithstanding the King, by his commission entering a new court, expressly directs that the party shall recover damages by such a prosecution. 2 Roll. Abr. 83. Cro. Cas. 534, 558. 2 Hawk. P. C. 210.

Allo where by statute damages are given to the party griev'd by the offence intended to be redress'd, it seems that they cannot be recovered on an indictment grounded on such statute, unless such method of recovering them be expressly given by the statute; but that they ought to be for in an action on the statute, in the name of the party griev'd. 1 Jones 380. Cro. Cas. 428. 1 Roll. Abr. 230. 2 Hawk. P. C. 210.

But if a statute require any act to be done, and by a subhensive clause gives a recovery by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, but mentions not indictment, the party may be indicted upon the prohibitory clause, and thereupon fined, but not to recover the penalty, as upon the statute of 3 Jac. cap. 5. prohibiting recusants to baptize their children by a popish priest; but then it seems to us that it might not to exceed the penalty. 2 Hal. Hlft. P. C. 171. and see Cro. Jac. 663-4.

But if the act be not prohibitory, but only that any person shall do such a thing he shall forfeit 5l. to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, he cannot be indicted for it; but the proceeding must be by action of debt, bill, plaint or information. 2 Hal. Hlft. P. C. 171.

And altho' damages cannot be recovered on an indictment, yet the court of King's Bench, having the King's privy seal for that purpose, may give to the prosecutor the third part of the fine, alleged on a criminal prosecution for any offence whatsoever. 1 Kdb. 457. 2 Hawk. P. C. 210.

Allo it is every day's practice of that court, to induce defendants to make satisfaction to the prosecutors for the costs of the prosecution, and also for the damages suffered by the injury, whereas the defendants are convicted, by insinuating an inclination on that account to mitigate the fine due to the King. 2 Hawk. P. C. 210.

1. What matters are indictable, where an indictment is necessary, or the party may be tried for a capital offence without it.

2. By whom an indictment is to be found; who may and ought to be indicted; and whether the indictors, or grand jury, may find part of a bill brought before them true, and put false.

3. Within what place the offence incurred of such offends.

4. What ought to be the form of the body an indictment at Common law, and how it ought to be forth. 1. The substance and manner of the fact; 2dly, The persons men-

5. Where the offence indicted may be laid jointly, and where severally, and where both jointly and severally; and where the offences of several persons may be laid in one indictment.

6. What ought to be the form of the caption of an indictment; and where an indictment may be quitted.

1. What matters are indictable, where an indictment is necessary, or the party may be tried for a capital offence without it.

Not only capital offences, such as treasons and felonies, are indictable, but likewise all other crimes being of a public nature, and made in fe, tho' of an inferior kind, as misprisions, and all other contempts, all disturbances of the peace, all oppressions, and all other misdemeaners whatsoever of a publick evil example against the Common law, may be indicted. 2 Hawk. P. C. 210.

But no injuries of a private nature, unless they some way concern the King, can be punished by way of indictment. 27 Hat. P. C. 20. 28. Indictment 16. Certb. 277. Precedent 26.

Allo generally where a statute either prohibits a matter of publick privilege, or commands a matter of publick convenience, as the repairing the common streets of a town, &c. every such disobedience of such statute is indictable, but if the party hath once been found on an action on the statute, such fine is, it seems, a good bar to the indictment, because by the time the end of the statute is satisfied. 2 Hlft. 55, 163. Cro. Jac. 577. 1 Med. 34. 8 Sid. 209.

Allo if a statute extend only to private persons, or if it extend to all persons in general, but chiefly concern disputes of a private nature, as those relating to differences made by lords on their tenants, it is said, that offences against such statute will hardly bear an indictment. Sid. 209. 2 Med. 34. 1 Mod. 74, 288. 1 Leto. 299. Royom. 205. 1 Vint. 103. 2 Hlft. 121, 232. 2 Hawk. P. C. 211.

Allo where a statute makes a new offence, which was no way prohibited by the Common law, and appoints a particular proceeding against the offender, as by commitment, or action of debt, or information, &c. without mentioning an indictment, it seems to be fettled at this day, that no punishment is given an indictment, because the mentioning the other methods of proceeding only forms implicitly to exclude that of indictment. 1 Show. 398. 3 Kdb. 34, 273. Cro. Jac. 663, 644. 3 Med. 79.

Yet it hath been adjudged, that if such a statute gives a recovery by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, or whatever, it authorizes a proceeding by way of indictment. 316. 3 Geo. 1. Rex v.DONIN. 2 Hawk. P. C. 211.

Allo where a statute adds a new penalty to an offence prohibited also by the Common law, it is in the election of the prosecutor to proceed either at Common law, or on the statute; and if he-conclude his indictment contra formam statutii, it will not make it good as an indictment on the statute, yet if the indictment be good as an indictment at Common law, it shall stand as such, and the words contra formam statutii shall be rejected. 2 Hawk. P. C. 211.

In all criminal cases the most regular and safe way, and most conformant to the Common law, and the statutes of Magna Charta, &c. 5 Ed. 3. cap. 9. 25 Ed. 3. cap. 4. 28 Ed. 3. cap. 3. and 42 Ed. 3. cap. 3. is by preceptment or indictment of twelve sworn men; yet at Common law there were several means of putting the party to answer for a criminal offence without any indictment, some whereof are still in force; and others either grown obsolete or wholly taken away by statute. 2 Hal. Hlft. P. C. 20.

1. If a thief or robber had, on fresh pursuit, been taken with the maimour, and the goods found upon him brought into the court with him, he might have been tried
And for this the British House of Commons has been frequently in practice, notwithstanding the statute of 1 H. 4. and are better within the words not intent of that statute, for it is a preceptment by the most solemn grand inquest of the whole kingdom. 2 Hal. Leg. c. 39.

5. If in a civil action in the King's Bench de muliere abductis cum bovi voire, upon Not guilty pleaded, the defendant be convicted and found guilty of having carried away the woman and goods with force and fahionably, he may be put to answer the felony without further accusation; for such a charge, by the oath of twelve men, on their inquiry into the merits of a cause, in a court which has jurisdiction over the crime, is equivalent to an indictment; and the King being always, in judgment of law, present in court, may take advantage of any matter which has properly occurred for his benefit. 1 Hal. P. C. 211, and several authorities there cited. 2 Hal. Hift. c. 20.

So it upon a special verdict, in a common action of trespals brought in the King's Bench, it be found that the defendant took them feloniously, this may serve for an indictment. 2 Hawk. P. C. 311. 1 Hal. Hift. c. 20.

So if in an action of slander, for calling a man a thief, the defendant justifies that he rode goods, and slipe thereupon taken, it be found for the defendant; if this be in the King's Bench, and for felony in the same county yet the officer shall be aif it be the justices of assize, who have also a commission of good-delivery, he shall be forthwith arraigned upon this verdict, as on an indictment; and the rest is, because here is a verdict of twelve men in like cafes, and to the verdict, tho' in a civil action, serves the King's suit as an indictment, and the party in the presence of the grand jury, to strike out malpraxis, and ex malitia fat praejudicii, and mandavit, and leave it in such a manner that makes him to be the indictment in the cafes above mentioned. 2 Hal. Hift. P. c. 20. See 3 Mev. 459, &c.

2. By whom an indictment is to be found; who may and ought to be indicted; and whether the indictor, or grand jury, may find part of a bill brought before them true, and part false.

Every indictment is to be found by twelve lawful men of the county wherein the crime was committed, returned by the proper officer, without the nomination of any other person. But for this see head of Sutlies.

They must be drafted to legal form. therefore it is a good exception to one returned on a grand jury, that he is an alien or villain, attained in a conspiracy, or deces tantum, or of perjury, or outlawed, or attainted of felony or praemunire. 2 Hal. Hift. P. c. 155.

It seems generally agreed, that a grand jury must find either bills vera, or ignoramus for the whole; and that if they take upon them to find specially or conditionally, or to be true for one part only, and not for the rest, the whole is void, and the party cannot be tried upon it, but ought to be indicted anew. 2 Roll. Rep. 52. 3 Bullo. 266. 1 Knt. Rep. 407. 3 Hawk. P. C. 210.

Hence it hath been hold, that if a grand jury indorse a bill of murder billa vera se defindeat, or billa vera for maunders, and not for murder, the whole is void; and the reason hereof given is, that the grand jury are not to distinguish between murder and maunders, for it is only the circumstance of malice that makes the difference, and that may be implied by the law without any fact at all; and so it lies not in the judgment of a jury, but of the judge; also the intention of their finding indictments, that there may be no malicious prosecution; and therefore if the matter of the indictment be not framed of malice, but of self-defence, the indictment be not vera, yet it answers their oaths to present it. 3 Bullo. 266. 2 Roll. Rep. 52. 1 Sdt. 23. 3 Knt. 180. 9 Eil. 5.

But it seems to be now agreed, that the grand jury may, without subjiciing themselves to any punishment, find part of a bill true, and part false, and that against the direction of the court. See 2 Hal. 161, and see tit. Sutlies.

And it is said by Hal., that if a bill of indictment be for murder, and the grand jury return it billa vera quod maunders, and ignoramus quod murder, the usual course is, in the presence of the grand jury, to strike out malpraxis, and ex malitia fat praejudicii, and mandavit, and leave in so much as makes the bill to be but bare maunders. 2 Hal. Hift. P. 162.

But yet the false way is to deliver them a new bill for maunders, and they to indorse it generally billa vera, and not for the worst, for the indictment take not the difference, but only evidence the silent or dissent of the grand jury; it is the bill itself is the indictment, when affirmed. 2 Hal. Hift. P. 162.

But notwithstanding this discretionary power in the grand jury, yet by the same author, if A. be killed by B. so that it doth erre de pretio sortis & accidentis, and cause the jury acquitting the man on such an inquest, must require what other person did the fact. 2 Hal. P. C. 212.

And also if on a declaration in the King's Bench against A. for having been guilty of a misdemeanor finalcum B, the jury find B. guilty; it is said, that such a finding is equivalent to an indictment, because it is not wholly extrajudicial. 2 Hal. Hift. P. c. 20. 2 Hawk. P. C. 214.
bill of murder be preferred to them, regularly, they ought to find the bill for murder, and not for manslaughter, or for defendands; because otherwise offenses may be smothered without due trial, and when the party comes uponitur, the whole fact will be examined before the court and the petty jury; and in many cases it is a great disadvantage to the party accused; for if a man kill B. in his own defense, or for justification, or possibly in executing the process of law, so as an affray made upon him, or in his own defense upon the highway, or in defending his house against those who come to rob him, (in which three last cases it is neither felony nor forfeiture, but upon Not guilty pleaded, he ought to be acquitted,) yet if the grand inquest find informations upon the bill, or find the special matter, whereby the proffered informations disdalled and discharged, he may thereby be indicted for murder seven years after. 2 Hal. Hat. 158.

If the grand jury indici a an indictment on the facts of false news kills were, but whether she works profane forart multiplicit, falsities, sel contra, ignoramus, or if the in- dication of a forcible entry and forcible detainer, kills were as to the forcible entry, and ignoramus as to the forcible detainer; or if they indici a, that the body were in J. S. or the pollution were in J. S. then they find bills were, the whole is void. Tryo. 90. 2 Haw. P. C. 230.

3. Within what place the offence inquired of may arise.

The grand jury are sworn ad inquisitionem pro corpore cimitatus, and therefore by the Common law cannot regularly indict or present any offense which does not arise within the county or precint for which they are return- ed. 2 Hal. Hat. P. C. 165. 2 Haw. P. C. 220.

And therefore it is a good exception to an indictment, that it doth not appear that the offence arose within such county or precinct. 2 Haw. P. C. 220. and several authorities there cited.

Allo if it had been held, that the finding a collateral matter, expressly alleged in the indictment, in a different county or precinct is void. 1 Haw. P. C. 220.

Allo if it had been generally held, that the want of an express allegation of the precinct where the offence happened, is not supplied by putting it in the margin of the indictment, unless it go farther, as by adding in cimitatus praedicti, Ut. which seems to be sufficient, when it has gone as far as the indictment the no other county is named before. 2 Haw. P. C. 220.

Allo if a fact be alleged in B. juncto D. in comitatu E. it is said, that hereby it sufficiently appears that B. is in the county of E. 2 Cor. Yac. 41. Land's case.

so if an arrest be alleged in the county of B. and one be indicted for receiving the party arrested, without favoring in what county, it shall be intended to have been in the county of A. where the arrest was. 2 Haw. P. C. 221.

It seems also, that by the Common law, if a fact done in one county prove a nuisance to another, it may be indicted in either. 2 Haw. P. C. 221.

So if B. by treason of tenure of lands in the county of B. be bound to repair a bridge in the county of C. if the bridge be in decay, he may be indicted in the county of C. that he is bound naturae tenure of lands in the county of C. to repair the bridge. 2 Hal. Hat. P. C. 163.

Allo by the Common law, if one guilty of larceny in one county carry the goods stolen into another, he may be indicted in either. 2 Haw. P. C. 221.

If a man marry two wives, the first in a foreign country, and the second in England, he may be indicted and tried for it in England upon the statute of 1 sta. 3. cap. 35. as it is felony, because the second marriage alone was criminal, and the first had nothing wrongful in it, and was merely of a transitory nature; and by Hawkins, if the second marriage had been in a foreign country, the party might have been indicted here within the parvus of the dixit statue 1 jac. 1. 1 Haw. P. C. 221. 11. But for this see 2 St. 171. kd. 79. 2 Haw. P. C. 221.

Also if a woman be taken by force in one county, and carried into another, and there married, the offender may be indicted, Ut. in the second county on the ground of the statues, and the party cannot be indicted for a felony in either, but only for a misprision. 2 Haw. P. C. 221.

But notwithstanding the above instances, it seems agreed as a general rule, that the nature of the offence indicted be what it will, if it appear upon Not guilty, of the grand jury, if the party cannot be indicted for a felony, either, in any county, in which the indictment was found, the party shall be acquit- ted. 2 Haw. P. C. 230.

And therefore at the Common law, if a man had died in one county of a stroke received in another, it was held, that the homicide was indictable neither, because the offense was not complete in either; to remedy this inconvenience, it is enacted by 2 & 3 Ed. 6. cap. 22. ‘That where any one shall feloniously knock or ponioun in one county, and die thereof in another, an indictment thereof found by the jurers of the county where the death shall happen, whether before the coroner or of the body, or whether before justices of the peace, or other justices, &c. shall be as effective, as if the stroke, &c. had been in the county where the party shall die, or where the indictment shall be found.”

So it A. committed a felony in the county of D. and B. had been before or after of the county of C. B. could not have been indicted as accessory in either county at Common law; but by the above statute he is indictible, and shall be tried in the county where he so became accessory. 2 Hal. 150. P. C. 169. but for this fee, ti. Acquitted.

It seems to have been a great doubt at Common law, how treason done out of the realm was triable; some holding, that it was only triable by appeal before the confable and marshall; others, that it was indictable in any county where the King pleaded; and some, that it was indictable wherever the offenders lands were; but for the convenience and security of persons and declarations, it is enacted by 35 Hen. 8. cap. 2. “That all offenses then or after made or declared to be treasons, misprisions of treason, or concealments of treasons, done out of this realm of England, shall be inquired of, heard and determined by the King’s Bench, by lawful men of the realm, or their deputies, and by special commissions, and in such form and manner as shall be ordered by the King’s commission, and by lawful men of the same, in like manner to all intents and purposes, as if such treasons, &c. had been done within the same place, where they shall be so inquired of &c.

In the construction of this act it hath been resolved, that if after an indictment has been taken in pursuance to this statute, the court, or commissioners appointed by the King, remove into a different county, the trial shall be by jurors returned from the first county, being most agreeable to the general course of the Common law, which requires that indictments shall be tried by jurors of the same county in which they were found. 2 Haw. P. C. 223. 3 Inf. 34. P. C. 214. Stanf. P. C. 50. Dyer 286.

That the commissioners and county for the trial are well assified by the King’s writing his name to the commission, or by his signing the warrant for it. 3 Inf. 34. P. C. 223. cap. 22. mar- riage alone was criminal, and the first had nothing un- lawful in it, and was merely of a transitory nature; and by Hawkins, if the second marriage had been in a foreign country, the party might have been indicted here within the parvus of the dixit statute 1 jac. 1. 1 Haw. P. C. 221. 11. But for this see 2 St. 171. kd. 79.
So it hath been adjudged, that an indictment for burglary is insufficient, without alleging that it was committed with force and violence, and that the prisoner, or some person, did, or was privy to the breaking and entering. 1 Hawkins, C. 3, p. 225.

Also it is agreed, that an indictment, charging a man with a nuisance, in respect of a fall which is lawful in itself, as the erecting of an inn, &c. and only becomes unlawful from particular circumstances, is insufficient, unless it feith forth some circumstances that make it unlawful. 2 Rol. 2, S. 315. 3 Hals. 368, 374.

So it hath been adjudged, that an indictment for traitorously coining Money like to the King's money, without alleging what money, viz. whether gold, silver, or copper, is insufficient; for if the latter of these, the offence could not amount to treason. 2 Hawk. P. C. 225.

So an indictment of perjury, not flowing in what manner, and in what court the false oath was taken, is insufficient; because, for ought appears, it might have been extra-judicial. 2 Hawk. C. 137.

But an indictment charging a man with the taking of goods as a builder of an hundred, more or less, without alleging for what he took it, is good, at least after verdict; for perhaps he might claim it generally, as being due to him as bailiff, in which case the taking could not otherwise be explicable. 1 Sid. 91. 1 Hawk. P. C. 225.

An indictment charging a man disjunctively is void; as murdravi, vel murdravi causavit, or that A. verberavit B. vel verberati causavit, or that A. fabricavit chartam, vel fabricati causavit, for here are different offences, and it appears not of which of them the party is accused. 2 Mod. 137, 138. 3 Hals. 371, p. 8. 2 Hawk. P. C. 225.

Also an indictment charging a man in general terms, without alleging particular the fact laid to his charge, is insufficient; for no one can know what defence to make to a charge which is uncertain, nor can plead it in bar or abatement of a subsequent prosecution; neither can it appear, that the facts given in evidence against a defendant on such a general accusation are the facts of which the indictor has accused him; nor can it judicially appear to the court what punishment is proper for an offence so loosely expressed. 7 Lew. 203. 1 Keb. 278, 1 Shaw. 389. 2 Hawk. P. C. 226.

As where the indictment charges the party with having spoken divers seditious and scandalous words against J. S. being mayor of A. &c. or with being a common defamer, vexer and oppressor, &c. or with being a common disturber of the peace, and having stirred up divers persons, men of war and others, amongst his neighbours, or with being a person of evil behaviour, and common deceiver, or a common publisher of the King's secrets, or with being a common forrecaller, a common thief, a common charmer, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 226, and several authorities there cited.

But barretry being an offence of a complicated nature, consisting in the repetition of frequent acts, all of which it would be too prolix to enumerate, experience has fetled it to be sufficient to charge a man in general as a common barreter. 2 Hawk. P. C. 226. See Barretry.

And for the same reason an indictment against a common field is sufficient, without alleging any particulars. 2 Hawk. P. C. 227.

Neither is it necessary, for an indictment of either of these two last mentioned offences, to conclude in masculum omnium ligaturum, &c. for it appears from the nature of the thing, that it could not but be so. 2 Hawk. P. C. 227.

An indictment must lay the charge against the defendant pottively, and not by way of recital, as with a number and sum, &c. and it must expressly alledge every thing material in the description of the substantive, nature and manner of the crime; for no intention shall be admitted to supply a defect of this kind. 3 Hals. 371. 4 T. C. 42, 5 Co. 130. 2 Hawk. P. C. 227.

Therefore if an indictment of murder want the words ex multis praevia, it is no answer that it has the word words feloniæ misdiacriti, which imply as much.

So if any indicent of death want an express allegation, that the party received the hurt laid as the cause of his death, and also that he died thereof, no implication will help it. 2 Hawk. P. C. 227.

Also if it be laid for a feloniously breaking of prison, and commanding J. S. there imprisoned, &c. to escape, do not expressly allege that J. S. did escape, it is no answer that it is fully implied in calling the offence a feloniously breaking. keith. 87. 2 Hawk. P. C. 227.

Yet braided and over nick expectional authors of this kind are not worth regarded; as that an indicent of death, laying the assault to have been with malicious preposen, doth not expressly repeat it in the clause immediately following, and joined with a copulative flowering the giving of the wound at the same time and place. 4 Co. 41. 2 Hawk. P. C. 227.

Or that an indicent, setting forth that J. S. was lawfully arrested by virtue of a plaint before such a sheriff, &c. doth not expressly tew that there was a good warrant. Crs. Jac. 47. 2 Hawk. P. C. 227.

Or that an indicent setting forth an arrest in such a parish and ward in London, by virtue of a warrant, to arrest the person therein named, London, doth not expressly by such parish and ward within the liberties of London. 9 Co. 67. 5 Co. 150. 2 Hawk. P. C. 227.

Or that an indicent finding that J. S. exileth of such a trade, &c. as will bring London within the limits, wherein the indictor, committed such a fact, does not expressly allege that he was of such trade, &c. at the time of the fact; for it fully appears from the natural construction of the participle exileth going before the verb, to which it is the nominative case. Crs. Jac. 610. 2 Male. 118. 2 Rol. Rep. 226. Mos. 165.

2 Lev. 28. 1 Kei. 82. 2 Hawk. P. C. 227.

Yet it is a good exception to an indicent of forcible entry, finding that A. diffeid B. of such land, exilium libertam teneamentum of B. that it is not expressed at what time it was his freehold; for it flnds indifferent, according to the common rules of construction, whether it was his freehold at the time of the diffeid, or at the time of finding the indicent, the word exilium being applied only to the thing which was the subject of the action, and not being the nominative case of the verb, as in the former case. Crs. Jac. 610. 2 Rol. Rep. 226. 2 Lev. 229. 2 Male. 159. 2 Hawk. P. C. 228.

If one make excus a part of an indicent or a repugnan to another, or the left as laid be impossible or absurd, the indicent is void; as where one is indicted for having forged a writing, in which A. was bound to B. which is impossible if the writing were forged; or for having diffeid J. S. of land wherein it appears, by the indicent itself, that he has no freehold; or for having entered peaceably on J. S. and then and there forcibly diffeid him, or for having diffeid him of land then being, and for ever since continuing to be, his freehold, or for having murdered J. S. at B. where by the indicent it appears that J. S. was only wounded at B. and died at C. or for felling iron with falle weights and measures, with otherwife, there is no freehold, as fupposing the iron could be fold by measure, but inconfident, in fupposing that it was fo fold, and yet at the fame time fold by weight; or for being absent from church fex months, between fuch and fuch a time, which appears to have contained only the space of eleven days; or for feloniously cutting down trees, &c. yet where the fenfe is clear, a fmall imperfection may be dispofed with; as where one is indicted for having mowed unam acras fami, which is faid to be fufficient, and yet that which was mowed could not, at the fame time of the mowing, in ftrictneffe be called hay, but gras only. 2 Hawk. P. C. 228. and feveral authorities there cited.

Also a repugnan to an indicent in setting forth the offence of the accufery, is as fatal as it is in setting forth that of the principal; as where an indicent of death having laid the froke on one day, and the death at another, changes the accufery with having abferted the principal at the time of the felony only. 2 Hawk. P. C. 229.

But where several are present and abet a fact, and one only abferts or makes a plea of non imposition, the law makes a demand that the party is to make an appeal, either laden as done by the one, and abferted by the refl. 9 Co. 67. Cod. 97.

But if it barely change a man with having been present, it is void; because a man may be present incognito. 2 Hawk. P. C. 229.

An indicent of J. S. as accufery to four, by these words, Scientif fift iuratur feloniæ presentis præfectus quoque. B. feloniæ recipientis, without adding ess, is nugatous; for it appears not clearly how many of them he is charged to have received. 2 Hawk. P. C. 229.

Also an indicent of a confable for having voluntarily and feloniously, &c. larded a perfon arrefted by him on fulpicion of felony to escape, without fhewing what the felony was, and that it was actually committed, is laid to be void by the uncertainty: But an indicent for knowingly forbidding perons convicted of felony to escape, is laid to be good, without fhewing expressly what the felony was, or that it was committed, if it record of conviction be fet forth with convenient certainty; for there it appears what the felony was, and that it was comitted. 2 Hawk. P. C. 229, and other authorities there cited.

It is holden by some, that an indicent finding that J. S. sceleriæ receptatur J. D. being a felon, is not good, without expressly fhewing that he knew him to be a felon; but it is held by others, that such indicent is good, because the plain construction of the word sceleriæ carries it thro' the whole sentence. 2 Hawk. P. C. 230, and other authorities there cited.

2dly. The indicent muft fit forth with certain the persons mentioned or referred to in it. The name and addition of the party indicted ought regularly to be infected, and infected truly, in every indicent; but if the party be indicted by a wrong Christian name, surname, or addition, and he pleads to that indicent. Not guilty, or answer to that indicent upon his arraignment by that name, he shall not be received after to plead misnomer or falsity of his addition; for he is concluded and effoped by his plea by that name, and of that effoped the gaoler and sherifh that doth execution shall have advantage. 2 Hal. Hyf. P. C. 179.

But it is faid, that an indicent that the King's highway in such a place is in decay, th'o' the default of the inhabitants of such a town, is good without naming any peron in certain. 2 Roll. Abs. 79. 2 Hawk. P. C. 230.

Also it is faid, that no indicent can take any advantage of a mislaid surname in the indicent, either by plea in abatement, or otherwise, notwithstanding such surname have no manner of affinity with his true one, and he was never known by it. 2 Hawk. P. C. 230.

And in this refpect an indicent differs from an appeal, whereof it is certain that a misnomer of a surname may be pleaded in abatement as well as any other misnomer which is otherways. 2 Hal. Hyf. P. C. 179. 2 Hawk. P. C. 230.

Not only the misnomer of the name of baptifm will abate an indicent, but also the naming the defendant Knight, &c. who is a baronet, and no knight, &c. or the omission of a name of dignity; as where Garter King of arms is not named Garter in the indicent; and let of any other name of dignity, if procés of outlawry lie upon it. 2 Hawk. P. C. 230, and several authorities there cited.

By the Common law, the party indicted could not take advantage of a misnomer or the want of addition, because the fact being proved against the party presupposing appearing to their view, there could be no injury by the misnomer; also as felon generally go by no certain name, and have no fixed habitation, it was thought hard to find out their real names or professions; but this was altered by the statute 1 Hen. 5. cap. 5. which required that that in all indictments, &c. the party indicted ought to have the addition of his mystery, degree, place and county. 1 Hal. Hift. P. C. 176.

The additions required by the statute are, that of his degree, name of the gentleman, esquire, or of his military, as husbandman, tailor,foolifter, &c. therefore if the addition be only general, as servant, farmer, citizen, &c. or of crimes and misdemeanors only, as extortioner, vagabond, heretic, there are no good additions. 1 Hal. Hift. P. C. 176. But for this see 2 Hal. P. C. 275.

The addition ought to be to the substantive name, and not to that which comes after the alias dicunt, becauseregularly the addition refers to the last antecedent. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 177. 2 Hawk. P. C. 231.

If several persons be indicted for one offence; misnomer, or want of naming one of the indictments only of him, and the rest shall be put to answer, for they are in law as several indictments; and so in trespas. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 177. But in 2 Hal. P. C. 231. it is said that where several are indicted, and there is an omission of an addition as to one, it makes the indictment vicious as to all; for which is cited 1 Hal. 17.

Not only the defendant, but regularly all other persons also mentioned in an indictment, must be described with convenient certainty; and therefore it seems to be generally agreed at this day, that an indictment for sufficing diversity of crime, or, again the afflur or finding divers perons without cause, or for taking divers funds of money of divers persons for such a trespas, &c. without naming any bakers, &c. in particular, is sufficient. 2 Hawk. P. C. 231.

But an indictment for murder enimulam ignati is good; and to for fufing the goods cuiusdam ignati; fo of an afflur in quandam ignoti, as if he be acquitted, or convicted, and be afterwards indicted for an asslur or murder of such a man by name, he may plead the former conviction or acquittal, and aver it to be the same perfam. Phys. 85. d. Dyer 285. a. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 181. 2 Hawk. P. C. 231.

But an indictment quod inventi quondam hominem mortuem, as felonie furcata est duas tuneus, without saying de bimi & cathalis cullum ignati, is not good. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 181.

If the goods of a chapel be stolen, the indictment shall say bimi & cathalis cupelle in catholi paupcrorum; but if it be done in time of vacation, bimi & cathalis cupelle tempore vacationi; but if the goods of a parih church be stolen, as the bell, the books, &c. it shall run bimi parochii de cathali cupelle, and shall not suppose them bimi eccles. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 181. If the goods which a bami be stolen, the offender may be indicted quod bimi feftatris in catholi A. executoris. 2 Hal. P. C. 181. or it may be general bimi dignus a. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 181.

If a dying be buried, and B. opens the grave in the night-time, and fleels the winding thee, the indictment cannot suppose them the goods of the dead man, but the executors, administrators, or ordinary, as the cafe falls out. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 181.

There is no need of an addition of the perfon robbed or murdered, &c. unless there be a plurality of persons of the fame name; neither then is it essential to the indictment, tho' sometimes it may be convenient, for distinction sake, to add it; for it is sufficient if the indictment be only such as was killed or murdered, and there are many of the same name. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 182.

And it hath been adjudged, that an indictment of an afflur on 7.4 deben, parroch-sprcft of D. in the county of C. is good without mentioning his surname; for the certainty of the perfon sufficiently appears. Noll. 25. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 182.

But it seems that if such indictment had only described him by his name of baptizem without any farther addition, it had been too uncertain; yet the contrary seems to be held in Maser; Howevet, it seems agreed, that a repugnancy or aburdity in the description of the perfon injured will vitiate an indictment; as where one is indicted for dealing bini, &c. or for having done to J. S. was mentioned before. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 232. Maser 469. p. 662.

It is not necessary to allege in an indictment of death, that the party was killed in the peace of God. 2 Hawk. P. C. 233.

An indictment must set forth the thing wherein the offence is committed. An indictment which doth not with sufficient certainty set forth the thing wherein the offence was committed, is insufficient; as where one is indicted for having forged a seal of certain hands, without alleging that the said hands were the hands of any certain person, or for having stolen bimi & cathalis a. 2 Hal. P. C. 183.

For having trespas on 2 close of meadow or pasture, or for having diverted quondam pertinem aquam running from such a place to such a place, without any farther description, or for having inclosed magnam quantitatem flructum & fami, or diversa cumulus triuncii, without shewing how much of each, or for having carried away duas centenas cafii, without adding libras or unctas, &c. or for having erected several cottages contra formam fluidi, without shewing how many. 2 Hawk. P. C. 234.

If there be alleged in any thing, the indictment must set down the value, that it may appear whether it be grand or petit larceny. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 183.

If the thing be moveable, as a horse, cow, &c. it is said to must properly to shew its worth by the word pretium; but if the thing be immovable, and consists of divers dead things, it ought to be ad valorem; yet this nicety feems not necessary; neither is it clear that the worth of the thing stolen is required to be set forth in an indictment of larceny for any other purpose, than to shew that the crime amounts to grand larceny, and the better to ascertain the crime, in order for a reftitution, or in an indictment for trespas, for any other purpose, than to aggravate the crime. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 183.

An indictment quod felonie erecti 20 oves, matrices & agrum, or matrices & verae, is not good, because it doth not appear how many of one sort, and how many of another; but 20 oves generally might have been good with this particularisation. 2 Hal. P. C. 183. Other indictment in replevin or trespas. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 183.

An indictment de quatuor rufis & ciphers, Anglic chefs and coffers, is good, because synonymous. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 183.

An indictment must set forth circumstances of time and place. It is laid down as an undoubted principle in all the books that treat of this matter, that no indict-
Nad", is enacted, that it shall be treason for a person born within the realm, and in papish orders to remain here, &c. in which case it is said, that the indictment needs not then be sworn for the birth or ordination. 2 Haw. N. C. 237.

Also a mistake in evidence of the place laid is in no case material, on Not guilty pleaded, if the fact be proved in any other place in the county; but if there be no such place in a county, as that wherein an offence is laid in an appeal or indictment, all proceeds thereon is void, by the law, and the statutes of 6 Hen. 6. cap. 1. & 18 Hen. 6. cap. 12. 2 Haw. N. C. 237.

5. Where the offences indicted may be laid jointly, and severally, as well as jointly and severally; and whereas the offences of several persons may be laid in one indictment.

Although the offences of several persons cannot but be several, because one man's offence cannot be another's, but every man must answer for himself; yet if it wholly arise from a joint act, which is in itself criminal, as where several join in keeping a gaining-house, or in deer-stalking, or maintenance, &c. the defendants may be indicted jointly and severally; as thus,

Yet it hath been solemnly adjudged, that a conviction of deer-stalking, setting forth the offence between the 8th and 12th of July, &c. is sufficient. 3 Haw. N. C. 236.

And in these cases it is said to be most regular to set forth the year, by flying the year of the King; yet this may be dispensed with, for special reasons, if the very year be otherwise sufficiently exprest, for that only in material. 2 Haw. N. C. 236.

Every indictment at Common law must expressly show some place wherein the offence was committed, which must appear to have been within the jurisdiction of the court in which the indictment was taken, and must be alleged without any vagueness; for if one and the same offence be alleged at two different places, or at B. aforesaid, where B. was not before mentioned, or if the stroke be alleged at A. and the death at B. and the indictment conclude that the defendant sic fuisse martharet, the deceased at A. the indictment is void. 2 Haw. N. C. 236.

So it is also, if it lay not both a place of the stroke and death, or if any place so alleged be not from whence a sive may come; as to which it hath been adjudged, that if a fact be alleged in a parih in London, with some other addition which sufficiently ascertains it, or in the parish of St. Lawrence Jewry, it needs not fly the ward. 2 Haw. N. C. 236. 9 Co. 65.

Also in some crimes no will need be named, as upon an indictment of barretcy, because he is a barretter everywhere, and it shall be tried de corpore conunito. 2 Hal. Hist. N. C. 180.

If the margin, the indictment supposing a fact done a quo in commendam is good, for it refers to the county in the margin. 2 Hal. Hist. N. C. 180.

But if there be two counties named, one in the margin, another in the addition of any part, or in the recital of an act of parliament recited in the premises of the indictment, the fact laid a quo in commendam makes the indictment; because two counties are named before, and it is uncertain to which it refers. 1st E. 28. 2 Hal. Hist. N. C. 180.

Indictment against A. B. that he a quo in commendam made an affize upon C. D. of F. in commendam, &c. by which it appears the indicted is not good, because two places named before; and if it refers to both, it is impossible; and if only to one, it must refer to the last, and then it is insufficient. 2 Hal. Hist. N. C. 180.

Indictment against A. B. that he a quo in commendam made an affize upon C. D. of F. in commendam, &c. which, as it appears, the indicted is not good, because two places named before; and if it refers to both, it is impossible; if only to one, it must refer to the last, and then it is insufficient. 2 Hal. Hist. N. C. 180.

It hath been held, that an indictment on a flat charge, prohibiting and such a thing, need not fly the place where the facts happened, which bring the defendant within the prohibition; as where it
The caption of the indictment is no part of the indictment itself, but it is the title or preamble, or return that is made from an inferior court to a superior, from whence a certiorari issues to remove it, or when the whole record is made up in form; for whereas the record of the indictment is the only one upon which the action in rem or in personam is taken, it is only thus: "Jurates pro Domino Regis fuper fueramentum from professit: when this comes to be returned upon a certiorari, it is more full and explicit. 2 Hal. Hil. P. C. 165.

Every caption of an indictment must flow that it was taken before a court which has a proper jurisdiction; and therefore if it flowed only that it was taken before J. S. steward, without flowing to whom or in what court; or if the caption of an indictment flowed, that he was such for the district in which the indictment was taken, it is insufficient; but if it flowed that he was a coroner in the county, it sufficiently flowed that he was a coroner for the county; and if the caption of an indictment flowed that it was taken at the feoff of the peace of such a county, it sufficiently flowed that such feoff was held for the county; but if it only flowed that it was held in the county, it is said to be insufficient; so it is also if it omit the clause nec non ad diversas feliam, &c.; or if it barely flowed that the indictment was taken at a feoff of the peace, without flowing before whom, or without naming of the justices for what place the justices were; or if in describing them as justices ad pacem, &c. confundat, it omit the word aforesaid, but if it sufficiently flowed that some of them were of the quorum, by flowing that the indictment was taken at a general feoff, and if it call them justices of peace, it needs not any farther to show that they were justices of the King's peace. 2 Hawk. P. C. 253.

The caption of a indictment ad magnam curiam cum lata tent, is insufficient; but if it be ad magnam curiam et ad iactam, or ad ujus, franci pleg. cum cur. baron. tent. perhaps it is sufficient; for since the court-baron has no jurisdiction over criminal matters, and the caption in these last cases is not express, that the indictment was taken at it, as it is in the first case, the court will intend that it was at the leet, which alone had power to take it. 2 Hawk. P. C. 254.

The not flowing in the caption of an indictment at a court, the filling of which can be shown by charter or prescription, is helped by the multitude of precedents. 2 Hawk. P. C. 254.

Every caption of an indictment ought to flow that the indiciors were the precinct for which the court was held, and that they were twelve in number, and that they had the hefts of the justices, or filling for them; also the indictmentes have been quashed for an omission of the names of the jurors; and others for want of the words priorum & legaleum hominum; and others for want of the words advocae & hidem before jural & servat; and others for want of the words ad inspirand. pro Domino Regis & pro corpe communit; yet of late years exceptions of this kind have not been much favoured, especially if the indictment were in the indictment in the superior court, and that which is omitted be, in common understanding, implied in what is expressed. 2 Hawk. P. C. 254.

Every caption must flow a certain day and year when the indictment was found, and must record it in the present sense; but if it describe the court as 'halden di mortis & die Manuscript' on such a day, it will be sufficient. 2 Hawk. P. C. 254.

Every such caption must also flow where the indictment was found, that it may appear to have been at a place within the jurisdiction of the court; and therefore if it set forth, that the indictment was taken at a felons of the peace, helden for such a county at B. without flowing in what county B. lies, otherwise than by putting the county in the caption, it is insufficient; but if an inquest of death be set forth as taken at B. before the coroner of the liberty of B. it needst not express that B. is within the liberty of B. for it cannot but be inferred. 2 Hawk. P. C. 255.

By the 7 W. & M. cap. 3. No indictment for high treason or missetation thereof, (except indictments for high treason against the King's coin) shall 'be helden, unless there be any process or return thereupon, shall be quashed for misreciting, misputing, false or improper Latin, unless exception concerning the same be taken and made in the respective court where the trial shall be, by the prisoner, or his counsel affigned, before any evidence given in open court on such indictment; nor shall any such indictment be quashed, if the prisoner shall be at law in the court where the indictment is taken, or in the court where the trial shall be, by the prisoner, or his counsel affigned, before any evidence given in open court on such indictment. 2 Hawk. P. C. 255.

1 Ed. 3. c. 11. and indictee is he that is indicted. 21 fasc. cap. 1.

Indictium, is used for that which two hold in common, without partition. Kirchin, fol. 421. in these words, He holds pro indiviso, &c.

Indicta, A studious young man, or a youth. Ego Edgar indita Cite confingi. Mon. Angl. 3 tom. p. 120. indictamentum in conditionem, for any thing written on the back of a deed, as a condition written on the back of an obligation is commonly called an indorsement. Weit. Symbol. part. 2. sect. 157.

Where 'tis written on the back of an obligation, (received to 10 l. in part of payment) it may be pleaded for Beso. 3 Br. Pint. 21, Br. Pint. 32. sect. 5.

And upon a sheriff's bond of 20 l. indisored thus, to save the sheriff harmless, he shall plead it as a condition. Br. Pleadings, p. 23 cites 21 Hen. 6. 51.

If a man delivers a single obligation to J. N. and after J. N. indisores a condition upon it, this shall serve as the obligation to three justices; quod est. Br. Obligations, p. 2 cites 2 Hen. 8. 9.

An indictment for forcible entry was preferred to the grand jury, who returned thus, therein. As to the entry with force, ignominiis; as to the detainer with force, X X X.
bills vera.

But this indorsement not being fpied, but being taken by the juries of the peace for a full indenture in both points, they allowed it; and the defendant, having been adjudged in J. B. R. by certiorari, and the indorsement returned as above, they award re-refilution. It was moved, that they ought not to regard the indorsement, for the court did not fend for that, but only for the indenture; and this indorsement not being a full indenture at all, and the clear, and alieneed, and deduct a placentum, but good placentum pendet indormentum, & the plaintiff replied, that the judgment was affirmed, oblique quo quid placentum pendet indormentum, &c. the defendant demurred, and adjust'd for the plaintiff in C. B. but upon error brought in B. R. the court ordered the defendant's demurrer; because it makes but a matter of inducement, which fhad been the point in issue; and also, because the traverse puts a matter in issue to be tried by the country; and was going to reverse the judgment, but an exception was flarted to the writ of error, for which it was quashed. 2 Saund. 239. Poflb. 4 Am. B. R. Poflb. v. Morriff. See Pleading, and 1 Ex. Abr. tit. Inducement.

Inducement, (Inddtuim.) A leading into. It is mostly commonly taken for the giving poftition to an incumbent of his church, by leading him into it; and delivering him the keys of the communion, or bishop's deputy, and by his right of the keys. Cr. de Rep. 3 parts, fol. 29. See Benefice.

In cfe, (mentioned in flat. 21 Jac. cap. 2.) In being. The learned make this difference between things in cfe, and things in tiffus, or potentia; but a thing apparent and visible, they try, is in cfe, that is, has a real being, as inflammari, whereas the other is causal, and but a poftibility. As a child before he is born, or even conceived, is a thing in tiffus or potentia; or may be; after he is born, he is said to be in cfe, or actual being. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Infallibilis. This word occurs only in Ralph de Hengham, Summa parva, cap. 3. Vr committit feloniam quem quid fuerit, usuitatis, vel alia modis mariti dominati, vel demisememtus, vel auop Deore infallibilis, vel auop Saxoniam usu inuwadit, & de iles de specimen, us uop domicilito, us uop Norvegicum, vel in mariti superaduantis, sicat in aliis partes portae. — Mr. Selden, in his note on that author, says thus, "It appears that several cuftoms of places made in those days capital punishment feveral. But what is infallibilis? In regard of its being a cuftom used in a port-town, I suppose it was made out of the French word falsere, which is fine fund by the water side, or a bank of the sea. In this fiend or bank it feem their execution at Deore was." The elaborate Du Peire condemns this derivation and this fene of the word, but yet gives no better. And therefore, till we have more au- thority, I think that the punishment by water in Nauada, and afterwards the capital punishment inflicted on the lands or sea-féere. Perhaps infallibilis was erop sign the malefactor to be laid bound upon the lands, till the next full tide carried him away; of which currence, it I forget not, there is some dark tradition. However, I believe the penalty took enormous, and comprehends to be thrown not only on the lands, but not the rocks and cliffs adjoining or impeding on the sea-féere. Cowell, edit. 1727. See the like use of falsere in Min. Angl. tom. 2. p. 105 b.

Jufatn, Which extends to forgery, perjury, graft cheets, &c. enables a man to be a wittius or judor; but whatever he does, whether in his perjury, or in his graft, he is not in the gaol, and may not be delivered, and so should lie longer than is feasible. See the flat of 5 Hen. 4. 10. 2 Ed. 4. 8. and here he took not an examination, but delivered him over without, which was not lawful; and therefore adjudge'd for the plaintiff. Cru. Ed. 525. Paflb. 43 Ed. 17. Jif. 12. 38. For on a recognizance of bail on a writ of error of a judgment in debt given in C. B, conditioned, that if the plaintiff be nonuit, the writ of error discontinued, or if judgment affirmed, then he should pay, &c. defendant prayed over, and pleaded that the plaintif in C. B. was not therein brought, and his consent, and aligned errors, et qualz placentum pro praxidet, beoffe errores alio penda, in indormentum. &c. the plaintiff replied, that the judgment was affirmed, oblique quo quid placentum pendet indormentum, &c. the defendant demurred, and adjust'd for the plaintiff, and upon error brought in B. R. the court ordered the defendant's demurrer. because it makes but a matter of inducement, which had been the point in issue; and also, because the traverse puts a matter in issue to be tried by the country; and was going to reverse the judgment, but an exception was flarted to the writ of error, for which it was quashed.
person was convicted was not infamous, it inferred no
in-famy. 3 Lev. 240.

Infangtheif, Infangtheif, or Infangthefe, is compounded of three Saxen words; the preposition is, such as to, take or catch, and thief, a robber: It is a law, and of such kind of ma-ners to judge any thief within their fee.

Britton, lib. 3. trad. 2. cap. 35. faith, Dicitur infangthefe latro captus in terra aliena de hominibus falsi proprii, fessitis latrocinii.
Infangthefe vero dicitur latro extremam, ventens aliume de terra aliena & qui captus fut in terra eftius, qui habeat libertatem, &c. In the laws of King Edward the Confessor, fet out by Mr. Lambert, cap. 26, you have it thus defcribed: Infangthefe, i:l\nutritione latronis quae tull ex, de homine sui, ii captus fuerit super terram jacat: Illa qui non habet bonum fucceffionem etiam infangthefe Regia action falsum in hundredis, &c. Infangthefe, i.e. quod lanecens captus in Domino etut fede priores, & fessitis latrocinii covirtit in curia Dominii prioris judicentur, & ad fuos ejus fujendorum. Ex Reg. Priorat. de Cokesford. So it was necessary the thief should be taken in his lordship, and with the goods stolen, otherwise the lord had not jurisdiction to try him in his court; but by the laws of Edward the Confessor, he was reftained to his own people or tenants, or he might try any man who was thus taken in his manner: the definition hereof fee alfo in Britton, fol. 90. and Reg. Hoveden, port. potior. fpr.
Annal. lib. 345. And hence de verb. jenif., who writhe the law of Eadward the Confessor, in one of his opinions touching this and "infangthefe. Fleta. lib. 1. cap. 47. says, Infangthefe (for to be writ) dicitur latro captus in terra aliena, fessitis aliquo interna de sui propriis hominibus. Stat. 1 & P. & M. cap. 15.

34. Infant. (Infans,) Before the age of one and twenty years, a man or woman is called an infant in the law.

Co. en Litt. lib. 1. cap. 21. and lib. 2. cap. 29. An infant of eight years of age or above, may commit homicide, and be hanged for it, viz. if it may appear by hiding the peron, by excusing, or by any other act, that he had knowledge of good and evil, and of the danger of the act, or that he was not through the negligence of others, or through the ignorance of age. 22. Yet Co. upon Litt. sect. 405. faith, That an infant shall not be punished till the age of fourteen, which, says he, is the age of discretion. Crouch, edit. 1737.

1. The feveral ages and periods distinguished by the law
for several purposes.

2. Who are to be confidered as minors; and how for the law regards and takes notice of infants in venture to mere.

3. How infancy is to be tried; of what public offices and trusts an infant is capable; and of what things he is capable for his own advantage.

4. Of the acts of infants as they are good, void, or void-able, viz. contracts for necessaries, judicial acts, and acts in pais.

1. The several ages and periods distinguished by the law
for several purposes.

From the observations made on the daily actions of infants, as to their arriving to discretion, the laws and customs of every country have fixed upon particular periods on which they are presumed, and married Mt. Filler, and upon fut in the spiritual court the second marriage was affirmed: The Lord Decius appealed to the delegates, and it was argued by Civilians and Common lawyers before the bishops of London and Rochester, North Ch. J.
Littleton Baron, Jason and Atkins Jucilices, and several Doctors of the civil laws there. This argument could not contract matrimoniy, but only synquinio de futuro, and therefore tho' they bind themselves per verbo de pra-fenti tempore, yet the law, by reason of the incapacity of the parties, would make such a composition that it shall only be a contract de futuro. In this case indeed, one of the parties is of age of content, but that makes no diversity; for a contract of matrimoniy is utroque obligatorius, and reciprocal in its nature. On the other side it was said, that such a contract as this betwixt persons of unequal ages might as well claudicate as other contracts, which are also utroque obligatorius; they said, that a contract of marriage carries a relation in itself, and is reciproal, but that in some cases this may fail, by reason of an accident or circumstance in the persons, notwithstanding which the nature of the thing will remain to be utro cretum obligatory, as we see in other contracts; but arguments from the definition of civil affairs are not cogent;
for no law can bind without the approbation of the parties and circumstances, and but ought to be differently applied according as the particular circumstances require. The law does not make contracts per verbo de praefenti tempore to be contracts de futuro, but in cases of minors, and they cannot they except, that contracts per verbo de prefenti by majors, shall be by construction made contracts de futuro. The laws of God and nature require performance of promises and agreements; and the woman,
N. W. Freeman, male, 2. Alfo which fifteen and Hob. 225.

Inf.
At Every summer affirms 1748, William York, a boy of the years of age, was convicted before the Chief Justice, in the murder of a girl of about five years of age;
and received sentence of death. But the Chief Justice, out of regard to the tender years of the prisoner, refused execution, till he should have an opportunity of taking the opinion of the tell of the judges, whether it was proper to execute a child. The boy was kept in the house of the judge, which he reported to the judges as follows: The boy and girl were parish children, but under the care of a periphrizer, at whose house they were lodged and maintained. On the day the murder happened, the man of the house and his wife went out to their work leaving the little girl in the company of the minor and his mother.
When they returned from work, the girl was milking; and the boy being afraid what was become of her, answered, that he had helped her up, and put on her clothes, and that she was gone he knew not whither.
Upon this, first search was made in the ditches and pools of water near the house, from an apprehension that the child might have fallen into the water. During such search, the man under whose care the children were, observed that a heap of dung near the house had been newly turned up. And upon removing the upper part of the heap, he found the body of the child, about a foot's depth under the dungheap, covered by a huge, horrid and horrid manner. Upon this discovery, the boy, who was the only person capable of committing the fact, that was left at home with the child, was charged with the fact, which he stillly denied. When the coroner's jury met, the boy was again charged, but per- ismmed to be not guilty.
Upon his being charg- gated, he fell to crying, and said he would tell the whole truth. He then said, that the child had been used to foul herself in bed; that he did so that morning (which was not true, for the bed was searched, and found to be clean);
that thereupon he took her out of the bed and carried her to the dung-heap; and with a great knell which he found about the house, cut her in the manner the body appeared to be mangled, and buried her in the dung-heap;
placing the dung and straw that was bloody under the body, and covering it up with what was clean; and having so done, he got water and washed himself as clean as he could. The boy was the next morning carried before a neighbouring judge, before whom he repeated his confession, with all the circumstances he had related to the coroner and his jury. The judge very prudently delayed proceeding to commitment, till the boy should have an opportunity of conflicting with the minor who had accused him of the danger he was in; if he should be thought guilty of the fact he fled charged with,
and admonished him not to wrong himself; and then ordered him into a room; where none of the crowd that attended should have access to him. When the boy had been five hours in the room; where without drink or beverage, he was brought a second time before the judge, and then he repeated his former confession;
upon which he was committed to gaol. On the trial evidence was given of the declarations before mentioned to have been made before the coroner and his jury, and before the judge; and of many declarations to the fame purposes. He was committed for a time, but at last, he came to gaol, and even down to the day of his trial. He confessantly told the same story in fulness, commonly adding that the Devil put him upon committing the fact. Upon this evidence, with some other circumcumstances tending to corroborate the boy's confession.
Upon this report of the Chief Justice, the judges having taken time to consider of it, unanimously agreed. 1. That the declarations stated in the report were evidence proper to be left to the jury. 2. That supposing the boy to have been guilty of this fact, there are so many from the plea of infancy, or may take a legacy; also if there are two or more at a birth, they flound upon one executor or one least part of the thing bequested; for the Civil law, for the benefit of the infant, repents a child in his mother's womb in the same condition as if it were born.

Geddes, O. Ph. Lab. 102.

2. Who are to be considered as minors; and how far the laws regard and take notice of infancy in ventre a mare.

The privilege of infancy does not extend to the King;
for the political rules of government have thought it necessary, that he who is to govern and manage the whole kingdom, should never be considered as a minor, incapable of governing himself and his own affairs. Co. Lit.
43. Pryor 209 b.

Therefore inf if the King within age make any leaf or grant, he is bound presently, and cannot avoid them, either during his minority, or when he comes of full age.

Pleas. 1123 a. 5 Co. 27. 7 Co. 12.

So of the King content to an act of parliament during his minority, yet he cannot after avoid this tert; because the King, as he cannot be a minor; for as King he is a body politic. Co. Lit. 43. 1 Roll. Abr. 728.

Also the acts of a mayor and commonly shall not be avoided, by reason of the nonage of the mayor. Co. Car.
5570 a. Co. 12.

Altho' a Duke, Earl, or the like, be but a minor, or not above ten years of age, in the custody and in the family of another noblemans, who may and doth retain chaplains, yet he may qualify chaplains to be dispended withal to hold two benefits with care, in like fort as if he were of full age. 4 Co. 119. Camp. Incomb. 23.

An infant boy (for not any child may be) coming to age, knew of their some privileges of the infant at Common law; because tho' he has the privilege of alienation at fifteen, yet that do not take from any privilege he had before at Common law. 1 Roll. Abr. 144.

A buffard being implaied that he have his age; for the dilatory plea must be determined before the plea in chief can come on; so that the plea of infancy will lay the fuit, before it can be inquired whether he is or is not a buffard. Co. Lit. 244 b.

A child in ventre a mare may be appointed executor, or may take a legacy; also if there are two or more at a birth, they flound upon one executor or one least part of the thing bequested; for the Civil law, for the benefit of the infant, repents a child in his mother's womb in the same condition as if it were born.
If there be bastard rigor and mulier pojitor, and the bastard enters, and dies therein, his issue shall inherit the lands, and exclude the mulier for ever; but in this case if the bastard had died leaving issue in ventre sa mere, and the mulier had entered, and then a son is born, yet cannot be enter upon the mulier: And because the law differs, if the court law requires an immediate decedent, which cannot be before the person is in offe: also by our law the frehold cannot be in abeyance. Ca. Lit. 244.

It appears to have been a matter of much controversy, whether a devise of lands to an infant in ventre sa mere be good, so not in being to take at the time of the death of the devisor; and since, as some say, by the devise the peron is to take immediately after the death of the devisor, the freehold cannot be put in abeyance by the act of the parties; but others hold, that such devise is good, that the infant be not in offe at the death of the devisor, and that the freehold shall not be in abeyance, but shall devound to the heir at the law in mean time. 11 Hn. 6. 13. Bro. Devise 32. Mar 1777. 637. 2 Bth. 727. 3 Rec. 473. 1 Lev. 135. 1 Sid. 153. Raym. 163. 1 Keb. 85. 1 Sid. 231. 2 Mod. 9.

But however all the books agree in this, that a devise to an infant when he shall be born, when God shall give him birth, is good as an executory devise, and that the frehold shall devound to the heir at the law in mean time. 1 Sid. 153. 1 Lev. 135. Raym. 163. S. C. Snow and Cutler.

So it is clear, that land be devised for life, the remainder to a wild-humous child, that this is a good contingent remainder; because there is a peron in being to take the particular estate; and if the contingent remainder vests during the continuance of the particular estate, or on infantate that it determine, it is sufficient. Mar 657. Church and Wiss. 3 Rec. 46b. 4 Mol. 539. 1 Sid. 227. 829. 6 Townsend 409. and see 19 U. & W. 3. cap. 16. and Remainders.

Alfo it seems agreed, that a man may surrender copyhold lands immediately to the use of an infant in ventre sa mere; for a surrender is a thing executory, and nothing vests before admission; and therefore if there be a peron to take at the time of the admittance, it is sufficient, and not like a grant at Common law, which putting the estate out of the grantor must be void, if there be no-body to take. 1 Roll. Rep. 130. 138. 2 Bth. 727. 3 Ca. Taph. 9. and see Mar 637.

If an usurpation be had on one in ventre sa mere; at the next futer after his birth, he shall be relieved on the statute of W. & Th. 2. cap. 5. Hdb. 240.

3. How infancy is to be tried; of what public offices and trusts an infant is capable; and of what things he is capable for his own advantage.

Infancy is to be tried by inspection of the court, or by jury: And herein it is laid down as a rule in some books, that whereassoever it is alluded upon the pleading, that the party was and yet is under age, there it shall be tried by inspection; but where the infant is of full age and the time of the plea, there it shall be tried per pausi. 1 Lev. 142. 1 Sid. 341. 1 Hen. 756. Cro. Jac. 55. 581.

But here we must observe, that as to judicial acts, or acts done by an infant in court of record, and which he is allowed to avoid, the trial thereof must be by inspection; and therefore if an infant leaves a fine, he must be tried by writ of error; and this must be brought during his minority, that the court may by inspection determine the age of the infant; but the judges, as by aduntia, may in such cases inform themselves by witnesses, church books, &c. Ca. Lit. 380. Mar 76. 3 Rol. Abr. 15. 2 Inf. 483. 3 Inf. 380. 12 Ca. 122.

If an infant brings a writ of error to reverse a fine for his non-age, and, after inspection and proof of infancy by witnesses, dies before the fine is reversed, his heir may reverse it; because the court having recorded the non-age of the cemoral, ought to variance his contract when he appeared to be under a disability at the time he entered into it. Ca. Lit. 380. Mar 884. Kiculton’s case.

An infant acknowledged a fine, and the conuueses omitting to have the fine ingrossed till he came of age, the infant in bringing a writ of error; yet the court upon venue produced by the infant, and upon his prayer to be inspected, and his age examined, recorded his non-age, to give him the benefit of his writ of error, which he must otherwise lose. his non-age determining before the next term, Ca. Lit. 380. 1 Rol. Abr. 230.

So if an infant suffer a common recovery by appearing in person, this must be reversed during his minority by inspection of judges.

But it is said, that if an infant suffers a recovery, in which he appears by attorney, he may reserve it after his full age, as it may be discovered whether he was under age when the recovery was suffered; because it may be tried per pausi whether the warrant of attorney was made by him when he was an infant. 1 Sid. 321. 1 Lev. 142.

It is said, that in all cases where the party pleads that he was within age at B. and alleges a place, that there the trial may be well enough where it is alluded; where no place is alluded, there in personal actions where the writ is brought, and in real actions where the right of the land depends upon infancy, there the trial is to be where the land lies, and if not, where the action is brought. 1 Sid. 153. 11. Cro. Era. 818. 8 P. P.

An infant enCreator in a recognition of 1000l. as bail to J. S. which became forfeited, and he taken in execution; wherupon he brought an auditia querela, fogging his infancy, and the writ being brought into court, he appeared in propria persona; and it was moved, that he might be inspected, and his witnesses examined; and thenceupon his mother peremptorily departs, that she at that very time he twenty years old, and no more, and a maid servant gave circumstantial evidence to the same purpose; and it was moved, that he might be bailed: But per curiam, It is a matter of discretion either to admit him to bail, or to refuse it, he being in execution; but if he had brought his auditia querela before he had been taken in execution, he must have had a supersedeas of course; and the court would not bail him, tho' the long vacation was near, but required the evidence to be strengthened by a copy of the regifter where he was born, which being in Torgh, he appeared again in fiacculum termus in cupidly, and a copy of the birth was produced, and sworn to be a true copy, and the mother and the maid being again sworn, and all agreeing in the same thing, he was discharged by the court. Cartis. 278. Trin. 5. 3. Lloyd v. Eagle.

As to what offices and trusts an infant is capable; he frequently is mentioned in the statute acts as do not contain the confirmation of justice, but only require skill and diligencens; and there it seems he may either exercise himself when of the age of discretion, or they may be exercised by deputy; such as the offices of park-keeper, forester, garter, &c. Pintw. 379. 381. 9 Co. 48. 97. See Cis.

But it is said, that an infant is not capable of the stewardship of a manor, or of the stewardship of the courts of a bishop; because by intendment of law he hath not sufficient knowledge, experience and judgement to use the office, and also because he cannot make a duty. Ca. Lit. 3 8. 1 Rol. Abr. 531. 2 Rol. Abr. 155. Adarhs 41. 43. Cro. Era. 636. Cro. Car. 558.

An infant cannot be an attorney, bailiff, factor or receiver. F. N. B. 118. 1 Rol. Abr. 117. Ca. Lit. 172. 3 Cro. Era. 637.

If an infant, being master of a ship at St. Christopher's birth, entered into a contract with another, under which he was to carry certain goods from St. Christopher's to England, and there to deliver them; but does not afterwards deliver them according to agreement, but waives and confesses them, he may be sued for the goods in the court of Admiralty, though he be an infant; for this suit is but in nature of a detinue, or trover and conversion in the the Common law. 1 Rel. Atr. 130. Forrest and Smith, and a prohibition denied to the court of Admiralty.
INF

If an infant keeps a common inn, an action on the cafe upon the custom of inns will not lie against him. 2 Rel. Atr. 2. Carth. 161. cited.

So if an infant draws a bill of exchange, yet he shall not be, and must not, unless it can be shown to him, but he may plead infancy in the same manner that he may to any other contract of his. Carth. 160. Williams v. Harris, Jr.

Adjudged on demurrer.

An infant cannot be a juror; and it is said by Hibbert, that by the wisdom of the Common law a person under ten years of age could not be a juror of a indictment, because he then tried a matter which might have happened before he was twenty-one. Hb. 325.

An infant, or one under the age of twenty-one years, cannot be elected a member of the house of commons; nor can any lord of parliament sit for his own. 26 Geo. 3.

An infant is capable of inheriting, for the law presumes him capable of property; also an infant may purchase, because it is intended for his benefit, and the freehold is in him till he disagreeth thereon, because an agreement is presumed, it being for his benefit, and because the freehold cannot be defeated contrary to his own act, nor can be in abeyance, for then a stranger would not know against whom to demand his right; and if at his full age the infant agrees to the purchase, he cannot afterwards avoid it; but if he dies during his minority, his heirs may avoid it; and for they shall not be bound by the act of the person for whom he claimed capacity to contract.

Co. Lit. 2. 8. 2 Inst. 203.

If an infant take a lease for years rendering rent, if he enter upon the land he shall be charged with an action during his minority, because the purchase is intended for his benefit; but he may wave the term, and if more rent be referred upon the lease than the land is worth, he may avoid it. 2 Bul. 69.

If an infant be lord of a copyhold manor, he may grant copyholds notwithstanding his non-age; and for these estates do not take their perfection from the intereat or ability of the lord to grant, but from the custom of the manor, by which they have been demised, and are demisible time out of mind. 4 Co. 23. 6th. Co. Copyholder 79. 107. Noy. 41. 8 Co. 65.

An infant may prent to a church; and here it is said, that this must be done by himself, of whatsoever age he be, and cannot by law be done for him, because a guardian cannot make any advantage thereof, and consequently has nothing therein whereby he can give an account; and therefore the infant himself shall prent. Co. Lit. 17. b. 89. a. 29 Ed. 3. 5. 3 Inst. 150.

The act of infants as they are good, void or voidable, viz. contrats for necessaries, judicial acts, and acts in pais.

Contrats for necessaries. Here we must observe, that, strictly speaking, all contracts made by infants are either void, voidable, because a contract is the act of the understanding, which during their state of infancy they are presumed to want; yet civil societies have for so far supplied that defect, and taken care of them, as to allow them to contract for their benefit and advantage, with power, in most cases, to recede from and vacate it when it may prove prejudicial to them; but in this contract for necessaries they are absolutely bound, and this likewise in benignity to infants, for if they were not allowed to bind themselves for necessaries, nobody would trust them, in which case they would be in worse circumstances than persons of full age. 10 H. 6. 14. 18 Ed. 4. 2. 1 Rel. Atr. 729.

Therefore it is clearly agreed by all the books that speak of this matter, that an infant may bind himself to pay for his necessary meat, drink, apparel, necessary physic, and such other necessaries, and likewise for his good teaching and instruction, whereby he may profit himself afterwards, Co. Lit. 172. e. 6th.

But it must appear that the thing were actually necessa-y, and of reasonable prices, and for such a time as the infant's degree and estate, which regularly must be left to the court; but if the jury find that the things were necessaries, and of reasonable price, it shall be presumed they had evidence for what they thus find; and they need not find particularly what the necessaries were, nor of what price each thing cost; also if the infant be allowed for other things as well as necessaries, or alleges too high a price for those things that are necessary, the jury may condescend to judge those things that were really necessaries, and of their intrinsic value, and proportion their damages accordingly, 12 Cro. Jct. 360. 2 Rel. Rep. 144. Poph. 151. Palm. 291. Gwef. 168. Good. 219. 1 Lev. 114.

If an infant promises another, that if he will find him meat, drink and washing, and pay for his schooling, that he will pay 7 l. yearly; an action upon the cafe lies upon this promise; for learning is as necessary as other things, and though it is not mentioned what learning this was, yet it shall be intended what was fit for him, till it be flown to the contrary on the other part; and though he to whom the promise was made did not in struct him, but pays another for it, the promise of re compense is good, and it appears that the learning, meat, drink and washing, was necessary for a left sum than 7 l. 1 Rel. Atr. 729. Palm. 528. 1 Jam. 182. S. C. Pickering v. Gunsing, adjudged on a motion on an arrest of judgment.

Suits for labour and medicines in curing the defendant of diftemper, &c. who pleaded infra aetatem viginti et annum, said the plaintiff, it was for necessaries generally; and upon a demurrer to this replication it was objected, that the plaintiff had not assigned in certain how or in what manner the medicines were neces sary; but it was adjudged, that the replication in this case of general form was good. Carth. 110. Hoggins and Wife

man.

If an infant be a mercer, and hath a shop in a town, and there buys and sells, and he contracts to pay a certain sum to J. S. for certain wares fold to him by J. S. to re-sell, yet he is not chargeable upon this contract, for this trading is not immediately necessary ad viocem & vulsum; and if this were allowed, infants might be in finitely prejudiced, and buy and sell, and live by the

And as the contract of an infant for wares, for the necessary carriage of them on his trade whereby he subsists, will not bind him; nor whether it be money which he borrows to lay out for necessaries; and therefore the lender must, at his peril, lay it out for him, or see that it is laid out in necessaries. 5 Mod. 268. 1 Salt. 386. 7.

As in debt upon a fingle bill, the defendant pleaded that he was within age; the plaintiff replied, that it was for necessaries, viz. 10 l. for cloaths, and 15 l. money lent pro & erga his necessary support at the university; the defendant rejoined, that the money was lent him to spend at pleasure; aliquote hact, that it was lent him for necessa ries; and it was found for the plaintiff, who had judgment in C. B. but was reversed in P. R. on a writ of error; for the issue only being, whether this money was lent the infant for necessaries, not whether it was laid out in necessaries, it cannot bind the infant which ever way it is found; for it might have been borrowed for necessaries, and laid out in a tavern; and the law will not intrull the infant with application and laying of it out. 1 Salt. 356. Earl v. Pele.

So if one lends money to an infant who actually lays it out in necessaries, yet this will not bind the infant, nor subject him to an action; for it is upon the lending that the contract must arise, and after that time there could be no contract to bind the infant, because after that he might waste the money, and the infant's applying it afterwards for necessaries will not by matter esse factum intelle the plaintiff to an action. 1 Salt. 279.

Altho' an infant shall be liable for his necessaries, yet if he enters into an obligation with a penalty for payment thereof, of and yet Roll. but for Keb. for and he declare Teh. he once cord, 94. of fant, againft Cafes Duncomb fchooling an 115. of anfters, were of aneftaries, of an infant, they were improved into a common way of conveyance, it was thought reasonable that tho, whom the law had judged incapable to act for their own interefl, should not be bound by the judgment given in recoveries, tho' it was the foulem act of the court; for where the defendant gives or judgment, it is as much his act and conveyance, as if he had transferred the land himfelf or any other act in pais; and therefore if an infant fuffers a recovery, he may reverfe it as he may a fine, by writ of error, during his minority: And this was formerly taken to be law, as well where the infant appeared by guardian as by his attorney, or in perfon: But now the judge normally acts upon this point, that it has done right, a recovery in perfon, it is erroneous, and he may reverfe it by writ of error; but even in this case the writ of error must be brought during his minority, that his infancy may be tried by the inspection of the court; for at his full age it becomes obligatory and unavowed; but in cases where the court has admitted the infant to appear by guardian, and to fuffer a recovery, or come in as a voucher; but this too is feldom allowed by the court, unlefs it be upon emergencies, when it tends to the improvement of the infant's affairs, or when lands of equal value have been fettled on him, and when he has had the King's Privy Seal for that purpofe; and then the conveyances have been allowed and supported by the judges, and the infant could not fett them aside or flake them; besides, if fuch recoveries be to the prejudice of the infant, he has his remedy for it againft his guardian, and may reimburse himfelf out of his pocket to whom the law had committed the care of him. 1 Roll. 735, 742. Ca. 1381. b. 2 Roll. Arol. 395. 10 a. 63, 64 Cre. Elt. 657. 196-7. Car. Gar. 307. 2 half. 235. 1 Sd. 212-2. 1 Lev. 117. 2 Sand. 94. 1 Form. 491. 2 Salt. 567.

Partition by writ. Partitions fivendi binds infants, because by judgment in a court of juflice, which no partiality can be imputed. Ca. Lit. 171 b.

If an infant acknowledge a reflation or flature, it is only voidable; and the infant at his peril muft await them by audita quæra, as he muft a fine or recovery by writ of error during his minority; for fuch conveyances or other acts of record become obligatory and unavowed, if they be not fett aside before the infant comes of age; the reafon is, because thefe acts being entered into under the inspection of the judge, who is fuppoled to do right, the infant cannot ftrive againft their ria dibility, but muft reverfe them by a judgment of a fuperior court; and however Muñcan has the fame means to determine whether the inferior jurifdictions had conformed the infpeflion that first received the contract. Mar pl. 206. 2 inf. 493, 673. Ca. Lit. 380. Rec. 10. 1 Reg. 149. 10 a. 43 b.

If an infant bargain and fell his land by deed indented and figned, he may plead non-age; for notwithstanding the flature 27 Hen. 8. cap. 6. an infant is regularly allowed to refind and break through all contracts in pais made during minorities, except only for schooling and neceffities, be they fuch as much to their advantage; and the reafon hereof is, that indulgence the law has thought fit to give in- fants, who are fo weak to want judgment and difter-
F

FIN in their contracts confent with others, and there it takes of them preventing their being imposed upon, or over-reached by persons of more years and experience. 30 Ed. 3. 20. 6. 1 Rot. Atr.
Co. Lit. 172. 381.

And for the better security and protection of infants herein, the law has made some of their contracts abso-utely void, all faculties, goods, benefit or benefit or semblance of benefit to the infant; and as to those from which the infant may receive benefit, and which were entered into with more solemnity, they are only voidable; that is, the law allows them when they come of age, and are capable of considering ever again what they have done, either to take them again, or not, or to break through and avoid them. C. C. Cas. 502.

1 James 425. 3 M. B. 310.

Hence it has been agreed, that an infant may perhaps, because it is intended for his benefit, and that at his full age he may either agree or disagree to the fame.
2 Rot. Atr. 2. 2 Vern. 203.

Alfo the feoffment of an infant is not void, but only voidable, not only becaufe he is allowed to contract for his benefit, but becaufe that there ought to be some act of notion to render the feoffment to the infant, equal to that which was invested in him. C. C. Lit. 380.

Dyer 104. 2 R. Atr. 577. 4 C. S. 125. 6.

Therefore if an infant make a feoffment and livery in perpetuity, he shall have no affize, &c. but must avoid it by entry; for it is to be presumed in favour of such folemnitie, that the assembly of the pais then present shall have presumed it, if they had perceived his non-age, and therefore the feoffment shall continue till defeated by entry, which is an act of equal notoriety. 8 Co. 42. Bro.
t. Diff. 69.

But if the infant had made a letter of attorney to de-lever foins, he might have an affize, &c. because the letter of attorney, like all other acts or agreements made by an infant, must be void, and therefore whoever claims under it, or by virtue of its authoity, must be a wrong-doer. 2 Rot. Atr. 2. 76. 2

Palm. 238.

Alfo as to the acts of infants being void or voidable,
there is a divercity between an actual delivery of the thing contracted for, and a bare agreement to deliver it only: that the void is rightful, but the laft absolutely void;
as if an infant deliver a horse or a sum of money with his own hands, this is only voidable, and to be recovered

1 Rot. Atr. 730. 3 Rot. Rep. 408. Letter of attorney, infants, as the infant agrees to give a horse, and does not deliver the horse with his hand, and the donee take the horse by force of the gift, the infant shall have an action of trespass; for the grant was merely void. Pref.

t. enf. 12. 19. 1 Med. 137.

In trespasses quare et armis infantum facit, & tertium crimen infinitum, the defendant as to all the trespass pro tergum criminis pleads Not guilty, and as to that, pleads that the plaintiff was of the age of sixteen years, and for a certain sum of money liquidamitavit

deponent duas unius criminis dicte Anna defendenti

officinat; and upon the deponent to ples the court concluded at large, the defendant pleased not guilty, and subsequently the cause unawaful, and gave judgment accorrespondingly for the plaintiff. Mich. 26 Car. 2. Anna Se-chroban per Guardianam v. Sturman. 3 Rot. 369. S. C.

And as an infant is not bound by his contract to deliver a thing: so if one deliver goods to an infant upon a contract, &c. knowing him to be an infant, he shall not be chargeable in trover and contention, or any other action for them; for the infant is not capable of any contract, but for necessaries; therefore such delivery is a gift to the infant: but if an infant without any contract

wiltfully takes away the goods of another, trover lies against him; and if a contract be in issue, it is, that he take goods

under pretence that he is of full age, trover lies; but it is a willful and fraudulent trover. 1 Ed. 129. 3

Lev. 169. 1 K. 905. 913.

Alfo it seems that if an infant, being above the age of discretion, be guilty of any fraud in affirming himself to be of full age, if by combination with his guardian,

&c. be make any contract or agreement with an intent afterwards to elude it, by reason of his privilege of infancy, that a court of equity will decree it good against him to accord the circumstances of the fraud; but in what cases in particular a court of equity will thus exploit itself is not easy to determine. Vidi 1 Vern. 132. 2

Vern. 220. 5.

Alfo notwithstanding the diffibility of an infant to contract, by the 7 Ann. cap. 19, it is enacted, "That it shall and may be lawful for any person under the age of twenty years, by the direction of the High court of Chancery, or the court of Exchequer, signified by an order made upon being by a court of record, concerned, on the petition of the person or persons for whom such infant or infants shall be seised or possessed in trust, or of the mortgagee or mortgagees, or guardian or guardians of such infant or infants, or person or persons intituled to the monies secured by or upon any lands, tenements or hereditaments, whereof any infant or infants are or shall be seised or possessed by way of mortgage, or of the person or persons intituled to the redemption thereof, to convey and assure any such lands, tenements or hereditaments

in such manner as the said court of Chancery, or the court of Exchequer, shall by such order so to be obtained direct, to make such conveyance or conveyances,

affu-

ance or assurances of such as afoledged, in like manner as trustees or mortgagees of full age are compellable to convey or assign their trust estates or mortgages."

How an infant is to bind himself by a contract to fhere in the plantations. 4 Gen. 1. c. 11. fer. 5. See Copsholds.

For more learning on this subjeA, see 3 Bac. Abr. tit.

Infancy and Age, and 9 Vin. Abr. tit. Enfant.

Infants, when of age. An infant has been adjudged of age the day he was born, so for the law no

mrst not to

not to

not to

not to

not to

not to

not to

not to

"The

all such acts and actions

acts and

actions

acts and

actions

acts and

actions

acts and

actions

acts and

actions
In courts of piepowder the plaintiff shall swear that the cause of action accrued within the time and jurisdiction of the suit, 17 Ed. 4. c. 2. 1 Ric. 3. c. 6.

The consideration of affirmans must be laid within the jurisdiction of an inferior court, but the promise need not, 1 Ld. Raym. 411. In fact, judgment on a judgment of an inferior court, removed by certiorari, the plaintiff must pray execution within the limits, otherwise on a writ of error. 1 Ld. Raym. 216.

Judgment by process of an inferior court, is not avoided by objection that the cause of action arose out of the jurisdiction. 1 Ld. Raym. 330.

No prohibition to an inferior court for proceeding in a cause arising out of their jurisdiction, till that matter has been pleaded, 1 Ld. Raym. 345.

An inferior court refuses to give costs of a nonsuit; the ground is by writ De execution judicii, and not by mandamus, 1 Ld. Raym. 348.

Misdemeanors in inferior courts are punishable in B. R. Ed. Raym. 556.

Attachment against a reward for sitting judge in his own court, or for misdemeanors himself between parties. 1 Ld. Raym. 760.

In cases of negligence keeping a horse within the jurisdiction, by which he was abused, the abuse need not be flown to have been within the jurisdiction. 1 Ld. Raym. 796, 1040.

Ought to give judgment expends upon the point in inferior courts, 1 Ld. Raym. 822.

Several forts of inferior jurisdiction, causation of plea, and exempt judicium. 1 Ld. Raym. 836, 837.

The judgment of an inferior court must be entered, per eadem curiam. 1 Ld. Raym. 855.

A baldes corpus does not remove the cause, as a resdari or tertiaire do, and the plaintiff may vary in his declaration, but then he discharges the bill. 1 Ld. Raym. 1102.

Judgment of an inferior court reversed for want of the averment, that the cause was within the jurisdiction. 1 Ld. Raym. 1340.

A court held before the under-written securandum conflatulum, &c. without setting forth the cause, and well. 1 Ld. Raym. 1543.

The value received in a promissory note need not be averred within the jurisdiction, nor the monies due in a stated account. 1 Ld. Raym. 1555.

Inferior courts cannot grant a new trial. 1 Stron. 115, 311.

Have been allowed jurisdiction in cases similar to those where they have jurisdiction. 1 Stron. 296.

May set aside proceedings for irregularity or perjury. 1 Stron. 312.

May set aside a verdict for irregularity. 1 Stron. 499.

The King's Bench cannot reverse a fine by an inferior court. 1 Stron. 786.

The King's Bench cannot set a fine on a conviction by judges of the peace. 1 Stron. 794.

The items in a stated account need not be laid infra jurisdicionem. 1 Stron. 827.

It is not a good judgment, for an inferior court to award a tabls de circumstantes. 1 Stron. 821.

The King's Bench will not punish by attachment a contempt of an inferior court. 1 Stron. 567.

Judgment reversed, because the mayor appeared to be interested. 2 Stron. 639.

Infinitas. (Infinitis.) Hatchens; who may not be verticles by the laws of this kingdom, because they believe neither the Old or New Testament to be the word of God, on one of which, oaths must be taken. 1 Inst. 6. 2 How. P. C. 434. See Ullmires.

Infinitas of actions. The lord of the soil may have a specimination against him who shall dig for the King's highway. But one subject cannot have his action against another for common insuffices; for if he might, then every man would have it, and to the actions would be infinite, &c. 2 Co. Litt. 562. 9 Rep. 113.

Infinitas, (Infinitas.) In monasteries, there was an apartment allotted for infirm or sick persons; and he who had the care or custody of this infinitas, was called Infinitarius. See Matt. Por. fab anns 1522. Thom. Stick. fab anns 1285. W. Thame. fab anns 1138, &c.

In forma process. When any man that has a just cause of suit either in the Chancery, or any other the inferior courts of record, will come both before the Lord Keeper, Master of the Rolls, either of the Chief Justices, or Chief Baron, and make oath, that he is not worth five pounds, his debts paid; either of the said judges will, in his own proper court, admit him to file in forma process, and he shall have counsel, clerk or attorney assigned him to defend him without paying any fees. Cowell, edit. 1727. See Pauker.

Information for the King, (Information pro Rege,) in the name that for a common person we call a declaration, and is not always done directly by the King or his attorney, but sometimes by another, qui sequitur sum pro Deo. The information was, upon the production of an action or bill or suit, the proceeding or suit, wherein a penalty is given to the party that will sue for the same, and may be either by action of debt or information. Cowell, edit. 1727.

An information may be defined, an accusation or complaint exhibited against a person for some criminal offence or injuries committed against the King or against a private person, which from its enormity or dangerous tendency, the publick good requires should be restrained and punished, and differs principally from an indictment in this, that an indictment is an accusation found by the oath of twelve men, whereas an information is only the negation of the officer who exhibits it. 3 Bosc. Abr. 164.

This difference between informations and indictments has made some men conceive, that this kind of proceeding was utterly unlawful, as not being only contrary to the original frame and nature of our laws, but also contrary to Magna Charta, and several other statutes, which require that no man may be put to inquire, &c. but upon indictment or prefentment. 3 Bosc. Abr. 165. See Sir Francis Waddington's argument, 5 Med. 536, and 1 Show. 106, &c.

But tho', as my Lord Hole observes, in all criminal cases the mod right and safe way, and most consonant to the statute of Magna Charta, &c. is by prefentment or indictment of two sworn men, yet he admits that for crimes inferior to capital ones the proceedings may be by information; and this, from the long and frequent practice, is now certainly establisht as part of the law of the land; and therefore at this day the following kind of information may be exhibited, wherever the nature of the offence deserves such a proceeding. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. cap. 8.

I. For an offence principally and more immediately against the King, an information may be exhibited in the name of the attorney general, and such information may be filed, without any application or search of the court, and the party shall be obliged to answer the same; also the statute 4 &c 5 W. 3. which requires a recognizance for payment of costs from persons exhibiting and prosecuting informations, does not extend to informations filed by the King's Attorney general, and it is said that this statute is not applicable to such informations in question but will oblige the party to demur or plead thereon. 2 How. P. C. 360. And see Earl. 465-6. that no such information can be brought on a penal statute. 1 Salt. 372.

2dly. On application, and leave of the court, grounded on motion and affidavit of some officier, which if true, doth from its evil tendency merit such prosecution, the court allows of the filing of an information in the name of the Master of the Crown-office; and of such kind of informations there are numberless precedents in the Crown-office. 2 How. P. C. 361. 2 Hal. Hift. P. C. 161.

3dly. Whereby many penal informations the prosecution upon them is by the acts themselves limited to be by bill, plaint. information or indictment, there, without doubt, the prosecution may be by information as well as by any other of these methods; also of common right such information, or an action in the nature thereof, may be brought.
brought for offences against statutes, whether they be mentioned by such statutes or not, unless other methods of proceeding be particularly appointed, by which all others are impliedly excluded. But for this see Actions qui tant, or Actions on penal statutes.

44th. Informations or other Knavery may be considered as libels, with leave of the court, for ufurping privileges, franchises, &c. which in some respects is a civil suit, as it is used as a proper means to try a right, tho' it punishes the misdemeanor, such as the usurpation, &c.

1. In what cases an information will lie.

2. Of filing an information; it shall be lawful to proceed therein, and the praemunire made relative thereto by statute.

1. In what cases an information will lie.

Here we shall lay down what hath been collected by serjeant Haselton, and is, as he says, every day's practice, agreeable to nother precedents, viz. either in the name of the King's Attorney general, or of the Master of the Crown-office, to exhibit informations for batteries, cheatings, defrauding a young man for woman from their consent, in order to marry them against their consent, or for any other wicked purpose, spiritizing a child to the plantations, refining persons from legal arrears, perjuries, and subornations thereof, forgeries, conspiracies, (whether to accuse an innocent person, or to impose upon a certain fact of lawful traders, &c.) or any other vitiations to be unlawfully caused, by cauing persons bribed for that purpose to be sworn on a tals, and other such like crimes, done principally to a private person, as well as for offences done principally to the King; as for libels, fictitious words, riots, false news, and such disquieting suades, (as in not repairing highways, or embrocating them, or flooding a common river, &c.) contempts, as in departing from the parliament without the King's licence, disobeying his writs, uttering money without his authority, escaping from legal imprisonment on a prosecution for a contempt, neglecting to keep watch and ward, abusing the King's commission to the oppression of the subject, making a return to a monies of matters known to be false, and in general any other offences against the public good, or against the first and obvious principles of justice and common honesty.

Bac. Abr. 166. 2 Hawk. P. C. 265. and several authorities cited.

An information was exhibited against D. an attorney of C. for speaking scandalous and reproachful words of Sir John Kay, knight of the shire for the county of York, and a justice of peace, &c. concerning his said office of justice of the peace, and the executing thereof; and upon the committer to this information it was argued, that it would not lie for scandalous words spoken only of a particular person, because he might have an action on the cafe to recompense him in damages; tho' it was admitted, that such a proceeding might be warranted for libels, or for differing defamatory letters, because by such means the public peace might be disturbed, and discord sowed amongst neighbours, which might at last be a public injury, but that there was no such mischief in the present cafe. On the other side it was infuted, that this information was founded on sufficient matter, because this prosecution is not only as it respects the person of Sir John Kay, but it concerns the public magistrates, and one who is subordinate to the government, and therefore such defamatory words are a reproach to the supreme government, by whom magistrates are intrusted, and from whom they derive their authority, and it will not be denied but that words reflecting on the public government are a reproach to the public magistrates, and on this reason the court held that an information would lie, and thereupon gave judgment against the defendant, and fined him an hundred marks. Carli. 14, 15. The King v. Darby.

An information was exhibited by the Attorney general for conspiring to destroy the King's revenue of the excise, and whereas the King by indenture, &c. granted, &c. licensed the excise of Leicet. A. & Ilke., and Woodm., to A. & B. and renders 118l. 5s. per annum, money, &c. that the defendants and others ign't, &c. forfals. & sedatives falsificatorum & conspiratorum et ad terrorm & repandam forsaltas excise præcl. &c. and many other informations touching the defraying the excelnent, depopulation, depredating the King's revenue of excise, pulling down the excise-house, raising a tumult amongst the poor people, &c. But the jury that were to try the issue were unwilling to find this matter, doe' expreffly proved, fearing it might be considered no less than treachery, and they only find that such and such of the defendants illegit. & sedatives & afflammator. & illegal, forfals. & sedatives falsificatorum & conspiratorum ad terrorm & repandam forsaltas Dom' Regis excise præcl. &c. treas præcl. attorn. gen' Dom' Regis, &c. & quod simum altum mater. in informatione contentum find them Not guilty, j. f. Not guilty of the whole. It was moved in open judgment, that there is no offence at all found; for to conspire to depopulate the King's farmers is no offence, for it may be done by lawful means; and that they are laid to be the King's farmers is but a description of their persons, not because they were at the King's service, but the conspiracy struck, and the afflammator is not the charge, for then it ought to have been laid as forfals. & rufufs, but only leading to the conspiracy. It was answered by the King's counsel, that the illegit. afflammator is an offence against the law, as it is properly and fully laid could be; and as the forfals. is where the intent to commit a riot, and forfals. for a rout; but an assembly may be illegal and punishable, and yet the intention of that assembling may be good, as 21 Hen. 7. Br. tit. riot. 1. per Fenius, as if men meet to prevent the breach of the peace between A. and B. A. going to market, and B. threatening to beat them; and such an assembly no properer epithet could be given than illegit., but besides, all manner of combinations and confederacies are unlawful without respect to their end, 27 El. 4. Mor. Lord Gray's coffee, and Cre. 7. the cafe of the puritans petitioning; but this conspiracy being to depopulate another man, is unlawful in its end; and to answer the objection that hath been made, it might be said, that although the depopulating of another man may be by lawful means, and the consequence of a lawful act, yet that is because it is not in the intention of the party, but it is damn. a sse. &c. for a number of men to design and to conspire the depopulation of another man, it may be lawful, for there the damage to the third party is their own aim and end, and it is as well against the law of charity and common society; and this might be said if there were nothing of the King's farmers in the cafe; but here the indention to the whole charge in the information is, that the defendants, &c. Machinantes de fraudare & deprecare dictam Dom' Regis ren. de reddito suo præcl. & præcl. falsificat. & depraer. depre. & depraer. did fo and so; now this inducement in the whole is applicable to every branch of the charge, and the jury having found those charges as they are laid, forfals. &c. forma præcl. and they have found, that it was done by the defendants, machinantes, &c. which makes it in their intention to frustrate at the King's revenue, as well as in consequence. It was also urged for the defendants, that for a bare conspiracy, without any act done in prosecution of it, no information would be brought; but curia om. for though there must be some fact to be as evidence of the conspiracy, as 9 Ca. Peuler's cafe, yet it is the conspiracy that is the crime, and that being found, it is enough. It was also urged by the King's counsel, that the mods. & forma præcl. in the verdict extends to all the charges of the act that were done in prosecution of this conspiracy, and the accessory, and the present mater. &c. extends to the distinct charges of facts that have no relation to this conspiracy: But Hindes. forfals. said, the mods & forma præcl. could by no means make the verdict comprehend other matters of fact than were expressly found. It was moved by the King's counsel, that they might inform the court of the 5. robbed farmers necessity of this conspiracy, and how it was proved to be upon evidence to the jury that tried it, to aggravate the offence, and without the direction of the court to increase the fine; and the case of Machin and Tolly was cited, where a battery being found by nisi prius against them, the court informed themselves of the heinousness of it by affidavit, and thereupon vacated a fine that was set in a judge's chamber, and set a fine higher than the principals. But in this case the court did not act in a way to let us in the matter of, which the jury has acquitted them, by suffering affidavits to be made; but in Machin's case the jury found the defendants guilty of the whole; and what needs aggravation of this, which appears so foul as it is found? The court after unqualified evidence given for the King, though as to the offence found there was some variety of opinion: Wintham distinguished between a confederacy and a conspiracy, that for a conspiracy there ought to be some facts done in execution of it; so an indictment cannot be maintained of a man as a common thief, or chemacher, or forefather, without laying some facts of those offences; and in this he grounded himself upon 29. S. 45. but he held, that here the defendants are found guilty of a confederacy, which is not a word of art, but may be expressed in other terms, and such an offence will this matter stand amount unto; he held the information as to that was not good enough; he wanted vi et armis; as to all the subsequent facts, he held the defendants acquitted; and as to the intention of defrauding the King of the rent, &c. he held the acquittal did extend to it, because they were acquitted of the facts to which that was to be applied; but as to the confederacy the verdict has found enough, and though it were to a private end it was unlawful; but here it is more, and that which will aggravate it highly; for the customers of the King are publick persons, as the King's revenue is of a publick concern; and it is felt forth in the information that there were farmers of a very great value; it is one thing to beat a private person, and another to beat a publick officer, or the King's servant; if a man should chicke the thief that has the character of a publick officer, it would be a high offence. Twifden held, that vi et armis was not necessary, and that they were found guilty of an unlawful assembly, and in that my L. D. Ch. Jull. concurred; as also that the intention of depraving and depriving the King of his fair rent is implicitly found within the majus & forma prout, &c. for so shall the machinazzi, &c. be applied. Twifden and Keeling concurred, that for a conspiracy alone, without any prosecution, information lay; and they all agreed, that the King's revenue being concerned did highly aggravate the offence; 2 H. 7. 306. were cited, that for maintenance of that a monk should be able to contract, and probi omnium de Dale should be a corporation. Lord Chief Justice cited Old Margo Charta where there is a statute against such as should undervalue land in the King's hands. So judgment was given for the King; but the settling of the fine was refused, because they would consider as well qualitatem delinquens as quantitatem delicti. In this case were cited 3 Ed. 3. 19. 43. S. pl. 38. afterwards, the same term, Starling was fined 300 marks, and the rest of the brewers 100 marks apiece, but with some apology by the court for the smallness of the fine. 1 Lev. 125. 1 Sol. 17. 1 Keb. 650. Hil. 15. 18. Car. 2. in B. R. Rex v. Starling, and other brewers in London.

4

A coroner having sworn the jury to inquire of the death of one tupped a fide de, and finding the evidence very strong took off some of the impeif; and tho' it was not an unlawful assembly and imployed for wicked and acquired, and the who discovered to be a clear.

An information was granted against one for counterfeiting or pretending himself to be bewitched by a peer wherein he was accused and indicted, and acquitted, and the who discovered to be a clear.

An information was filed against a grocer for suffering one taken upon an oxom, espied, to go at large. 12 Mad. 434. Mlb. 13 W. 3. 2 Ann.

An information was filed against certain perfons for that they, as enemies, &c. to the government; hired a boat during a war with France, in order to go thither, intending to aid and affift the King's enemies, though they were not the King's enemies, only interested. Stin. 527. Pajeb. 8 W. 3. 3 B. R. The King v. Cooper and al.

Upon a motion to file an information against a justice of peace for sending the protector to the house of correction without sufficient cause; upon a rule to file as he thought that no other man, his matter complained, to the defendant that his bail warrant was false and gave his (the master's) horses too much corn; but the court holding this not a sufficient cause for sending a man to the house of correction, leave was given to file an information. 8 Mad. 45. Pajeb. 7 Geo. The King v. Okey.

An information was filed against one for killing a negro man's dog, setting forth, that Lord S. was riding in the villa of D. in cam. Middlefie. and that his greyhound being then and there following him, the defendant drew his sword, and then and there killed the dog. 12 Mad. 377. Pajeb. 13 W. 3. The King v. Golambwe.

An information for an assault and battery of one making use of locks in the river Thames to the obstruction of navigation. 12 Mad. 615. Hil. 13 W. 3. The King v. Clark.

An information for a scandalous narrative licensed by the defendant, speaker of the house of commons, being Dan- gerfield's narrative, reflecting on a nobleman, (the E. of Peterborough;) the defendant pleaded, that he was set by in order of the house of commons, and desired judgment, if this court will take consufnce of it. The Attorney general demurred, and afterward the defendant pleaded the common plea, quad non volter contender cum Domino Rge, and was fined 1000. Consal. 18. Pajeb. 2 Jar. 7. B. R. The King v. Williams.

Leaves was given to file an information against the defendant, that he had agreed, for a justice of peace, concerning his office and the execution of it; for it glances on the government, and defendant was fined 1000. Carib. 14. K. v. Darby.

In an information for spiriting away a child, and carrying him to Jamaica; Pemberton Ch. Jul. deliver'd the law to be against him, it not being lawful to take a child under age, tho' he pretend to have no friends, &c. and carry him away; for that the parish might have bound him out, and he may have a master; and if not, he ought to be bound by a justice of peace, and for a reasonable time. Stin. 47. Pajeb. 34 Car. 2. The King v. Williams.

Leaves was given to file an information against the defendant, by whom the plaintiff's wife was inveiglied away, and who procured merchants and tradesmen to sell goods to her, in order to saddred the husband with the debt, he agreeing with the sellers to deliver the goods back again. 12 Mad. 544. Pajeb. 13 W. 3. Poole v. Thorn- card.

Leaves was moved for to file an information against the defendant for these words spoke of a justice of peace, viz. He is an old rogue for sending his warrant for me. Hlt Ch. J. said, that he defered to be bound to his good behaviour, tho' it be not proper for that justice to do it, but rather to get one of his brothers to do it for him; and leave was denied; the court directing them to go by way of indictment if they would. 12 Mad. 514. Pajeb. 13 W. 3. The King v. Lane.

On motion for an information, it appeared, that the defendant convicted to get a young lady out of the court, and he got the money, by which means, he got the lady, and that a coach, &c. was prepared, into which the voluntarily went, and was carried into Stin, and there married. Stin. 1167. Hil. 12 Geo. 2. Rex v. Lord Officer and al.

The court was moved for to file an information against a chapman, for refusing to collect money on a bill for fire, according to the act 4 Ann. cap. 14, and the cause of informations granted for not burying in woolen was cited.
2. Of filing an information; how it is to be laid; the proceedings thereon, and the proviso made relative thereto by statute.

It seems to be the established practice at this day, not to admit of the filing of an information (except those exhibited in the name of his Majesty's Attorney general, without first making a rule on the persons complained of to file cause to the contrary; which rule is never granted but upon motion made in open court, and grounded upon affidavit of some felon, worshiper, which, if true, doth either for its enormity or dangerous tendency, or other such like circumstances, seem proper for the most publick prosecution; and if the perfon, on whom such rule is made, having been personally served with it, do not at the day given him for that purpose, give the court good satisfaction by affidavit, that there is no reasonable cause for the prosecution, the court generally grants the information; and sometimes, upon special circumstances, will grant it against those who cannot be personally served with such rule; as if they purposely absented themselves, &c. 2 Haw. P. C. 262.

But if he flew good cause to the contrary, as that he had been long absent from the place, or that, if he was there, he had been in the baggage of a man and horse, &c. 2 Haw. P. C. 262.2

Similarly, the factum certainty that is required in an indictment, is in like manner required in an information; but it has been held not to be necessary to repeat the words dum est hic intelligi & informati in the beginning of every distinct clause, if the want of them may be sup- posed by a natural and easy connotation. See 1 Hawk. 170; 3 Sumn. 78; 4 Rav. 322.

In an information against Roberts the ferryman over the river Mercy, which parts Angliae from Cornubia in Wales, it was laid generally, e.i. That this was an ancient ferry time out of mind, and that i.d. to procure a number of men and horses, &c. 20 cattle, 2 d. for 20 theft, &c. That Roberts being the common ferryman, between the 7th September anno 2. and the day of exhibiting this information, injuriae, op- pressione, &c. &c. &c. against divers persons to the Attorney general, proved thereby, Sir John Daniell juratus fammum ex silentiis aut tiquam ratam & praeitis pro pugilia & transformatione fas & aversionem foramin, violadict., pro pugilia & transformatione causas vertit per eos qui dixit 2 d. & pro quilibet 22 catalis 2 f. & se secunda ratam predicti per majest. vol minoris nuncios aversionem, &c. The defendant was found guilty, and it was moved in right of judgment, that the information was too general, because it did not allege that any particular person, or any certain number of cattle, were ferried over within the time laid in the information; neither did it mention any particular person from whom the extorted rates were taken, which ought to do, that the single offence might certainly appear upon the courts and records. The whole court was of that opinion; and per Holt Chief Justice, in every such information a single offence ought to be laid and ascertained, because every extort from every particular person is a separate and distinct offence; and therefore they ought not to be accumulated under a general charge, as it is done in this case, because each offence requires a separate and distinct punishment, according to the quantity of the offence; and it is not possible for the court to proportion the fine or other punishment to it, unless it is distinctly and certainly laid. 3 Car. 226. The King v. Roberts.

As to the proviso made herein by statute, by the 4 & 5 H. & M. cap. 18. section, That divers malicious and contentious persons had, more of late than times past, procured to be exhibited and prosecuted informations in their Majesties courts of King's Bench at Westminster, against persons in all the counties of England, for trep- idities, batteries, and other misdemeanors, and that the parties so informed against had appeared to such informations, and pleaded to issue, the informers had very seldom proceeded any farther, whereby the persons so informed against had been put to great charges in their defence; and also at the trials of such informations verdicts had been given for them, or a null peremptory entered against them, they had no remedy for obtaining costs, against such informers; it is enacted, "That after the first day of Easter term in the year 1623, the clerk of the Crown in the said court of King's Bench for the time being shall not, without express order to be given by the said court in open court, exhibit, receive, or file any information for any of the causes aforesaid, or issue out any process thereupon, before he shall have taken or shall have delivered to him a recognizance from the person or persons prosecuting such information to be exhibited, with the place of his, her, or their abode, title or profession, for being entered as the information or informations or is or are exhibited, in the penalty of twenty pounds, that he, she, or they, shall be unable to prosecute such information or informations, and abide by and observe such orders as the said court shall direct; which recognizance the said clerk of the Crown, and also every justice of the peace, sheriff, or county framerchish, or town corporate, (where the cause of any such information shall arise,) are by the said statute impowered to take; after the taking thereof by the said clerk of the Crown, or the receipt thereof from any justice of the peace, the said clerk of the Crown shall make an entry thereof upon record, and shall file a me- morandum thereof in some publick place in his office, that all persons may refer thereunto without fee: And in case any person or persons, against whom any information or informations for the causes aforesaid, or any of them, shall be exhibited, shall appear thereunto, and plead to issue, and that the prosecutor or procurator of such information or informations shall not at his and their own proper costs and charges within one whole year next after issue joined therein procure the same to be tried, or if upon such trial a verdict paxi for the defendant or defendants, or in case the same informer or informations shall be proved to be false, the said court, and the said fair cafs the said court of King's Bench is authorized to award to the said defendant or defendants his, her, or their costs, unless the judge, before whom such information shall be tried, shall at the trial of such information in open court certify upon record, that there was reasonable cause for exhibiting such information; and in case the
the fact of the informant or informers shall not, within three months after the fact costs taxed, and demand made thereof, pay to the said defendant or defendants the said costs, then the said defendant and defendants shall have the benefit of the said recognizance to compel them thereunto:"

"Provided, That nothing herein shall extend or be construed to extend to any other information than such as shall be exhibited in the name of their Majesties coroner, or attorney in the court of King's Bench for the time being, commonly called the Mallet of the Crown-office."

In the construction hereof it hath been held, that if procès be filed on such information before such recognizance is given as the statute directs, the same may be for slide and discharged on motion. 2 H. 3. P. C. 263.

2. That this statute extends to all informations, except those exhibited in the name of his Majesty's Attorney general, so that an information in nature of a quo warranto, tho' a proper remedy to try a right, in respect of which it may not in first instance come within the words "troffers, &c." yet being also intended to punish a mischief, and also as the proceedings therein may be as vexatious as in any other, the same is within the purview of the statute, which being a remedial law, shall receive as large a construction as the words will bear. Gough, 503. The King v. The town of Hertford. 1 Suit. 336. 3 H. 3. P. C. adjudged.

3. That no costs can be had on this statute on an acquittal at a trial at bar, not only because the clause that gives costs, unless the judge certify a reasonable cause, seems only to have a view to trials at nisi prius, but also because a cause, which is of such consequence as to be thought proper for a trial at bar, cannot well be thought within the purview of the statute, which was chiefly designed against trifling and vexatious prosecutions. 2 Hawk. P. C. 263.

4. That if there be several defendants, and some of them acquitted, and others convicted, none of them can have costs. 1 H. 3. P. C. 131.

5. That wherever a defendant's case is such as authorizes the court to award him his costs, he has a right to them ex debito justitiae; for it seems a general rule, that where judges are imposed by statute to do a matter of justice, they ought to do it of course. 2 Chanc. Cases 201. 2 Hawk. P. C. 263.

By the 9 Ann. cap. 20, it is enacted, "That in case any person or persons shall usurp, intrude into, or unlawfully hold and execute the office or franchise of mayor, bailiff, portreeve or other office within a city, town corporation, borough or place in England or Wales, it shall and may be lawful for the proper officer of the court of Queen's Bench, the court of felions of counties palatine, or the court of grand felions in Wales, with the leave of the said courts respectively, to exhibit one or more informations or informations in nature of a quo warranto, at the relation of any person or persons defining to be or to profligate the same, and who shall be mentioned in such information or informations to be the relator or relators against such person or persons for usurping, intruding into, or unlawfully holding and executing any of the said offices or franchises, and to proceed therein in such manner as is usual in cases of informations in the nature of a quo warranto; and if it shall appear to the said respective courts, that the several rights of the respective persons to the said offices or franchises may properly be determined on one information, it shall and may be lawful for the said respective courts, to give leave to exhibit one such information against several persons, in order to try the said rights to such offices or franchises, and such person or persons, against which such information or informations in nature of a quo warranto shall be filed or profligated, shall appear and plead, as of the same term or session in which the said information or informations shall be filed, unless the court where such informations shall be exhibited, do plead; and such person or persons, who shall sue or prosecute such information or informations in the nature of a quo warranto, shall proceed thereon with the most convenient speed that may be." It is therefore held, that in case any person or persons, against whom any informations or informations in the nature of a quo warranto shall in any of the said cases be exhibited in any of the said courts, shall be found or adjudged guilty of any usurpation or intrusion into, or unlawfully holding and executing of the said offices or franchises, it shall and may be lawful to and for the said courts respectively, as well to give judgment of ouster against such person or persons and from any of the said offices or franchises, as to fine such person or persons respectively for his or their usurping, &c., and to give judgment that the relator or relators in such cases shall recover his or their costs of such prosecution, and if judgment shall be given for the defendant or defendants in such information, he or they, for whom such judgment shall be given, shall recover his or their costs therein expended, against such relator or relators; such costs to be levied by capias ad satisfac- tionem, fori facias or elegiac.

"And it is further enacted, That the statute for the amendment of the law, and all the statutes of Tuscaloosa, shall be extended to informations in nature of a quo warranto, and proceedings thereon, for any of the matters in the said act mentioned."

The defendant was moved against a clerkman for perjury and his admission to a living upon an affidavit that the presentation was sacramental. But the court refused to grant it, till he had been convicted of the felony. Sm. Min. 4 Geo. 1. Rex v. Lewis.

Defendant came up on a baldes corpus from the Savoy, to which it was returned, that for several years past all the Africans company had been a body corporate, and retained the defendant in their service, and sent him to the Savoy to be provided with necessaries, till he should embark for Africa, &c. The defendant pleaded nulla est cogitation. The court discharged the defendant for the insufficiency of the relator, and ordered an information against the colonel who had the men, and the keepers of the Savoy. Sm. 404. Mich. 7 Geo. 1. Rex v. Drew.

On a motion for information for a libel, in advertising that one Mazick an apothecary had perfonated Dr. Cresw a physician, and wrote and took his fee (which the apothecary did not pretend to deny), the Chief Justice declared, that though truth be no justification for a libel, as it is for defamatory words, yet it will be sufficient cause to prevent the interference of the court in this extraordinary manner, and induce them to leave it to the ordinary course of justice before a grand jury. Whereupon the information was discharged. Sm. 498. Hil. 8 Geo. 1. Rex v. Bickerston. See 14 V. Ad. Or. Information, &c. for informations in libel, &c.

Information non sinit, or more properly, non sinit informator, is a formal answer made of course by an attorney who is commanded by the court to say what he thinketh good for the benefit of his client, who being not instructed to say any thing material, faith, He is not informed; by which he is deemed to leave his client unden- fended, and to judgment palpeth for the adversary party. Cowell.

Informator, (Informator.) Is any one who informs or procures in any of the King's cases of Common law, or Exchequer, King's Bench, Common Pleas, Assizes or Sessions, that he offend against any law, or penal statute: Those in some cases are called promoters; the Civilians term them declarers. Cowell.

Infodictiatis, Is one part of the digests of the Civil law, an exposition of it under the title of Rerum et Principis, by Robert Stephom, in a chronicle of the monastary of Peterborough, &c. he lived in the reign of Hen. 3, who tells us, that Beddid, an abbot of that monastary, who died in the year 1194, describes several law books, among the rest, the Institution & Jusdictiatis, with the Authentic, the Institutionem, the ok Diget, &c. Cowell, edd. 1727.
70. The Court of Chancery, and its Jurisdiction.}

In the Court of Chancery, a writ of certiorari may be had. This writ is a writ of command to the sheriff of the county to return the deponent, whom the plaintiff desires to be examined, to the court. The deponent is required to give a full and true account of the facts and circumstances relating to the case. The court may then hear the case, or may order a further examination. The deponent is liable to answer to the court for any false or fraudulent statements made in the writ or in his answers.

In the Court of Chancery, the jurisdiction extends to all cases in equity, including cases of trust, chancery, and admiralty. The court has the power to grant injunctions, to compel performance of contracts, and to make orders for the protection of the parties. The court also has the power to decide questions of law and equity, and to interpret statutes and contracts.

In the Court of Chancery, the procedure is different from that in the Court of Common Pleas. The court has the power to try cases in equity, and to grant relief to the parties. The court also has the power to grant injunctions, to compel performance of contracts, and to make orders for the protection of the parties.

In the Court of Chancery, the jurisdiction extends to all cases in equity, including cases of trust, chancery, and admiralty. The court has the power to grant injunctions, to compel performance of contracts, and to make orders for the protection of the parties. The court also has the power to decide questions of law and equity, and to interpret statutes and contracts.

In the Court of Chancery, the procedure is different from that in the Court of Common Pleas. The court has the power to try cases in equity, and to grant relief to the parties. The court also has the power to grant injunctions, to compel performance of contracts, and to make orders for the protection of the parties.
null but inhabitants of ancient meffages could be initited to it; but here his otherwise appointed by the grant, and every inhabitant that has a right by deed, as in the original grant. Mich.
to Geo. 4. Ald. 65. Wright v. Hobart.

Inheritance, (Hereditas,) is a perpetuity in lands or tenements to a man and his heirs; for Littleton, b. 1,
cap. 1. hath these words: This word inheritance is not only understood where a man hath in his fee-dominion and tenements by descent, but also every fec-fimple or fee-tail that a man hath by his purchase, may be faid to be by inheritance, for that his heirs may inherit him. Several inheritance is that which two or more hold severally; as if two men have land given them, to them, and the heirs of their two bodies; these have joint eredit in their lives, but their heirs have several inheritance. Kitchen, fol. 155. See Deferent, Hindwards. One attending the King in Hersford and Cambridge ftries. Damfeyk, Cowell, 1727.

Inhibition, (iubitibus,) is a writ to inhibit or forbid a judge from further proceedings in the cause depending before him. See P. N. B. fol. 39. where it putth prohibition and inhibition together. Inhibition is most commonly a writ flinging out of a higher court Christian to a lower and inferior, upon an appeal. Stat. 24 Hen. 8, cap. 12, and 15 Cor. 2, cap. 9, and prohibition out of the higher court to the inferior, or to an inferior temporal court. Cowell.

An inhibition is either bonum or jurius; iis ne vitiation non sit in tribunacum iuris, vel aliquam jurisconsultum ecclesiasticum contentiun vel voluntatem iuris. Thus, when an archbishop vifs, he inhibits the bishop, when a bishop vifs, he inhibits the archdeacon; and the reason is to prevent scandal and detraction; and this continues till the relaxation of the inhibition, which is not till the bill parfis is vifited, and then it is entered mo/a parochia rcfiat vi-andas, for he may hear of no faults till he come to the very last falf. 3 Sal. 201. cites P. 13. Lanne v.
Dunfey, 1720.

Now after such an inhibition upon a metropolitical vification, if a lape happens, the bishop cannot inhibit, because his power is suspended, and therefore the archbishop is to inhibit; for it is not only penal in the bishop so to do, but the inhibition itself is void, because it is an act of jurisdiction from which he was suspended. 3
Sall. 201. p. 2.

But it may be a question, in the cafe of collation;
whether, if a lape happen, the bishop may collate? because it is a kind of title; but the better opinion is, he cannot; because it is not by way of interest, but by way of dower, and in law, the negligence of the patron; this appears, because the patron may premise at any time after a lape, and before collation. 3
Sal. 202. 5. 3.

Inhib. This word was neither interpreted nor mentioned in any Glossary before the publication of Kenne's Parochial Antiquities. It properly signifies any corner or part-out of a common field ploughed up and fowed (commonly with oats or tares,) and sometimes fenced off with a dry foot hedge, within that year wherein the refit of the fame field lies fellow and common. It is now called in the North an inneh, and in Staffordshire a Mitchell or Hinker. It is three rows made from the Saxon incho, a field or meadow, or rather inne, within, and hake, a corner or nock. The making of such inhoks, or separate inclosures by any one lord or tenant, was a prejudice to all who had a right of it. — Prater Walterus Primer Berecfriffrf fieri seifi quidam inheo in camp. viroavelli utriusque, &c. Prater, in loc. citro fubtiffimo priuatis, fub fubtili infcribatur officio diecet fi de commune universis vicris vofi feifi quidam inhebo in campo de Dunlafhe for defiijjij & voluntarie pririi & covenantes de Cold Norton. — Unde gurnudum funtum & illorum uni-am victimum treffen in hehbo in campo de Dunlafhe, p. 258. This trespass or encroachment was expressly prohibited in some charters. — Hec rationum quod Dominus haym nec gallurae feiparam faciat ab hominibus infra

Campus warbati. Ibid. pag. 456. And therefore no such trespass is now made without the just consent of the commons, who in most places have their lands by lot in the benefit of it; except in some manors where the lord has a special privilege of doing. Cowell, edii.
1727. See Kennet's Glossifer.

Injunction, (iuvinius,) is a writ granted upon an interlocutory order in Chancery, sometimes to give perfusion of law, if one man brings an action against the other; and sometimes to the King's ordinary court, and sometimes to the court-christian, to stay proceedings in a cause upon requisition made, that the rigour of the law, if it take place, is against equity and conscience in that cafe. Cowell. Hift. Symbol. part. 2. tit. Proceedings in Chancery, 1727.

An injunction is a prohibitory writ, restraining a perfon from committing or doing a thing, which appears to be against equity and conscience. 3 Bac. Abr. 172.

1. The several kinds of injunctions, and when to be granted.

2. It has shall be a breach of an injunction, and how punished.

3. How an injunction shall be diffiffed.

1. The several kinds of injunctions, and when to be granted.

Injunctions issue out of the courts of equity in several instances; the most usual injunction is, to stay proceedings at law; if one man brings an action against the other, and a bill is brought to be relieved either against a penalty, or to stay proceedings at law, or some equiv-cular circumstances, of which the party cannot have the benefit at law; in such case the plaintiff in equity may move for an injunction either upon an attachment, or praying a further time to answer; or for it being suggested in the bill, that the suit is against conscience, if the defendant be in contempt for not answering, or pray time to answer, it is contrary to conscience to proceed to law in the mean time; and therefore an injunction is granted of course; but this injunction only stays execution touching the matters in question, and there is always a clause giving liberty to call for a plea, to proceed to trial, and for want of it, to obtain judgment; but execution is stayed till answer or further order.

Where tenant for life is committing wafhe in cutting down young timber, or breaking up or plowing ancient meadow or pith, or doing other waft, the ten-in in tail shall have an injunction upon a certificate of filing of the bill, and shewing an affidavit of wafhe committed, and this tail answered and further order; for wafte once cut down cannot be set up again. 3 Bac. Abr. 173.

So if a man be tenant for life without impeachment of wafte, with remainder to his first and every fon in tail, with all the benefit of that clause without impeachment of wafte, he may fell timber, and alter any rooms of the house at his pleasure; yet if he should pull down
the house, or any part of the buildings thereunto belonging, wast not committed, but not if he pull down the house to build; for tho' the clause without impeachment of wafte gives an absolute property in the timber, that he may do derwith what he will, yet he is but tenant for life of the lands and houses; and therefore if he pull them down in order to vex a fon that has disobraied him, he must make an ill confession, and cannot or be restrained in

Afo it every day's practice to grant an injunction for building on another man's ground, and such injunction shall go to stay that new building till answer and further order; and for the ease of the thing up ancient

So injunctions have frequently been granted to stay the printing and selling almanacks, bibles and other books, in behalf of patentees and owners of such books:
but
caufe that court cannot compel to make an adequate settlement or provision for his wife; but if the executoi be ordered by such a time to bring in the money, which he neglects to do, no injunction will be granted, becaufe the bill might have been brought only for delay, and the executor might then deliver a certificate of his own bill.

There are other injunctions which are never denied:
as in an ejectment where the party agrees to give judgment in ejectment to prevent trial, to give a release of errors, and to confess not to bring a writ of error, and to this it is sometimes added to deliver peremptorily as the court upon hearing shall direct; this forwards the defendant at law, and he could have no more if he were to proceed to trial. 3 Bac. Air. 175. Gilb. Hift. Chan. 175.

Where a mortgagee brought a bill to foreclose, and panding the fuit an advowson appertaining to the mortgaged manor became void, and the mortgagee being hinder-red from preferring, brought his quare impedit; and the court granted an injunction, though he had no bill filed. 2 Fern. 401.

Where a caufe stated by the death of the Lady Gar-roid, and the defendant was her executor, who being served with a copy of the bill of revivor, and my Lord Keeper's letter, woid not appear, being in privilegie;
and upon motion an injunction was granted, though the cause was not revived; and the cafe of Armington and Coffin was cited, where he pleaded determined the plaintiff had an injunction on motion. Air. Eq. 285.
Dale. Hamilton venus Macclefield.

Where the Lord Wharton had an injunction to quiet him in the possession of the mines in question, and upon hearing of the cause an issue was directed to try, whether the mines in question were within the plaintiff's or de-defendant's manor; the issue was tried at bar, and found for the plaintiff, then the plaintiff died, and a bill of revivor was brought, and before the time for answering was out, or the cause revived, the plaintiff moved for an injunction to stay the Lord Wharton's working the mines, having alledged that since the verdict against him he had trebled the number of workmen, and between that and Chandlimes would work out the mines; and an injunction was granted, though the cause was not re-

2. What shall be a breach of an injuction, and how puniflied.

If there be a fuit in equity concerning title to a clofe,
and thereupon an order is made, that the defendant fhall fiffer the plaintiff to enjoy the clofe till, &c., and not withstanding the date of the original peremptorily upon a bill in his cafe, this is no breach of the injuction; for the common was in quefion by the bill. Lane 96. Ben's cafe.

A. obtained judgment against B. but was hung up from taking out execution for a year, and a day by injunction out of Chan. and the quefion was, whether he could after take out execution without a fiere ficius; and it was held, that he could not: fef, becaufe the Common law court cannot take notice of injunctions. 2dly, Because it had been no breach of the injunction to have taken out a writ of execution and to have continued it by sicemna non muta brevi. 1 Salk. 322. Booth and Booth. 6 Mod. 288.
S. C. in B. R.

If a defendant having taken out execution in breach of an injunction of the court of Chancery, and some of the bailiffs who ferved the execution having,
as was alleged, for the better performing their duties on the other damages, and the officer took the father
the pater fore good security with two fureties; fo where a husband fues in the fpiritual court for a le-age given his wife, an injunction will be awarded, be-
Vol. II. N°. 94.
maze, that the defendant came into possession by course of law, and the bailiffs were legal officers, who, if they did anything amiss, the party ought to take his remedy at law against them, and the defendant ought not to be answerable for their misdeeds. Indeed, the defendant held it as his right, and he thought it an idle practice in the court to put a thief to his oath to accuse himself; for he that has stolen will not flick to overthrow it; and therefore in odium fojolatoris the oath of the party injured should be a good charge upon him that has done the wrong. 2 Vent. 197, Children v. Sarelly.

As concerning the breach of injunctions, it hath been of late practiced to commit the party on affidavit of the breach, and personal notice given to him, but never on notice to his clerk; whereas by the ancient rule where a man is guilty of the breach of an injunction, on an affidavit made thereon, the plaintiff's clerk in court brings out an attachment against him of course; he is arrested thereon, gives bail to the sheriff, enters his appearance with the register; so the court has hold of him; the plaintiff files interrogatories in the Examiner's office to examine him; the interrogatories are verbatim according to the affidavit; and if the party does neglect to attend and be examined, it is a motion of course to examine him in four days, or hand committed; if he confesses the contempt, he must submit, own his fault, beg pardon, and pay costs; but if he denies it by his examination, the plaintiff defends to prove it upon him; then the court may refer it to a smaller, to see whether the party is guilty of the contempt laid to his charge or not; here again he hath liberty to be heard, and may except to the reports, and bring it on for the judgment of the court; and if the court is of opinion that he is guilty of the contempt, he must hand committed, and pay the costs; but if the court is of a contrary opinion, (as it sometimes happens) he is acquitted with costs.

3. Hrn'on an injunction shall be differed.

The methods of disobliging injunctions are various; when the answer comes in, and the party hath cleared his contempt by paying the costs of the attachment, (if there is one,) he obtains an order to disoblige it, and serves it on the plaintiff's clerk in court; this order takes notice of the defendant's having fully answered the bill, and also his having paid the whole equity thereof, and been regularly served, the plaintiff must swear he caused at the day, or the defendant's counsel, where there is no probability of flowing cause, may move to make the order absolute, unless cause, fitting the court.

If the plaintiff may swear either on the merits, or upon filing exceptions; if upon the merits, the court may put what terms they please on him; as bringing in the money, or paying it to the parties, subject to the order of the court, or giving judgment with a release of errors, and consenting to bring no writ of error, or to give security to abide the order on hearing, or the like; and to this order is generally added a clause, that the plaintiff shall pay his cause to a hearing.

If the plaintiff swears cause upon exceptions filed, he must procure the report in four days of the insufficiency of the answer; and if the motion be made at order of the last seals after Hillary or Trinity term, the court sometimes puts the plaintiff upon opening the exceptions, and they judge whether they are material, or not; the reason of this is, because the defendant, if the motion should be reported sufficient, hath no opportunity to move the court till the next term, which is greatly delayed; if the court think the exceptions material and necessary, they will grant the motion; if otherwise, they will deny it, as the case appears; and to this is sometimes added a clause to the order, especially when the motion is made at the last seal, and the plaintiff shall procure the report before his injunction to stand difollowed without further motion; whereas it is not so in open term, or at any of the seals save the last; and this clause being added, the court needs not to hear the exceptions opened, which oftentimes take up too much time.

If the party shall make a new affidavit of a motion of course to disolve the injunction on the answer being reported sufficient; but yet the plaintiff may swear cause on the merits; for there are many instances where the plaintiff's counsel may think the answer not full, and yet may be mistaken, and notwithstanding this the plaintiff may have good cause on the merits for continuance of his injunction; and it seems reasonable that he have liberty to do it; but this must be done on notice given to the other side; he cannot do it when the defendant's counsel come to move to disolve the injunction, on the answer being reported sufficient; because, as this is a motion of course, the party shall have liberty to speak to the merits; but he may have liberty on notice given.

If the plaintiff who hath an injunction dies pending the suit, in infinites the whole proceedings are altered, and the injunction with them; but even in this case the party shall not take out execution without special leave of the court; he must move the court for the plaintiff to revive his suit within a time limited, or the injunction to stand disolved; and as this is never denied, so if the suit is not revived, the party takes execution. There are some infances where a plaintiff may move to revive his suit; but as that is a matter, he has rather the granted, especially where the injunction hath been before disolved; but where a bill is dismissed, the injunction and every thing else is gone, and execution may be taken out the next day.

For more learning on this subject, see 3 Bac. Abr. and 14 Vin. Abr. tit. Injunction.

Injury. (Injuria.) Is a wrong or damage to a man's person or goods. The law will suffer a private injury rather than a public evil; and the act of God, or the law, hath injury to none. 4 Rep. 124.

Injunction. (Injunction.) Is a reflection of one outlaw, to the protection of the law, or to the benefit or liberty of a subject. From the Sax. inungione, i.e. Injungere, Et ex fejium legum particeps adeo coepit reddat, at tempomatius assumere. L. L. Canuti Reg. par. 1. cap. 2.

Injunction. To refore to the benefit of the law—Edger, four winters ad eam a Scotia, & Rex eam inlagavit & sones bames fast. Annal. Waver, sub anno 1074.

Inlag. or Infulness. (Inlagatus, vel homa sub leges.) Signifies him that is in some frank-pledge, and not outlawed. So Bracton's words in trad. cap. 11. Minor veres, & qui infra autem duodecim annorum facit, ulagari non potest nec extra legem ponit, quia ante todes autem non eft legibus aliqua in decemna, non magni quum facint, quaui ulagari non potest, quia leges non sub leges, i. inlagavi Angles, i.e. in francipe frigio dextra decentia magnus duodecim annorum & ulterior, sic. Inlag. sitignificat hominem sublegatis legi. Flac. lib. 9. cap. 47.

Inland, (Inlandum, terra dominicalis, pari maneri dominica, terra interiori.) For that which was let out to tenants was called Inland. In the extent of Britten.

The Britten, or Kantet; thus, To Wulffige that inland, to Eiluge that inland, i.e. Lega terrarum dominicali Wulfges, tenementales Allege. Thus enligieth by Lambard, Th Wulffige (I give) the inland or demesnes, and to Alleuge the outland or tenany. Ex dens Wil. de Efton 50 acres de inlands fun. Rot. Chart. 16 Hen. 3. m. b. This word is often used, or hereby we That inland, for the lands of byland or hereditary lands, divided them according to the proportion of their eftates into two forts, inland and outland. The inland was that which lay next or most convenient for the lord's mansion-house, as within the view thereof, and therefore they kept that part in their own hands, for the support of the family, or of the tality. The Normans afterwards called these lands Terra.

The Normans afterwards called these lands Terra.
INN

dominated, the demains of the lord's lands: The German Terras incunabulmon: The Tudors, Terras curiar as infra curiam, Lands appropriated to the courts, house of the lord. See Annaler's Glossary in Ireland.

See Latinills of exchange.

Innata, Demembre or inland, to which was opposed delantant, land tenanted or eaten. Cottlei, ed. 1727.

Innata, From the French edlais, intangled or inti ated; the knot we may read in the Champion's oath.
Cott. Inf. 2 p. fol. 347.

Incapac. When a delinquet has falsified the law, and is again retna in curia, he is said to be incapac. Sunt alia quaedam passio Christianitatis in quibus Rex partem hoc habet, eal. Rex partitur ut qui in ecclesla securit hominem, et amendum victim, prima episcopi & Regi primo nutusius fuis reddet, & ita se infeget, decins comparat de pace ecclesl, 5 lib. &c. Leg. Hen. 1. cap. 1.

Inmates, Are those that are admitted to dwell jointly with another man, tho' in several rooms of his mani house, pulling in and out by one door, and not being able to maintain themselves; which are inquirable in a deed.
Kitchin, fol. 45. where may be read who are properly inmates, and who not, in the intendment of law. Cottell.
See Cottage.

Inanum for Baudium, A pledge. Inanam non capavit nisi damnationem offendens, De Cange.

Innaturalitas, Unnatural usage. — Et ibidem imp reptor certa omni populo congregato splenditi et sensit omnibus innaturalitatem & insecuturam ad imprudens, quae Rex Francie ci servet, & ibdum Regem Francie

Intrant, Lands recovered from the sea by draining:
as in Romney-Marsh, old records make mention of the inings of archbishop Becket, Baldwine, Boniface, and Beokham; and at this day Eldeerton's inings, &c.

Innata, An innelore: From the Saxon innan, innu.

In an ancient charter mentioned in Spelman's Glossary we read; Sciati me concusif for tumiam seculam in Beren Borrichum, & umum erum & duo innocens nut innocentis, voit. inobiles, &c.

Innotescimus, Letters patent so called, which are always of a charter of feoffment, or some other instru ment not of record, and so called from the words in the conclusion; Innotescimus per prsestantis. An innotescimus and sidimus are all one. See Page's cafe, 5 Rep.

Innoticie, To clear one to a fault, and make him innocent: Si quis innotiex vetit unam dextrum in videa panis. Leges Ethelredi, cap. 10. apud Brompton.

Inns and innkeepers. Common inn are instituted for passagers; for the proper Latin word is dircensum,

but that lodgeth there is qviet desertis if a wai and therefore if a neighbour who is not a traveller, as a friend at the request of the inn-keeper lodge there, and his goods are stolen, he shall not have an action, for the words of the writ are, Hospitandi homines per partes, ubi hospitandi hospitia existant transactis et in ejusdem hospitii, Co. 8 Rep. Coke's case. Neither shall the inn keeper answer for any thing that is out of his inn, but only for such things as are infra hospitium; the words are Beram buna & catalla visra hospitia illa existentia. Cottlei,
ed. 1727.

1. Who may set up an inn; who deemed a common inn keeper, and the privileges allowed him by law.

2. Of the duties enjoined innkeepers; and of offences com mitted by them in filling corrupt commodities, or at exorbitant prices, and in refusing to harbour or entertain guests.

3. In what cases an innkeeper is chargeable for things plained or lost, who is such a guest as may charge an innkeeper and to what manner he is to be charged.

4. Of the innkeeper's remedies against his guests.

Innkeeper. The manner in which an innkeeper may set up an inn, unless it be inconvenient to the public, in respect of its situation, or to its increasing the number of inns, not only to the prejudice of the public, but also to the hinderance and prejudice of other ancient and well-governed inns; for the keeping of an inn is so franchise, but a lawful trade, open to every subject, and therefore there is no need of any licence from the King for that purpose. 2 Roll. Abr. 84. Palm, 367, 1 Balf.

But as inns from their number and situation may be more numerous, they may be suppressed, and the keeping them may at Common law be indicted and fined, being as guilty of a public nuisance; and in like manner
may they be dealt with, if they usuallu harbour thieves, or persons of scandalous reputation, or suffer frequent dis

He who has an inn by pretension may lawfully en large it upon the same land which has been used with it, either by erasing new buildings thereon, or turning rables into houses of entertainment; and he shall have the same privilege in such new part, as in any other part of his house. 2 Roll. Abr. 84.

Also it is agreed, that the statute 5 u 6 Ed. 6, cap.
25. and other statutes concerning the licensing of ale houses, &c. do not extend to inns, unless an inn degr erate into an alehouse by suffering disorderly tilling, &c.
in which case it shall be deemed as such. Hutton 99.
1 Salt. 45.

A person who makes it his busines to entertain tra vellers and passagers, and provide lodging and necessa ries for them and their horses and attendants, is a com mon inn-keeper; and it is not matter what whether he have any sign before his door, or not. Palm. 374. 2

But though it be the entertaining of passagers that makes a man an inn-keeper, yet it is said, that if a person having put up a sign before his door, afterwards pull it down, he thereby discharges himself of the bur then of an inn-keeper; but if after the taking down the sign he uses to harbour men, it is as much a common inn as if he had a sign. Palm. 374. God. 346.

It hath been adjudged, that a person living at Epyon,
and lodging strangers for drinking the waters in the fea son, and fellow with them without beer, and to no other persons except such lodgers, is not an inn-keeper, as is to have soldiers quartered on him, pursuant to the statute 4 & 5 W. 3. cap. 13. for he is not such an hospitator against whom an action lies for refusing to entertain a guest; also in this case lodgers have such an interest in their rooms that they may maintain an action of trespass against any one who should enter into them against their will. Carth. 417. 1 Salt. 387. 5 Med. 427. S. C.
Parker and Jftler, adjudged.

A person who receives cattle to agil, on an agree ment to pay so much a week for them, cannot retain them for payment, as an inn-keeper may the horse of his guest, unless there be a special agreement to that pur

An inn-keeper is distingjed from other traders, in that he cannot be a bankrupt; for though he buys pro visions to be spent in his house, yet he does not properly sell them, but utter them at such rates as he thinks rea sonable, and the attendance of his servants, furniture of his house, &c. are to be considered; and the statutes of bankruptcy only mention merchants that use to buy and sell in grofs, or by retail, and such as get their living by buying and selling; but the contracts with inn-keepers are not for any commodities in specie, but they are con tracts for house-room, trouble, attendance and necessar ies, and therefore cannot come within the dsign of such words, since there is no trade carried on by buy ing.
ing and battering commodities. 4 G. Car. 549. 1 I 1

But where an inn-keeper is a chapman also, and buys and sells, he may on that account be a bankrupt, tho' not bound in his accounts, and this has been frequently held. 7 Tit. 45. 77.

For the security and protection of travellers, inns are allowed certain privileges, such as that the horses and goods of a guest cannot be distrained, &c. 3 Dall. 270. Co. Litt. 57. 2 Pern. 129.

Also the law takes care of the reputation of an innkeeper; and therefore where in cafe for words the plaintiff declared, that he was perfidious of certain fables in what he went. "Bell-Savoy Inn," that he had accommodation for travellers, and that he got his living by the exercising of that faculty; that the defendant was perfidious of another inn, and that a perfom not known inquiring for the "Bell-Savoy Inn," (whither he was directed to set up his horse,) he said these words, This is "Bell-Savoy Inn"; And at another time he said to another person, You have nothing to do there, he is broke and run away, there is no entertainment for man or horse; by reason of which words he lost his customers; and on Not guilty pleaded, the jury having found for the defendant as to the first words, and as to the law for the plaintiff, it was adjudged clearly for the plaintiff; and Hale Ch. J. held farther, that if a man keeps an inn, and another that lives just by him, designing to get away his customers, tells a person who inquires for such inn, that he has no horses, those words are actionable; also it was said by Hale to have been adjudged actionable to dissect a horse from going to an inn, by telling him the small box was there. Till. 25 & 26 Car. 2. S. T. & Allin. Raym. 231. S. C.

2. Of the duties enjoined inn-keepers; and of offences committed by them in selling corrupt commodities, or at exorbitant prices, and in refusing to harbour or entertain guests.

The duty of inn-keepers extends chiefly to the entertaining and harbouring of travellers, finding them victuals and lodgings, and securing the goods and effects of their guests; and therefore if one who keeps a common inn refuses either to receive a traveller as a guest into his house, or to find him victuals or lodging, upon his tendering him a reasonable price for the same, he is not only liable to render damages for the injury in an action on the cafe, at the suit of the party injured, but also may be indicted and fined at the suit of the King. 9 C. 87. Dyer 158. Br. Allin for Caf. 76, 92.

For he who takes upon himself a publick employment as a host, as far as his employment goes; therefore an innkeeper shall not only answer for his own neglects, but also for the neglects of those who act under him, though he should expressly caution against it. 1 Salt. 18.

But the duty of an inn-keeper does not extend to the finding of guest with clothes or wearing apparel. 2 Red. Rap. 79.

Also if the guest be assaulted and beat within the inn, he shall have no action against his host; for the charge of the host extends to the moveables only, and not the person of the guest. 8 Co. 32. in Cafie's cafe.

If a man comes to a common inn to harbour, and defires that his horse be put to graze, and the host put him to graze accordingly, and tie horse be stolen, the host shall not be charged; because by law the host is not bound to answer for any thing out of his inn, but only for those things that are infra hospitium. 8 Co. 32. b. 2 Brownl. 255. & 4 Kent. ch. 6. S. P. adjudged. 2 Brownl. 255. S. P. per ear.

But if the host does not require the horse to put his horse to graze, but the horse does it of his own head, if the horse be stolen, he shall answer for it. 8 Co. 32. b. 2 Red. Rap. 79. 2 Bosc. 257. 15 S. P. per ear.

Also if the horse upon the common right of the host puts the horse to graze, and by the voluntary and wilful negligence of the host the horse is slain, as if the host voluntarily leaves upon the gates of the close, by which means the horse stays out, and so it stoles or loss; an action on the cafe lies against the host. 1 Red. Atw. 4. Mylbo & Esq.

Inns are also restrained from selling at exorbitant prices, and may be indicted if they extort any greater or larger sums than those rates and prices that are imposed on their commodities. Carth. 150. Slin. 291.

And to this purpose it is enacted by 21 Jac. 1. cap. 2. That all hostlers or innholders shall sell their horse-bread and their hay, oats, beans, pease, and hay, and all kind of victual both for man and beast for reasonable gain, having respect to the gain for which they shall be sold in the markets adjoining, without taking any thing for litter. And it is further enacted by the said statute, That every hostler and innkeeper dwelling in any town or village, being a thoroughly fair, and may be a town corporate or market town, wherein any certain baker, having been an apprentice to the trade for seven years, it is dwelling, may make within his house horse-bread sufficient, lawful, and of due affile according to the price of grain and corn. And it is further enacted, That if the horse-bread which any of the said hostlers or innholders shall make be not sufficient, lawful, and of due affile according to the price of grain and corn as above-said, or that if any of them shall offend in any thing contrary to this act, the justices of affile, justices of oyer and terminer, justices of peace in every liberty, or borough or chartel within this realm, freely in their turns, and for the same, and their leet may inquire, hear and determine the said offences of the said hostlers and innholders, who shall be fined for the first offence, according to the quantity of the offence: And for the second offence shall be imprisoned for one month, and for the third offence shall stand upon the pillory. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 2.

If an innkeeper sells corrupt wine or victuals, an action lies against him, also if his servant fell such corrupt wine or victual, an action on the cafe lies against the master, though he did not order the servante to sell it to any particular person. 9 Hen. 3. 1 Rol. Adw. 248.

It has been already observed, that if one who keeps a common inn refuse either to receive a traveller as a guest into his house, or to find him victuals or lodging, upon his tendering him a reasonable price for the same, he is not only liable to render damages for the injury in an action on the cafe, at the suit of the party injured, but also may be indicted and fined at the suit of the King. Dyer 158. pl. 33. 2 Brownl. 254. 2 Roll. Rep. 345. Kent. 50. Palm. 367. Godb. 346. 1 Salt. 388. Carth. 150. S. P. admitted.

Also it is said, if an innkeeper may be compelled by the parties to the suit to receive and entertain a passenger as his guest. 5 Ed. 4. 2. Dall. cap. 7, 1 Show. 268.

Also an innkeeper, or a person keeping a lively-stable, is obliged to receive a horse, tho' the owner does not lodge in his house; for by taking upon him a publick employment, he is obliged to serve the publick as far as his employment extends. After 867. pl. 1299.

3. In what cafe an innkeeper is chargeable for things stolen or left, who is such a guest as may charge an innkeeper, and in what manner he is to be charged.

Innkeepers are clearly chargeable for the goods of guests stolen or left out of their inns, and this is without any contract or agreement for that purpose; for the law makes them liable in replevin of the reward, as also in replevin of their being places appointed and allowed of by law, for the benefit and security of travellers and travellers. Dyer 262. pl. 32. & 32. Co. 2 Pard. 178. Ns. Ns. 750. Lawr. 17.

And this duty and burthen, enjoined innkeepers by law, they cannot discharge themselves of, under pretence of sickness, want of understanding, absence from their houses, &c. Fis. Hylst. 5. Br. Allin on the carp. 43. Salt. 900. 2 Rol. 248. In all cases committed to an innkeeper, no goods must be entertained by him, which the innkeeper refeues, because his house is already full; whereupon the party sues, he will find amongst the rest of his guests, and there he is robbed.
The writ need not mention that the defendant keeps a common inn, for it must be so intended for the recital of the writ is,

Innkeepers who keep common inn, &c. and the latter words depend upon the former; but the plaintiff ought to count that he kept a common inn.

2 Co. 32. a.

If in such an action brought by the master for good flue from his horse, the plaintiff lays the defendant the innkeepers ought falsely to keep the goods of their guests, and all other goods into their inns brought; the custum is sufficiently allowed to maintain the action, notwithstanding it was objected, there was no such custum to keep the goods of others falsely.

If in his declaration the plaintiff lays the custum for common inns, and then lays that he was basisitus in hoftitis, &c. this is well enough; for it must be intended that it was common, else it is damnus & non basisitum.

Rib. 245. and see Rot. Ent. 457. Rib. Ent. 22.

The declaration against an innkeeper was that: Præd. D. com'x hoftis actu et ibidem existit in stabulum deliverit a certain gelding, to be by him safely kept, at a reasonable rate, and to be be him safely delivered to the plaintiff; and after verdict for the plaintiff, it was objected, that for ought appears the horse was put into the defendant's stable the innkeeper does the deponent which case he is not bound to take any care of it; for the words being Præd. D. com'x hoftis existit may as well be taken in an ablative as dative cafe: but the court held, that the words being indifferent to an ablative or dative case, they ought to be taken in that case which makes the declaration indifferent, and therefore gave judgment for the plaintiff.

6 Mod. 223. Stones and Davitt. 1 Sleve. 474. S. C. but not S.P.

4. Of the innkeeper's remedies against his guests.

Innkeepers may detain the person of the guest who eats, or the horse which eats, till paymet, and this he may do without any agreement for that purpose, for men, that get their livelihood by entertainment of others, cannot annex such disabling conditions that they shall retain the party's property in cafe of non-payment, nor make such disadvantages and impudent a bussion, that they shall not be paid: and therefore the law annexes such a condition without the express agreement of the parties.

30 H. 6. 18. 5 H. 7. 15. 2 Rot. Air. 85.

Cros. Cor. 271. Carth. 150. 1 Sleve. 388. May detain the person of his guest.

1 Sleve. 260.

If a man carries away the horse of B. and put him into an inn to be kept, and B. comes and demands him, he shall not have him until he be satisfied for his meat: for when an innkeeper takes a horse into his keeping he is not bound to inquire who is the owner of the horse, which he is obliged to keep, let him belong to whom he will, and therefore no reason that the innkeeper should be obliged to deliver him till he is satisfied.

1 Sleve. 373. 3 Boll. 269. 270. 2 Rot. Air. 85.

Pep. 118. 179.

If A. deliver a horse to an innkeeper, and B. promises that in consideration that the innkeeper will deliver over the horse to A. that he, viz. B. will satisfy him for his meat, this is a good promise; for here is a good consideration, namely, if B. satisfy the horse of the innkeeper that A. has a damage, and A. regains his horse, that is to his advantage.

Hutton 101.

An innkeeper that detains a horse for his meat cannot use him, because he detains him as in the custody of the law, and by consequence the demolition must be in the nature of a distress, which cannot be used by the dilator.

Mor 577. 2 Rot. Rep. 438.

By the custom of London and Exeter, if a man commit an horse to an hofteller, and he eat out the price of his head, the hofteller may take him as his own, upon the reason of the appellation of four of his neighbours; which was, it feems, a foible, and, without the approbation of the traffick with strangers, that could not be known, to charge them with the action; but the innkeeper hath no power to sell the horse, by the general custum of the while kingdom.

4 C

when the kingdom.

with other.

with others.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.

as such.
Inquisition.

Inquisition, Is a manner of proceeding by way of arch or examination, and used in the King's behalf in moral causes and processes; in which sense it is con-uned with office. Stawoff, Prerog. 51. This inquisition is upon an outlawry found, in case of treason or felony committed; upon a felo de fez, &c. to intile the King to a forfeiture of lands and goods: And there is in such cases, an inquisition only is to inform the court how process shall be due for the King, whose title accrues by the attainer, and not by the inquisition; and yet in the cases of the King and a common peril, inquisitions have been held void for uncertainty. Lane 39.

In fact there are two forms of inquisitions, one to inform the King, the other to vell an interest in him; the one need be not certain, but the other must; and where an inquisition finds some parts well, and nothing as to theras, it may be helped by melius inquirendum. 2 Salk.

Inquisition de vido vel membris shall be granted free,

All of the township of twelve years old, ought to come to inquisitions of the death of a man, St. Mar. Leb.
9 H. 3. c. 24.

Shall be of sufficient men, &c. St. W. jfin. 1. 3 Ed.

Articles to be inquired of concerning the King's lands, tenta maruis, 4 Ed. 1. b. 1. Inquisitions and indentures shall be taken by twelve men who shall put their seals to them, St. W. jfin. 2.
3 Ed. 1. c. 13.

A man may be sworn in inquests for want of freeenmen, St. E.xn. 14 Ed. 1.

Inquisitions to be taken before the granting liberties,
1 de Libert. Petigur. 27 Ed. 1. b. 2.

Commissions of common inquiry shall not be granted,
4 Ed. 3. c. 1.

Traverse of offices found before echeters to be tried the King's Bench, 34 Ed. 2. c. 14.

Commissions to inquire of certain articles shall be granded to the judges, &c. 42 Ed. 3. c. 4.

Commissions shall take inquest by men impanelled
by the sheriff, 8 H. 6. c. 16.

Lands feited into the King's hands upon office found, shall be let to farm to him that tenders a traverse, 8 H.
16. 1 H. 8. c. 10.

Offices found before echeters shall be returned within month, 8 H. 6. c. 16. 18 H. 6. c. 7.

No lands shall be granted by patent till the King's title be found, 18 H. 6. c. 6. Are forfeits, coroners, fer-per vatum corporis, or the like, who have power to inquire into certain cafes. Statute of Marlbridge, cap.
18. Britton, fol. 4. and W. jfin. 1. Enquirers or inquisitors are included under the name of ministri. 2 part.
Inf. Sul. 211.

Entrollment (Irresistitio) Is the regissing, recording or entring of any lawful act in the rolls of the Chancery, as a recognizance acknowledged, or a fiature, or a fine levied, or in the rolls of the Exchequer, King's Bench, or Common Pleas, or in the bynings of London, or by the clerk of the peace in any county, as the rolls of the Exchequer, any inquisitions inquired, or a deed of purchase enrolled. See W. jfin. Synod, part. 2. tit. Fees, Jesl. 133. and 27 H. 8. c. 16.

By stat. 27 H. 8. cap. 16. fett. 1. No lands or indentures shall pass whereby any file of inheritance or feethold shall be made, or any use thereof, by ren-don only of any bargain and sale, except those bargain and sale be made by writing indented and enrolled in one of the King's courts of record at Wj'mjnniter, or within the county where the lands lie, or before the egys rosulatorum and two justices of peace, and the clerk of the peace of the county, or two of them, whereof the clerk of the peace is in an inquisition: And such acts to be made within six months after the date of the writings; the egys rotsulatorum, or justice of peace and clerk, taking for the inrolment, where the land exceeds not the yearly value of 40 l. 21. viz. 12 d. to the jut-jices, and 1 d. to the clerk; and for the inrolment of such writings wherein the land comprised exceeds 40 l.
in the yearly value, 5 l. and the clerk of the peace shall inrol the deeds, and the rolls thereof at the end of every year shall deliver unto the egys rotsulatorum, to remain in his custody among other records of the counties.

Sect. 2. This act shall not extend to lands within any city, borough or town corporate, wherein the mayors, recorders or other officers, have authority to inrol deeds.

Stat. 34 & 35 H. 8. cap. 22. All recoveries, deeds inrolled, and releases to be taken and acknowledged before the mayors, recorders or other head officers, as well of the city of London, as of any other City, borough, or town corporate, having power to receive the same ac-ording to the customs of the said cities, &c. shall be of like force as they were before the making of the act 32
H. 8. cap. 28. which fee in Leftfes.

Stat. 5 Eliz. cap. 26. fett. 1. All indentures of writings indented, mentioned in 27 H. 8. cap. 16, of any bargain and sale of lands or hereditaments in the county's of Lancaster and Durham, being made and inrolled within six months after the date in the Queen's court of Chancery at Lancaster, or before the Queen's justice of alife at Lancaster, concerning lands within the county of Lancaster, or before the Queen's justice of alife at Chefler, or before the Queen's justice of alife at Chefler, concerning lands within the county of Chefler, or in the court of Chancery at Davfines, or before the justice of alife at Davfines, concerning lands within the county of the bishoprick of Davfines, shall be as good in law as if the name had been inrolled in any of the Queen's Courts
at Wj'mjnniter.

Sect. 2. This act shall not extend to lands within any city or town corporate wherein the mayors or other officers have authority to inrol deeds.

Stat. 10 Ann. cap. 18. fett. 3. Where in any declarations, avowals or other pleadings in the inrolment of bargain and sale inrolled shall be pleaded with a prefert in curia, the person so pleading may produce, to anwser such prefert, as well against her Majesty as against any other person, a copy of the inrolment of such bargain and sale;
and such copy examined and signed by the proper officer, and proved upon oath to be a true copy, shall be of the same force as the indentures of bargain and sale should be of.

Inrolment of a deed is to no other purpose, but that the party shall not deny it afterwards; but if he wants the deed to plead it, and lozes it, he shall not plead the deed, for in the Queen's court of Exchequer at Chefler, or before the Queen's justice of alife at Chefler,
concerning lands within the county of Chefler, or in the court of Chancery at Davfines, or before the justice of alife at Davfines, concerning lands within the county of the bishoprick of Davfines, shall be as good in law as if the name had been inrolled in any of the Queen's Courts
at Wj'mjnniter.

If a deed be lost, yet the inrolment is good evidence, if it can be proved to a jury by circumstances, that there was such a deed; for the loss of a record or deed is not the loss of a man's title, if it can be otherwise proved.
2 Eli. P. R. 68.

If a deed be enrolled according to the statute 2H. 8.
cap. 10. it must be in parchmont for the strength and continuance thereof, and not in paper; and fo it was referred in parliament by the judges, in anns 23 Eliz. Co.
Lit. 35. & 36. 6. 2 Inf. 673. pays, that fo much is implicit when the inrolment is in any of the King's a courts of record at Wj'mjnniter, see, that the inrolment shall be in parchment, and that fo it was adjudged, as
Mr. Pteledon cited it, before the lords in parliament, anns 23 Eliz. in the great cafe between Robert and Vernon, which Lord Coke says he heard and obseved.

An
An inquest of bargain and sale was inrolled in Chine-rray, exemplified under seal, and at the end was a me-memorandum, viz. that the plea was inrolled, but no time mention'd when the same was done, but plaintiff offered to prove by circumstances, that it was inrolled within the six months upon which great debts were; but a clerk brought an order of the court of B. R. to the inroll-office to know their usage and cutoff, as to the inrolling the time of the inrolment, he certified the court upon his oath, that they inrolled it, that before the 16 Eliz. at which time the inroll-office was erected, they did not use to inroll the time, but they use to do otherwise now.
Fiflight.
In 2 Lit. P. R. Inrollment 68. it is said, that, before the 20th year of Queen Elizabeth it was not used to inroll the inrollots of deeds upon the back of them, as it is now used to be done. Cites Micb. 23 of Car. 1.
B. R. by sale, that now it is conflagrantly used, and to good purpose, in respect of the more easy and reader proof of the inrolloment upon any occasion; for credit is given to that inrollment without any farther proof, as being made by a known officer, and intruded for that purpose.
If land be inrolled for sale only, the deed may be said to be recorded; but where a bargain and sale is inrolled pursuant to the statute, the inrollment is a record, so that the copy of it may be read in evidence; for Master of the Rolls. Note; Afterwards upon a rehearing, an infolio upon a deed was directed whether such deed of ufe was executed, and upon the trial, the copy of the deed was allowed to be read as evidence on the trial.
Combs v. Dovell, S. C.
A. in consideration of blood, covenants to lant feided unto the use of B. his fon, and the heirs of his body, and in default of such issue, then to the use of J. S. in inrollment of poet, B. died without issue. The deed was not inrolled; because as the ufe is partly by covenant to land seided, and partly by bargain and sale, or whether it must arise wholly one way, or wholly the other, and not by fractions? Bringman Ch. J. said, in this case, that there was a mixt inrollment, and there needed no Garths v. Hantschw.
If land be conveyed in a deed for money only, then the deed must be inrolled, else, the land will not pass by the deed. But if land be conveyed in inrollment of money paid, and also in consideration of natural love and friendship, birth, child, or relation, there it is not ne-necessary to inroll the deed, but the lands will pass, tho' the deed be not inrolled; for in the former case it is a mere deed of bargain and sale, which passeth without inrollment;
but in the latter case, the land will pass by way of ufe. 2 L. P. R. 69.
See 14 Black, tit. Inrollment.
Inscriptions. Were those written instruments of charts by which any thing was granted. In Conc.
Christie anno 800. H dicti praelatus item inscriptiones manuscripta, &e. terrarumque fini adscriptionem.
Inlatae, A proctor or adversary at law. —
Quod eiium ejus informentes para parum tempo ducaruntur, Inquest; To reduce to fervitude. Si veniam avcilium uxoruni, et fide pietat furturi inferius. Du Cange.
So infervice tenementa is to subject them to services.
Bradim. cap. 54.
Inuenta, (Lit.) An indict. Item ordinamentum quod quandam aera praecipit, injustus & vagansgebens encomiatus Inlatae, The same with Figuris or Exonias. Plata, terum forent, sed fortunati edulis in cernendis infulis offertis,
&c.
Inlatae Veterum. Way-livers, or such as lie in wart, are words by which the 4 Hen. 4. cap. 2, are not to be put in inrollments, arrangements, &c.

Insufficient, Il advice, or pernicious counsell. —
Ri Duarum Scionis for infulum, in cogant & temtation Naturalium comiti. — Civitim Omnium infulum, fodatur, &c. malage Rigi infulus et feriis dolueri, dopem.
Sm. Donell. fab anno 1809, whereina infulation, an evil tele, is mentioned, and raedus infulation best suum for inflation into inflation, in a hor. in 1808, is of a.
Insufficient, &c. at Regn a roreg repitire compliment.
Wig. Flor. (ab anno 845.
Insufficient compted. Is a writ or oction of account which lies not for no thing certain, but only for the goods and chattels.
In. Art. 9. The common declaration upon an infulent, and upon an inflent, is that the plaintiff and defendant such a day, year, and place, account brought together between of themselves of and concerning divers sums of money, &c.
Insufficient recounts. It is one species of the writ called a formuidous, for Inflation, (Figuratio.) Is a covert, and cunning creep ting into a man's favour; mentioned in dit. 21 Hen.
8. e. 5. Inflation of a will, is among the Civitium, the full production of it, or the leaving it prorogativa,- rium, with the regler, in order to its probability. Couen.
cid. 1777.
Insufficient. Till of late the Chancery would not put out an insufficient trustee; for that he was intrusted by the donor; see Eyre J. Comb. 185. Micb. 4 H. & An insufficient perdon male executor cannot be put out by the ordinary; for he is intrusted by the testator, and the court of Chancery will compel him to give security before he files his account upon the truax.
Carth. 455. Micb. 10 H. 3. B. R.
Insufficient debtors, relieved, 1 Ann. 5. t. c. 25. 2
& 3 Ann. t. c. 16. 1 Geo. 1. t. c. 22. 1 Geo. 1. t. c.
2 Geo. 2. t. c. 25. 22. 24 Geo. 2. t. c. 31. 28 Geo. 2.
c. 13. 29 Geo. 2. c. 18. 3 Geo. 17. 5 Geo. 1.
Inc. 3. 41.
Inspection. See Tranquility and age, Etat.
Insipidus, Letters patent to called, and is the same with explication, which begins thus, Rex enunclat, &c.
Insipidus inquisitionem quondam, literarum potent, &c.
It is called Insipidus, because it begins after the King's title, and where the king truax is the terminus a quo, the second leaf, he surrenders his former term; and for the same
in
plant of taking the second leaf, the former is expired.
And in the case between Peti and Hales, he who kills himself commits not felony till he be dead, and when deaf he is not in being, so as to be termed a felon; but as is lodged in law as infipidus, at the very instax of the fact done, and there are many other causes in law
where the instant time, that is not devidable in nature, in the congregation of the mind is divided. Couen.
An infant is not to be considered in law as in lagn as a point of time, and no parcel of time; but in our law things which are to be done in an infant, are to be done in the law a priority of time in them;
as lefle for life makes a leafe for years, they both surrender to him in reverson, though 'tis made in an infant, yet it shall be understood to have degree, fillet.
the
the surrender of the lease for years to tenant for life, and then the surrender of the lease for life, &c. Arg. Micb. 32 Ed. 2. 8. 57. 2. Leit. 238, 40. 8. 33. For wherein this device by one joint tenant of his part; for no device can take effect but by the death of the devisee, and by his death all the land comes immediately to his companion; and there takes notice, that Littlecane by the words puf mortem & pro mortem L. 228. 3. 7. though they jump at first sight, yet alloweth priority of time in the intestate, which he distinguishes by per & puf mortem, and fays, that the reason of the priority is, because this survivor claims by the first feoffor. And in several cases a difference is allowed in our law in an intestate, as per mortem & puf mortem. Sedgwick, in his sale of The King v. Dr. Birch and the Bishop of London.

So, devisee of a term to his son, and that his wife shall have it during the minority of his son; this shall be continued a devise a devise to the wife, and after to the son when he comes of age. Fin. Law 18 5.

So where a man grants his devise of land to A. and by the same deed grants a rent out of it to B. and delivers the deed to both at one and the same time; this shall ensue as to the rent first. Ibid.

In the text, In Roman is used for deeds for a flock of cattle. Item manumitterit nullum undam bates pratum. Mon. Angl. 97. 1. 11. Sedgwick. In the text, in Roman is used for deeds for land in intestate. Idem, infermam, properly young beafls, fleece or breed—Et de inutilitatis terna jumenta, i.e. three fleee cattle. Parch. Antip. p. 288. In Roman was commonly used for the whole flock upon a farm, Cattle, waggons, ploughs and all other implements of husbandry. In Roman signifies a deed of infrusion, in quod mino situ. Fleta, ib. 2. c. 72. 7. So instores, inutilitatis is used for the books, place, sventiments and all other utensils belonging to a church, by the synod of Exeter, A.D. 1287. can. 12. 44. 5. So terra inutilitatis was land ready fenced or fenced with all things necessary to carry out its use or occupation of a farm. As in the Magna Charta of King John, A.D. 1215. Et reddat benevole, cum ad placitum atatem, terrenam iouae, inutilitatis de causis & omnibus aliis rebus, inutilitatis in our hiftorians and MIS is taken in the same sense as In Roman.

In the text, *It is, when the bishop fays to a clerk who is preferred to a benefice, Infruptus est totius eft a species of general externum & turribulit inutility. Brempon. pag. 935.

Instituto, is, when the bishop fays to a clerk who is preferred to a benefice, Infrum est totius eft a species of general externum & turribulit inutility. Brempon. pag. 935. See Henttler.

Infruptus, is a word used by Auditors in their accounts in the Exchequer, when they fay for much remains injurer to such an account, that is, for much remains due upon such an account. Stat. 24 Jac. cap. 2.

Infruption or Infruption, signifies a security given, in consideration of a sum of money paid in hand of so much per cent. to an affurer or insurer, to indemnify the insured from such losses as shall be specified in the policy or instrument of assurance, furnished by the former to the latter. An assurance that is of a spirituality and temporal ity. As to the spirituality, viz. Corporation, he is a complete parson by infüerljion. But as to the temporalities, as glebe-land, &c. he has no frank-tentemn within till infüerljion. Coa. 2 Rep. Dibby's cafe. The first beginning of infüerljions to benefices was in a national synod held at Welfinfler by John de Crema, the pope's legate, A.D. 1124. which see in Selden's Hiftory of Tithes, pag. 375. See Henttler.

Insurer, is a word used by Auditors in their accounts in the Exchequer, when they say for much remains injurer to such an account, that is, for much remains due upon such an account. Stat. 24 Jac. cap. 2.

Insure or Insurer, signifies a security given, in consideration of a sum of money paid in hand of so much per cent. to an assurer or insurer, to indemnify the insured from such losses as shall be specified in the policy or instrument of assurance, furnished by the former to the latter. An assurance that is of a spirituality and temporal ity. As to the spirituality, viz. Corporation, he is a complete parson by infüerljion. But as to the temporalities, as glebe-land, &c. he has no frank-tentemn within till infüerljion. Coa. 2 Rep. Dibby's cafe. The first beginning of insuyions to benefices was in a national synod held at Welfinfler by John de Crema, the pope's legate, A.D. 1124. which see in Selden's History of Tithes, pag. 375. See Henttler.

Insurer, is a word used by Auditors in their accounts in the Exchequer, when they say for much remains injurer to such an account, that is, for much remains due upon such an account. Stat. 24 Jac. cap. 2.

Jews in the year 1182. but whoever was the first con-
INS

INS

Section 4. Each of the two corporations shall be obliged to cause such stock of ready money to be provided, as shall be sufficient to answer all just demands for losses, and shall satisfy all such demands; and in case of refusal or neglect, the parties affraid may bring action of debt, &c. General Courts of record at Westminster, in which the plaintiff may declare that the same corporation is indebted to them in the monies demanded, and have not paid the same according to this act.

Section 6. The corporation in general courts may raise such capital stocks, either by taking subscriptions of particular persons, the full of monies from their members, or by such other ways, as to such general courts shall seem expedient; and all subscribers shall have a share in the capital stock, and shall be admitted members; but no person shall be intituled to any greater share in the stock than the money which they shall have paid.

Section 7. The corporations shall have power in their general courts to call in from their members any further sums as shall be judged necessary; and in case any member shall refuse to pay his share at the times appointed by notice in the Gazette, and upon the Royal Exchange, the corporation may not only flipp the dividend upon such member, but also the transfer of the shares of such defaulter, and charge him with interest at 3 per cent. per annum; and if the principal and interest shall be unpaid three months, the corporation, or their courts of directors, may authorize partners to sell so much of the stock of such defaulter as will satisfy the same; and the money so called in shall be deemed capital stock. Nevertheless the corporation in general courts, may cause any sums called in to be divided amongst the then members, and the shares in the capital stock shall be proportionably abated.

Section 8. For enabling the corporations to lend money on parliamentary security, they shall have power to borrow money upon bonds, under their common seal, at such interest, for any time not less than six months, as they shall think fit, fo as the principal shall not exceed the principal monies then owing to them on such parliamentary security; and such bonds shall not be chargeable with stamp duties.

The shares in the capital stock shall be transferable and devisable; and their bonds shall be assignable and receivable as his Majesty by the charters shall prescribe; and the capital stock shall be adjudged a personal and not a real estate, and shall go to the executors, and not to the legatees of the testator.

The stock shall be exempted from taxes; and no governor, director or other officer of the corporations, shall for that cause be disabled from being a member of parliament, or in respect of such share be liable to be a bankrupt; and no stock in the corporations shall be subject to foreign attachment by the customs of Lendey or elsewhere.

His Majesty by the said charters may grant to each of the corporations power to make by-laws, and such further powers relating to the affurance of ships, &c. or lending money upon bostommy, as to him shall seem meet.

All other corporations, and all partnerships for affuring ships or merchandizes at sea, or for lending money upon bostommy, shall be restrained from underwriting any policies, or making any contracts for assurance of ships or merchandizes at sea, or going to sea, or for lending money by way of bostommy. And if any corporation, or partnerships acting in that capacity, or any one of the two corporations to be established shall underwrite any such policy, or make such contract for assurance of ships, &c. or agree to take any premium for such policies, every such policy shall be void, and every policy so underwritten shall be forfeited, and may be recovered by all of them acting in that capacity, to the person who shall sue for the fame in any court of record at Westminster; and if any corporation, or partnerships acting in such partnership, agree to lend money by way of bostommy contrary to this act, the security shall be void, and such agreement shall be adjudged an usurious contract: Nevertheless any particular perfon shall be at liberty to underwrite policies, or may lend money by way of bostommy, so as the fame be not on the account or title of a corporation, or of persons acting in partnership.

Section 13. If any perfon shall for aye the common fee of either of the corporations, or counterfeit or alter any policy or obligation under the common seal, or shall offer to dispose of or pay away any such counterfeited or altered policy, &c. knowing the fame to be such; or shall demand the money therein contained of either of the corporations, knowing such policy, &c. to be counterfeit, or with intent to defraud any of either of the said corporations, or any other perfon; such officer being convicted shall be guilty of felony without benefit of clergy.

Section 14. No person shall be capable of being elected governor, sub-governor, deputy governor or director, of either of the said corporations, during the time he shall be governor, &c. of the other corporation; and if any governor, &c. or member of either of the said corporations, having any share in the capital stock of that corporation, shall in his own name, or in the name of any other, purchase any share in the stock of the other corporation, the share so purchased shall be forfeited, one month of the time of his Majesty, the other to the prosecutor, to be recovered as before mentioned.

Section 15. Upon three years notice to be printed in the Gazette, and asfanned upon the Royal Exchange, by authority of parliament, at any time within 31 years, to be reckoned from the dates of the two charters, and upon payment by parliament to the corporations of the sum of 30,000l. which the corporations were to pay to his Majesty without interell, the corporations shall cease; and any vote of the house of commons, signified by the speaker in writing, to be inferted in the Gazette, and asfanned on the Royal Exchange, shall be deemed sufficient notice.

Section 16. If after the expiration of 31 years, his Majesty shall judge the farther continuance of the said corporations to be hurtful to the publique, it shall be lawful, by letters patent under the Great seal, to make void the fame corporations; and the same shall become void accordingly, without any inquisition, false faits, &c.

Section 17. In case the corporation shall be redeemed within 31 years, or be revoked by letters patent after 31 years, the fame corporations, or any corporation with like powers, &c. shall not be grantable again.

Section 18. It shall be lawful for any joint stock company, and the Exchange company, to have their feet on the bottom of any flipp, and on the goods on board any ship, in the service of the said companies respectively, to any captains or other persons employed in the service of the companies, any money by way of bostommy, this act notwithstanding.

Section 19. If any governor or member of either of the corporations shall, in account of the said corporations, lend to his Majesty money by way of loan or expectation, on any part of the revenues, other than such funds on which a credit of loan shall be granted by parliament, the said governors, &c. or other members confenting to such loan, being convicted thereof, shall forfeit treble the value of the sums for his Majesty; one fith part to be paid and the residue to be recovered in any court of record at Westminster by action of debt, &c. and the refuse to be disposed of to publique use, as shall be directed by parliament.

Section 20. The corporation called the London assurance having paid into the Exchequer the sums of 38,550l. for the purpose of paying 38,750l. further part thereof in three months; and the corporation called The Royal Exchange assurance of houses and goods from fire, having done the like, the refuse of the said sums amounting together to 300,000l. shall be released.

Section 21. Where the Royal Exchange assurance, and the London assurance, are subject to pay double damages besides costs, the plaintiffs shall recover against them only single damages and costs.

Stat.
Stat. 11 Geo. 1. cap. 30. sect. 43. On all actions of debt against either of the corporations called The Royal Exchange assurance, and the London assurance, upon any policies under the common seal for the assuring of any ship or merchandise at sea, or going to sea, it shall be lawful for the said corporations to plead generally, that they have not broke the covenant in such policy con-trated; and if thereupon either be joined, it shall be lawful for the jury to give such part only of the sum demanded,

if it be an action of debt, or so much in damage, if it be an action of covenant, as it shall appear upon the evidence that the plaintiff ought in justice to have recovered.

 Sect. 2. Affurance on private ships of war, fitted out by his Majesty's subjects solely to cruise against his enemies, may be made by or for the owners, interreat or no interreet,

and without average, and without benefit of salvage to the assure.

 Sect. 3. Any merchandizes or effects from any ports in Europe or America, in the possession of the Crowns of Spain or Portugal, may be assured in such manner as if this act had not been made.

 Sect. 4. It shall not be lawful to make re-assurances,

unless the assuree be involvent, become bankrupt, or die;

in either of which cases such assuree, his executors, administrators or assignes, may make re-assurance, to the amount of the sum before by him assured; provided it be expressed in the policy to be a re-assurance.

 Sect. 5. In all actions brought by the assuree upon any policy of assurance, the plaintiff or his agent shall, within fifteen days after he is required to do in writing by the defendant or his agent, declare in writing what sum he had assured in the whole, and what sums he hath borrowed, for the voyage or any part of the voyage in which the said ship or merchandise was.

 Sect. 7. It shall be lawful for any person or body corporate, sued on any policy of assurance, to bring into court any sum of money; and if any such plaintiff refuse to accept such sum with costs to be taxed in discharge of such action, and afterwards proceed to trial, and the jury thereon find nothing to the plaintiff and in all actions of such plaintiff shall pay to such defendant costs to be taxed.

 Sect. 2. What shall be deemed baratry and deprivation; and of charging and discharging the injuring therewith.

Baratry is when the master of a ship, or the mariners cheat the owners or infringers, whether by running away with the ship, finding her, defecting her, or immeaging the cargo.

Dist. 3. and 214.

Baratry of the mariners is a devise to epidemic on shippers that it is very great for a master, but his industry never too great, to prevent it; a span of villainy on shipboard soon fpreads out to a cloud, for no other caufe but that of the circular encouragement that one knavish mariner gives another. However the law does in such cases impute offences and faults committed by them to the negligence of the master; and if the master or other wise, the merchant would be in a very dangerous condition. The reason why he ought to be responsible are, that the mariners are of his own choosing, and under his corre-

cction and government, and know no other sife for en shipboard but himself; and if they are fully, he may correct and punish them, and justify the same by law.

Like wise, if the fact is apparently proved against them, it may be inferred from the badness of their characters, that the master by his negligence or acquiescence has made him liable, and that as well by the Common law as the law

And therefore, in all cases whereof the merchant loads abroad any goods or merchandise, if they be lost, impaired, or in any other way dammified, he must be responsible for them; for the very nature of the assurance makes him liable, and that as well by the Common law

as the law mariners. Malloy, b. 1. t. 3. sect. 15.

Where a ship was insur'd against the baratry of the master, &c. in an action brought thereupon, the jury found that the ship was lost by the fraud and negligence of the master. The court held, the ship would not be in war with the ship, or immeage the goods, the merchant

may have an action against him; for it is reasonable that merchants who hazard their fleeks in foreign traffic, should secure themselves in what manner they think proper, against baratry of the master and all other frauds;

and this may extend to fraud in the master; not a bare neglect: and they all agreed that fraud is baratry, who not named in the covenant; but negligence might

not. 1 Med. c. 230, 231.

Cambridge brought a writ of error upon a judgment given against him in the Common Pleas, in an action brought by the defendant against a policy of insurance of the ship Riga Merchant, at and from Port Mahon to London.

And forseent Bractenwite for the plaintiff in error inflicted, that the judgment was erroneous, because the breach was ill aligned; because the policy was, that the defendant Co. must either infurd the said ship, among other things, against the baratry of the master, and all other dangers, damages and misfortunes, which should happen to the prejudice and damage of the said ship; and the breach alledged was, that the ship, in the said voyage,

for fraudes & negligences magni novi prindelum deprectis

perfraciturque; & of fpace & &c. &c. &c.

It is, that infider in the meaning of the word baratry; but the breach should have been express, that the ship was lost by the baratry of the master. Besides, the owner of the goods has a remedy against the owners of the ship, for any prejudice he receives by the fraud or neglect of the master; and, therefore, there is the left reason the insurer should be liable. Besides, if the word baratry should import fraud, yet it does not import neglect; and the fact here alledged is, that the ship was lost by the fraud and neglect of the master. But the court was unanimously of opinion, that there was no occasion to aver the fraud in the very words of the policy; but if the fact alleged came within the meaning of the words in the policy, it is sufficient.

Now baratry imports fraud, (Du Frf. Glf. verbo Barataria, fraus, abtr.) and he that commits a fraud

may properly be said to be guilty of a neglect, &c.

And baratry of a master is not to be confined to that which is not, because it imports any fraud. And the judgment was affirmed, April 27, 1724.

Cambridge. Str. 581. S. C.

The ship the Gothic Lyne being advertised to go to Marfellis, goods were ship on board her on behalf of the plaintiff, and a bill of lading signed by the master, whereby he undertakes to go a dinte route a Marfellis, and

the
the defendant under-wrote a policy from Falmouth (where the goods were taken in) to Marfelles. Before the ship departed from the port of London, the defendant, on advertisement, gave orders for goods to Groens, Loghans and Naples; and the plaintiff's agent was told, it was intended to go to those ports first, and then to come back to Marfelles: But he inferred that his bargain was to go first, or directly to Marfelles, and he would not consent to let his ship by Marfelles, if he were not found on the coast of Naples. The ship however did put to sea by Marfelles, and after delivering her cargo at the other ports, set out on her return for Marfelles with the plaintiff's goods: but in her voyage thither, was blown up in an engagement with a Spanish ship. And in an action upon the policy, the breach was alleged of a life by the baratry of the defendant. And the plaintiff maintained, that any fraud or malversation of the master was within the meaning of the word baratry.

Du Frie terms it dols qu's fit in contradistinctions; and do all the dictionariums, as Florio's Italian Dictionary verbo Baratry, Minifie, Portiere, &c. And that in the cases of Knight and Cambridge (the preceding cafe) and Knight and Dodd, where the left was laid to be per fraudem of the master, the court held it a good assignment of a breach, there being the word baratry in the policy. The defendant's counsel inferred, this was no more than a deviation, in which case the insurer was discharged, and the plaintiff's remedy was against the master or master. This, the defendant alledged a breach in the master, when he is acting all the while for the benefit of his owners. The Chief Justice in his direction to the jury told them, that this being against the express agreement to go first to Marfelles, seemed to be more than a common deviation, being a formed design to deceive the contrac- tor; and compared it to the cafe of falling out of port without paying duties, whereby the ship was subjected to forfeiture, and which has been held to be baratry. The jury laid some time, and, upon their return, asked the Chief Justice, whether if the master was to have no benefit to himself by pulling by Marfelles, and went only for the purpose of the ship, that would not be a baratry. And the Chief Justice answeing, no, they found for the defendant. And now a new trial being moved for, the cafe was argued; and all the court was of opinion that the verdict was right. For the master had acted confidient with his duty to his owners, and the plaintiff's agent knew that he had amended alteration of the goods which put on board, and might have refused to ship them, or have altered the insurance. To make it bar- atry, there must be something of a criminal nature, as well as a breach of contract; and that there the breach being alleged only on the baratry, was not supported by the evidence. So the defendant had judgment.

---

V. Col. to Gen. 2 Staunno v. Brown.

The insurance was from Carolina to Iffon, and at and from thence to Brifid: It appeared the captain had taken in cattle, which he was to deliver at Falmouth before he went to Brifid; but the ship was taken in the direct road to both, and when he came to the point where he was to turn off to Falmouth. And it was held the insurer was liable; for it is but an intention to deviate, and that was held not sufficient to discharge the under-writer. In the case of Carter v. The Royal Ex- change Assurance Company, where insurance was from Honduras to London, and a confinament to Amsterdam; a loss happened before the came to the dividing point between the two voyages, which the insurers was held to pay for.

Str. 1249. 19 Ge. 2. Pyler v. Wilmor.

The ship Mediterranean went out in the merchants service with a letter of marque, and being bound from Brifid to Neufland was infected by the defendant. In this case there was no prize, and the defendant received back a proportional part of the premium. Then another policy was made, and the ship set out with express orders from the owners, that if they took another prize they should put some hands on board such prize, and tend her to Brifid; but the ship in question should proceed with the merchants goods. Another prize was taken in the due course of the voyage, and the captain gave order to some of the crew to carry the appointed for that trade at Spithead, and the ship Ranger having for convoy in the Downs, proceeded for Spithead, and was taken in her way thither. The instant this being the time of a French war, the ship should not have ventured through the channel, but have waited in the Downs for an occasional convoy. And many merchants and shipping people were examined to that purpose. But the Chief Justice held that the ship was to be considered as under the protection of the seas, pirates, etc., from London to Folly, warranted to depart with convoy. Et per cur. The words warranted to depart with convoy, mean only that he will leave the port, and fail with the convoy without any willful default in the matter; therefore, if by default of the matter, the ship is fet away and taken, but if there is no default, the matter having done all that could be done, and the ship is taken, they are liable: So if the ship be lost by feats of weather; for they are liable against thefts by their own agreement. 2 Salk. 443. Hill. 2 W. & M. & R. Ieffins v. Legrand, S. C. 3 Lorc. 320. 4 Mid. 51. 1 Deon. 216. Hill, G.

Title:

INS and INS.
INS

Action on a policy of assurance; the defendant pleaded non assumpsit, and the jury found the policy, by which the insurers undertook against the perils of the seas, pirates, etc., from London to Folly, warranted to depart with convoy. Et per cur. The words warranted to depart with convoy, mean only that he will leave the port, and fail with the convoy without any willful default in the matter; therefore, if by default of the matter, the ship is set away and taken, but if there is no default, the matter having done all that could be done, and the ship is taken, they are liable: So if the ship be lost by feats of weather; for they are liable against thefts by their own agreement. 2 Salk. 443. Hill. 2 W. & M. & R. Ieffins v. Legrand, S. C. 3 Lorc. 320. 4 Mid. 51. 1 Deon. 216. Hill, G.

Action on a policy of assurance by the defendant at London, infuring a ship from thence to the East-Indies, warranted to convoy; and shows that the ship went from London to the Downs, and from thence with convoy, and was lost. After a frivolous plea by the insurers against the claim, to which it was objected, that there was a departure without convoy. Et per cur. The clause warranted to depart with convoy, must be considered according to the usage among merchants, i.e. from such place, where convos are to be had, as the Downs, &c. Holv Chief Justice contra. We take notice of the laws of merchants that are general, not of those that are particular usages. It is no part of the law of merchants to take convoy in the Downs. 2 Salk. 443. Mich. 4 W. & M. & R. Infinite's father's cafte.

The words warranted to depart with convoy have been referred to imports, by the usage among merchants, a conveyance with that convoy as long as may be. Lat. Rep. 287.

The plaintiff being fast at law upon a policy of insurance of a ship, and against the baratry of the master, which was assigned in the declaration, brought his bill in Chancery to be relieved, and moved for an injunction; charging that one Matthews, who is the master, and also owner of the ship, had, before the voyage, entered into a bot- tom-bond to the defendant for 200l. and that after, by bill of sale, he aliened over his interest in the ship to the defendant as a security for this 200l. and infilled that Matthews was a demurrer to the bond, over the ship, that in law the ownership and property would be looked upon to be in the defendant, and infilled, that the owner of a ship could not, either in law or equity, be guilty of a baratry concerning the ship, and therefore prayed an injunction, and that the policy might not be carried up. The voyage infilled was from London to Marfellis, thence to some port in Holland. The case was, that the master failed with the ship to Marfellis, and then, instead of pursuing the voyage, sailed for the West-Indies, and there fold the ship, and died insolvent. Their matters being confessed by the answier, and an injunction was granted for, and a mortgage was made for, and a mortgage to be considered in equity as owners of the thing mortgaged, and that Matthews, the master, being owner, could not be guilty of baratry. To shew which, a cafe was cited of Hanna and Brown, where it was determined the preceding term in the King's Bench, Lord Hardwicke, that a person going down the coast for goods, and doing so by the matter against the ship and goods; and this being in the case of a ship, the question will be, who is to be considered as the owner? There are several cases that might be put where baratry may be assigned as the breach of an assurance, and baratry or not, is a question that is purely determinate by law, but where the parties are not for the court of law will not consider a mortgagee as having any right or interest in the thing mortgaged; and there are many cases where a man may come into a court of equity for relief, in respect of a part only of his case.

It might indeed be considered at law, whether what the master hath done, and did in presenting him with goods, or, was not a breach of the contract, as matter of the ship, and for a baratry; and this may be considered likewise in equity. But at law a defendant cannot read part of the plaintiff's answer to a bill brought against him here; the whole answer must be read, which hath been often a reason for this court interpreting by injunction upon a plaint at law; and considering the mixed nature of this case, I think an injunction ought to be granted. Ordered accordingly. Dict. Tr. and Cam. 127. 16 Geo. 2. London v. Swaff.

The plaintiffs being merchants residing at Gibraltar, and one of them coming to London to sell goods fit for the place, bought to return the value of 3000l. and in order to forward them to the aforesaid place, he took freight on the ship Ranger. Captain Taylor, which he law put up, as usual, at the Royal Exchange and Portugal coffee-house, with a declaration inferr'd in the folde advertisement, that the ship was to sail with the West convoys; and in consequence thereof he shipped his merchandise and made assurance thereon to the amount of 2850l., and inferr'd in the policy the words warranted to depart with convoy, in conformity with the said declaration. The ship when loaded failed from Gravesend the 4th of May 1754, on her voyage and arrived at the Barbadoes the 7th, where they continued till the 21st, in company with the Otter Boop of war, some English merchant ships, and three Dutch East-India ships. Captain Taylor, whilst he lay in the Downs, having received intelligence that the convoy at Spithead was ready to sail, went on board the Otter ship, in order to sollicite the commander's taking him under his protection to Spithead; but this the said gentleman informed him, was not in his power to comply with, as he was ordered on a cruise over to the coast of France, whereupon Captain Taylor went on board the Commodore of the Dutch East-India ships, who promis'd to take the Ranger under convoy. On the 12th of May, the Otter ship, the Dutch, and the Otter anchor, as did also some English ships for the benefit of that convoy; and a few hours after they were under sail, the Otter ship parted from them on her cruise, and the Ranger kept company with the three Dutch ships, till between four and five o'clock the next afternoon (being the 13th) when (in her direct course to Spithead) the ship was attacked by a French privateer, called the Ruffine, within three miles of the Dutch East-India men, and eighteen of Spithead, where she was to join the convoy to Gibraltar, and after some resistance the ship was taken and carried into one of the islands of the Madeiras; and there regularly condemned. The plaintiff, being the aforesaid captives, applied to the respective underwriters (and among them to the defendant) requiring satisfaction for his loss; but they absolutely refused paying any thing, inferring that the ship had not failed according to the terms of the policy, viz. at and from London to Gibraltar, warranted to depart with convoy, but as the departed from the convoy (which he had not to do have done) and was taken in consequence thereof, the in- surers are not bound to satisfy a loss, which they were never obliged to be answerable for; and the ship ought to have had till a convoy offered, and not gone to fetch at such a distance, as they evidently exposed her to be taken in getting thither. On this occasion the party held that they had complied with the tenor of the policy, that the defendant misconceived the natural construction of the words.
words warranted to depart with convoy, as they did not imply to have done so with convoy from the port of London, as the rendezvous for ships bound to Gibraltar and the Straights, is generally at Spithead, where they join the convoy; and altho' possibly there may be an infraction of two or a convoy failing from the Nore and the Downs to Gibraltar, yet this is an uncommon and extraordinary thing, and was not to have been expected on this occasion: on the contrary, it was then known, that the convoy for those parts was to be at Spithead, and many ships went there from London to take the benefit of it, so that the warranty could only be understood from Spithead, as it was from the convoy there the Captain was to make his falling orders; besides, as it was unsafe to lie in the Downs without a man of war, the plaintiff conceives the Ranger would have run a much greater risk, in continuing after the Officer's departure, than the did in falling with her and the Dutch ships, tho' they were no regular convoy; and the plaintiff paid the same premium for his insurance as was given on several ships at the same time, with a warranty to depart from any port of the channel; and it was the opinion of several merchants, that ships falling with convoy are to make the best of their way to the convoy, and not stay for an immediate one. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff.

For more learning on this subject, see Law of Bills of Exchange, Insurance, &c.

1. Intangibles, Were a sort of thieves in Richard's, in the fasthill Northern parts of England, mentioned 9 Hen. 5. cap. 8. and to called, because they dwelling within the liberty, did take in and receive such booties of cattle, and other things, as their confederates the out-partners brought in to them from the borders of Scotland.

2. Intangibles, See Ezettum.

3. Intangibles (ter sciellata legis,) The understanding, intention, and true meaning of law.

4. Citizens, Of a sort of laws, says, the judges ought to judge according to the common intention of law.

By intendment of law every patron, or rector of a church, is supposed to be reftient in his benefice, unless the contrary be proved.

5. Common intention, One part of a manor by common intendment, shall not be of another nature than the rest.

6. Common intention a will shall not be supposed to be made by collusion.

7. The law presumes that every one will act for his best advantage, and more credits the party, in whatsoever is to his own profit.

8. Ufury shall not be intended, unless it be expressely found by the jury.

9. Cowin shall not be intended or professed in law, unless it be expressely averred.

10. When one word may have a double intendment, one according to the law, and another against the law, that intendment shall be taken which is according to the law; and this by a reasonable intendment.

11. Intent, or Intention. The words shall be construed according to the intent of the parties, and not otherwise.

12. The intent shall be destroyed where it does not agree with the law.

13. Every agreement under the intent is the chief thing that is to be considered; and if by the act of God, or other means not arising from the party himself, the agreement be performed according to the words, yet the party shall perform it as near the intent as he may.

14. The intent shall be construed according to the intent of the parties; as upon face of a barrel of beer the barrel is not told, but upon a tablet of a hoghead of wine it is otherwise.

The intention of a man is not always to be purfued in equity; as if a man fettles a term in fruide for one and his heirs, yet it shall go to the executer; per Lord Nbert, Psab. 1689. Verin. 164. in case of D. of Norfet v. Hig.

On a treaty of marriage, the man and woman having each of them copyholds of inheritance, they mutually surrender the fame to the ufe of them two and the for- vivor, and the man dies before marriage. On his death, which was about thirty years fince, the woman entered and enjoyed the copul Held ever fince; it was fift to be trufe for the behoof of both of them, and the marriage; and Jeffrey, C. decreed a re-furrender, and an account of the profits from the death of the man.

Hill. 432. Hammond v. Hicks.

All deeds are but in nature of contracts, and the intent of the parties reduced into writing, and the intention is to be chiefly regarded. In an act of parliament the inten tion appearing in the preamble shall controul the let ter of the law; and from the regard that the law itself gives to the intention of the party, it is that where there is fine by the law there shall be no donor, and so a rent or recognizance shall not be extinguifhed by leasing a fine or a lease of any part of the land.

15. Intent Caunen & lupon, Words used formerly in appeals to signify the crime being done in the twilight.

16. M. N. De Ocele appellat f. pro rappt & pace reij frachis de Marta pra. C. Inter canen & lupon, in lond. e facipulis, felicit, Anglica twilight, i. inter dem & ma tem.

18. This in Herberdeyg, they call the meak bucke, corruption of the word, and in the north also bart, and others between hawk and buzzard.

20. Intempering, Is where the common of two manors lie together, and the inhabitants of both have time out of mind depauperated their cattle promiscuously in each.

22. Intemtion, (Interdict & Intemtion) Has the same signification in the Common, as it hath in the Can non law, which thus defines it: Intemtion et concurr. et eftaion. plene administrat. dispensa. And so it is used 22 Hen. 8. cap. 12. & 25 stefeller, cap. 23. Sedum anno relaxatam e interdictum Omnia, quae au- dentur, &c. and in the act of Peter clermont & feriacum anno proemis pratera fuit intestate. Wolf. Hinf. Anno 1357. So that an interdict is a general excommu nication of a whole country or province: *This mentioned in some of our historians, viz. Knightson tells us, Anno 1328, that the pope excommunicated King John, and all his adherents, and * St. Proclus v. William the Conqueror, in the year 1066; and continued nine years and one month; during which time nothing was done in the churches besides baptism and confessions of dying people: The form of it is thus:

23. In the name of Christ, We (the bishop) in the beh half of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, and in behalf of St. Peter the chief of the apostles, and in our own beh avor, do excommunicate and interdict this church, and all the chapels thereunto belonging, that no man from henceforth may have leave either of God, or St. Peter, to come into any of the apostles, to finge mass, or to hear it, or in any wife to administer mass, or any divine other thing in any church, or in the church of God's titles without our leave. And whoever faithfully promises to finge or hear mass, or perform any divine office, or receive God's titles, contrary to this interdict on the part of God the Father Almighty, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; and on the behalf of St. Peter, and all the faithful; may be excommunicated and accounted, and separated from all Christian society, and from enter ing into holy mother church, where there is forgive nests of fins; and let him be anatoma maran atba for ever with the devils in hell. Fiat. satd, fiat. Aban." Do so.

Interest. ([interfet]) Is usually taken for a term, or chattel real, and more particularly for a future term; in which case it is said in pleading, That he is possessed of interest term: But ex terminio in a legal sense, it extends to every kind of right and title over the land, or out of the land; for he is truly said to have an interest in them. Co. on Litt. 345.

The Lord Mountjoy, feied of the manor of Cawford in fee, did by deed indented and enrolled bargained and fell the same to Brown in fee, in which indenture this clause was contained. To wit, Brown did convey and grant and to and with the said Lord Mountjoy, his heirs and assigns, that the Lord Mountjoy, his heirs and assigns, might dig for ore in the lands (which were good walled) palfes of the said fman, and to dig turf also for the making of alum. Refolved, that this deed amount to a grant of an interest, and inheritance to the Lord Mountjoy, to dig, &c. Co. Litt. 164. b.

At Guildhall: In ejecution for a messuage in London, it was objected against the title of the plaintiff, that this was a messuage above 40 l. per annum, and that the cumber of the city, is, that there ought to be warning given for the space of a year, before the sale was to take place, and by the space of a quarter of a year, where it is under such a rent; the question was, if this cumber gave the party an interest; or only intituled him to an action if he be oufset within the time, as in the common cases of leases for years, or at will, with agreement of quarter's warning; though H. 16 Ch. 1. said, that he had heard that North Ch. 1. ruled upon evidence, that the cumber gave an interest; and though it was objected, that if it did not give an interest, it was not of any benefit to a citizen, who ought to have a reasonable time to remove his effects; yet the Ch. J. inclined him to contra; and was referred for his decision. Sirs. 54. Trim. 8 B. 3. B. R. Tyley v. Sedg.

A mortgage is an interest in land, and on non-payment, the ejectment is absolute in law, and his interest is good in equity to intitle him to receive and enjoy the profits till redemption or satisfaction, and, on a foreclosure, has the absolute ejectment both in law and equity.

Per Pratt Ch. 1. 9 Mod. 195. Reper v. Ratcliffe.

If A. makes a lease to B. for life, and after his death to the executors and assigns of B. this is an interest in B. to dispole of it. But if it had been limited to B. for life, and afterwards to the executors and assigns of B. it would not have been an interest; for they are not parties or privy to the first interest. Bract. 136. Perch. 4 Jac. Clerk v. Sydenham.

A. devised a term to his wife for six years, and made her executrix, and that after the six years ended, then John my fons, if he come home, shall have the benefit of the said lease during the reluf of the said term; and if John does not come home, then William my fons shall have, &c. till John my fons do come home. The wife claims as legatee. William makes his will, and dehives the lease to J. S. and dies. The six years expire, John being not come home; this was held a good devise by the executors, as they are not privy to the first interest. But an interest in the term after the six years expired. C. Jac. 509. Mod. 10 Jac. B. R. Sheriff v. Westham.

Interest of money. Where an eftate is devised for payment of debts, Chancery will not allow interest for book debts. 3 Ch. R. 94. Dolman v. Pritman.

If lands are charged with payment of 2 l. in a full; they are also chargeable in equity with payment of interest for such sum. Hill, 25 Car. 2. Finn. R. 286.

Shipton v. Tyrell.

Interest is recovered by way of damages, where damages are recovered ratioons detentions debits; but not where damages are only recovered exquantum damnum, per Powell J. 2 Salk. 623. Hill, 10 W. 3. B. R. Sweetland v. Squire.

A bill was to foreclose an infant, and an account was decreed. The matter reports 2620l. due: a subsequent order being to compute interest from the report; Wright K. doubted if interest should be allowed for the interest. Abb. 1700. 2 Vern. 392. Barnett v. Edward and Sally &c.

Lands by deed or will subjected to the payment of debts; if there be a bond debt, and the interest has out-run the penalty, it shall not carry interest beyond the penalty; for the design of the settlement was not to increase the debt and what is due, but to give a further security; however if device or trufte neglects to pay in a reasonable time, he shall after such neglect pay interest beyond the penalty; per Lord C. Cooper 1757. 1 Salk. 154. ".

A term was vested in trustees for payment of all debts he should owe at his death, without preferring one before another, and there were owing debts by bond and by simple contract. Lord C. Hartcourt declared, that by this term only, the simple contract debts became as debts due by mortgage, and consequently should carry interest, as well as the debts secured by bond. Win's Rep. 228, 229. Trim. 1713. Cov. v. Burlington (County.)

Where by a general and national calamity, nothing is made out of lands which are assigned for payment of interest, it ought not to run on during the time of such calamity. MS. Tab. cites 25 June 1715. Eyfyl v. Acheson.

A recognition was entered into to pay 100l. a year annual to a third person. The annuity was in several years. Decreed per Lord Cooper, that, the recognition being in nature of a bond, the arrears were a debt secured thereby, and so must carry interest from the time they became respectively due. Abb. 3 Geo. 1. Fug. R. 143. Legiste v. Sowell.

No interest to be allowed for cofts. MS. Tab. cites 6 Feb. 1719. Lutler v. Barke.

By marriage-articles the Lady's father was to pay several fums at several times for discharging the husband's incumbrances; he advances money to the son-in-law, and maintains the wife and child for two years: such money and allowance for maintenance, shall be added to the foot of the account, and not carry interest. MS. Tab. cites 1721. Kirwin v. Blake.

Where excessive rates are allowed for work in respect of flow payment, there shou'd be no interest allowed, for the interest is only allowed to supply the want of prompt payment. MS. Tab. cites 27 Feb. 1723. Ditchef of Marlborough v. Strong.

An annuity of 20l. a year was devised by A. to J. S. out of A's personal estate, payable quarterly, and the same being three years in arrear, it was infituted that it should carry interest. But the court said, that this is only done where there are great arrears, but it is not usual to compute interest for so small a sum. Trim. 1723. at the Rolls. 2 Win's Rep. 163. Batten v. Earby.

The arrears of annuity, or rent-charge, are never de- ced to be paid with interest, but where the sum is certain and fixed, and also where there is either a claufe of entry, or running payer, or some penalty upon the grantor, which he must undergo if the grantee fail at law, and which would oblige him to come into this court for relief, which the courts will not grant but upon equal terms, and can be no other, but decreasing the arrears with interest. Per Ld. C. Talbot. Cases in Chanc. in Lord Talbot's time. 2 Abb. 1723. in the case of Lady Ferrers v. Lord Ferrers.

For more learning on this subject, see 4 Vin. Abr. tit. Interest.

Interclauent unpater, (Order interclauentia.) Is that which decides not the cause, but only settles some interning matter, or special point, or matter supplementary to the cause; as when an order is made, by motion in Chancery, for the plaintiff to have an injunction to quiet his possession, till the hearing of the cause. This, or any such order, not being final, is interlocutory. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Interpleader. See Interpleader.

Interrogatories. Are questions exhibited in writing to be asked witnesses, or contemners to be examined. P. R. C. 217.

They are exhibited by the party, or directed by the court, to be proposed, and asked the witnesses exhibited in
in the cause, touching the merits thereof, or some inci-

They are either direct, on the part of him who produces the will, or counter-interrogatories on the behal-of the adverse party, P. R. C. 219, 220.

A person in continuance appears on an attachment, and -offered to be examined on interrogatories; the court ordered them to be halled and held in 4 days, (that the common time allowed is 8) or the party to be discharged.

P. R. C. 219.

One who is by rule of the court to be examined by interrogatories in the Crown-office, ought to attend the Maller of the office, who is to examine him within four days after the interrogatories are put in for him to be examined upon, for the specific dispatch of justice; and he is not bound to attend before 2 L. P. R. 73, cites Anst. 1, R. B. 22.

Note: Upon a motion to be discharged because no interrogatories were put in within four days, it was ruled, that the four days must be in term. Conv. 8 Hill. 1 & 2.

Counsel had ordered to not a copy, but a sight of the interrogatories, to which the defendant was to be examined. Chen. Cafi 66. Poiche, 17 Car. 2. Geever v. Balthulys.

A defendant, who after four insufficient answers, was -to be examined, had by order of the court (for special reasons) leave for one of her counsel (to take the interrogatories as put in them in point of law) but not to have a copy. P. R. C. 218, Ordered to have a copy. N. Ch. R. 119. 19 Car. 2. History v. Pellop, S. P. No rule, if the party be to be examined on a bare contempt. P. R. C. 218.

A man is charged with a contempt; upon interrogatories he exculpate himself on oath; the other party
-can proceed no further in this matter, but shall take his remedy by action if he will. Conv. 63, Mac. 2.

Instructions. To fequefter or put in a third hand, viz.
-when any thing is stolen, and sold to another, and afterwards demanded by the right owner of it in whose -possession 'twas found; it was usual to sequeft' the thing to a third person, who was to keep it till the buyer produced the seller, and fo on to the theft. Leg. donaqu Brompton, cap. 27, 52, 29. Leg. Edu. Conifhor. cap. 25.

Instructions. (Intructions) There are two kinds of -instructions, one that makes no will at all; another that makes a will, and nominates executors, but they refuse; in -which case he dies an intructor, and the ordinary commits -administration. 2 Par.脚f. 327. In former times,
-he who died intestate was accounted damnable, because (as Mat. Par. tells us) he was oblied by the canons, to leave
-281. 4. a freehold, to the poor, for the redemption of his soul, and therefore, who neglected to do it, took no care of his own salvation. They made no difference between a falsid and an instruction; for as in one case, the goods were forfeited to the King, in the other they were forfeited to the chief lord. But because -it was account ed a very wicked thing to die without making any distribution of his goods to pious udfs, and
-such cases often happened by sudden deaths, therefore by -subsequent conscriptions, the bishop had power to make -such distribution as the intestate himself was bound to do; and this was called Elcftmnia rationabilis. Thus in Matt.
-Parish. of one 1106, we read, Si quis fubinde morte vel quilibet cafu p.teccamentum futfiet ut de rebus fuis fiponere non posset, distribuirfam lemnam ejus ecclesiificl fidei abut
-rate: And it was by this means that the spiritual courts came first to have jurisdiction in testamentary cases. Convell, edit. 1727.

In this case, it is pointed out that the executors of J. S. shall be his executors, and he dies, living J. S. there till the death of J. S. this is a dying intestate of A. for in the mean time A. has no executor. Pl. C. 251, 1. by Dyer and Wallis, Poiche, 7 Edw. in the case of Greystoke v. Fae.

So if A. makes J. S. (to be) his executor 4 years after his death; for within the year he dies intestate, and therefore for this the ordinary has power to commit admi-nistration, and it haff never be disproved; By Dyer and

-Wallis, Pl. C. 281, 1. in the case of Greystoke v. Fae.

In all cases of intestates, who die intestate, the
-there, from the death of such executor by dying intestate,
-the first testator dyeth intestate, and for that reason the ordinary may grant administration. Per Dyer and Wptin, ibid. 281, 1. 282, a.

Where the wording of the Civil law is observed, there
-a case is made partly relatable and partly intestate; that
-see in England, where that eremual bifidues is not observed, but all immunities enjoy'd, being not obliged to -any other observance in making testaments than what is
-pure genossen, a man may several ways die partly relatable
-and partly intestate. 1 Gilly, Opsg. Leg. cap. 19, 1.

16, we read, that one places (tomum annexe qui ille intetate a,) which is absurd and repugnant por cur. It is well; for though one make a will, yet if -he make no executor he is intestate. Conv. 20. Poiche, 7 Joc. 2. B.R. Anst. See Administrition.

Intails & Crittil, Toll or custom paid for things impor ted and exported, or brought in, and fold out. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Intarre maritalem. To drain any low wet marsh or -bog, and by dikes, walls, &c. to reduce it to herbage or
-pulver ground, to nine or take in. Whence many of the -lowest grounds in Romney Marsh, are called the -Immer (from anomalies of the case) and also 1681. intarre terram, a low ground from the sea.

Intuittus. (Intrusus) Is when the ancestor dies folioed
-of any estate of inheritance, expectant upon an eftate for -life; and then tenant for life dies, between whole death,
-and the entry of the heir, a Branger both interpole and -Braunf. ib. cap. 2. to the same purpose.) Thus,
-Intrusus olib qui quisnullum jacem publicam in nec
-scintilla jure, jufjufius vocem incogitandum, quia nec an-nae nec corporis pecuniae, et cony. with whom agreeid
-Electa, 1. c. 3. feitt. 1 & 2. Britton. c. 63.

The heir of the King's; not, intruding on the King, garden of no frehold. 4 Ed. 1. j. c. 4. 17 Ed. 2.

13. Ecclesiastical persons entering before payment of first -fruits demanded intruders. 26 Ed. 8. c. 3. feit. 5.

Bishops, &c. may notwithstanding give infition and -induction. Idb. feitt. 7.

In information of intuitor the defendant may plead
-the general issue, and retain the prefdion till trial, 21

Intruitor de gard. is a writ that lies where the infant
-within age entered into his lands, and held his lord out.
-For in this case the lord shall not have the writ due,
-and the writ of part of his goods to pious uses, for the
-redemption of his soul, and therefore, who neglected to do it, took no care of his own salvation. They made no difference between a falsid and an instruction; for as in one case, the goods were forfeited to the King, in the other they were forfeited to the chief lord. But because it was account ed a very wicked thing to die without making any distribution of his goods to pious udfs, and such cases often happened by sudden deaths, therefore by subsequent conscriptions, the bishop had power to make such distribution as the intestate himself was bound to do; and this was called Elcftmnia rationabilis. Thus in Matt. Parish. of one 1106, we read, Si quis fubinde morte vel quilibet ca}-fum pteccamentum futfiet ut de rebus fuis fiponere non posset, distribuirfam lemnam ejus ecclesiificl fidei abut-rate: And it was by this means that the spiritual courts came first to have jurisdiction in testamentary cases. Convell, edit. 1727.

In this case, it is pointed out that the executors of J. S. shall be his executors, and he dies, living J. S. there till the death of J. S. this is a dying intestate of A. for in the mean time A. has no executor. Pl. C. 251, 1. by Dyer and Wallis, Poiche, 7 Edw. in the case of Greystoke v. Fae.

So if A. makes J. S. (to be) his executor 4 years after his death; for within the year he dies intestate, and cutor or administrator is bound to exhibit to the ordinary at such times as he shall appoint, a copy, signed, sealed, and witnessed by you for the form. This inventory proceeds from the Civil law; for whereas by the ancient law of the Romans, the heir was obliged to answer all the teflatores' debts, by which means he might have been more prejudicial to many than profitable; for instance, to pay the will, and to bring to the deceased, the frumentary office, ordained, that if the heir would make and exhibit a true inventory of all the teflatores' goods coming to his hands, he should be no further charged than to the value of the inventory. Lib. 11. Cod. de Jure delibrando, &c.

which that 11 H. 8 testify mult of the executors, or such persons to whom administration shall be committed, taking to them two at least, to whom the performance of it was indebted, or made any legacy, and upon their absence two other persons being next of kin to the persons dying, and in their absence, two other beneficents, shall make a true inventory of all the goods, as well movables as not movable, that were of the persons deceased; and the same shall be concluded in the midst, whereof the one part shall be by the executors or administrators, upon oath to be taken before the bishop, &c. delivered into the keeping of the bishop, &c. and the other to be continued in theInventory, and no bishop, &c. shall refuse to take such an inventory fo tendered to him in court, together with his oath to verify the same.

Sell. 3. Provides, That this act shall not prejudice any ordinary, or other person, having or hereafter to have any estate, to assert in the courts; nor may any person or persons before whom the executors or administrators may convene before them execute or refuse the testament, &c. and to bring in inventories, &c.

A. by will, among other legacies, gave C. a young fon 2000l. to be paid at several times, and made B. his eldest fon executor, leaving a very great part of his estate to him. He proved his will, and swore to bring in an inventory, and a time is assigned by the judge for the doing it, but he not doing it, C. cites him before the judge, who is satisfied that there needed not any. The will before the citation was proved per testam, and sentenced to be a good will; the reason why the judge thought the inventory not necessary was, because the two first payments were made, and releases given, and as for the last, B. offered payment thereof to C. and had allowed him 6l. per cent. though the will gave only 4l. Upon appeal to the delegates the whole cause was heard, and sentence given, that there was no need of an inventory. The executors and beneficiaries, brought in a review, and prayed, that the sentence be reversed, and that B. may be compelled to bring in an inventory for these reasons: 1. That there may be found another will in which C. may be executor, and then he will be to seek for the effect. 2. There may be specialties taken on B. in the name of C. and no truth being declared, the same will be conferred an advancement to C. 3. B. the present executor may die intestate, and then the administration de boni non will belong to C. 4. This statute fays, that the executor shall make a true and perfect inventory. 5. B. had sworn to do so, and no judge can discharge with his oath only; and from their arguments, sentence was confirmed by Ed. Ch. J. North, and Wyndham and Raymond J. and Dr. Newton, and Dr. Oxenden, Commissioners of Review; and said, that as to the first three arguments there shall not be presumed another will, or specialties, or dying intestate; and that the intention of the statute was for the benefit of legatees and creditors; and it is found that B. has acknowledged in his hands 25000l. more than enough to pay the debts and legacies. And by the statute the inventory is to consist only of goods, chattels, wares and merchandizes, and not of things in action, whereas the intention of this statute was for the benefit of legatees and creditors; and it would be very disadvantageous to debtors, (as this cafe is) to have their debts discovered, when no necessity requires it; and the ordinary does frequently dispense with a longer time to bring in an inventory, and so he may dif

vol. ii. no. 95.
The declaration, the plaintiff had judgment; and upon error brought, it was assigned for error, that he having two revisions, the one in ten, and the other for years, and that by several deeds, he ought to have brought several actions; but adjudged, that the action was well brought. 2 C. 329. Fyld. v. Lady St. John.

Two lexic for years, rendering rent; one of them after the death of the defendant, and the other made his will, and appointed an executor, and died; the rent was behind after the assignment made by one, and after the death of the other lexic, and an action was brought against the defendant in the debt and detine; it was objected, that a joint action would not lie against both, but that the plaintiff had released the other. The interloc was divided; one by assignment, and the other as executor; but adjudged, that the fevance or the land shall not make any fevance of the action. 3 Bult. 211. Ipswich Battile v. Martin and Parker.

In trepass, the plaintiff declared, that the defendant, at an action of slander, because the defendant did not the defecation of the defenent. Trin. 28 H. 8. 84ter 19.

Two brought trespass against the defendant for breaking their clothe; upon Not guilty pleaded, it was found for the plaintiff; but the judgment was reversed upon a writ of error, because it appears upon the plaintiff's own sevance, that the action ought to be brought against two; but if trespass had been brought against one, who pleaded, that it was done by him, and by him alone, the defendant had released, and the plaintiff severally the release; in such case, because the custom doth not appear upon the plaintiff's sevance, but comes in on the part of the defendant, the declaration is good. 1 Loin. 41. Henly v. Brad.

Two cannot join in an action of slander, because the defendant doth not the defecation of the defendants. 8 R. 28. 54ter 19.

Two Persons exhibited two informations at the same time, an action for taking a leaf of lands contrary to the statute of 21 H. 8. 87, adjudged, that he shall not plead to either of them; this is like two plebians brought at the same time for the same action, &c. the defendant shall answer neither. Mor. 384. Pyr. v. Croke.

Tenants in common cannot join in an action of waife against their lessor; but is otherwise in the case of co-partners or jointants. Mor. 34.

The objection was季e interlocutor, and severally with two femaily, this is a good covenant; but the three cannot join in an action of covenant. Trin. 17 Car. March 103.

Cafe, &c. wherein the plaintiff declared, that in consideration his father would surrender a copyhold to the defendant, he promised to give one of his children, and to pay, and the action was brought by one of them; after a verdict for the plaintiff, it was movd in arrest of judgment that the plaintiff had declared upon a joint promis made to two, and the action was brought by one, whereas the other ought to be joined; but adjudged, that the defendant had divided interets, and by consequens the action is well brought by one of them. Style 451. Thom. v. the cafe. Sec. 2 Fin. 38. 75.
Joint action. See Jointer in action.

Joint and feudal. An interdict cannot be granted jointly and severally to several defendants regradum adserur, or makes a lease for years, to two jointly and severally, those words (feveral) are void, and they are co-tenants. 5 Rep. 19. Mib. 29 & 30 Eliz. Slingsby's cafe.

A power or authority may be joint and several. 5 Rep. 19. Slingsby's cafe.

Joint words of parties shall, by construction of law, be taken respectively and severally. 5 Rep. 7. b. (2) Mich. 31 & 32 Eliz. B. R. Justice Wyndham's case.

When it appears by the count, that the several co-tenants have, or are to have, several interests or effeves, the several words of such co-tenants, as & cum guility et erum, those words make the covenant severally, in respect of their several interests. 5 Rep. 19. Mib. 29 & 30 Eliz. Slingsby's cafe.

There is a difference between a power given to two, and an interest given to two; a lease for years is made to two, & scilite erum, this is a joint lease, and the words (several) are void; this is to maintain quiet and avoid contention. So of an obligation made to two & scilite erum, or a grant of the next avoidance to two & scilite erum, to present A. to the said church, is good; for the omission is avoided by refraining both to present A. & B. & C. pl. 1. b. Sedl. Sect. 10. & 11. 459.

Joint execution. See Currunt.

Joint fines. If a whole in fee is to be fixed, a joint fine may be laid, and it will be good for the necessity of; but in other cases, fines for offenses are to be severally imposed on each particular offender, and not jointly upon all of them. 1 Rol. Rep. 33. 11 Rol. 42. Dyer Longer.

Joint invidences. May be sometimes had: If offces of several persons arise from a joint criminal act, without any regard to any particular personal default or fault of either of the defendants; as the joint keeping a gaming house; or unlawful hunting, and carrying away deer; or maintenance, extortion, &c. an indictment or information may charge the defendants jointly. Venr. 302. 2 Hawk. P. C. 240. When there are one defendants than one in an information, they may exhibit a joint plea of Not guilty; but are to plead and answer, that neither of them, or any of them are guilty. 1 Il. 6. 20. 2 Rob. Adr. 707.

Joint lives. A bond was made to a woman dum la, to pay her mo much yearly as long as she and the bigger should live together, &c. afterwards the woman married, and debt being brought on this bond by husband and wife, the defendant pleaded, that he and the lainstead's wife did not live together; but it was adjudged, that the money should be paid during their joint vies, so long as they were living at the same time, &c. Lart. 555. And a person in consideration of receiving the profits of the wife's lands on marriage, during her joint lives, was to pay a sum of money yearly in suit for the wife, though it was not paid every year during. &c. It was held, that the payment shall be invaded to continue every year also during their joint vies. 1 Lart. 459. Leafe for years to husband and wife, if they or any of their bodies should so long as they have been adjudged to so long and any other of them, or any of their issue should live; and not only so long as the husband and wife, &c. Should jointly live. Mar 339.

Joint-tenants, (dim. tenentes, or qui conjuncti sunt in tenent, i. e. &c. Tenenium, tit. Formed in suria, 3.) Are those that have any of their bodies by the same preter int, or without partition. 5 Co. on Lib. 2. c. 3. f. 177. These are distinguished from sole or several tenants, from partners, and from tenants in common; and anciely they were called participes, and not bareled. And held in joint and several, and jointly be implicate by others, which properly is common between them and cor- parcers; but joint-tenants have a sole quality of sur- vivorship, which common, if there be two or three joint-tenants, and one hath ill fortune, and dies, then he or those joint-tenants that survive, shall have the whole by survisorship. Crouel, edit. 1737.

Where a feoffment is made to two or more, and their heirs, or a lease is made to them for term of their lives, they are joint-tenants; for after their deceases, if they shall jointly hold per me & per terra, and shall jointly implead, which property is common between them and corparcers; but joint-tenants have a sole quality of sur- vivorship, which neither coparcers nor tenants in common have. Lit. ject. 277.

Tenants in common is to have those that come to the land by several titles, or by one title and several rights; as if there be three joint-tenants, and one alien his part, the other two are joint-tenants of their parts that remain, and hold them in common with the alience; so if joint-tenants make several feoffments or gifts in tail, or leases for life, the bequests, donees or leefees are tenants in common. Lit. ject. 292. Co. Lit. 18q. a.

And as the effential difference between joint-tenants and tenants in common is, that joint-tenants have the lands by one joint title, and in one, and tenants in common by several titles, or by one title and by several rights; this is the reason, fays Mr. Coke, that joint-tenants have one joint freehold, and tenants in common have several freeholds, though this property is common to them both, viz. that their occupation is individuated, and neither of them knoweth his part in several. Co. Lit. 18q. a.

Hence it appears, that the wife of a joint-tenant cannot be endowed; as if lands are given to two men and their heirs, or the heirs of their two bodies, and one of them dies, his wife shall not be endowed, but it shall go to the survivor, who then is in from the first fecor or donor, and may plead it as an original feoffment or gift to himself, and fo is paramount this title of dower, which is not complete till her husband's death: and one book fays, it was the antient course in mortgages to make the estate to two, in order to prevent the mortgagee's wife of dower. Co. Lit. 30. a. 31. b. 32. b. 3 Co. 27. Bras. tit. Dower 4. 84. Cre. Eiz. 503. Perk. ject. 334.

But the wife of a tenant in common shall be endowed; for there no survivorship takes place, but each moiety defends to the respective heirs of the respective tenant in common, and in such case the dower shall be assigned in common too, for can have it otherwise than her husband had. Co. Lit. 44. 45. Co. Lit. 34. b. 37. 31.

Also if there be two joint-tenants, and one releashes to the other, this palfeth a fee without the word heirs, because it refers to the whole fee, which they jointly took, and are possessed of by force of the first conveyance; but the tenants in common cannot releas to other person; for it releas to the party to have the thing in demand; but tenants in common have several freeholds, which they cannot transfer otherwise than as persons who are sole feeld. Co. Lit. 9. 200. b.

If lands be given to A. and B. and the heirs of A. B. who is only joint-tenant for life, cannot surrender his estate to A. for contribution with him per me & per tanta. 21 Il. 6. 51. 2 Rob. Adr. 861. If land be given jointly to two, upon condition that they shall not alien, and one of them releas to the other, it is no breach of the condition. Winch. 3. Rem. 413.

If there be two joint-tenants of land helden by heriot service, and one dies, the other shall not pay heriot ser- vice; for there is no charge of the tenant, the survivor continuing tenant of the whole land. Owen 152. Butler and Archer.

And although tenants in common have several free- holds, yet one tenant in common cannot disable the other, on the contrary, his right rests upon an actual difficil, as turning him out, and hindering him to enter; but a bare perception of the profits is not enough. 1 Salt. 392. Reading's cafe.
1. Who may be joint-tenants or tenants in common.

2. Of what things there may be a joint-tenancy or tenancy in common, and of the right of survivorship, and what things shall survive.

3. At what time the right of survivorship is to take place; and what disposition or conveyance will work a survivorship, and defeat the right of survivorship.

4. Of survivorship by compulsion of laws; and of the sort of partition.

5. How joint-tenants and tenants in common are to sue and be sued; of summons and severance and the remedies they have against each other.

1. Who may be joint-tenants or tenants in common.

An alien and subject cannot be joint-tenants with each other, neither can a corporation, whether sole or aggregate, be joint-tenant with a natural person; and therefore if land be given to two bipeds, or abbots, or parsons, and their successors, they are tenants in common at first, and have no joint estate for life; for they take in their politic capacities in right of their churches or corporations; and as such they descend to a joint-tenant, or if lands be given to a layman and a parson, and to the heirs of one, and successor of the other, they are tenants in common; for the fee vests in them in several capacities. Co. Lit. 180. b.

Bodies politic or corporate cannot be joint-tenants with each other, neither can a corporation, whether sole or aggregate, be joint-tenant with a natural person; and therefore if land be given to two bipeds, or abbots, or parsons, and their successors, they are tenants in common at first, and have no joint estate for life; for they take in their politic capacities in right of their churches or corporations; and as such they descend to a joint-tenant, or if lands be given to a layman and a parson, and to the heirs of one, and successor of the other, they are tenants in common; for the fee vests in them in several capacities. Co. Lit. 180. a.

Dilexiors may be joint-tenants, and upon the death of one of them the survivor shall have the whole; for the right, foth as it was, continued jointly in them. 21 Ed. 3. 52. b. 2 Rol. Ab. 87.

Infants may be joint-tenants, and if there be two infants joint-tenants, who alien in fee, and one of them dies, the survivor shall have the whole; for notwithstanding the alienation the joint-tenancy is not severed, by reason of the possibility of defeating it by writing futurum interesse. 21 Ed. 3. 52. a. 2 Rol. Ab. 87.

Baron and fee may be joint-tenants; but herein it is to be observed, that husband and wife, being considered but as one person in law, if an estate be made to husband and wife, and a third person and their heirs, the husband and wife take but one moiety, the third person the other. Lit. fo? 291.

Also baron and fee being one person in law, there can be no moieties between them of an estate given to them jointly during coverture; and therefore if lands be given to husband and wife, and their heirs, the husband cannot during the wife's life dispose of any part of it, but the whole must go to the survivor of them. Co. Lit. 187. a.

But if an estate be made to a man and a woman, and their heirs, before marriage, and after they marry, the husband and wife have moieties between them. Co. Lit. 187. b.

And as there can be no moieties between husband and wife of an estate given to them during their marriage, it hath been holden, that if the husband be attainted and executed, the wife shall by her petition regain all such lands, conveyed jointly to her and her husband. Co. Lit. 187. a.

So if the lord enter on the husband being his villein, and having made such purchase, the wife surviving shall recover the whole. Co. Lit. 187.

It is said, that if a deed of feoffment or grant of a reversion be made to them while sole, and then they intermarry beforeivery or attornment, that they take no moieties; but if they had been feoffed of an ufe by moieties before the 27 H. 8. cap. 10. and such ufe had been executed, by the statute they should have had the eftate of the land by moieties; for they should have the estate in such plent when they had the use. Co. Lit. 187.

And when a person conveys and recovers by the force of a warranty made to them when sole, yet they shall have no moieties in the estate recovered. Co. Lit. 187.

If A makes a feoffment to the ufe of hisifelf and ufe as he shall marry, and afterwards takes a wife, he and his wife are joint-tenants, tho' he were feoffed of a vested feoffment before marriage, and the wife had nothing; for by the marriage the contingent estate vested in them both at the same time by the said limitation. Co. Lit. 188. 1 Co. 104. Dyer 340.

If A purchasewalka in a ufe, and take the patent thus. To himself and his wife, and one 7. 8. for their lives, and the life of the longest lived of them, and a fee to wards J. dies indecd, this purchase is not afeoff; for it shall be presumed to be intended an advancement and provision for the wife; for she cannot be a trustee for her husband, and therefore the ufe shall enjoy the benefit of it during her life; but after her decease, in case she shall survive her, then to a trut for the executor of the husband, and applied towards the payment of his debts. 1 Vern. 69, decreed between Kingdon v. Bridges.

A lease is made to A. and to husband and wife, 915. to A. for life, husband in tail, wife for years; in this case each of the three has a several estate. Co. Lit. 188. a.

If an estate be limited to husband and wife, and the heirs of the body of the husband, they are joint-tenants, and for life, and the inheritance is so executed in him, that if he make a feoffment, this will be a discontinuance to his ufe; but if he execute a common recovery with single voucher, this will bind neither the issue nor any remainders, because his wife was feoffed of the whole jointly with him, and not part, and there are no moieties between them, and therefore it cannot be good for any part; but the feoffment deals with the poifession and gives it away by fidein livery; and therefore to preserve the warranty, this amounts to a discontinuance, and the ufe shall be put to his farmen in defender, and those in re-fore it is said not to be necessary in articles of copartnership to provide against it. 1 Vern. 217.

The joie accreentendi, or right of survivorship, takes place only between joint-tenants; as where lands are given to two men and their heirs, the survivor shall have the whole for being limited to them and their heirs, the seffior or donor having thereby transferred the absolute property to them; but how the word heirs came to signify the heirs of one of them, so as to exclude the heirs of him who died first, is not easy to be determined, and can be accounted for no otherwise than that both joint-tenants being intitled to the whole during their respective lives, the survivor having continued longer in possession was therefore presumed to have done more service to the feud, and upon that account was allowed to transmit it to his heirs; also, says my Lord Chief Justice Holin. 3 I say, the common law does not love to multiply tenures. Ca. Lit. 181. 1 Salt. 372.

So if lands be given to two men for life or years, they are joint-tenants, and the survivor shall hold the whole for his life, or according to the number of years limited

But if a man let his lands to A. and B. during the life of A. but if B. die, A. shall have all by survivorship;
but if A. die, B. shall have nothing. Ca. Lit. 181. 6.

A naked trust or authority cannot survive; but a trust coupled with an interest shall survive together with it.
Ca. Lit. 181. 6, but for this, see Setiff.

If a lease be for the use of A. and B. for their lives, and the life of the longest lived of them, and they make partition, and then A. dies, the lessor shall enter into his part; for B. has no title to it, because the right of survivorship was lost by the partition, which destroyed the joint-tenancy; nor will the words to the longest lives be of any use to E. because they were void at first, being no more than the law implied in the joint estate.
Ca. Lit. 181. 6. 2 Rol. Abr. 150.

Two joint-tenants of a rent-charge or rent-service, and one of them dies, the survivor shall recover all the rentarages which incurred and became due in the lifetime of his companion. 33 El. 6. 20. 4. 15 Ed. 3.
Sijf. 18. 2 Rol. Abr. 86.

Two joint-tenants fow their land with corn, and one of them dies, the corn sown shall go to the survivor, and the moiety shall not be to the executor of the proson decayed; for they are supposed to carry on the cultivation of the soil by a joint flock. 2 Rol. Abr. 86. 1 Rol.
Abr. 727.

But if husband and wife are joint-tenants, and the husband fows the land with corn, and dies, the crop shall go to the executors of the husband, as it seems; for this land is not cultivated by a joint flock, but is totally the corn of the husband, and the property of them, and seems not to be lost by committing it to the joint possession, no more than if it had been sown in the land of the wife only.
1 Rol. Abr. 727.

So if there be two tenants in common, and one of them sows the land, and die, his executors shall have the corn; because they have different interests, and are sup-pod to cultivate by different flocks, and not by a joint
one. Perk. fett. 523.

3. At what time the right of survivorship is to take place;
and what disposition or conveyance will work a severance,
and defeat the right of survivorship.

This right is to take place immediately upon the death of the joint-tenant, whether it be a natural or civil death; as if there be two joint-tenants, and one of them enters into illness, the survivor shall have the whole.
Ca. Lit. 181. 6.

Alfo it is laid down as a rule, that there shall be no right of survivorship, unless the thing be in jouissance at the intant of the death of him who first dieth: nihil de sue honorifico, nisi nihil in re quando jus accreenfendi habitat.
Ca. Lit. 188. 6.

Therefore

4 G

Therefore

4 G
JOI

Therefore if there be two joint-tenants of a rent, and one of them die[s], the tenant of the land, this is a feve-rance of the jointure for a time; for the moiety of the rent is suspended by unity of possession, and therefore cannot stand in jointure with the other moiety in possession, for that if during such suspension one joint-tenant dies, there can be no further jointure.

_Co. Lit. 186._ b.

Two joint-tenants of a lease for years, one of them takes his husband and dies, yet the term shall fur-vive; for though all chartels real are given to the hus-band, if he survive, yet the survivor between the joint-tenants is the elder title, and after the marriage the same continued sole after his death; if the husband dieth, the term shall be dissolved, and not the executor of the husband; but otherwise it is of personal goods.

_Co. Lit. 135._ b.

Although joint-tenants are feized per mixt & per tant, yet to divers purposes each of them hath but a right to a moi-e ty; as to enfeoff, give, or demise, or to forfeit or lose by default in a præcept; and therefore where there are two or more joint-tenants, and they all join in a feoffment, each of them in judgment of law gives but his part.

_Co. Lit. 186._ a.

So if there be two joint-tenants, and they both make a feoffment in fee, a gift in tail, or lease for life, _Co._ upon condition, as they bothbreach thereof, then the other enters into the whole, yet he shall enter but into a moiety, because no more in judgment of law perished from him.

_Co. Lit. 186._ a.

If one joint-tenant bargain and sells his moiety, and dies before the deed is enrolled, yet the deed being after-wards enrolled shall work a severance of the jointure by relation the intereft of the bargainer.

_Co. Lit. 136._ a.

But if one joint-tenant bargain and sells all the lands, and before enrollment the other dies, his part shall fur-vive; for the freehold not being out of him, the jointure remains.

_Co. Lit. 225._ a. But only a moiety shall pass; for the enrollment by relation cannot make the grant of any better effect than it would have been if it had taken effect immediately.

_Cros. Jac. 53._

_Co. Lit. 186._ 1 Bail. 5.

If a recovery be had against a joint-tenant, who dieth before execution, the survivor shall not avoid this re-cover, because that the right of the moiety is bound by it.

_Co. Lit. 185._

If one joint-tenant agree to alien, and does it not, but dies, this will not defeat the joint-tenancy, nor bind the survivor.

_2 Term. 69._ That such an agreement does not bind at law.

_Co. Lit. 184._ b.

Two joint-tenants of a church leaf, one whereas being taken sick in a journey, to fever the jointure and provide for his wife fends for the schoolmaster of the town, (who was the only person he could to come at him,) and acquainted him with his intentions, and directed him to prepare an instrument for that purpos[e]; the schoolmaster drew a kind of deed of gift of the leaf from the sick man to the wife, which he executed, and died; and this being to the wife, and void in law, the would have made it good in equity, but was dismiffed, being voluntary and without confederation.

_Prested. Chit. 124._ 2 Term. 385. S. C.

The proper conveyance by one joint-tenant to another, and what will most effectually sever the joint-tenancy, is a release; but one joint-tenant cannot eneoff his companion, because they are both already feized per mixt & per tant; and this manner of conveyance putting by livery, cannot operate, so as to give him what he already has; but tenants in common cannot release to each other; for a release supposes the party to have the thing in demand, but tenants in common have several difficient freeholds, which one cannot transfer to the other without the fo-lemony of livery.

_22 H. 6. 42. k._ Perk. Jitt. 193._ 193._

But tho' a release be the proper conveyance from one joint-tenant to another, yet if the jury find that the one joint-tenant did grant or convey to another, this amounts to a release; for they having found the substantial part, the court is to apply the words according to the operation they have in law; but every such conveyance must be pleaded as a release.

_1 Cott. 78. 1 Sir. 452._ 2 Saund. 56. 2 Keb. 641. Raym. 187._ S. C. Cifter v. Wiltins. 4 Mond. 151. S. P.

So if there be two joint-tenants for life, and one is a feme covert, and the Baron and feme levy a fine to the moieties, and the Baron thereby grant suit & squires in the land for the life of the wife, upon the death of the other joint-tenant the lef[or] may enter, for the fine in-curred by way of release, and then the other joint-tenant must have claimed the whole from the first feoffment, if he could have had the whole but for his own life.

_Roll. Abr. 193._

_Cro. Jac. 695._ Engage v. Scouler; and fee 6 Co. 78. b. S. P.

An agreement between joint-tenants of an advowson, that they should be tenants in common, and that each of them should preft, amounts to a feoffment and release.

_Cartb. 505._ 1 Salt. 42. S. C.

If there be two joint-tenants of a rent, the one may release to the other; but if the rent be behind, the one cannot release his interest in the earriages to another.

1 Lom. 167.

One joint-tenant or tenant in common may let his part for years or at will to his companion; for this only gives a moiety of the lands, which, when he dieth, if he had but a right to the moiety thereof, and he may contract with his companion for that purpose, as well as he may with any stranger.

_Co. Lit. 186._ a. Owen 102.

A release or severance between joint-tenants of a freehold must be by deed, because by the notoriety of infeffure they take it jointly; and to alter that, a mat-ter of feeility is required, which is a deed; but tenant in common may make a partition without deed, because that is only a feting out by metes and bounds, according to the ift infeffure, which gave each of them the power to make a partition.

_Co. Lit. 168._ 1 Roll. Abr. 848.

Regularly every disposition by one joint-tenant to his companion must be an immediate disposition; for the surviving joint-tenant claiming the whole by the original infeffure, the whole must defend to him, unless his companion has disposed of it from him in his lifetime.

_Co. Lit. 168._ 1 Roll. Abr. 848.

But if two joint-tenants are in fee, and one let his moiety to f. S. for years, to begin after his death, this is good, and shall bind the other, if he survive, because this is a present disposition, and binds the land from the time of the lease made, so that he cannot after avoid it.

_Co. Lit. 135._ a.

_But a devife for years in such manner by one joint tenant will not bind the other furviving, because that is a no preft disposition, nor binding on the devifor himself in allmash as he may revoke or cancel his will, and b detroy that devife._

_Lit. feft. 287._ 2 Roll. Abr. 848.

_Als if there be two joint-tenants of lands, and one of them devifes away that which belongs to him, and dies this is a void devife, and the devifee takes nothing, be-cause the devife does not take effect till after the death of the devifor, and then the furviving joint-tenant take the whole by a prior title, sec. from the first feoffment but in this case, the devifor furviving the other joint tenant, then the devife is good for the whole by furvive-ship, and then the words of the will are sufficient to car the whole effate; besides, at the time of making the will, tho' he was not sole tenant, yet he was feized per mixt & per tant, and it is impossible to fix upon any partic-ular part which he meant to devife, because he could no then call one part of the land more his own than the other, and the most genuine construction seems to give the whole land, since he was feized per tant of it at the time of the devife._

_Lit. feft. 287._ Perk. feft. 500.

_Cro. Jac. 152._ 187._ pl. 1074.

Roll. Abr. 186._

If there are two joint-tenants, and one of them furrenders his moiety to the use of his late will, and dies before the furrender is preferred, having made his will this is a severance of the jointure; for being preferred I relates to the time of the first furrender.

_Co. Lit. 59._

1 Roll. Abr. 501.
right of their wives, of any manors, lands, tenements or hereditaments within this realm of England, &c., or the marches of the same, shall and may be contested and compelled, by virtue of this present a7, to make partitions between them of all such manors, lands, tenements or hereditaments, as they now hold, or hereafter shall hold as joint-tenants or tenants in common, by writ de partitionibus faciendis, in that case to be devised in the King our Sovereign Lord's court of Chancery, in like manner and form as coparceners by the common laws of this realm have been, and are compelled to do, and the same writ to be pursued at the Common Law.

Provided, That every of the joint-tenants or tenants in common, and their heirs, after such partition made, shall and may have aid of the other, or of their heirs, to the intent to dereign the warranty paramount, and to recover for the rate as is used between coparceners after partition made by the order of the Common Law.

But before these statutes the writ of partition was confined to coparceners; also it lay against the alience of a coparcener, for a coparcener cannot by her alienation divest the right of her sister to divide the estate, nor can the deftiny of the future a8. But the alien had no such writ of partition, because such alienation took an undivided moiety; nor was the alience under the reasons on which the law had founded such right of division, which was that the inheritance might be separated after marriage into distinct families; and for the same reasons the tenant by seisin alieus, though he had parted all of his estate, could not have this writ, though it lay against him by the surviving coparceners. Cf. Lit. 175 a. 167 a. Dyer 98 b.

But now by force of these statutes, the alience of one person may have a writ of partition against the other parceller, because they are tenants in common. Cf. Lit. 175 a.

So tenant by curtesy shall have a writ of partition upon the estate 32 H. 8. cap. 32. for though he is neither joint-tenant, nor tenant in common, yet being in equity the heir of the tenant by seisin, to whom the estate gives him an alience, he is within the equity thereof. Cf. Lit. 175 b.

But if three coparceners are, and a stranger purchaser, the part of one of them, he cannot join with either of the two coparceners in a writ of partition, either at Common law, or by force of the statute; for the words of the preamble of the statute are, that the alien own not the power to partition, nor can by the laws of this realm make partition without their mutual aliences: Now in this case one of them, viz. the purchaser may have a writ of partition at Common law, and therefore cannot come within the preamble and be disfranchised in this writ and be disfranchised in a writ of partition brought upon it. 1 Ad. 30. 72. 2. Lit. 175 b. Keil. 208. Dyer 128. Besold. 42. pl. 76.

It hath been held, that a general writ by joint-te tennants, or tenants in common grounded on this statute, and concluding contra foram flatus, is sufficient, without taking the care particularly, so as to bring it within the caveat; for the framing of the writ is left to the clerks in Chancery, and must be according to the form which they have devised. Cf. Eliz. 742. 743. and 2d. Eliz. 759. 2d. Laws. 1018. 3d. Laws. 213.

In this writ partition may be had by the view of frank-pledge, together with a manor; for though it be not favorable of itself, nor parible, yet the profits thereof may be divided, or it may be divided thus; that the one shall have it at one time, and the other at another; also being possessed with the manor, it may well be entirely allotted to one, and the land in recompense to another. Cf. Eliz. 759. Sir George Mor and Brown v. Onslow.

In this section there are two judgments; the first is, quod partitio fut inter partes prædictas de tenementis pra dictis, cum pertinentiis. And upon this there goes out a ju dicial writ to the sheriff to make partition, which re cives, first the writ of partition and judgment, and then commands the sheriff, together with twelve men of the vicinage, &c. to go in person to the tenements to be di vided.

volved, and there in the presence of the parties, if (they appear on summons to be made) by the oaths of these twelve men, to make an equal and fair partition, and all to each party their full and just share, and then return the information, and be partitioned, as was said in the writ, which the heirs of the sheriff, and the jurors, whose names are likewise to be returned. Botb 245. Lit. sect. 248. Co. Lit. 167.

When the information is thus returned, upon motion made to the court, the second judgment is given in this manner: It is, because of per. eqv., good partitio fane & habilit in perpetuum tenatur. Co. Lit. 169.

In a writ of partition, if the judgment be given good partitio flux, and thereupon a writ is directed to the sherriff to make partition, no writ of error lies hereupon, for the judgment is not complete till the sheriff's return of the portion. Law runners, in such cases, must be all joint tenants, and their purports are greatly opposed and prejudiced, and the premises are frequently waited and destroyed, or lie uncultivated and unmanured, so that the profits of the same are totally or in a great measure lost; for remedy whereof it is enacted, 44. That after prosefs of pone, or attachment returned upon a writ of partition, affidavit being made by any credible person of due notice given of the said writ of partition to the tenant or tenants to the action, and a copy thereof left with the occupier, or tenant or tenants, or, if they cannot be found, to the wife, fons or daughter, (being of the age of 21 years or upwards) and a return of the return to the plaintiff, shall be sufficient, and the plaintiff cannot have judgment for any recoverable lien or right of the action, by virtue of any efface of falsehood or for term years, or uncertain interest, or at will, of the manors, lands, tenements or hereditaments whereof the partition is demanded, (unless the said tenant in actual possession be demandant in the action,) at least forty days before the day of return of the said pone or attachment; if the tenant or tenants to such writ, or any of them, or the true tenant to the meullage, lands, tenements and hereditaments as aforesaid, shall not in such case, within fifteen days after return of such writ of pone or attachment, cause an appearance to be entered in such court; or if such writ of pone or attachment shall not be receivable; then in default of such appearance, the demandant having entered his declaration, the court may proceed to examine the demandant's title, and quantity of his part and purpart, and accordingly as they shall find his, right, part and purpart to be, they shall have for such sum as shall be given by the court, and shall be subject to make partition, whereby such proportion, part and purpart may be fet out severally; which writ being executed after eight days notice given to the occupier, or tenant or tenants of the premises, and returned, and thereupon final judgment entered, the same shall be good, and in execution thereof, the court have such authority as other whatsoever right or title they have, or may at any time claim to have in any of the manors, meullages, lands, tenements and hereditaments mentioned in the said judgment and writ of partition, although all persons concerned are not named in any of the proceedings, nor to the title of the tenants freely let forth.

Provided always, That if such tenant or persons concerned, or either of them, against whom or their right or title, such judgment by default is given, shall within the space of one year after the first judgment entered or in cafe of infancy, coverture, or non insan memories, or another cause, appeal to the king's bench; but all persons whatsoever right or title they have, or may at any time claim to have in any of the manors, meullages, lands, tenements and hereditaments mentioned in the said judgment and writ of partition, although all persons concerned are not named in any of the proceedings, nor to the title of the tenants freely let forth. 3 to pay costs; or if within such time or times aforesaid the tenants or persons concerned, admitting the demandant's title, parts and purparts, shall file to the court an inequality in the partition, the court shall make a partition in presence of all parties concerned, of which partition (if they will appear,) notwithstanding the return and filing upon record the former, which said second partition returned and filed shall be good and firm for ever against all persons whatever, except as before excepted.

And it is further enacted, That the same partition shall be admitted in evidence in any suit for partition, nor shall the same be abated by reason of the death of any tenant.

And it is further enacted, that when the high sheriff by reason of distress, infancy, or any other hinderance, cannot conveniently be present at the time thereof to give the under-sheriff, in presence of two justices of the peace of the county where the lands, tenements or hereditaments, or any part or purpart thereof, are situate, as he is with respect to the tenants or joint-tenants for such part set out severally to the respective land- lords or owners thereof by and under the same conditions, rents, covenants and reservations where they are or shall be divided; and the landlords and owners of the several parts and purparts so divided and allotted as aforesaid, shall give warrant and make good unto their respective tenants the said several parts severally after such partition, as they are or were bound to do by any copy, leaves, or grants of their respective parts before any partition made; and in case any demandant be tenant in actual possession to the tenant in the action for his part and proportion, or any demandant be the heir-at-law of any tenant constitutionally incapable of being a tenant in possession, they may be cited to appear in the said court, to answer the demands of such tenant in the manner before mentioned, and doth be also ordered and directed by the court, and under the like conditions and covenants when it is set out severally in pursuance of this, or any other act, statute, or law to that purpose.

And it is further enacted, that the respective sheriffs, their under-sheriffs and deputies, and in case of sickness or disability in the high sheriff, all justices of the peace, within their respective divisions, shall give due attendance and do diligence to enable them to have the benefit of the said statute, and if any tenant or tenant in possession be capable to be flown to the court upon oath, there and allowed of, or otherwise be liable every of them to pay unto the demandant such costs and damages as shall be awarded by the court, not exceeding five pounds, for which the demandant or plaintiff may bring his action in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Hofmgnger, wherein no idleness, protection, privilege or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one impediment; and in case the demandant doth not agree to pay the sheriffs or under-sheriffs, justices, and jurors such fees as they shall respectively demand for their pains and attendance, the demandant of the same shall return the tenant, then the court shall award what each plaintiff shall receive, having respect to the distance of the place from their respective places, and the time they must necessarily spend about the same, for which they may severally bring their actions.
So if there be two tenants in common of a manor, and they make a bailiff thereof, and one of them die, the surviver shall have an action of account, for the addition given unto him for the arrearages upon the account was joint. Co. Lit. 198. a.

So if two tenants in common found their land, and a stranger catch the corn with his cattle, the latter has the right to get the addition to him for the trespass is joint, and shall survive. Co. Lit. 198. a.

Tenants in common may join or fever in debt or covenant for rent; but if they fever, the demand must be de una mediate of the whole rent, and not of a certain sum, which amounts to a moiety. Carth. 289. Mundy and Gurney v. Lord Lovelace. But in an awry they ought to sever. Co. Lit. 198. b.

And as in trespass tenants in common shall join, so they shall for a nuisance done to their land, for it is personal, and concerns the profits of the land; but for forging of false deeds they shall sever, for that concerns the inheritance of the land; and if the nuisance be continued after the death of one of the tenants in common, his devisee shall join in action with the survivor, for the continuance thereof is as the new-creating of such a nuisance. Cro. Jac. 231. Same v. Barrowd.

A makes a lease, in which the lessee covenants with the lessor, that to the lessee grantor is severable but for a certain moiety to several persons, and lessee affinns to "J. S." in an action of covenant by the grantees of the reversion for not repairing; the question was, if two in common of a reversion could join in bringing an action of covenant against the assignees, and it was held, that they could and ought to join in this case, being a personal action, according to Littleton's rule, which was held to be general, without any relation to any privity of contract; and that the covenant being indivisible, the wrong and damages could not be distributed because uncertain. Mubb. 15 Car. 2. Kiddish and Knight v. Buckley.

Joint-tenants and tenants in common are to join in quare impedit, the first, because they are jointly seised, and claim by a joint title; the latter out of necessity, because the thing is initiis. Co. Lit. 157. b. 2 Enc. 23, 63. Comp. Incumb. 253. and wide Jop. 7 Ann. cap. 13.

If joint-tenants or tenants in common refuse to set out their titles, the action must be brought against them both; but if one of them only occupy the land, the action is to be brought against him; or if one joint-tenant or tenant in common sets out the titles, and the other takes them away, the action must be brought against the wrong doer. Hutt. 131. Cro. Jac. 85, 362.

A sues two joint-tenants to B. and C, rendering rent, and C. affinns his moiety to D. and after the rent is aareae, the lessor may bring an action of debt for the rent against B. and D. for the reversion remains initiis. Palm. 253.

If two joint-tenants bring trespass, and pending the action one of them dies, the writ shall abate; if lessor brings against them, for in the latter case the action is both joint and several. Cro. Jac. 19, 4 Med. 249, S. P.

Also where a quare impedit is brought by two joint-tenants, and pending the action one of them dies, the writ shall not abate; and this out of necessity, left the six months should elapse, and thereby the action be lost. Cro. Jac. 19.

If one joint-tenant refuses to join in action, he may be summoned and severed; but herein it is to be observed, that if the person severed dies the writ abates, because the survivor then goes for the whole, which he cannot do on that writ, where on the covenants and severance are for a moiety only; for the writ cannot have a double effect, to wit, for a moiety in case of summons and severance, and for the whole in case of suit with the survivor; and the law is the same if such joint-tenants proceed without summons and severance, for since both by the writ might have possibility to recover their moiety, they shall both be joined in the suit, in case of suit with the survivor, because the words and effect of the writ at the time of its first purchasing was that each might recover his moiety, and therefore a new writ must be procured to enable one to proceed for the whole. Co. Lit. 188.

But in personal and mixed actions where there is summons and severance, and yet after such summons and severance the plaintiff goes on for the whole, there if one of them dies, yet the writ shall not abate, because they go on for the whole after termination and severance, and if they were to have a new writ, it would only give the court authority to go on for the whole. Co. Lit. 197.

So if two joint-tenants bring a writ of ward, and they are summoned and severed, and the severed person dies, the writ shall not abate, because after such severance the court has authority to try the whole, and so he dies in this case, after the death of his companion. Co. Lit. 197.

So in quare impedit by two joint-tenants, and one is summoned and severed, and the severed person dies, the writ shall not abate, because the advoxation is an intire thing; and he proceeded for the whole after the severance, and so he may be recovered in this case. Lit. 197 b. Dyre 275.

If two joint-tenants bring an affize, and the one is severed, if he be found that the other had goods taken upon the land, he shall recover sole damage for them. 11 H. 4. 17. 1 Leas. 571.

Some joint-tenant or tenant in common is charged to join in action, and one alone brings the action, the defendant ought to plead the tenancy in common in abatement, which is a defence the law allows him, that he may not be twice charged; but if he plead in chief, and it be found against him, the plaintiff shall have judgment, because he joins the tenor to the assize, and pleading the tenant by plena, and the other is right of the action. Moor 466. Cro. Eliz. 554. 8 Jac. 12. 1 Salk. 4. 32. 1 Med. 102. 2 Lev. 113. Carth. 63.

If joint-tenancy be pleaded by one or deed in abatement of the defendant's action, he cannot take a gene­ral averment that the tenant is sole seised, for he might then directly to contradict, and set them aside by a manifest of less force and solemnity than they are; but L may confine the joint-tenancy which the tenant plead afterwards the fine levied, but that the joint-tenant not name released to the tenant before the writ brought, or the both the connexes enounced one who enounced the ten­nant; but at this day, if the tenant had been enounced by deed, and had pleaded joint-tenancy to abate the de­mandant's writ, the demandant might have avered generally, that the tenant is sole seised, for the statute o 34 Ed. 1. de conjunctis feoffatis extends to joint-tenanc­ey deed, though not by fine; but by the Common law that is said not to be allowed that place, when the ten­ant claimed under a deed, no more than when he claimed under a fine; but if the tenant claims by feoff​ment in pais, and pleads that in abatement of the de­mandant's action, the demandant may aver sole tenancy because the feoffment is to be proved once true per partes whole credit is not more alleged by the court than the demandant's. 2 Iff. 529. 534.

By the Common law joint-tenants and tenants in common had no remedy against each other, where one alone received the whole profits of the estate, for he could not be charged as bailiff or receiver to his compa­ny, unless he actually was made him so; but not the 4th 5th and cap. 16, it is provided, that they and their executors and administrators may have an account against the other as bailiffs, for receiving more than their proportion, and against their executors and administrators Co. Lit. 172. a. 156. a. 200. b. 2 Leas. 218. So if two had a ward in common, and one took all the prof­its as bailiff, and the other not, the ward shall have a new writ against the estate, because the feoffment is to be proved once true per partes whole credit is not more alleged by the court than the demandant's. 2 Iff. 529. 534.
It having been determined that at Common law a woman could not be endowed of an use, and might land, before the 27 Hen. 8. being put in use, so that there was no confidence to be had in the donor at the Common law; this obliged the wife, or her friends, either before or after the marriage, to procure the husband to take the legal estate made from her. For the use of him and his wife for life, or in tail, with what conditions over he pleased; and this seems to have been the original of jointures. 3 Dyer, tit. 221. See Dover, Curtice of England.

But tho' this method was an effectual security to the wife, yet was it no bar to the husband, or his heirs, in barring her of her donor before the 27 Hen. 8. for by the Common law a woman could not be barred of her dower by any assignment or assurance to her of other lands whereof she was not dowerable, (except in the case of dower of stramon relictus, or ex affectu patri, which were allowed to be dower in jointures of themselves, and were a good bar of any other dower,) if such assignment, or assurance was made by the husband before marriage or after, or by the heir after his death; and tho' they were expressly said to be in full bar and recompence of her dower, yet might she recover her dower notwithstanding; she having a right to the third part of all her husband's lands, veiled and hid in her immediately upon the marriage and the husband's feisin thereof; and this right, like all others, could not be transferred or extinguished but by a release thereof; and if such release were made, it continued still in being, for want of another proper means to destroy it; and if it still existed, her remedies were open to be recovered by action in possitio; and of this there can be no doubt as to any estate or purchase procured by the husband to be made to his wife after marriage, in lieu and satisfaction of dower, for she is not at this day bound in such cafe; and if it were made by means of this marriage, it was at Common law no bar, for two reasons: 1. Because immediately upon the marriage thereof she had no title to dower, and therefore an estate made to her then could no bar to a right which accrued to her after. 2. Because immediately upon the marriage the right of dower vested in her, and could not be extinguished or barred but by a release thereof; so if such assignment or assurance were by the heir in part, this was no bar either; but if it were by indenture or fine, then it should seem an effopoll to her to demand any other dower, because her title to dower was then complete and certain; and she has by this acceptance concluded herself to demand no more. 4 Co. tit. 1. Ferens's case. Dyer 91. Co. tit. 34. b. 36. b. Dyer, tit. Dover 97. 2 Broun. 132. 4 Co. 55. 1. Of jointure becoming a bar of dower by stat. 27 Hen. 8. and the rules to be observed in making a good jointure, and such a one as will be an effectual bar of dower. 2. How far the nits of a jointure, or her husband's nits may defeat her of this provision; and how far she is intitled to the aid and assistance of a court of equity. 3. Of jointure becoming a bar of dower by stat. 27 Hen. 8. and the rules to be observed in making a good jointure, and such a one as will be an effectual bar of dower. The maxim of the Common law, that no right could be barred before it accrued; and that a right or title to a freehold could not be barred by acceptance of a collateral satisfaction, and the reasons afofore laid allowing the wife to claim her dower, and also the benefit of such settlement as was made for her, which being contrary to justice. Co. tit. 36. b. 1. That whereas divers persons have purchased, or have estates made and conveyed of and in divers lands, tenements and hereditaments unto them and their wives, and to the heirs of the husband, or to the heirs of the wife, and to the heirs of their bodies begotten, or to the husband and to the wife for term of their lives, or for term of the life of the said wife, or where any such estate or purchase of any lands, tenements or hereditaments hath been or hereafter shall be made to any husband and to his wife in manner and form above expressed, or to any other person or personas, and to their heirs and assigns, to the use and behoof of the said husband and wife, or to the use of the wife, as is before rehearsed, for the jointure of the wife; that then in every such case, every woman making such jointure made or hereafter to be made, shall be entitled, or have title to any dowry of the residue of the lands, tenements or hereditaments, that at any time were her said husband's, by whom the said any such jointure; nor shall demand or claim her dowry of and against them that have the lands and inheritances of her said husband; and if the said dowry be such jointure, then the same shall be admitted and enabled to pursue, have, and demand her dowry by writ of dower, after the due course and order of the Common law of this realm; this act or any law or provision made to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.
J O I

Sec. 7. Provided, "That if any such woman be lawfully espoused or elided from her said jointure, or from any part thereof, without any fraud or covin, by lawful entry, action, or by discontinuance of her husband, then every such woman shall be endowed of so much of the residue of her husband's tenements or hereditaments whereof she was before dowerable, as the same lands and tenements so evicted and espoused shall amount or extend unto by."  Sec. 8. Provided also, "That if any wife have, or hereafter shall have, any manors, lands, tenements or hereditaments unto her given or affured after marriage for term of her life or otherwise, in jointure, except the same assurance be to her made by act of parliament, and the said wife after that fortune to override the same her husband in whole time the said jointure was made or affured unto her; that then the said wife no overliving shall and may at her liberty at the death of her said husband refuse to have and take the lands and tenements so to her given, appointed, or affured during the coverture, for the term of her life or otherwise, in jointure, except the same assurance be to her made by act of parliament as aforesaid, and thereupon to have, and take her dower by writ of dower or otherwise, according to the Common law, of and in all such lands, tenements and hereditaments, as her husband was and still feised of any estate of inheritance at any time during the coverture; any thing, &c.

To make a good jointure within this statute, the fix following things are to be regarded:
1. The estate must take effect immediately upon the death of the husband. Therefore if an estate be made to the husband for life, the remainder to 7. S. for life, remainder to the wife for her jointure, this is no good jointure, for it is not within the words or intent of the statute; for the statute makes nothing as a wife jointure for dower, but that which came in the same place, and is of the same use to the wife, and though 7. S. dies during the life of the husband, yet this is not good; for every inteire not equivalent to dower being not within the statute, is a void limitation to deprive the wife of her dower. 4 Co. 3. Hn. 51.

So if an estate be made to the wife of A. for life, the remainder to the wife for life, this is not good, though A. dies, living the husband. 4 Co. 2. Hb. 151.

So if an estate be made to the husband for life, remainder to 7. S. for years, the remainder to the wife for her jointure, this is not good, though the years are expired in the life-time of the husband. Hutton 51. Wink 33.

But if an estate be made to the wife, husband for life, the remainder to her jointure, this is a good jointure, not merely asthe words of the statute, for it is within the equity and denile of it. 4 Co. 2.

If any man makes a feantum to the use of himself for life, remainder to the son and his wife, and the heirs of the body of the son, this is no good jointure, though the wife hath an immediate title; for to be within the cafes of the statute whereby dower is barred, the wife must have a sole property after the death of her husband, Wink 33.

A feantum in fee to the use of the fecoife for life, remainder to the husband of his second son for life, remainder to the other son for the term of the life of the first son, if in either as the son shall take, remainder to the heirs of the foffon; the father dies, the son marries, and dies; the wife is not by this seantum barred of her dower; for this at the time of the creation was no certain provision for the wife's life, for the son might have married and died in the life of the father. 1 Sid. 3. 4. 42

A jointure limited to take effect immediately on the death of the husband shall take effect as well on a civil as a natural death; therefore if the husband enters into religi- nation, is banished, or abjures the realm, the wife shall have her jointure. Co. Lit. 133. Mors 81. 3 Buls. 185. 1 Red. Rep. 490. 2 Perri. 104.

2. The estate must be for term of the wife's life or a greater estate. Therefore if an estate be made to the wife for the life or lives of many others, this is no good jointure; for if the survivor lives longer, the same, then it would be no competent provision during her life, as every jointure within the statute ought to be. Co. Lit. 36. 4

So if a term for 100 years be limited to the wife, if the so long live, or absolutely, this is no good jointure; for the statute provides, that when the wife hath an estate for life by coverture, the same shall be barred of her dower at Common law; if the wife hath any greater estate the said an estate shall be voided in it, if the said wife hath no left estate, it is out of the statute. Co. Lit. 35. a.

If an estate be limited to the wife upon condition, her acceptance of such a conditional jointure makes it good; for the statute supports the wife well enough, and it is in her power to continue it during her life; therefore an estate limited to the wife's dower under the statute is a good jointure for the determination by her self. 4 Co. 3. a 3.

3. The estate must be made to herself and to others in trust for her. This rule, my Lord Coke says, is so necessary to be observed, that though the wife should affent to a jointure made in trust for her, yet it would not be good for the statute only bars the dower when by the devise (which was formerly an estate) is executed in her. Co. Lit. 35. b.

But as the intention of the statute was to secure the wife a competent provision, and also to exclude her from claiming dower, and likewise her coverture, it seems that a provision of coverture by the wife, tho' by way of feantum it answers the intention of the statute, will be enforced in a court of equity.

4. The estate must be in satisfaction of her whole dower. The reason hereof is, that if it be in satisfaction of part only, it is uncertain for what part it is in satisfaction of her dower, and therefore void in the whole. Co. Lit. 36. a.

If an estate be made to the wife in satisfaction of part of her dower before marriage, and after marriage other lands are conveyed to her after marriage, the shall have dower of all the lands of her husband, notwithstanding the creation is in satisfaction of part. 4 Co. 5.

Therefore when a seantum was made to a woman a seantum to the interest it should be for her jointure, but it was not so expressed in the deed, the opinion of the court was, that it might be avered that it was for a jointure, and that such seantum was not irreversible, Quan 33, and there said, that it had been so avered ruled between the Queen and Dame Elizabeth.

But a devise or an estate to a wife for the cannot be avered to be in satisfaction of a dower or jointure, unless it be expressed to be so in the will. For there can be no seantum contrary to the will, and there where can be a sverement contrary to the consideration implied in every devise, which is the kindnefs of the teftator. Ca. Lit. 36, 122. Where one devise left lands to his wife during her widowhood, and died, and the married again, and brought dower, and this devise being pleaded in bar, it was held no bar: 1f. Because a will imports a confinement in itself, and cannot be averred to be in bar of dower, unless it be so expressly declared. 2dly. Dower cannot be left out of the life of the wife, and a third reason may be, that her right to dower cannot be barred by a collateral remembrance, since such collateral remembrance is no proper conveyance of such right. Mor. pl. 103.

A man devised his lands to his wife till her daughter shall have the third part of the land; and to his wife, if she die unmarried, and to her heirs. 12 L. 754. 1st. The devise belonging to the man of Whiteharch, in which man there is the following cufiom, viz. that the first wife of every tenant should have her free bench in all the lands whereof her husband was ever feized during the coverture; the second wife a moiety, and the third a third part so long as she kept her husband above ground. 2. S. in confideration of a marriage and marriage portion, covenants with truftees that within two months after the marriage he would settle all his lands to the following ufe, viz. As to part of the lands, to the ufses of himself and his wife for their lives, remainder to the third part to the wife of himfelf for life, remainder to his fife, &c., with a provifion, that the lands fo settled on the wife should be in lieu of her curfoumft ufe; and one of the points in this cafe was, whether this jointure not being made expressly in lieu of her dower, but only paid to in the provifion, and the being an infant at the time of making the articles, and not a party to them, would be excluded from claiming her free bench; and it was held, that the fhe should be obliged to abide by her jointure; and the cafe of Fand. and Long was cited, where a fum of money was fettled upon a woman before marriage for her provision and-land therefore the Blaffer of the Rolls was of opinion the fhe should have both that and her dower but the Chancellor reverfed the decrees; and confined her to her fettlement. Mich. 6 Geo. 2. Jordan v. Savage. 3 Bar. Abf. 226.

6. The eftate must be made during the coverture. This the very words of the act of parliament require, and therefore if a jointure be made to a woman during the coverture in fatisfaction of dower, she may have it after her husband’s death; but if the enters and agrees thereunto, the cufiom is concluded; for though a woman is not bound by any act when she is not at her own disposal, yet if she agrees to it in her own right, it is her own act, and she cannot avoid it. Ca. Lit. 36, 122. Bulf. 163.

If a jointure be made to the wife before coverture, and the husband and wife alien by fine, the wife shall not afterwards be endowed of any lands of her husband’s; for since the quitting her dower when she was at her own disposal, the can claim nothing but the jointure, and that she has paid away by the fine levied; but if the jointure was made during the coverture, and then she relinquished it by fine, yet the Shail have her dower of the other lands; for the acceptance of a jointure during the coverture is no bar of dower, and the palling of it by fine cannot be construed as acceptance of propert in them, since this is capable of an assignation to her, to bar her dower in those lands. Ca. Lit. 36, 122. Bulf. 163.

The husband after marriage settled lands to the ufe of himself and wife in tail, for her jointure, and during the coverture part of the lands were evedited, and the hus- band died, and wife entered in the coverture, and in a reference off the court of wards to the. Chief Juftices, it was resolved, that she should have a recompence for the part evicted. Ma 717. pl. 1002.

A feignory was granted to the husband and wife, and their heirs, the tenant attors, the husband died, and the feignory lapsed to the wife, and as the husband had settled lands in dower, in bar of which the heir pleads acceptance of homage from the tenant; and this was held a good bar; for though they might have disbarred to such eftate during 4 1.
the coverture, yet by the acceptance of homage the husband concluded herself; and this cove differs from the alignment by the heir in pais and her acceptance; because if he gives her a wrong estate, and the accept thereof, this is no bar of her rightful estate; but here having two titles, either as a purchaser to have the whole, or as a wife to have the third part, her acceptance of the one is defeasible, because fine could not remove both out of the same land. 3 Leom. 272. 3 Ca. 27.

If lands are given to husban and wife, and the heirs of the husband, who dies, the wife may disaffire to this estate made during the coverture, and then it will be an estate to the husband and his heirs ab initio, and if the same shall have landed estates under it; but if an estate is made to thehusband and wife for the life of the husband, remainder to the right heir of the husband, it should seem the can not in the case disagree, because the estate upon the husband's death is determined and gone; though by this con- trivance all women may be deolated of their dower as to estates purchased after the marriage. Perk. 353. 3 Ca. 27.

If an estate be made to the wife for her jointure during the coverture, the remainder to J. S. in fee, and the wife waves this jointure, J. S. shall have the remainder; for here was a particular estate at the time of creating the remainder, so that had the circumstances of a remain- der, being the residue of a particular estate then in being; and since the particular estate was defeasible by an act that could not hurt the remainder, the remainder upon such defeasibility of the particular estate comes in being. Ca. Lit. 29. 6.

As covenants to stand seised to the use of him/herself in tail, the remainder to his wife for life, the remainder to B. in tail, and then he makes a feoffment in fee to the use of him/herself and this wife for their lives, as a jointure, the remainder to C. and dies without issue, the wife is re- mitted; for where a later and defeasible, a former and indefeasible, in the same person, there must be a remittance. Ca. Lit. 348. a.

But in this case the wife hath two titles, both wivable by her, the first indefeasible by any third person, the latter defeasible by a third person; for upon her claiming by the second title the waves the first, and consequently the remainder in B. commences, and he shall have his action, and therefore the must be in her former title, to save the contention and trouble of the action. Ca. Lit. 348. a.

But if an estate be made to the husband in tail, the remainder to the wife for life, the remainder to the right heirs of the husband, the husband afterwards makes a feoffment in fee to the use of the husband and wife for their lives, the remainder to the right heirs of the husband, the husband dies without issue; the wife may claim by which the pleas, and is not remitted unless volens, because there are not two titles, the one indefeasible and the other defeasible by a third person, but both equally firm; for the right heir of the husband upon the waver of the first estate by the wife can claim nothing in the land contrary to the feoffment of his ancestor, and therefore that estate which the wife claims is indefeasible; and no stranger is prejudiced by being put to his action. Ca. Lit. 357.

Dyir. 351.

In this the makes no election, the shall be supposed to be in of his elder estate, because every one is presumed to choose what is most for his benefit. 2 Red. Abr. 432.

If the wife has an old right before the coverture, and afterwards takes a jointure of the same lands, the shall be remitted. C. Fea. 490.

An estate settled to the husband for life, remainder to the right heirs of the husband, except such of the lands as the husband should devide; this exception is repugnant to the grant, because the settlement might be avoided by the hus- band deviding the whole. Hb. 72.

2. How for the act of a jointress or her husband's acts may affect her of this provisors; and how for she is entitled to the profits of a court of equity. It has been already observed, that if a man makes a jointure on his wife before or after marriage, and they both join in a fine, that the is so far bound thereby, that if the jointure was made before marriage she is barred to claim dower in any other lands of the husband's; but if the jointure was made during coverture, she may claim dower in the other lands. Ca. Lit. 56. Dr. 358.

But if a wife joins with her husband in a bargain and sale of the land by deed indented and enrolled, yet it shall be for the husband's estate only, and she cannot be examined by any court without writ, and there is no writ allowed in this cause. 2 Inf. 67. 3 Hob. 225.

But if a seise covets joins with her husband in levying a fine to raise a sum of money by way of mortgage, this shall bind her; yet in this cause the does not absolutely depart with her estate for life, but there results a truit to the wife to remain, and to replenish her in her jointure. 2 Chanc. Co. 162.

If tenant in tail of a tract makes a mortgage, or ac- knowledges a judgment or statute, and then levies a fine, and fettes a jointure, the jointree shall hold subject to the mortgage or judgment, in the same manner as if the mortgagee or creditor had been tenant in tail of the legal estate, and after the mortgage or judgment had levied a fine, and made a jointure, because the subsequent decla- ration of the use of the fine is merely the act of the tenant in tail, and he cannot by any act of his own make a subsequent conveyance take place of a precedent, and the father, before the estate under that which tenant in tail got by the recovery or fine, and that fine was subject to all the charges he had lain upon it. 1 Chanc. Co. 119, 120.

If a man before marriage articles to settle a jointure on his intended wife, and the marriage is consumed, and the husband dies before any settlement made, an execution of the articles will be decreed in equity. 2 Vent. 343.

So where A. gave a voluntary bond after marriage, to make a jointure to his wife, he and made a jointure ac- curringly, and then the wife delivered up the bond, and the jointure being evicted, the court held that it should become void, with the personal rights of the parties, because there were no creditors affected by it; for the delivery of the bond by a femce covert could not way bind her. 1 Vern. 327. Beard and Nuthall.

So if a jointree brings her bill to have an account of the real and personal estate of her late husband, and to have a satisfaction thereoue, for a debt of value of her jointure lands, which she had covenantated to be and to continue of such value, and the defendant infils that this is a covenant which founds only in damages, and pro- perly determinable at law; tho' it be admitted that a court of equity cannot regularly affise damages, yet in respect of the personal estate they brought in, to make the value of the defect of the lands, and report it to the court, which may decree such defect to be made good, or fend it to be tried at law upon a quantum damnificati. 1 Abr. Eq. 18.

If there be a jointree, and a covenant that her jointure shall be of such a yearly value, and it falls short, then the estate be not without impeachment of wafe, yet the much commit waste so far as to make up the defect of the jointure. Abr. Eq. 224. 2.

J. S. made a fettlement on his edleff fon for life, with remainder to his first and other sons in tail, remainder to his eldest son to appose his, the only fettlement not exceeding 200l. per ann. to any husband he afterward marries, for a jointure, (the father being under an apprehension that he was then married to a woman which the father dislik'd, and had no intention his son should provide for;) the father died, and the son married that very woman, (tho' there was strong presumtive proof the marriage was made that the father dislik'd, and had no intention to make the son provide for;) the father died, and the son married that very woman, and the father having assumed certain lands to truss to his wife for a jointure, and covenants that if they were not of 200l. per ann. value, that upon request made to him any time during his life, he would make them up to much out of other lands in his power; he lived several years, and as he continued resolved to make the son provide for the lands being not of that value, nor request to make it up, and died; upon issue upon a bill brought by the widow to have the jointure made up 100l. My Lord Keeper said, this is a provision for; wife or children was not to be considered as a voluntary covenant, and therefore deemed the deficiency to be the infant circumstances of the case, and her neglect in not requesting it during coverture; for the laches of a sole covert cannot be imputed to her.
I P S

If a bill is brought by an heir at law, or any other person, against joiner or defendant, the jointure, unless he by his own act submits to confirm her title, and then he shall, by his motion, or by removing the bill, be abated of the jointure, unless made after marriage. See 14 Vin. Abr. 105. Jointure and Joints.

Journal. A diary or day-book. Journals of parliament are not records, but only remembrances: And are neither of necessity, nor have been of long continuance. See Hals. Rep. f. 109.

Journeys. Choppers. Were registrars of yarn mentioned in flat 8 Hen. 8. e. 5. whence the first part of the word derived, is somewhat obscure: but choppers are to this time known to be changers; as to chop and change is a familiar phrase. Coutts, edit. 1727. See Chopehtrist.

Journeys are accomplished. (Dicta computata) Is a term in the law, to be thus understood: If a writ is abated without the default of the plaintiff or defendant, but merely by default of the clerk, either for false Latin, variance, or want of form, or by default of the clerk, as for want of a good summons; in all these cases the plaintiff may purchase a new writ, which if it be bought by journeyse accomplata, that is, within as little time as possible after the beginning of the writ, (and the space of fifteen days as has been held a convenient time for the purchase of it) then this second writ shall be as a continuance of the first, but where it the writ abated by the default of the defendant himself, as by making the name of the tenant or of the will or which it abated for non-tenure of his whole, as it ought, because the first writ was brought without any matter of cause; in all these cases the plaintiff may purchase a new writ by journeyse accomplata. This writ must be bought in the same court where the first writ was, and of the same quantity in that writ contained: it must be between those who are parties to the bill, as where one of the plaintiffs or defendants dies; but in no case where it is but one party: Not will the except where the first writ is served and returned on record. See Co. Rep. 6. fol. 9. Spencer’s case, and 14 Vin. Abr. 61. Journeys accounts.

Joyo facta. By flat. 13 Eliz. 2. The church is made void for not reading the articles; adjudged that there needs no deprivation, but it becomes void pretently by the dispensation. 37 Ldg. Ed. 41. Eliz. B. R. Taver v. Brint and Relaini.

Upon an indulgence for speaking against the book of Common Prayer, Hender J. doubted, whether the judicis of oyer and terminer may give judgment of deprivation, to the statute, says, that the offender shall be deprived of his benefice. Also it does not appear, whether the defendant be the curate of the parish where he refused to pay Divine service; and if he be not, then he is not punishable by the statute. - Gell. 162. 125. Hill. 43 Eliz. Horn’s cafe.

The flat. 5 Ed. 6. 4. says, that he that strikes in a churchyard, shall be excommunicated by 1668, yet that it is to be intended after a sentence declaratory, or conviction; other wise there can be no abobtion. "Cra. E. 919. Hill. 43 Eliz. B. R. Statham v. Tweedt, S. P. Arg. Cro. 680. cites D. 18 Eliz. 275. He does not hand excommunicated until he be therof convicted at law, and this transmittuated to the ordinary, tho’ it takes away the necessity of any sentence of excommunication. Tent. 149. 23 Car. 2. B. R. Dere v. York.

Iflitch, it frees them how repaired, and minister provided for, 13 El. c. 24.

3d ad argum. To go at large, to eschew, to be at liberty. Coutts, edit. 1727.

In England, an act of parliament (called Popery’s law) made in Ireland in 10 H. 7, it was ered, that all fluers made in England before that time should be of force and be put in use in the realm of Ireland. Co. Lit. 144. b.

Acts of parliament made in England since the act of 10 H. 7, do not extend to the kingdom of Ireland, but all acts made in England before 10 H. 7, do also bind them in Ireland by the said act made in Ireland. 10 H. 7. cap. 22. 12 Rep. 116. Hill. 10. fec.

Lord Coke in 2 Iest. 2. says, that by this law [but there cites it as made 11 H. 7.] Magna Charta extends into Ireland. 4 fol. 351. recites the statute more fully, and says, that acts of parliament made in England since that time, whereas Ireland is not particularly named or generally included, extend not thereto; for though it be governed by the same law, yet it is a distinct realm or kingdom, and hath parliaments there. S. P. Arg. Curt. 150. 269. 221. Overb. 7. 4 & 7. 7 Rep. 23. in Calvins cafe. Tent. 162. 14. In acts of parliament Ireland shall not be bound without express words, though the nature and reason of the act extends to Ireland. Sim. 519. Trin. 6 H. 8 & M. B. in case of Philip v. Bory. That Ireland has its own parliaments, yet it is not absolute, & justice; if it were, Ireland has no power over it, and it would be as free after conquest and subjection by England as before. And that it is a conquered kingdom is not doubted, but admitted in Calmin’s cafe several times. "E. Taugh. 252. Hill. 21 & 22 Car. 2. C. B. per Fauconer Ch. I. in case of Greaves v. Ramp. 5. And ibid. 300. says, It is a dominion belonging to the crown of England. And ibid. 317. That its having a parliament is grattia regis, subject to the parliament of England. It is to be considered as a provincial government, subordinate to, but not part of the realm of England. Soc. 11 Geo. 2. in case of Quay v. Ramsey Ard by flat. 6 Ges. 1. cap. 5. fo. 1. The kingdom of Ireland ought to be subordinate to and dependent upon the imperial crown of Great Britain, as being inseparably united thereunto. And the King’s Majesty, with the consent of the lords and commons of Great Britain in parliament, hath power to make laws to bind the people of Ireland.

A write of error was brought upon a judgment given in Ireland. It would appear, that a day ought to be given by rule of court to the liar, to affine his errors, or else to nonuit him; for the defendant could have no fieri. into Ireland. Tent. 53. Hill. 21 & 22 Car. 2. B. R. Anv.

In error of a judgment in B. R. in Ireland, it was suggested that the plaintiff was in execution on the judgment in Ireland. The court seemed to be of opinion, that a bossep corpus might be sent thither to remove him, as writ mandatory had been awarded to calculus, and now to Jersif. Guernfey. &c. Tent. 357. Micb. 32 Car. 2. B. R. Anv.

If a write of error be brought of a judgment in Ireland, and judgment affirmed in B. R. here, no copies can be in any county of England; because the cause of action arises in Ireland, and there the venue is laid; and therefore the original copies ought to issue in Ireland, but no copies could issue out of B. R. in Ireland, and therefore not not here; neither an original not extant. But the method is to set out a writ, rectifying all the proceedings hereinafter mentioned, viz. Ch. J. B. R. in Ireland, and thereon the execution shall be paid for out all, for though the judgment be affirmed here, yet the law supposes the party complainant in Ireland, for the costs are but accessory to the judgment, and such mandatory writ determines the writ of error here, and reduces the cause in Ireland, per Holt. 12 M. 325. Mit. 10 H. 7. Cert. v. Lynch.

As to the profits of lands in Ireland, a bill here is good, the person being in Ireland; for they are in the persona, but as to partition of lands, which is in the real, he cannot proceed here; for a commission cannot be awarded in Ireland. And a bill for partition is in nature of a writ of partition at the Common law, which lieth not in England for lands in Ireland. Hill. 27 & 28 Car. 2. 11 Lord Chanc. 2 Chun. Cafes 214. Cartwright v. Paton.

Bill as to land in Ireland, the title whereof was under the Act of Settlement there, was exhibited against the defendant here on his coming to England, and a new regis granted, and he was put to answer a contract made for those lands in Ireland, and when he departed to Ireland without answering, he was fined for over by a special order from the King, and made to answer the contempts, and to abide the judgment of this court. Per Prince. Mib. 1682. Fern. 77. cited in the case of Earl of Argylf v. Maujumpt, as the case of Archer v. Prefton.

Troye will lie in England against tenant by the curtesy of lands in Ireland, for a conversion of timber in Ireland, the same being a local action, but otherwise of local actions. 1 Salt. 290. Trin. 7 Am. B. R. Brew v. Hedges. A man may be bent over to Ireland to be tried for a crime there committed, notwithstanding the clause in the habus corpus cli. Gibb. 111. Mib. 3 Gov. 1. B. R. The King v. Kimber. Justices of peace in England may commit a person offending against the Irish law, in order to his being bent over. Stran. 842. B. R. in England may reverse judgment given in B. R. in Ireland. Br. 1 forfication, pl. 109. cites 31 Aff. 221. Writ of error in B. R. here, of a judgment given in B. R. in Ireland, is a superfcetas to stay execution there. Cru. 7. 534. Pabo. 17 fac. B. R. The Bishop of O'farie's cafe.

A writ of error was brought to reverse a judgment given in Ireland, and an error in it was assigned, and tried in the county next Ireland. The court ruled the venue to be well awarded. Text. 59. Hill. 21 & 22. Car. 3. B. R. Judges in England are proper expostors of the Irish laws. Per Jeffers C. affiled with judge, Fern. 402. Mib. 1686. Earl of Killarne v. Sir Maurice Esfaiue. An action of debt was brought in the court of B. C. in Ireland, against an administratrix, upon a judgment in the court of B. R. in England. The defendant pleaded in bar a judgment had against himself in an action of debt upon bond in the court of Exchequer in Ireland; and the judgment for the defendant in C. B. and affirmed in B. R., upon a writ of error in the court of B. R. in Ireland, the principal question was, whether debt lies in Ireland upon a judgment obtained in B. R. in England; and all the court inclined strongly that it does not lie; that Ireland is to be considered as a foreign part of England, and not part of the realm of England; that acts of parliament made here extend not to Ireland, unless particularly named; much less judgments obtained in the courts here; nor is it possible they should, because we have no officers to carry them into execution there; for the mandatory writs issue there, and it is not a remedy to apply in Vaughn, 290. Besides debt on a judgment is a good action, and must be carried in the county where the judgment was obtained; a storiui, not in a different kingdom. Accordingly the court were of opinion to affirm the judgment; but the cause lieth over for another argument. Mich. 11 Geo. 2. Ovary v. Rumfyle. In Earle term following the plaintiff in error declining to speak to it again, judgment was affirmed, nis, &c.

Parremes shall all do homage in Ireland, 14 H. 3. The King's officers shall not purchase lands there, Ord. pro Statu Hibern. 17 Ed. 1. c. 1. Pursuain reafoned there freely without arreftements, Ord. pro St. Hib. 17 Ed. 1. c. 3. Fees of a bill of grace, Ord. pro St. Hib. 17 Ed. 1. c. 4. Merchants shall carry their goods there freely without arreftements, Ord. pro St. Hib. 17 Ed. 3. c. 3. The marshall's fee for a poiferion, Ord. pro St. Hib. 17 Ed. 1. c. 4. Pardon shall not be granted there without the King's command, Ord. pro St. Hib. 17 Ed. 1. c. 6. Proces shall be under the Great seal or the Exchequer seal, Ord. pro St. Hib. 17 Ed. 1. c. 7. Adixes of expe fij was not to be adjourned but in the king's parliament, Ord. pro St. Hib. 17 Ed. 1. c. 8. The staple places there, and the customs of those commodities, 27 Ed. 3. fj. 2. 1. Liberties granted to the church and people of Ireland, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 1. c. 1, &c. Burdens of the land to be discussed in council, &c. 3 Ed. 4. Act of ordnance not to be inserted in the records. The King's ministers shall put away all private councilors of their own, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 4. c. 9. Inquisitions to be made of felonies, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 4. c. 5. No general pardon to be granted but in parliament, 38 Ed. 3. fj. 10. c. 5. Prelates, &c. to certify the state of Ireland truly, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 4. c. 7. Ministers, &c. shall not give maintenance, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 10. Exchequer not to hear common pleas, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 4. c. 1. Suggestion against officers to be under the English seal, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 4. c. 12. The judices of Ireland in every county shall inquire once a year of debts paid to the sheriffs, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 4. c. 14. Change in the Exchequer, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 4. c. 15. None to be imprisoned under this act, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 4. c. 16. Annual inquiry of the behaviour of officers, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 4. c. 17. The King's subjects in Ireland shall use the same laws with the English, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 4. c. 18. Misdemeanors of clerk of the market how punished, 31 Ed. 3. fj. 10. c. 19. Merchants may repair thither with their merchandise, 34 Ed. 3. c. 17. English who have lands there may carry and re-cancel their goods, 34 Ed. 3. c. 18. To live to their own benefits, 1 H. 5. c. 8. Certain English forced to continue in England, 1 H. 5. c. 8. 1 H. 6. c. 2. 2 H. 6. c. 5. 228 Importation of iron, &c. 2 W. & M. st. 2. c. 4. sect. 14, &c.
Iron (except gun metal) and copper from English seas, may be imported, 5 W. & M. c. 17.
Bar iron may be imported from Ireland, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 20. sect. 17.
No drawback on cargoes of foreign iron, 2 W. & M. c. 3. sect. 12.
No drawback on iron or steel imported and afterwards exported to the plantations, 9 Ann. c. 6. sect. 5.
Trade with Spain in unwrought iron permitted, 9 Ann. c. 11. sect. 63.
Pig iron may be imported from the plantations free, 23 Geo. c. 2. sect. 29.
Bar iron from the plantations may be imported to Lancashire, 23 Geo. c. 2. sect. 29, or to any port, 20 Geo. c. 2. sect. 16.
Iron works charged with the land-tax, 4 Geo. c. 3. sect. 4.
Iron wire. See Wire.
Iron, in libels, makes them as properly libels as what is expressed in direct terms. H. 215. 1 Haw. 193. 294.
Irregularity, (Irregularitas) Disorder. In the Canon law it is taken for any impediment, which hinders a man from taking holy orders; as if he be bare-boned, not or never defamed of any notable crime, maimed, or much deformed, or has confessed to procure another's death, and the like.
Irretrievable, or Irretrievable. That neither may nor ought to be reprieved or set at large upon forswearing, as The dittoes shall be irretrievable. 13 Ed. 4. cap. 2. see Dittoes.
Irving, A duty of excise granted to that town, 9 Geo. 2 c. 27.
Irwell, (River.) See Rivers.
Ireland, Composition fifth to be taken as usual of subjects travelling into Ireland, 5 El. c. 5. sect. 5. Fishing vessels not to proceed on their voyage to Wemysoy and Island, till the 10th of March yearly, 15 Car. c. 16.
Inglis, (Steen Jieum) A kind of fish-gleue or fish-gum brought from Ireland, and those parts, and used in medicines, and by some in adulterating of wines; but for that prohibited by a statute made 12 Car. 2. cap. 25.
Isle of Ely. See Ely.
Isle of Man. See Man.
Isle of Wight. See Wight.
Ist, (Exempted from the French ijfeur, i. e. emonae) It hath divers applications in the Common law; sometimes being used for the children begotten between a man and his wife; sometimes for profit growing from amercements or fines; and sometimes for profits of lands or tenements. Wilf. 2. 13 Ed. 1. sect. 39. Sometimes for that point of matter depending in suit, whereupon the parties join, and put their cause to the trial of the jury: And yet in all these it hath but one significacion, which is the effect of a cause preceding, as the children are the effect of the marriage between the parents; the profits growing to the King or lord, from the punishment of any man's offence, is the effect of his transgression; the point referred to the trial of twelve men, is the effect of pleading or precedes. Ijfe in this significacion is either general or special; general ijfe refers to be that whereby it is referred to the jury, to bring in their verdict, whether the defendant have done any such thing, as the plaintiff layeth to his charge. For example; If it be an offence against any statute, and the defendant plead Not guilty; this being put to the jury, it is called the general ijfe. And if a man complain of a private wrong, which the defendant denieth, and pleads no wrong nor dereliction; Leaves, to proceed to this being put to the jury, it is likewise the general ijfe. Kirklin, fid. 225. See Dut. and Student, fid. 158. The special ijfe then must be that, where special matter being alleged by the defendant for his defence, both parties join thereupon, and go either to a demurrer, if it be quavis juris, or to trial by the jury, if it be quavis facti, 4 Hen. 8. 3. 18 Eliz. c. 12. Co. 4. 1 K.
1. Where the words issue, or heirs of the body, in a will give an estate by purchase or deficit.

2. Where the words issue, or heirs of the body, in a deed give an estate by purchase or deficit; and where the same words are only a description of the persons.

3. In what cases the general issue may be pleaded.

A.Devised in fee of Black-ace, Green-ace, and White-ace, has issue a son and two daughters, and devises Black-ace to the son and his heirs, Green-ace to the eledst daughter and her heirs, and White-ace to the younger, but if she have no issue, then the issue of his children die without issue of her body, then the other surviving shall have total illam partem, &c. between them equally to be divided. A dies, the eldest daughter dies leaving issue, and then the son dies without issue. The words total illam partem give only an estate for life. And per Grandy J. Tho' it was objected, that such estate for life in the surviving youngest is divorced by descent of the fee, as soon as the estate limited by the will is void;
it may be answered, that tho' now upon the matter it be void, yet ab initio it was not so; for it became void by matter of later time, viz. by descent of the fee-simpler, for if one of the daughters had died without issue in the life estate, and had then话 land back to the son and the other father, there is no coparcenary; for the son has all the fee, and the moiety of the estate is executed, and the other moiety expectant, and the fitter has a moiety for life, and then the devise not void. And per State J.
If both daughters had survied the fons, they should have fee in Black-ace, but not by the will, but by descent in coparcenary. 2 Litt. 129. Mich. 29 Eliz. B. R. How-ston's case.

Devise of a term to A. for life, and after to the issue of A. and for want of issue of A. to B. was adjudged a good remainder to B. in B. R. lately, but reversed in Cam. Sanc. and a difference taken between such limitation between children; and to the issue; per Lord Keeper. 2 Clew.
Caye 210. Mich. 27 Car. 2. in the case of Warman v.
Seymore, cited as the case of Pier v. Rorci.

A. devises a term to his wife, and after her decease to the heirs of her body, and for default, to J. S. The executor affents to the legacy; the wife dies without issue; per Finch C. A. meant an entail on the whole estate which cannot be, because there then should be a perpetuity of a term; and though there be difference in words when land of freehold is devised to one for life, remainder afterwards to his heirs mediatly or immediately, and where a term is so devised; the difference is in words,
the tenter's meaning is the same, and now estates, joi-tures and fettlements are of long terms, and a limitation is between them, &c. Mich. 29 Car. 2. 2 Chit.

And after their decease to their children, are words of purchase, because they work by way of remainder, and carry but an estate for life; for they say the word issue or coparcenary mean an entail; per Finch C. R. 280. in the case of Warman v. Seyman & al, cites it as adjudged fo. 6

Issue in a will is as much as heirs of his body, yet sometimes it is a word of purchase; as if a devise be to a man for life, and after to his issue; and to the heirs of fuch issue, in such case issue is a word of purchase; the same law of heir. Skiu. 559. Mich. 6 W. 11 M. B. R. ic in cafe of Mar v. Parker.

A. devised lands to his second fons and his heirs for ever, and for want of fuch heirs, then to the right heirs of A. A. died, the second died without issue, living the eldest son for adjudged, that the second fons have estate-tail, and no more, because the words (and for want of such heirs) are void in point of limitation, and import no more than want of issue; because the second fons could never die without heirs so long as his brothers, or any heirs of his father were living. Therefore the heir at law in this case shall take by defect, and not by the will. 1 Salk. 233. Trin. 12 W. 11 B. R. Nottingham

v. Jenner. A pretended title of lands to A. and B. in trust for C. for life, with power to make leaves, and after C.1s decease in trust for the heirs male of the body of C. Cooper Ch. decreed only an estate for life to be conveyed to C. and to his fifth &c. sons in tail male. But Harcourt K. reversed that decree, and decreed an estate-tail; though he admitted that the articles founded on the agreement of parties, the husband in such case might be only tenant for life; but in a will you must take the words Culman.

Where the heir takes any thing which might have vested in the ancestor, he shall be in by defect. Arg.

The word heir does not serve for the name of purchaser
if he be not legal heir, nor the word issue.
The word fons or daughters is often treated so. In such a case of testament and will, though they are bailiffs. Jnke. 203. pl. 27.

An uce of a term for years to husband and wife, and to after to their issue, they then having none, is all one, as if limited to them and the heirs of their bodies, and the issue takes nothing as a purchaser; per Lord Keeper, Chanc. 1700. 32 Car. 2. 1703. Lord kite.

A. poftifted of a term for 2000 years, in consideration of marriage, &c. with M. demised to trustees for 1700 years part of the 2000 years, out of which 1700 years, a term of 99 years was particularly limited to A. for life, and the remaining part of the 1700 years was declared to be for a perpetual term of A. and M. and their children, if A. and M. or any of their issue to him should be alive, remaining to the heirs of the body of A. on M.
they both died, leaving issue three daughters, B. C. and D. C. and D. got an assignment of the whole term, and took administration to A. B. brought her bill. And the question was, if the should have a third part with C. and D. And though it was intitled for them, that the truth of the whole term vested in A. and was executed in him, and that the daughters, though heirs of his body, could not take in this case; yet the Master of the Rolls conceived, that in regard, a particular term of 99 years was taken out of the 1700, and particularly limited to A. that the truth of the whole term, as to the 1700 years was not executed to A. and cited the case of Oakes v. Chaford, and Thamone v. Cunnon, and the case of Warman v. Seyman, where, by advice of judges, an alienation being to one for life; and then to her issue, it was held, that the issue took by purchase, and issue was not taken to be a word of limitation to vest the whole term in the mother. And yet in legal understanding, is a word of limitation, and not of purchase;
and therefore conceived that though in the principal cafe,
the words (heirs) is not properly a word of purchase, yet they being a particular estate for life, during a particular time, declared to the heirs, they should execute to A. the limitation to the heirs of his body afterwards, and to the issue, by marriage, and to carry it to all the decease; and that after A's death, the trustees should execute estates to the person and persons respectively, that should be interested, according to their respective shares therein; which they did, that the children took their several shares. 2 Fern. 23. Poff. 1687.

Word v. Bradley.

A. poftifted of a term for years, settles it in trust on marriage for himself for life, remainder to his wife for life, remainder to the heirs of the body of the wife by the husband; A. dies, leaving B. a son; per Somers C. A should take her several shares. 2 Somers. Nov. 1632, mull govern this cafe.
There the like limitation was adjudged as words of purchase, and not of limitation, and that on view of that precedent, his lordship had lately decreed accordingly in a like cafe, and said,
said, it would be in vain to make a decree to be revered on an appeal, and therefore dismissed the bill.

Trin. 1659. 2 Vern. R. 362. Daffven v. Goodman and Belt. At Common law issue is not a word of limitation in deeds, but a provision of the same law in favor of an heir; for if a feoffment is made to the use of J. S. and his male, this doth not pass an estate-tail. But in wills it is sometimes a word of limitation, and sometimes a word of purchase, according to the settlor's intention appears in the will. 8 Mod. 33. Dryb. 1 Geo. 2. Shaw v. Weigh. In a marriage there was a limitation to A. for life without impeachment of waste, taken and to the use of the heirs male of the body of A. to be begotten, and of the heirs male of the body of such heirs male. The first words (heirs male) are only a description of the persons who are to take, viz. to the heirs male of their bodies. 4 St. Trin. 5 Geo. 1. Tregor v. Tregor. A. on the marriage of J. S. with X. his niece, acting for that the better advancement of J. S. and his intended wife, and the issue of the marriage he would at the time of his death, leave, devise or otherwise convey lands, etc. of 301. a year to the heirs of the body of M. by his niece by his lawful husband, and to their heirs, provided, that if there should be more than one child, A. might dispose thereof to such of the children as he should think fit. A. died, living J. S. and M. who had seven children, and demanded the 30 l. a year, with the arrears from A.'s death. It was objected, that this 30 l. a year being to be left to the body of M. by J. S. (it could not commence 'till A.'s death; for children of both sexes un-umit) and that then all their children might be dead, or otherwise it was uncertain which would then be her heir of her body. But Ld. C. King said, that the court of equity has a greater latitude in construction of articles than of limitations of estates. And that here the words (heirs of the body of the niece, by the husband) shall be construed, (children) and the rather because it is laid jut afterward, and to their heirs; whereas if there be a son of the marriage, it must be his heirs alone that must take; and though in case of daughters only, the words (their heirs) had been proper, yet here are fins, and it cannot be intended that the provision was for daughters only, when not so expressed; and the proviso for preference of any of the children, flies, that all the children were to take, unless A. should make an appointment to any one; and the preamble being, that the issue to be adopted as well as the husband and wife, all be issue born at A.'s death ought to take, and are intended to the arrears from that time. Hill. 1725. 2 Wm. iv. 51. 341. Thomas v. Benett.

In what cases the general issue may be pleaded.

The general issue may be pleaded by persons acting under the 43 Eliz. concerning the poor, 45 Eliz. c. 2. 17. 19. 1 Jas. 1. c. 12. 37. 13 & 14 Car. 2. 12. 27. 10. On the act concerning bankrupts, 1 Jas. c. 15. 16.

Or the Acts concerning sheriffy, 1 Jas. c. 12. 27. 10. 9 Ann. c. 26. 27. 10. 2 Geo. c. 19. 16. 17. 2 Geo. c. 45. 27. 20. 2 Geo. c. 39. 27. 16. 3 Geo. c. 27. 27. 20. Or by peaceofficers, 7 Jas. c. 1. c. 5. 21 Jas. c. 1. 12.

Or in suits on penal statutes, 21 Jas. c. 1. c. 4. f. 4. 5. To informations of uttering after 20 years, 21 Jas. c. 14. f. 1.

Or against profane swearing, 21 Jas. c. 1. c. 20. 19.

Or by clerk of the market, &c. 16 Car. c. 1. 19.

Or by persons executing excise laws, 12 Car. c. 2. c. 23. 10. 35. 12 W. 3. c. 21. 27. 10. 16 W. 3. c. 21. 10. 16 W. 3. c. 21. 10.

Or the laws of culls, 15 & 14 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 6. 8 Geo. 1. c. 18. 26. 9 Geo. 1. c. 21. 27. 11. 2 Geo. c. 35. 37. 37.

Or in actions against collectors of publick money, 14 Car. c. 2. c. 17.

Or prorogus executing the act against impertission of cattle, 20 Car. c. 2. 7. fett. 8. 37. Geo. 2. c. 11. 12.

Or for rebuilding London, 22 Car. 2. c. 11. 11. 8. fett. 13. 3 W. 3 c. 12. 25. 1 Geo. 1. c. 52. fett. 13. 5 Geo. 1. c. 23. 17. fett. 6. 9 Geo. 2. c. 20. 18. 14 Geo. 2. c. 42. 37. 21 Geo. c. 28. 5. 26 Geo. 2. c. 30. fett. 23.

Or the act concerning drapery, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 8. 10. 7. 1 Ann. 1. c. 12. 37. 10. 1 Geo. 1. c. 25. fett. 9. 11 Geo. 1. c. 24. fett. 10. 11 Geo. 2. c. 18. 37. fett. 15. 2 Geo. c. 28. fett. 5. 26 Geo. 2. c. 30. fett. 23.

Or the act concerning tobacco, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 8. 10. 7. 1 Ann. 1. c. 12. 37. 10. 1 Geo. 1. c. 25. fett. 9. 11 Geo. 1. c. 24. fett. 10. 11 Geo. 2. c. 18. 37. fett. 15. 2 Geo. c. 28. fett. 5. 26 Geo. 2. c. 30. fett. 23.

Or the act concerning tobacco, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 8. 10. 7. 1 Ann. 1. c. 12. 37. 10. 1 Geo. 1. c. 25. fett. 9. 11 Geo. 1. c. 24. fett. 10. 11 Geo. 2. c. 18. 37. fett. 15. 2 Geo. c. 28. fett. 5. 26 Geo. 2. c. 30. fett. 23.

Or concerning orphans, 5 W. 3 & M. 1. c. 10. fett. 30. 21 Geo. 2. c. 29. f. 6.

Or concerning debts, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 7. 7. fett. 6. 11 Geo. 2. c. 12. 37. fett. 3. Or the act concerning imbezillers of national forces, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 7. fett. 7.

Or by persons acting under malt tax, 1 Geo. 1. c. 2. 2. 2. 16. 33 Geo. 2. c. 23. fett. 24. 33 Geo. 2. c. 23. fett. 61. 11 Geo. 2. c. 23. fett. 11. 12 Geo. 2. c. 33. f. 10.

Or for preventing fire, 6 Ann. c. 31. fett. 6.

Or concerning butter, 4 Geo. 1. c. 7. 7. fett. 7.

Or concerning highways, 4 Geo. 1. c. 7. 7. fett. 7.

Or concerning coals, 1 Geo. 1. c. 57. f. 5.

Or concerning butts, 4 Geo. 1. c. 7. 7. fett. 7.

Or concerning waterworks, 8 Geo. 1. c. 26. fett. 8.

Or concerning orphans, 5 Geo. 1. c. 18. fett. 27. 3 Geo. 2. c. 20. fett. 24.

Or concerning Canterbury, 1 Geo. 2. c. 12. 37. fett. 38.

Or by party sued on contract to induce creditors to sign certificate, 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. fett. 11.

Or by those acting under the act concerning dyers, 13 Geo. 1. c. 24. f. 7.

Or concerning garrisoning, 10 Geo. 2. c. 28. fett. 38. 30 Geo. 2. c. 24. fett. 22.

Or to actions for distress, 3 Geo. 2. c. 29. fett. 3.

Or concerning orphans, 11 Geo. 1. c. 30. fett. 43.

Or concerning garrison, 10 Geo. 2. c. 28. fett. 38.

Or concerning garrisoning, 10 Geo. 2. c. 28. fett. 38.

Or concerning orphans, 11 Geo. 1. c. 30. fett. 43.

Or concerning garrisoning, 10 Geo. 2. c. 28. fett. 38.

Or concerning orphans, 11 Geo. 1. c. 30. fett. 43.

Or concerning garrisoning, 10 Geo. 2. c. 28. fett. 38.

Or concerning orphans, 11 Geo. 1. c. 30. fett. 43.

Or concerning garrisoning, 10 Geo. 2. c. 28. fett. 38.

Or concerning orphans, 11 Geo. 1. c. 30. fett. 43.
by Geo. feif. iffues the fci ff. fuch publicc fion day in Or...f. thefc... 13
12. 31utricc2i f..tion MiVnia under the concerning...2... 13.
Thofe vagrants, feet. under the concern. of MiVnia...12.'
1475. reduced it to every twenty-five years. Of one of our Kings, v.. 2... 13.
2. 31. 1475. reduced it to every twenty-five years. Of one of our Kings, 1468. 2. 6...
2. 2. 2. 31. 1475. reduced it to every twenty-five years. Of one of our Kings, 1468. 2. 6...
2. 2. 31. 1475. reduced it to every twenty-five years. Of one of our Kings, 1468. 2. 6...
1. In what cases persons may be judges in their own cases.

If a fine be levied by a justice of the King, he himself cannot take the conun:se; for he cannot be his own judge.

This is a ground in the feudal law asfo, as appears in the Preqeditions of Winsacke, cap. 17. fol. 401.

If the Lord Chancellor makes a decree to frangiers in a thing which concerns himself in interest, and for himself, it is void; because he cannot be a judge in his own cause.

If a man brings an action before the mayor, bailiffs, and freedmann of a ville, and after the mayor is removed, and the plaintiff is made mayor, and after he have recover, this judgment is not erroneous; for the judgment is given by the court, and not by him alone.

If a man, by his own act, be the chief of an island, and he be the judge of it, and he made the plaintiff, and the plaintiff take him for the judg:es, this is not erroneous.

This case is law, but not for the reasons here given.

If A bad a tols, C, d. B. Ris in the said case, per curiam.

If a man be the judge of a thing which concerns himself in interest, and for himself, he cannot be a judge in his own cause; nor can he take the fines; and therefore the judgment is void, because it is void in law.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If a man take a writ of error, and then he be made mayor, and the plaintiff take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.

If A, in the court of the mayor and bailiffs, be the mayor, and A is mayor, and it is not paid in the record, that he was made mayor, or it do not appear in the record that he was made mayor, then it is void.

If the defendant be not found in the record, and the plaintiff be not found to have been a person of good character, to sue on this account, and to take him for a judge, this is not erroneous.
the mayor's court, unless the mayor could be severed, and the court held before the aldermen. 1 Salk. 397.

2. [March 1701. West v. Mayor of London, 5 Cr. 111.]

A man was surveyor of the highways, and a matter concerning his office coming in question at the feyons, he joined in making the order, and his name was put to the caption. Per Exec. Ch. J. it ought not to be. 2 Salk. 637. Hill. 3 An. B. R. Forham v. Tishing's cafe.

A justice cannot afe a record, nor embezzle it, nor file an indictment which is not found, nor give judgment of death where the law does not give it; but if he does it, is is his office, and he shall lose his office, and shall make fine for misprision; but it is not felony. Dr. Judges, pl. 33. cites 2 R. 3. 9.

No action on the cafe will be against a judge for what he does as a judge. Arg. 2 Rall. R. 199. cites 26 Eliz. and 27 Aff. 73.

A judge indiscriminately condemns a man to death for felony, when it is not felony, in a manor court, which has the franchise of infantifhief; for this offence the judge shall be fined and imprisoned, and lose his office; and the lord shall lose his franchise. These points were resolved in the star-chamber, by an assembly of all the judges there, by the command of King R. III. "Jotn. 1627.

Where judges are limited to the subject of their jurisdiction, and they exceed the limits of their jurisdiction, action lies against them; per Powell J. 2 Law. 1565. Mich. 4 W. & M. cites Hard. 450. Terry v. Hasting.

If plea to the jurisdiction of an inferior court be offered as it ought to be before impeachment, and upon oath, all proceedings after shall be void, and the judge and officer shall be liable to action. Per Powell J. 2 Law. 1567. cites Stat. 1 W. I. 35.

Judge is not answerable to the King, or the party, for mistakes or errors of his judgment, in a matter of which he has jurisdiction. 1 Salk. 397. Trin. 12 W. 3. B. R. Greenwatt v. Barwell.

All misdemeanors of judicial officers are a contempt of the court of B. R. 1 Salk. 201. Pajef. 1 Am. B. R. Aven'.

Judge in Cheshire to be judge of a town is to serve at the lord's court on the jury. Lefcrf's Aut. fei. 302.

Judgment, (Judicium) quod juris dictum, Is the opinion of the judges so called, and is the very voice and fiand of that which is misprision and therefore is always taken for unquestionable truth. The ancient words of judgment are very significant, viz. Considerratum est per curiam, &c. because judgment is or ought to be given by the court, upon consideration of the record before them; and in every judgment there ought to be three persons, viz. Actus, reus & judex: of judgments there be final, and none final. See Co. in Litt, f. 39, and Co. 9 Rep. Downam's cafe. Cawell, edit. 1727.

1. Statutes concerning judgments.
2. When judgments are to be signed and entered.
3. For what causes judgments are set aside.
4. Statutes concerning judgments.
Stat. 24 Ed. 3. 3. 1, cap. 5. At every parliament shall be chosen a prelate, two earls and two barons, which shall have commission of the King to hear by pe-Indictment for a misdemeanor, was tried three days before the end of the term, and the judgment entered the same term, so that defendant had not enough days to come in arrest of judgment. The question was, whether the entry was regular, and whether it should not have been stayed till the term following; and per Holl Ch. J. if there are four days and move between the trial and the judgment, judgment ought not to be entered within the four days in which the defendant was absent, the term, and the party is tried within two or three days before the end of the term, the judgment shall not be entered, tho' there are not four days to move in arrest of judgment; and so he said it was settled in the case of North v. Lecture.

Upon conference between Seguay Ch. J. and Sir William Toms Attorney General, contrary to the report of Sir Samuel Astrey. 1 Salt. 77, Pask. 117* t. 3. B. R. Annt.

By the ancient rules of the court, the judgments of one term ought to be entered on the roll before the ebb and flow of the next term; and the last act of parliament for docketing of judgments was only in imitation of the ancient course in aid of it; per Holl Ch. J. 6 Mad. 154, Trin. 3 Term. B. R. in the case of Hering v. Croker.

The plaintiff, by a special injunction out of Chancery, was restrained from signing judgment near 12 months after it was given, to plead, he may, after such injunction, do so without giving a new rule to plead. Notes of Cases in C. B. 156, Mich. 6 Gen. 2, Tebbsam v. Jackson.

If defendant demands order of an indenture, which is given, the defendant has the same time to plead after declaration is verified by the oyer as he had at the time of oyer demanded, and therefore judgment being signed the next day after oyer given, and the oyer having been required by the defendant, and being made out, the judgment was not final. Notes of Cases in C. B. 156, Mich. 6 Gen. 2, Tebbesam v. Jackson.

The copy was returnable the 27th of October last, and judgment signed November 7th following; it was moved to set aside the judgment as signed the 12th day after the return of the writ, which was one day too soon, the defendant having, by the late act of parliament, eight days to appear after the return of the writ, and by the practice of the court, four days afterwards to plead, and the court made a rule to flee causa; thereupon it was moved for causa, that the declaration was left in the office of Cite de Bone. (parliament to the rule of court made in Michelson's term 3 Gen. 2) on the third day after the day of the writ for pleading was out, the judgment was not final. Notes of Cases in C. B. 167, Hill. 7 Gen. 2, Chilton v. Handley and another.

The writ was returnable tres Mich. and an appearance entered by the plaintiff. The declaration was left in the office of November the 6th, and rule to plead then given; no notice of the declaration filed was served upon the defendant November 11th, defendant moved bill term to set aside the judgment, and obtained a rule to flee causa, which was made absolute upon hearing counsel on both sides. The declaration not being delivered de bone effe, was only well delivered from the time of the notice, and before that time no judgment could be given. Notes in C. B. 172, Hill. 8 Gent. 2, Grey v. Saunders.

After rule to plead expired, defendant obtained, and served a judge's summons for time to plead. Plaintiff's attorney, notwithstanding the summons, signed judgment; defendant moved to set side the judgment, and on flushing the cause, the court held the judgment to be regular. A summons for time, after rule to plead expired, is not a superfaced or day of proceedings. The judge was imposed upon; he would not have granted the summons.
common, had he known the rule was not. The judge made it regular, but was set aside on payment of costs, pleading the general suit, and taking short notice of trial. *Notes in C. B. 182, 183. Tr. 10 & 11 Ge. 2.
Declaration was delivered with blanks, and rule to plead given Oct. 22. 80. The blanks were filled up, and defendant at the same time demanded of the bond. The 27th at eight in the evening, was over given, and plea demanded, and the 20th judgment was signed, which was held irregular, and set aside. De-defendant ought to have the same time to plead after over given as remained unexpired of the rule to plead at 11 Ge. 2. Simpsoo v. Dafdid.
It was moved to leave to enter judgment upon an old warrant of attorney, upon an affidavit that the defendant, who refrained at Jamaica, was living and in good health, and had been seen and conversed with there by the person who made the affidavit, on the 13th of September last.
He faileid from Jamaica very soon afterwards, and arived at London the 15th of January following. The motion was granted. *Notes in C. B. 187. Hill. 11 Ge.
In waffe, plaintiff gave a common rule to plead, and at the expiration of four days without giving a peremptory rule, filed a judgment ; defendant moved to set the judgment aside, infilling that a peremptory rule ought to have been given in a real action ; and of this opinion were the court ;
the place waived, as well as damages, being to be recovered in the action by the statute of Glenc. cap. 5.
In mix'd actions a peremptory rule is necessary, as well in real actions, (except repluv) and the judgment was set 13 Ge. 2. Worthwoth v. Huyler.
3. For what causes judgments are set aside.
Judgment was given in debt upon a bond against an executor in C. B. and upon error brought in B. R. errors were assigned ; and because, upon the record it did not appear that the monies are yet payable, rule was given to reverce the judgment, nifi, &C., and the counsel of the defendant in error said, he could not maintain the judgment, and therefore prayed the reversel of it for his client's convenience, who intended to bring a new action, by which it was reversed absolutely. 2 Sound. 106, 108.
Pajch. 22 Car. 2. Hiiipp v. Ottrey.
A feme covert who lived by herself, and acted as a feme fuly, gave a warrant of attorney to congfs a judgment, &C., and afterwards moved to set aside the judgment of covert, but the court would not believe her, but put her to her writ of error. 1 Stat. 400. Mich. 10 V. 3. B. R. Ann.
Upon payment of costs, the court will set 'tide a judgment, th'o he regularly entered, if the plaintiff hath not left a trial ; and so is the common cause in C. B. 1 4 Stat. 402. Mich. 3 Ann. B. R. Sijc. v. Lein.
Stat. 5 Ge. 13, enacts, That where a verdict shall be given in any action in any court of record in England or Wales, the judgment shall not be paid for any defect
in form or substance in any part of the proceedings.
Bagges moved to set aside the judgment, upon an affidavit of a demand of the bond on the 29th of May, (being the same day whereon a plea was demanded) and of the service of Mr. justice Farebrother's summons the same day of oyer, and time to plead. Darrel for plaintiff opposes the motion, and produced an affidavit that oyer was not demanded, nor summons served till after the rule to plead was out ; and the court refused to make A motion was made against judgment for plaintiff upon the issue of sad tite record. The case was, Plaintiff had mffaken commodity in his declaration ; defendant had pleaded in abatement, and annexed affidavit of the truth of this plea; plaintiff brought a new action, and the de-defendant pleaded the former action depending ; upon which plaintiff of his own head, without leave of the court, entered a sii experit for balance. The officers were asked their opinions, who all agreed it to be the ediction and practice; and the court allowed it. But when another question arose, whether the plaintiff could have made such an entry, in case the first plea had not been in abatement, the court held the judgment of the first abate-ments; but Cape thought it might be in all cases; the court said, it was impossible to be so, and held it 11 Ge. 2. Offsone v. Haddick.
The defendant's attorney left a note at the house of the plaintiff that he could not proceed with the double return affidavit in this manner, viz. I plead nut debt, yours, &C., and the plaintiff's attorney without finding notice to the defendant's attorney, that he expected a plea in form, signed judgment ; and upon a motion to set the judgment aside, it was held to be regular, and the note aforesaid to be no plea. Pleas delivered to attorneys must be drawn up in such manner as to be left in the office. *Notes in C. B. 156.
It was moved to set aside a judgment signed for want of a plea, upon an affidavit of the delivery of a plea to the plaintiff's attorney in due time, which was a plea of an outlawry against the plaintiff in B. R. pleaded in bar by plaintiff. After hearing the case, the court held the plea infilled, that the outlawry not being pleaded fab pede fi-illis, plaintiff was not bound to accept it, and therefore might regularly sign judgment, and cited 1 Salt. 217.
Carthew 220. They ordered it to be moved again and when the motion came on the second time it was withdruived. The court held on the motion to set the judgment aside, differs it from the case quoted on the other side, and quoted Cese's Inst. 128. 1 Lutn. 40. 2 Med.
267. Albin & Bailey. It was replied, that Lord Ch. J.
Holt's words in Carthew and Salloke, go both to pleas in bar and abatement, where the outlawry is in another case, C. W. Whipple's Case ancient. Car.
Rogalin 213. 2 Int. 282, quoted [are of] pleas in bar, not dilatory ; plaintiff cannot take upon him to judge of the plea in bar; he should apply to the court, or demurr; rule made to set aside the judgment. *Notes
A rule to plead was given in Trinity term last ; and defendant obtained time by Mr. Justice Reeves's order to plead 'till the first day of this term ; and for want of a plea the plaintiff signed judgment of this term, without giving a new rule to plead ; which the court held to be regular, the rule to plead, given last term, being enlarged by the judges order to the first day of this term.
*Notes in C. B. 160. Trin. 7 Ge. 5. Castle v. Stowm.
The writ was returnable the first return day of this term, where defendant appeared by his attorney, and plaintiff in Twitlur, gave a rule to plead, and, after demanding a plea, signed judgment for want thereof in four days ;
defendant moved to set aside the judgment ; And the que-tion before the court was, whether in this case the defendant should have or four days to plead. And the court held, that pursuant to the rule of court made in Michaelmas term, third of his present Majesty, in all cases upon writs returnable the first or second return of any term, if the plaintiff do not declare in London or Albiddes, or the defendant lives about 20 miles from London, the defendant hath eight days time to plead ;

and therefor set aside the judgment. *Notes in C. B. 165.
Mich. 7 Ge. 2. Lawson v. Bradley.
Defendant pleaded a tender, but brought no money into court ; he gave a rule to reply, and for want of a replication gave a non prao; plaintiff looked upon the plea as a plea in bar, and money not brought into the signed judgment after the non prao obtained, and now moved to set aside the non prao. The defendant moved to set aside the judgment, infilling that the plaintiff could not regularly sign judgment 'till the non prao was set aside, and of that opinion was Sir George Cape, but the two other prothonotaries reported the praller contrary; and the court was of opinion, that the non prao not being rightly obtained, plaintiff might proceed in the same manner, as he might have done in case of

For theft bote, 3 Infl. p. 218.

In libel, 1 Hawk. P. C. p. 196.

Bribing witnesses to fillde their evidence, 2 Hawk. P. C. p. 445.

For other offences of the like nature against the first principles of natural justice and common honesty, 2 Hawk. P. C. p. 445.

In appeal when the defendant joining battle is vanquished in the course of the suit, 3 Infl. p. 212.

In attaint in civil causes, 3 Infl. p. 222.

Of a corrupt judge, 3 Infl. p. 224.

Of outbreak, 2 Hawk. P. C. p. 446. 3 Infl. p. 214.

Of abjuration, 2 Hawk. P. C. p. 446. 3 Infl. p. 216.

Fillory, tumbril and tumbrelcart, 3 Infl. p. 219.

Where the court may award a fine for transportation, or to the house of correction, 2 Hawk. P. C. p. 446.

In what cases the defendant must be in court when judgment given, 2 Hawk. P. C. p. 446.

Judgment or Trial by the help of crafts, Was a trial in ecclesiastical causes, in use long since among the Savages. See Crutty's Church History, fol. 950, 1952.

Infractions and deformations of the ancient and religious laws, in the county palaces of Chiffers, who on a writ of error out of Chirtery are to consider of the judgment given there, and reform it; and if they do not, and it be found erroneous, they forfeit 100 l. to the King by the culson. Dyce 348.

Judge of Saints; So Pobhzo Virgin calls Empson and Dollis, who were employed by Hen. 7. for taking the benefit of penal statutes, and were put to death by Hen. 8. See Jurid. Herb. H. 8. fol. 5, 6.

Judicial decisions, opinions or determinations, as far as they refer to the laws of this kingdom, are for the matter of them of three kinds, 18. They are either such as have their reasons fingly in the laws and customs of this kingdom; as who shall succeed as heir to the ancestor; what is the ceremony requisite for proving a freehold? what estate, and how much the wife shall have for her dower? And many such matters, wherein the ancient and expressd laws of this kingdom give an express decision, and the judge Feem only the instrument to pronounce it; and in those things the law or custom of the realm is the only rule and measure to judge by, and in reference to those matters, the decision of courts are the conservatories and evidences of those laws. Or 3dly, They are such decisions, as by way of deduction and ilulation upon the premises for which they were pronounc'd; as for the purpose, Whether of an estate thus or thus limited the wife shall be endowed? whether if thus or thus limited, the heir may be barred? and infinite more of the like complicated questions. And herein the rule of decision is first, the Common law and custom of the realm, which is the great foundation that is to be maintained; and then authorities of decisions of former times in the same or the like cases; and then the reason of the thing itself, 3dly, Or they are such as seem to have no other guide but the common reason of the thing, unless the fame point has been formerly decided, as in the exposition of the intensity of the words, etc., where the very sense of the words, and their importations and relations give a rational account of the meaning of the party, and in such cases the judge does much better herein, than what a bare grave grammarnian or logician, or other prudent method for it there have been former resolutions, either in point, or agreeing in reason or analogy with the case in question; or perhaps also the clause to be expounded is mingled with some term or clauses that require the knowledge of the law to help out with the construction or exposition; both which do and will happen in the same case; and therefore it requires the knowledge of the law to render and

Vol. II. No. 57.
Injuria, Injure. A writ which lies for the incurrence, whose predecessor hath alienated his lands and tenements. The divers uses whereof is in Finis. Nat. Bret. fol. 48.

By Stat. 14 Ed. 3, c. 17. Parfons, vicars and wardens of chapels, shall have their writs of juris utrum of tenements annexed or given perpetually in alms to vicarages to be administered by another by other writs in their case as parsons of churches or prebends.

Jurisprudence, The journal or diary of accounts in a religious house. —Ubi pater per jurata loco ante—ubi pater per juridicium jurata. Paroch. Antiqu. p. 571. From the French juris, a day; whence this word was at first properly applied to the conduct of a disputant in argument or debate; the word in a strict and original sense; for they call one day's travel or work at plough, a journey or journe. Hence a journeyman is one who works by the day. —Curs. edit. 1727.

Jurisdiction, A journey, or one day's travelling. —Curs. edit. 1727.

Jurisprudence, (Jurisprudence.) One of those twenty-four or twelve men, which are sworn to declare a truth upon such evidence as shall be given them touching the matter in question. —Curs. edit. 1727. See Juris.

Jurisdiction, (Jurisprudence.) May be derived from the Latin juris, a law, and signifies either twenty-four or twelve men, sworn, as a body, to decide the matter in question, or, as they are declared, to decide upon such evidence as shall be given to them, touching the matter in question. And observe, that in England there are three sorts of trials, viz. one by parliament, another by battle, and the third by assize or jury. Smith de Rep. Ang. lib. 2, cap. 5, 6, 7. On the two former read him, and see Battle, Court, and Parliament. The trial by assize, (be the action civil or criminal, publick or private, properal or real,) is referred for the fact to a jury, and as they find it, so passeth the judgment, and the great favour that by this the King doth show to his subjects, more than the Princes of other countries. So you may read in Glanvill, lib. cap. 7, that he call it, Regale benefici, elementi principii de compositione populi, id est, humanum et firmum integrum, quod equae hominum et jurium integritatem habere et conservare, et utique in belli faction, et in jurisdictione, et utique in proprium et in ceterum eorum decreta. Hence the jury is not only used in courts of justices errant, but also in other courts and trials, and may be required of the judge, if he thinks the matter incapable of decision in any thing touching his office, he doth it by jury or inquest. If the counsellor enquire how a subject found, dead, came to his end, he useth an inquest. The judges of peace in their quarter-seels, the sheriff in his county and town, the bailiff of a hundred, the warden of a court, etc. have it in their power to take and declare any cause between party and party, they do it in the same manner: So that where it is fait, all things are triable by parliament, battle, or assize, in this place any cause was taken for a jury or inquest, impanelled upon any cause in a court where this kind of trial is used; and though it be commonly supposed that this writ of ending and deciding causes proceeded from the Saxons and Britons, and was of favour permitted to us by the conqueror; yet we find by the Grand Counciurary of Normandy, cap. 24, that this course was likewise used in that country; for assize is in that chapter defined to be an assembly of wise men, with the bailiff of a certain place, at a time as assigned forty days before, whereby justice may be done in causes heard in that court of this sort of this court also, and those knights of Normandy, Johanes Taker maketh mention in the Roman of the title De Militari Tegumentis, in infinit. This jury, though it appertaineth to morts courts of the Common law, yet it is most notorious in our own courts of assize, and is an imitation of that called the Great Assizes; and in the quarter-seels, and in them in morts of which we are called a jury, and that in civil causes; whereas in other courts it is termed another inquest, and in the court-baron, a jury of the homine; In the general assize, there are usually many jur. jur. and there are found
Likewise the authority of this trial, and in being peculiar to us, have been taken notice of, as matters which reflect honour on our constitution; for where there were anciently several or methods of trial, such as by battle, ordeal, &c. yet have they, from the inconveniences attending them, been laid aside; and this alone cultivated and improved, as the best method of investigating truth.

§ 1. Statutes concerning juries.

1. Who are exempted from serving on juries.

2. Of the several kinds of juries, and jury process; and manner of compelling a jury to appear.

3. By whom the jury process shall be executed, and the jury summoned; in what time such process, and what number of juries, are to be returned.

4. In what cases and in what manner special juries are appointed.

§ 2. Statutes concerning juries.

Stat. 26 Hen. 3. cap. 14. Concerning charters of exemption, and liberties, that the purchasers shall not be impaneled as affifts, jurors, or any other party, to try suits or actions by virtue of the charters referred

Stat. 3 Edw. 3. cap. 58. In one affift no more shall be summoned than twenty-four; and old men above seventy years, and such as be sick at the time of the summoned, or not dwelling in that country, shall not be put in juries or petty affiplies; and if such affifts and juries be taken out of the hire, none shall pass in them but those that have been sworn in forty years at least, except such as be witnesses in writing; being all this franchise extend to great affiplies; and if the sacrific or barfilts offend in any point of this statute, and thereupon be convicted, damages shall be awarded to the parties grieved, and they shall nevertheless be amerced to the King; and juries alleged to take affifts shall have power to hear plaints as to the articles in this statute.

Stat. 21 Edw. 2. cap. 1. No sacriff nor barfilft shall put in any recognize which shall pass out of their proper bailiffships any, except they have lands to the yearly value of an 1000s. at least. And this statute shall not restrain the laft franchise, or the franchise of the heirs, as above: so that within the county before juries of the King, no barfilft is signified to the taking of inquests or other recognizances, shall not be impealed except be have lands to the yearly value of 40s., and likewise favoring that before juries errant, and also in cities, boroughs and other market-towns, it shall be done as it hath been accustomed.}

Stat. 28 Edw. 1. cap. 3. No sacriff nor barfilft shall shew impanel in juries too many perfon, nor otherwise than is ordained by the statute, and they shall put in the jury such as be next neighbours, most sufficient and least frivolous; and he that otherwise doth, and is attended thereunto, shall pay the plaintiff his damages double, and be grievously amerced to the King.

Stat. 33 Edw. 1. cap. 4. Of inquests to be taken wherein the King is party, notwithstanding it be alleged that the jurors or some of them, be not indifferent for the King; yet such inquests shall not remain untaken for that cause, but if they that do for the King will challenge any of those jurors, they shall again a new cause, and the truth of the challenge shall be inquired of.

Stat. 5 Edw. 3. cap. 10. If any juror in affiplies, juries or inquests, take of the one party or the other, and be thereof estranged, he shall not be put in any affiplies, juries or inquests, and the barfilft shall be commanded to prifon, and further restrained to the King's will, and the jurors before whom such affiplies, &c., shall pass, shall have power to inquire and determine according to this statute.
Stat. 25 Edw. 3. stat. 5. cap. 3. No indictment shall be put in inquests upon the deliverances of the indirecutes of felony or trefpass, if he be challenged for the same cause.

Stat. 34 Edw. 3. cap. 4. Panels shall be made of the next people not suspected nor procured: and the sefiffors, coroners and other ministers, which do against the time, shall be inquested before the justices take the inquest, according to their trefpafs, as well against the King as against the party.

Stat. 34 Edw. 3. cap. 8. In every plea whereof the inquest or affize doth pass, if any of the parties will sue against any of the jurors, that have then of him, or of either, for their verdict, he shall have his plaint by bill presently before the justices before whom they did swear, and if the juror plead to the country, the inquest shall be taken forthwith: and if any other than the party will sue for the King against the juror, it shall be heard; and if the jurors be attainted at the suit of other than the party, be that suit shall have half the fine: and the parties to the plea shall recover their damages by the taxing of the inquest; and the juror for attainted shall have imprisonment one year, which shall not be pardoned: and if the party will sue by writ before other justices, he shall have the fuit in the form aforesaid.

Stat. 28 Edw. 3. stat. 1. cap. 12. If any jurors do take any thing of the plaintiff or defendant to say their verdict, and thereof be attainted by the procès contained in stat. 34 Edw. 3. cap. 8. be it at the suit of the party that will sue for himself or for the King, or at the suit of any other, every of the said jurors shall pay ten times as much as he hath taken: and be that will sue shall have the one half, and the King the other; and all imbracres to procure such inquest for gain shall be punished as the jurors; or if the juror or imbracer have not whereof to make gree, he shall have imprisonment for one year; and no justice or other minister shall incite any person in the points of this article, but only at the suit of the party or of other.

Stat. 41 Edw. 3. cap. 11. No inquest but affizes and deliverances of goods shall be taken by writ of nisi prius, nor in other manner, before that the names of all that shall pass in the inquests be returned in court; and the sefiffors shall array the panels to affize four days at leaft before the sefions of the justices; upon pain of 20l. and bailiffs of franchises shall make their answer to the sefiffors five days before the sefions, upon the same pain: and in all panels arrayed by the sefiffors or bailiffs shall be put the most substantial people and worldly of faith, and not usurer, and the sefiffs shall not appear therein: no indictment shall be made but by inquest of lawful people, returned by the sefiffors or bailiffs of franchises, without any denomination before-hand made according to law; and if any indictment be made to the contrary, the same shall be void.

Stat. 2 Hen. 5. stat. 2. cap. 3. No perfon shall pass in any inquest upon trial of the death of a man, nor betwixt party and party in plea real or personal whereof the debt or damage amounts to forty marks, if he have not lands of the yearly value of 40l. to it that be challenged by the party.

Stat. 3 Hen. 6. cap. 4. Every juror that shall be inquested and returned within the county of Middlefied in the King's courts, at every fourth day of the return shall be demanded; and all persons impanelled in those courts, that appear at the said day, their appearance shall be recorded; and every default, effion and other delay of any plaintiff or defendant in any perfon returned by him be declared and allowed, as before this statute.

Stat. 1 Ric. 3. cap. 4. No bailiff, nor other officer, shall return in any panel any perfon in any the sefiffors' turns, but such as be of good fame, and having lands of freehold within the counties, to the yearly value of 20l. at hault, or copihould, to the yearly value of 20s. 8d. and if any bailiff or other officer return any perfon contrary to this statute, he shall lose for every perfon so returned 40s. and the sefiffor other 40s. the one half to the King, and the other half to the party that will sue by action of debt, &c. and every indemnity before any sefiffor in his turn otherwise taken shall be void.

Stat. 11 Hen. 7. cap. 21. stat. 1. No perfon shall be impanelled in any jury in London, except he be of lands and chattels in the said city, and no person shall be impanelled in any jury in the said city for lands or tenements, or action personal wherein the debt or damages amount to forty marks, except be in lands and goods to the value of a hundred marks, and the same cause of challenge shall be admitted as a principal challenge, and be set aside; and if any justice appear in any jury before any of the judges of the same city, make default at first summons, shall lose in fines 2d. and at the second default 2s. and so at every such default the fines to be doubled; and all such fines lost in the mayor's court shall be levied to the use of the mayor and commonalty; and all such fines lost in the sefiffors court shall be levied to the use of the sefiffors toward their free farm.

See the rest of this act in Attainit.

Stat. 3 Hen. 8. cap. 12. All panels returned, which be not at the fuit of any party, that shall be made by every sefiffor and their minifteris above any juries of good delivery, or justices of peace in their fells, to inquire and take out of names, by the direction of the justices; and the justice or other minister shall command every sefiffor and their minifteris to put other persons in the panel by their directions: and if any sefiffor or other minister do not return the panels so returned, such sefiffor or minister shall for that, shall be one half to the King, and the other half to the party that will sue for the same by action of debt, &c. and the King's pardon shall be no bar against the parties that shall sue.

Stat. 4 Hen. 8. cap. 3. stat. 2. For all fuits to be lost in the mayor's court, according to stat. 11 Hen. 7. cap. 21. it shall be lawful to the mayor to disfrain; and in like manner in the sefiffors' court, to be lawful to the sefiffors to disfrain for such sefiffors lost in their courts.

Stat. 4. The sefiffors of London shall have power to return in panels or arrays of all actions in the courts of King's Bench and Common Pleas, or Exchequer, perfon being citizens, having goods to the value of 100 marks, to try the fuits joined in such action, as other perfon having lands of the yearly value of 40l.

Stat. 5. The sefiffors of the fad city shall return upon the first disfrfs upon every of the jurors 20l. and upon the second disfrfs 40l. and upon every disfrfs after that the double, till a full jury appear; and the sefiffors that shall default or omit to return the first disfrfs shall forfeit 12l. the one half to the King, and the other half to the party that will sue.

Stat. 5 Hen. 8. cap. 5. stat. 3. The âot 4 Hen. 8. cap. 3. shall be expounded, that the sefiffors be bound to return at every first disfrfs of nisi prius, to be had at St. Martin open, at every of the jurors, 20l. and upon the second disfrfs of nisi prius, 40l. and upon every disfrfs of nisi prius after that the double, till a full jury appear; and no sefiffor shall forfeit by force of the said statute for any return, except only upon writs of disfriffs before justices of nisi prius within the said city; and upon all other processses awarded out of the said courts or Exchequer, it shall be lawful to the sefiffors to make their returns as they were wont to do.

Stat. 24 Hen. 8. cap. 19. stat. 1. Every perfon being the King's natural subject, who do enjoy the liberties of any city, borough or town corporate, where he dwell, being worth in goods to the value of 40l. shall be inquested, and return the land and goods of freehold and delivery for the liberty of such cities, &c. albeit they have no freehold.

Sect. 2. Provided that this âot do not extend to any knight of escheator dignity.

Stat. 35 Hen. 8. cap. 4. stat. 1. In every sefiffor's court and every action within such persons, where the party is either the reversion or remainder of land, and if the sum be to be recovered by action of debt, &c. to be directed 402. b.
veneri facias shall be in this form: Rex, &c. Præcipitamus, &c. quod veniri se facias, &c. 13. libris et legales personas, &c. de B. quorum quidem habet habent quidem ad terras, tenementorum vel ridulum per annum ad minus, per qua rei veitis multas scrib potest. Et quicue, &c. And where it is not requisite that the perons shall defend 14d. by the year of freedom, the writs of veneri shall be to no more than five, in the hundred, where the venue is lent; upon pain to forfeit for every person that cannot defend 42y. by the year, 20l. and for every hundred omitted in such return, 20l. and in every veneri wherein the clause quorum quidem, &c. shall be omitted, the thurf shall not return any person unless he may defend 42y. by the year of freedom, out of ancient demeane, within the county; and also shall return in every such panel fix hundredors, or be in many places of the hundred, where the venue is lent; upon pain to forfeit for every person that cannot defend 42y. by the year, 20l. and for every hundred omitted in such return, 20l. and in every veneri wherein the clause quorum quidem, &c. shall be omitted, the thurf shall not return any person unless he may defend 42y. by the year of freedom, out of ancient demeane, within the county; and also shall return in every such panel fix hundredors, if there be so many, upon like pain. Setl. 4. Upon every first writ of hubres corpora or diergnges with nifi prius, delivered of record, the thurf shall return in issues upon every person impaneled at the time of the return, or within one year next before, or some other addition by which the party may be known; or any juror within any liberry, with other addition than such as shall be delivered to him by the bailiff of 4 N
JUR

the liberty; nor any bailli of liberty shall return any juror, or deliver to the sheriff the names of any persons to be returned, without the addition of the place of abode, &c. and no extract of fines against any juror shall be delivered without due addition of such addition as is put in the original panel or tales wherein such juror shall be returned; and no under-sheriff, bailiff or other person, shall levy any fines of any other persons than of such as by the said effect is of right charged with the said fines; upon pain that every clerk that shall write or deliver any force relating to any other persons extending contrary to this act, shall forfeit to the Queen five marks; and to the party given five marks.

Sect. 3. Judiciles of eyre and terminer, judiciles of affife and judiciles of peace, as well within liberties as without, shall have power to hear and determine the offences aforesaid.

Made per protocol, 30 Eliz. cap. 18. sect. 32.

Stat. 4. Will. & Mar. cap. 24, sect. 15. All jurors (other than framers upon trials per medietatem lingue) shall be returned for trials of fuses joined in the courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas or Exchequer, or before justices of assize of nisi prius, quer and terminer, gaol-delivery or quarter-feelions in any county of England, shall have within the county 10 l. by the year of freehold or copyhold, or ancient demeene, or in rents, in fee-simple, fee-tail or for life; and in every county of Wales every such juror shall have 6 l. by the year as aforesaid; and if any new bailli, affize or other person shall be a guest in any county of England or Wales, and the party returned shall be discharged upon the said challenge, or upon any such oath; and no jurman's fines shall be faved but by order of court, for some reasonable caufe proved upon oath; and all fines shall be duly effectuated and levied; and the writ of venire assizes for the returning of jurors in counties of England shall be after this form: Rem. &c. Non officio, &c. rem. &c. quer in quos, &c. and the writs of returning of jurors in Wales, shall be in the same manner, altering only the word decem for five; and the sheriffs shall not return any person, unless he have 10 l. or 6 l. respectively, by the year, at least, in the county; upon pain to forfeit for every person 5 l. to their Majesties.

Sect. 16. No sheriff or bailli of liberty shall return any person to be returned, unless such person shall have been duly summoned six days before the day of appearance, nor shall take money or reward to excufe any juror; upon pain to forfeit 10 l. to their Majesties.

Sect. 17. Saving to all cities, boroughs and town corporates, their ancient usage of returning jurors.

No sheriff or bailli shall be lawful to return any person upon the tales in England, who shall have within the county 5 l. by the year, and not otherwise.

Sect. 19. It shall be lawful to return any person upon the tales in Wales, who shall have within the county 3 l. by the year.

Sect. 20. No fee shall be taken by any sheriff, clerk of affise or other person, upon account of any prætre, returned upon pain of 10 l. one moiety to the procurator, and the other moiety to their Majesties, to be recovered by action of debt, &c.

Sect. 21. No writ de non ponenda in affisse & juratte shall be granted, unless upon oath made that the suggestions are true.

Sect. 22. So much of this act, as relates to the returning of jurors, shall be in force for three years. &c.

Continued by 7 Will. 3. cap. 32, together with that act, for 7 years from the first of May 1668, and to the end of the next session of parliament, and afterwards continued along with this act, as the same was continued, by 7 Will. 3. cap. 32.

Stat. 7 Will. 3. cap. 39, sect. 1. If any plaintiff or defendant in any cause in the courts at Westminster, which shall be in assize, shall sue forth a venire facias, upon which any bonasti corpora or disjungit with a nisi prius shall issue, in order to trial of such issue at the assizes, and such plaintiff, &c. shall not proceed to trial at the first assizes, in all such cases (other than where the jury is before that act so directed) the plaintiff, &c. whenever he shall think fit to try the issue, shall sue forth a new writ in this form: Shall de novo venire facias de novo, &c. of &c. of &c. de novo in juratu, &c. of &c. de novo in juratu, &c. of &c. de novo in juratu, &c. with the same fees, &c. as if the writ were returned and filed, a bonasti corpora or disjungit with a nisi prius shall issue thereupon (for which the ancient tenor shall be taken, as in case of nisiprius), &c. defendant, &c. upon which the plaintiff, &c. may proceed to trial, as if the same were a nisi prius, &c. on which the sheriff had given, &c. and prosecute the same by bonasti corpora or disjungit, with a nisi prius, as though there had not been any former venire issued and returned, and so tenant to the issue.

Sect. 3. In every writ of bonasti corpora or disjungit, with a nisi prius, where a full jury shall not appear, or where the jury is to remain unasked for default of jurors, the sheriff shall upon the awarding the tales, return freeholders or copyholders of the county, who shall be returned upon some other panel to serve at the same affise, and not others, if so many of the other persons be present; and either of the parties shall have his jury for the same affise; and the sheriff, or other person accounting for, shall deliver to the sheriff, or other person accounting for, the sheriff, and the sheriff shall return upon the tales, return freeholders or copyholders of the county, who shall be returned upon some other panel to serve at the same affise, and not others, if so many of the other persons be present; and either of the parties shall have his jury for the same affise; and the sheriff, or other person responsible for, may proceed to serve and prosecute the cause by bonasti corpora or disjungit, with a nisi prius, as though there had not been any former venire issued and returned, and so tenant to the issue.

Sect. 4. That threfis may be the better informed of persons to be returned for trials of fuses joined in the courts of Chancery, King's Bench, Common Pleas or Exchequer, or to serve upon jurors at assises, fecciones of eyre and terminer, general gaol-delivery and fecciones of the peace; all confidential, tushingmen and headboroughs, shall yearly, at the quarter-feelions, in the week after St. Michael, upon the first day of the fecciones, or upon the first day that the seccion shall be held by adjournment at any particular division, return a list of the names and places of abode of all persons within the places for which they serve, qualified to serve upon such jury, with their adions, between the age of one and twenty years and seventy years, of the jurors, which jurors, or two of them, shall and may be called and cause to be done upon the said juror, and cause the list to be entered by the clerk of the peace, according to the records of the fecciones; and no sheriff shall impanel any persons to try issues joined in the said courts, or to serve in any jury at the assises, fecciones of eyre and terminer, gaol-delivery or fecciones of the peace, that shall not be named in the list; and any confidential, tushingmen or headborough, failing to make the return aforesaid, shall forfeit 5 l. to their Majesty.

Sect. 5. Every summons of any person qualified to the service upon jury, shall be made by the sheriff, his officer or deputy, six days before the day of hearing on every person so summoned, the warrant under the seal of the office; and if in case any juror be absent from his habitation, notice of such summons shall be given, by leaving a note in writing under the hand of such officer, at the dwelling-house of such juror, with some peroes thereunto added.

Sect. 6. The said return to the justices shall be a good except for the sheriff, for such summons and returns; and if any action shall be brought against any sheriff for such return, the sheriff may plead the general issue; and if the plaintiff be non-suited, the plaintiff or informer shall pay three cattle; and if the sheriff, his deputy or bailli, shall summons any freeholder or copyholder otherwise than as aforesaid, or neglect their duty in the services required by this act, or exce to any person to favour or reward, or allow of any writ of new summons in assises & juratte, or to writ, to execue any perfo from the service of any jury, under the age of seventy years; such sheriffs, &c., shall forfeit 20 l. to be recovered by such party grievous, or whom else shall sue for the fame, in any of the courts at Westminster.

Sect. 7. Any sherifl shall be required to serve upon any fines at the assizes or general gaol-delivery, or the court of York, or at any sessions of the peace for any part thereof (the city of York and town of Kingston upon Hull excepted) above once in four years; and every sherifl of the said county shall keep a regifter, wherein the names of all who have served as jurors, with their addresses and places of abode, and the times and places of fuch their services shall be alphabetically entered, which regifter shall be delivered over to the succeeding sherifl within ten days after he shall be sworn into his office; and every juror who shall serve at any such aforesaid, general-delivery, or any trials in such cases, at any affizes for the county of York (except where special juries are directed by rule of court); and at no one quarter-feffions of the peace for the said county, or within any of the riding within the same, or in any place where such affizes shall be held in adjournment within the county, shall be returned also as alfo sheriffs to serve either upon the grand inquest or other service there.

Sect. 9. The inhabitants of the city of Westminster shall be exempted from serving in any jury at the sessions of the peace for Middlesex.

Sect. 10. The 4th Will. & Mar. cap. 24, as to so much as doth relate to the returning of jurors, shall be a force, together with this act, for seven years, from the first day of May 1696, and to the end of the next session of parliament.

Sect. 11. This act, or the said aforesaid, shall not give any longer time for the summoning of jurors, to try any fines that are tried by jurors of London or Middlesex, than was required before; nor shall give any longer time at the return of any writ, precept or process of serius actis, habeas corpus or fieri ingressus; but where there shall have been any error or defect between the writing of such writ and the time of return thereof, every juror may be discharged, as he might have been before the said aforesaid act.

Sect. 12. This act shall not extend to the city of London, nor to any county of any city or town, nor to any town corporate that have power by charter to hold elections of gaol-delivery or of the persons to be chosen for the same, but shall be of force for four years, and to the end of the next session, and continued farther for 11 years, &c., by 10 Ann. cap. 14, and continued farther for 7 years, &c., by 9 Geo. 1. cap. 8, and referred by to 3 Geo. 2. cap. 25, which act of 3 Geo. 2. cap. 25, is made perpetual by 6 Geo. 2. cap. 37.

Sect. 8. If any juror of peace of the county shall be ill, or at the sessions of the peace for the county, upon the penalty of 20 l., to be forfeited by any sheriff, or other officer making such return and summons, to be recorded, and serve at any of the sessions of the peace for the county, any of the courts of record at Westminster, by act of debt, &c.

Sect. 3 Ann. cap. 18. sect. 3. If any sheriff of the county of York shall, during the continuance of the act 7 Will. 3. cap. 34. neglect to keep such register, as in the said aforesaid act is directed, or shall neglect, within ten days after the succeeding sheriff shall be sworn into his office, to deliver over as well the registers that shall be made in the year wherein he shall have served sheriff, as also all such other registers as were prepared in the theretofore of any of his predeceflors, or of any one of them, within the space of years next before, and which were delivered over to him, shall forfeit to deliver such certificate gratis, as in the said act is mentioned; every such sheriff of the county of York shall forfeit 100 l. one moiety to her Majesty, and the other moiety to such person as shall sue for the same, in any of her Majesty's courts at Westminster.

Sect. 4. If any such sheriff of the said county, his deputy or bailiff, during the continuance of the said aforesaid act, shall knowingly summon or return any person to serve upon any jury at the affizes or sessions of the peace, who shall within four years before such summons or return, have served upon any jury at any affizes or sessions within the county, and shall not, upon producing such certificate, discharge the summons or return, and thereof give notice to the party summoned, six days before such affizes or sessions of the peace; the said sheriff, &c., shall forfeit to the party so summoned 20 l. to be recovered as before-mentioned, with costs.

Sect. 5. The juries of peace for all counties within England and Wales, shall yearly during the continuance of the said aforesaid act, at the quarter-feffions next after the 24th of June, issue their warrants to the head-officemen of every hundred, lath or wapentake, requiring them to issue their precepts to find out such head-officemen, or tithingmen and headboroughs, requiring them to meet together and to complete the necessary lists of tenonable persons within fourteen days next after, at some usual place, where the confables, &c., shall prepare a list signed by them, of the names and places of abode of all the person within the places for which they serve, qualified to serve on juries, according to the said act 4 Will. & Mar. cap. 24, with their additions, between the age of 21 years and 70 years, as by the said act 7 Will. 3. cap. 32. is directed; which lift the confable, &c., yearly at the quarter-feffions in the week after St. Michael, upon the first day of the sessions, or upon the first day that the sessions shall be held by adjournment at any particular place, shall return to the judges; and any head-officemen failing to issue his precept to meet with the confables, &c., shall forfeit 10 l. and any confable, &c., failing to meet the head-officemen, and failing to prepare a list, and to return the same to the judges as aforesaid, shall forfeit 5 l. and every high confable, and tithingman, or other officer making such return, shall be prosecuted as aforesaid, for the non-attendance of jurymen to offending, shall be prosecuted as aforesaid, for the non-attendance of jurymen to offending, or to serve, or to serve, or to serve, or to serve, or to such persons qualified dwelling within their precincts, and shall yearly, twenty days at least before Michaelmas, upon two Sundays, fix upon the door of the church, within their precincts, a list of all such persons intended to be returned to the quarter-feffions, and leave a duplicate of such list with a churchwarden or other officer.
poor; and if any person not qualified shall find his name mentioned in such list, and the person required to make such list, shall refuse to omit him, the justices at their quarter-seconis, on satisfaction of a bond of the party filing, or of any other bond, shall order his name to be struck out.

Sect. 2. If any person, required to give in or make up any such list, shall wilfully omit any person whole name ought to be entered, or omit any who ought to be omitted, or shall file such list, or any register or in- terfery any person, he shall, for every person so omitted or inserted, forfeit 20 l. on conviction before one justice of the county, or, where the offender shall dwell, on the confession of the officer, or proof by one witness, or oath; one half to the informer, the other half to the poor of the parish, or, for which the list is returned; and if the penalty shall not be paid within five days, it shall be levied by diffents and sale of goods, by warrant from one justice; and the justices before whom such person shall be convicted shall certify the name to the next quarter-secons, which shall direct the clerk of the peace to omit or strike out the name; and duplicates of the lists, when delivered at the seffions and entered by the clerk of the peace, shall, during the seffions, or within ten days after, be transmitted by the clerk of the peace to the sheriff; and the sheriff shall take care that the names be entered alphabetically, with their additions and place of abode; and if any clerk of the peace neglecting his duty, the sheriff shall forfeit 20 l. to such person who shall prosecute for the same, till the party be convicted upon an information at the quarter-secons.

Sect. 3. If any sheriff or officer shall summon and return any perons to serve on any jury before the justices of assize, nisi prius, or judges of the great fecons in Wales, or of the seffions for the counties palatine, whose name is not entered in the duplicates transmitted to him by the clerk of the peace; or in any clerk of assize, judge's affiate, or other officer, shall record the appearance of any person so summoned and returned, who did not actually appear; then any judge of assize, nisi prius, or the sheriff, or the clerk of the peace, may, for such offences, return an information against such officer, and the officer shall forfeit 20 l. for every person so summoned and returned, and for every person whose appearance shall be so falsely recorded, as the said fault shall think, meet not exceeding 10. l. or less than 40. l.

Sect. 4. No perons shall be returned as jurors at any assize, nisi prius, or pleasure, who have served within one year before in the county of Rutland, or four years in the county of York, or within two years in any other county, not being a county of a city or town; and if any sheriff shall wilfully tranfger therein, any judge of assize, or the sheriff, is required, on examination and proof of such offence, in a summary way, to set a fine upon such officer, not exceeding 5. l.

Sect. 5. Every sheriff, or the sheriff shall register the names of such persons, as shall be summoned and serve as jurors at any assizes, and shall keep a certificate thereof, in which the sheriff, is to give without fee; and the book shall be transmitted by the sheriff, or to his successor.

Sect. 6. No sheriff or other peron shall take any reward, to exclude any person from serving on juries; and no officer appointed to summon jurors, shall summon any peron other than such whole name is specified in a mandate signed by the sheriff, or. If any sheriff or officer shall wilfully tranfger in the said cafe, any judge of assize, or may, on examination and proof of such offence, in a summary way, set a fine on any person exceeding 5. l.

Sect. 7. It shall be sufficient for any conftables, thithersmen or headboroughs, after they have completed the lists for their precincts, according to 7 & 8 Will. 3. cap. 32. and 3 & 4 Ann. cap. 18. and this act, to subscribe the name in the presence of one justice for each county, or, and at the same time to attest the truth of such lists, upon oath, to the best of their knowledge or belief; and the lists shall (being signed by the justices) be delivered by the constables, or, to the high constables, who are to deliver in such lists to the quarter-secons, attending with their receipt of such lists from the constables, or, and that no alteration hath be made since their receipt thereof.

Sect. 8. Every sheriff, or, in England, shall, upon the return of every venire facias (unless in causes intended to be tried at bar, or where a special jury shall be drawn) annex a prospectus to the writ, containing the names, additions and places of abode, of a competent number of jurors named in such list, the names of the names of the persons so to be served in the panel annexed to every venire facias, for the trial of issues at the assize or assizes; which number of jurors shall not be less than two, or more than three, with the direction of the judges appointed to go the circuit, or one of them, by order under their hands; and the writs of habeas corpus or dijfigerat, subsequeat to such venire, need not have inserted in the bodies of such writ the names of the persons contained in such panel; but it shall be sufficient to insert in such writs, corpora juris, sive, habeas corpus perpannum in causa brevi brevissime nominatim, or words of like import, and to annex to such writs pan- panels containing the names returned in the panel to the venire; and for making the said returns and panels, and annexing the same, no other fees shall be taken than what are now allowed.

Every sheriff or officer, to whom the return of juries in the court of grand secons in any county of Wales shall belong, shall, at least eight days before every grand secons, summon a competent number of persons qualified out of every hundred and commute within such county, fo as such number be not less than ten, or more than fifteen, without the direction of the judge of the grand secons, by rule of court; and the officer shall return a list, containing the names of the persons so summoned the first court of the second day of every grand secons; and the persons so summoned, or a competent number of them, as the judges shall direct, and shall be sworn in every grand secons, and return a venire, habeas corpus and disjigrat, for the trial of causes in such grand secons.

Sect. 10. Every sheriff or officer, to whom the return of the venire for the trial of causes before the justices of the seffions for the counties palatine of Cheshire, Lancastor, Chester, and Shropshire, shall, four days before the seffions, summon a competent number of persons qualified, so as such number be not less than 48, nor more than 73, without the direction of the judges and shall, eight days at least before such seffions, make a lift of the persons so summoned; and such lists shall be hung up at the sheriff's office; and the names of such persons not being on such lists, and no others, shall be summoned to serve on juries at the next seffions; and the sheriff shall, on the return of such list on the first day of the seffions; and the persons so summoned, or a competent number of them, as the judges shall direct, and no other, shall be named in every panels to be annexed to every venire, habeas corpus and disjigrat, in such seffions.

Sect. 11. The name of each person summoned and impanelled, with his addition and place of abode, shall be written in distinct pieces of parchment or paper of equal size, and shall be delivered to the marshal of the judge, or the under-sheriff, and shall, by the direction of the marshal, be rolled up in a common roll of parchment and put into a box or glass; and when a cause is brought to be tried, some indietnent person shall in open court draw out twelve of the papers; and if any of the persons drawn shall not appear, or be challenged and set aside, then a further number, 'til twelve be drawn who shall appear. Sect. 9. If any person, twelve persons so summoned, their names being marked in the panel, and they being forsworn, shall be the jury to try the cause; and the names of the persons forsworn shall be kept apart in some other box, or, till the jury have given in their verdict, and the cause is recorded, or till the jury be discharged; and then the same names shall be recorded and returned to the former box, or and so return'd.
J U R

"2d. If a cause shall be brought on to be tried before the jury in any other cause shall have been brought in verdict, or be discharged, the court may order 12 of the refuse to be drawn as before, for trial of the cause.

Sec. 13. Every person whole name shall be drawn, and who shall not appear, being called three times, on oath made that such person had been summoned, shall forfeit for every default (unless some reasonable cause of absence be proved by oath to the satisfaction of the judge) such fine, not exceeding 5l. nor less than 40s. as the judge shall think reasonable.

Sec. 14. Where a view shall be allowed, six of the jurors or more (who shall be contented to on both sides; or if they cannot agree shall be named by the proper officer of the court; or, if need be, by a judge, or by the judge before whom the cause shall be brought on to trial) shall have a jury at the fees of any keepers, and shall be first sworn, or such of them as appear on the jury, before any drawing; and so many only shall be drawn as to add the view as shall make up the number of twelve.

Sec. 15. His Majesty's courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas and Exchequer shall, upon motion made in behalf of his Majesty, or on the motion of any party or parties, or of any procurator or defendant, in any indictment or information for any misdemeanor, or information in the nature of a quo warranto in the King's Bench, or in an information in the Exchequer, or in any motion of any plaintiff or defendant in any cause depending in the said courts, are required to order a jury to be sworn before the proper officer of the court, of the trial of any such cause, in such manner as special juries are usually sworn in such courts upon trials at bar.

Sec. 16. The person who shall apply for such jury shall pay the fees for striking it, and shall have no allowance for the same on taxation of costs.

Sec. 17. Where a special jury shall be ordered by rule of court in any cause arising in a county of a city or town, the theft shall be ordered by such rule to bring the books of persons qualified to serve on juries within the same, in like manner as the firekeepers' book hath been usually ordered to be brought in order to the striking of jurors for trials at bar, and the jury shall be struck out of such books.

Sec. 18. Any person having land in his own right of the yearly value of 20l. over and above the refereed rent, being held by lease for the absolute term of 500 years or more, or for 99 years or any other term determinable on one or more lives; the name of every such person shall be taken to the jury, as a fuch person, and such a person may be summoned to serve on juries as freeholders may.

Sec. 19. The sheriffs of London shall not return any person to try any issue joined in any of his Majesty's courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas or Exchequer, or to act there as a juror in any of the several juries to whom is intrusted the peace of the city to be held for the city, who shall not be a housekeeper of the city, and have lands, or personal estate to the value of 100l. and the same cause alleged by way of challenge, and found, shall be admitted as a principal challenge; and the person challenged may be examined on oath of the truth of the matter.

Sec. 20. The sheriffs or other officers shall not return any person to serve on a jury for the trial of any capital offence, who would not be qualified to serve as a juror in civil causes; and the same matter shall be a principal challenge; and the person so challenged may be examined on oath of the truth of the matter.

Sec. 21. This act shall be read once in every year at the quarter-seations to be held for every county or place within England and Wales next after the 24th of June.

Sec. 22. This act shall continue till the first of Sep- tember, 1724. [Amended by 6 Geo. 2. cap. 37. Stat. 4 Geo. 2. cap. 7. sect. 1. The clause of 3 Geo. 2. cap. 25. sect. 4. shall not extend to the county of Mid- dlesex.]

Sec. 2. No person shall be returned to serve as a juror in King's Bench who has been returned at the next Viz. H. N. 98.

J U R

prius in the said county in the two terms or vacations next preceding, under such penalty upon the sheriff, &c. as might have been inflicted for any offence against the said clause.

Sec. 3. All leafholders upon leases where the improved rents shall amount to 50l. or over, and above ground; or for other improvements, shall be liable to serve upon juries.

Stat. 6 Geo. 2. cap. 37. sect. 2. The juries of the feizations or alleys for the counties palatine of Chester, Lancaster and Durham, upon motion on behalf of his Majesty, or of any procurator or defendant in any indictment or information, or of the parties, or of any plaintiff or defendant, in case they think fit, order a jury to be sworn before the proper officer of each court, in such manner as special juries have been usually sworn in the courts at Westminster upon trials at bar.

Stat. 24 Geo. 2. cap. 18. sect. 4. Any party which by virtue of 3 Geo. 2. cap. 25. or 6 Geo. 2. cap. 37. apply for a special jury, shall not only pay the fees for striking such jury, but shall also pay all the experiences occasioned by the trial of the cause by such special jury, and shall not have any other allowance for the same upon taxation of costs, than such party would be entitled to receive before the same cause might be tried by a common jury; unless the judge before whom the cause is tried immediately after the trial certify in open court under his hand upon the back of the record, that the same was a cause proper to be tried by a special jury.

Stat. 25 Geo. 2. cap. 19. sect. 1. Every person duly impanelled and summoned to serve upon any jury for the trial of any cause to be tried in any court of record within the city of London, or in any other city or town corporate, liberties or franchises within England, who shall not appear and serve on such jury (after being called three times, and on proof on oath of the person so making default, having been duly summoned) shall forfeit for every such default, such fine not exceeding 40s. nor less than 20s. as the judge of the respective court, or such default is made shall impose, unless some just cause for such defaultor's absence be made appear by oath or affidavit to the satisfaction of the judge.

Stat. 2. If any person on whom any fine is imposed in pursuance of this act, refuse to pay the same to the person authorized by the judge to receive the same, it shall be lawful for the judge who imposed such fine, by warrant under his hand and seal, to cause such fine to be levied by distress and sale of the goods of the person on whom such fine was imposed, and the overplus, if any, after payment of such fine and the charges of such distress and sale, shall be rendered to the person whose goods were so disdained and sold.

Stat. 3. Every fine imposed in pursuance of this act, shall be paid by the person who receives or levies the same, to the proper officer of the city or town corporate, liberty or franchise, in which the court was held; to be applied to future, no charges to be levied, nor any fines fet in courts within such city, &c. are by charter, prescription, or usage applicable.

Stat. 4. If any action be brought for any thing done in pursuance of this act, such suit shall be brought within six calendar months next after the matter complained of is committed; and the defendant shall defend the general issue; and if a verdict be found for the defendant, &c. the defendant shall recover double costs.
;;

U R

J

from

are exempted

2.

If'ho

It

feeins

to be agreed,

ferv'ing on juries.

that

perfons whofe atten-

all

or

funimoned on juries; all peers of the realm are exclucoming within the qualifications mentioned in the writ, viz. Ad faciendum qtiand' jurat^ patna ; iox they are not pares patria, but pares of an higher rank ;

in

is

ded, as not

and therefore it is clearly agreed, that if a peer be returned on a jury, and bring a writ of privilege, he (hall be difcharged ; alfo it feems to be the better opinion, that even without fuch a writ he may challenge himfelf, Moor 167.
or be challenged by either party. Dyer 314.
6 Co. 53.
Co. Lit. 157.
2 Rol. Jbr. 646.
9 Co. 49.
1 Jones 153.

But members of the houfe of commons feem not to exempt from ferving on juries yet in the cafe of Sir Edward BainUn, who being returned on a jury in B. R. the court would not force him to be fworn againft his will, he being a parliament-man, iiave any privilege to be

and the parliament then

Edward

Pafcb. 17 Car. 1. Sir

fitting.

Tenants

in ancient demefne are not be impanelled

to

to appear at IVeflminfler, or elfewhere in any other court, upon any inqueft or trial of any caufe. 4 Inft. 269.
It feems agreed, that the King by his grant or charter

may exempt one, two or more from ferving on juries j
but he cannot exempt a whole county or hundred, becaufe in fuch cafe there would be a failure of juftice ; alfo it feems that fuch exemption does not extend to jurors returned into the King's Bench, unlefs there be exprefs

words including that court

;

alfo

by the better opi-

exempmuft come in, and deHard.
Raym. 113.
243.

nion, the fherifF cannot return fuch privilege of tion, but each particular juror

mand
389,

By

Si(/.

I

it.

127,

TVtJim. 2.

cap. 38.

it

is

exprefsly

provided, that neither old men above the age of feventy years, nor perfons perpetually fick, nor thofe who are

fummons, nor thofe who do county, fliall be put in juries or in the
In the conftrudion of which it hatli been leffer affizes
held, that though fuch perfons may fuc out a writ of prirefide in the
:

vilege for their difcharge, grounded on this fiatute, yet and appear, they can neither
if they be actually returned,

be challenged by the party, nor excufe themfelves from not ferving, if there be not a fufKcient number without
F. N. B. 165.
2 hjl. 446.
them.
Clerks or perfons in holy orders, coroners, minifters
of the foreft, officers of the army, and other officers and minifters belonging to the King, are exempt from Dak. Sher. 121. Trials per Pais %6. fery in" on juries.

By the 6 IV. 3. cap. 4. " Every perfon ufing and exercifin" the art of an apothecary in the city of London, or within feven miles thereof being free of the fociety of apothecaries in the faid city, and who fliall have been duly examined and approved, i^c. for fo long time as he (hall exercife the faid myftery, and no longer, (hall be exempted from ferving on any jury or inqueft; and other perfons exercifing the faid art of an apothecary in any other parts of this kingdom, who have ferved as apprentices (even years, according to the fiatute 5 Eliz.

(hall likewife be exempted from ferving on

juries for fo

lon» time as they (hall ufe and exercife the faid art, unlefs°fuch perfon voluntarily confent to ferve."
By the 7 5^ 8 JV. 3. cap. 21. all regiftered feamen are exempted from ferving on

Of

the feveral kinds of juries,

manner of compelling a jury Juries

are diftinguifhed

the grand jury

may

commifTions of oyer and terminer and gaol-

to and jury

procefs

;

and

appear.

into

grand and

conlift of thirteen,

petit juries

or any greater

name

the

of

King, or of two or more juftices, diredled to the (herifF, upon which he is to return twenty-four or more out of the whole county, namely, a cofiderable numbelr out of every hundred, out of which the grand inqueft at the fefTions of the peace, oyer and terminer, or gaol-dclivery are taken, and fworn ad inquirendum pro domino rcge Is" corpore comilatus.
Thofe returned to ferve on the grand jury muft bC
prohi bf Itgales homines, and ought to be of the fame county where the crime was committed ; and therefore it is a good exception at Common law to one returned oq a grand jury, that he is an alien or villain, or that he is outlawed for a crime, or that he was not returned by the proper officer, or that he was returned at the inftancc of the profecutor; but thefe exceptions muft be takeii
the

found.

Cro. Eliz. 654.

iRol.Rep. 82.

12 C». 99.
'54-5-

30.

3

/n/7,

Hal HiJI.P.C,

2

is laid down by my Lord Chief Juftice Hale, Co.mmon law every perfon returned on the grand

It

at

thaj

jury

ought to be a freeholder at leaft, and that the ftatute 2 Hen. 5. cap. 3. that requires jurors that pafs upon the trial of a man's life to have 40 s. per ann. freehold, hafi been the meafure by which the freehold of grand jurymen hath been rheafured in precepts of fummons of fej^ Hale Hijj. P. C. 155. but for this vide 2 HawK fions.
P. C. 216.
Alfo by feveral a£ls of parliament it is provided. Thai thofe who ferve on the grand jury be fuch as are duly

Hen.

I J

and

See the firft divifim,
cap. 9.

4.

and 3 H.

particularly the ait

cap. 12.

8.

In the conllruflion of the faid a£l 11 Hen. 4,

c.

A^
a

the following points have been refolved.

his

That if name

a perfon not returned

be read

to wiiereupon he contempt of

That

is

That

among

on a grand jury'

thofe that fworu, (Jc. he may

are procure returned^

be indifled for 12 Co. 99.

this ftatute.

3

•>'

InJl.

33.
indidlments before juftices of the peace are clearly within this Car. 134.

ftatute.

perfon

a

12 Co. 98.

arraigned

on an

3

InJi.

Cri,

33.

indi£lment

takeni

contraiy to the ftatute, may plead fuch matter in avoidance of the indictment, and alfo plead over to the feCro. Car. 134.
i Jones 19
lony.
3 J[njl. 34.

That
any

he

trial,

who is outlawed on an indidtment without may clearly (hew in avoidance of fuch outlawry, that the indidment was taken contrary to the) ftatute ; but the court needs not admit of the plea of the'

outlawry of an indidor in avoidance of any fuch indi^- who have the record ready,

ment,

unlefs he

lefs

be an outlawry of the fame court wherein the in-

it

pleads

it

uh-i|

diilment is depending; in which cafe it is faid, that any as amicus curiee may inform the court of it ; alfo W feems the better opinion, that no exception againft an

one indidor

trial.

3

allowable,

is

In/i.

34.

unlefs

the party

takes

he

the whole, though never

vitiates

tionable perfons joined with
/./.

That

8.

if

it

beferi:'

That if any one of the grand jury who ment, be within any of the exceptions

4. 41.

juries.

the 7 fs" 8 PP'. 3. cap. 34. it is enafted. That no quaker, or reputed quaker, (hall ferve on juries.

By

3.

cafes of delivery, there goes out a precept either in infirm at the time of their not

Cro. Eliz. 654.
2 Injt
3 Inji, 30.
Upon the fummons of any feflions of the peace, and indi£lment.

387.

qualified.

l^c.

the fiatute of being the thefe

for

;

before the indidlment

Baintcri's cafe.

R

grand inquifitors of the county, every indidlinent and prefentment by them muft be (ound by twelve at leaft ; but it is not neceflarv that all above that number (hould concur in fuch prefentment required in the fuperior courts of juftice, fuch as ferjeants at law, counfellors, attornies and other officers of the courts, are fo far privileged as not to be dance

U

J
number

S.P.C.U.

fo

find an indiain

him

in finding

3

23-

Inft.

the ftatute,

many unexcep11 H.

it.

a prifoner indicted of felony off"er to take an) fuch exceptions, he (hall, upon his prayer, have coun(e

J
Cro. Car. 134, 147.
aftigned him for his ailiftance.

Jones 198.

The faid a£l 3 Hen. 8. c. 12. extends not only to panel of grand inquefts returned, but to all panels of the pett] jury, commonly called the petty jury of life and death which may be reformed by the

juftices according to thi


The grand jury, as has been already observed, must consist of twelve at least, the petty jury of twelve; and a number more may be used; but it is thought that particular juries may consist of more or less numbers than twelve.

Trials per Pais 80.  F. N. B. 107. Finch of Law 400, 484. A writ of inquiry of writte by thirteen was held good. Cro. Car. 414.

But on a writ of error a judgment out of an inferior court was reversed, because being defectuous, the inquiry of damages was only by two or more; and though a custom was alleged to warrant it, yet it was resolved, that there could not be less than twelve, though the writ of inquiry faith only per facramentum probatum & legationum nominatim, and not deaunm as in a venire. Vent. 2. 113.

Also it hath been frequently held, that a custom in a county is as valid as any others, whether the said custom is used in Wales, yet that is by force of the statute 3 Hen. 8, which appoints that such trials may be by six only where the custom hath been so. Cro. Car. 259. 1 Sid. 253. 1 Kit. 326.

The first procet for conveying the jury is the venire facias, and thereupon in the Common Pleas there issue the babas corpora and dirigentes juratates; but in the King's Bench and Exchequer after the venire, they proceed on the dirigentes; for the venire being in the nature of a summons, if the jury did not appear thereon in those courts in which the King's Bench and Exchequer are held in the roving procet, viz. the dirigentes. Trials per Pais 64.

If the jury did not attend on the babas corpora or dirigentes, which was to bring them into court, there was an indecit, decent, or alta tales, according as theumber was deficient, to force others to the King's court to try the issue; this was without a new summons or even, because it was supposed that the first babas corpora and dirigentes had given notice to the vicinage that they ought to appear; and therefore the supplement to the jury were enforced in a particular summons to them. But if the whole jury be challenged off, then new petiters factors, and if none of the jury appear, then a dirigentes juratates shall issue, and no tale. 2 Hal. Hist. P. C. 265.

Juries being duly served with procet are compellable to appear; and wherefore more than one appear, but not enough to take the inequal, but some of the others come within view, or into the town where the part is held, but refuse to come into court; in those cases the court may order those who appear to inquire of the yearly value of such defaulters lands; which being done, the court may either summon them to appear, on an issue of the sum found, or some lesser form, or may fine them in like sum without more ado; but such jurors shall only lose his fines, and not the yearly value of his lands, unless the party pray it; but one who makes default after appearance is liable to forfeitour without my prayer; yet the court in discretion will sometimes only impose a small fine; also a juror who comes not to town where the court is held, shall only lose his fines, or be amerced, but not fined; and it is said, that a juror is not amercable at all at the return of the first venire, except before justices of oyer and terminer. 2 Hal. P. C. 146, and severall authorities there cited.

Trials per Pais 200.

See the flut. 27 Eliz. c. 6. sect. 2, and 3 Geo. 2. c. 25. sect. 13. in the first division of this title.

And the sheriff is bound to return the panel so returned. 2 Hal. Hist. P. C. 265, 266. It hath been holden, that this flutute doth not take away the force of 11 H. 4, as to any point wherein both may conffit together; and therefore if any indicter be outlawed, or returned at the nomination of any person, contrary to 11 H. 4, 4, the jury is not a sufficient to reform the panel, the indictment may be avoided in the same manner as before. 3 Jefl. 32. 2 Haw. P. C. 219.

When procet is once awarded to the coroner, &c. for the sheriff's actual partiality, the entry is meets & new intromitters, and in such case procet shall not afterwards be awarded to any new sheriff, but where it was awarded to the coroner for that the sheriff is tenant, &c. it may be awarded to a new sheriff. 2 Hal. Lit. 158. a. Rolls, Ch. 61.

As to a venire facias is awarded to the coroner for partiality in the sheriff, and afterwards a tale is awarded, which is returned by the sheriff, this has been held error. Crs. Eliz. 574. Morgan v. Hyg; and see Crs. Eliz. 586.

See the statute 3 Geo. 2. c. 25. sect. 1—9, in the first division of this title.

Procet awarded to jurors may be returnable immediately into the King's Bench for the trial of an indictment found in the county where it is set, whether for a crime in such county, or for a treason beyond sea; but for the trial of an indictment removed by a tertinari from a different county, there must be fifteen days between the issue and return of either party: 8o. Stat. 3, 4 & 5 Ch. 518. 2 Jefl. 568. 2 Haw. P. C. 426.

Justices in eyre, or of gaol-delivery, may order a jury to be returnable immediately for the trial of a prisoner; also it hath been adjudged, that justices of oyer and terminer, or of the peace, might for the trial of an issue joined before them, award a venire returnable the same day on which the party is arraigned; but it is said, that there are strong authorities to the contrary, unless the prisoner comit, or the crime amount to felony. 2 Hawk. P. C. 456. and several authorities there cited.

A venire before justices of oyer and terminer, returnable not at a day certain, but at a certain time, is no more than to adjourn the said case; but upon the venire returnable the same day on which the party is arraigned; it is said, that there are strong authorities to the contrary, unless the prisoner comit, or the crime amount to felony. 2 Hawk. P. C. 456.

See the flut. 7 & 8 Will. 3. c. 32, in the first division of this title.

Also by the words of the writ of venire facias the sheriff is only to return twelve, yet by ancient course he was obliged to return twenty-four; and this, says my Lord Coke, is for expedition of justice; for if 12 should only be returned, no man should have a full jury appear or to be favored in respect of challenges without tales, which would be a great delay of trials. 2 Crs. Lit. 155. a.

But the sheriff return a letter number, as wherein the sheriff return only 23, and a sufficient number appear, and try the issue, this will be aided by the &tute of juxtafolios as a miterturn. 5 Cr. 36. Crs. Eliz. 557. Cro. Car. 223.

The precept that issue before a seftoan of gaol-delivery, of oyer and terminer, and of the peace, is to return 24, and commonly the sheriff returns upon that precept 48. 2 Hal. Hist. P. C. 263. But the aver precept to try the prisoner after he hath pleaded, is only venire facias 12, and 24 are returnet by the sheriff on that panel. 2 Hal. Hist. P. C. 263.
JUR

At Common law in civil causes, it is form: the sheriff might have returned above 25 if he pleased: and therefore by the statute of Nfon. 2. c. 28, it is recited, that whereas the sheriffs were to summon an unreasonnable multitude of jurors, to the grievance of the people, it is ordained, that thenceforth in one afize no more shall be return'd than 24. God. 370. 1. Rob. in the 310. in the first division of this title.

5. In what cases and in what manner special juries are appointed.

Special juries are appointed on motion and application to the court for that purpose, on which, if the court think it reasonable, the sheriff is to attend the secondary or master with his book of freeholders, who, in the presence of the attorneys on both sides, names 48 freeholders, and then each party strikes out twelve, by one at a time, the plaintiff or his attorney beginning first, and the remaining 24 are return'd by the secondary, as the jury, to try the cause. 2. Lil. Regit. 123. That the court may order a jury of merchants if they think convenient. 2. Lil. Regit. 122.

If the rule was entered into by consent, it is said to be a contempt in the attorney not to be prefered; but to remedy any inconvenience from hence, a rule was made, that when a matter is to strike a jury, the forty-eight out of the freeholders book, he shall give notice to the attorneys of both sides to be prefered; and if the one comes, and the other does not, he that appears shall, according to the ancient courts, strike out twelve, and the master shall strike out twelve for him that is absent. 2. Lil. Regit. 127. 1. Salk. 405.

And it is said, that if by rule of court the master is ordered to strike a jury, in case it be not express'd in such rule that the master shall strike 48, and each of the parties shall strike out twelve, the master is to strike 24, and the parties have no liberty to strike out any. 1. Salk. 405. 4th ed. 1. 2. Salk. 405.

It is said, that a special jury may be granted to try a cause at bar without the content of the parties, but never at nisi prius, unless for good cause flown. 1. Med. Ca. Law and Equity 248.

Also it is said, to be contrary to the course of the court of B. R. in capital cases, to order the clerk of the crown to strike a special jury, as is done by the by done in the common civil courts upon trials at bar. 2 Jas. 222.

See the statute 3 Geo. 2. c. 25. 1st. 15. and 24 & 29 Geo. 2. in the 310. division of this title.

A rule was made for a special jury, which was entered into by consent; and afterwards when the parties attended the whole matter, the sheriff struck 24 before the court, and at the trial challenged the array for want of hundredors, which the judge of assize allowed a good challenge; and this was held such a breach and contempt of the rule, for which an attachment was granted. 1. Med. Ca. Law and Equity 245. The King v. Bourdage.

Where in the trial of a case warrants, the defendant challenged the array of a special jury, that had been struck at his request, for partiality in the sheriff; and an attachment being moved for, and the case next above relied on, it was denied; and said per curiam, That the attachment in the case Fabia was granted by reason of the abuse of the rule; but here the only foundation is the jury's being so struck at his request, which is not alone sufficient, for he had a right to challenge the array on the proceedings being directed to a wrong officer; and the rule might have been fulfilled another way, viz. as the sheriff was partial, a proper entry might have been made, and proceed directed to the coroner. The King v. Tuchbain. Med. 8 Geo. 2. in B. R.

6. For what misdemeanors jurors are punishable.

In what cases jurors are punishable by attaint, fee Attaint. And as to the cases where they are otherwise punishable, we must consider jurors either in a ministerial capacity, as persons bound to attend the court, to do the business for which they are return'd till they are discharge'd; or in a judicial capacity, the judges being pleased to try. In the former capacity they are liable to be punished in several instances; as for refusing to appear, withdrawing themselves before they are sworn, or refusing to be sworn, for which every court of record may, of common right, impose such a reasonable fine on any one person as he may rest on a grand per peremptory venire. 8. Ca. 38. 8. 41. 2. Rob. 224. 2. Hal. Hilj. P. C. 309.

So if after they are sworn they refuse to give any verdict at all. 8. Nof. 49. 3 Hilj. 173. Vaghs. 152.

So if they endeavour to impaire upon the court as what they think is a special cause, or make a verdict delivered by their whole number, where in truth none of them have agreed to it, or where they agree upon two verdicts; and first, to offer one of them to the court, and to stand to it, if the court shall express no dissatisfaction to it; but if the court shall dislike it, then to give the other. 2. Hal. Hilj. P. C. 309. 2. Hal. Hilj. P. C. 310. 1. Henk. P. C. 140. 2. Hal. Hilj. P. C. 309. S. P. and that in such case they shall be fined every one a-part.

So for misbehaving themselves after their departure from the bar; where they do not all keep together till they have given their verdict; or where any of them carry any thing capable with them in their pockets, or eat or drink after the last verdict is given, and it is made from the court, before they have given their verdict, the three are agreed on it, and were also all the time in the custody of the bailiff appointed to take care of them. 123. 8. Hilj. 41. 218. 8. Hilj. 41. 218. 8. Ca. 21. Vaghs. 218. 2. Henk. P. C. 140.

Also where a jury, after they departed from the bar, being late on Saturday night, separated and went every one to his own house without giving a privy verdict, or without consulting upon the evidence, and gave a verdict according to the direction of the court; but for the misdemeanor they were fined each forty shillings and a half, and there were no proceedings against the juryman who had been the most in fault. They were not proceeded against, as by such trial both parties may be prejudiced; for the jurors going at large without consulting together, may well forget the evidence; and it is the right of the King's subjects to have their issues determined when the evidence is fresh in the memory of the jurors; and the suffering the jurors to go to their houses after a privy verdict is one of the most necessary things in setting at liberty the actions of the law ought not to be suffered. 2. Pedb. 27. 2. Ca. 2. in B. R.

Also where the jury have been divided or in doubt about the evidence, and have agreed to determine the matter by throwing crofs or pile, &c. and to give this verdict as the chance happens; this has been held such a misbehaviour as to subject them to a fine of forty shillings and a half, and for which they are punishable, and for which a new trial will be granted upon the common rule of juratian male je giffant. 2. Leev. 140. 205. 2. Jon. 83. 3. Keb. 805.

Juryors are punishable for finding for or receiving informations from any of the parties concerning the matter in question. 2. Henk. P. C. 147.

So if a juryman have a piece of evidence in his pocket, and after the jury sworn and gone together he threw it to them, this is a misdemeanor fineable in the jury; but it avoids not the verdict, tho' the case appear upon examination. 8. Ca. 80. 3. Hilj. P. C. 306. or. As to the punishment of jurors in their judicial capacity, there are several instances where jurors acquitting great and notorious offenders, contrary to clear and manifest evidence, that contrary to the judge's directions, having been punished in the Star-Chamber, and have also, not only in the King's Bench, but also by juries of peace, and terms, been hereby, been freed and imprisoned, and bound over to their good behaviour, but these methods were thought to be contrary to the opinions in the old books, and contrary to the general reason of the law and being fully confuted in Bachelor's cafe, it was then settled, and hath been ever since agreed to, that jurors are no way punishable, except by attaint, for giving verdict.
J U S

 verdict contrary to a judge's directions, and against what any seem to others clear and manifest evidence, for that they are the persons who may be reasonably influenced by matters known only to themselves, as their own personal knowledge of the facts, or of the credit of the witness, or of the parties. 2 Hawk. P. C. 157. S. and several authorities there cited. 3 Co. R. 142. 2 Jef. 167.

And hear Sir Henry Lord Hale seems to agree, and shews the unreasonableness of punishing a jury for going contrary to the direction of the court in matters of law, because it is impossible any matter of law could come in question till the matter of fact were settled and stated in the agreed by the jury, and of such matter of fact they were the only competent judges. Also, says he, it were the most unhappy cafe that could be to the judge, if he, in his peril, must take upon him the guilt or innocence of the prisoner; and if the judge's opinion must rule the matter of fact, the trial by a jury would be useless. 2 Hal. Hiff. P. C. 160, 161, 241, 45.

But he seems to admit, that the usual length of fixing utterers in the King's Bench in criminal causes, may give sufficiently a jurisdiction to fine in those cases; yet that it can by no means be extended to other courts of seions, of pole-delivery, end termen, of the peace, or other inferior jurisdictions. 2 Hal. Hiff. P. C. 313.

And in this, it is true, that it is possible it may appear in any case, that jurors are perfectly satisfies of the truth of a fact, whereon they declare to the court, that they find it in such a particular manner; and the court directly tell them, that upon the fact so found, as they have agreed it to be, the judgment of the law is such or such, and they obliquely inflit upon a verdict, to appear to such jurors, and are prejudicial to the general reason of the law, that the jurors are finable by the court in such case, unless an attaindant lies against them; for otherwise they would not be punishable for so palpable a partiality in taking upon them to judge of matters of law, which they have nothing to do with, and are prejudicial to the cause, and to the exercise of direction of one, who by the law is appointed to direct them in such matters, and is to be prejudicial of ability to do it. 2 Hake. P. C. 418. for which is cited 2 Jef. 15. 16. 3 P. P. 145. 3 P. M. 363, and v. Ed. 479.

Also if a judge, for the better direction and information of a jury, shall ask them their opinions concerning such a particular fact, and they shall refuse to answer him, and obliquely insist in delivering their verdict, as they think fit, contrary to his direction, it seems questionable, whether they may not be fined in such case, unless in an attainder against them, for that it is the duty of jurors to apply to the advice and information of the court, in order to be governed by it, as far as shall be consistent with their confidences. 2 Hake. P. C. 149.

For more learning on this subject, see 3 Bac. Abr. tit. 30. 32. 43. 20.

Juries, and 21 Blis. Abr. tit. 19. 32. 45. 33.

As atterfation, is the right of farrvantage between juftrices. Lit. l. 280. Co. Litt. 180. See Jure trium tenentes.

Jus Anglocum. The laws and customs of the Anglo-Saxons, in the time of the heptarchy, by which the people were for a long time governed, and which were preferred to all others, were termed customary laws; and are preferred to be the rights of the Crown is part of the law of England; and differs in many things from the general law, relating to the subject, see Co. on Litt. fol. 15. 8.

Jus Caritatis Anglica. See Curteys of Cuine.

Jus succipitum, Is where a man hath the possession as well as a propriety of any thing. Britil. lib. 4. tract. 4. c. 4.

Jus gentium, Is the law by which society in general and nations are governed. Stoten.

Jus harque, The right of inheritance. See Petit.

Jus communis, Is the right of presenting a clerk to a benefice. Cawd. edit. 1727.

Jus patronatus, Is not within the statute of limitations. 1 M. jfl. 2. c. 5. See Jure preempt.

Jutif, (Fr. jufif, i. e. desoriis. In this sense, a jurifon, and are persons of honour, with peers on horseback, by way of exercise, and finely. Ann. 24 Hen. 8. cap. 15. Edicuim Regis Edvardi 1. probando fab satisfactura annum qua satisfytura potest, quad non remaneant, decidet, adventuris bynum, insulas ad armam meruit, atque licentia Regis. Pat. 29 Edw. 1. Exef. 101. See Tourment. And it differed from tournament as species doto from genus; because tournaments were all sorts of military contentions, and conflicted of many men in troops: but jousts were usually between two men, and no more. Conier. 1737.

Jutice. The virtue by which we give to everyone what is his due. Jefc. Locke. Jutice and right shall not be fold, denied or delayed. M. C. 9 II. 3. c. 29. Right shall be done in all cases without refpect, St. Hefif. 1. 3 Ed. 1. c. 1. Shall not be delayed for any command under the Great seal. 2 Ed. 3. c. 8. 14 Ed. 3. fl. 1. c. 14. 7 Rofo. 2. c. 10.

Jutifycles. (Iuutificiarius,) Signifies him that is deputed by the King to do right by way of judgment; the reason why he is called Jutifer and not Judge is, because in ancient times the Latin word for him was Jutifius, and not Jutificiarius. John Grierso and Roger Heedon, 2 T. Sug. fuar. Annul. fol. 413. Another reason why they are called Jutificiarius, and not Jutifices, is because they have their authority by preption, delegates to the King, and not joint magistrate, and therefore cannot depothe others in their stead, the Jutiefes of the forst only excepted, who hath by a particular illness given by 2 Ed. 3. c. 25, for the Chancellor, Marshal, Admiral, and such like, are not called Jutificiarius, but Judices: Of these Jutices there are divers forts in England, of the manner of whole creation with other appurtenances, read Parfitus, p. 51. There in Magna Charta, c. 12. and other statutes, as Chief Jutice, or Chief Jutficier of the King's Bench, (Capitelis Jutifitia, vel Jutificiaris de Banco Regii, vel ad platico coram Rege tenenda,) Is a lord by his office while he enjoys it, and the chief of the reft; his office espe- cially is to hear and determine all pleas of the Crown, viz. such as concern offences committed against the crown, dignity, and peace of the King; as treasons, felonies, mayhems, and such like; which you may read in Bracton, lib. 3. tract. 2. per tutum; and in Steword, Pl. Cor. from the sift of the 515 chapter of the first book. He also, with his assistants, heareth all personal aff now, and receive, if they think fit, all acts of injustice to his juridiction. See Camp. Jus. fol. 67. Of this court, Bracton, lib. 3. cap. 7. num. 2. faith thus, Platico vitro civilia in ren & perfanam in curia Domini Regis terminanda coram diversi Jutificiarius terminare; & illorum curiarian habet unus propriam, fictum Anglicum, & Juf- ticierarum capitales qui propius conatus Regis terminari & culterium omnium per agrum vel privilegium suo libere tenere extendere, ut si fit aliquis qui implicantur non debent, nifi coram Regi. Of the ancient dignity of the Chief Jutice, thus, Libr. Nigr. Pictatis, cap. 4. In facultas refultit, imi & pr gfpgi prinos in regno Capitales, seu Juticia. In the time of King John, and other Chief Jufides of the College, Super nos non magis refpcndere, nifi coram nihili vel Capitol Juticaria notitia. The oath of the Jutices, see in lat. 18 Ed. 3. flat. 4. and in Original Juridicilia, a catalogue of all the Lords Chief Jufides of England.

The Ch. Jutice was formerly that power alone, which after wards was distributred to three other magistrates, i. e. he had the power of the Chief Jutice of the Common Pleas, of the Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and of the Master of the Court of warts. He usuall sat in the King's palace, and they executed that office which was formerly performed by the Common Balcio; but he is the only person that place all decisions which happened between the barons and other great men of the kingdom, and likewise caufes both criminal and civil between other men. And this he did till the ninth year of Henry III. or rather till the 17th of King John, when, at the request of the nobi-
Thus Bradfan, ib. 3. c. 7. tells us, that jufticiarius alli forte perpetuo certe habitationis facto in Banco loquelas omnes, &c. terminantes, &c.

Jufticiarius de foris, also Lord by his office, and bears and determines all off- fices within the foris, committed against vert or veni- son: Of these there are two, whereas one hath judici- fice over all foros on this side Treve, the other of all beyond it. The chief point of their jurisdiction confineth upon the articles of the King's charter, called Charter de foris, made anno 9 Hen. 3. concerning which see Com. Brit. p. 214. See Petr. Thomes.

The court where these justices are to  be held, once every three years, as you may read in Manwood's Foris Law, c. 24. He is also called jufticiarius de foris, and is the only justice that may appoint a deputy, by the statute of 33 Hen. 8. c. 35.

Statute of the Hundred, (Slept in hundred Dominus, qui sit centurio & tenendor, hundreded aliorum appellatus eft.) Sunt ambo, hundredi fribigi, cognitivae de confi majusfili, qui in eadem finiri non permitter, Spelm.

Jurimenta, from jufticiarius, All things belonging to jufticiarius, &c. On Wifdom. 1. fol. 235. Also the effects or execution of jufticiarius or jurifdection.

Jurisdictions of affifs, (Slept in hundred Dominus, qui sit centurio & tenendor, hundreded aliorum appellatus eft.) Sunt ambo, hundredi fribigi, cognitivae de confi majusfili, qui in eadem finiri non permitter, Spelm.

As such as were went by special command to be sent (as occasion was offered) into this or that county, to take affifs for the sake of the subjests; for whereas these actions pas always by jury, so many men would not, without great damage and charge, be brought up to London, and therefore justiciaries for this especial purpose, by com- mission particularly authorized, were sent down to them.

For it seems, that the justiciaries of the Common Pleas had no power to take affifs till the flat of 8 R. 2. cap. 2, for that by they were enabled to it, and to deliver gaol. And the justiciaries of the King's Bench have by that statute such power affirmed unto them as at one hundred years before. These commissions Ad caperit ad caperit, of late years have been settled and executed only in Lanc, and the long vacation, when the justiciaries, and the other learned lawyers, may be at leisure to attend those controversies, &c.
The chancellor and justices of the King's Bench shall show the King, Art. from Cart. 28 Ed. 1. st. 3. c. 5.

The judgments, 18 Ed. 3. st. 4.

Of the immunity of judges from prosecutions, 31 Ed. 2. st. 7.

The duty of the judges, 20 Ed. 3. c. 1 & 2. 8 R. 2. c. 1.

The Chief Justice of the King's Bench not to be justic of affize, except in the county of Lancaster, 13 H. 3. c. 5.

For payment of the judges salaries, 10 H. 6. st. 2.

The court of King's Bench may remit prisoners to be tried in another county, 8 H. 8. c. 6.

Justices in eye (justiciar is iterum.) Are forsooth of the old French word error, as (a grand error, 1. magnus iterumus,) properly spoken. These in ancient time, were sent with commision into divers counties to hear such causes especially, as were termed plea of the crown. And this was done for the care of the people, who must else have been hurried to the King's banch, if the cause were too high for the county-court: They differed from the justices of eye and terminer, because they (as we said before) were sent upon one or two special causes, and to one place; whereas the justices in eye were sent through all the counties and provinces of the land, with more indefinite and general commision, as appeareth by Bracton, lib. 3. c. 11, 12, 13. and Britton, cap. 2.

And again, because the justices of eye and minister were sent uncertainly upon any usurp, or other occasion in the county; but these in eye (as Mr. Gau was sent through all England) were sent but few years once; with which agrees Hone in his Mirror of Justices, l. 2. 2. Quousque et ferre attur, &c. t. 1. cap. Des pecus criminales, &c. de sui fidei Regi, &c. and lib. 3. cap. De justices in eye: Where he also declares what belongs to their office. But there is a book written by Sir Robert Gwinn, entitled, The Largess and remuneration of the justices, was of the King Henry the Second, as Land, in his Brit. winomist, pag. 104. and Hudson, de part. &c. anno. fol. 113. hath of these thinge, justiciar is iterumus, conferent, per Henricum secentum, ut de mora Regnum in re porta. et per quorum funderationis justice iterumus confitemur. Et in same respect they resembled our justices of afifie at present, the authority and manner of proceeding much differ.

See, &c. lett. fol. 263. Contow. Justices in eye shall not amerce towns and cities if enough was 52 H. 6. c. 24.

The oaths of the officers and jurors in the eye, inter falsa incerti temp.—Justices in eye to inquire of undue delivery of felonies, inter stat. incert. temp.

Justices in eye can be made by none but the King, 27 H. 8. c. 24. sect. 2.

Matters appertaining in the eye, inter stat. incert. temp. etc., and justices in eye, the justiciar in eye, sect. 2.

The opposeth a commision to any justiciar in eye, sect. 3.

The commision of a justiciar in eye, sect. 3.

The governors of the justiciar in eye, sect. 3.

The oaths of the officers and jurors in the eye, sect. 9.

The commision of a justiciar in eye, sect. 10.

The commision of a justiciar in eye, sect. 11.

The justiciar in eye, sect. 12.

The oaths of the officers and jurors in the eye, sect. 14.

The governors of the justiciar in eye, sect. 15.

Two men of the law in each county shall be in the commision of gaol-delivery, 17 R. 2. c. 10.

None but the King can make them, 27 H. 8. c. 24. sect. 2.

They shall be attended by bailiffs, &c. 27 H. 8. c. 24. sect. 7.

May give judgment on prisoners convicted before other justices, 1 Ed. 6. c. 7. sect. 5.

The granting a new commision of gaol-delivery, or of the peace, in a town corporate, shall not avoid the former commision, 2 Ed. 2. Pb. & Mar. c. 18.

Justices of gaol-delivery may act in their counties, 12 Gen. 2. c. 1.

Justices of the Peace, (justiciar ad suddionum judicatium assignati,) King Richard I. after his return out of the Holy Land, anno 1194. appointed particular justices, laws, and orders, for preventing the frauds, and regulating the contracts and affairs of the Peace. See 27 Ed. 1. m. c. 20.

Justices of labourers, were Justices heretofore appointed to redress the wrongs of labouring men, that would either be idle, or have unreasonable wages. See 21 Ed. 3. c. 1. 25 Ed. 3. c. 8. and 31 Ed. 1. c. 6.

Justices of sales, are all one at this time with justices of assize; if one is a special commission for a cause in the Common Pleas, to put it off to such a day, nisi prius justiciar iuraverit ad eas partes ad capiendas afferas, and upon this cause of adjournment they are called justices of nisi prius, as well as justices of assize, by reason of the writ or action that they have to deal in, nisi prius. Their commission may be seen in 1 Temp. I, fol. 204, yet with this difference between them, that justices of assize have power to give judgment in a cause, but Justices of nisi prius only to take the verdict. But in the nature of both their functions, this seems to be the greatest difference, that justices of nisi prius have to deal in causes of assize as well as real; whereas justices of assize, in their acceptation, middle only with the pettyfrofes writt called Assize. See 1 Temp. I. fol. 204.

Justices of eye and terminer, (justiciar ad au- diendum & terminandum,) were Justices deputed upon some special or extraordinary occasions. See 1 Temp. I. fol. 204.

Perforvae in his Nat. Br. faith, That the commision of eye and terminer is directed to certain persons upon any great riot, insurrections, heinous misdemeanors, or tref- pases committed. And because the occasion of granting this commision should be maturely weighed, it is provided by the statute made 2 Ed. 3. c. 2. That no such commision ought to be granted, but that they shall be dispatched before the justices of the one bench or other, or justices errons, except for horrible trespasses, and that by the special favour of the King. The form of this commision, see F. N. B. f. 110.

Commissions of eye and terminer shall be granted only to the justices of either Bench and in eye, except for heinous trespasses, &c. 2 Ed. 2. c. 1.

Shall go circuits to hear and determine trespasses, St. Raym. interi. temp.

Oyers and terminers shall not be granted but for horrible trespasses, 2 Ed. 3. c. 2. 34 Ed. 3. c. 1.

Oyers of eye and terminer may direct writs to a foreign county to take felonies, 5 Ed. 2. sect. 1.

May try treason, misprisions of treason and murder in any county, after the council have examined into it, 33 H. 8. c. 23.

Justices of the pavilion, (justiciar pavilions,) are certain judges of a pie-powder court, of a most transcendent jurisdiction, held under the bishop of Winchester at a fair on St. Giles's Hill, near that city, by virtue of letters patent granted by Richard 2. and Edward 4. Episcopi Winton. & successores suos, a tempore quo, &c. Justiciarii ait, qui vocantur Justiciarii pavilions, cognitumes placitorum & alliatorum negotiorum commodo duratione, necnon claves particularis, &c. See 11 Ed. 3. sect. 3.

Winton, pro certa tempore feria illius, & nonnullas alias libertates, immunitates & confessiones habuissent. &c. See the patent at large in Pyne's Animad. on 4 left. fol. 191.
J U S

JURISPRUDENCE

Jurisprudence of the peace. (Jurisprud. ad poenam.) Are those who are appointed by the King's commission to attend the peace of the county where they dwell; of whom some, for special replies, are made of the coroners, because business of importance may not be dispatched without the presence or absent of them, or one of them.

They were called Guardians of the peace until the thirteenth year of Edward the third, cap. 12, where they are called Justices. Lamb, Ethir., lib. 4, cap. 19. pg. 578.

Cowell.

1. Of the ancient offices called Confratators of the peace.
2. Of the first institution of justices of the peace, and the general statutes which give them jurisdiction.
3. Who are qualified for the office.
4. Of the manner of appointing them; and of their commission.
5. Of their jurisdiction relating to treason, felony, inferior officers, and immunities not taken before them.
6. Of the jurisdiction of one, two or more justices; and how for a justice of a county, or liberty may act out of them respectively.
7. Of their fees; and how they are favoured and protected by the law in the execution of their offices.

